CHAPTER XLVI.
CLOSING TIME AT THE DOCKS.

"Thank you, sir; don't mind if I do," responded the old man and, with a kindly grunt, sat down in the place that the young man had cleared for him.

The youth, after turning the cigars over with a critical air, shut the case, and, murmuring "Well, I don't think I will; it will spoil my tea," replaced it in his pocket.

"Now, I suppose you could tell how many ships come in here during the month to a dozen or two, eh?" he asked, having handed the old man a light and settled himself into a comfortable attitude, with his eyes upon the masts as before.

"Within a dozen?" repeated the old boy. "Bliss you, if I was no nigger nor that the commissioners 'ud have something to say to me I mightn't care to hear. Within a dozen! Why, bless you, I could tell to a single one!"

"Dear me!" replied the youth, looking round with astonished admiration. "Is it possible? To a single one! And perhaps you know, too, where they come from?"

"Just so!" replied the old man. "Of course—where they come from, every one of 'em. Look there: that un there"—pointing to the large one straight before them—"comes from East Indy. She come in last week; sugar, rice, and tea. That there, the black un, with the flag up, is a Chinaman. You can smell what she brought—tea, tea, tea—nothing but tea. That there were

"And he goes over the ships and takes accounts of the crews, does he?" said the youth, dreamily, adding, with a sigh: "Ah, dear me; now I dare say, Mr.—"

"Tovey," put in the old clerk, as the young gentleman paused.

"Mr. Tovey, you wonder why I like to sit here watching the vessels and taking such an interest in the shipping affairs, eh?"

"Well," replied the old man, puffing rather apologetically, "I must confess I were surprised to see a young gent a-comin' in and settin' himself down among the ladin' just as we was a-clostin'."

"Just so—just so!" responded the young gentleman, assentingly; "quite natural and proper. Well, Mr. Tovey, do you know I always felt interested in shipping, and whenever I'm near a vessel I'm bound to come and look after her. If it's down at the sea-side I'll sit for hours watching the collars and the brig's bearing to; and if I'm by the docks—as I was this afternoon—I can't resist the temptation to drop in and have a look at the shipping."

"And very natural, too," said the old clerk, with some pride. "I mean to say there ain't a prettier sight 'n a good Colonial or East Indianman going."

"Yes, you are right," sighed the young gentleman. "But it is not for any great love of them I am tempted to watch them; it's because I once saw a brother—a dearly beloved brother—go across the sea in one."

"Ahem—yes, very painful!" and the old man shook his head; he had witnessed hundreds of such partings as the one the young man was now looking mournful about. "And where might he have been bound for now?" he asked interestedly in his turn.

"The Cape—Port Natal," replied the young gentleman. "He was a fine fellow, sir; a splendid fellow—oh, ever so much finer and bigger than me!" added the young gentleman, with a deep blush, as the old clerk instinctively turned a glance at his form and face.

"And—and was he lost?" asked the old clerk.

"No—not drowned, that is to say," replied the youth; "he was lost, though, in a sense. He went over to one of the places where the cattle come from that you were speaking of, then we lost sight of him."

"Perhaps he came back," suggested the old man; "there's many of them takes the home voyage and gets here safe enough—here to the docks—then gets led away. Perhaps he was one of 'em."

The youth turned pale and, after a moment, said:

"No, no I think not; I don't think he ever came back; indeed, I always made up my mind that he was dead; but lately I dreamed that he was alive. Do you believe in dreams?"

"I do, indeed, sir," replied the old man, devoutly.

"Well, then; I have dreamed three times that he will come back, and I am beginning to believe that he will."

"Dear me—dear me! How singular, now! Hello, there goes the hour!"

"I must be going," said the youth, jumping up with a sigh, as the old man got up and began ringing a bell. "I'm sorry that it's closing time, for I was going to ask you one or two more questions, and—"

"Well, perhaps you will wait until I have locked up," said Mr. Tovey. "I can let you out through the side door."

"Oh, thank you; I'm much obliged!" said the youth.

"Then perhaps you'll walk into the cottage, sir, and wait awhile till I've sent these men out and locked up."

The youth, thanking him, accepted the invitation, and going in the direction of his pointed finger, entered the cottage sitting-room—a neat, tidy little place—to which an old lady, very much after Mr. Tovey's pattern, welcomed him, placing a chair, carefully dusted, for him near the door.

The young gentleman, after a few remarks about the weather, sat silently awaiting Mr. Tovey's entrance, and during those few moments seemed very thoughtful and absorbed, his face working painfully and his fine, even teeth biting his fresh, well-cut lips.

Presently Mr. Tovey came in sight with a little sharp-faced-looking man at his side.

Mr. Tovey introduced him as Joe Wiley, and the young gentleman, after scanning the new-comer's face with a sharp and searching glance, continued the conversation, addressing himself to Mr. Wiley, to whom the old clerk had told what had already passed.

"Ahem! Well, I don't know as I can help you," said the sharp-looking man. "How long ago did you say he sailed?"

"Five years."

"Five years! Long while, you see. They moves about so much in five years. Yes, I sees 'em all when they come in, and—suppose you give me a description of him?"

Mr. Wiley took out a piece of pencil and a dirty-looking pocket-book. Mr. Tovey smoking his cigar and watching his astute companion with admiring and complacent eyes.

The young gentleman hesitated, and the flush that had visited his pale face spread over it again; but, as if with an effort, he commenced a description which the examining clerk jotted down, murmuring at intervals:

"Dark-brown eyes; slightly tanned complexion; short hair, curly, brown; height, six feet; broad-shouldered; fine figure; used to riding upright. Rather a handsome man, I should say, sir," he concluded.

"Yes, he is," faltered the youth. "And now, as you have been so kind as to promise to help me, it is only right that I should trust you with a little confidence. You must know," he continued, speaking in a lowered voice to Mr. Wiley, and quite ignoring the old clerk now—"you must know that a little while ago a relation of my brother's died and left him a little money—some few hundreds. Now, there are one or two who are anxious to keep that from him, you know—you understand?"

Mr. Wiley nodded; he could easily understand any one trying to keep money, especially if they had a lame sister and an aged father to support.

"Well, I'm afraid if they know he's returning they'll seek him out and under some pretext or other get him out of the way."

Mr. Wiley started, and the young gentleman hastened to allay his fears. "No, no, not to do him harm, but prevail upon him to go back to the Cape by the next ship and not see me nor any of us—you understand?"

"Yes," and Mr. Wiley nodded. "I see, I think; and you want me to give him a word—"

"Oh, no!" interrupted the young gentleman, with dismay; "that would be ruinous; he's so high-spirited that he'd start off somewhere directly. No, that will never do."

"And he goes over the ships and takes accounts of the crews, does he?" said the youth, dreamily, adding, with a sigh: "Ah, dear me; now I dare say, Mr.—"

"Tovey," put in the old clerk, as the young gentleman paused.

"Mr. Tovey, you wonder why I like to sit here watching the vessels and taking such an interest in the shipping affairs, eh?"

A SALE

That will not disappoint.

The reason of this Sale is the turning of a lot of this season's goods of passing fashion and some of which we have an overstock into Hard Cash.

HARD CASH. THIS IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY. YOU WANT GOODS AT LOW PRICES WE WANT

We are not going to give you a line of talk that as philanthropists we are out merely to reduce the height of the H. C. L. and going to cut prices in halves; we figure you are too intelligent to believe stuff like that, or would think we had certainly been jewing you on previous prices. First we start with

LADIES' & CHILDREN'S STRAW HATS.

Off these we are taking
25 Per Cent. Discount.

Our prices for Hats are notoriously low, and with this discount and the styles considered we know greatly increased buying will make a busy department bustier.

We next consider

LADIES' BLOUSES.

We find a very classy lot of Ladies' Canadian made White Voile Blouses have not moved fast enough. They range in price from $5.50 to $7.50. Though the market was high and we did not like buying at these prices, we thought style and cut worth consideration. Now we think you will find them most tempting by our allowance of

We have also picked up a lot of

LADIES' GEORGETTE CREPE BLOUSES

in beautiful designs and shades, and have marked them down from $17.50 to $12.50 each. This represents less than cost price.

LADIES' SILK DRESSES.

We have some priced very reasonably at $30.00, $33.00 and $35.00 each, but we are making a reduction in these prices of 25 Per Cent.

We do this as we are informed that with some of them the skirts are a bit tight.

LADIES' WHITE COSTUME SKIRTS.

Canadian styles, English materials. Sale Prices only $3.00, $4.00, $4.50 and $5.00.

This summer is certainly a fine one, so you had better secure a couple of these beautiful Washable Skirts and get in accord with it.

LADIES' ENVELOPE CHEMISES (or LADIES).

We have quite a stock of these in White and Pink Lawns and Imitation Silks. They are big sellers in America but have not yet started to sell so largely here. We think taking 25 Per Cent. off may help.

In order to make things more interesting we are making

A Reduction of Ten Per Cent. on Some Staple Lines of Ladies' Ready-to-wear.

This includes all our large and cheaply priced stocks of Ladies' Cambric and Lawn Underskirts, Knickers, Camisoles and Nightdresses.

Ladies' Costumes and Costume Skirts.
Ladies' Raglans, Shower Coats and Navy Spring Coats
Ladies' Cotton, Poplin and Serge, etc., Dresses.
Ladies' Kimonos, Wrappers and Cotton House Dresses.
Ladies' Blouses of all kinds—not previously mentioned.
Ladies' Silk and Wool Sweater Coats.

LADIES' COTTON and LISLE SUMMER GLOVES.

We are in a position to offer these at prices no higher than those of 1918-1919. We quote Ladies' White and Grey Gloves, with dome fasteners, at price only 40c. pair.

LADIES' WHITE and BLACK COTTON HOSE, only 29c. pair.

You will also find we have some other extra good values in Ladies' White and Black Cotton and Lisle Hose; while they last.

We Know Our Prices on Goods Advertised Are the Lowest You Can Procure, as they are below the cost of doing business, but our desire to change goods into cash.

IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY.

N.B.—Sale Discounts are for Cash Purchases only.

Wedding Bells.

MITCHELL-BARTLETT.
Wesley Parsonage was the scene of a quiet, but very pretty wedding yesterday afternoon when Miss Florence M. Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Mitchell was united in holy matrimony to Mr. Heber B. Bartlett, at 3 o'clock the bride, who was beautifully gowned in blue silk and georgette crepe with hat to match and carrying a bouquet of white carnations and maidenhair fern, entered, leaning on the arm of her father. She was attended by Miss Eleanor I. Bartlett, sister of the groom, who was attired in white velveteen with hat to match. The groom was supported by Mr. Bertram R. Taylor. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. B. Bugden, B. A., Pastor of Wesley Church, immediately following the ceremony the bride and groom called upon the groom's mother, who was unable to attend owing to illness, after which accompanied by the guests, they motored to Mrs. Gordon Lester's, Mount Pearl, where the reception was held and the usual toasts honoured. The groom's present to the bride was a silver service, to the bridesmaid, a cameo ring and to the best man, a gold tie pin. The presents received were numerous and costly, among which may be mentioned a cabinet of silver cutlery and salad bowl, from the groom's fellow-workers at The Direct Agencies, Ltd., also a substantial cheque from the firm. The happy couple left by the evening train for Bay Roberts where the honeymoon will be spent, amidst showers of confetti and good wishes from those present, in which the Telegram joins.

Funeral of Rev. Robertson.

A large number of his former friends attended the funeral services of Rev. Dr. Andrew Robertson, formerly of St. James' Square Presbyterian Church, which were held at the residence of Mrs. J. Mercer Adams, 53 Avenue Road, on July 5th, interment being at Mount Pleasant Cemetery. Rev. A. Logan Geggie conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Dr. John Nell and Rev. D. N. Morden, while members of the Toronto Presbyterian attended in a body. The pallbearers were W. D. McIntosh, A. T. Reid, James Watt, Wallace Anderson, W. E. Long, R. Cromarty, James Robertson, and Angus Sinclair. Among the many wreaths of floral tributes were wreaths or sprays from Dr. Robertson's church and the Sunday School at Nashville, Tenn., St. James' Square Church and Parkdale Presbyterian Church.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

WHY EXPERIMENT?

Food scientists claim that the leavener is largely responsible for the flavor, texture and wholesomeness of your home baking. That on no other one ingredient does so much depend. It is important, therefore, to use a baking powder that you know possesses the necessary leavening qualities.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER

and is the only strictly high class baking powder in Canada selling at a moderate price. Its reputation is built on purity and highest quality.

The only well known medium priced baking powder made in Canada that does not contain alum and that has all its ingredients plainly stated on the label.

Made in Canada

Tipsy Plants.

Sir Jagadis Chandra Bose, an Indian scientist, has invented a wonderful microscope with which one can actually see a plant growing! The instrument is composed of a single magnetic lever, which, by its movements, rotates a delicately poised needle actuating a small mirror. This causes a spot of light to be reflected upon a screen, giving a magnification of from 1,000,000 to 100,000,000 times.

Particularly interesting is a record showing the erratic effects in the growth of a plant caused by alcohol. Sir Jagadis states that there is nothing in the animal world that has not been forestalled by the plant. "There is a pulsation in certain plant-tissues which with animals is the heart-beat," he declares. "Identical effects are caused by stimulants and poisons in animals and vegetables." With reference to the difficulty in recording these "incessant throbbings" in the apparently perfectly still plant, he states that the sluggish movement of a snail is about 6,000 times faster than the movement of growth in a plant, the average rate of which is one-millionth part of an inch per second. The growth of a plant can, with the use of this microscope, be made subservient to the will of the grower. By experimenting in this direction in regard to agriculture discoveries of vast importance are likely to be made. Sir Jagadis claims that there is no need, if his microscope is used, to wait a whole season as at present to witness the result of experiments.

Ten years without a corn

Countless people boast that, record now.

Years ago they started using Blue-jay. Never since has a corn pained twice. And never has a corn stayed a week.

You can quickly prove that corns are needless. Millions have already done it. Think what it means.

No more paring, no more pain, no more unsightly pads. Dainty shoes without unhappy hours.

Apply a touch of liquid Blue-jay or a Blue-jay plaster.

The corn pain will end. And soon the whole corn will loosen and come out.

The action is gentle but sure. Blue-jay is the scientific method, created by this world-famed laboratory.

It is not like the methods which are harsh and crude.

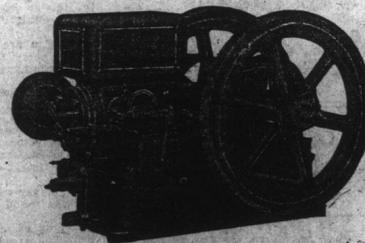

Try Blue-jay on one corn. Buy it tonight from your druggist. Live the rest of your life without corns.

NEXT WEEK'S GAMES.

TUESDAY EVENING:—Mt. Cashel preliminaries of two 5-inning games, C.E.I. vs. Wanderers, and Red Lions vs. Cubs. Both these clashes are going to be most exciting and will be well worth attending.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON:—The regular League fixture will be played as part of the program of the Garden Party in aid of the Methodist College Ayre Athletic Field, when the Cubs and Wanderers will finalize the first round. The charge for the rental of the field is $100.00, which ordinarily would go to the Baseball League's Funds, but the executive are passing this amount over to the Trustees of the Methodist Orphanage Home as a donation from the baseballers.

THURSDAY EVENING:—The third Mount Cashel preliminary will be played when the B.S. will try conclusions with either the winners of Tuesday evening.

As all the games next week will be for the Mt. Cashel and Methodist Orphanages, it is hoped the fans will give the tussles the same generous support that they have on similar occasions in the past.

The following week the Church of England Garden Party preliminaries will be played, the receipts being devoted to augmenting the garden party funds. It will run on the same lines as the Mt. Cashel preliminaries. A silver cup is being presented, and in addition the Sports' Committee are presenting a set of medals to the winners.

LAST NIGHT'S GAME.
Last night's game was a washout so far as the C.E.I. aggregation was concerned, for they hit the dust at the hands of the veteran Lions by a score of 24 to 7.

It was not until the seventh that the Institute boys found Callahan, and then they got in some work.

One thing was clearly demonstrated and that is that the Lions are just as capable of blowing up as any of the others. Max Churchill started it by a bonehead steal of second with the sacks soused, but it was most effective, for the Lions threw the ball here, there and everywhere in an effort to choke off the moving runners.

The Lions had 12 earned runs, while the 7 the C.E.I. got were through errors.

7 of Harvey's crew got the first on errors, and 9 of the Lions.

After refusing to play with the B. I. S., and being passed up by the Cubs, Doc Power blossomed forth last night, and was a tower of strength to the Lion infield. We shall have more to say on this to-morrow.

Callahan had 9 strikeouts, and Churchill and Payne 3 each.

Only one double play was recorded.

Wedding Bells.

CHRISTIAN—REES.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Thomas's Church Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Muriel Christian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. L. Christian, was united in matrimony to Mr. Leo W. Rees. At 3.30 the bride, beautifully attired in white satin and Georgette crepe with pearl and crystal trimming, wearing a bridal veil and carrying a bouquet of carnations and maidenhair fern, entered the church leaning on the arm of her father, while the wedding march was played by the organist. Mr. H. W. Stirling. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Doris Christian, who wore a dress of saxe blue silk crepe de chene with old gold trimming and black picture hat, and two dainty little flower girls, Misses Dorothy Rees and Ruth Clarke, who were dressed in white silk and carried baskets of pretty flowers. The groom was ably supported by his brother Mr. Brian Rees. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. Clayton, during which "The Voice that Breathed o'er Eden" was sung in the presence of about forty guests and quite a number of friends of the contracting parties. Following the ceremony the wedding party drove to Smithville where a brief reception was held and tea served, during which the usual toasts were duly honored, after which a few pleasant hours were spent in dancing. The groom's present to the bride was a gold wrist watch, to the bridesmaid pearl earrings, to the flower girls gold signet rings and to the best man gold tie pin. Mr. and Mrs. Rees left at 8 o'clock in Hon. W. F. Cosker's (uncle of the bride) motor car for Kelligrews where the honeymoon will be spent, taking with them the hearty good wishes of their many friends. Mrs. Rees was the recipient of many beautiful presents, including several cheques.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHY FARMERS AND THEIR SONS DON'T GET ALONG.

Here's a funny question from a letter friend. She wants me to say why farmers and their sons don't get along well together. I didn't know that this was true, but if it is, I think I can make a fairly good guess at the reason! Because it is hard for people to have a common home life and at the same time be in business together. It is notorious that two adult women find it hard to run the business of a home together, and apparently two adult men find it hard to run their business of a farm together.

nonsense. I really love him or her in my heart and I will not let myself get to quarrelling just because my nerves are irritated." But it is exceedingly hard to conquer nerves by will. The better way is, if possible, to relieve the chafing. Try in some way to see a little less of the person. Take a vacation from each other. If you can't either of you actually go away, take a vacation of a few evenings' separation. Let him go his way and you go yours. Ease your mental position and change the points of contact, as it were and the chafing may subside.

Mothers and Daughters, Too.

I seem to have strayed away from the farmers into a discussion of how to be happy though married. But I do not mean these suggestions only for married folks, but for all who are obliged by circumstances to see a great deal of some one house-mate, be it farmers and their sons, mothers and daughters, sisters, husbands and wives—in short, anyone who finds some house-mate is getting on his or her nerves. And now perhaps some farmer's wife will tell me whether it is true that farmers and their sons don't get on well together, and why she thinks it is so.

Auction of Wives.

The astonishing statement made by a solicitor in the Courts recently, to the effect that in some districts of Wales miners have been known to sell their wives, is a reminder that the practice is the survival of an old custom. Less than a century ago wives were offered by auction to the highest bidder in public places in different parts of the country.

