tur. Good orchard and all well fenced. Enquire of R. T. HAYNES, Sheppardton. 1886-4f.

A Wild Man Eight Feet High.
Ottawa, July 29.—Pretty's Island, near Pembroke, has a sensation in the shape of a wild man eight feet high and covered with black hair. His home is said to be on the island, and two ruffians who were bold enough to go in search of him had a narrow escape of being killed, one of them having his arm fractured by the giant.

sion will be run to Toronto, on Tuesday, August 7th. Tickets good for following day.
For particulars see bill.

You can preserve 250 lbs. of fruit, tomatoes,
etc. with a package of the American Fruit preserving powder and liquid, with or without sugar. For sale at Imp's Book Store, 1882-3m.

G. B. Tolson has not gone to the seaside for vacation. He is at his studio every day, and putting his best touches on the stylish photographs bearing his imprint. See his cabinet finish.

The display in the heavens on Sunday night was very attractive, but it was fleeting. Colours photographs are enduring, and finished in a style which commands admiration. R.
Sallows, the Goderich photographer.

Some people think that in warm weather it is not imperative to have good liquor, but all experienced travellers will tell you that summer is the time when good liquor is most needed. You can get the best at W. L. Horton's.

Saunders & Son have the best and cheapest stock of Fruit Jars, and Granite Iron, and Endured Preserving Kettles in town. Their stock of Cooking Stoves is complete and a fresh stock will arrive next week. The Cheapest House Under the Sun.

Do not be talked into buying an inferior sewing machine, and then regret it ever after, but call at Sheppard's book store and see these White and New Williams machines. It will cost you nothing to try one. If you want a first class piano or organ consult Weatherald at Sheppard's book store Goderich, or Watt's old stand Clinton.

A Big Day.—The Excursion to Niagara Falls and Buffalo on the 17th will make it the great Excursion day of the year. Train leaves Goderich at 5.45. Tickets only $2.00 good for four days. Don't fail to see the Falls under the Marvellous Electric light at night. Crowds are going to improve this grand chance.
Don't this be the best time for our civic holiday!

What about the civic holiday?
Miss Platt has gone to London.
The town council meets to-night.
Rev. B. J. Watters has gone to the seaside.

Miss Mullen is visiting relatives in Quebec.
Mrs. Gev. Acheson has taken a trip to Portland.

Mrs. George Brown has returned from Manitoba.
Mr. Hugh Johnston, we regret to learn,
is very ill.

Mrs. Jackson of Chatham, is the guest of Mrs. Croft.
Miss Grace Fraser is visiting friends at Kincardine.

Miss Annie Hincks returned from Detroit, last month.
Miss Nellie Tighe is spending her vacation at Sandwich.

Mrs. Aleck Saunders is visiting friends at Drayton and Galt.
Mrs. Hayes, West at., died suddenly on Wednesday night.

E. J. Hayhoe, the evangelist, was in town during the week.
A number of bicyclers from London, were in town on Sunday last.

Mrs. Dr. Robertson, of Stratford, is the guest of Mrs. Looney, South st.

Mr. and Mrs. George Quick of London south are visiting relatives in town.
George Thompson, is filling an engagement at the stone works, Hamilton.

Mrs. Elijah Moore returned last week from her visit to Montreal and Quebec.
H. S. Holmes, of Theford, was in town during the week. He looks hearty.

Geo. Stewart, formerly an employe of
R. B. Smith & Co., is visiting Goderich.
Mrs. O. C. Wilson and children, of Seaford, are the guests of Lockman Wilson.

The embankment at the corner of the South street and Elgin street drain is falling in.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Dickson and children of St. Louis, are the guests of governor Dickson.

The plumbers have been at work remedying the leakage caused by the incessant rains.
Mrs. Glasgow, of Colborne, an old resident of the county, died last week at a good old age.

A Smith met with a slight accident some time ago, which threatens to prove serious.
John Crawford and wife of Aylmer, are visiting Lin. Crawford, conductor G. T. R.

Mrs. H. H. Dickenson and two children, of Detroit, is the guest of her uncle, Wm. Campbell.
Miss Hollis and Miss Coleman, of St.
Marys, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs.
F. F. Lawrence.

Mrs. Hanna of London, and Mrs. R.
Hunt of Kippen were the guests this week of Mrs. Logan.
John Donogh, of the Detroit Post, a former Goderich typo, has been visiting his relations in town.

North Street Methodist S. S. will hold its annual picnic at the Point Farm on Thursday next, August 9th.
Wingham excursionists will flood our town on the 15th inst., on the occasion of the civic holiday of that town.

Among the names of the matriculants at Toronto University we observe that of J. Reginald Shannon, son of Dr. Shannon.
There will be a big excursion from along the Stratford and Point Edward line on the 22nd inst., to Goderich, under the auspices of the I. O. O. F.

Mr. Wood, of Toronto, sang "O Salutaria," by Jacquin, very acceptably at St. Peter's on Sunday evening last.

Mrs. R. Radcliffe, who has been visiting at Ottawa and Gananoque the past few weeks, returned home on Thursday.

Robert Stewart, of Saginaw, Mich., and his sister, Miss Stewart, of Sarnia, paid their old friends in Goderich a visit last week.

Miss Kate Sloane, of Lapeer, Mich., cousin of Mr. Samuel Sloan is the guest of her niece Miss Lydia Wilson, Maple street.

Mrs. J. C. Harrison returned from a visit to Ingersoll and Woodstock, accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. McKenzie, of Zorra.

Miss Hincks, of Detroit, formerly of Goderich, is managing the business of Miss Stewart during the absence of the proprietress.

Mr. John McVicar has returned from Mexico, the contract there being finished, and he will be engaged on work in the Lake Superior region.

The Seaford cricketers had practically a walk over on Saturday, defeating the Goderich club in a game of one innings by a score of 137 to 35.

Mayor Forrester, of Clinton, has bought the bicycle of Mr. H. McLean, of Goderich, and is able to ride about as well as any of the rest of the "boys."

Miss Teena Watson, a little daughter of James Watson, baker, while playing on the pier, fell into the water, and but for timely assistance would have been drowned.

Mrs. Charlton, from Chicago, with her daughter, and her niece Miss Drysdale, from Hamilton, are on a visit at her sisters Mrs. D. Fraser, wife of the Deputy Registrar.

Miss Bella V. Reid, the Point Farm telegraph operator, was called to London head office on Thursday last. The "plugs" there didn't seem to be giving satisfaction.

The hanging lamp presented to Mrs.
George Rlymas last week was the gift of Saunders & Son, and was not given by W. Davis, as reported in the list of presents last week.

The crop of red cherries in this section has been a comparative failure this year. Black cherries have borne heavily.
The price of cherries has averaged 9 cents a quart.

Our post office has been getting posted thoroughly in the line of improvement.
A new letter box has been laid, and what was a want long felt, a lamp is suspended over the post office box.

James Wilkinson laid a couple of fine bass with us on Tuesday, a portion of his catch on the morning of that day. He is an enthusiastic angler, and spends many an hour by the water-side.

R. Proudfoot, the grocer, is out in a spicy advertisement, and promises every provision in the line of groceries and provisions. His stand, near the agricultural grounds, is a well known spot.

The venerable John Denison, uncle of Wm. Campbell, town clerk, is again settling in Goderich, after a residence of three years in Iowa. He is 82 years of age, but has lots of energy left in him yet.

At 9.45 p.m. on Sunday night last the aurora borealis presented a very fine sight, extending from west to east, like an arch. It only remained vivid for about 15 minutes and then gradually disappeared.

SWIMMING MATCH.—We know of no place in Canada where a swimming match could be witnessed to greater advantage than on the piers of Goderich harbour. Who is the champion swimmer of Goderich, anyhow?

Weatherald, the sewing machine man, is making things interesting for rival seamstresses in Goderich and Clinton. His White machine is used in our house, and we can recommend it for superior work and ease of running.

We direct attention to the advertisement of Buchanan, Lawson & Robinson, who, as well as attending to all business of the planing mill, make a specialty of school desks and seats. The firm is an old and reliable one, with plenty of push.

Rev. D. J. Macdonnell, of Toronto, preached an admirable sermon in Knox church on Tuesday, says the Clinton News.
He was a large congregation. He preached in the Union church, Goderich township, in the afternoon. He is the guest of Rev. Dr. Ure.

Capt. D. McLeod died on Monday.
He spent the winter in California in the hope that it would improve his health, but consumption appears to have had too great a hold upon him, and he returned weaker than he left. He was buried with Masonic honors.

John Winchester, inspector of Government offices, paid a visit to a number of offices of Court House officials, last week, and found matters all O. K. He was the guest of Crown Attorney Lewis. He left on the steamer Manitoba on Friday morning for Southampton.

The Glee Club meets for the practice every Monday evening at the residence of members of the club. On Monday last many of the residents of St. Andrew's ward were treated to a feast of music, as the club held its weekly rehearsal in the parlors of Deputy-Registrar Fraser.
Prof. Foote appears to have the club well in hand. We hope the first concert will be held early in the fall, and that it will be shown by a large attendance that the people of Goderich are willing to encourage the cultivation of a good class of music.

The West Lynne, Man., Times says:
"Mr. B. Tennant, member for Morris, left for Goderich, Ont., on Wednesday night. He will be absent about six weeks." Mr. Tennant is now enjoying himself on his farm, and by occasional trips to our beautiful town.

