IT STOPPED MY SUFFERING

Said Mrs. Jaynes, Speaking of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Anderson, S. C.—"I got into an awful condition with what the doctors said was an organic displacement. I would have pains so badly that they would have to put me to sleep with morphine. The doctor said I would never be any better without an operation and I would never have any children without it. A neighbor who knew that your medicine would do advised me to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I did so and in a few days I was well and on the next September I gave birth to a healthy baby boy."

—Mrs. SALLIE JAYNES, 27 Lyon St., Anderson, S. C.

The letters which we are constantly publishing from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of this famous root and herb medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ruled Destiny!

CHAPTER XXVII.

A BLOW THAT STUNNED.

"You ask me to trust you," she murmured. "If you knew how all faith in a man's words was slain in me you would scarcely hope that even what you have said could move me."

The tears came into her eyes, but she brushed them away quickly.

"Before I can give you any answer, I must tell you my story. When you have heard it you will know how impossible it is that there should ever be any power in my heart to give back the love you have spoken of. If—when you have heard all, you still think you will wish that I should be your wife—"

He seized her hand, but she disengaged it, and went on, with an unnatural calm.

"If you should still think that I could make your life better worth the living, then—"

"Then you will say 'Yes'! You will be my wife!" he murmured huskily. "Oh, take my answer now; before you say another word. I care not what may have happened in the past. I care not. Oh, do I not know beyond all doubt that let it have been what it may, you are pure and blameless!"

His absolute trust and devotion touched her.

"Listen to me and be patient," she said. "You, who have only seen me here in Florence, only know me as a woman with a broken spirit, living a life under a dark and heavy cloud. It is hard for me even to remember that a short time ago, ah, how long it seems, sometimes! I was a happy, light-hearted girl! I don't think—" pensively, and with a faint smile that was more piteous than tears—"that there was ever any girl happier than I was! I used to fear sometimes that I was too happy, and to tremble lest the gods should be envious and send a thunderbolt to shatter my joy-dream—"

"I know," he murmured, softly, sympathizingly. "Ever since last night I have told myself that it would not be possible or right for man to be so happy as your 'yes' would make me."

Floris sighed. "I was engaged to be married to a man I loved with all my heart and soul—"

He did not move, but his lips set themselves tightly, as if he had determined to permit no sign of any suffering her story might inflict on him to escape him.

"I loved him with all my heart and soul," she repeated, almost to herself, as if she found some strange comfort in the words. "He was my superior in rank and wealth, in position, but the world had forgotten that, and everybody thought that we were going to be very happy. I did not doubt his love, so, to the last, the last moment, I clung to my faith in him. Even now I awake sometimes at night and wonder whether I have not been deceived, badly thought that we were going to be should have been so base and false."

She paused a moment. Like a statue Oscar Raymond leaned on the back of the seat, his hands clasped, his eyes fixed on her face.

"We were almost on the eve of our marriage," Floris went on, in a low voice, which, try as she would to keep it calm and steady, quivered like the tremolo of a harp. "We were staying at a great country house. Happy, so happy, that I began to look upon myself as one beyond the reach of sorrow. One day—she stopped, and her face grew white.

"Why tell me? Why torture yourself, self, dearest?" he whispered, imploringly.

"One day," she went on, as if determined to go through with the task she had set herself, "a servant came to me with a wild story which I at first put down to the ravings of a lunatic. She told me that the man I loved was false to me—"

He did not move, but his eyes grew fixed, with an intent expression in them, as if he were looking through and beyond her.

"She told me that another woman in the same house had stolen his heart from me, and that that very night they had planned to fly together, that he had in cold blood decided to leave me for her, to desert me who loved him with all my heart and soul, who would have given my life to insure one hour's happiness to him, who—"

—she broke off, and a passionate sob seemed to choke her.

—she broke off, and a passionate sob seemed to choke her.

The man beside her did not move, did not speak.

"I—I treated the girl's story as a lie, a stupid invention prompted by spite. I—I—oh, Heaven! it all comes back to me now! I would not believe until I had proof, until I saw, heard, was shown beyond the shadow of doubt that my lover had been false to me. The girl offered proof. That afternoon I followed her to a conservatory near a room. I—I saw the man I loved at the feet of the woman who had stolen him from me; I—I cannot go on. I—oh, leave me! leave me!"

And hiding her face in her hands she wept, wept bitterly for the first time since her mother's death.

And he?

He stood beside her like a man turned to stone.

Gradually the truth had broken in upon his soul.

"Gradually, step by step, he had traced the identity of this woman he loved with all the passion his intense nature was capable of, with the girl whose happiness he had, with diabolical ingenuity, wrecked and ruined.

The blow stunned him. It was as if some one had plucked his heart out by the roots.

Despair—despair darker and more terrible than that which falls upon the assassin—fell upon him, like the cold hand of death.

The girl with the pure, sweet eyes, with the pale, lovely, suffering face, was the girl whose happiness he had hunted down and destroyed!

She was not Lillian Wood, but Floris Carlisle!

CHAPTER XXVIII.

FIGHTING LIFE'S BATTLE.

FLORIS CARLISLE! He clutched the seat with both hands, and looked down at her as she bent forward, her face hidden in her hands, her slight figure shaken by her grief; looked down at her with an expression in his face which, dreadful as it was, but poorly reflected the remorse within him.

Retribution! What retribution could be more dire—more complete than this?

That the very woman who had, as it were, plucked him from the depths of degradation, and inspired him with a desire for a higher life, should prove to be the girl whom he had, with cold-blooded heartlessness, tricked and deceived!

It seemed so direct a blow from an

Are You Deceived?

Have you been led to believe that the knife is the only cure for piles? If so, it is unfortunate, for many thousands are being cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Sometimes after operations have failed and often when doctors have said that an operation was the only hope, it won't cost you much to try this treatment in your own home. It is sure to relieve and usually effects complete cure.

Indignant Providence that he stood stunned and overwhelmed.

What should he say to her? Great and merciful Heaven!—what could he say? In an instant a wild temptation assailed him. Why should he tell her who he was, and the crime he had committed?

Why not keep his secret forever, or at any rate until he had married her and made her his own? He might tell her then, perhaps.

He put the terrible temptation away from him with a shudder. Vile as he had been, he was not vile enough for that.

His head drooped; a wistful, aching longing came over him to tell her all; to throw himself at her feet and say, "It is I, who love you better than life itself, who have done this!" but he could not find strength for it.

He waited; silent, motionless—his brain whirling, his heart aching with a dull, gnawing despair.

Floris struggled with her outburst of grief.

Slowly she raised her head, and stretched out her hand toward him, but he did not—could not—take it.

"Forgive me!" she said; "I—I have been very selfish. But it will all come back to me so plainly! It seems only yesterday that it all happened, instead of months ago! And now, now that I have told you all, you see, do you not know that it is impossible I could ever be your wife; do you?"

He tried to speak, but the words died away on his dry lips.

"As yes," she said, "it is better that it should be so, why it cannot be as you would wish it. But I am very grateful; you have been very kind and considerate, and I am sorry that I could not say yes. As to trust, yes, I would have trusted you. I do not think you will go back to the evil life you have lived. If—"

—she went on, looking up at him and starting slightly at the sight of the pallor and haggardness which had settled on his face—"if you have freely forgiven me for inflicting so much pain on you, will you promise me that—that you will keep the resolution that you have made?"

He was silent.

She sighed.

"If you would," she pleaded meekly.

"It would be some consolation for me in my solitude to feel that I had been the means of effecting some good in my poor, miserable life! Will you not promise to keep upon the path which you have struck out for yourself?"

She put out her hand with a humble, deprecating glance at him, and slowly he took her hand and held it in his own, hot and burning and feverish.

"I promise," he said, hoarsely. "I promise! You shall see that I can remember, and keep my promise."

That was all. He could not trust himself to utter another word.

He put her hand down gently, looked into her eyes with all the agony of despair burning in his, and turned and left her.

With unsteady steps and with the face of a man who has suddenly been told that he is condemned to death, he made his way to his hotel.

It was the Hotel Italia, the best hotel in the place, and he held the best rooms in it.

For when he had told Floris that he was poor, he had omitted to tell her that it was his intention to give up the money he had to some charity.

He crossed the street and entering the hall, went up to the landlady, whose voice he heard raised in loud conversation with his wife.

Oscar Raymond leaned against the window of the little office, and waited till the man was disengaged.

Now and then fragments of the conversation reached him. It seemed that they were deploring the lack of accommodation.

An English miller was about to arrive with his friends and suite, and the Hotel Italia was too full to afford them the rooms they required.

"It is always so!" ejaculated the little landlady, excitedly. "When one is busy then come persons of importance, and one has to send them to the attic—other times, when one is empty, then no one comes of any kind; it is always so!"

Oscar Raymond stepped up to him. "You can have my room," he said. "I leave Florence to-night."

"But signor—"

"You can have them in half an hour," went on Oscar Raymond. "Send my luggage to the railway station."

The landlady was profuse in his regrets at losing so good a customer as Signor Raymond, and gratitude for his consideration.

"You see, this is a great English miller—oh, very great! and naturally the Hotel Italia would like to give him of its best!"

"Who is he?" asked Oscar Raymond, indifferently.