Prices ranged upwards from 1s. Twenty shillings appears to have been considered a good price. There was the case of a Midland farmer who parted with his wife for 20s. and a dog.

Sold in Public.

"Gentlemen," he proclaimed at the auction sale, "it is her wish as well as mine to part for ever. She has been to me a serpent. I took her for my comfort and the good of my home, but she became my tormentor." Having dilated on her faults, he

THE DEEP.

The ocean beats the headland steep before my humble dwelling, and I sit there and view the deep, and hear the seabirds yelling. There are a thousand wondrous tales in every wave that's rolling, of coral isles and frantick gales and temple bells a-tolling. But who will tell a tale to me, so I may write the story? For I have never been to sea and haven't known its gory. And there are seamen all around, who've been to every harbor; I meet them by the village pound, and when I seek the barber, they've been on ships in every clime, they've fought through tempests thrilling, and they could tell a yarn sublime if only they were willing. In vain I tempt these ancient men to talk of seas and sailors, though they will spout again, again, of tinkers and of tailors. They'll drool away on topics cheap until my soul grows limper, but of the wonders of the deep I cannot draw a whimper. Oh, none will tell of heathen chiefs who rule o'er bloodstained acres, and I can't hear of distant reefs, or blue lagoons or breakers. The mariners of many ships their secrets well are guarding, but they will open wide their lips to talk of Warren Harding.

60 Years Old Today

Feels as young as ever. PEOPLE who are able to talk like this cannot possibly have impure blood—they just feel fit—no headaches, dyspepsia or bilious disorders. These diseases can be cured by Dr. Wilson's Herbine Bitters. A true blood purifier containing the active principles of Dandelion, Mandarin, Burdock and other medicinal herbs. Sold at your store in a bottle. Family size, five times as large 21.00.

Fashions and Fads.

The cape effect is still the principal of the evening wrap. Funnel-shaped and shawl collars are shown on suit coats. Dressy dinner gowns have long, transparent kimono sleeves. Great emphasis is given to velvets and satins of all kinds. Suit skirts are usually full at the sides and trimmed in front. Fur garments have ample lines and are generally cape style.

Just Folks by Edgar A. Guest

THE SUNSHINE OF TO-DAY.

Let me go singing down the way Claiming the sunshine of to-day. The future skies that are to be, It may not be my lot to see, But they, when all is said and done, Will know the same old kindly sun. If now the sun is overhead And round my feet are roses red, I can rejoice and claim that I know all the splendor of the sky. No lovelier beauty shall there be On earth through all eternity. To-morrow's sun for which men pray, Shall be the sun which shines to-day, And men a thousand years from now Beneath the self-same skies shall bow; This June with loveliness to see Is all that June shall ever be. So I would walk along my way, Glad with the sunshine of to-day; I can be steadfast, knowing this— Despite the trifling joys I miss, That future ages shall not own, More loveliness than I have known. Men's lives may change—in better ways, And happier, they may spend their days, They may grow kinder and give more thought to how their brothers live, But never shall the sun display More splendor than it does to-day.

REPRINTS.

In a manse in Fife the conversation of a large party one evening turned on a volume of sermons which had just been published with great success, and was supposed to have brought a round sum into the hands of the author. When the minister's wife heard of what had been made by the volume her imagination was excited, and turning to her husband she said:—"My dear, I see nothing to hinder you to print a few sermons too." "They were a' printed lang syne!" said the candid minister in his wife's ear.

The Woodford Enquiry.

During the broiling heat of the Dog Days, mewed up in the Tower Room of the Court House, the Commissioners in the Woodford Affidavit Case, the cause celebre of Newfoundland in 1920, will hear such evidence as the parties concerned may give. The first of the hearings took place yesterday, with Mr. Woodford on the stand, his testimony amplifying the sworn statements made in the affidavit, dated March 23. From the number present at this session of the Enquiry, it is obvious that a few people, at least, are interested enough to brave the stifling temperature of the room in which the proceedings are being held. Whether or not the general public manifests any curiosity as to the outcome, which has already been prophesied, is not apparent from the talk of the men on the street, who do not take much stock in the affair at all. To the newspapers, of course, each day's hearing will mean so much copy, and as at the end of this week the Teachers' Convention will have ended its labors, there will be nothing for the ubiquitous reporter to fall back upon but the police court record and the Woodford Enquiry. So that the latter may be looked upon as a god-send in a dull season.

It is rather significant that the powers of the tribunal have been so unmercifully shorn. The ponderous document giving the trio of gentlemen comprising the Commission authority to act, contained so many high sounding phrases couched in all the dignity, learnedness and involved tautology of legal phraseology, that the average citizen looked upon its publication and pored over its construction with feelings akin to awe, for what layman could interpret such sentences to mean, but that plenary powers and unlimited authority has been conferred upon the Commission. The sonorous verbiage of the patent of appointment, alas that it has to be said, notwithstanding its phrasing and its diction, did not mean all that it implied, and instead of having a Commission invested with all the insignia of authority, and all the powers of a Royal Commission, it now transpires that it has not even a judicial capacity. And once more is proved the truth of the axiom that language was given us to conceal our thoughts. Put not your trust in the writings of the legal fraternity, especially when those writings are contained in Commissions under the Great Seal. It sure is a disappointment to many, who were anticipating a whole lot from the enquiry, but who now see nothing as the result but a report to the Government, and an ending which can only terminate in one way. The decision of the Supreme Court in refusing to permit the resignation of Mr. Woodford as member for Harbor Main, put out of business the agreement which was alleged to have been entered into. But sensations were demanded and the probe had to be applied. The present hot spell does not appear to have sweated out the desire to wash more dirty linen, and hence the Enquiry must proceed.

Coal Conference.

There was a conference of coal merchants and the Government held yesterday. The Minister of Shipping has advised all these, especially institutions who can do so to secure stocks now so that during the fall and winter sufficient stocks may be stored for those who can only afford to buy in small lots.

Police Court.

A young man for obtaining goods by presenting a cheque drawn on a Queen's St. business firm was remanded for 5 days.
A young man implicated in stealing a pair of cart wheels, was fined $10 or 30 days.
The party who bought the wheels was allowed out on personal bonds to appear when called upon.
The boarding master who is accused of lifting a cash box, containing $1200, the property of a boarder, was represented by Mr. Higgins who asked for bail which was granted in the sum of $2,000 personal, and $500 each for two sureties.

To Put Out Fire.

Those who visit the lakeside, the residents of Quidi Vidi, and particularly the crews practising there nightly, will be glad to learn that an effort is being made to have that smoke, which has caused so much annoyance, abated. The Inspector General has been requested by the Council to send down a steam fire engine to put out the smouldering debris. The engine will be sent to the scene either this evening or to-morrow morning.

Coal Prospects Good.

Mr. Thos. Freeman, who has been at St. George's coalfields some days past, returned to the city last evening. When interviewed about the prospects he had nothing to say except that the company's development work was still going good and there are prospects of other seams being opened up in the near future. The forest fires raging some time ago did not damage the timber areas. Mr. Freeman reports the rivers full of salmon. A Mr. Faunce, fishing in Harry's Brook, landed a 3 lb. fish a few days ago! The weather across country is ideal and there is a noted absence of mosquitoes.

From the Coal Fields.

Mr. Geo. Dowling, the eminent Canadian geologist, who has been to the St. George's coalfields during the past few days, arrived in the city last evening by the express. His report has not yet been made known to the Government. Mr. Dowling was accompanied by his son, who is also a geologist.

Police Seize Jug.

Last midnight Constables Pittman and Pike, doing duty on Water Street, near Queen Street, espied a business man placing a suspicious looking package in his motor car. On investigation the package proved to be a two gallon jug of rum, which was seized and brought to the police station. The matter is being enquired into and it is likely that the owner of the goods will have to explain to the Magistrate from whence the liquid came.

"Sachem's" Passengers.

The following passengers leave for England by the Sachem sailing tonight:—Mr. and Mrs. N. Snow, Miss Macpherson, Miss E. Macpherson, Miss R. Bond, Mr. and Mrs. N. Winslay, Mr. and Mrs. P. Kehoe and infant, Sir W. H. and Lady Horwood, C. R. Thompson, C. M. Thompson, A. E. Thompson, Geo. Hall, J. R. Arnaud, J. O. Williams, Mrs. H. Earle, Mrs. J. J. Shears, Miss F. H. March, Miss Thistle, Miss M. Saunders, Mrs. C. R. Thompson, Mrs. M. G. James, Masters R. & C. James, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis and child, Hon. R. Watson, G. W. Stansby, the crew of the "Watchful," and crew of "Selfedy."

Personal.

Messrs. A. Donnelly, W. Monroe and Hon. S. Milley who were salmon fishing on the West Coast, returned to the city by express last night. The party did well with the fish. Mr. Donnelly landed, amongst others, one of 30 lbs.
The Minister of Justice, Hon. W. R. Warren, accompanied by his wife will leave by Digby on a vacation to England.

Sale of tickets for the Juvenile T. A. & B. Society Picnic, to be held at Donovan's on Tuesday next, July 20th, will positively close on Saturday night, July 17th. By order, M. A. WALSH, Sec. Guardians.—July 11.

The daintiest lot of little tots' White Muslin Bonnets and Hats that have been seen in St. John's for some time are now exhibiting at BISHOP'S SHOWROOM.

CORPSE COMING HOME.—The remains of the late Mr. George Mackinson are now en route from Port aux Basques to St. John's, accompanied by Mrs. Mackinson and child. The funeral will take place at the latter place after the arrival of the corpse to-morrow.

PATRICIAN SHOES reflect an air of charming feminine refinement, are daintily trim of line, and exclusive models. We have arranged to show the new numbers at St. John's immediately new styles are released in New York. BISHOP, SONS & CO., LTD.

Consigning Duchess to Hades.

"To Hades with duchesses, dukes or anybody else; I'm going to lead the simple life."

