THE HURON SIGNAL

published every Friday Morning, by D. MCGILLICUDDY, at his Office, North st.
GODERICH, ONTARIO,

FRIDAY, JULY 29th, 1887.

TO OUR READERS.

With this issue THE SIGNAL appears under a changed proprietorship. For the past fourteen years the firm name of "McGilluddy Bros." has been almost a household word in the County of Huron, but, as will be seen in our advertising columns, the partnership has at length been dissolved, Mr. Thomas McGilluddy retiring from the firm. Seven years of the fourteen mentioned have been spent in guiding the destiny of THE SIGNAL, and during that period the residents of this section have had ample opportunity of judging of the journalistic ability of the retiring member.

Mr. Thomas McGilluddy leaves his editorial post to assume the position of shorthand writer to the Department of Agriculture for Ontario, a position which his photographic ability and journalistic training fully equip him for.

Mr. D. McGilluddy, the remaining member of the old firm, has decided to stay in Goderich until after the C. P. R. comes, and will carry on the business at the old stand. Notwithstanding the fact that he will now be forced to do double work, and furnish a larger quota of the local matter which has made THE SIGNAL so justly famous, he has decided not to increase the regular subscription assessment, but to keep to the old figure of $1.50 a year in advance, and job work at rock-bottom rates.

With these few remarks the sole editor and proprietor takes the chair.

POLICY OF BIGHEAD.

About one of the meanest and most contemptible acts ever perpetrated by a municipal corporation was done on Wednesday last, by order of the town council of Goderich, at the suggestion of the finance committee of that august assembly. The clerk was instructed to hawk tenders outside of town, to see what was the lowest figure for which some "scab" printing office would print the voter's list. THE SIGNAL was asked to tender by the "clerk," and when we learned the facts of the case, we distinctly told that functionary that we would see the entire council to Hong-Kong and back before we would demean ourselves by making out a tender under the circumstances.

How does the thing stand? Why, eight here in Goderich are two of the principal printing offices in the county, which employ more hands than any four outside offices; which support a number of families in Goderich, and pay a good deal of money directly and indirectly towards the taxes of the town; and yet a few duffers, troubled with big heads and little brains, ask them to compete on an equal footing with offices which do not in any manner whatsoever contribute to the keeping up of the town finances.

That is not all. Month in and month out the reporters of the local papers of our town are supposed to attend the council and committee meetings, and lick into presentable shape the frothings of wordy inanities; and make sense for men who talk nonsense; and waste columns upon columns of space, and has upon hours of time, upon a few men who otherwise would never be heard of, without recompense or even decent acknowledgment. And the men afflicted with bigheads think that we are making no sacrifice under the circumstances. But when the self-constituted Solons think so, they are away off in their calculations, and THE SIGNAL will teach them the lesson before many moons.

So much for a preamble, and now we will point out a peculiarity in connection with the action of the bigheads which will prove amusing to all who have watched the progress of recent events. Perhaps the man who, under existing circumstances, needs the largest hat is the chairman of the finance committee, for he it is, who is, to a great extent, responsible for the absurd action of the council in asking for Cheap Jack tenders from outside sources. At the last meeting of the county council one of the loudest talkers about protection to the home dealer was this individual. He believed that the local tradesmen should be protected against the encroachments of the Cheap Jack tenders, who paid postage or rent, and employed no labor, and he was anxious to have the discriminatory tax of $25 increased and a prohibition tariff of $200 a year placed upon all such. At that time his own corns were pinched, and he made a mighty big squirm. Now he appears to have recovered from his protectionist ideas, when his own craft is not assailed, and he is anxious to have the newspaper offices of Goderich, (which as we before stated, pay taxes, rents and wages in the town), compete on equal terms with offices that pay nothing to the town exchequer, and never will. This man thought because he paid rent and taxes and employed a clerk that a pedler with a wagon had no right to compete with him, notwithstanding the fact that said pedler was taxed $25 for so doing, and now he expects us to compete with outside Cheap Jacks on equal terms and without a protective tax of $25 in our favor. If he handicaps the outside competitor by a license fee of $25, we will be satisfied, and will not ask to have the tax raised to $200 before competing. And we claim that the printer who invests his capital and energies in endeavoring to build up a town has just as much right to be protected commercially as the man who sells goods over a counter.

There is another feature we might point out, and that is, that when any of the members of the council or anyone else in Goderich, wants to have the interests of the town upheld or defended against foreign attack, they do not instruct the town clerk to write to outside points asking for tenders for the work. No, no; they rush without hesitation to the town newspapers, and have their battles fought by the local journals, without charge, and often without thanks.

We intend to fight this business until the bighead policy is driven out and common sense reigns once more. We know the intelligent public is with us in the matter, and the intelligent public is master of the council, and is never troubled with bigheads.

There will be a meeting of the town council this (Friday) evening, and next week we will not fail to let our readers know to what extent the bighead policy is supported, and to show up the members of the corporate body who need larger hats.

In the bye-election in Renfrew caused by the death of the late member, the Conservative candidate was elected. The Reform convention had unfortunately chosen Duncan McLarty, of C. P. R. fame, to be their standard bearer, and he proved to be a heavier load than they could carry.

The Tory liars are not all dead yet. The latest yarn published by the Mitchell Advocate is one in effect that Bob Bermingham, a Tory hanger on in Toronto, had been approached to pair off the pretent against Robt. Porter in West Huron with John Brown's libel suit against THE SIGNAL. If Bob Bermingham, or any other man ever stated that such a proposition was made, he lied. THE SIGNAL isn't worried about Brown's libel suit.

A SORT OF IMPEACHING ITS VERACITY.—Rev. Father Bombet, of Kingsbridge, Ashfield, has a letter in the Goderich Star warning his friends "not to take as unassailable truth anything that the Grit paper of that town may choose to publish where I am concerned. The publishers are remarkably unfortunate with their sources of information in my behalf."

The above is from the Clinton Tory organ, and we must admit that we were not as careful as usual about our "source of information." The item to which the rev. gentleman took exception was clipped from the Clinton Tory organ two weeks ago, and inserted in our county news column. We will endeavor to be more careful as to our "source of information" hereafter. At this distance from Clinton it looks as if the Tory organ was "root of impeaching its veracity."

Clinton. New Era. In conversation with the writer recently, Capt. W. Zealand of Hamilton, a life-long Conservative and for thirty years a master on the lakes and sea, used these words: "The shipping business could not possibly be in a worse condition than it is, and the Government is responsible for it. The changes in shipping laws and the general course of the Government have made matters worse every year. The only remedy is Commercial Union, and I go in for it for heart and soul. I regard it, also, as the only preventative of annexation."

Mrs. Zealand.—We are pleased to be able to state that Mrs. Zealand is holding her own, and the doctors think, making progress towards recovery, though she is not yet out of danger. She suffers a great deal as the result of her injuries, and the effect of the hot weather, but we hope to be soon able to announce that she is out of danger.—New Era.

WHAT'S UP?

Things That Are Happening Around Us.

What's in a Name?—A Fair with a Shorter Name will Draw a Larger Crowd—Good and Sufficient Reasons—Why a Short Name Should be Adopted.

—I've been told that we are going to have a Fall Show this year that'll knock the spots, as the boys say, off all its predecessors. It's going to be illuminated with electric lights; and it's going to have a genuine turn-stile, with a register attached at the entrance; and there are going to be any number of attractions besides the large potato, the fat turnips, the heavy pumpkin, the mammoth squash, the heavy Clydesdale, the mottled Percheron, the square-barked Durham, the iron-toothed harrow, the steel-tipped plow, the long carrot, the strong onion, the noisy fakir, and other things too numerous to mention. Yes, it's going to be a he one, and don't you forget it, and it hasn't a drawback except one, and that is that the directors have made it topheavy by putting on a name big enough to sink any 'World's Fair' that was ever launched upon the troubled sea of popular favor. If they had called it the Huron Fair I wouldn't have opened my mouth in opposition, or if they had called it The Great Goderich Exposition I would have clinched my teeth tightly and never uttered a word as big as a hayseed; but when I am told that we are going to have to call it "The Northwestern Exhibition and Queen's Jubilee Fair," without being allowed to stop for intermission for refreshments, weak human nature cries out with all earnestness, even if in deep dejection, "Give us a rest; oh, give us a rest!"