The landlady tried to remember the name, but after striking his forehead melodramatically several times, gave it up as a bad job, and Oscar Raymond ascended to his rooms and listlessly packed his things. When he had finished, he descended and gave the keys of his apartments to the landlady.

"They are at your disposal now," he said.

GERMANS RETREATING. WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE MARNE, July 21. (By the Associated Press.)—An attack from Chateau-Thier to Rheims began on Saturday. DRIVING THEM BACK.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN FRANCE, July 20. (By the Associated Press.)—Entente Allied troops to-day are driving back the Germans on the southern bank of the River Marne and are now approaching the river embankment.

PENETRATED TEN MILES.

WASHINGTON, July 20. Official reports to the war department, General March, Chief of Staff, told newspaper men to-day, showed a maximum penetration by the Franco-American counter attack of ten miles and an average penetration of seven miles on a twenty-two mile front.

FRENCH ENTER CHATEAU-THIERY.

PARIS, July 20. French troops entered Chateau-Thierry this morning, according to an official statement issued by the war office. Violent combats continue north and south of the Ourcq and between the Marne and Rheims. In spite of violent resistance by the enemy, the French have continued to advance. The statement adds: The Franco-American forces continue to make progress, repelling the enemy who is defending himself obstinately, according to the official statement issued to-day by the war office.

GERMANS RETREATING.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE MARNE, July 21. (By the Associated Press.)—An attack from Chateau-Thierry to Rheims began on Saturday. American forces captured Hill 193 north of Vaux and advanced more than two kilometers, at last accounts they were more than holding their own against German resistance. Two badly cut up German regiments were left south of the Marne. In the German retreat Allied aviators bombed the bridges across the river, and their escape was impossible. All Saturday night the Allies hammered away at the widening wedge between the Germans and Paris as the Germans withdrew north of the Marne. Americans are continuing taking prisoners and guns. Allied reinforcements are pouring in to overcome any determined resistance the Germans may attempt. The heavy artillery of the Allies continue to-day. In the clearing of the district north of the Marne, Indian scouts who were with Pershing in Mexico, played a prominent part in the scout work on the river.

WORK OF AIRMEN.

LONDON, July 21. Attacking with much guns and bombs, the concentration of troops which the enemy was preparing for counter attacks, and his convoys, our aviators inflicted heavy losses on the enemy on the Marne and also at Oulchy-les-Chateau, Fers-en-Tardenois, Pismes and Basches, and over the whole region of the battlefield; 24 tons of projectiles were dropped during the day and 28 tons at night on enemy assemblages of troops and communications. A violent conflagration broke out at Vauziers and several fires were started at Fers-en-Tardenois and the station was in flames. South of this region explosions were observed at the station at Laon. Simultaneously our aeroplanes indicated advance of our troops and tanks between the Aisne and Marne and reported the arrival of enemy reserves, and by machine-gunning the latter, directly participated in the battle. Numerous combats were engaged in by our crews in conjunction with the British airmen, and achieved good results; 26 German aeroplanes were brought down or disabled and four captive balloons were set on fire. Everywhere the German aviation service was able to appreciate the dash and superiority of the Allied airmen.

PRISONERS AND DEAD REMAIN.

LONDON, July 21. No Germans remain south of the Marne except prisoners and dead. This message is sent from Reuter's correspondent at headquarters and is timed Saturday.

FORCED TO RETREAT.

PARIS, July 20. The Germans violently attacked on their right flank and south of the Marne, the war office announced to-night, have been compelled to retreat and re-cross the river. The French held the entire southern bank of the Marne; more than 20,000 prisoners and 400 guns have been captured. The text of the statement reads: We have not had long to wait for the result of our victorious counter offensive. The Germans violently attacked on their right flank and south of the Marne, have been compelled to retreat and re-cross the river. We hold the whole south bank of the Marne. Between the Aisne and the Marne Franco-American troops continue to progress and have driven back the enemy, who is resisting stubbornly. We have reached Plesly and Percy-Tingy and have passed beyond St. Remy-Bleny and Stablen. Further south we hold the general line of the Priez Plateau northeast of Courchamps. The number of prisoners taken since July 18th exceeds 20,000; over 400 guns have been captured. Our aviators, redoubling their activity in the day and night of the 19th, multiplied their raids and engaged in the severest battles against enemy forces. Franco-British bombing squadrons taking the main crossings as their principal objective, have ceaselessly hampered, and at certain points completely stopped, the enemy's supply services, thus playing an important role in the conflict which was about to provoke the retreat of the German troops.

GERMAN LINES BROKEN.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE MARNE, July 21. (By the Associated Press.)—The French and Americans have broken through the German line northwest of Chateau-Thierry. The French and Americans driving the spearhead toward the northeast have already advanced five kilometers. At many places the Allied troops have taken prisoners including three officers, who said they were tired of the war. American infantry captured two German 77's. Previous to the break of the German lines the Allies battled with the desperate machine gunners who were mowed down as the Allied reinforcements arrived; German losses were terrible.

CHATEAU-THIERY FALLEN.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, July 21.—Chateau-Thierry, the corner stone of the line of the farthest German advance, fell early this morning when the French occupied the city driving the Germans before them. The enemy has begun his retreat north, under heavy pressure from all sides, French, American and British, all participating in the thrust which is pushing the Germans back. Where the retreat will end can't be conjectured, as everything now depends on the will of the Allied chief. The German position in the vicinity of Chateau-Thierry was doomed from the moment their divisions re-crossed the Marne. Franco-American troops carried out an encircling movement from the northwest, at the same time which made it absolutely necessary for the enemy to withdraw. In the course of the night reconnaissance was effected by the French to test the strength of the enemy still in the city and shortly after dawn the Allied occupation became an accomplished fact.

BRITISH TROOPS ENGAGED.

LONDON, July 21. On the front southwest of Rheims where the British forces are engaged, there was much fluctuating fighting yesterday. At one time the British took Marfoux, Coutron and Courton Wood. Some of these gains, however, were lost when the Germans counter attacked in the Ardre valley. The British are still holding some of their gains including the wood line running along the west edge of the stream. Further southward the Germans hold the line at the Marne from Reully to just east of Chateau-Thierry.

WHAT THE COLOGNE GAZETTE SAYS.

AMSTERDAM, July 21. The Cologne Gazette says: As happened on other occasions, for instance on the Somme, we must concede the loss of prisoners and guns, but even so the enemy's leading idea, a break through hasn't been attained despite tremendous exertions. We have been able to hold the counter attack before it attained strategic advantage worth mentioning. Continuous changes in positions are logically the outcome of the open warfare now in progress.

A BERLIN DESPATCH.

AMSTERDAM, July 21. A Berlin despatch to the Rheinsche Wepphalische Zeitung, of Essen, says that the Moscow Government while refusing the request of the German Government that it be allowed to send a German battalion to protect the German embassy, has agreed to the employment of several hundred soldiers in civilian dress.

U. S. CRUISER SUNK.

NEW YORK, July 21. Between 30 and 40 men lost their lives when the U. S. cruiser San Diego was sunk ten miles off Fire Island yesterday, according to a semi-official estimate made here to-day.

U-BOAT ON MASS. COAST.

ORLEANS, Mass., July 21. An enemy submarine attacked a tow boat off the easternmost point of Cape Cod to-day, sank three barges, set a fourth and their tug afire, and dropped four shells on the mainland. The action lasted an hour, and was unchallenged, except for two hydroplanes from the Chatham aviation steamer which circled over the U-boat, causing her to submerge for a short time, only to reappear and resume firing. The crew of the tow boat numbering forty-one, including three women and five children, escaped amid the shell fire in lifeboats. Several were wounded, but only one seriously. This happened to be John E. Towlich, an Australian, one of the crew of the tug, his right arm near the shoulder was torn away by a fragment of shell. The minor injuries of the others were from shell splinters. The one-sided fight took place three miles south of the Orleans coast guard steamer which is located midway between Chatham at the elbow and Highland Light at the extreme tip of the Cape. The firing was heard for miles and brought thousands to the beach from which the flashes of the guns and the outline of the U-boat were plainly visible. Possible danger to the onlookers wasn't thought of until a shell whizzed over their heads and splashed in a pond a mile inland. Three other shells buried themselves in the sands of the beach.

RETIRED IN DISORDER.

MACEDONIA, July 20. Thursday night after violent preparation, the enemy attacked our positions west of Hill 1030. Our troops counter attacked and compelled the enemy to retire in disorder.

FORCED TO WITHDRAW.

ALBANIA, July 20. On the heights of Malis Delonnes, in the bend of the Develli, enemy detachments were forced to withdraw.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, July 21. Patrol engagements in which the British captured prisoners and machine guns, are reported in the official statement issued by the war office to-day. The text of the statement reads: A few prisoners and machine guns were captured by us during the night in raids and patrol encounters southwest of La Bassée and in the Merville and Dickebusche sectors. Beyond reciprocal artillery activity at different points, there is nothing further to report from the British front.

WHERE IS HINDENBURG?

PARIS, July 20. General Ludendorff, who up till July 17th, had borne the title of Quartermaster general of the German army, has received in a German official statement the title of Chief of the General Staff, according to the Matin. The newspaper points out that the title belongs to Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, and wonders what has become of him. Reports have been current during the past two or three months that Field Marshal Von Hindenburg was ill. These culminated in reports recently that he died.