A fishing party composed of Messrs.
R. L. Sharp, Alex. Clemenous, C. W.
Pappst, H. Thompson, D. D. Ross, D.
Moore, Thos. Gowenlock, all of Seaford,
A. McAllister, of Durham, and Henry Horton, of Goderich, left on the United Empire on Wednesday, July 25th, for a fishing excursion. They go to the Sault, and probably thence to Nipigon.

The Wingham Times remarks:—"Our Goderich friends may expect an immense crowd from here and other places on the line on that day, (Aug. 15th), and we think it would be a good idea if they would hold their civic holiday on that day also, and unite with us for a good time."

A Punch and Judy show has been exhibited on the Square during the past day or two to the delight of the youngsters. Some difficult feats in heavy balancing were also done by one of the performers. Punch's chirpy remark, "That's the way to do it" will likely be used a slang phrase around town.

Messrs. W. H. Cooper, G. Forsythe and J. McCarthy, wheelmen belonging to the London club, arrived in town on Sunday morning. In the afternoon, escorted by members of the Goderich club, they visited the Point Farm where they partook of the evening meal. The general impression left by train on Monday for home.

GODERICH RACES.—The summer meeting under the auspices of the turf club association will be held on Melton park on the 15th and 16th inst. Purse to the amount of $550 will be offered for competition. Some good horses are expected to be brought to the races.
Entries will be taken addressed to the secretary, John Butler, up to the 14th Aug. at 10 p.m.

The marriage of one of our leading milliners on Monday was the topic which occupied the feminine mind for a day or two this week. The happy bride and her husband left on the noon train for a lengthened trip east, and we wish them all the happiness of their new estate.

There is a flutter in millinery circles as to who is going to next. Rumour has it that the next name on the tablets of Hymen is that of Miss

The schooner Nettie Woodward, which had been secured to the north pier, broke from her fastenings owing to the snubbing posts being rotten, and was knocked violently against the south pier
near the cut-water. The pier was considerably shaken up, and the schooner was damaged not a little. The piers need a thorough inspection and repair.
There is considerable feeling among ship-
owners as to the poor attention bestowed upon the piers by the authorities.

SAD BEREAVEMENT.—It is our sad duty
this week to record the death of Mrs.
John Wallace, which took place on Friday night after a long and painful illness.
The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon last and was attended by a large number of friends and acquaintances. The services of the members of Lucknow I. O. O. F., who walked in a body, Mr. Wallace being a member of that Order. The remains were interred in the Kinloss cemtery.—[Lucknow Sentinel.

broke from her fastenings owing to the
snubbing posts being rotten, and was
knocked violently against the south pier
near the cut-water. The pier was considerably shaken up, and the schooner
was damaged not a little. The piers need a thorough inspection and repair.
There is considerable feeling among ship-
owners as to the poor attention bestowed upon the piers by the authorities.

SAD BEREAVEMENT.—It is our sad duty
this week to record the death of Mrs.
John Wallace, which took place on Friday night after a long and painful illness.
The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon last and was attended by a large number of friends and acquaintances. The services of the members of Lucknow I. O. O. F., who walked in a body, Mr. Wallace being a member of that Order. The remains were interred in the Kinloss cem-
tery.—[Lucknow Sentinel.

Mr. Thos. Stinson, of Stanley, called on us on Tuesday, says the Clinton News.
He came to this county in the year 1834, and can therefore justly claim to be one of the oldest settlers here; the first ten years of his residence here was spent in Goderich, and he expressed the belief that the county town did more business 50 years ago than it does to-day. Although 75 years of age, he is yet vigorous and hearty. One of his earliest and warmest friends is Mr. W. Rattenbury, of this town.

A letter from P. Lynn, of Goderich, who is visiting his sons in California, has been shown us. The boys appear to be doing well, as one of them has just bought another large farm for $140,000, and a second boy is starting in life with a 300 acre farm for which he paid $18, 000. The reaper on young Mr. Lynn's big farm cuts a swath 16 feet wide, is run by seven men, twenty-three horses and cut, eighteen men and sixteen horses are running the thrashing machine. Mr.
Lynn says he is enjoying himself among his sons and nephews in their new and prosperous home.

THE NEW SCHOOL READERS.—The two public school inspectors and a number of the leading teachers of the county met at Clinton on Wednesday, to consider the question of making a choice between the two new series of school readers just authorized by the education department.
The matter was pretty fully discussed, and the unanimous conclusion came to,
to request teachers and trustees not to introduce any books of either of the new series until both of the county associations have fully considered the matter, and decided which they will recommend for a adoption. The intention is to have the relative merits of the two carefully considered by committees to be appointed by the associations at their meeting in October.

SILVER JUBILEE.—The silver jubilee of Rev. Dean Murphy, of Irishtown, was celebrated on Wednesday last at the Parochial residence. His Lordship, Bishop Walsh, of London, also a large number of priests from different parts of the diocese, was present to do honor to Rev. Dean Murphy, on the occasion of his completing the 25th anniversary of his ordination. The presents from his friends were of silver and of handsome design, and exquisite workmanship. The address was read by Mr. McConnell, of Hibbert, and was a very lengthy and flattering one. After partaking of refreshments congratulations were indulged in, and a sociable time was spent in general. With his other many friends from here, he left for the residence of Dean Murphy on the completion of his 25th anniversary, and trust that he will be long spared to enjoy the fruits of his well-earned and honorable career.—[Sea-forth Expositor.

DR. STEWART.—In a private letter from Dr. Stewart, (late of Brucefield), to Dr.
Worthington, dated from Vienna, on the 22nd of June, he says: "I often thought before I got so well and comfortable in my room here during the past winter, what a time it must have been for the poor country doctor of Canada. I will leave here about the 1st of July for home, going to London via Venice, Milan and Switzerland, and remain some time in the Highlands of Scotland, so that it will be the middle of August before I reach Canada. I will have a little time to spend with the friends around Brucefield but not much, as I must be in Montreal by the middle of September. I feel very sorry to leave all the friends I have made in the west, for it will take me some time before I get so well acquainted in Montreal as I am in old Huron." Our readers are aware that Dr. Stewart is now "Professor Stewart" by virtue of his position he will hold in McGill College, Montreal, filling the chair of Materia Medica.

"THE COMPLETE HOME"—This is the title of a valuable work designed for general circulation in families, which is being published in good form by Messrs.
Bradley, Garrett & Co., of Grandfork,
Ont. The author is Mrs. Julia McNair Wright, a lady who is well and favorably known as an instructive and entertaining writer on domestic and family topics.
The information contained in "The Complete Home" is given in narrative form, and is very typical in connection with the complete and careful making of a happy home. The subjects of order, economy, the care of children, home adornment, industry in the home, literature in the home, accidents in the home, religion in the family, hospitality in the home, friendships, the value of good manners, methods of American Honors.

We quote some sensible paragraphs from a well-written article on the above topic in a recent number of Our Continent, in which the author argues that in the best circles in America, there is found to-day as much true politeness as in those by-gone days when the poets sang of the fine old English gentlemen and their stately dames, and continues:

Evidently, to consider the subject at all, we must first come to some sort of definition. We must know we mean by manners before we can classify them as good or bad. In the first place, I think we must discard the Sunday school theory that good manners are synonymous with certain virtues, as unselfishness, amiability, and consideration for others and the like. Had I not long seen its fallacy, I could have had no more convincing proof of it than has come to me during the present writing. A gentleman called on me, who commands my entire respect, both by reason of his able mind and generous heart. Nay, more than this. When I think of the perseverance by which he gained an education, despite of poverty, discouragement and difficulties of various kinds; of the industry by which, though still young he has made for himself a place in his profession; of his goodness to ward the unfortunate and sorrowful, my respect quickens into admiration. Yet this man of true and tender soul, calling upon an errand which did credit to both head and heart, stood before me with his hat on his head and hands in his pockets; and when I had arranged to go with him at an appointed hour to cooperate in his benevolent mission, asked me "if it would be too much out of the way for me to call at his office."

On the other hand, a gentleman (so-called), whom I have every reason to believe is a veritable sounder, places a chair for me with a grace I never saw equalled, and says, "good morning, madam," with such emphasis that I feel like a princess for such a greeting there. And this man of gracious mien but wicked heart finds a welcome in society, and readily goes society to, where my noble friend, if invited at all, would be laughed at, except by the few who know him well enough to forgive his manners.

Neither are the fine manners synonymous with talent or education. You shall see the scholar of wide and accurate knowledge stashed and ill at ease the moment he leaves his study, while a mere sploton in eve situation.

Plainly, this thing, which is neither virtue or wisdom, but which, more than either, is the passport to the "best" society, is not of trifling import; but while always instantly recognizable, it is never less so palpable as to elude definition. Perhaps we can get no nearer to a definition than by saying that manner being the deportment of one person toward other persons, fine manners consist in suitability. A really fine manner is susceptible of infinite shades and gradations, but each suitable to the time, place and person. A manner which is suitable in addressing a person of twenty years of age is not suitable toward one seventy years old. A gentleman does not address a lady with the same familiarity that he uses toward one of his own sex; a tone which is proper from a child to a parent. An obtuseness as to the relation of things is the mainspring of bad manners, and makes life for some people, one long, unconscious inpropriety.

Superior Cucumber Pickles.