In these forceful terms, Captain Thomas Kitchen, hero of a recent transatlantic romance at Halifax and New York expressed exasperation over the notoriety which has dogged his footsteps ever since he gallantly paid the return passage of Miss Butler, the English girl who came to Canada to marry him, but fell in love with a baronet's son en route.
Captain Kitchen to-day positively refused to deny or affirm the report that the latest applicant for his heart and hand is an English duchess.
"The letter came to me in confidence," he declared, "and I have no intention of saying a word about it for publication."

Glencoe Reports Good Labrador Prospects.

The codfishery news brought from Straits by the Glencoe on Saturday is very encouraging, and prospects are bright for a good fishery along the Labrador side of Straits Bell Isle to Battle Hr. Cod were just striking in at many places and first taken at Battle Hr. was on last Wednesday. From Pleasure Hr. to Blanc Sablon traps are doing good, also at Salmon Bay, while bait is plentiful also. At Bonne Esperance Whiteley had 1500 qts. cod up to July 3rd and that day one trap had 20 qts. in one haul. On Newfoundland side the outlook is encouraging from Currant Is. to Bartlett's Hr. The field ice is now all gone, but icebergs are numerous in the Straits, which is greatly retarding fishery operations. The Glencoe made all ports of call to Battle Hr. going and returning, but was delayed through dense fog and Capt. Taverner took necessary precautions owing to prevalence of icebergs. The ship reached Curling about 1 p.m. on Saturday. She brought along a quantity of lobsters and other freight for here. She proceeded to Humbermouth same evening. She sailed again Monday evening to take up the South Coast Service.—Western Star.

Men who are not yet wearing BISHOP'S SHANTUNG SILK SHIRTS with soft collars to match have not experienced all the possible comfort within their grasp. All sizes in stock from 13 1/2 to 18, with and without collars to match.

To-day's Messages.

NOT EXACTLY EULOGISTIC.

SANDY HOOK, N.J., July 15.
Great Britain gained her first toe-hold in forty nine years on the American cup to-day, when Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger, Shamrock IV, won the first race of nineteen twenty, after the defender, Resolute, had been forced out of the running by an accident to her rigging. The green challenger must win two more races out of a possible maximum of four, if she is to accomplish Lipton's dream of taking the bottomless Pewter trophy back to Britain. Resolute must win three out of four to retain the cup, which has been in the possession of the New York Yacht Club since eighteen fifty-one. The second race will start at noon on Saturday. Shamrock IV's victory to-day was won in the face of what was seemed certain defeat. Resolute had taken the lead at the start and held it by an ever widening margin, until, as she swapped within half a mile of the starting mark, fifteen miles from the start, spectators on the great feet of pleasure craft saw her great area of belying canvas shiver and begin to sink fluttering down her mast. A sudden gust had snapped her throat halliards and a second later the jaws of her gaff were shattered beyond repair, and she was out of the race.

GERMANY WILL ACCEPT.

SPA, Belgium, July 15.
German Ministers are disposed to accept the note of the Allies, and to answer in the affirmative to-morrow, without qualification. A formal decision will be taken in a Cabinet council in the morning, but the attitude of Ministers to-night is that the agreement is as good as made. This also is the view of Premier Millerand. Dr. Simons, German Foreign Secretary, said he had a long conversation with Premier Millerand and Lloyd George, in which they discussed the essentials of the Allied reply, text of which will be delivered later. Dr. Simons was measurably reconciled to the Allies solution, and tension is greatly relaxed at German headquarters. Premier Lloyd George seemed to be in good spirits this evening, but when asked by a correspondent if he thought Germany would accept, he said, "I can't say. Dr. Simons is a reasonable opponent, but he has insatiable men with him."

Anglican Teachers.

MAKE CORPORATE COMMUNION.

This morning, most of the Anglican teachers attending the Convention, some eight in number, at the kind invitation of the Rev. Canon Jeeves, Rector of the Cathedral, attended the Cathedral at 8 o'clock for Corporate Communion. The Rector was good enough to give to the teachers assembled a brief and inspiring address, on the words "If I send them away fasting to their home, they will faint in the way" and a subsequent verse, "And He sent them away." Those of the visiting teachers who had the privilege of listening to this short address will undoubtedly leave St. John's inspired thereby for better service in the bringing about of the Kingdom of Christ.
The Rector was assisted by the Rev. G. H. Maidment, formerly a teacher. Messrs. James Norman and William Bradbury collected the alms and after the conclusion of the service, three of the teachers were deputed to proceed to the vestry for the purpose of thanking the Rector of the Cathedral for his kindness in arranging the service and for the helpful words which he had given to the teachers.

Teachers' Convention

At yesterday morning's session, Mr. P. J. Griffin gave an address on the C.H.E. Examinations, and during the course of his remarks laid emphasis on the fact that we give our pupils too much home work. Our children often have 1 1/2 hours home work per night, and even more, while according to many modern educationists home work in the lower classes should be abolished, or at least placed at a minimum of twenty minutes or so. Owing to the irregularity of out-port attendances, the C.H.E. syllabus is impossible to carry out, and as in numbers of cases, there are pupils attending school for only four or five months of the year, the C.H.E. syllabus, conflicts with the time that should be given to these pupils. Also, owing to the C.H.E., many subjects useful in their way, are too far-fetched for the child, inasmuch as subjects more practical are neglected. Moral teaching is not stressed enough because the C.H.E. makes too great a call on the intellectual development.

There was quite a lot of discussion on the subject, much of it not exactly irrelevant, but inapplicable to the position held by the C.H.E. in the out-port school curriculum.

The next lecturer was Miss Bradbury, who delivered a very interesting paper on the Primary Grade, and speaking as one who took a primary class only during the whole school year. According to her address the Primary Grade is an aid to the development of the imagination, and self-control, but we fear—that in as far as Primary Grade is only one class out of four or five at least that outruns the outport teacher the reasons given for the existence of the said grade were very far from feasible.

In the afternoon Mr. A. G. Goodland, A.C.P., spoke of the teaching profession, pointing out that the teaching profession keeps the teacher young and enthusiastic, enables one to be independent and systematic, and develops administrative abilities, therefore the teaching profession is very fascinating. Among the things necessary to make good teachers are force of character, intelligence and education. The one drawback that has hitherto checked the other inducements of the teaching profession is that of salary; the inadequate wage that has been handed out. Such a salary has done much to foster the spirit of ridicule so often expressed in regard to the teaching profession. Incidentally Mr. Goodland read a clipping from the "Manitoba Star," stating that a teacher should possess all the virtues common to mythical gods and goddesses, while of course as we were reminded by a reverend lecturer a few days ago, every teacher, besides being superior to all others in physical and moral merits, must be a "walking encyclopedia."

Immediately after Mr. Goodland's paper, all the teachers went to the grounds of the Colonial Building, on the steps of which they grouped themselves and were recorded on the sensitive plate of the camera by Photographer Parsons.

At 4 o'clock return was made to the hall where Hon. Dr. Barnes personally gave the reply of the Government to the resolutions passed at the previous day's session. Hon. Dr. Barnes explained in part the Government's financial position, and regretted sincerely that it was impossible to grant the teachers 25% increase on the Board Grants, but that the Government would grant the second request of the Convention, and make the 40% augmentation increase retroactive to January 1st, 1920, and an assurance that we might hope for better in 1921.

In this connection may we state that when it is borne in mind that teachers have already been granted an increase of $103,000 in salaries, without request, by the present Government, the granting of retro-active payment promptly at the request of the teachers now in convention, is sufficient to prove that Hon. Dr. Barnes has not forgotten his own pedagogical days. That this was felt by the teachers was demonstrated by the hearty Newfoundland cheers that greeted his pronouncement.

After Hon. Dr. Barnes had left, Mr. Charles Hutton gave a very interesting and instructive paper on music. He quoted Plato, wherein he says, "Music is the essence of order." He likewise quoted the President of Harvard University who emphasized a greater amount of teaching of music in our schools. Music and singing are the greatest assets of men or women in social life. Music and singing are a tonic to the whole system. The exercises affect every part of the body, developing healthier organs, modulated, cultivated voices and comforting spirits. The gramophone has brought while to the instrumental student, twenty-five minutes per day will eventually bring high skill and proficiency in the art. Music is one of the best hobbies possible. Mr. Hutton hoped that the love of music not only be more widely expressed, but that such expression take form in the increase of bands in many of our larger outports.—S.J.H.

ENJOYS GOOD HEALTH FIRST TIME IN LIFE

St. John's Woman Says
Tanlac Ended Troubles
Last October And She's Felt Fine Ever Since—
Gained Thirty Pounds.

"I was down in bed and had been there for three weeks when I began taking Tanlac but by the time I had finished the first bottle I was up walking around, and now after taking four bottles I am a perfectly well and happy woman."
The above remarkable statement was made a few days ago by Mrs. D. Cook, 21 York Street, St. John's, N.F.
"Besides restoring my health Tanlac has built me up to where I have actually gained thirty pounds in weight and I am simply overjoyed at my wonderful recovery. I have been in delicate health all my life and have spent a small fortune trying to get relief from my suffering."
"The past twenty years have been one unbroken period of misery and it just seemed that I would have to be content and bear my troubles the rest of my days."
"I had chronic indigestion and my appetite had become so poor I ate scarcely enough to keep alive. Naturally I lost weight and strength and became so weak and thin I was unable to do my housework. Headaches, Oh! they were simply awful and my head would throbb so had I could not bear to lay it on the pillow."

"Then there was a fever in my head all the time and often I just thought, 'I would go frantic. My nerves were a total wreck and at times I was so trembly I shook like a leaf. My kidneys were badly disordered and my back hurt continually. I don't believe I enjoyed a single night's sleep during the past twenty years for I would roll and toss and have horrible dreams all night long."
"That is the way I suffered all this time and finally, I broke down completely and had to take to my bed."
"There are some wonderful things in this world but I have never seen anything more wonderful than the way Tanlac restored my health. Why, for the first time in my life I can say I enjoy good health."
"This was all last October and I have retained the thirty pounds I gained and have been feeling just fine ever since. I am doing all my housework now and I simply couldn't ask to feel better."
"I recommend Tanlac with all my heart for it has been the greatest blessing of my life."
Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Covey, Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle; J. W. Smith, Baine Harbor; W. A. Burdock, Belleoram; John Morey, Fermeuse; Mrs. Jos. Quinn, Renewa.—adv't

Notes From Brigus.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Jerrett came from the city by Thursday night's train.