If the directors insist upon such a name being imposed upon us we will have to call in the police and place ourselves under the protection of the British flag, or do something else equally desperate. Why, that jaw-breaking name is enough to sink a ship, raise a windstorm or cause an earthquake, if it ever broke loose. "The Northwestern Exhibition and Queen's Jubilee Fair," Oh, me; oh my; what a mouthful! But, there; I've said enough to cause a respectable name to be fixed upon the fair. Let's have a small name to a big show, and let the little shows outside clap on the big names. The big Toronto show is called "The Industrial Fair," the London show is the "Western Fair," Guelph and Hamilton hold "Central Fairs," and why in the name of everything that is fair and square and above reproach should our "Northwestern Fair" be stigmatized as the "Northwestern Exhibition and Queen's Jubilee Fair." Messieurs Directors, your kite won't fly if the tail is too heavy. Cut it short.

—But aside from the name the show is going to be a dandy. All the world and his wife are invited to compete, and the display this year will lay all its predecessors cold and stiff in the dark shades of oblivion. The fair is not going to be confined to the limits between Anthony Allen's Corner and the cut line of Goderich township, with the members of Goderich horticultural society thrown in for ballast, as used to be the case in the sweet long-ago, but any man on earth who has anything to show is at liberty to compete. And the exhibitors will come—provided you shorten the name of the show—and the country side and town-folk will attend to welcome them. Whoop'er-up, boys, and the Northwestern fair will be an assured success. We've invested $7,000 in grounds and we can't afford to have anything but a success.

—Lastly, and in conclusion, so far as the matter of putting on long-winded names is concerned, I would advise the directorate to get something short and sweet, like a donkey's center. They should remember that lots of boys have had their prospects in life ruined because their sponsors burdened them down with names that they were never able to carry through life with any degree of comfort, and the consequence was they sank into oblivion instead of soaring into prominence. I could, if I wanted, give you some examples that'd turn even the brain of a fall fair director and make him grow dizzy, but as the thermometer registers 90° in the shade, I'll hang up my goose quill for the present, and bring down the bandana to wipe my moist brow.

FROM WASHINGTON

What Has Transpired at the United States Capital.

A New Cavalry Post—The President wants a Rest—Adorning the White House—The "Bude" Secretary a Toller—The Heavy Water Tax.

From our Special Correspondent. WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 1st, 1887.

Fort Myer, near Washington, an abandoned station of the signal corps, is to be used as a United States cavalry post. Two troops of the 6th and 5th cavalry have arrived from Arizona, and are settling in the old barracks left vacant by the signal corps. An appropriation of $25,000, will allow new stores and new barracks to be built, and leave a sufficient sum to repair the old buildings. The post is to be commanded by Maj. Carpenter of the 5th Cavalry with Capt. Lytton and Capt. Anderson of the 4th and 5th commanding the two companies. Fort Myer is named after the first chief of the signal corps, the late Gen. Albert Myer, "old probabilities," and is beautifully situated on the Virginia hills close to Arlington. It commands a fine view of the Potomac river and the city of Washington. With these natural advantages the fort will undoubtedly become what Gen. Sheridan doubted to make it, the show cavalry post of the army, as well as a school for cavalry drill.

During the absence of the President and Mrs. Cleveland at Oak View, the vestibule of the White House is being frescoed, and renovated. The portrait of Thomas Jefferson which for many years adorned the space over the fireplace in the vestibule, has been removed to the rotunda and placed in the vestibule to the right of the portrait of Martha Washington. The frescoes in the vestibule are after designs left by Brunetti, the Italian artist, who designed and executed the greater portion of the frescoes on the walls of the capitol. Strangers with a ticket to the capitol would be astonished to see on the floor of the rotunda an old man enter a sort of basket chair and be slowly hoisted to the top of the dome. This was Brunetti, who, too old to mount to the dome by the stairs, was daily lifted up, and carried in his chair to the top of the dome, where he painted the frescoes. He was carried in a chair, and placed in the vestibule to the right of the portrait of Martha Washington. Appalled at the apparent prospect of having to entertain a delegation from every State in the Union, with an invitation to invite him within its borders in the pocket of the chairman, the President has sent out a mild but earnest protest against being shouldered down upon during this melting season, requesting the parties to their invitations to have him visit them as just as much appreciated when clothed in writing, and will be just as likely to be accepted. In the mean while he prays to be left in peace with Mrs. Cleveland at his country home, until October, when he will be out on his proposed tour. If the President does not actually ask to be left in peace, his words tacitly imply that he desires it.

At the Navy Department, Secretary Whitney, is to be found busy with his accumulated mail matter. Mr. Whitney is known as the "dude" member of the Cabinet, but to his credit he has a shirt sleeve these hot days, leads one to believe that he is a man very much maligned.

The Signal Office reports this July as the hottest month recorded since the organization of the weather bureau in 1871, at that time Great Washington do not need the records of the signal office to tell them that. The fact is self evident. Then, we have all gotten warm over something else besides the weather, and that is, the increase of the water tax. The water works of the District were built by the U. S. Government, but they seem to be managed or rather mismanagement by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. The affairs of the water tax office are in such a labyrinth, that no one can make head or tail of them. The fact remains that water taxers law bills have been taxed, and assessed, and assessed, and assessed, until their patience is exhausted, and now come the Commissioners, the water department being in arrears, and "make a law" to increase the rates to make good the deficiency. "The law is mandatory and admits of no discretion," say the Great Washingtoners. The laws of the Medes and Persians were not more fixed than that.

Chief Justice Grey who is the only bachelor on the Supreme Bench, is building himself a handsome house on the corner of 10th and I Streets. The house is to be a model one having all the rooms necessary to make a bachelor comfortable, on one floor. The second floor is devoted to extra bedrooms, and with the view probably to the possible contingency of the bachelor Justice becoming a Benedict.

Miss M. E. McLean left Seaford last week for Colorado, where she intends spending some months with her brother Allan. The little four year old daughter of Mr. David Johnson, of Seaford, met with an accident on Tuesday last, which it was feared at one time would prove fatal, by falling out of the second story window of his residence on Victoria square. The child was badly shaken up, but no bones were broken, and we are glad to learn that she is nearly all right again.

A very painful accident happened on Tuesday evening to a young son of the editor of the Exeter Advocate. While a child's hand press was in operation, the little fellow was playing around, and unnoticed put his hands in the cog, and before the motion of the press could be reversed, the index finger of his right hand was completely amputated. He was immediately taken to a doctor for repairs. Amputation may yet prove necessary.

A meeting of the committee for the erection of a monument in memory of the late Rev. Mr. Ross, was held in Brucefield on Friday evening last. The treasurer, Mr. Wm. Scott, merchant, Brucefield reported that the amount already subscribed was $245. The time for receiving subscriptions was extended till September. The monument is to be of granite, and of such dimensions as the funds will allow.

To all who know Blyth, the name at once suggests Kelly. Indeed, before the days of the Scott Act a commercial traveller threatened to demolish a ticket clerk at the railway station at Clinton because he could not give him a ticket to the village of Kelly. When a bystander suggested Blyth, the C. T. said, "Well, if it is not Kelly it should be, for he is the best looking man in it." As to the correctness of the C. T.'s statement I do not care to vouch, but the universal testimony is, that if any one gets into a "tight place," Pat will help him, whether he be friend or foe. As a result of this popularity he is the hereditary reeve of Blyth—he being the first of the line. A visit to his steam flouring mill showed it to be turning out about eighty barrels of flour a day of ten hours, along with the usual custom grinding. It is fitted up with the roller process.—Cor. Clinton New Era.

Exeter, Ont., Aug. 1.—The corner stone of the Trivet Memorial Church, Exeter, was laid this afternoon by the Lord Bishop of Huron according to the form of the Church of England. A number of clergy were present, among whom were Archbishop Meth, of London; R. W. D. Craig, of Clinton; R. Ker, of Mitchell; J. Downie, of Lucan; O. H. Dridgman, of Hunsall; T. W. Magahy, of Seaford; R. D. Freeman, curate of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, and Samuel F. Robinson, rector of Christ Church, Exeter. The Rev. Dr. Pascoe, President of the Conference, and the Rev. Mr. Graham, represented the Methodist Church; the Rev. Mr. Martin, B. D., represented the Presbyterian Church; Dr. Rollins, Reeve of Exeter, represented the town corporation. Coins and documents, including the London Free Press, the Advocate, the Toronto Mail and Globe, were deposited in a copper box under the stone, a full list of contents being read on the occasion by A. A. C. Donovan, people's warden. A choir led by the Exeter band orchestra, under Mr. Samuel Gidley, furnished the sacred music. The solid silver trowel with inscription was presented to the Bishop by Thos. Trivet, Esq., the donor of the new church, accompanied by an appropriate address, to which the Bishop replied in an eloquent manner. An immense crowd was present, and all the arrangements were carried out in the most successful manner.