To every five gallons of strong vinegar add a pint of pure alcohol, a cup of alum the size of a small walnut, and a half pint each of ground or pounded pepper, cloves, cinnamon and allspice. Peppercorns may be used if preferred, or the spices can be omitted altogether, but that add greatly to the flavor of the pickles. A few pieces of horseradish are also an improvement. The alum must not be omitted as it hardens the pickles. Put the cucumbers right in the barrel, keg or crock, containing the prepared vinegar each day, as they are gathered. If necessary to wash them do not rub them. Lay a board on them with sufficient weight to keep the pickles under the vinegar, and allow no scum to form. Cucumbers should be cut late in the evening, or early in the morning, and handled carefully. Tender string beans and radish pods, green tomatoes, and plums that are almost ripe but not soft, may also be put in the same vinegar with the cucumbers, and they will make excellent pickles. Peaches, pears, cherries, onions, etc., might be prepared in the same way; but I have never tried them. If good cider vinegar is not to be had, make vinegar of syrup, allowing one gallon to three or four of water. The pickles are soon ready for use. We always follow the above mode and many have declared our pickles the best they ever tasted. [Rural New-Yorker.]

Silver Creek, N.Y., Feb. 6, 1880. GENTS—I have been very low, and have tried every thing to no advantage. I heard your Hop Bitters recommended by so many. I concluded to give them a trial. I did, and now am around, and constantly improving, and am nearly as strong as ever. W. H. WELLS.

A Travelling "Hog's" Bags age.

One day last week an incident occurred on the Eastern railroad, between Boston and Lynn, which deserves record. A very well-known citizen of this city returning from Boston, for the cars very much crowded, and in fact only one seat not occupied by a passenger, but utilized by one to hold a valise. Our fellow-citizen, whom we will call Mr. B. quietly lifted the baggage from the cushion with a view to setting it on the floor and filling the seat himself. "What are you doing there?" sharply exclaimed the occupant of the inner seat; "that belongs to a friend of mine." "Never mind your friend," calmly replied Mr. B. "I will take care of him when he comes." Both parties "ceased firing" at this point, and the train moved on to Somerville, but no "friend" claimed the valise and seat, and Mr. B. reminded his fellow traveller of the fact, who said, "Well, that gentleman will be here soon." But as Everett and Chelsea were passed, and there was no change in the situation Mr. B. concluded to make a movement. He accordingly left his seat, and, walking to the rear of the car, said to the conductor, "There's a suspicious character in this car. A gentleman has left a valise in that seat, and I believe that man means to steal it, and I want you to stop him." The conductor replied, "Yes, I've seen that class of gentry before, and I'll attend to his case;" whereupon Mr. B. returned to his seat. As the train slowed up at Oak Island the traveller gave signs of preparing to leave the car, observing which, the conductor approached. As was expected, the traveller grasped the valise; but the conductor interposed, ordering him to drop it. He indignantly refused, saying, "It is mine!" But Mr. B. here said, "You're a liar, sir! you told me that it belonged to a gentleman who was to occupy a seat." The traveller retained the valise and attempted to go but the conductor sternly said, "If you don't leave that I'll arrest you! I will take it to headquarters in Boston, where you can have it by proving property." The Oak Islander, beaten at all points was obliged to surrender on the terms offered, and left the train—a specimen of a basted and disgusted hog (that's the word). It is perhaps, needless to thank our friend Mr. B. in behalf of decent travellers everywhere, for his skillful and courageous disposal of a typical railroad nuisance.

Wit and Eloquence.

Where the traveller now encounters one beggar in Ireland, fifty years ago he would have met with fifty. The towns and villages swarmed with them. A tourist in those days was alternately moved to tears by sights of misery, and to laughter by bursts of genuine wit. The wit was mixed with blarney, which so delicately flattered, that offence was out of the question. Mr. S. C. Hall illustrates the perfection with which an Irish beggar used what we Americans call soft-saunder by an incident that happened while he was visiting Maria Edgeworth, the popular Irish writer. He was driving with her one day, and the carriage as soon as it stopped, was surrounded by beggars.

"You know I never give you any thing," she said to one, who was pleading for a gift. "As quick as a flash come the answer: "O, the Lord forgive ye, Miss Edgeworth! that's the first lie ye ever told."

"Good luck to your ladyship's happy face this morning!" said another of the group. "Sure you'll lave the light beam in my bosom before ye go?"

"O, then look at the poor who can't look at you, my lady," pleaded a blind man; "the dark n' that can't see if your beauty is like your sweet voice."

"O, the blessing of the widdy and five small children, that's waiting for your hono'r's county, be wid you on the road!" called out a mother to Mr. Hall, as she led forth the fatherless children.

"O, help the poor crayther that's got no children to show yer honour," shouted another woman; "they're down in the sickness and the man that owns them at sea."

"Won't your ladyship buy a dying woman's prayers—chape?" moaned a sick female.

"They're keeping me back from the penny you're going to give me, lady, dear," wailed another, on the outskirts of the crowd; "because I'm wake in myself and my heart's broke with the hunger."

Can the reader parallel the eloquence of these touching appeals outside of Ireland?

When to Bathe.

The London Lancet gives some timely hints about beginning out-of-door bathing. If the weather be chilly, it says, or there be a cold wind so that the body may be rapidly cooled at the surface while undressing, it is not safe to bathe. Under such conditions the further chill of immersion in cold water will take place at the moment when the reaction consequent upon the chill of exposure by undressing ought to occur, and this second chill will not only delay or altogether prevent the reaction, but convert the bath from a mere stimulant to a depressant, ending in the abstraction of a large amount of animal heat and congestion of the internal organs and nerve centres. The actual temperature of the water does not affect the question so much as its relative temperature as compared with that of the surrounding air. The aim must be to avoid two chills; first, from the air, and second, from the water, and to make sure that the body is in such a condition as to secure a quick reaction on emerging from the water without relying too much on the possible effect of friction by rubbing. It will be obvious, therefore, that both weather and wind must be carefully considered before bathing is begun, and that the state of the organism as regards fatigue and the force of the circulation should also be considered, not merely as regards the general habit, but the special condition when a bath is to be taken. These precautions are eminently needful in the case of the young or weakly.

A Peculiarity of New Jersey.

"It is only in New Jersey," says the witty Detroit Free Press, "that the papers speak of a widow woman. All other states grant the sex without dispute." Yet New Jersey has good precedents for that. It follows the old Eastern fashion. It was about three thousand years ago that a woman of Tekeah came to King David, saying to herself, "I am, indeed, a widow woman, and mine husband is dead." Possibly in Detroit, all widows are eastern whose husbands are dead, but down a East there are good widows, whose husbands are not dead. The Bible tells us, also, of a "widow woman" in Zarepath who fed Elijah in the days of famine. Bible language seems more familiar to dwellers in New Jersey than those in Detroit. But when Mr. George Washington Moon has his new Bible completed, that woman of Tekeah's statement will be cut down to "I am a widow."

The Boy Who Burned His Father's Shed.

The boy stood on the back yard fence whence all but him had fled. The flames that lit his father's barn shone just above the shed. One bunch of crackers in his hand, two others in his hat; with pity so delicately flattered, that offence was out of the question. Mr. S. C. Hall illustrates the perfection with which an Irish beggar used what we Americans call soft-saunder by an incident that happened while he was visiting Maria Edgeworth, the popular Irish writer. He was driving with her one day, and the carriage as soon as it stopped, was surrounded by beggars.

The Press on Education.

Philip Gilbert Hamilton, in his admirable papers on "Intellectual Life," thus talks of the man who "stopped his paper." "Newspapers are to the civilized world what the daily household is to the members of the household; they keep our daily interest in each other, they save us from the evils of isolation. To live as a member of the great white race of men, the race that has filled Europe and America, and colonized or conquered whatever other territory it has been pleased to occupy, to share from day to day its cares its thoughts and aspirations, it is necessary that every man should read his paper. Why are the French peasants so bewildered at sea? It is because they never read a newspaper. And why are the inhabitants of a territory fourteen times the area of France, so much more capable of concerted action; so much more alive and modern; so much more interested in new discoveries of all kinds, and capable of selecting and utilizing the best of them? It is because the newspaper penetrates everywhere; and even the lonely dweller on the prairie or in the forest is not intellectually isolated from the great currents of public life, which flow through the telegraph and press."

Malaria from the undrained Pontine marshes, near Rome, is a terror to travellers. Ayer's Ague Cure is an effectual protection from the disease, and a cure for those who have become its victims. It works just as effectually in all malarial districts on this side of the sea. Try it.

He Wouldn't Charge Him.

"A man of no veritable good credit ran for office, and the way he was jumped on by everybody had a tendency to make spirals of his hair."

"Well, Johnston," said an acquaintance who kept a grocery store, "I notice you are receiving as many compliments as the average candidates."

"Oh, yes, they are charging me with everything."

"You are charged with a good many things."

"Yes, with ever, hung," he replied, bitterly.

"No, not that much quite."

"I'd like to know what I'm not charged with?"

"Well, Johnston, I don't care what others may do, but there's one thing I've never charged you with, and I give you my word I never will. No, sir, never."

"Thanks for your kindness; but what is it?"

"Groceries, Johnston, I'll never charge you with them. It's cash, or no groceries, old man, and don't let it escape your memory."