Miss M. Winter, who had been visiting friends in New York, returned home on Thursday night. She was accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. M. Hunt.

Mr. Charles Stantford arrived from New York on Thursday night on a visit to his sister, Mrs. Samuel Wilcox.

Mr. and Mrs. James Murphy arrived by Thursday night's train from Nova Scotia on a visit to friends.

Messrs. John Stevens and William Saunders came from Canada on Saturday night after an absence of many years. Their friends are pleased to see them in such good health and spirits.

Mr. Jas. Morrissey, who had been working in Boston for the past four years, returned home on the 8th inst.

Mr. E. F. Sheehan, of the Hearst's Content Cable Staff, arrived on Saturday to spend the week-end with his parents.

The last of the Labrador fleet, the "J. A. Mahone," William Hiscock, master, left for the Labrador on Friday, the 9th inst., via Harbor Grace, where she docked for repairs before proceeding on the voyage.

During the past couple of weeks several laborers have returned from Port au Port, having found it extremely difficult under present conditions, to make a living and provide for those at home. The outlook for such at present is none too promising, as there is no employment to be secured at home.

Since the coming of the caplin the Road Board have ceased operations, due no doubt to the fact that the laboring class also believe in "making their hay while the sun shines," as during this period all the horses find employment hauling caplin. We would like to draw the attention of that august body to that portion of the road above the Methodist Parsonage. Despite the efforts of the Rev. gentleman now resident there to keep his fence respectable by a coat of lime, it is continually splashed with mud which passing motors send from two or three holes which have allowed to form there. The filling up of those would be both useful and beneficial.

Mr. Harry Hiscock, who—having spent the last seven years in the land of Uncle Sam—is at present on a visit to his home, having returned from the city by Saturday night's train.

Despite the absence of the moon, some upper-ten folk find it quite easy to get a "shine," the brilliancy of which is undimmed even by such nights as we've had of late. This "shine" becomes more conspicuously apparent when the wanderer strays from his own domain.

Master Frank Caldwell, who had been taking a business course in the U.S.A., returned home on Thursday last to spend his holidays.

On Thursday afternoon, a collision occurred at Smith's corner, between Mr. Henry Leamon's motor and Mr. Thos. Roberts' horse. The latter was uninjured though the car is minus a windshield and a headlight as a result of the clash.

Mr. William Wilcox, who is employed at the R. N. Co.'s station at Humbermouth, went out by this morning's train, having spent a short holiday at home.

Rev. Dr. Murphy, P.P., went out by Tuesday morning's train to attend the annual reunion of St. Bonaventure's College, at which celebration (as previously mentioned in your columns) he delivered the oration. He returned by Wednesday night's train.

Citizens May Have Time;

NEWSPAPERS HAVE NOT.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—In reference to an item headed "Careless Driving" in your issue of yesterday, and to similar complaints that have appeared in the press from time to time, it may be of interest to the public to know that the Newfoundland Motor Association maintains a "Committee on Discipline," who are prepared to investigate any complaint of reckless or inconsiderate driving, providing the party making the complaint is sure of his facts, is willing to stand behind his statements, and can definitely identify the offending car.

One of the main objects of the Newfoundland Motor Association is to insist upon sane and careful driving by all motorists and I might say that the new driving regulations laid down by the Inspector General received the highest commendation and support at the meeting of the Association on Monday evening last.

I would respectfully suggest that any further complaints, you, (or the other newspapers), receive re reckless driving be turned over to the Association for investigation before being given publication, as I think you will agree with me that the objection to the publication of these complaints is that it tars all motor drivers with the same brush in the eyes of the public, whereas, in reality, it is only a very small percentage of Newfoundland motorists who are either reckless or inconsiderate drivers. Thanking you for your co-operation in this matter.

Yours very truly,
P. E. OUTERBRIDGE,
Sec. Nfld. Motor Association.

McMurdo's Store News.

FRIDAY, July 16.

The high and dry summer time is the time for fishing—by woe to the man who ventures to go fishing without something to keep the mosquitoes away. And there is nothing that performs this important task better than McMurdo's Tar Oil and Pennyroyal, which many wise fishers use to keep themselves immune from the fly pest. Before going on your holidays, or for a day or two's trouting, do not fail to procure a bottle or two of this necessary preparation and use it freely. It will be a great help to you in enjoying a vacation in the woods. Price 25c. a bottle.

The Romance of Fleetwood.

When James Stanley, Lord of Derby, and of the Isles, landed his 300 men on the Wyre Shore, the town of Fleetwood had sprung into existence; and, indeed, for two generations after this memorable voyage those shores were the home of the wild rabbit and the squirrel. It was Sir Peter Hesketh Fleetwood whose speculative energy planned the second port of Lancashire. He offered the land free to any railway company who would connect the Wyre mouth with Preston, and a new line from Preston to Fleetwood was opened on July 15, 1840. Then Fleetwood was advertised through the length and breadth of the land. "A poor people's treat" was given in the form of an excursion from Preston. There were 35 coaches, and the excursionists devoured 1,000 currant buns and 600 quarts of milk. They were then treated to a refresher of the sea, and a dance on the lawn—now Fleetwood Park—and thus closed a famous day in the history of Fleetwood. In 1847 Queen Victoria and her Consort honoured the town with a visit. In 1850, however, Fleetwood suffered an unfortunate reverse. The Crimean War and Indian Mutiny had played havoc with the trade of the town, and rows of cottages were tenantless. The North Eastern Hotel was bought by the War Office, filled with soldiers, and Fleetwood assumed the appearance of a garrison town. In 1865, however, the cotton magnates of Lancashire and Yorkshire conferred together with a view to turning the tide of affairs. Bold and speculative steps were taken, and just when Fleetwood's adversity had reached its ebb line the tide of prosperity set in. Now the prosperous flag of commerce floats proudly over the Pyde, and from the rabbit warren has sprung the Port of Fleetwood, with splendid docks, a fine promenade, large hotels, a coast-line electric tramway reaching to Blackpool, and a fishing industry growing vastly every year.

The Cannibal Islanders.

When Capt. Cook, the famous navigator, landed at Poverty Bay, New Zealand, in October, 1769, the natives took his ship for a gigantic bird, and were struck with the size and beauty of its wings. He spent nearly a year cruising around the islands, and cultivating friendly relations with the inhabitants.

They appeared to be amiable and exceptionally intelligent; yet infanticide was commonly practised, and cannibalism was an established habit. The Maoris thought nothing of making an armed descent upon a distant island, rounding up its people, and accomplishing a thorough clean-up by eating them all in a leisurely fashion. Capt. Cook estimated their number at 400,000. To-day there are not more than 40,000 left alive. Like other natives are dying out. They earned the admiration of Europeans by the skill and bravery with which they defended their country in a long series of wars against the white invaders. At one time the British had 10,000 soldiers in New Zealand.

The origin of the Maoris is uncertain, but they are presumably of Malay stock. They have a tradition that the islands were first settled by ancestors of theirs who came from a distant land in fourteen canoes. Most cherished of their ancient weapons are war-clubs made of a translucent and very beautiful green stone. A British sea captain once asked a chief what he would take in exchange for his club, and the reply was "Your ship."

The chief explained that the lifetime of one man was required to make such a war club. Very likely this was true. For when an attempt was made to turn out clubs of like pattern from the same material with the help of machinery, the result was failure, owing to the extreme hardness of the stone.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Poaching on Cook's Brook.

(Western Star.)
 Reports reach us to the effect that poaching has been practised at Cook's Brook. We were told on Monday that about 50 salmon were taken from that stream during the latter part of last week. On Thursday parties who were fishing saw quite a number of fish in the pools and they were taking them readily, while on the last of the week when they again visited there they saw only two. A net was found on the shore at the big pool above the bridge and salmon scales among the alders, and at various parts of the brook were also found trawl hooks and poles with pieces of codline attached indicating illegal practices. It is regrettable that this fine fishing stream and in such close proximity to the town, should be so prostituted year after year, and we suggest the people in the vicinity manifest a more public spirit and endeavour to put an end to such abuses of this magnificent fishing stream.

Crack in Tank Caused Blow-Up.

Explosion of a cylinder of ammonia gas with which the tubes of the plant were being charged, was the cause of Saturday afternoon's disaster at the refrigerating plant of the Harris Abattoir Company, according to the statement made on Sunday by Charles J. McNeil, who was gassed and terribly burned in the tragic accident, which cost the lives of Edward Langley, of Port Hawkesbury, and W. A. Munn, C. N. R. yardmaster. The big cylinder—some eight feet in length and 10 inches or so in diameter—had been placed in position and charging of the tubes was under way when McNeil, stepping near the cylinder, saw what seemed to be the beginning of a crack at one point on its surface. He called Mr. Langley to look at it.

As the two men stepped close up to the cylinder a small white line, as if of frost, spread along its surface. Mr. Langley made some remark to the effect that something was wrong, the injured man said, and just as the words left his lips the cylinder blew up with gigantic force.

Mr. McNeil was hurled to the floor almost senseless. Immediately the terrible fumes began to eat their way into his lungs and eyes and burn great patches of his body.

Struggling desperately to retain consciousness, and by almost superhuman effort, Mr. McNeil crawled his way to the doorway and was saved. Mr. Langley and Mr. Munn were evidently instantly killed.

Mr. McNeil attributes his escape from their tragic fate to the fact that the force of the explosion was exerted chiefly on the opposite side of the cylinder from the side on which he was standing.

The injured man is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. McNeil, of Glace Bay. He has resided in Sydney for some time.—Sydney Record, July 12.

Sydney News.