Horser Sense.—An exchange in commenting on the way newspaper publishers are imposed upon correctly remarks: "Every day almost, newspaper men are called upon to notice this or that thing which is of interest to the public, but which would be an advertisement for him who asks the newspaper favor. The columns of a newspaper are the publisher's stock in trade, worth so much an inch, and which he is willing to sell to make a living. Hence when a publisher is asked for so much space to 'puff' some one free, he who makes the request is acting precisely as if he should ask a jeweler for a ring, or a tailor for a coat. There are people who think it is a favor conferred upon a newspaper to ask a puff. Every puff is worth at least ten cents a line, and when a newspaper gives this away it is just so much out of pocket."

FROM INDIA.

An Interesting Letter from Miss Marion Oliver, M.D.

The Sanitarium of the East—Ten Thousand Miles and the Level of the Sea—How the Journey is Made.

The following extracts from a letter written by Miss Marion Oliver, M. D., to her old pastor, Rev. R. Hamilton, of Motherwell, will be read with interest:

KASHMIR, May 30, 1887.

I was pleased to get the photo. One likes to know we are not forgotten. It adorns the mantelpiece of the one little rough, wooden house, which at present forms the abode of Miss Beatty and myself, a house so rudely constructed that a backwoods shanty might be called a mansion. A few steps from our house are the Wilsons', in a similar house, and a little further on the Wilkie family, but they being a large family must have at least a two-roomed house. Just as in the early days in Canada, so 'tis here. Everybody is on the same level as far as their house is concerned. We have generals, colonels, majors, even the agent of the Gov. General, all around us with their families, and all in just such grand palaces as ours.

This is the way English people in India seek a change instead of going to a fashionable watering place, and certainly it is a wiser way of finding health, for if one can't get strong in this breeding air, one may give up the search. Where are you to begin to wonder. Away on the top of the mountains of Kashmir some ten thousand feet above the sea, where the air is so rare that for the first few weeks neither Mrs W nor I could find room in our lungs to breathe when we attempted to walk up hill.

Kashmir may be called the Sanitarium of India, though it is only within the last few years that English women have ventured into it, owing to the great difficulty of getting over the Himalayas into it. To me that was by far the pleasantest part of our journey, and I think I may say the same of all our travels. We came in regular gipsy fashion, taking a couple of weeks to get over the nearly 160 miles of mountains. We made a march of from ten to fifteen miles daily, pitching our tents or else staying over night in the travellers' bungalow.

The whole way, with the exception of the first forty miles, is a narrow mountain path, over which no one could venture to take a vehicle of any sort. Coolies carried our baggage and provisions; also the children, invalids and weakly ones of our party had to be carried by coolies in a sort of boat in which one could sit or lie.

Not being an invalid I preferred to walk, when a hill pony could not be obtained. I must have walked not less than sixty miles. Mr Wilson grew so strong over it that he walked that last march of sixteen miles without being in the least fatigued. I walked too, but must own that it was almost too much for me. What magnificent views we got. Great towering snow capped mountains above us, with streams tumbling down their sides, and below us the roaring Jhelum. The road follows the course of the river all the way and is often a thousand feet above it. It seemed like hanging in mid air.

Of course the road was dangerous. Donkeys carrying loads often fall over precipices into the river below, but hundreds of people travel over it every summer and no lives have been lost, so why should we be afraid. The valley of Kashmir is very much like some parts of Ontario. When we came in the middle of April the apple and peach trees were in full bloom, and the houses made one think of our finest Canadian spring weather. The houses are rudely constructed, even the palaces and all the roofs are covered with grass. I saw one roof a perfect mass of bright tulips.

Srinagar, the capital of Kashmir, is a city of about 125,000 inhabitants and is an admirable city place. The part reserved for English residents is away beyond the native city, and would be all the better were it a few miles farther away from Srinagar odours. The river Jhelum forms the main street of the city.

There is no such thing as a wheeled vehicle in all Kashmir. People go to the bazaar in boats. We tented for the first three weeks in the part of the city reserved for English visitors.

When finding a lovely spot on the side of a lake—this is repeated in most places. Lalla Rookh—we moved our tents to it and remained there.

It began to grow sultry and warm, when ten days ago we climbed the mountains to this table land. You see we are becoming very nomadic, as all dwellers in tents are. This, however, will be our last move until we set out on the homeward journey, in about three weeks hence.

Miss Beatty is not yet strong enough for the journey, and will not return before September. Owing to her extreme weakness, we were obliged to make a slow journey, even on the railway when coming from Indore. This gave us an opportunity of seeing something of the work, both of the Rajpootana mission and the American Presbyterian. After leaving Neemuch our first half was at Ajmere, where we were called upon by Mr Gray, Dr. Husband and all the ladies. We stopped again at Jeypore, which wonderful city we were able to see a good deal of, through the kindness of your friend, Mr Trail. He spent the whole day driving Mr and Mrs Wilson and myself to see its many objects of interest, while Miss Beatty rested. We remained over Sabbath at Umar, another of the U. P. stations. Misses Ashcroft and Jamieson are the missionaries there. They have a substantial and pretty stone church, such as I would like to see at Anvonbank, in which Mr Wilson preached.

Uwar is like Jeypore—a marvellously clean city for India, being all thoroughly drained, and having well paved streets and waterworks. It is completely surrounded by mountains, which render it a perfect furnace during the hot season.

Says an advertisement in the British Medical Journal: "Skeltons have ruled firm and active throughout the year, with prices unchanged. We have been able to supply the demand for the common varieties promptly, but the finer grades were scarce, and orders for delicacies could not always be supplied at once. In this regard the market is still unchanged, although our broker in Paris has ordered to buy everything offered at the usual rates."

AN ARTIST AND HIS MODEL.

A Portrait Painter Falls in Love with His Model and Will Marry Her.

It is not quite a year since the well-known artist William M. Chase, astonished his friends by announcing his marriage with Miss Gertson, who for some time previous had posed as his model. And now one of the foremost portrait and figure painters in New York has decided to follow his example. Wyatt Easton is to marry Miss Collins, a model who has for years posed for the Art Students' League, and also for many of the figure painters in this city. The wedding will take place during the present month. He is about forty years old, has been a widower for eighteen months and is highly esteemed by his friends. He was the first secretary of the Society of American Artists. The prospective bride is a little over twenty years of age and is of English parentage. She has a pleasing face, a somewhat robust figure and is considered an excellent model.

TO BE LOOKED ON COOLLY.

The intended marriage has occasioned a good deal of comment in many quarters and a wide difference of opinion exists as to the advisability of an artist marrying his model. It was M. de la Redollierie who gave the youngsters a bit of advice on this subject. "Oh, young artist," he said, "do not look upon these persons from any other than a professional standpoint; regard them coolly; see in your model only a gracious statue and do not attempt to become the Pygmalion of the lovely Galatea before you."

But professional models sometimes possess qualities that are highly attractive. A good model should have sentiment as well as intelligence. She should comprehend the intention of the artist as to make of herself actor in the little drama which he depicts upon the canvas, and by her sympathy with his work she can contribute materially to the successful accomplishment of it. Unfortunately, however, most models are unequal to this effort. They are content with lending the figure only and dispense with the rest. Yet society has its prejudices, and probably most parents whose sons have entered the rapidly growing profession of artists would prefer to have them limit their attentions to the models employed to the professional requirements of the case.

OTHERS HAVE DONE SO.

But nevertheless there are plenty of instances of artists marrying their models. Several of such alliances occurred just previous to Mr Chase's marriage. Frederick W. Freer, a prominent member of the American Water Color Society and a worker in black and white of considerable repute, had not long before married Miss Maggie Keenan, a favorite model in many studios, and one whose face had appeared on many a canvas. Charles H. Harris, another well known artist, married about the same time a model whose face has often been seen in the exhibitions, especially in J. Carroll Beckwith's ideal figure pieces, and who was in good request at the studio. This was Miss Joyce, a young lady with a face of the brunette type that was very effective on canvas when well treated.

Go as You Please.

but if you are constipated, or have sick-headache, bad taste in the mouth, rush of blood to the head, bilious complaint, or any similar difficulty, you should go at once to your druggist for Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," the most efficient means for eradicating it, by correcting all disorders of the liver, stomach and bowels. Small, sugar-coated, agreeable to take, and cause no pain or griping. By druggists.

THEY KEEP A LIST.

How Marriageable Young Men are Selected up by the Bear Girls.

I am about to give away a secret. I think the way the girls talk about young men behind their backs is shameful, says a writer in the San Francisco Bulletin. Young men never despise girls until they are jilted, and that feeling only lasts about forty-eight hours, because another girl turns up. When a fellow gets discharged from his employment two or three times he finds it very hard to get anybody to have confidence in him. But he can be kicked out of a whole row of houses, one at a time, and the girls in the next block will reach for him all the same.