EXTEND THEIR ADVANCE.

LONDON, July 20. French troops on the Soissons front have extended their advance from Monte-de-Paris southwest of the city of Tabbelleu, a town southeast of Soissons. The number of Germans taken as prisoners in the Franco-American offensive now has reached 18,800. On the Rheims front the French forces have advanced for a distance of one thousand yards between Senuais and Auberville. The French also made slight progress near Pourcy.

FORMER EMPEROR SHOT.

LONDON, July 20. Former Emperor Nicholas of Russia, has been shot. A Russian wireless statement to-day announces the former Emperor's correspondence, including letters from the Monk Rasputin who was killed shortly before the revolution, written to the Emperor and his family will be published in the near future.

ITALIAN VICTORY.

ROME, July 20. Italian troops have wrested from the Austrians Monte Stabel and completely occupied Cornedi Cabents in the Adatelle region on the mountain front.

A WEEK'S CASUALTIES.

LONDON, July 20. British casualties reported for the week ending to-day, total 16,961, compared with the aggregate of 14,911 reported the previous week. These are divided as follows: Killed or died of wounds, officers 51, men 391; wounded or missing, officers 291, men 15,158.

Death of a Religious.

Perfectly conscious of death's near approach, fortified by the consolations of Holy Church, breathing aspirations of sweetest hope and love for her Creator, and surrounded by her sorrowing Sisters, such was the death-bed scene of the saintly, humble religious, Sister Martha Kinnally, who passed in her eternal reward at the Presentation Convent, Renew, July 18th. Born in 1825 of very respectable parents, Lucy and Patk. Kinnally, at Killbride, St. John's, she early evinced a longing for the religious life and consequently went with the first Nuns, Mother Bernard Kirwan (Foundress of the Presentation Order in Newfoundland), Sisters Teresa Halpin, Augustine Harding, and Miss O'Neill (afterwards Sr. M. Magdalen) to Fermeuse in 1853. Helping the Nuns in all domestic duties for five years, her love for the cloistered life so increased that she offered herself as a Postulant, and was admitted in 1858. She received the holy habit of Religion from the hands of the Rt. Rev. Bishop Mullock, in 1860, and finally reached her heart's desire by taking the religious vows, binding her for ever to the service of her Divine Spouse in 1865. Unselfish to a fault, no grander tribute can be paid to this beloved Sister than to say that she practised in an heroic degree the lesson taught by her Divine Spouse: "Learn of Me, for I am meek and humble of heart." It was a great privilege claimed by dear Sister Martha that the saintly Foundress now lying in the little Church of Admiral's, Fermeuse, died in her arms. Thus she was a precious

NAVY vs. CITY. The big football match between eleven from the naval visitors now in port and a team from the city, which starts at 7.15 o'clock sharp to-night, should draw a big crowd. The naval men have a pretty strong eleven and are glad of the opportunity to help along our Patriotic Funds by meeting our boys in a friendly contest. The city eleven will be selected this morning by the League Executive and the players immediately notified. The colors of the visiting team will be scarlet with white collars. The city team will appear in white. The general admission will be 10 cents and the Grand Stand 10 cents extra. Mr. W. J. Higgins referees.

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor C. T. JAMES, Editor

MONDAY, July 22, 1918. The "Herald" to the Rescue.

After waiting for some time to observe how matters stand, the Herald on Saturday devoted a full column of language to the I. O. U. mess at the Customs, but so far as explanation of the circumstances went, the public is still waiting. The usual hourly precedent was quoted in extenuation, but more for the purpose of making a political drive than as an exposition of facts. The Herald, as is usual with it, can only see politics in anything calculated to bring about reforms, and with the casuality which is characteristic of the utterances of that paper it weaves a web of extraneous comment in order to further involve the matter at issue. The public is perfectly aware that no political tinge has been given (excepting by the Herald itself) the discussion on the shortage in the Customs Cash, but as it suits the Herald to twist a political cord around it, the object is perfectly clear. It is to burke ventilation of a public scandal, a scandal which never would have occurred had there been any kind of systematic accounting and auditing in the Customs Department. It is idle to go back to ancient history and resurrect a similar case in another department, in an attempt to prove that it justifies the present mix-up. But that is the Herald all over. That is the food on which it thrives. The Advocate having made such a lame explanation of nothing, the musty red herring of the Herald is made to do duty once more. It is rather singular, though, that our contemporary should, (unadvertently we believe), acknowledge that there have been other attempts, independently of the I. O. U. taken, and its naive expression "that it is not possible for the Government or anybody else to get at the facts" is rather striking. However it is something to have elicited even that little admission. The specious argument that it is not an offence for a man to give an I. O. U. will not wash in this connection. It is an offence for any public official entrusted with the custody of the public revenue to advance any cash to any person, taking an I. O. U. as security. It is an offence against the Revenue Act and against the Audit Act. The instance cited of the same transactions being of daily occurrence in every business office of this city, is not analogous to the question. There is a great difference between a private concern and a Government revenue collecting department, and what may be permissible in the former is entirely disallowable in the latter. The statement that the country stands to lose nothing has been made before. That is not the point at all. Money belonging to the revenue of the Dominion was advanced illegally, and some loss must have been incurred by some person. The fact that the revenue is not the loser, does not do away with the impression that the system which permits such things to be done is faulty, nor does it place any premium on honesty. The Surety Company may make good the shortage, but will it get after and prosecute the culprits? That is in the bond. The people are advised therefore to keep their eyes and ears open. Should there be any prosecutions by the Surety concern, in that way will become known to all the names of those involved. Should there be no prosecutions, the public can draw its own inferences. Since the Herald has resuscitated the "dead horse," perhaps it will go a bit further and give in detail all the particulars of that other irregularity. Did the Herald mention it at the time? Was that paper equally guilty of complicity with the persons whom he names in having the matter hushed up? We also pause for a reply.

Murphy replied briefly, thanking the donors for their gift.

HINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIBBERIA

A Week of Action.

This must be a week of active service on behalf of the Victory Loan. All energies should be devoted to make a clean and successful finish to the campaign. We must not be satisfied with the results already achieved. If this Loan had just been subscribed, and no more, it would have been a failure; not a financial failure, but a failure from the standpoint of national effort. Every dollar by which the Loan is oversubscribed is an added testimony to the practical patriotism of our people. It is also a tribute to their wisdom in securing their savings in such a profitable investment. Moreover, it is a declaration of our enemies that our people stand firm behind the soldiers at the front and are determined to do so until the finish is in sight.

Pony Race.

The annual Pony Race at the Mount Cashel Garden Party promises to be as interesting as ever this year. Already the owners of a number of ponies have signified their intention to enter, and a good race may be looked forward to. The quarter mile race for boys under 15, is already attracting much attention amongst the boys of the city. Several entries have already been made. Those intending to compete should immediately hand in their names. There will be three prizes for the event of which the first is a very handsome silver watch now on exhibition in the window of Mr. C. J. Ellis, tailor.

HINARD'S LINIMENT LUMBERMAN'S FRIEND.

Distinguished Visitor.

By Saturday's express there arrived in St. John's a very distinguished visitor in the person of Prof. N. Hayashi, a Japanese student. Prof. Hayashi is a native of Japan and graduated in a university of that country some years ago. About one year since he came to the United States and entered Harvard, where he is taking a post-graduate course. His subject there is English Literature and he specializes in poetry. His favorites being Bunyan, Shelley, Keats and Bobby Burns. Hearing of Newfoundland's unrivalled scenery and of the famed hospitality of our people, he determined to visit the country and to experience those things of which he has often read. He is registered at the Crosbie and will be in the city for a week to inspect the public and governmental buildings, after which he will tour the outports and the interior. We need hardly ask all those who come in contact with him to show the utmost kindness and generosity.

A Serious Matter.

Despite the fact that the law makes it illegal to do so, we find that nearly all the fishermen operating from this port, when splitting fish, throw the heads and entrails overboard, depositing them on the bottom. We have seen this done by several fishermen, and upon remonstrance they informed us that the thing had gone on for over forty years. We also understand that all the Battery fishermen do the same thing, while several fish buying companies also throw overboard into the harbor the heads and entrails. In addition to that, nearly all the Water Street merchants throw old rubbish, such as paper, dirt, broken crockeryware, etc., over the heads of the wharves. Upon an interview with the Harbor Master, he informed us that he knew such things are going on and that a law making it illegal exists, but confesses that he cannot stop it. We should advise the proper authorities to get busy and make a few prosecutions, and if these methods fail, nothing but the appointment of three or four harbour policemen can be effective. We need a harbour police, anyway.

Straits Fishery Report Encouraging.

The s.s. Ethie, Capt. E. English, which arrived at Humbermouth from the Straits mail service last evening, sends the following encouraging fishery report:—"Made all ports going and returning, east wind and fog in Straits. Fishery on N.B. side Straits very good, plenty fish, salt scarce. Whitley has 3,000 and still trapping some. Grant 12,000, trapping good; hook and line good, trawl scarce. East of Blanc Sablon, fair to Red Bay, after that very little doing. Battle Hr., nothing yet. (Sgd.) E. ENGLISH."