"All cases of weak or lame back, backache, rheumatism, &c., will find relief in wearing one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters. Price 25 cents."

Pans' for a Reply.

The Times believes that the station of Sir John Macdonald and Archbishop Tache in inducing Riel to leave the country, by bribing him to do so "was the act of wise men, and not worthy of a prelate and statesman." Our contemporary might have gone further, and given its opinion of the wisdom and morality of the Premier, when, at the very time he was negotiating with the rebel leader he publicly said he "wished to God he could catch Riel." Black ants have a sweet tooth for the aphids that is so destructive to the leaves of the rosebud and other flowering shrubs and vines. For this purpose it would be useful to cultivate the friendship of black ants, instead of (as many people do) exterminating them with coal oil or boiling water.

The hay and clover crop throughout Ontario is one of the heaviest that has been grown for many years, but unless there is a change in the weather of the past month farmers will be driven to their wits' end to save it. Owing to the rankness of the clover, especially fine weather is needed for the curing of it.

The horse that every wants is the horse that suits the road, the track, the park, the family and the farm. He is the ideal horse in size, color, beauty and disposition. He is the horse that fills all the places where horses are needed in our industrial pursuits, and domestic necessities and enjoyments. He is, in short, the horse that is good for twenty years; and to get his breeders must aim at developing the whole horse, not any special feature.

The best time for cutting grass intended for fodder is doubtless the time of flowering. The saccharine juices that go to develop the seed are then in the stalk and leaves, and the grass grown in this stage is necessarily succulent and palatable. Whether it is cut high or low depends on the nature of the ground. As a rule, timothy should not be cut lower than three inches; if shaved close it is likely to be burnt up, and the roots destroyed by exposure to the sun.

In these days of the free use of Paris Green and other poisonous substances for the destruction of insect pests, care needs to be taken that wells or springs are not contaminated. A heavy rain shower following the applications of these poisons may wash them into the water supply of the farm and result in the loss of human or animal life. There is the same risk in the use of commercial fertilizers, and one of our exchanges gives an account of the death of a young man from this cause.

Always business is done by farmers in the neighborhood of Port Hope is growing peas for seed. That locality has been for several years the favored one of seedmen, and great care is taken to prepare the ground and cultivate the crop. But this year it is feared that the heavy rains of June have done great injury, and it is doubtful if a quarter crop will be reaped. We hear of one farmer who has seventy acres under peas for seed, and it is almost completely ruined by the rains.

A careful study of the ensilage question shows that the earth pit is the poorest of all silos. The reason is, first, that fermentation is promoted by the air percolating through the earth and acting upon the fodder; and secondly, that the earth absorbs a considerable portion of its liquid substance. A silo constructed of planks is one of the best as well as the cheapest, especially if care be taken to protect the ensilage from frost. The only advantage of the stone silo is, that it is more likely than any to frost-proof.

A well-known peach-grower in Michigan cuts off one-third of the new wood at the pruning season, and thins out nine-tenths of the young fruit. As a result, his crop is uniformly fine and his peaches are in demand at the highest price in the market. The most successful grape-growers are not less attentive to the thinning out process. One cluster on a shoot is the most they allow, and the best results are frequently obtained by thinning out the one cluster. Fruits and flowers are almost everywhere too crowded to thrive, or to flourish themselves with flavor and fragrance.

Equal parts of June grass and red top will produce a very fine lawn, if the ground is in a fit condition and suitable care is taken of the grass afterwards. The seed may be sown in April or the latter part of September, and if the roots may be properly started, the crop should not be cut oftener than twice the first year. The ground should be well trenched, enriched and graded before the seed is sown; if well watered and rolled and mowed, a good velvety sod is almost sure to form. But this requires time. To produce the beautiful lawns of England has been the work of generations.

High License in Illinois.

Joliet is a considerable city in Illinois, with several rolling mills and other manufacturing establishments. The population is mostly Irish, Americans coming next in number, with a sprinkling of Germans. Some years ago it had the name of being a hard drinking city, but now it has quite a different reputation. It is said that temperance organizations among the Joliet Irishmen and high license have wrought the change.

More than a year ago the city council adopted $500, cash in advance, as the price of a license to sell intoxicating liquors in hotels and saloons. The thing worked well and it was resolved to go a step further. The Irish joined with the Americans in electing a high license mayor and council by an immense majority; and recently the license passed an ordinance, making the license fee $1000, without a cent of abatement in favor of beer saloons. The result so far has been a still further weeding out of the worst saloons, the survival of the fittest only, and apparently a great reduction in the amount of drinking. Ottawa, another Irish democratic town in Illinois, has now taken the first step towards Joliet with a $500 license by law. No distinction is made in favor of beer saloons. Over the border high license is evidently "marching on."

What would Toronto saloon-keepers say to license fees of five hundred or a thousand dollars? It may be added that high license laws in the west differ considerably. In Illinois all licenses hereafter for the sale of spirits and wines are to be granted on the payment of $500 a year, and for beer $150. This is a state tax only, municipalities having the power of charging what local license fee they please besides, or of prohibiting the traffic altogether. The Nebraska law puts the fee in cities of a certain grade at $1000 and at $500 for all other places. The law of Iowa permits towns to fix the amount, and there is no uniform rule on the subject. In some places it is as low as $75 and in other places as high as $1000, and there has been a large increase in the average amount throughout the state, and a considerable reduction in the number of liquor sellers.—[Ex.]

Exemptions from Income Tax. It may be a matter of interest to some of our readers to know what exemptions from income tax are provided by the statute:

The official incomes of the Governor-General and the Lieutenant-Governor. Pensions and gratuities derived from the Imperial treasury, or elsewhere out of this Province. Pensions of $200 a year and under, payable by the Province or the Dominion. The income of a farmer derived from his farm, and the income of merchants, mechanics and other persons derived from capital liable to assessment. Income from dividends on bank stocks and railway stocks are assessed against the receivers. Incomes from building society stocks are assessable, but are charged to the societies in lump sums under "personal property," instead of being assessed to each individual stockholder. Incomes below $400 are exempt. Incomes of clergymen up to $1,000 are exempt. Rental derived from real estate is exempt. In addition to these, the Judges have decided that members of the Civil Service are exempt. The consequence is a special, partial and wholly one-sided and oppressive tax, bearing most heavily on the professional and salaried classes.

Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters free the system of the poisonous humors that develop in the Kidney and Urinary diseases, give tone and vigor to the Stomach and purify the Blood. Dr. Russell has performed a novel surgical operation upon a citizen of Sherbrooke, extracting from the calf of his leg a collar button, which the latter had missed for several months. Some men never know when they have a good thing.

Regina Leader: Gripp's back page cartoon shows John O'Dougherty on his knees imploring Sir John to take him into the Cabinet. Sir John, with his hand on one side, his hands spread, says: "Take you in? Why, my dear Sir, I have taken you in most beautifully. This reminds us of a bon mot of Lord Dufferin's. A Conservative politician said to him some months after the Pacific Conference: "My lord, I think it is now clear that Sir John never sold the charter." "Yes," said Lord Dufferin, with his lip, "he only sold Sir Hugh."

Popular Songs of the Day.

The advanced state of civilization, to which a great portion of this world has attained, more especially the continent of North America, has developed a pleasure in vocal and instrumental music that holds sway over almost every household. So much so is the demand for musical instruments at the present day that numerous large factories have been erected, filled with machinery, and affording employment to thousands of skilled workmen. These factories are distributed throughout the length and breadth of the land, bringing their products within easy access of the district which they control for a market.

The popular taste demands, the use of musical instruments for accompaniments to the voice as well as for instrumental solos. Paterfamilias, yes, and the maternal guardian of the home-circle, are sensible of and as much delighted in listening to the vocal efforts of their children, as when being treated the most brilliant instrumental solos mastered under the tuition of a teacher.

Into the home circle $25,000 frequently introduced the popular songs of the day, sentimental and comical. Almost altogether free from difficult passages, and easily interpreted by a young performer, they are presented to the social assembly with a sweetness or a vim according to the nature of the selection. Father and mother applaud, and by their manner of appreciation renounce from their children that sensitiveness which should ever be treated with careful judgment in the charmed interior of a home.

Of the sentimental songs published at the present season, there can be little said in disparagement, as far as the effects which they produce in the minds of the performers and listeners are concerned. In all probability, and the judgment of those persons more immediately interested go a long way to prove the assertion, — the popular sentimental songs of the day bring more pleasure to the great mass of the people than could be accomplished by compositions more difficult to render. Undoubtedly the style at present in vogue will give place in a few years to another class of music. Query: Will the general system of teaching music also be changed; will the scholar be more thoroughly drilled in the rudiments before being permitted to take his first "piece"? If such a change should be made in the next few years, then will the class of music now flooding the market be confined to pulp, and a style more thoroughly in taste with the talent, and musician spring into vigorous growth that will require an extended period to pass before deterioration once more, if ever, occurs.

The popular comic songs of the day are innumerable. The majority are unworthy of publication and should be confined to the place from whence they originate: the variety stage. Ever variety theatre has its patrons; let its patrons enjoy themselves with the amusement offered them, but remain satisfied with being amused by the actors. Unfortunately, however, the songs of the variety theatre, given with a fitness that the audience into a feeling of ecstasy of delight, are let through the publishing house, to be broadcast on the world, and are afterwards to be found in homes that should be the last to a world them welcome. Of course there are popular comic songs that are without pernicious effects; on the contrary, they are well-sorted and healthful enjoyment to the family circle. That class of vocal music is always to be found in the homes governed by wise and sensible parents.