I know a fellow who had been jilted twenty five times in different neighborhood hoods, and now he is in tow with about half a dozen girls. Those girls all have a kind of secret code. You know how it is. You are introduced to a girl. She invites you to call. You call. She invites you to a party. You go. She introduces you to the whole circle. That whole circle discusses you, calmly apporions you to three or four; they gradually reduce themselves to one. Then you're lost. She wearsies of you and you get kicked out of the circle.

Well, all those girls have discussed every one of your young male friends the same way. This is what a cynical girl told me. I don't know of my own knowledge. But talk of trades unions and Knights of Labor! Their organization dwindles into absolute crudeness when compared with U. O. M. G. (United Order of Marriage Girls). I don't say that is exactly the way the thing is done; but it is the principle condensed. They have a kind of secret register, and they have you all down fine. For instance, this is the idea:

Name: Henry Jones; good looking; twenty five years old; dresses well; good for ice cream any time; very soft; melts at sixty degrees.
William Smith—Very forward; plain but attractive; very conceited; thinks everybody's in love with him; boils over at about one hundred degrees.
Alexander Thompson—Seventeen; good looking boy; very young; boils over at twenty-five degrees.
John Jenkins—Fine looking; clever; hard to deal with; dangerous; boiling point not yet discovered.
James Johnson—Very inflammable; simmers at fifty degrees, boils at sixty degrees, explodes at seventy-five degrees.
That's the kind of analysis. But please don't believe you have no chance because the girls guy you behind your back. That does not mean anything bad. It means they've got you on the list.

Keep Your House Guarded.

Keep your house guarded against sudden attacks of colic, cramps, diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. They are liable to come when least expected. The safest, best and most reliable remedy is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

"Poisonous Perambulators."

"Poisonous perambulators," says the British Medical Journal, "are probably one of the least suspected of dangers, yet, nevertheless, one which experience has shown to exist, and, therefore, one against which the parents of a family would do well to be on their guard. A case is recorded the week of a child, aged 4 months, who, on its return after being out under a hot sun, was seized with sickness and vomiting, the vomited matter being a green colored fluid. From inquiries made by the medical man it was elicited that the child had been seen to suck a green strap of the perambulator, and the true cause of the mischief was at once suspected, namely, arsenic poisoning. An analytical examination of the strap confirmed this view, arsenic being found to be present in great abundance. In spite of all that medical aid could effect, the child gradually sank from exhaustion."

Broken Down.

"After suffering with dyspepsia, kidney disease, loss of appetite and pain in the head until discouraged, I heard of B. B. B., took two bottles and am happy to say I feel as well as ever." Mrs Rufus E. Merry, New Albany, N.S.

The Science of Social Fact.

"Every man has his faults, his failings, peculiarities and eccentricities. Every one of us finds himself crossed by such failings of others from hour to hour, and if he were to resent them all, life would be intolerable. If for every outburst of hasty temper and for every rudeness that wounds us in our daily path we were to demand an apology, require an explanation, or resent it by retaliation, daily intercourse would be impossible. The very science of social life consists in that gliding tact with the sharp angles of character, which does not argue about things, does not seek to adjust or cure them all, but covers them as if it did not see."

A Wonderful Organ.

The largest organ, and one that plays a controlling part on the health of the body is the liver. If torpid or inactive the whole system becomes diseased. Dr. Chase's Liver Cure is made especially for Liver and Kidney diseases, and is guaranteed to cure. Recipe book and medicine $1. Sold by all druggists.

HEROES AND HEROINES.

Good Men and Women Whose Merits Can Not be Exaggerated.

The heroism of private life, the slow, unchronicled martyrdoms of the heart, who shall remember? Greater than any knightly dragon slayer of old is the man who overcomes an ugly passion, sets his foot upon it, and stands serene and strong in virtue. Greater than Zenobia is the woman who struggles with the love that would wrong another or degrade her own soul, and conquers. The young man, ardent, who turns from the dear love of women, and buries deep in his heart the sweet instinct of paternity, to devote himself to the care and support of aged parents or an unfortunate sister, and whose life is a long sacrifice, in manly cheerfulness and majestic spirit, is a hero of the rarest type—the type of Charles Lamb. I have known but two such.

The young woman who resolutely stays with father and mother in the old home, while brothers go forth to happy homes of their own; who cheerfully lays on the altar of filial duty that costly offering of human sacrifices, the joy of loving and being loved—she is a heroine. I have known many such.

The wife who bears her part in the burden of life—even though it be the larger part—bravely, cheerfully, never dreaming that she is a heroine, much less a martyr; who bears with the faults of a husband not altogether congenial, with loving patience and a large charity, and with noble decision hiding them from the world—who makes no confidants and asks no confidence; who refrains from brooding over shortcomings in sympathy and statement, and from seeking perilous "affinities"; who does not build high tragedy out of the inevitable, nor feel an earthquake in every family jar; who sees her husband united with herself indissolubly and eternally in their children—she, the wife in every truth, in the inward as in the outward, is a heroine, though of rather an unobscured type.—Grace Greenwood.

Devotion of a Parisian Husband.

Not long ago the husband of a lovely little woman, whom he had but a few weeks before led to the altar, saw her safe into a carriage in which she was setting out to make some call. She was the very light of his eyes, and they had spent few hours apart since the wedding day. Imagine his state of mind when late in the afternoon she was brought home senseless and almost unrecognizable. But I must go back a little. The horse that drew the carriage slipped in rounding a corner, the vehicle turned over, and the face of its occupant was terribly mutilated with broken glass from the windows. When the crowd which soon surrounded the carriage extricated the poor little prisoner, she was taken insensible into the arms of the nearest chemist to have her injuries examined. The cuts and scratches were dreadful, but the worst was a gash from mouth to ear, from which a long piece of torn flesh hung. The poor chemist seems to have lost his head at the sight, for instead of sewing the piece in place again, he cut it off, and seeing that the patient remained unconscious he washed his hands of her as quickly as possible, and saw her placed in a cab to be taken home. The doctor who is called in breathless haste, exclaims upon seeing the butchery of the chemist's surgery, and says there is nothing to be done but to take a piece out of the arm of the poor victim to supply the place of that which the chemist had so stupidly cut off. But the half frantic husband will not hear of it, and taking of his coat and baring his own arm, offers it to the doctor, and bids him cut from that, and not touch her with his knife. "But," says the doctor, "one mutilated person is enough in a family, my dear fellow. Besides, the pain would be horrible." However, the heroic young man stuck to his point, and it is said, went through the operation with a smile on his lips, remarking that they had vowed to have all things in common, pains as well as joys. The doctor did his work deftly, the traces of his needle are already faint, and he says that when the healing process is complete there will scarcely be a visible trace of the terrible accident.—Max O'Fall, in Pittsburg Dispatch.

IMPROVED.

My bowels were regulated, and, by the time I finished two boxes of these Pills my tendency to headaches had disappeared, and I became strong and well.—Darius M. Logan, Wilmington, Del.

I was troubled, for over a year, with Loss of Appetite, and General Debility. I commenced taking Ayer's Pills, and before finishing half a box of this medicine, my appetite and strength were restored.—C. O. Clark, Danbury, Conn.

Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered Stomach and Liver. I suffered for over three years with Headache, Indigestion, and Constipation. I had no appetite, and was weak and nervous most of the time.

Used Perfumery in the Dark.

To catch up a bottle of perfume and dab the sturple at some upper lip, said a fashionable girl to me, "is a fashionable trick with many women I know. I've seen lots of women do it, and I did it myself till the other night. Starting to see Langtry I quit that trick in a dark room and have quit it altogether. You see I ran back for a glove buttoner, and prowling over the dressing case struck the glass stopper of a bottle of Cherry Blossom," caught it up and smoothed it across my upper lip and gave two little dabs behind my ears so my neighbors should have a smell.

"Taint 'Cherry Blossom," after all, thought I; it's the "White Rose," extract all the same. And I pranced down and joined my party. We had got into a car when some one said: 'Good mercy! what have you got on your face?' 'The usual amount of powder, I suppose,' I replied, aggressively. 'Why, you've got a dark-purple moustache.' Great heavens! it broke on me in a minute. That nasty bottle of accented ink that I myself had carelessly left on the dressing-bureau! There was left to Langtry for me that night. Ninety-six washings only weakened the stain. San- paper and pumice-stone have removed some of my lip, but it's so dark now (ten days ago it happened) that 'finks say to me: 'You must stop using that vaseline; you certainly are getting a moustache; and just behind my ears are two spots that look as if mortification had taken place.'—Albany Journal.

"Nelly had sold all her personal property, only reserving enough of the proceeds to furnish these rooms with such things as the creditors allowed them to take at appraisal prices...