Sydney, N.S., July 12.—Two men were shot and one was severely clubbed in a serious affray which occurred at the Roma House, near the Canadian Northern Railway Station on Sunday night last. The three casualties are at present in hospital. The wife of the proprietor of the hotel has been arrested.

On July 12, Boyne Anniversary, the Orangemen of Cape Breton assisted at the unveiling of a monument in Wentworth Park, erected by the Association to the memory of the members belonging to Cape Breton who lost their lives in the great war.

A distinguished Canadian Orangemen conducted the dedicatory service. Fifty names are engraved on the monument.

At North Sydney, on Saturday afternoon last, a match in "football five" took place in Archibald's field between teams from the S. S. Kyle and S. S. Meigle. After a brush with the employees of the terminus wharf an evening previous the Meigle men were feeling in good trim and as Glasgow the crack centre for the Kyle players was unable to play. They fully expected an easy victory. The results somewhat astonished them as the first half ended 2-0 in favor of the Kyle. After a brief rest the stalwarts went at it again and the Kyle men slackened off a little, being unwilling to discourage too materially their opponents, and scored one goal. The Meigle with much encouragement from the supporters rolled up for ten goals. W. Long of the office staff acted as referee and regulated matters in a satisfactory way. The line-up was as follows:

Skiffington did excellent work at goal and saved higher scoring on numerous occasions.

The Kyle team have decided to tackle some stiffer proposition if possible in next match as they have come to the conclusion that the Meigle is not quite in their class.

MARRIED.

On Thursday, the 15th inst., at Wesley Parsonage, by the Rev. W. B. Bugden, B.A., Florence M. Mitchell to Heber B. Bartlett, both of this city.

DIED.

Last evening, after a long illness, (Mary), beloved wife of the late Capt. Michael Ryan, only daughter of the late Thos. Mokeler, Planter, Bay Bulls, leaving two daughters. Funeral on Saturday at 2:30 from her late residence, 71 Harvey Road, Halifax and New York papers please copy.

Passed away July 4th, Gladys Lloyd, aged 12 years and 6 months, darling child of Theodosia and Thos. Martin; four brothers, Joe, in Alberta, Hugh, Weston and Cecil of this city, and three sisters, Mrs. Percy, Verge and twin sister Anita, are mourning the loss of Gladys, as those who loved her always called her, for surely she carried sunshine and gladness wherever she went and was a great favorite with all her playmates.

Amazing Surgical Operation.

Chicago, July 10.—Dr. O. P. Scott, one of Chicago's best known surgeons yesterday performed one of the most amazing operations in surgical annals by slicing twelve inches of flesh from his own leg and transplanting it to that of his wife to save her from disfigurement. He performed the operation with a razor.

Throughout the operation which lasted one hour, Dr. Scott talked with interns and students and explained each step as it was taken and what steps were to follow. He took no anesthetic, not even a local one and despite the intense pain, showed no outward signs of his suffering.

Dr. Scott served overseas in the United States medical service. His wife was injured six weeks ago in an automobile accident.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Now and then someone asks, who are being appointed to the positions in all branches of the Civil Service previously held by supporters of the party defeated at the polls last fall? I suppose, some assert—whose eyes do not seem to be widely open—that all the returned Soldiers and Sailors and many of their aged and deserving parents will get the preference in Civil Service jobs, seeing that by word and deed they supported His Majesty's Ministers, and in times of stress and strain—in astonishment and fear, rendered excellent service in keeping our flag in Heaven. These are the heroes without doubt who will be given first chance by the men now in power, who lauded the Soldiers and Sailors and their parents to the skies when the brave lads went forth to battle and to fight for that home. Natural, reasonable and righteous predictions and expectations aren't they? But the sound of war is silent now and the dark cloud that settled over the world for five years, has been dispersed by shot and shell and peace made possible by rivers of blood and unutterable agony. The curtain lifted the scene changes, and what many people expected to appear on the stage of new developments has turned out to be a hideous nightmare of disappointments, instead of new and pleasant realities. While the war was taking its toll of our brave lads at the front, our Sailors on the sea, parents at home with torn and bleeding hearts with the sad news of the slain, received much recognition from Ministers of the present Government for their willing contributions in flesh and blood to help keep the old flag flying. I refer to men with whom I am personally acquainted, who freely gave several sons to fight on land and sea—to die if necessary (which some of them did), for the grand old flag—these men received much praise from Government officials to time of war, who now apparently, turn their backs upon them. One of the men in question, whose photo appeared in one or more of our local papers in the early stages of the war, and was hailed by the country as one of the fathers of a fighting family, held the position of Telegraph Line Repairer during the war, but shortly after the appointment of the new Postmaster General, his services were no longer required, and when the father of the fighting family courteously asked for the cause of his dismissal, he received an impertinent reply from the big postal chief giving him no cause or explanation whatever. This man who lost his Government job, had three sons at the front, (one of whom died on the battlefield), the fourth, who enlisted, was given back by the Governor, and the fifth was turned down because of his youth. Did the present Postmaster-General in times of stress and strain, render as much service to the Empire as the man who was willing to give five sons to fight and die to keep our flag in Heaven. How long will the Postmaster General have to live, and how much will he have to perform before he measures up to the nobility of the men who were willing to give from five to seven sons to fight and die that we should live? Instead of taking a job from such a man, they should have given him a job for life and rendered his name deathless in the annals of our land. It is almost impossible to believe, even with documentary evidence before our eyes, that men could be so inconsistent and hypocritical as to lead men with one hand and slay them with the other, or praise them in one breath and curse them in the next. Returned Soldiers and Sailors and some of their parents have not been squarely dealt with in general, and only in cases of pull have they got within the borders of justice, which by reason of their courage and past services they should certainly get within without that unfair weapon—pull. We see abled-bodied men who shrank like whipped curs from the War Office and recoiled like creeping worms at the thought of the danger zone, holding soft jobs all through the war and are holding them still, while men with hoary hairs about their temples, who surrendered their all in the great crisis are dismissed, without so much as an explanation from the men their sons died to save. These men, mind you, who willingly gave their loved and loving sons to fight and die on land and sea—to suffer in trench—to be scorched by sun and drenched with rain, to be bitten by frost, torn and bleeding by shot and shell, and remain unburied on the blood stained fields of France—these men who were willing to give—and did give, their sons to endure those horrors of war for the sake of justice, are now put from the ranks of justice, while political heelers and slackers take the robes they should have worn for life. To see abled-bodied heelers and slackers taking and holding the jobs of those brave fathers, is enough to make the heart and soul of man revolt and turn in their might against the robbers of our class. It is only a Government composed of slackers that will cater to fellow-slackers no matter where they be found. Talk about Bolshevism. We need a Lenin and Trotsky now—right now—in this country, to teach the Gears of our land equity and right. We place these men in power to do justice as far as it is humanly possible—but if seems no matter how much service a man rendered in time of stress—no matter how useful he might have been—or might be—it makes no difference to our present rulers if he is without pull, and any request from him for a chance within his sphere of justice falls as fruitlessly, as falls the gaze of love on death, or as insecure and ineffectual as snow upon a volcano's lips.

Yours truly,
M. L. BUTLER.

Dr. Parker is having good fishing at Big Falls, Upper Humber.
A Cobb had some good fishing on Harry's River the last of the week.
At Harry's Brook, on Thursday, Thom Power landed an eight lb. salmon.
Dean O'Rourke, on Tuesday, landed a twelve pound salmon from Harry's Brook.
Mr. and Mrs. Faunce, camped at Harry's Brook, have landed several fine salmon to date.
Mr. Hadden, of New York, who was fishing on the Upper Humber, came down on Monday, having secured 30 fish.
A message from Little River on Monday to the Game Supervisor reported the Codroy rivers in good fishing condition.
Mr. Pearce came down from Upper Humber on Monday after having had some good fishing. His heaviest fish weighed 23 pounds.
Salmon have started to move up the Highland River lately, one having been resting under the Highland Bridge on his way up stream.
Forty pounds is the heaviest fish we have heard of being caught for this season. It was landed by a party at Serpentine River weeks before last.
Hon. F. Steer and J. B. Orr, of Brockway, Mass., spent a couple of weeks at Grandy's River, Burgeo, where Mr. Orr has a camp. Mr. Steer secured 20 fish, the heaviest weighing 20 lbs., and Mr. Orr landed 14 fish, the heaviest being 16 lbs. They returned home last Wednesday.
The salmon fishing has considerably improved during the past week in the Crabbes River sportsman Wells having landed 5 fish all in one day, and Joseph Hulan, sr., fortunately landed four fish also in one day, besides the above mentioned catches another salmon were captured by Allan McIsaac, we understand by local people of which we have not the record.

Lived on Fifteen Cents a Day.

One of the strangest tragedies of the high cost of living has made a comparatively poor woman the heiress to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

For thirty years Andrew J. Seaman, of Omaha, Neb., lived on 15 cents a day. That was his expense budget. When prices got so high that 15 cents a day would not keep a man alive, Seaman died—though the direct cause of his death was declared by physicians to have been an infected hand which he would not have treated by a doctor because "it would cost too much." Literally, Seaman felt that he could not afford to live.

Seaman's sister, Mrs. Harriet Wolfe, of Los Angeles, Cal., who earned her living as a seamstress, accompanied by her son and her daughter, is now in Omaha and has taken charge of the estate left by her brother. Mrs. Wolfe has filed a claim for the entire estate as Seaman's only living relative, save her own children. While the bulk of the old man's estate is supposed to be in safe deposit boxes, the keys to which have not been found, the administrator already has found about $100,000 in cash and believes the estate will run above half a million dollars. Many people who had dealings with Seaman predict the total will be nearer one million dollars.

The administrator discovered deposits in every building and loan association in Omaha and in a dozen different banks. One deposit has been located in a country town bank 150 miles from Omaha, and it is believed Seaman had deposits in other country banks. After a search for the keys to his safety deposit vault proved futile, the manufacturers of the vault were telegraphed for duplicate keys. Not till they arrive can even an approximate estimate of the total amount of the fortune be made.