It might be argued with fitness that the professed period of peace on this continent has a little to do in moulding the taste of the people to the style of popular songs of the day. Were a call to arms given throughout the land how quickly voices would be tuned to warlike strains.

It would be unfair to pass over the merits of two modern composers, Gilbert and Sullivan. These talented gentlemen have given to the world a style of music that is comical, popular, and well in a position in every household. That so many of modern youthful musicians have accepted freely these compositions, and forced themselves to a mastery of them on account of their general popularity, is commendable, and brings a assurance that a higher tone in popular songs will be adopted in the near future.

The Green Republic.

Chatham has said: "Whatever I may think of the pursuits of industry and science, and of the triumphs and glories of war, I do not mention any of these things as the great specific for alleviating the sorrows of human life and encountering the evils which deface the world. If I am asked what is the remedy for the deeper sorrows of the human heart, what a man should chiefly look to in his progress through life as the power that is to sustain him under trials, and enable him manfully to confront his afflictions, I must point to something very different, to something which in a well-known hymn is called 'The old, old story,' said of in an old, old book, and fraught with an old, old teaching which is the greatest and best gift ever given to mankind."

The following is from the Regina Leader:—John Leckie, late banker of Brussels, Ont., has signified his willingness to run as a representative for Broadview Electoral District in the North-west Council. From his well-known business skill and energy, his practical experience in town and county councils in Ontario, his knowledge of the requirements of a new country, his talent as a speaker and efficiency as a debater, together with the large stake he has in Assiniboia and the deep interest he takes in the welfare of the settlers and advancement of the country, he is likely to prove, if elected, as doubtless he will be, one of the best and most useful members of the Council.

FRIDAY, AUG. 3rd, 1883.

THE BRUSSELS BEAR GARDEN.

During the winter season the residents of Brussels village "run" a theatrical company, which weekly rolls off farces and low comedies during the time of long evenings.

Like most other dramatic institutions, the company does not perform in summer time, and by the suspension of the performances an aching void was created in the breast of every laughter-loving, facetious, dramatically-inclined Brusselite, and many there were who raged for the excitement on the boards to commence once more.

Under these conditions it was not to be wondered at that the village council—which is always supposed to have the interest of the residents at heart—should seek ways and means to lift the heavy weight from the spirits of the people, and thereby make sad hearts glad.

And they sought and found a remedy, and this is how 'twas done:—The meetings of the council were made interesting by spicy repartee, strong personality, dark innuendo, and billingsgate galore, which were indulged in by the members of the council toward one another in a most indiscriminate manner.

From a perusal of the last copy of the local newspaper we would never have supposed that the members who compose the council had been elected on the "straight" ticket last New Years. Yet such was the case.

At the last municipal election the cry was raised in Brussels by the leading Tory wire-pullers that a "straight ticket" would be the salvation of the town.

So strongly was the matter talked up that a "straight ticket" was elected, and since that time the shadow of Gritism has not appeared at the council board.

But Burns wrote: "The best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft a-gley, and leave us naught but grief and pain for promised joy."

and the members of the Brussels council have discovered that Burns was correct in the premises.

At the beginning of the year all appeared to be joyful at the board—for a Tory reeve had been "counted in," and a Tory council had been elected, to the entire exclusion of all who had dared raise the Grit shibboleth—and peace and harmony reigned supreme.

But a cloud not bigger than a man's hand—and that the hand of one of the councillors named Drews—gradually loomed up, until after a while the reeve imagined he could see it everywhere.

Drews was ambitious to be the next reeve of Brussels and was already laying plans. Reeve Rogers saw the game, and his mind was at once made up to checkmate the aspirant.

And so the leaven of discontent was introduced, and in due course the entire council was direly incensed. Meeting after meeting has been turned into a bear-garden, hard words have been spoken, nasty reflections have been made, and the belligerent members of the council have only been restrained from breaking each other's head because, as the boys say, "one's afraid, and the other daren't."

In the meantime the village is being plunged head and ears in debt; heavy law expenses have been incurred by the municipality; and improprieties of all kinds appear to be the order of the day.

The ratepayers of the village attend the council meetings and enjoy the exhibition with as much zest as they would were they seeing Jumbo, and the members of the board have always some new "tricks" and catch sayings to hurl at one another at every meeting. The disagreeable procedure will likely continue until the next municipal election when, as is to be hoped, there will be a pretty general cleaning out of the Augean stable by the electoral Hercules.

CONSIDERABLE dissatisfaction is expressed by the residents of Auburn and vicinity at the change in the delivery of mail matter at that office recently made by the Postmaster-General, at the instance of Mr. P. Kelly aided and abetted by Thos. Farrow, M.P.

Before the change the mails left Goderich at 3 o'clock and reached Auburn via Carlow at 5 in the afternoon. Now matter mailed from the county town by the noon train on Friday rarely reaches Auburn, —only twelve miles distant,—before Monday afternoon or Tuesday of the following week.

The change in the route of the mail was brought about, it was contended, to facilitate the delivery of letters and newspapers, but Mr. Kelly's move to improve the mail conditions has certainly not been a step in the right direction.

THE leading Winnipeg paper declares that Manitoba has no right to interfere in the matter of the occupation of the disputed territory.

This, of itself, is enough to show that Norquay's raid upon Rat Portage gets little support even in the prairie province.

The Tories of the next generation will wonder why in the name of common sense the ultra Tories of to-day were not only disloyal to Ontario, but hadn't gumption to stick to the popular cause. When the popular cause is the right one, it is political death to oppose it.

The swift and condign punishment of James Carey, the notorious informer, carries a lesson to every would-be participant in deeds of violence and crime, and bears out the truth of the divine warning "Be sure your sin will find you out."

It also illustrates in a striking manner the scriptural maxim: "The wages of sin is death." Verily, "The way of the transgressor is hard."

The Montreal reporters who have been writing up the bogus James Carey, —who, by the way, appears to be the only man in that city who attends to his own business,—must feel a little cheap now that the real Carey has been killed near the coast of South Africa.

Isome hot-headed sympathizer had put a dose of lead into the suspected man, what a mess there would have been made of it. The amateur detectives of Montreal ought to carry ice in their hats during the midsummer months, and give quiet ocean passengers a rest.

"Our territory and our rights," is a demand which Ontario makes, and which must be respected. The Tory copperheads would betray the Province if they could get power thereby.

The Ontario premier acted on the best advice when he formally took possession and claimed the disputed territory for this province. When Hon. Mr. Mowat returns from England, where he now is fighting Ontario's battles, he will doubtless bring with him some information which will send consternation into the ranks of the copperheads.

The body of Capt. Webb was found near Lewiston on Saturday last by a man named Turner. The farce of a coroner's inquest was gone through with, and a verdict of "found drowned" returned.

No bones were broken, but a severe scalp wound about four inches long, and scars on the thighs and arms were observed, none of which, however, would have caused death. The doctors who made the post mortem examination were of the opinion that death was caused by the heavy pressure on the nerves and muscles, by the waters of the whirlpool, to which the misguided man had been subjected.

The maxim "No case—abuse plaintiff's attorney," was never more fully exemplified than by the conduct of the Mail in the Rat Portage matter.

Having turned traitor to the interests of Ontario, it now not only champions the Manitoba premier for intruding upon our territory and attempting to usurp power there, but it coarsely abuses the Ontario officials who are up there looking after the interests of the people of this Province.

"Mowat's Lambs," "Mowat's Rufians," "Mowat's Hirelings," is the way the organ shrieks at the Ontario peace officers. The fact that the people in the disputed territory are almost a unit for Ontario rule, shows how foully the Tory organ villifies the provincial agents.

The grist of Tory petitioners brought to the election court mill has not shown a satisfactory return up to date. Thus far, not a single case has been decided in favor of the appellants.

In the latest trial, that of the petition against the return of Mr. Hagar, for Prescott, the petitioner was "knocked out" in one round, and the sitting member was confirmed in his seat by the court.

The Tories of Huron, who a few short weeks ago whistled so vigorously to keep up their courage, have had the pucker taken out of their lips by the recent trials, and now sound no word on the question of the petitions against Mr. Gibson or Mr. Cameron is vouchsafed. The petitioners and their solicitors are doing their level best to "smile and look pleasant," but the contrast is a heavy one under existing circumstances.

The London Times deprecates the shooting of informer Carey, and thinks that his murder is calculated to encourage daring and lawless spirits to acts of violence.

The Times is not altogether correct in its view of the matter. We think that the hanging of the murderers of Cavendish and Burke, and the shooting of the informer, will get together as a deterrent to those who would conspire to kill public men.

Had the informer got off entirely free with his pocket full of English gold, there would be an inducement to others to run the risk of a participation in a murderous conspiracy in the hope that if discovered they too might be able to turn Queen's evidence, and so save their necks.

As the case now stands there is little encouragement to conspire to kill, and less still to turn informer.

THE Kincardine Standard throws a flood of light upon the "reader" question, by saying that the conduct of the Education Department in authorizing Campbell & Son's readers and Gage & Co.'s series shows that "the Mowat Government prefers inferior foreign publications to superior Canadian publications."