Carpeting of two of these rooms in the flat was furnished from the one on her bedroom, and one rug brightened the tiny parlor; chairs from her room too now did duty for the parlor, and a small card-table that had been her grandmother's stood under the odd old mirror from the same quarter...

"Well, you didn't begin life so, and I won't; I don't ask Mary to leave her father's house and come down to work for me."

"Look here," said Jack, energetically, "you're all wrong! How did your father begin life? How did Mary Carter's? Why can't you and she begin just there? Give her the chance, Sam; that is due to her."

Prompt Results. "I was very sick with bowel complaint. Two physicians did me no good. I tried other medicines but all was no use until I tried Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry. The next day I was like a different man."

A Common Cold

It is often the beginning of serious affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes, and Lungs. Therefore, the importance of early and effective treatment cannot be overestimated.

Last January I was attacked with a severe cold, which, by neglect and frequent exposures, became worse, finally settling on my lungs. A terrible cough soon followed, accompanied by pain in the chest, from which I suffered intensely.

I contracted a severe cold, which gradually developed into Pneumonia, presenting dangerous and obstinate symptoms. My physician at once ordered the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. His instructions were followed, and the result was a rapid and permanent cure.

Two years ago I suffered from a severe cold which settled on my Lungs. I consulted various physicians, and took the medicines they prescribed, but received only temporary relief.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is considered here, the one great remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs, and is more in demand than any other medicine of its class.

The distressing paleness so often observed in young girls and women, is due to a great measure to a lack of the red corpuscles in the blood. To remedy this requires a medicine which produces these necessary little blood constituents...

NOR-WESTERN FAIR.

The Greatest Exhibition Ever Held in Huron.

The Preparations that are being made for the Work Program of the Northwest Fair will be illuminated with Electric Light.

The Northwestern Fair, which is to be held in Goderich on the 4th, 5th and 6th of Oct., promises to be the greatest fair in the west, and the largest that has been held in Huron. The prize list has been increased to nearly $2,000, and many valuable features have been added, and new ideas are still being sought for by the management.

Goderich town has come forward nobly in the work of putting the Northwest Fair on its feet, and, independently of private donations towards the prize list, has incurred a cost of some $7,000 in providing suitable grounds and necessary buildings for the holding of the great show.

The contract for the proposed buildings has been awarded to Geo. Neiberger, and the fact that he has accepted the contract is a warrant that the work will be first-class, and that the building will be completed by the time specified in the bond.

This year a new departure has been made, by the Board of Directors, and the spring show has been abandoned. It was pointed out by President Allan that the fitting of horses for the spring show would be against the interests of the animals for purposes of improvement, and he was backed up by the prominent horsemen so unanimously that the spring show was relegated to the past, and to small fairs of the present, by the Northwestern Fair. Ample accommodation is to be provided for horses and cattle, and already word has been received from many of the principal breeders that they will exhibit their animals and hold them on sale on that occasion.

Mayor Seager, who understands his made arrangement with W. H. Walsh, the enterprising agent of the Royal Electric Light Co., of Montreal to have the grounds illuminated during the nights of the show, the Company providing a dynamo and a man to attend it, and the town furnishing the power.

A pleasing feature is in contemplation in the form of a choral exhibition and the local choir of S. P. Hall, which will be taken part in by many of the leading singers of the county.

We understand also that a special invitation has been extended to His Honor, the Lieut.-Governor of Ontario, to be present upon opening day, and up to the time of writing the Lieut. Governor of the Fair are of opinion that the invitation will be accepted.

Another feature that will be introduced for the first time in this section is speeding in the ring, which has now become so pleasing an exhibition at all the large fairs. Already a number of horsemen have signified their approval of the scheme. Tuesday last the track for the horse ring was surveyed by Thos Weatherald, P. L. S., and a full half mile course will be constructed.

The prize list for the North Western Fair is in the hands of the printers and will be issued shortly. It will be seen that neither time nor money has been spared by the directors so that the interests of exhibitors and the public may be subserved.

THE SIGNAL will chronicle all new phases in connection with the progress of the fair, and the excitement that it will show time. We will be found always leading the procession.

Miss Hodgson, of Brantford, is visiting at W. R. Robertson's.

Mr. and Miss Humber were visiting friends in Stratford last week.

Miss Clinnie, the surrogate court reporter, has returned from vacation.

Reas Price returned from Belleville Friday last, after enjoying a pleasant visit to the old place.

Fred Widdor, of the Bank of Montreal, returned to London Monday last, after spending vacation in Goderich.

Mr. and Mrs. Kiely, of Toronto, who are spending holiday with friends in town, took a run down to Stratford Monday last.

Rev. W. F. Campbell, of Dungannon, has gone to see his brother, Rev. T. M. Campbell of Owen Sound, who is at present in rather poor health.

A TRUE BILL.—When it comes to a girl eating ice cream and drinking lemonade to help a church, her patriotism is bound by a very elastic cord.

UP THE LAKE.—Rev. Fathers Watters, Molphy and Tierman, made a trip up the lake last week, and were hospitably treated by Capt. Ed. Robertson, of the United Empire.

ONLY ONE EDITION PRINTED.—A book has been written "For middle aged women." It will be a middle aged book before a woman will be seen buying it or her own reading.

PACING THE MUSIC.—The petition for the repeal of the Scott Act has over five thousand names attached. It is likely to be deposited in the sheriff's office two weeks from Saturday.

PERSONAL MENTION.—We are always willing to make a note of arrivals and departures of townspen and friends, but we cannot keep track of everybody. Give us a hand, please.

Dr. M. Nicholson, the West street dentist, makes the preservation of the natural teeth a specialty. Gas administered from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. for the painless extraction of teeth.

THE MATERIAL IS GOOD.—How foolish it is to make fun of the home-made bustle. There is not a girl who makes her own bustle but is backed by some of the most influential papers of the times.

William Emmerton, night foreman of the Toronto News, was visiting his cousin, John Emmerton, of this town, last week. Sixteen years ago the writer and "Billy Emmerton stuck type on the columns of the old Toronto Telegraph, and 'tis years since last we met, but he's the same jolly good fellow as of yore.

VANDALISM.—The boys in St. Andrew's Ward have broken twenty-five lights in the ward school the past few weeks. The catalyst is supposed to be the instrument used in the destructive work.

LACROSSE.—As we go to press we learn that arrangements are on foot for a match between the Huron club and the Galt lacrosse club on Thursday afternoon next, that being the day of the big excursion from that town.

GALT'S CIVIC HOLIDAY AND EXCURSION.—The Foresters of Galt will hold their annual outing on Thursday next, and will have an excursion to Goderich. They will be received at the station by Court Goderich, and heartily welcomed.

AN EYE FOR THE BEAUTIFUL.—If you can show us any thing prettier at this season than a girl of nineteen with golden hair, rosy cheeks, ruby lips, and dressed in white tulle with a blue ribbon around her neck, let us see it.—Guelph Mercury.

MEETING.—The Young Women's Christian Temperance Union will meet in the lecture room of Knox church, next Thursday evening, August 11th, at 8 o'clock. Members are requested to be present, as there is important business to come up.

Rev. Father O'Connell, of Maidstone, and Rev. Fr. Aylward, of Wawanosh, were the guests of Rev. B. J. Watters for a few days during the week. The three clergymen left Tuesday afternoon to visit their genial associate, Rev. P. J. Shea, of Seaford.

EXCURSION FROM BRUSSELS.—A cheap Sunday school excursion is being arranged to run to Goderich on Tuesday, August 16th. There will be no changing of cars and the return fare is put at the low figure of 70 cents for adults and 35 cents for children.

HE IS OFF ON A TRIP.—Samuel Sioane, grain merchant is taking his annual pleasure trip. He did Toronto during the early part of the week and intends to take in the picturesque scenery of the Saginaw and St. Lawrence before he returns to Goderich.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT.—Wednesday last Mayor Seager received the following telegram, which speaks for itself :

MONTREAL, AUG. 3. C. SEAGER, Mayor, Goderich. We will furnish you with eight (8) electric lights for your exhibition, as agreed with our Mr. Walsh.

THE ROYAL ELECTRIC CO.

We overheard one lady say to another in a dry goods store the other evening, "Ghy, dear child, don't take off your gloves, my dear, in taking them off never pull the ends, but the hand wrong side the glove over the hand, and turn the tips will slip off easily."

SPRAINED HIS FOOT.—We are sorry to learn that John Berry, son of G. W. Berry, Lighthouse St., is again laid up, this time with a sprained foot.—Goderich Signal.

C. S. Lower, and R. S. Robertson, passed successfully. Mr. Fowler obtained honors in history and geography.

E. H. Dyer, of Exeter, and Robt. Bell, of Goderich, are out on outside bonds, the sureties from outside.

STOR IN BOYS.—Complaints are being made that excursionists from outside made have been subjected to petty thefts of victuals, &c., on the part of certain boys who frequent the park on such occasions. We take this opportunity of calling the attention of the town constable to the matter; and hope the practice will be stopped.