Fishery Report.

Catalina.—Traps 5 to 30 gils.; no report from trawls; caplin in deep water. Bonavista.—Caplin enough for bait; fish scarce with traps and hook this morning. Greenspond.—Nothing new; fishery to date very poor. Hr. Grace.—Traps not in fishing order; nothing with hook and line. Tilt Cove.—Better sign of fish; traps 1 to 3 bris. Channel.—Saturday a few hook and line men got half a quintal each on clams and herring bait. St. Anthony.—No improvement. Trepassay.—Traps 2 to 12; dorles 1 to 3; prospects still good. St. Mary's.—Nothing 10 to 30; trawls 2 to 5. Holyrood.—Traps doing with fish here; doing very well in Hr. Hall's; Chapel's Cove and down shore. Belle Isle near Pogo.—Fair fishery; some schooners doing well. Herring Neck.—Little caplin; fish very scarce. Brigus.—Nothing doing with fish or caplin. Carbonear.—No fish this morning; traps more or less damaged after the breeze; caplin scarce; caplin scarce.

Reids Boats.

The Argyle is leaving Placentia after arrival of to-day's train, on Merasheen route. The Clyde left Port Union this a.m. The Dundee is leaving Lewisporte to-day. The Home is leaving Lewisporte to-day. The Ethie arrived at Humbermouth at 10.15 p.m. yesterday. The Sagona was not reported since leaving Trinity on Saturday. The Porosa left Grand Bank at 8.10 p.m. yesterday going west. The Petrel left Clearanville at 4.40 p.m. on Saturday.

TO-NIGHT'S PLAYERS.—The following will be the line-up of the city team in to-night's football game with the naval men: Goal, H. Phelan; full backs, T. Duggan, Reid; halves, Elton, Drover, W. Duggan; forwards, R. Stick, E. Jerritt, C. Quick, W. Burke and F. Brien (Capt.).

Guidé Posts of Life.

Favourite Mottos of Famous Folk. Sir Henry Lucy, who for forty years was "Toby, M.P. for Barking," of "Punch," declares his motto in life has been: "Whatever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." This is also the motto of Canon Rawnsley, the last of the Lake poets. The Bishop of Durham gives as his motto: "Never let what you know be disturbed by what you do not know," and the Bishop of Newcastle gives the wise-saw: "Never put off till tomorrow what you can do to-day." The Dean of Norwich, Canon Beeching, gives the Latin motto: "Tu necede malis"—"Yield not to misfortune"—which may also be translated "Never say die!"

Thoughts That Help.

Sir Gilbert Parker, novelist and publicist, takes his motto from Shakespeare: "Be just and fear not"; whilst a brother novelist, as well as a Professor of Literature, Sir A. T. Quiller-Couch ("The Grey Plover" fame), has inscribed on the guide-post of his life the three words: "Do and abide." Another novelist, Mr. Horace Annesley Vachell, takes his motto from Tennyson's "The Revenge"—A Ballad of the Fleet, simply but sufficiently: "Fight on! Fight on!" the words the poet put in the dying lips of Sir Richard Grenville. Mr. Max Pemberton declares for "Nil desperandum"; Morice Gerard takes a text, as befits a clerical novelist, from the prophet Micah: "With both hands earnestly." The only drawback to this motto is that the prophet declares that the wicked do their wickedness that way. That veteran spg-writer, Fred Weatherly, has one of the shortest and best of mottos: "Peg away." Seeing that his lyrics, set to music, run to many thousands, it is evident he has lived up to his maxim. Sir Sidney Lee, the Shakespearean commentator, gives a characteristic motto: "Verify your references"; and Dr. Forsyth is most timely one: "Our adversary is our helper; and in the reproof of Fate lies the proof of men." That "Grand Old Man" of Nonconformity, Dr. John Clifford, gives two mottos as his favorites: "Endure hardness," and "The best is yet to be." Mr. Silas K. Hocking's motto of life is: "To gain the best be worthy of it."

King of the Jews.

Who will be "King of the Jews" in the coming era of peace, when the Holy Land is to be restored to its own people and its old glories? This is one of the many problems which the Allied nations are considering; and the choice seems to point to one man as more suited than any other for this high and responsible dignity. The man to whom the finger of probability points is Judge Louis D. Brandeis, the leading Zionist and most conspicuous social reformer in the United States, and a close friend and confidant of the President. This potent "King" was born in Kentucky sixty-two years ago, a member of a family famous for a century for its championship of freedom—the liberation of the Poles, the abolition of slavery and similar noble causes. He made a fortune out of the law; but he won his fame—and not a little enmity, by his battles against Trusts, and his championship of their victims, too poor to pay legal fees. In fact, when President Wilson nominated him as Judge of the Supreme Court, a torrent of protests raged in Conservative circles throughout the country. But Judge Brandeis could afford to smile at the tempest. He had a clear conscience; and he had supporters and friends by the million. He is almost idolized by his own people, the Jews; and no man in the States has a higher reputation for integrity. In appearance this potent "King" is almost a duplicate of Abraham Lincoln—tall, angular, rugged; with lofty forehead, deep-set eyes, prominent cheek-bones and a broad sensitive mouth. He is a man of great personal charm, and a brilliant talker; and in spite of his wealth and high position, of singular simplicity and modesty.

Revelations of the Last German Ambassador in England:

My Mission to London, 1912-1914.

By PRINCE LICHTENOWSKY. (With a preface by Professor Gilbert Murray.)

The war has produced few human documents of the importance of Prince Lichtenowsky's "Memorandum." It throws a flood of light upon the diplomatic correspondence published by the belligerent chancelleries in the opening months of the war, particularly upon the German White Paper, whose reservations it exposes, whose enigmas it untangles, whose lies it lays bare. It is the diplomatic story of the Prince's Ambassadorship at London, from 1912 until the war drove him home to Berlin in August, 1914, when he was deprived of rank and distinctions. Should be read by every man and woman in the Empire; 60 pages, stiff covers. Prices 25c.; by mail, 27c.

THE PASSING MR. P. C.

His myriads of friends and acquaintances will be very sorry to hear that Mr. P. C. O'Driscoll, well known and widely respected, passed away at the General Hospital, on Saturday afternoon, after an illness of seven weeks. Mr. O'Driscoll enjoyed apparent good health up to about a few weeks ago, when he was advised that he was suffering from an internal malady and that an operation was necessary. This operation was performed about ten days ago, and it was thought that his recovery would be quick. However, early last week the patient began to weaken, and death overtook him on Saturday.

Promoted to Major.

Captain Peter Cashin, son of Hon. M. P. Cashin, Minister of Finance, and Acting Prime Minister of Newfoundland, has been promoted to the rank of Major, and is now in charge of a machine gun company. Major Cashin went to the western front as a subaltern, and proving himself a very capable promotion after promotion followed in succession until he now holds one of heavy responsibility. We have heard that when a Lieutenant, Major Cashin made a new record for the Army in assembling his machine gun in the shortest time possible, a feat which he is quite justified in being proud of. Congratulations.

Promoted for Gallantry

By the last English mail Mr. Thomas H. Blackmore, Chief Armourer of H. M. S. Briton, received a letter from his brother, Mr. G. E. Blackmore, who served in H. M. S. Calypso (now H. M. S. Briton) as Instructor Gunner to the Newfoundland Royal Naval Reserve from January 1906 to March 1908. His many friends will be pleased to learn that Mr. Blackmore has been specially promoted to Lieutenant R.N. for "Gallantry in Action." As is well known whilst here, Mr. Blackmore took great interest in rifle shooting and was a member of the St. John's Rifle Team and accompanied them on their visit to Ottawa. He was also interested in the Church Lads' Brigade and assisted in training their rifle team. Lieut. Blackmore is now serving in command of H. M. S. Cupar. Mr. Thomas H. Blackmore, Chief Armourer of H. M. S. Briton, would be pleased to meet any of his brother's friends at any time.

EXCURSION TRAIN SERVICE.

THE PASSING OF MR. P. C. O'DRISCOLL.

His myriads of friends and acquaintances will be very sorry to hear that Mr. P. C. O'Driscoll, well known and widely respected, passed away at the General Hospital, on Saturday afternoon, after an illness of seven weeks. Mr. O'Driscoll enjoyed apparent good health up to about a few weeks ago, when he was advised that he was suffering from an internal malady and that an operation was necessary. This operation was performed about ten days ago, and it was thought that his recovery would be quick. However, early last week the patient began to weaken, and death overtook him on Saturday.

Mr. O'Driscoll was the sort of man whose loss is a calamity. He was born in Mobile, on the Southern Shore, some 60 years ago, was educated at St. Bonaventure's College, and began life as a draper, later going to the United States, where he remained a few years. About 30 years ago he opened up a commission and auctioneering business which to-day is Newfoundland's foremost one. Deceased was an enthusiastic sportsman, and was never better pleased than when amidst Nature's splendours. For years he had been an active member of the St. Bonaventure's Association, being elected Vice-President at the recent annual meeting; also a life long member of the B. I. S., and of the Holy Name Society. Left to mourn are a widow (see Miss Dalton), three sons, John, with the Nfld. Foresters in Scotland, Joseph, a returned soldier, who was wounded at Monchy, and Stephen in the city; four daughters—Mollie, a nurse, Marguerite, Nancy and Florence, and three brothers—Rev. J. O'Driscoll, P.P., St. Mary's, William, at Mobile, Aiden, at Witless Bay, and one sister, Mrs. Henry White, to whom the Telegram extends sympathy.