It is plain that the Kincardine Tory editor is eager to show his partisanship at the expense of a display of ignorance of the matter under discussion.

CAREY'S DOOM.

The Notorious Informer Shot and Killed on Shipboard.

How the Murder was Committed. Rejoicings in Ireland over the Informer's Death.—The Avenger a Californian Gold-Digger.

Intelligence has been received that James Carey, the informer, was shot yesterday on the steamship Melrose, between Capetown and Port Elizabeth, by a fellow passenger named O'Donnell. It is rumored O'Donnell is a relative of Brady, the Phoenix park murderer, and was a member of the Fenian Brotherhood, the able of Peter Carey.

London, July 31.—O'Donnell, who shot Carey, the informer, was accompanied from England by his wife, who appeared on intimate terms with the Carey family during the voyage.

Third class berth on the steamer King's Arms Castle were secured on June 30, at the Dublin office for Port Elizabeth, for a Mr. Power and seven children, which it is well known was the exact number of James Carey's family.

On July 2, O'Donnell secured a passage for himself and wife on the steamer Melrose, and left without speaking. O'Donnell is an Irish-American. He denies that he knew who Carey was previous to their arrival at Cape Town.

A correspondent at Cape Town says O'Donnell only took passage for Cape Town, but Carey had secured a berth on the steamer. Carey continued his journey and shot him when the steamer was close to Algoa bay in the presence of the informer's family. O'Donnell is calm and is strongly guarded, as it is rumored an attempt will be made to rescue him.

A friend to defend him is being sought. On July 31, A. and J. entered houses on Abbey street to-night and seized bedding, furniture, and other articles to make bonfires to celebrate the death of Carey. Effigies of Carey were burned and mock funerals held in various towns.

Eight enormous bonfires were built around Carey's residence. There were numerous fires throughout the city. Bands marched through the streets playing national airs, followed by crowds cheering. A slight collision occurred between the crowd and the police. The officials fear the Fenians will be much emboldened by these demonstrations.

Cape Town, July 31.—O'Donnell was examined before the Port Elizabeth magistrate to-day, charged with murdering Carey. According to the evidence, Carey and O'Donnell were drinking just before the murder. When the shooting was over, Carey was lying on the deck and O'Donnell suddenly shot Carey in the neck. Carey staggered away. O'Donnell followed and shot him twice in the back. Carey died in 20 minutes. O'Donnell says he was a Californian digger and lost largely in a silver mine. He was unaware of Carey's identity until he saw it stated in a Cape Town paper who Power was. He then determined to kill him. O'Donnell was accompanied by a young woman, he called his niece. He is 35 feet high, has grey eyes, dark hair, is 45 years of age, and paralyzed in one leg. It is reported that the informer's chine he brought with him is an ordinary galvanic battery.

Mrs. Carey deposed that after the murder she asked O'Donnell, "Did you shoot my husband?" He replied, "I was sent to do it." Carey's identity was suspected by the Fenians in an intercepted cable. His demeanor on the steamer was imprudent. He provoked a row at Capetown by abusing the English.

Before quitting England Carey bought a revolver, which he persisted in displaying.

Manitoba Interference.

It is evident that a crisis has been reached in the boundary dispute. It is devoutly to be hoped that for the credit of Canada, the lives of her people will be spared in an internecine struggle of so paltry a kind. If there is bloodshed, the onus of it will rest upon Manitoba alone. That province owes more to Ontario than to any other section of the Dominion. Its population is chiefly from Ontario, its laws and whatever institutions it possesses are modeled on those of Ontario. It has been built up largely on Ontario capital, and its people hope much from its friendship with Ontario. Manitoba will do well not to abuse that friendship at the present critical juncture in its own affairs. It may light a fire that may not be easily extinguished. The boundary dispute is one between the Dominion and Ontario solely. It does not concern Manitoba, except remotely; and we are convinced that the people of Manitoba do not sympathize with Mr. Norquay in his present indiscreet and fussy interference. If he gave them a chance, they would tell him plainly that they don't want to quarrel with Ontario and that he had better mind his own business.

The question of possession is another matter. On any view, Manitoba has no right there at present. If the award is not valid, the territory is still in dispute, and it can only be regarded as no man's land. But the unanimous award of the arbitrators has assigned it to Ontario, and the Ontario Government is only doing a duty it should have done long ago in acting upon that award by taking possession, leaving its validity to be contested by those who dispute it. In this the Government will be sustained by the people. If the Dominion Government raises an issue, as of course it will, there is no reason why it should not be settled peacefully, by reasonable process of law. But in the meantime Manitoba is a trespasser upon both the Dominion and the Ontario Government should unite to eject.—Toronto World.

LACROSSE MATCH.

Hurons of Goderich v. Beavers of Seaforth.

The Goderich Club Victoria—A Game Worth Witnessing—Four Hours of Very Hard Work.

The spectators who paid to see the game of lacrosse on Monday got the worth of their money. The contest was a close one, the play was vigorous and well-sustained, and the games brought out the full powers of the two teams.

The Beavers of Seaforth have a good name as active men on a lacrosse field, and their play did not belie them. They have two or three really strong men, Deidrick and Macdonald coming well up to first class form. They worked hard, but the home team had some good men, and the throwing of McPhillips, the heavy work of Perry although not intrepid on Monday, the dashing play of Tom Graham, and the clever dodging of Henderson and the rest, was too much for the Seaforth team.

The play of Fox, who played himself as a favorite with Goderich people, cannot be passed over without favorable comment. He put in some brilliant work, and bore some hard knocks with the good humor of a Mark Tapley. The Goderich team did not run a field captain, but the Beavers were taken in hand by one, whose efforts during the first game got his men in the right spot ruined his sweet voice for the remainder of the afternoon. Before the end of the match he was as silent as a "wax figure." The average field captain is a nuisance on the field. He is in the way of the players, and he too enthusiastic gets "killed" by the spectators. The Goderich club has won all its matches this year without one.

The teams were composed of the following men: BEAVERS.—T. Perry, R. Logan, A. McPhillips, W. Ellard, T. Graham, J. Henderson, J. Perrin, J. Fax, S. Hays, W. Watson, W. J. Barton, E. Doyle. BEAVERS.—Sebos, Deidrick, C. MacKay, W. MacKay, J. Smith, —Woods, W. R. Porter, R. McDonald, C. W. McDonnell, T. Coleman, "Cap" Downing, B. McManus, W. Kemp, Field captain—W. Shaw. UMPIRES.—For Seaforth—W. R. Coulter and Geo. Young. For Goderich—J. Joyce.

REFEREE.—R. S. Williams. It was fully half past three before the ball was kicked from a Seaforth attack before the last goal was secured. The game was witnessed by a fair number of spectators, among whom were many ladies. The ball was sent in among the crowd several times, and some of the fair spectators showed their agility in getting out of the way of the rubber hunters.

The first game was stubbornly contested, the visitors forcing the play at the outset. The Goderich boys soon got down to their work, however, and amid a rousing cheer Ellard, who had received the ball from Fox, put it through the Seaforth flags in 25 minutes.

The second game was entered upon with vigor by both teams. Some hot work took place about mid-field, where the men were thick, and at times the lacrosse were flying about like the paddles of a fanning mill. After 12 minutes play, Perrin was hit in the face by an attack from a Seaforth attack and lay dead for a few minutes. Time was called by the referee, but a short time sufficed the plucky little 'un to get into shape, and he soon pranced on the field again amid the applause of the spectators. When the ball was faced again, the Beavers kept it pretty well going, and at length sent it through the Huron's flags.

The excitement now increased among the spectators, and at a quarter to five the ball was faced for the third game. In about 15 minutes the rubber got down to the Seaforth goal, and a goal was scored. The Poet's Corner.

"They Were Seven."
I met a man well mounted once,
(On a fifty-four he said),
The air was thick with curls of smoke,
That clustered round his head.

A Modera Table.

The Early Peach came to a place where four roads met. He slapped his chest with his stem and looked to the east and to the south.

"Bismillah!" he cried, "I am the boss, and I drive the ambulance."

The little Green Apple came down the long road from the west and heard him.

"I am the son of the cyclone," he shouted, "and I travel with my own private coroner."

"By the camel of Mahomet," said the Early Peach. "I am the friend of the sexton, and I can knock you out in four rounds, Marquis of Tewksbury rules."

"Come to the wake," shrieked the little Green Apple, "and you may call me the harmless paw-paw of the wilderness if I cannot double up the man who planted you."

Then they looked down the four long roads and waited for some one to practice on. From the east came a fair young girl from Vassar College and up from the south came a gray-haired African.

"Take you the fair student," said the Early Peach.

"Not I," said the little Green Apple,
"I don't come here to attempt impossibilities. For nearly ten years that girl has sat at surreptitious midnight lunches;
she has broken up a score of young men with her ice-cream bills, and still she is hungry. But I will stand aside and give you a glance at the African."

"I am not on the suicide lay this morning," said the Early Peach. "I know him, and already since yest. even's sun there have reposed beneath his un-dressed vest a peck and a half of my brethren and he is even now famished.
He is known as the destroyer of watermelons, and 'f' my tribe fear him.
Allah is great, but some things are impossible."

So they let many people pass by un-fanned, the old, the tough, the wary and the well-seasoned. But when the day was fast spent, coming down the long road from the west, they saw a ruddy boy, the pride and joy of his home and the terror of his neighbors. Wasting a moment he came, his face as red as the glowing west, his heart as light as the down.