AND STILL THEY COME.—A big union labor picnic to be participated in by toilers from Stratford, Mitchell, Seaford and Clinton, is to take place early in August. The objective point is in Goderich. This promises to be a monster affair, and when all arrangements are completed we may look forward to a turnout such as will shake up the old county town.

FROM LUCKNOW TO THE POINT FARM.—An effort is being made to have our civic holiday some time about the 10th of August, the excursionists from outside. About fifty temperance workers were present, and thirty-seven joined the league and signed the roll. The committee appointed to draft a constitution for the society reported, and the report was adopted. After some further routine business the meeting adjourned until Thursday, Aug. 11.

SENT TO THE ASYLUM.—T. F. Young, of Port Albert, and Charlie Byers, of Brussels, who have been confined as dangerous lunatics in Goderich jail for some time past, left for London asylum in charge of bailiff Waddell of that city. At the station, Young became obstreperous, and it was with considerable difficulty the bailiff was enabled to take him aboard the train. It is to be hoped the special treatment of the asylum will be successful in bringing both of the young men back to their right mind.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday evening last, about 7 o'clock, Mrs. Black (West St.) was returning home from Havelockville, and when near the turn at Robt. McCulloch's the horse turned in at the gate of its own accord, the top of the buggy striking the post, throwing Mrs. B. out, and breaking one of the bones in her right arm in two places. She was brought home and Dr. Whiting set the broken limb, which is doing nicely. Walter Vivian, aged about 13, who was also in the buggy was thrown out, but did not sustain any injuries. The buggy was badly smashed.

A STRANGE CRAFT.

A Mysterious Schooner Hovers Around for a Day or Two.

Her Captain and Crew Consists of One Man who Acts Peculiarly and Becomes the Object of Curiosity—What was the Craft?

The following which refers to the little schooner that flitted around our harbor during the latter part of the week is from the special correspondence of the Chicago Tribune, of Sunday last:

Goderich, Ont., July 30. [Special.]—The little town has been agitated over the McGraw affair since the report appeared in the newspapers that he was thought to be on the schooner Edward Blake of the George A. Marsh, both of which schooners are well known in this port. The Marsh was here about three weeks ago. The excitement has been increased by the mysterious movements of a tiny schooner which crossed from the American side yesterday, and, passing to the south of the harbor, returned at 10 p. m. tied up to the dock of the International Salt Works, about a mile south of the Goderich Harbor south pier. The employees of the salt works were on a night shift, and the arrival of the little craft, which was apparently of ten tons burden, caused some curiosity. The captain of the schooner, who was on board, was seen through the rigging of one man, who appeared to be about 30 years of age, and, although he did not give his name, the vessel was discovered to be the Emma from Sand Beach, Mich. One of the coopers at the salt works hailed the new arrival, but could get no satisfaction regarding the purpose of the craft or the intention of the man on board. The hatches were closed down, and nothing could be seen to indicate the presence of any other living creature on board. In the morning the mysterious stranger went ashore as far as the works and asked for some salt for his eggs. Mr. Kidd, one of the coopers, went to the rigging, returned the salt shortly afterwards, and observed the solitary American eating his breakfast. The Emma was tied up to the north side of the International pier. Mr. Kidd drew the attention of the skipper to the fact that a northwesterly breeze was springing up from the north, and the boat might prove dangerous. The stranger replied that he did not care to go into the harbor, as he understood that $4 or $5 was charged American vessels entering Canadian ports. As Mr. Kidd neared the strange vessel the captain gradually drew off the pier, as if he then desired of close scrutiny of his effects, and dropped anchor on the other side of the wharf. During the forenoon a heavy fog prevailed during which the Emma hoisted sail, and standing out a quarter of a mile or so, dropped anchor, and remained there a day and a night. He then drew off the pier, and returned to the harbor and fastened his cable there, where he remained until Saturday noon, when, once more hoisting sail, he left with the crew of the vessel pointing towards Michigan. During his stay here the stranger was evidently anxious to see the sea and make observations on the same. He then drew off the pier, and returned to the harbor and fastened his cable there, where he remained until Saturday noon, when, once more hoisting sail, he left with the crew of the vessel pointing towards Michigan.

THE FORESTERS.

Listen to an Interesting Sermon at an Interesting Sermon in an Interesting Sermon.

Rev. G. R. Turk, of Goderich Preaches a Practical Discourse on the Good Forester in the Bible. The Discourse is on the Good Forester.—The Obedience of the Order.

The members of Court Ben Miller had their annual sermon preached to them Sunday last by Rev. G. R. Turk, of Goderich. About seventy hearers, comprising members of Court Ben Miller and visitors from Clinton and Goderich, attended. There was also a large attendance of non-members.

The rev. gentleman took for his text Philippians iv. 8: "Finally, brethren, whatever things are true, whatever things are honest, whatever things are just, whatever things are lovely, whatever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and there be any praise, think on these things." Brethren, the fact of your assembling yourselves here on this beautiful Sabbath day, shows that you recognize divinity in your Order. Some institutions have existed, but owing to some flaw in their constitution they have gone down. The Canadian Order of Foresters, founded on the Good, the True, and the Beautiful, originating in the mind of some good man, has gone on doing good, until today thousands are under its benign influence. The text we have chosen today, is very appropriate to your Order.

Fun and Fancy.

A Sunday school teacher told his infants to ask any questions they had in their minds, and a little one asked, "When is the circus coming?"

A Chicago man was arrested a few days ago because he became infatuated with Gail Hamilton, and followed her about the streets. A man whom Gail could mesh should be taken to an asylum instead of a jail.

An English gravestone maker was ordered to cut on a stone the words: "A Virtuous woman is a crown to her husband." The stone, however, being small, he engraved on it: "A Virtuous woman is to Her Husband."

Old minister to young minister—"Paul was a wonderful man, my dear young brother, a wonderful man; and thousands upon thousands flocked to hear him preach." Young minister—"Yes, Paul was alive today he would only have to name the salary he wanted."

"That is rather a shabby pair of trousers you have on for a man of your position." "Yes, sir, but clothes do not make the man. What if my trousers are shabby and worn, sir? They cover a warm heart, sir."

"My dear, why are the eggs always hard at breakfast," now I asked Mr. Soague. "They must be eggs of the new hen," replied Mr. Soague, thoughtfully. "The new hen! Why should their eggs be hard?" "They are Plymouth Rocks, you know."

"Johnny, come aside this instant. I intend to chastise you severely." Johnny—"Please, pa, I'd rather you'd whip me out here where all the neighbors can see it." "What, you young rascal, do you want me to disgrace myself?" "No, pa, but I want the folks to see that you ain't killing me when I yell."

A good story is told of a prominent Albany business man, who is an Englishman by birth. His name begins with H, and every day he would go to the post office and ask if there was any mail for him. He always got the same reply, until one day he showed his head through the delivery window and yelled, "Man, what are you looking in the Haybox for? My name begins with H, and you call me Henry!"

"No, Bobby," said his mother, "one piece of pie is quite enough for you." "It's funny," responded Bobby, with an injured air, "you say you are anxious that I should learn to eat properly, and yet you won't give me a chance to practise."

"What is that big iron thing full of holes?" "Locomotive boiler," said Tom. Luara looked thoughtful. After a moment's silence she asked, "Why do they boil locomotives?" Tom, looking amazed, "To make them tender," he said, slowly.

The following unique epistle was picked up in the street: "The reason I didn't last when you left at the post office yesterday, was because I've a hile on my face, and I can't laugh. I'll see you in a few days, I'll see you in a few days, I'll see you in a few days."

"I can't tell for the life of me," said an old farmer in Muskoka, to a party of city visitors, "what you fellows see up here ter draw ya. For my part, these all fired rocks have been the greatest thing we've had to contend with. Still, its all right if you like it. We're glad to see ya; only it's mighty funny."

BYGONE BONNETS REVIVED

A correspondent writes: "One of the chief features of the new fashion seems to be a revival of the colors and forms of the past. I saw a bonnet of the same day, fresh from Paris, that recalled 'Jane Clark' of bygone times. It was of pale coffee-colored blonde lace, 'the cap' as it was called, was of the same material as the dress, and another return to the old and very pretty fashion; but great care must be taken, or the toilet will look patchy. Dun-color and dark-brown, stone-color and pale blue, grey (pure and simple) and violet, or dark green go well together, but the sleeves should always be of the more telling color and the richer material. The present has one great advantage over the past. The expensive stuffs of today are prettier than any seen of yore, more especially the striped ones. I have just seen a material composed of alternate stripes of white poplin and white Valenciennes lace, which would make a lovely wedding dress for a bride in her teens. Another material was composed of alternate stripes of tussore silk and lace of the same shade. A frock of that stuff might be worn with almost any color, and at the smartest day festivities, and would outlast two or three of the white cambrics trimmed with broderie Anglaise, that threaten to become the rage, and need to be so very fresh and clean."