Sole Object Was Making Money.

For thirty years Seaman had strained every nerve toward making money, yet had denied himself every pleasure money could buy. He wore old clothes, lived out of town to escape city taxes and so far out, in such a humble neighborhood, that his room cost him only 50 cents a month. He is said to have walked to and from the city rather than pay car fare. For light he used a candle, for water went to the well and for warmth stayed in bed till it was time to go to town.

Before moving to Omaha Seaman lived in Council Bluffs, Ia., which is just across the Missouri River from the Nebraska city. It is related that once he was engaged to a girl in Council Bluffs, but they drifted apart when he moved to Omaha. It cost 5 cents toll to cross the bridge, and he could not bring himself to pay it.

Not only would Seaman walk ten miles a day to save car fare, but he even walked longer distances to save railroad fare. Some years ago, according to people who knew him in Omaha, it was necessary for him to go to Denver on business. The fare at that time was $17.50 each way, the distance six hundred miles. Seaman walked both ways and saved $35. It is told of him that he carried extra half-soles with him and borrowed a hammer and tacks at houses he passed, to repair his shoes on that trip.

According to the stories from Omaha, Seaman cut his own hair, did his own laundry, and had not shaved for thirty years. He maintained that 15 cents a day was enough for any man to spend for meals. For that, he said, he could get a bowl of bread and milk three times a day, or a bowl of soup with a slice or two of bread thrown in. When he could no longer find a restaurant which would serve him so cheaply he bargained with one for two meals a day for 15 cents. That is, he called them meals.

Same clothes For All Seasons.

He wore the same clothes winter and summer, buying them from second hand stores. He wore a long Prince Albert coat which covered a multitude of patches. One of the many stories about the eccentric old man is that a friend expostulated with him about that coat.

"It's a disgrace to your father," the friend asserted.

"On the contrary," replied the old man, "it is the coat my father wore. He had it when he married, and wore it afterwards till I was big enough to wear it."

Seaman made most of the money he saved so carefully and uselessly by buying tax titles at public sheriff's sales.

Even when he knew he was about to die and leave his hoardings, Seaman sprang from the thought of expense. His ruling passion was strong in death. Shortly before he died he is reported to have said:

"Don't buy a coffin for me—a box is good enough."

Mouse v. Snake.

The case of "Gus," the Zoo's little squirrel monkey, who bullies the giant fighting bunnies whose cage he shares, is beaten by the extraordinary companionship of a snake and a mouse, vouchered for by Mr. E. G. Boulenger, curator of reptiles at the Zoological Gardens.

Mr. Boulenger once kept a tame four-foot South African snake in his own house, and one autumn he placed a mouse in the cage as a final meal before the reptile's winter fast and sleep.

The snake had no appetite, however, and the mouse settled down without any signs of terror. After a day or two Mr. Boulenger was astonished to find the mouse actually sitting in the coils of the snake. When the mouse found his bed not quite comfortable he nipped the reptile and forced it to readjust its coils into a more cozy nest.

They lived like this for some weeks, till its hibernating instinct (or the tyranny of the mouse) drove the snake to burrowing under the turf floor of the cage. The mouse watched the tunnelling operation, and when the snake had quite vanished into the hole, followed it and, by biting the snake's tail, evicted it.

The mouse took possession of the hole and the snake doggedly started a fresh tunnel. It was no use. The mouse fancied the second excavation as "the better 'ole," and the snake had to give way to the tiny pest once again. The mouse then allowed the snake to sleep in the original hole for the winter.

April came and the snake awoke with an appetite. Having shed its skin, it spotted its old enemy the mouse. And in a couple of minutes the mouse was merely a "bulge."

A-Foot In North Russia.

(By a British "Expeditionary" Man.)
 The Archangel Front included such a vast area of country that marching was as a rule the least practicable method of moving about it.
 Only on one occasion had I the excuse and the opportunity for a tramp of any length, and this, though it extended considerably beyond my anticipations, proved one of my most interesting experiences in that fascinating and unhappy country.
 Having spent a rather exhausting day, mostly on horseback in the blazing sun, about our forward positions in front of Troitsa on the Dvina, I heard that a tug was likely to leave for Beresnik, my next objective, during the evening. Beresnik was some miles down stream, and was at that time occupied by G. H. Q.
 I hurried on board about 8 o'clock, selected a clear piece of deck, whereon to lay my sleeping-bag, and waited—sometimes trying to doze, sometimes watching the scene of ceaseless activity presented by that unrelenting beach all through the hours of cool and pallid night—until 3 o'clock in the morning. Only then were we ready to cast off. With the sun already blazing on the polished blue surface of the river, and shining with silver radiance on the skin of the observation balloon which had her station in the air above Troitsa, we set out on our voyage, towing a barge-load of prisoners and salvage.
 On board there were several British officers besides myself, and we picked up happily together on the sun-scorched deck, making tea with water always boiling in the ship's "samovar," and eating our bully beef with enjoyment. The necessity for taking on more fuel caused a fresh delay before the day was very old.
 Wood is in North Russia the universal fuel for domestic and commercial purposes alike, and river trips gained in interest what they lost in rapidity by the frequent stoppages for "wooding." Lengthy stacks of beautifully cut billets scattered at close intervals along the banks of the Dvina serve the steamers for replenishment, and the ceremony of fuelling, so unpleasant on coal-burning steamers, is on the Dvina associated with charming forest scenery, the pungent smell of sawn pine-wood, and general good humor.
 At this time—July—the continued drought had caused the shallow Dvina to shrink so low that a great proportion of our river transport was useless, being unable to cross the various sandbars. This fact added enormously to the difficulties of the campaign.

Delay on the Dvina.
 Towards noon—a breathless, blue and brazen noon, the vast radiant sky reflected from leagues of unrippled water—we came in sight of a fleet of tugs and barges, either aground or else anchored as a precaution. After a colloquy with others of his first-rate, our skipper announced that the net for which he had been heading was impassable, and that he proposed to try the one on the other side of a large island which here occupied the middle of the river. This entailed steaming up-stream for miles to the vicinity of a village called Pless, and half-dazed with the heat and glare on the unsheltered deck, we resigned ourselves to this further loss of time.
 At Pless—while a blue-black thundercloud piled its menace into the vast sky—a spirit of inertia entered into the ship's company. Apparently deciding that fate was against them, the skipper and crew moored the tug to the baking beach and disappeared into the village that straggled along the summit of the shingly cliff above.
 Now, I was really anxious to be back at my work at Beresnik, and this Russian procrastination, or fatalism, exhausted my scanty British patience, so that I determined to be bold and independent. My sleeping bag and eating gear—the usual luggage for these Dvina trips—were in an ordinary Tommy's kit-bag; with them I ruthlessly packed my tent, and asking a fellow-voyager to leave the lot in the hands of the Embarkation Staff officer at Beresnik—if ever he reached the place—I set off to walk.
 My luggage was a revolver, though as a passport to the goodwill of strangers it always seems to fall short in geniality.
Peasants and Their Pastimes.
 For the first few miles the road, of hard, rutted mud, patched here and there with rough fire-poles, led me through village after village separated only by a field or two, where barley, rye, potatoes, and onions were growing. These villages were so astonishingly alike in general features that for all my steady tramping, I seemed to be ever in the same quiet street, plodding past the same sharp gable-ends, the same wells, the same neat piles of fuel stacked against the houses, the same sleighs stored under the shelter of wide-carved eaves. Russian village houses do not face the street, adorned sometimes with crude painting—perhaps a brace of animals which might have escaped from the College of Heraldry, or a huge mosaic. Of course, everything is of wood, churches, houses, fences, carts, and sleighs.
 Groups of peasants, the men patriarchally bearded and in colored blouses or "rubashkas," the women glowing in cottons of all the brightest and most vivid hues, sat, sitting as I passed. One splendid old fore-fatherly attired an exclamation of childish wonder or cry as he pointed to my wristwatch.
 Passing through these villages on foot, one observed details missed while steaming up and down the highway of the river. Tiny pictures in black paint on some of the gable-ends drew my attention—silhouettes of axes, ladders, buckets, horses. In case of a fire, it seems, each house is responsible for some component essential of the fire-fighting equipment, as advertised by the particular picture on the wall. Thus the fire brigades would rally complete with all appliances; or, if not, the community would know whom to blame for the lack of any item.
 The most popular village game was a form of skittles, tiny logs being set upon end to be knocked over by a missile like a rolling-pin, thrown from some 20 or 30 feet. Russian boys and soldiers never tired of this sport. The swing was also popular, but in this country the plank forming the seat moves longitudinally instead of broadside ways. As many as half a dozen burly soldiers might be seen enjoying the thrill together. Another favorite amusement was the see-saw, again with a difference, the Russian practice being to stand on the plank, and so he shot several feet into the air each time the opposite end hit the ground. Children and adults are alike in their fondness for this pastime, and I never saw a more serious accident than the cracking of an over-tried plank.

A Romantic Meal.
 A charming atmosphere of rural peace hung about those villages as I passed through them. With the approach of evening the sun came out, and his calm rays shining beneath a dun and golden fringe of cloud lit up and magnified the great white and green churches that rose above the dark roofs of every village and dominated the level leagues of river, meadow, and forest.
 Children were driving home the cattle, sturdy women strode by the side of little carts, so piled with new-cut grass that the energetic pony between the shafts was well-nigh hidden. Merry-faced girls, wearing the be-ribboned pigtail that is the token of spinsterhood in these parts, sat carelessly astride long-maned ponies, and raced one another homewards. The priest, with his beard and flowing locks, his long robe and curly-brimmed, soot-tinted straw hat, sat on the green bank beneath his stately church, and chatted with the peasants—sparing a courteous bow to the hot foreigner tramping past. Women dressed like the flowers of the field for brilliance drew water from the cold wells, or carried on a yoke a pair of brimming buckets.
 I was very hungry and thirsty, and the information I collected from time to time as to the distance of my goal seemed to suggest that the verities were elastic. A kind-faced woman, passing with a pony, handed me with a friendly word the green top of an onion, which only served to whet my the houses family parties were gathered round the samovar. This was tantalizing for a thirsty wayfarer, and presently I stopped and said jointly to a clean-looking woman about to enter a tidy, painted house, and to a man at the window, "Chai, pazhalist." Now, observation and experience had taught the Relief Force that those sounds are understood to mean "Tea, if you please." My invitation and welcome was instant and warm.