He was their meat.
The Early Peach and the little Green Apple took their teeth and breathed hard at the newcomer.

"Now," they shrieked, and Evid with the boy's heavily sprung upon him.

"The boy's name is 'f' that boy had broken them down," he roared,
"and he is going to get at the 'goodly,' he said."

"You are 'f' that boy's name is 'f' I knowed what he said and a bell of them fellow."

The Early Peach with a dying gasp said, "We are 'f' that boy's name is 'f' I knowed what he said and a bell of them fellow."

With a hollow groan the little Green Apple replied, "We are 'f' that boy's name is 'f'
I knowed what he said and a bell of them fellow."

But the boy slept soundly all that night, and he came back the next day to talk to the 'f' that boy's name is 'f' I knowed what he said and a bell of them fellow."

The boy's name is 'f' that boy had broken them down, and he is going to get at the 'goodly,' he said. The boy's name is 'f' that boy had broken them down, and he is going to get at the 'goodly,' he said.

THE SUMMER FURNACE.

The Proper Treatment of Little Children.

The weather has been pretty warm for some time past and we expect a few spells of tropical heat before the end of August.
It is well to take things as easy as one can and to prepare for these outbursts. The following report of the Sanitary Committee of the New York Board of Health upon sunstroke is approved and published by the Board. They apply here:
Sunstroke is caused by excessive heat, and especially if the weather is "muggy."
It is more apt to occur on the second, third or fourth day of a heated term than on the first. Loss of sleep, excitement, close sleeping rooms, debility, abuse of stimulants, predispose of it. It is more apt to attack those working in the sun, and especially between the hours of 11 o'clock in the morning and 4 in the afternoon. On hot days wear thin clothing. Have as cool sleeping rooms as possible. Avoid loss of sleep and all unnecessary fatigue. If working in-doors, and where there is artificial heat—laundries, etc.—see that the room is well ventilated. If a feeling of fatigue, dizziness, headache or exhaustion occurs, cease work immediately, lie down in a shady and cool place; apply cold cloths to and pour cold water over head and neck. If anyone is overcome by the heat, send immediately for the nearest good physician. While waiting for the physician give the person cold drinks of water or cold black tea, or cold coffee if able to swallow. If the skin is hot and dry sponge with or pour cold water over the body and limbs, and apply to the head pounded ice wrapped in a towel or other cloth. If there is no ice at hand, keep a cold cloth on the head, and pour cold water on it as well as on the body.
If the person is pale, very faint and pulse feeble, let him inhale ammonia for a few seconds, or give him a teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in two tablespoonfuls of water, with a little sugar.

CARE OF INFANTS.

The new board of health publishes the annexed rules for summer in regard to the nursing of infants. Goderich mothers can read them with profit:

Over-feeding does more harm than any thing else: nurse an infant a month or two old every two or three hours.

Nurse an infant of six months and over five times in twenty-four hours, and no more.

If an infant is thirsty give it pure water or barley water; no sugar.

On the hottest days a few drops of whiskey may be added to either water or food; the whiskey not to exceed a teaspoonful in twenty-four hours.

In relation to the feeding of infants
the Board advises:

Be a teaspoonful of powdered barley (sound in coffee grinder) and one half pint of water, with a little salt, for fifteen minutes; strain, then mix it with half as much boiled milk, add a lump of white sugar, size of a walnut, and give it lukewarm for a nursing bottle. Keep bottle and mouth piece in a bowl of water when not in use, to which a little soda may be added.

For infants five or six months old,
give half barley water, and half boiled milk, with salt and a lump of sugar.

For older infants, give more milk than barley water.

For infants very costive, give oatmeal instead of barley. Cook and strain as before. When your breast milk is only half enough, change off between breast milk and this prepared food.

In hot weather, if the blue litmus paper applied to the food is red, the food is too acid, and you must make a fresh mess or add a small pinch of bak-soda.

Infants of six months may have beef tea or beef soup once a day by itself or mixed with other food, and when ten or twelve months old a dust of bread and a piece of rare beef to suck.

No child under two years ought to eat at your table.

Give no candies—in fact, nothing that is not contained in these rules without a doctor's order.

The Board thus refer to summer complaint:

It comes from overfeeding and hot and foul air. Keep doors and windows open.

Wash your children well with cool water twice a day or once in the hot season.

Never neglect looseness of the bowels of an infant; consult the family or dispensary physician at once, and he will give you rules about what it should take, and how it should be nursed. Keep your rooms as cool as possible, have them well ventilated and do not allow any bad smell to come from stoves, privies, garbage boxes or gutters about the house where you live. See that your own appointments are right, and complaint to the Board of Health, if the neighborhood is offensive. Where an infant is cross and irritable in the hot weather, a trip on the water will do it a great deal of good and may prevent cholera infantum.

SWEETHEARTS AND WIVES

The Speech of Charles Dudley Warner at the Army of the Potomac Reunion.

At the Army of the Potomac reunion in Washington, Charles Dudley Warner, in responding to the toast, "Sweethearts and Wives," spoke in part as follows:
This is an excellent and venerable toast. I have no doubt it could be found deposited under the foundation stone of one of the oldest existing monuments in the world—that to Washington, over yonder. It is old, but it will be new and fresh long after the Washington monument is finished. It is one of the most ingenious sentiments ever devised by evanescent man. Its origin is lost in the mists of antiquity, but it was no doubt concocted before latch-keys were invented. "Sweethearts and Wives" is that
"and" a conjunctive or disjunctive conjunction? It suits both. It suits the convivial hour of the banquet, and it will pass muster under domestic inspection, at any hour of the morning. It may mean, for the worldly moment, that there are sweethearts and there are also wives, and it may mean, when it must,
in the hour when an account has to be given of the deeds done here in the banquet, that sweethearts and wives are the same persons. It is an honored toast, being usually kept, like good wine, till the last.

It is not necessary, in the presence of the Army of the Potomac, that I should appear as the eulogist of woman. She is indeed beginning to speak for herself, and I am expecting the day when she will begin to speak for us, when she will do man some slight justice for the little part he has played in his history. She knows all about it; she reads him like the alphabet. She knows just when he has been false and when true, when his bravery was genuine, and when it was from the fear of being called a coward, when he has been a pretender, and when he has been a hypocrite, when he has been so loyal that she could worship him without a flutter of reservation, and love him without a blush; she has studied him, and kept all these things in her heart. She has shed tears enough over him to wash away all his sins—to float him into heaven. If he could go there by water. She has flattered him until his head touched the stars. She has strengthened his heart, and sent him out into the world with a shield and the injunction not to return without it unless he was borne upon it. She is always willing to hold out a light, by which he can swim across the river to her, and her smile is always worth the swim. She is always ready to pray him out of any mischief she has enticed him into. She will make a man of him if anything in this world can. Her constancy is a proverb; she is the one thing that is never twice the same, and that never changes; the object that man can confidently tie to.
She is our national motto personified—infinite variety in unity. What she was yesterday she will not be to-morrow, and she was not the day before; she is everlastingly the same.

What she was to the soldier of the Army of the Potomac I need not say, whether she remained at home to sew for him and pray for him, or followed him armed with lint and bandages, or went about in hospitals in the garb of a saint with the smile of an angel, the picture of self-sacrifice to "Miss Linn for his mother." How her patriotism and generous for organization shone out in that great army she created, second only in importance to the army in the field, which cared for the wounded and sick.
When you are balancing in your mind the cost of a spring bonnet and 10c, or regaldis, remember that it was American women who devised and executed the greatest alleviation ever known for the miseries of war. Did she make any less sacrifice than you, patient in her lonely home, keeping up her courage and cheerfulness? I need not say how you thought of her constantly and of her pride in you, and you desire to play the man partly for her sake—sweetheart or wife?

But I am not here to tell you women or the Army of the Potomac; only to give you "sweethearts and wives"—a sweet heart and a wife's letter; best of all is sweetest: "I love you."

British Paupers Coming.

There is something amusing in the announcement just made that "The South Dublin Union has consented to the emigration of eighty workhouse inmates to Canada." One might almost be led to suppose from this that the people of Canada has been making frantic demands to the South Dublin Union to consent to these workhouse inmates taking their departure, and that, like Pharaoh of old, it had hardened its heart and would not let them go, but finally relented and gave its consent. This, however, is hardly the case. Canada has not been clamouring for workhouse inmates, and would not be in the least danger of breaking its heart if not another pauper came this way. If the South Dublin Union imagines that Canada works itself into a state of wild enthusiasm over the accession of a few pauper emigrants, it makes a very great mistake. This country has its hands full in looking after its own poor without being burdened with the poor of another hemisphere. (Tor-

FIRE AND SWORD:

A STORY OF THE MASSACRE OF GLENCOE.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

A GLEAM OF HOPE—THE BOW IN THE CLOUD.

At last, after five days of patient and unwearied watching and waiting, Malcolm had avenged the murder of his betrothed, and his slaughtered kinsmen—the men of the Glen.

The deed was not justifiable, judged by the present day morality, however much the brag and guilty Sergeant merited his death; but in view of the extraordinary and revolting circumstances which occasioned it, the deed receives a palliation which half condones its crime.

Viewed, however, in the times in which it occurred, the avenging act of Malcolm Macdonald against Sergeant Barber was in the highest degree magnanimous and heroic.