Summer Silks.

There are pretty striped and checked summer silks. The silk most in demand this season is China silk. It comes in all fashionable shades, both for street and evening wear. It is cool, can be easily and gracefully draped, and makes a charming dress. China silks come in solid and in quantities that can be bought by the yard. The fancy China silks, those with stripes and figures, are sold much cheaper and are not nearly as fashionable as they have been. This is because they are so closely imitated in satin. In the better qualities of imported satins it is scarcely possible to tell the cotton goods from the silk without touching it.

Household Hints.

Grained woods should be washed with cold tea, and then, after being wiped dry, rubbed with linseed oil. Cloths dipped into hot potato water are recommended for immediate and complete relief in the severest cases of rheumatism.

A piece of charcoal laid upon a burn will ease it almost immediately, and if kept there about an hour, it is said, the wound will be entirely healed. If roses are wilted before they can be put in water, immerse the ends of the stalks in very hot water for a minute or two, and they will retain their pristine freshness.

For those suffering from weak lungs or a hacking cough, a few drops of tar taken on a lump of sugar will give relief; five or six drops should be sufficient for a grown person. When attacked by palpitation of the heart, let the patient lie down as soon as possible on the right side, partially on the face. In this position the heart will resume its action almost immediately.

Oilcloths should never be washed in hot soap suds; they should first be washed clean with cold water, then rubbed dry with a cloth wet with milk. The same treatment should be applied to a stone or slate hearth.

Lime water may be made cheaply by taking a fresh piece of lime as large as an egg, pouring two quarts of soft water on it, and allowing it to stand two or three hours, shaking it occasionally. Bottle and keep for use. To preserve goods from moths, do not use camphur in any form. Pieces of tar paper laid in fur boxes and closets are a better protection. Five cents will buy enough to equip all the packing boxes and closets of a large house for a year.

A bottle of turpentine should be kept in every house, for its uses are numerous. A few drops sprinkled where cockroaches congregate will exterminate them at once; also ants, red or black. Moths will flee from the odor of it. Besides, it is an excellent application for a burn or cut.

POTATO CAKES.—Wash the potatoes, and with milk thickened with flour, make into a thin batter; to every pint add one egg. Fry in small cakes.

CREAM SPONGE CAKE.—Two eggs, half cup sugar, three fourths cup flour, one teaspoonful baking powder, two table spoonsful cold water. Beat whites and yolks separately.

RICE PIE.—Four eggs, well beaten, stirred into a quart of milk, two cups boiled rice, sweeten to taste and flavor. When boiling rice add a little salt. Bake with under crust same as custard pie.

STEAMED OATMEAL.—Half pint oatmeal, one teaspoonful of salt; put in two quart basin and pour over it one quart of boiling water; put in steamer and steam two hours. Do not remove the cover during that time.

CHEAP CAKE.—Beat together one cup sugar and one-half cup butter, add egg, well beaten, one cup milk, one and a half teaspoonful baking powder, four eggs. Bake in a moderate oven.

BEEF FRITTERS.—Chop pieces of beef steak or cold roast beef very fine. Make a batter of milk, flour and an egg, and mix the meat with it. Put a lump of butter into a saucer, let it melt, then drop the batter into it from a large spoon. Season with pepper and salt, and a little parsley. Fry until brown.

CREAM CELERY.—Cut the celery into fine pieces; put them into a saucer and cover with boiling water; boil ten minutes. Make a sauce with one teaspoonful corn starch stirred into a half pint of boiling water, and a little butter and salt. Drain the celery, put it into a vegetable dish and pour over it the sauce white hot.

DROPPED EGGS.—Have on the stove a saucer half full of boiling water, into which put a little salt. Break the eggs first into a saucer to be sure they are good; drop them gently into the water; with a teaspoon dip up the water and pour it over the yolks; in a few seconds the white will completely cover the yolks; lift from the water and serve on toast or brain.

How a Ghost Embarrassed Mary Anderson. They tell a very strange story of Mary Anderson's last visit to England. She was being entertained at the famous Kenilworth Castle, and the Queenest told the beautiful actress a share of the ghostly legends that cluster round the place. Among these stories was one to the effect that a certain chamber of the house was haunted by some dead ancestor of the noble house of Kenilworth. That was enough for the fair actress, and she insisted upon sleeping in that very apartment. The story goes that in the middle of the night her slumbers were cut short by a terrible weight upon her chest which seemed to press life and breath out of her. She was able to make only sound enough to wake her maid, and the two women shivered until morning. All this goes to indicate that the noble lords of Britain are adopting the United States fashion of serving pie to their guests for supper.—Albany Journal.

Tailor-Made Suits.

There seems to be a new departure in London tailor-made suits. Soft diagonal and camel's hair serges with threads of silk and astrachan, intermingled, bourettes, armures, pale and colored stainings of silk and wool, pale-toned Belgravia and Lincolnshire summer suitings are all being used as well as the repeat serge and plain cloth ones. Some are trimmed with velvet. Some have striped velvet skirts, some of the stripes are plain, but many are richly striped and checkered. This will, if followed, add a great variety and much brilliancy to summer dress toilettes for the street.

Floor oil cloths should be gone over lightly with white varnish twice a year. Clean thoroughly before applying the varnish.

Method.

If a mother desires her daughters to make the best of their coming future, she will teach them, by example, the observance of order and method. I say by example, because she can never teach them by precept alone; she must be a living example of the results flowing from the performance of every duty in its due season. By method alone, and only by method, can a busy housewife win any portion of leisure for study, thought and self-improvement.

If the mother of daughters will stop to ask herself some such questions as the following—namely, Am I making the best possible use of my time? Is this the best hour to do the task, I am now engaged in, or would it be better for me to do some other? Is what I am doing likely to produce any good results? If not, what shall I do to bring forth some fruit for future as well as present good? Am I doing the best I can do with my powers, and am I by my example bringing up my children in the way that will be wisest for them to follow? Or, am I doing anything with a set purpose beyond preparing food and clothing and cleaning house; and am I doing that with any one end in view?

If a woman cannot answer these self-put questions satisfactorily, then she may be sure she is not acting wisely nor well by herself or her children. I have often heard women criticized severely for being too methodical and too strict in their requirements in the matter of services from their children or from hired servants, and I have so often heard others condemned for a total want of system, allowing everything to be done or omitted at haphazard. Of the two, I prefer the woman with too much method to the woman without any, for at least there is some hope of good work from her, independent of good living, because she has leisure, that great blessing from which so many good things may follow. It is both reasonable and proper to desire and secure leisure and recreation; indeed, every one who performs his or her duties in the best manner deserves both; but there is a vast difference between wasted time and leisure, and also between idle pleasure and recreation. Neither an idle nor an unsystematic person can know the beauty or meaning of leisure or recreation; that is reserved for the methodical hard worker.

Sentences in Dress at Home.

The importance of neat and tasteful house dressing—cannot be overestimated. The matron who appears before the members of her family in a shabby, soiled wrapper, and makes the excuse—if, indeed, she takes the trouble to make one at all—that "it is so much more comfortable," has little idea of the possible consequences of such a course. Could she but realize that her dress is an evil example to her daughters, and one productive of consequences that will reach far beyond her own span of life; that her husband and sons cannot fail to draw comparisons between her dress and that of the ladies they meet in other homes, and that these comparisons between her dress and that of the ladies they meet in other homes, and that these comparisons cannot fail to decrease their respect for her, she might be induced to give more attention to her personal appearance. Not even the burden of care and constant employment can furnish a sufficient excuse for careless personal habits, for few things are more important for the well being of a family.

There is an old saying to the effect that an untidy mother has disobedient children; and while neither parents nor children may realize the why or wherefore of it, yet there is always a lack of respect and an indifference to the authority of a mother who takes no pride in her personal appearance. And it is not the mother alone upon whose shoulders rests the burden of responsibility for home neatness and order in dress; the father has his duties to look after as well, and should never fail to insist upon the younger members of the family presenting themselves with well kept hands, clean faces, neatly brushed hair, and orderly dress, at least at every meal where the family assembles.—Brooklyn Magazine.

Lemons in the Sick Room.