Football at Bell Island.

A pretty good exhibition of football was seen at Bell Island last evening when the "Swords"—a combination of players from the old Wabana, Dominion and Nova Scotia teams—defeated the Star by a score of 1 to 0. The weather was a trifle misty so that the ball soon became heavy. On the kick-off the Swords took the ball to Star territory, and after about five minutes play J. S. Hore scored on a pass from Goldstone. After this play evened up and although most of the game was in Star territory, the good defence of Costigan and Pearle kept the Swords forwards from getting any shots on the goal. At half time the score was still 1-0. On changing ends the Star made several attempts to score, but their forwards were too well marked and could not get away. Once or twice they did get down, and Ron Jackman gave Spencer a few hot ones, which he handled in fine style. In the last half play was well divided, although there was evidence of lack of practice in shooting on both sides. The Swords were most noticeable in this respect and should have scored often. The game, however, ended in their favour, 1-0.

The Last Week.

This is the closing week of the Victory Loan campaign. The drive for dollars for the Victory War Loan started on June 17th when the Government placed the issue of Two Million dollars on the local market. This sum was in addition to Four Millions which had been speedily taken up by Canadian investors. The Two Million Dollars asked for was subscribed within a week, and the Government then decided, by Order in Council under the War Measures Act, to accept all subscriptions offering up to the 27th July, the date fixed for the closing of the campaign, in order that no one might be disappointed in not receiving the full amount applied for. Additional applications have been flowing in to the Treasury and the Banks and from present indications it is not unlikely that Three Million Dollars will be realized, if not more. This is a result upon which we may fairly congratulate ourselves, forming as it does, an evidence that the valour of our sailors and soldiers is backed by the patriotism of the whole country. This Victory Loan of ours, although local in character is of national significance inasmuch as it is an indication to the outside world that Newfoundland is in this War to the finish and is determined to do its full share in bringing the struggle to a victorious conclusion for the Allies and thus ensure the maintenance of Liberty and democracy for which so many have suffered and died. For this reason it is all the more gratifying that such a response has been made to the call, and we trust that during the present week our people will see that the campaign does not lag, but that on the contrary, it will have a whirlwind finish.

Much interest was taken in the game, and there was a pretty good attendance. Mr. C. Taylor refereed the game. The players were:—

Swords.—Goal, E. Spencer; backs, E. Rees and B. Searle; halves, B. Skanes, W. Brown, F. Godden; forwards, L. Kennedy, J. Skanes, W. White, D. Rose and J. Goldstone.

Star.—Goal, W. Jackman; backs, R. Costigan and M. Pearle; halves, King, Hawco, Lahey; forwards, R. Jackman, T. Murphy, E. Basha, B. Dwyer.

Oil Factories Inspected.

The following report in connection with the cod liver oil factories at points between Petty Hr. (inclusive) and Trepassy (exclusive), has been submitted by Inspector P. Howlett to Minister of Marine and Fisheries Stone: "I have visited going and returning, all the factories and found them in fair condition. The Bay Bulls and Petty Hr. factories are deserving of special mention. Owners are doing all in their power to keep up to the rules. The two factories at Witless Bay, the one at Cape Broyle and two at Caplin Bay are in excellent order. The others are only passable. Although they have one of the best fisheries to date on record, the yield of oil is far behind normal years, it being about one-third last year's yield to date. Two reasons can be assigned for this shortage. The first, the fish being large the livers are poor and dark. Second, the fish striking in so suddenly and plentifully, the manufacturer could not handle the livers for want of help. I find the total amount of refined cod liver oil in this section to date does not exceed 10,000 gallons."

Are We Less Hospitable?

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Are we, as a generation, less hospitable than our forebears? That is a question that has come up in my mind recently. I have been thinking of the old days when a friend came to see me, and I would make a little less effort to be grand and ceremonious in our hospitality and just be plain friendly and happy, give the best we happen to have of food and companionship and be satisfied with that.

A Little More Courtesy on the Guests Part.

But on the other hand I do think that a little more courtesy and consideration on the guests part than he was wont to show in the old days is an advance in civilization, not a step backwards.

Why shouldn't the guests write and ask if it is convenient for him to come at a certain time? Why shouldn't he consult your convenience as well as his? When it comes your turn to be a guest you will show a like consideration, and surely no one will be worse off, and the amenities of life will be that much advanced.

This is to certify that fourteen years ago I got the cords of my left wrist nearly severed, and was for about nine months that I had no use of my hand, and tried other liniments, also doctors, and was receiving no benefit. By a persuasion from a friend I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and used one bottle which completely cured me, and have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in my family ever since and find it the same as when I first used it, and would never be without it.

ISAAC E. MANN,
Metapedia, P. Q.

A waistline is a very expensive affair. Give it an inch and it will take three, if allowed. Leave it unconfined and unwatched and there is no telling where it will stop, especially if the woman is past first youth. Fatty tissues settle very rapidly around the waist, and since the waist muscles are rarely used after youthful athletic days are over, fat has every opportunity to grow where it is least limited.

There are women who conscientiously stand for twenty minutes after dinner, having heard that this will prevent the waistline from growing larger. But mere standing will do no good unless one stands correctly. The whole secret of right standing and sitting, is the keeping of the waist muscles taut and not relaxed. This means holding the upper part of the figure up, away from the bones of the pelvis and not allowing it to settle down comfortably with relaxed spine.

Always feel that your figure from the waist up is absolutely unsupported by the aid of the spine and erect muscles, and you will find your waist growing slender and longer in line. It is the short-waisted woman who settles down into her corset when standing or sitting.

The kneeling exercise is excellent for improving the waist line which will certainly grow slimmer and more flexible if the exercise is persisted in ten or more times a day. Kneel on the carpet and slowly bend downward from the waist, until forearms and hands rest on the floor. Then slowly regain an upright position, letting all the strain come on the waist muscles. This exercise must done slowly for its best effect. Do not spring up, allowing the muscles of the back to help, but make the waist muscles slowly pull the body upward.

PROUD PEOPLE.

We are bowing to his mother. And that service star's for him. This block has claimed a glory. To the joys he's never had. We are pointing out his sister. As she walks along the street. And I'll tell it to you, mister. We've got reason for conceit.

That's his room—the second story—Ah, this block has claimed a glory. That in future days was dim. Just a year ago he walked here. Went to work the way we do; Just a year ago he talked here. As I'm talking now to you.

Never dreamed I'd brag so loudly. Never thought I'd be so glad To tell every stranger proudly. And I know of it with his dad. Now I'm shouting that I know him. On his wagon gyroscopic action is all. Yes, you bet your life, I did!

Now our heads are high with glory. And the street has come to fame. And the papers print the story. And I know of it with his name. Now we come end to last of our. Just like soldiers over there. Since the boy who was our neighbour Has received the croix de guerre.

Austrians Hoped Offensive Would End the War.

London, July 16.—(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency)—A despatch from British Headquarters contains the following extracts from a memorandum circulated amongst the Austro-Hungarian army commanders, which throws an interesting light upon the recent offensive. Economic conditions forced the Austro-Hungars to use Italian uniforms and equipment. "Our offensive will help effectively to finish the war; if we drive back our hereditary enemy and penetrate deep into his territory. We, without the help of our German brothers, must reckon on our own strength only. Our artillery forces will break down the enemy's resistance.

"Our own country is very short of foodstuffs and we must therefore, as long as possible, live on the country. Feeding horses corn is strictly forbidden, as after July there will be no further supply of bread and flour from the rear. Any uniforms and clothing found should be appropriated for our personal use, and may be worn after the removal of the Italian badges.

"We are in great need of uniforms, underclothing, boots, etc., and ammunition must not be thrown away by the men in order to let them load themselves with booty. Let every man know that the present offensive, together with that of the Germans, is the most violent, but perhaps the decisive blow against the Italians."

"SALTING" WOODEN SHIPS.—A labor saving device now being employed at the Portland Ferry in Oregon, is described in the official organ of that organization as follows: "You are all familiar with the fact that salt is placed between the ceiling and planking of all wooden ships to preserve the wood above the water line. Heretofore the planking has been delayed because the salting has not been done. Science now steps forward with a new wrinkle for salting a ship. The method requires the use of an augur, a tin box, an air jet and a couple of men. A hole is bored through the ceiling outside of which a tin box filled with salt is placed, and the box of salt is injected by the air jet. Salt is quickly blown into the many pockets formed between the ribs

News From Abroad.

The following cabled news from the city was published in Canadian papers, under the heading "Conscription Working Well in Newfoundland."

St. John's, N.F., July 14.—Newfoundland's conscription law, which went into effect six weeks ago, has operated so effectively that to-day the Newfoundland regiment is recruited to full war strength. It is not expected that a second draft call will be made until autumn at the close of the season for fishing. Newfoundland's vital industry. Women have replaced men on the farms but as this is not possible on the fishing boats the manpower for military service is limited.