Rightly or wrongly, however, the perjured Sergeant had now gone to his last account, and the avenger was once more a fugitive with blood on his hands and pursuit in his rear.

He was, however, less even than merely anxious as to the possible results. In the death of Helen Cameron he had received what to him had proved the unkindest cut of all.

And his kinsmen, the clansmen, too, were all dead or scattered with land or property wasted, purloined or utterly destroyed.

What mattered it, therefore, whether he lived or died? He was ready to die, if need be; he preferred yielding up his life to the destroyer of his kinsmen as dearly as possible.

He would rest himself till dawn, safely screened from sight and from the piercing keenness and fury of the wintry blast.

From his snug, though rude place of shelter he could distinctly hear the wind wrestling with the beech and alder trees which shaded the lower slopes of the giant Glen.

But above all the war of winds and trees arose the increasing voice of the mountain cataracts as they rushed precipitately down the rugged sides of mighty Ben to throw themselves in the rapid and narrow channel of the Nevis.

Otherwise, the deep solitude of the spot was undisturbed. Not a fox howled on the lonely hill; neither was heard the sweep of a solitary hawk-eagle's wings overhead.

The grey mist of snow which filled the sky had blotted out moon and stars, and darkness and silence held twin reign while Macdonald slept.

The light of morning broke at length on the lofty hill-tops, and with it the fugitive awoke from a deep sleep, and brushing the frost-rime from the exposed parts of his limbs, he arose to his feet and proceeded at once to descend the long, deep Glen.

a hill path converging on the "Ferry" point at South Ballachulish.

Reaching this point he was fortunate in finding old John, the ferryman, just landing, he had come straight over from the north side of the Loch with a pair of beautiful antlered stags in his boat, the property of a neighboring laird, who had that day shot them north of the Loch in the wilds of Gamsanahar, John, the honest old ferryman, although a Macdonald, had escaped the general massacre of his kinsmen, presumably on the grounds that he had been resident for years at North Ballachulish, and was not, therefore, properly accounted a tenant of the Glen.

"Good day, John," said Malcolm coming up to the old ferryman. "I will cross the Loch with you. I mean to reach and settle in the Lochiel district among the Camerons."

"God bless us, Malcolm!" exclaimed the ferryman, "is this young man I see or is it the wrath of Malcolm Macdonald—so wan and sad ye look?"

"It's just me, John, and not an ounce of wraith-shadow about me."

"And, godsave, Malcolm—since it's yourself—how in heaven's name did you escape Glenlyon's murdering rector who played such wild work in the Glen?"

"If the dogs had given us a chance—fairly only," answered Malcolm, "we should have sold our lives and heritage to much better advantage. I fought my way through the redcoats to the cover of the hills, reserving my life for the accomplishment of a merited revenge, and look ye John, I have had it!"

"And your father, poor man, was one of the victims?" added the ferryman, putting the remark in the form of a question.

"Alas! yes," replied Malcolm; "shot down like a dog, and his own roof-tree burned over his prostrate body. But if there is justice in heaven—as I am sure there is—the murderers will not go unavenged."

"God send them a reckoning soon!" acceded the ferryman, preparing his boat for the return journey.

"Amn to that, John," answered Malcolm. "And it is well that the work of death was not so complete as Breadalbane, Glenlyon and the devil could have wished it to be, Malcolm."

"True, John; but how few, alas, have escaped; whom the soldiers' bullets spared the snows of the hills have destroyed."

"Ay, ay, Malcolm, brave men and brave were the men of the Glen," answered the old ferryman, and many of them are this day lying cold and stiff among the hill snows. But the lads were true to each other to the last. When a cripple or an invalid could no further be carried, the brave lads stood by them, and met their deaths together at the hands of the cruel soldiers, and they sold their lives dearly, too, as the gashed bodies of many a dead redcoat can this day testify."

"Had we but fair play and no treachery," rejoined Malcolm, "Breadalbane's minions would have fared worse. But with nothing at hand but our dirks and a few odd claymores, the fight was unequal, and cowardly on their side. On all hands we were smitten and ravaged—fire and death in the valleys behind us; snow and death on the mountain before and around us."

"That is true, Malcolm, too true," answered the other. "You would hear of poor young Ronald's fate—Ronald Macdonald, the tacksman's brother, I mean?"

"No, what of him?" inquired Malcolm, catching eagerly at the name. "He escaped from the tacksman's house along with me, but we took different routes in cutting our way clear of Sergeant Barber and his party. I have not heard of him since. I had all along concluded him as dead."

"And dead he is, poor fellow," replied the old ferryman, "and a finer young man never wore the Macdonald tartan."

the secret of Malcolm's excitement over the discovery at a glance, for which comforting thought you'll be right glad, Malcolm, now that I remember rumor had your names on her tongue shortly since."

Malcolm passed slowly wrong the honest old ferryman's rough hand. "This indeed is comforting and merciful news, John, the very heart of Glenelg to any stretched and hitherto despairing soul. Thank God for the blessed favour accorded me. I must see her—must away. Good-by meantime, and Heaven bless you," and with a rapid step the impetuous young Highlander waved the old boatman a brief adieu, and was soon lost to sight round the head of the pool converging on the main pass of the Glen.

Hon. Oliver Mowat has crossed swords with Sir John in the Mercer case and defeated him handsomely. The Mail has been wont to brag that Sir John never was mistaken as a constitutional lawyer. That Sir John is shrewd and clever, everybody admits, but that he ranks higher as a sound interpreter of constitutional law than either Messrs. Mowat or Blake has only been maintained by those sycophants whose flattery is always fulsome in proportion to their expectation of reward.

Sam Patch's Fate.

The untimely fate of Matthew Webb, the English swimmer, at once recalls, in the minds of all the older class of citizens, the name and the fate of Sam Patch, whose foolhardiness seems the only full parallel to Webb's. Patch's feat was to jump from the bank at the top of cataracts into the water below. He did this success fully and without harm at Niagara and the Passaic Falls in New Jersey, and on one, if we mistake not, at the Genesee Falls at Rochester. On a second attempt at the latter place, he lost his life. This was "a many years ago," and we know not where to look for record to the agency. It was one of the most famous events in the early history of Western New York.

A Sensible Manitoba.

[Winnipeg Free Press.] The best thing the Manitoba Government can do is to withdraw their officials and cease their farcical attempts to govern the territory. Whatever rights and privileges Ontario can claim, Manitoba certainly has none until the territory is legally handed over to her, nor will this pitiful attempt to assert her sovereignty give her any such rights. Let the Dominion Government fight Ontario if they want to; it is none of our funeral.

Washington, July 30.—The Government has been advised that a disease called cholera has appeared in the state of Oaxaca, Mexico. Cholera often exists in that region, which is not Asiatic. SEE HOW TO Preserve 256 Pounds of Fruit, Tomatoes, &c. FOR ONE DOLLAR.

ONE ($1) PACKAGE OF THE American Fruit Preserving Powder & Liquid Will Do It.

The Preserving Powder and Liquid are together in package; the Liquid in bottle with the powder packed around it. Both the Powder and Liquid are antiseptic. Used together as directed, they combine to form the Cheapest, Best and Most Reliable Antiseptic in the world, being instantaneous in its action and permanent in effect, and warranted to be as healthful as common table salt.

Fruit, Juices, Syrups, Sauces, Marmalades or Compotes of Fruit, Spiced Fruits, Tomatoes, Vegetables, Cider, &c.

The Preserved Fruit, etc. may be kept the year round, or for years, in Glass, Earthen or Stoneware Jars of any size, simply corked with a common cork, or with strong paper, or oiled cloth tied over the top, or they may be kept in Wooden Kegs and Barrels. No need to keep the vessels air-tight.

The Fruit, etc. may be used or removed from large vessels as wanted from time to time during weeks or months.

The Fruit, etc. may be transported over land or water, involving weeks or months in transit.

The Fruit may be kept without sugar, or any quantity of sugar may be added as desired.

One ($1) package will preserve two Barrels of Cider; it will keep as still cider in barrels; as desired it may at any time be made into sparkling cider.

The Preserving Powder and Liquid is not a new and untried experiment, but has been extensively used throughout the United States and Canada, and to considerable extent in foreign countries during several years past, and as can be shown by thousands of testimonials, it has proven itself reliable and satisfactory in every demand—in fact it has given such universal satisfaction, and grown into such demand as to warrant the belief that it will supplant all other methods of saving Fruit, etc.

Acting upon such assurance and belief, the package of Preserving Powder has been enlarged to the extent of making one (one dollar) package, to preserve 256 pounds of Fruit, etc., or two (2) barrels of Cider.

Also in place of publishing the manual or circular pamphlet giving twenty-eight pages of testimonials as formerly published, a small package of the Powder and Liquid is made (as a trial package) to sell at retail, for 25 cents.

By the Preserving Powder and Liquid—you will like it—you will find it less than half the trouble and expense of any other method, more reliable and accommodating, and the Preserved Fruit, etc. even Superior to the Best "Canned or Preserved" Fruit, etc. For Cider it is cheap and decidedly the best known method of keeping it sweet.

Full directions in English, French, German and Spanish accompany each package. Agents wanted in every Town, County and State.

Price, 25 Cents and $1.00 Per Package. L. P. WORRALL, Proprietor, New York.