The lemon is a fruit much used in the sick room, and, many times, unwisely. Lemonade being a very refreshing and agreeable drink, is easily taken in excess by persons suffering from fever, a fact which should not be forgotten. In typhoid fever, for instance, its immoderate use would be attended with danger, inducing, as it might, additional derangement in an already inflamed intestinal mucous membrane. In all inflammatory diseases of the stomach and bowels lemonade should only be given after the attending physician has sanctioned its use. During the past few years lemon juice has become quite popular in the management of diphtheria from the supposed action on the membranous deposit in the throat. There have also been attributed to the juice marked virtues in the functional derangement of the liver, commonly called "bilious disorders." Some persons so affected have found benefit from its persistent use, the symptoms of others, however, have been aggravated by it.

Never Get Angry.

It does no good. Some sins have a seeming compensation or apology—present gratification of some sort—but anger has none. A frowl does no better for it. It is really a torment, and when it leaves one to see that he has been in a fool, and has made himself a fool in the eyes of others, too. An angry boy adds nothing to the welfare of society. He may do some good, but more harm. Heated passion makes a firebrand, and it is a wonder if it does not kindle flames of discord on every leaf. Without much sensibility, and often bereft of reason, he speaketh like the piercing of a sword, and his tongue is an arrow shot out. He is a bad element in any community, and his removal would furnish occasion for a day of thanksgiving. Since, then, anger is useless, needless, disgraceful, without the least apology, and found only "in the bosom of fools," why should it be indulged in at all?

One Pleasant Feature Omitted.

"I notice," said a clergyman's wife to her husband, "that it is no longer fashionable for the minister to kiss the bride at the wedding ceremony." "Yes," sadly responded the good man, "many of the pleasant features connected with the wedding ceremony have been discarded, and—"

What's that? demanded his wife, ominously.

"I mean—I mean," he stammered, "that the senseless custom of kissing the bride should have been abolished long ago."

A rumor was in circulation, says the Washington Star, that a lady, having partaken freely of strawberries, became very sick, and in a short time was afflicted with strabismus, or "cross-eyes," and that a physician, when called in, gave the opinion that her complaint came from the strawberries, and that in four or five other cases he had attended the eyes were affected in a similar manner from the same cause. Inquiry into the matter developed the fact that the lady in question had been taken sick, as stated; that she had become dizzy, and at times saw double; that when the physician was called he found that it was simply a case of indigestion arising from eating the strawberries, and that he stated that on account of the strawberries possessing more acidity than usual this season, cases of indigestion arising from eating them were quite common.

Not a Book Agent

Mr Goode, druggist, is not a book agent, but has the agency in Goderich for Johnston's Tonic Bitters, which he can heartily recommend for any complaint to which a tonic medicine is applicable. This valuable medicine has been used with most astonishingly good results in cases of general debility, weakness, irregularities peculiar to females, extreme paleness, impoverishment of the blood, stomach and liver troubles, loss of appetite, and for that general worn out feeling that nearly every one is troubled with at some part of the year. Don't forget the name Johnston's Tonic Bitters 50c, and $1 per bottle at Goode's drug store, Albion block, Goderich, sole agent.

A Nervous Deacon.

A good Baptist deacon residing in a certain town in the Old Bay State, and who is also superintendent of the Sabbath school, has the misfortune to be exceedingly nervous and excitable, which trouble often leads him in a manner different from that intended. On one occasion, it being the Sabbath evening prayer meeting, as he was commenting upon the Sunday school lesson of the day, which had been the faithfulness of God to His promises, he started the congregation by saying: "Not one tit or jittle of His word shall fall," when, noticing a suppressed titter among the audience, especially the younger portion, and noticing a blunder, he attempted to mend the matter by saying, "No; I meant not one tittle or jitt."—Harper's Magazine.

Why don't you stir around and get something to do? was asked of a lady fellow.

"I don't know," was the reply, "unless I'm too superstitious." "Superstitions! What has superstition got to do with it?" "Well I read somewhere once that 'everything comes to him who waits,' and I don't want to do anything that will be liable to injure my prospects."

Mrs Putt—'James is overrun with business just now. By the way, is Mr. Call in business?' Mrs Call—'Yes, deeply. He told me that yesterday he bought 1000 barrels of oil, and I don't know how many bushels of wheat.' Mrs Putt—'He must be doing a large business. Where is his store?' Mrs Call—'He has no store. He says he has the goods on 'margin'—some sort of a rascal, I believe.' Mrs Putt—'Dear me, isn't that convenient!'

LUCKNOW.

Another Letter from 'India's Coral Strand.'

A Graphic Word-Painting of One of India's Oldest Cities... Wonderful Building Operations - Reminiscences.

We reached Lucknow, the "City Beautiful," with its population of 200,000, late at night, and found comfortable quarters at Hill's Imperial Hotel. This old city, for like Benares, claims to be the oldest Indian city... The old city is the oldest Indian city - is the capital of Oude, situated on the Pamti river, by which it has navigable communication for small craft with Calcutta. Here, previous to 1856, the Indian rulers resided in stately palaces, surrounded by a magnificent and splendid avenue, averaging all the powers with which eastern potentates are vested. But, alas, its magnificence is a thing of the past; its stately minarets and mosques, the symmetrical, gilded domes, the grand, fantastically built arches, the "bahars" or gardens and garden-temples, the many once beautiful palaces, the grand quadrangles, the palatial tombs, all now are left to the dominion of desolation and dust, and in appearance are only fitting monuments of the splendor, wealth, and magnificence of this once beautiful city.

small walled garden, in which 2,000 Sepoy rebels took refuge when the British recaptured the city in '57. A line, for their hopes of safety! For even a 6 foot brick wall will not withstand the charge of a British soldier. After a cannon had played for some hours on a part of the wall, a breach large enough to admit two men at a time was made, and the revengeful British, excited by the fearful massacres and cruelties shown by the rebels, put every one of the 2,000 to the sword. Soon we are at "La Martiniere," or the Martini Palace, now converted into a college. This fantastical piece of architecture was the work of Claude Martini, a French soldier who became the favorite of one of the kings, and rapidly rose from the ranks to riches and greatness. This great palace is more European in style than any other in Lucknow. Stately, rampant lions and Norman turrets, features distinctly European, are here seen, and it is said the king was jealous that one of his subjects should have a more attractive palace than he, and offered Martini a sum equal to five millions of dollars to give up his right, title and interest, but it remained his palace and his tomb. He died in 1801, and is buried in a small, marble-lined room in the basement of the palace. This part of the building was delightfully cool, and we longed to linger here and pore over the inscriptions on the elaborately carved kingly sarcophagus. We fancied we could detect others that did not properly belong to the place, and were naturally curious to see what "stuff" it was made of, and got me into the upper part of the old town hall and picked out "my size." Unfortunately I did not feel disposed to be "classified" that day and refused to "wade in" as I was a stranger and my opponent had two bigger brothers there, and no one was "on my side." He knocked the stick off my shoulder "once, twice, and a third time," but my only defence was for him to wait till I "catch him 'alone." I was very pleased to hear them declare the fight "off" for that day, but next day my opportunity came. I was studiously spelling off the long words of a circus poster opposite G. W. Berry's, when my mortal enemy gave in to me, and alone, "No," was my time for me, but I was too busy to accept of it, and unaccountably tried to occupy the same space. He was game and I was smarting under the disgrace of yesterday, so we both pitched in without further parley. During the incipient stage of the proceedings little harm was done, except a general demolition of brooms, collars, ties, buttons, shirt sleeves and the dislodgment of a few locks of hair which, doubtless, we could both readily part with. Gradually the fray waxed furious, a crowd gathered, dogs ran round the ring sniffing and barking, and evidently anxious to see if some of their canine relatives were in the centre of attraction. We did not observe Queensbury rules closely for we had neither second nor succeeding rounds, but it was one long continuous fight. By degrees I managed by sheer good fortune to get his head between my knees, and was proceeding in the orthodox style to exemplify the disadvantages of "Chancery," when some one broke through the ring and a rough hand was laid on each of us and a strong piece of pine lath was brought into play for what seemed to me a very long time of the order of 32 strokes to the minute. This serious interruption was made as I since not very advantageous to me for I felt it was just getting down to earnest work, but it nevertheless seemed a great satisfaction to see my enemy's grown brother, whom it proved to be, leading him off in rather bad form about the face and still putting in very good work with the business end of the lath. It seems strange that this little personal reminiscence of Lucknow is quite as indelibly impressed on my memory as are the recollection of desecrated temples, deserted halls, seized battered buildings, cloud-capped towers, gorgeous palaces and gardens of delight in what remains of that once magnificent Indian City.

GRATEFUL-COMFORTING. EPP'S COCOA. BREAKFAST. "By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure and health-giving cocoa, properly prepared." - Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Keep in all packets by Grocers, labelled thus: JAMES EPPS & CO., Homoeopathic Chemists, London England 2070-1v.