The conscription law originally was made effective May 24, Empire Day but was postponed a week because ice floes on the north coast delayed the distribution of registration papers. In the interval, nearly 1,500 men voluntarily enlisted in the Newfoundland regiment. Twenty-five hundred registered under the law as ready for immediate service and 3,000 claimed exemption.

Some resistance to the law was experienced but the evaders were rounded up by military patrols. Nearly all those forcibly taken accepted the alternative of enlisting rather than go to jail for two to five years, the penalty for failure to register.

Moving Pictures for the Home

AT A MODERATE EXPENSE.

A comparatively inexpensive combination moving-picture camera and projector for amateur use is illustrated in the August Popular Mechanics Magazine. It bears about the same relation to the costly and heavy professional machines as a compact light camera does to a cumbersome apparatus employed by portrait photographers. Exclusive of its tripod, the new movie camera weighs less than three and a half pounds. It uses standard film and is operated as easily as any simple "still" instrument. The capacity of its magazine, designed for daylight loading, is 20 feet, which, because eight instead of 16 pictures are taken per second, records as much action as 40 feet of film in a professional machine. Sharp, clear pictures capable of reasonable enlargement for "stills" are obtained. By engaging the lens, attaching a light frame with reels of 200-foot capacity, and mounting a small, cylindrical lamp-house, the camera is converted into a projector.

The New Hun Secretary

In his speech before the main committee of the Reichstag the other day Chancellor Von Hertling was emphatic in declaring that Admiral von Hintze, named to succeed von Kuehlmann as German Foreign Secretary, would follow "my line of policy and not his own." The statement is worth noting because, indirectly, it supports the assertion contained in several recent despatches that there was much opposition in some quarters in Germany to the appointment of von Hintze.

Von Kuehlmann was described as one of the more moderate of German statesmen. Von Hintze, on the other hand, is a Pan-German of the Pan-Germans. He was a protégé in his younger days of Admiral von Tirpitz, author of the campaign of unrestricted submarine warfare. His selection for the post of Foreign Secretary is traced to the most violent Pan-German element which gives a heretofore a programme of unlimited aggression—the element which has been represented by such men as von Tirpitz and Ludendorff. The heads of the Reichstag parties were not consulted but suddenly, as an Austrian despatch has put it, "a violent Pan-German is set up as foreign minister in a government which is presumed to accept the Reichstag's majority policy."

The Chancellor's declaration that von Hintze would not follow his own line of policy but von Hertling's was evidently intended to allay the uneasiness of the admiral's nomination to succeed von Kuehlmann. But once in office von Hintze may be counted on to endeavor to follow the course desired by the Pan-Germans with whom he has been so closely associated rather than the policy desired by some else. Perhaps realization of this truth will prevent the people from being lulled into calmness again by the chancellor's assurance. However, that may be, the selection of von Hintze ought to be evidence to the German people as to how little their wishes weigh with Potsdam and another evidence to the Allies of the firm grip which the Pan-Germans still have upon Germany's affairs.—Sydney Record.

"Germania" Transformed Into "Miss Columbia."

A statue of "Germania," which has long occupied a niche in a Cincinnati business block, has been transformed into "Miss Columbia," says the August Popular Mechanics Magazine. One of the first steps in this novel change of character was to cut off Germania's head ruthlessly and substitute a head the face of which expressed good instead of impertinence. The Teutonic armor was also obliterated and an American eagle and flowing draperies were substituted. On the shield that once bore the German eagle now appears the Stars and Stripes, while on Columbia's head is an ornament set with stars.

WALT MASCH

Sail Kaiser Karl. "My soldiers hold, I know you're mighty hollow; I'm not surprised your feet are cold, since you've no grub to swallow. Our Austria is short of pipes, it's a strip of kraut and bacon; there's not enough to draw the fleas; it's bare and God forsaken. But Italy has food to burn, beyond those Alpine craters! The winner won't for which you yearn, the prunes and sweet potatoes! You know how Kaiser Wilhelm went and swiped the Russian larder! Go, scale the Alps with fell intent, with glowing zeal and ardor; Italians are an easy mark, they'll all stampede together; get after them, and skies now dark will let in sunny weather." His soldiers took him at his word (the hint could not be broadened), their famished loins began to gird, and started out for fodder. They thought to find a Russia there, disorganized and rattled, and they would strip the cupboard bare when for a day they'd battled. But Italy was on the toes, with lust for fight aquire; "Timber" he lup and down the foe, chased them in the river. Surprised the host of Karl fell home, too sick to utter, to scrape again the empty bar, and hunt bones in the gutter.

More Hun Atrocities.

Boston, July 18.—The American public can believe anything and everything it reads or hears concerning German atrocities, writes C. C. Lyon, of the Boston Record.

During my year in France, while I was with the American, French and Belgian armies, a number of instances of German mistreatment of helpless men, women and children came under my notice.

For a few days, several months ago, while an American infantry regiment to which I was attached was in reserve in a little French village a few miles behind the firing line, I was billeted in a house formerly occupied by a Catholic priest.

On the mantle of the bedroom where I slept was a photo of a fine-looking man of about 40, and leaning against the photo was a shattered crucifix.

An old woman who owned the house told me the story: "That is the picture of my brother. For some years he was priest of this parish. The German army came through here in 1914 in their advance on Paris, and they began shelling our village when they came within a few miles of it.

"In his priestly robes, my brother went out to protest to the German General against it.

Priest Murdered.
"My brother was ordered shot on the spot by the German General. They stood him up along the roadside and there he faced a German firing squad. "He held his crucifix before him and the bullet that ended his life struck it, glancing off and entering his heart. He was left lying beside the road by his murderers. The crucifix on the mantle is the one he held in his hand when he died."

In another French community is a little blind boy of between 3 and 4 who would grope his way about, pathetically trying to play with the other children. Here is his story: "During the German advance in 1914 a young wife was about to be delivered of a child, but there were no native physicians left in the village. So request was made that a German surgeon attend the mother. He did so and a baby boy was born.

The Surgeon Monster.
The grateful young mother and her relatives thanked the German surgeon, and in it he said:

"You thanked me to soon for attending you during the birth of your baby son. I am a German and Germany is at war with your country, so I took good care that your son should never become a soldier. He will never see!"

"The unspeakable cur had blinded the boy baby by putting something in its eyes!
Another day I visited a town in the area that was evacuated by Hindenburg a year ago last spring when he was forced to shorten his western line. It was a beautiful town of 10,000 people. The Germans systematically dynamited every building in the little city, except those in three blocks at one edge.

Took Women to Germany.
This story was told me by an old man I found wandering about: "Before they began their dynamiting," he said, "they picked out of the civilian population all the able-bodied women and girls and sent them to Germany, leaving only old people and little children. Then they put us in three blocks and told us they were going to blow up the town, but the three blocks we were in would be spared.

"From our places in the spared area we saw them destroy all the rest of the town. Then they retired. But when they had gone two or three miles outside the town, they turned their cannon on the three blocks, where the old folks and children were sheltered and more than a hundred of them were killed.

MAJOR ROOSEVELT WOUNDED.

OYSTER BAY, N.Y., To-day. Major Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., has been slightly wounded and taken to a hospital in Paris, according to a cable received to-night, by his father Col. Theodore Roosevelt, from his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt.

ALL THE MORE NECESSARY.

PARIS, To-day. News of the death of the former Russian Emperor is accepted as more than probable here, especially as it appears to be believed in Germany. The Temps says the ex-Emperor's death must produce unforeseen consequences in Russia, hence it is necessary more than ever that the Allies far seeing policy in Russia, the principles of which should certainly be in conformity to those formulated in Washington, should be established.

GERMANS STILL RETREATING.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE.—(By the A.P.)—From heights overlooking the Marne the correspondent observed the scene of the battle throughout yesterday. Until after nightfall it was evident that the Germans were contemplating a further retreat after their defeat at the hands of American, French, British and Italian divisions, which counter attacks and manoeuvres had brought about a precipitate retreat of the Crown Prince's chosen troops, and sent them fleeing to the north bank of the Marne. These troops didn't cross the Marne without hindrance as the French and American batteries fired continuously for 72 hours, aiming both at the banks of the Marne, and the pontoons erected by the enemy across the stream. For long periods enemy troops were prevented by this fire from utilizing the pontoons for crossing the river. In the meantime Allied troops, including French and Americans, continually harassed the enemy infantry units which had tried for several days to ascend the Marne Valley towards Epernay. The enemy was eventually forced back yesterday morning into the valley of the Marne, where he occupied, but not for long, a narrow strip of ground. Here the enemy fought desperately, but even when they reached the north side of the river, the Germans had no peace. Shells fell upon and around their columns as they tried to reach a shelter in the valley beyond. Their chances of obtaining supplies of ammunition and food were meagre, for the French and American guns were pouring projectiles over the crests into the ravines and along the roads leading to the river. Aviators reported German troops concentrating in the hollows evidently in preparation for a fresh move to the rear, in order to escape the danger of being cut off. The airman carried out their task under great difficulties. The wind was blowing a hurricane, yet they flew and did great work, reporting often to the Commanders, who could thus train the artillery on places where the Germans were massing.

BERLIN BRIEF.