 I was shown upstairs into the big living room, and a place made for me at the table. Round it sat representatives of several generations, from the grey-bearded ancestor to the clamorous infant. In its centre stood the tall, polished, steaming samovar, and a big bowl full of a syrupy liquid, in which berries were floating. The choice of white or brown rye bread was given me, and a wooden spoon wherewith to dip in the common bowl. Each member of the party was similarly armed, and transferred the fruit direct from the basin to the mouth, not without moist noises signifying relish, particularly on the part of the infant. The berries were of a kind common in Russia, and known to hill-climbers in Scotland as cloud berries. After my third dip, my hostess produced a separate little basin of berries for me, together with a saucer full of sugar.
 Conversation was difficult, but we seemed to enjoy one another's company, and I found the cloud berries, the tea, the white and rye bread, a pleasant and romantic meal. My entertainers would not hear of payment, and I left feeling that I had friends in that far village on the Dvina. Make his acquaintance like this, and you will think the Russian peasant a survivor of the Golden Age, simple, kindly and hospitable. Ossinova was the village I was making for. Beresnik was on the opposite side of the river, but I counted on my luck to provide a ferry of some sort.
Through Field and Forest.
 Thinking it just possible that the steamer might attempt the channel after all, I left the road when it turned inland, and took to the fields, walking along the brink of red clay cliff that fell twenty perpendicular feet into deep water where the current ran on my side of the river. As I might have expected, the flies were appalling in these meadows, where field flowers—cranesbills, marguerites, cornflowers, meadow-sweet, buttercups, coltsfoot—grew in beautiful profusion. This particular pest was neither the mosquito nor the big tiger-striped, jewel-eyed bulldog fly which had terrorized us a few weeks earlier, but a tiny, fly-winged, black-bodied sort of midge. In his thousands he floated around me, drifting into my eyes, my ears, my nose, tickling my hands, my face, my neck. To sit down to rest and cool was impossible—that was my madness lay! There was nothing for it but to press on, waving a handkerchief tied to my stick as a fly-switch.
 There was no sign of any steamer on the wide river, and at length I rejoined the road, and following its windings presently found myself in the forest. Before turning my back on the last of the houses, however, I begged a drink of delicious water from a woman who was troubled because I declined the substitution of milk. A man leaning from a window, to whom I had first appealed, understood neither my words nor my gestures, but arrived at the conclusion that I was seeking sympathy for tooth-ache.

 The silence and loneliness of the forest were intense and palpable. On the right hand and on the left there was no sound save a stealthy creaking caused by the slow settling, as they cooled in the night air, of stacks of lately cut wood. Luckily, for some reason, the flies beneath these tall trees were very few. A couple of drosophiles passed me, going, of course, in the wrong direction. The information gained from the occupants made it clear that I should have to walk seven or eight hours more than I had "wound" myself up to cover, making the tramp upwards of 25 miles, which the warmth and heavy going seemed to multiply. All through that interminable forest the road was deep in sand, deeper with every mile.
The End of the Walk.
 It was after 11 o'clock when I dragged my weary steps into Ossinova, with the lights of Beresnik still a mile or two away across the river meadows and the Dvina dashing in my eyes. A couple of British subalterns returning to their billet urged me to share it with them for the night, but I had reached that stage of fatigue when one refuses to contemplate a halt before the journey's ultimate goal is reached: still trusting the tramp's luck, I trudged on across the meadows, pushed my way through the dew-wet, insect-haunted fringe of willows, and scrambled down on to the beach.

 Beresnik looked very near now, and my luck held, for almost at once I heard rowlocks, and saw the dark blot of a boat upon the water. My anxious hail was answered. In another minute I was sitting in the stern-sheets of a gig rowed by two sturdy naval ratings, who were cruising this late on an expedition of combined duty and pleasure, having by chance discovered and thereafter towed ashore a fotsam corpse.
Word Wanderings.
 It is difficult to see at first sight how a word which began by meaning a mask can, after the lapse of two thousand years, come to denote a clergyman. Nor does one see immediately how of two words, each of which originally meant "boy," one should become a coveted title and the other an epithet applicable to a scoundrel.
 Roman actors always wore conventional masks denoting the hero, the heroine, the villain, or the comic man; and to help the actor voice to carry to the distant parts of the auditorium, each mask contained a kind of megaphone. The Latin word for mask is persona, from per (through) and sona (to sound). "Dramatic personae" really means, then, the masks of the play. By an easily understandable transference, persona came to mean not the mask, but the actor who wore it.

Then, since all the world is a stage, it was applied in the form "personae" human beings in general.
 But there were persons of various kinds. The incumbent of a living, for instance, was a clerical "person." In the place names Derby, Hereford, and Berkshire, we can still see survivals of the time when or what pronounced, ar. At this period the word "person" was split into two person was split in the old way, and person was split phonetically, dropping its distinguishing adjective.
 In Anglo-Saxon the word came meant, originally, a boy; but as most boys had to be useful in those days it came to mean a servant. Humbling being the keynote of knighthood when it was first instituted, great warriors were proud to become servants (knights) of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem or the Temple. The meaning of "servant" was eventually lost sight of, and "knight" came to have its present significance. The German Knecht still has the original meaning of servant or hind.
 Another Saxon word for boy was enape, or enafe, which is the modern word "knave."

Free as I was, I thought it up to me to let the embarkation staff know their steamer's plight, and perhaps to make my little boast. And what do you think were the first words of the officer on duty when I appeared inside his little cabin on the barge that formed the quay at Beresnik? "Hallo, I've got a kit-bag here for you. A fellow asked me to keep it till you called."
 The bag had beaten me by an hour, but I could not regret the hard labor of my walk.—W. Kersey Holmes, in the Scotsman.

Trinitarian's Appreciation

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—When one who has been absent from his old home for years, he is naturally interested in any writings he may see of some of his doings day by day. Being a constant reader of your popular paper, I am always on the alert for anything of interest, and being a Trinitarian, those items "Trinity, Day by Day" etc., by W.J.L., appeal to me very much, and often have I been tempted to write a note of appreciation to the writer through the columns of your paper. His interesting notes of to-day's issue have brought me to action, and I feel quite sure that every Trinitarian, and especially the many who are far away from the land of their birth, appreciate and eagerly look forward to any doing of yours in any way helpful to one of Nature's best.

Trinity, in the not far distance, possessed a newspaper—"The Trinity Enterprise"—but of late one has heard nothing whatever of its publication. Many say it is dead; however, let us hope it may soon come to life with renewed energy and become worthy of its name.

Were it not for such men who interest themselves as Rev. Canon Lockyer, many things would be forgotten. Trinitarians abroad and many people who are interested in the old town, would be delighted to have regular weekly readings through your paper, and we trust that our esteemed writer may be able to make the satisfactory arrangement.

It is a pleasure to note the coming of the modern motor boat for the South West Arm—surely a step in the right direction and not before it was needed. This with the dredging of the Bar, as W.J.L. has said, "would make the scheme well nigh perfect." If one remembers rightly something was promised to the people of Dunfield some few years ago re the dredging of the Bar. Those who know realize what a benefit this would mean to the fishermen as well as to many others. It is to be hoped that some member of the Government may become interested.

We think that Trinity has made a very wise move in the amalgamation of the schools. This we know was talked of some long ago. We are glad to hear of it and trust that much good will result to all concerned.

One is also pleased to note the enterprising spirit of Mrs. John White to help overcome the boarding house problem. May she be well repaid for her labor.

This brings to one's mind the great lack of hotel accommodation in many of our outports, and draws attention to the following which appeared in one of the city papers some few years ago. For the benefit of any person who at this time may be trying to decide where to spend his or her vacation, I think it well worth repeating: "In the same proportion in which the housing problem affects the welfare of the citizen and the municipal life of St. John's, so the hotel problem affects the progress of the outports of the Island.

"The hundreds of tourists who annually visit Newfoundland, bitterly complain of the insufficiency of accommodation. Many of them leave to return no more owing to this great drawback.

"Had we, therefore, hotels in various parts of the country where natural attractions need no artificial efforts to enhance its beauty, it is safe to assume that these places would soon become chief resorts of the visitors. The northern bays sadly lack adequate hotel services.

"The town of Trinity is one of THE historic places in the Island. It is one of the most magnificent harbors in the world, and its beautiful scenery stands unrivalled even in a country famed for scenic beauty.

"Its deep arms carry one over a large sheet of smooth water, and at every bend and turn, around every headland and point, new and delightful views are presented.

"The roads are splendidly built, capable of running autos over anywhere in the vicinity. The followers of Walton have a paradise of sport in the ponds and rivers not far from the hotel, and partridge abound plentifully on the barrens within easy reach.

"The traveller, tourist, health-seeker and sport, will, therefore, find TRINITY an ideal spot."

Thanking you in anticipation for valuable space, Mr. Editor, I am,

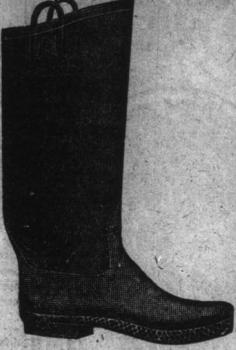

Yours very truly,
TRINITARIAN.

THE "GRUB" PEST.

To prevent damage to plants and shrubs a simple remedy is a weak solution of Sulphate of Ammonia. Use 1/4 oz. of Sulphate to one gallon of water. On no account use a stronger solution or you may "burn" the plants.

We have a limited quantity of Sulphate of Ammonia at our Showroom, Oke Building. Full instructions given with each package.