BERLIN, To-day. Fresh fighting developed this evening between the Aisne and the Ourcq, according to a later German official statement. On the front, between the Aisne and the Marne, the statement adds, French attacks have been unsuccessful.

FRENCH ADVANCE UNCHECKED.

LONDON, To-day. The enemy is still fighting very hard bringing up fresh men and delivering local attacks, but doesn't seem to be able to hold the French advance along the line north of Chateau Thierry, according to advices from the front. German traffic at Fere on Tardenois is being vigorously and continually bombed by French airmen. The situation is considered as being distinctly promising. The Germans apparently have to do one or two things, clear the French off the railway west of the Fere-en-Tardenois, or bring back their troops from north of the Marne to flatten out the salient. Further north the French have reached the high road from Soissons to Chateau-Thierry near the village of Harbennes et-Taux. The high road and the railway from Soissons to Chateau-Thierry is well within range of the French guns, along its whole length, and is being subjected to artillery fire. The same applies to the junction of this road with the only possible alternative line, which comes from Fismes and joins it at Nabléville Notre Dame. The latter place is also within gun range. The supply situation of the enemy on the Marne is thus becoming more difficult each hour as the latest gain in this region brings the depth of the French advance over the 27 mile front between the two rivers, up to between six and eight and one half miles.

WAR REVIEW.

LONDON, To-day. (By the A. P.)—Victories for the Allied armies in France continue to multiply over the whole 60 miles front running from Soissons to Rheims. The Allied troops are fighting with a determination that brooks no denial of their efforts, and the Germans are steadily giving ground though with stubborn resistance. On some sectors further goodly sized indentations have been made in the German line, between Soissons and Chateau-Thierry by the American and French troops and almost all the gains made by the Germans in their recent drive south of the Marne, and towards the vicinity of Rheims, have been blotted out under the counter attacks of the American, French, British and the Italians. Chateau-Thierry which represents the point in the battle line where the Germans had driven their wedge nearest Paris, has been recaptured by the French troops and almost simultaneously the village of Bréville, two miles east, and the heights to the north of the village, fell into the hands. Acting in harmony with the movement on Chateau-Thierry, American and French troops northwest of the city struck the Germans another blow, broke through the German lines and drove through at some points to a depth of more than three miles. Large number of prisoners were taken and the machine guns of the Allied troops literally moved down the enemy, who endeavoured to stay their progress. Allied troops are now harassing the enemy southwest of Rheims, and they have been forced to retire. In the Courton Wood, the Ardre Valley and near St. Euphrasie, notwithstanding their desperate resistance. The number of British operating in this region is not known. The first announcement that they were in action was made Saturday, and doubtless they represent a part of the great reserves that everywhere are being brought up along the battle line, in an endeavour to make secure the victories already won, and enlarge them. With the capture of Chateau-Thierry, and the fast progress of the French and Americans east from the Northern sectors, the plight of the Germans in the southwest portion of Soissons-Rheims salient, becomes increasingly hazardous, and it is not improbable that when stock in finally taken, large numbers of prisoners and quantities of guns and war stores will be found to have been taken by Allied troops. Aviators continue to lend assistance to the troops of General Foch, scouting back areas and harassing the retreating Germans with their machine guns. Notable work has been done by American Indians for General Pershing's men, the aborigines taking a prominent part in characteristic western fashion in scouting in the Marne region. It has definitely been established that an enemy submarine is again operating in American waters. An undersea boat Sunday off Cape Cod, Mass., destroyed four barges and a tug and dropped four shells on the mainland. In none of the other theatres except the Soissons-Rheims salient, is there any fighting of great moment in progress. The British in Northern France and Flanders are continuing their daily patrol encounters and taking prisoners while the guns of both Germans and the British are keeping up their reciprocal bombardments.

PRISONERS AND GUNS.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Prisoners captured by the American troops in the offensive on the Aisne—Marne front up to an early hour

Saturday, tallied by actual count 17,000. General Pershing reported in his communique yesterday, received to-night by the war department, the capture of 560 guns also. Despite counter attacks and rear guard actions of a desperate nature, the Americans advanced early Saturday, says the statement and the towns of Courmelles, Reset Stalbin and Maubry had been entered by the American troops before one a.m. Saturday.

SUCCESS IN ALBANIA.

ROME, To-day. Franco-Italian troops again have taken up their advance in Albania, Saturday, says the Italian War Office to-day, and Isoze on the crest of Malagio Siles, in the bend of the Dovel river, south of Tlesha, was captured. Up to July 19th, 2157 prisoners and 26 guns were taken.

"LITTLE WILLIE" IN RETREAT.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE MARNE FRONT.—The armies of the Crown Prince were retiring to-night, while the Allied forces of General Foch harassed their rear, and continued their smashing drive along the German right flank. It is expected that if the enemy succeed in retreating themselves it will be only at the cost of large numbers of men, material and supplies.

FRENCH PREMIER AT FRONT.

PARIS, To-day. Premier Clemenceau returned to Paris last night from the front where he spent all last night and most of today with the fighting men.

A MENACE TO THE NATION.

LONDON, To-day. The Ministry of Munitions, it was announced last night, had received word that at a mass meeting of munition workers at Birmingham yesterday it was resolved to go on strike Wednesday night, unless the embargo on skilled labor is withdrawn. The statement says the ministry is in close touch with the union leaders, both directly and through the ministry of labor. At Coventry, the local committee proposed to an official of the ministry, who is holding conferences there, to recommend a suspension of the strike notices, if the ministry would consent to negotiate a restriction scheme in districts, and recommend a national conference to consider the question of the utilization of skilled labor. The ministry's reply said it was not opposed to the discussion and administration of the plan, although the Government's "considered policy in the matter of the embargo scheme cannot be a matter for discussion." It also said it would be prepared to enter into a discussion, if representations were made by both the employers and the unions, regarding the necessity for a further conference, on the better utilization of skilled labor apart from the embargo. The ministry added, "The ministry cannot carry on the supply of munitions to the troops without the embargo, in cases where its needs has been shown and without reasonable power to distribute skilled labor, according to vital war needs." The ministry also issued an appeal last night to the workmen, on patriotic grounds, to remain at work and lend no aid to a movement which may have consequences of the gravest kind. The appeal said that the threatened stoppage of work was not an ordinary labor dispute, but an attempt to overthrow the policy of the State at a time of national danger.

HUNS PUSHED BACK.

WITH THE FRENCH IN FRANCE To-day. (By the Associated Press.)—On the main battlefield, between the Aisne and the Marne, the German again have been driven back a considerable distance. They have been pushed back over the Soissons-Chateau-Thierry road and at several points north of the Ourcq.

PLUNDER FOR BOLSHEVIKS.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. The entire property of the former Emperor of Russia and his wife, as well as all other members of the Imperial House, has been forfeited to the Russian Republic, according to a Moscow message received here. This will include deposits in foreign banks to the credit of the members of the Imperial family. A decree to this effect was issued by the Bolshevik Government on July 17th.

THE DUTCH IMPRESSED.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. The Allied victory has created a deep impression throughout Holland. The Telegraaf says that anything is possible, and that the capture of four hundred guns will fill the Germans with consternation. The Handelsblad says the double Franco-American success revives courage and rejoices the Americans whose young army has proved that it is capable of vigorously tackling the Germans.

COUNTER ATTACKS BROKEN.

PARIS (Bulletin) To-day. Strong counter attacks delivered last night by the Germans on the front between the Ourcq and the Marne, were broken by the Allies, the war office announced to-day. The Allied positions have been maintained.

ALLIES DOMINATE RAILWAYS.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE MARNE FRONT, Sunday night. (By the Associated Press.)—South of Soissons, American troops to-day advanced two kilometers, about one and a quarter miles. The Allied artillery has found the range of the Soissons-Chateau-Thierry road, while American troops are astride the Soissons-Villers Cotterets Railway. As a result there is only one railway in the hands of the Germans, south of a line drawn from Soissons to Rheims and northeast of Belleau. Northwest of Chateau-Thierry, the Americans, early Sunday, have made an advance of five kilometers. Some of the most terrific fighting since the offensive began occurred between Givney and Vaux, the Germans using artillery and machine guns. The Allied troops occupied Hill 204, commanding Chateau-Thierry, at daylight Sunday, and shortly afterwards pressed through the city itself.

Latest.

BRITISH GAIN GROUND.

LONDON (Bulletin) To-day. Further ground has been gained by the British in the Hebuterne region, on the front between Albert and Arras, the war office announced to-day. The British, likewise, in conjunction with the French, carried out a successful enterprise to the south of Villers-Bretonneux, east of Amiens, in which prisoners were taken. The German trenches were entered during the night by British raiding parties at several points on the front, including Neuville-Vitasse, and north of Bailleul and prisoners were taken.

ENEMY ARTILLERY BUST.

PARIS (Bulletin) To-day. The enemy counter blows are delivered in the region of Cirselles, seven miles northwest of Chateau-Thierry, and Beau St. Germain, four miles north of Chateau-Thierry. North of the Ourcq, and between the Marne and Rheims, the enemy's reaction was limited to artillery fire, which was particularly notable in the region of the woods Courton and Rol. The text of the statement follows: During the night the Germans limited their reaction to artillery bombardments, north of the Ourcq, and between the Marne and Rheims, notably in the region of the Courton and the Rol Woods. Between the Ourcq and the Marne we have broken strong counter attacks of the Germans. In the region from Grisolles to Beau St. Germain we have maintained our positions throughout the line.

SPAIN AND THE ALLIES.
A report has reached me from Madrid, Spain, to the effect that a proposal is under discussion for a Mission, thoroughly representative of all parties in the Cortes, to visit France and England in the course of the summer. The promoters of the idea, which is said to have the approval of the Spanish Government, are convinced that such a visit would have beneficial results. OUR LEADER IN ITALY.
The Earl of Cavan, who has been in command of the British force in Italy since Sir Herbert Plumer returned to the Western front, has had excellent news to send of the Austrian offensive, so far as it concerns our men on the Asiago plateau. Lord Cavan went to Italy last November as one of Plumer's leaders in the field after a splendid record in France and Flanders. His fellow corps leader was Sir Richard Haking, who, I believe, is still in Italy. Both Cavan and Haking did well on the Asiatic in the operations of 1914—the peer in charge of the Guards Brigade (to which he succeeded when General Scott Kerr was wounded at Villers Cotterets), and Haking at the head of the 5th Brigade, both being units of the First Corps of Sir Douglas Haig. They have done well continuously since then.

BRITISH WOUNDED IN FRENCH HOSPITALS.
A French non-commissioned officer, writing to a friend here from somewhere behind the French front during the latter stages of the enemy offensive south of the Aisne, gives the following particulars of a visit to the British wounded in a French hospital: "Never since the beginning of the war," he says, "have I seen such a complete and fraternal understanding as is now reigning between the British and the French in the face of the common danger. One feels, indeed, that now there is but one army, in which the 'Tommys' and 'Pollis' fight side by side. Yesterday I called at a large military hospital where a number of British stretcher cases which could not very well be moved very far south had just arrived. I offered my services to the authorities, as they had no interpreter, to help in filling up the hospital forms for the British wounded. Throughout the afternoon I went from bed to bed through the wards, in an atmosphere redolent of phenol and chloroform, asking each man in turn for the necessary information. How pleased the good fellows were to see at last someone who could understand and speak their language! As soon as I addressed them delighted smiles illumined their wan faces. They lay side by side with the French wounded, awaiting their turn to have their dressings renewed or an operation performed. The surgeons and nurses, I was told, had worked without cessation for three days and nights, for we had mostly had cases in this hospital, and it was important for almost all to operate without delay. A plucky little nurse told me that she had not left the operating-room since the arrival of the first hospital train."

TEA RATIONING.
Two ounces of tea per head each week is quite a manageable ration, and will cause no hardship except, perhaps, to those who drink tea inordinately and like it as strong and black as people in Ireland, in Canada, and in Australia. Oddly enough, Scotland has for many weeks been rationed on tea and the allowance there has been one-and-a-half ounce a week. It is only within the last generation or two that the most tea-consuming have become heavy consumers of tea. The multiplicity of teasops is a feature of social life since the days of Dickens. Happily the ration does not come into force until the hay harvest is likely to be brought in. Cold weak tea is the best substitute for this beer in the hayfield. In the South of England there is an insufficiency of beer, and the public in the rural parts outside London, where they are already cutting the hay, are loud in their complaints of its scarcity.

NEW TEN SHILLING NOTES.
The present £1 ($5) Treasury note is the third design issued since the introduction in 1914 of paper money, the existing ten shillings ($2.50) note is the second; but a third design is about to be put into currency by the Treasury. Each issue has been an artistic improvement on its predecessor, and the new ten shilling note is no exception. It is designed much on the same lines as the £1 note. The general color scheme is green, distinguished from the bronze effect of the higher valued note, and instead of St. George and the Dragon is the conventional figure symbolising Britannia. On the reverse side are the Houses of Parliament. Like the present note, the new issue is smaller than the £1 note, which has proved to be virtually forge-proof. No single case of attempted counterfeiting has come before the authorities. The same immunity from fraud is anticipated in the case of the new notes—design, method of printing, paper and watermark all contributing towards the result.

SALE OF DRUGS TO SOLDIERS.
For the last two years chemists have been forbidden to sell to sailors and soldiers certain drugs, as, for instance, powerful narcotics like cocaine and morphine, and less potent hypnotics like sulphonal and barbitone. The last named, by the way, used to be commonly known under the German-owned title of veronal. In several respects the Order forbidding such transaction was either obscurely worded or misread by many chemists, for it not infrequently happened that medical practitioners in khaki were refused supplies. In order to remove any embargo that may have appeared to exist on the sale of these drugs to medical practitioners, a further Order in Council has been made which makes it clear that pharmacists may sell these drugs to doctors, dentists and veterinary surgeons. On the other hand, the new Order strengthens the restrictions as to the sale of the drugs in question to other members of His Majesty's Forces; and henceforth a sailor or soldier may only be supplied with them if he has a duly signed prescription specifying the total amount of the drug to be supplied. Moreover, in order to prevent the abuse of the prescription the chemist is ordered not to hand it back to the customer, but to keep it in the premises where it is dispensed.

THE KING'S WINES.
In March, 1915, the King announced his intention to discontinue wines and spirits in the Royal household until the end of the war, and his example was followed by Lord Kitchener and other eminent people. The King relaxed his rule for a time after his accident in France, but since then I believe he has only taken a glass of wine on two formal occasions, when he was drinking to the health of eminent foreign leaders. The prohibition to the officers of the King's household does not apply to them personally, but only when in waiting. The result of the King's decision must, of course, have meant a great saving in wines, but His Majesty's gift of the best of the Royal cellar to the Red Cross Fund probably represents more than the saving. Some quite remarkable prices have been realised by the sale of these and other donated wines at the Red Cross wine sale this week. As much as £4.10s. ($22.50) a bottle was paid for 1820 port, the said port having been given to Queen Victoria by the King of Portugal. For three dozen bottles of Curacoa $1.250 was realised, whilst $500 for a dozen bottles of Mr. Astor's brandy and $250 a bottle for the King's 1820 rum were other prices obtained.

Mr. Briton Meets Mr. Hun
At The Hague, Holland.
The Hague, where the prisoner-of-war conference is being held, has been for more than two hundred years the real capital of Holland. Once called "the finest village in Europe," it is in reality more in the nature of a garden city, set round a central artificial lake called The Vijver. Grouped about this beautiful sheet of water, embowered in stately trees, are most of the principal public buildings, including the famous picture gallery, the city's most precious possession, wherein are enshrined some of the finest examples of the works of the world-famous old masters. Here also are the Royal palace, the law courts, the Parliament houses, the ancient and picturesque town hall, and Mr. Carnegie's stately "palace of peace," opened with a great flourish of trumpets in August, 1913, exactly one year before the outbreak of the most stupendous war in the world's history. More international conferences have been held at The Hague and more treaties and alliances arranged there than in any other city in Europe, or out of it. Yet it is not a particularly big place, as capital cities go, the population, according to the last census, being only about 285,000 or somewhat less than that of Bradford. What mostly strikes new-comers to The Hague is its extreme cleanliness. It looks as if it had just been taken fresh from a gigantic packing-case and put together on the spot an hour previously.

This spotless purity is largely due, no doubt, to the fact that no soft coal is burned anywhere within the city confines; its place being taken by anthracite, burned in closed stoves, and by charcoal.

Germany Has to Use Low Grade Minerals.

The extent to which Germany has been forced by war conditions to use low grade raw materials or minerals as a source of important metals, etc., is revealed by the leading German steel trade paper. This necessity has been brought about by the stoppage of imports or the advance in prices in Germany, due to the war. In several cases sufficient success has been obtained by new methods to justify the working of low-grade ores even in normal times. Thus, copper schists were hardly utilized when they contained only 2.5 per cent copper. Now ores of one per cent and even 0.7 per cent find utilization. Even poor pyrites and phosphatic ores are no longer rejected. The vanadium for steel is found in sufficient bulk in slags which do not contain more than 0.7 per cent vanadium; the wolframite of old waste heaps is a raw material for tungsten; chrome ores of 24 per cent is welcome—half the percentage formerly deemed worth mining—and sources of nickel are worked if they contain 1.5 per cent of nickel. Bauxite of 40 per cent aluminium is considered sufficiently rich. It is also stated that, after all, the aluminium can be got out of clay. There is no change as to arsenic and antimony. Sulphur, is gained from gypsum and anhydrite, and phosphates of 20 per cent are converted into fertilizer.—Scientific American.

Hints for Housewives.

When making starch, add a few shavings from a candle; it will give a gloss to the material when it is ironed. Pour boiling water to which a little borax has been added through any part of a tablecloth that has been stained with tea. Rusty irons can be made smooth by rubbing them when hot upon a piece of beeswax tied in a cloth, and then upon a cloth sprinkled with salt. The following is a sure test for gas leakages: Make a paste of soap and water, and apply it to the joints of the gas-pipe. If there is a crack, escaping gas bubbles will appear in a very short time. To clean a copper kettle, make a strong solution of water, soap, and soda, and let the kettle stand in it for a time. Then mix some fine coal ash with a little paraffin to form a paste, and rub it well on to the kettle. Afterwards polish with dry, powdered brickdust.
