CHAPTER XVI.

Mr. Barrington's keen eye bent itself upon him, and a faint smile twisted the thin, shrewd lips.

Lord Heron flushed redder still.

"She was the most beautiful girl I ever saw!" he said with sudden warmth.

"And you do not know her name?"

"I do not," replied Lord Heron.

"I know of no one—there was Miss Knighton—"

"Oh, it was not her!" said Lord Heron, quickly. "I know that much!"

"Strange!" mused the lawyer. "I know every one in this place, my lord, gentle and simple. Perhaps it was one of the farmers' daughters?"

"Certainly it was not a farmer's daughter!" said Lord Heron with great emphasis.

"Then I am afraid I cannot help you, my lord," said Mr. Barrington as he rose. "Shall we go round the house now?"

Lord Heron rose with a sigh. He seemed fated to remain to the last moment in ignorance of the very name, even of the girl who had won his heart.

Mr. Barrington led the way into the hall.

"You have been here before, my lord?"

"Yes," assented Lord Heron.

"But there have been many alterations," said Mr. Barrington, as a footman opened the door of the great drawing-room. "This room has been almost rebuilt. It was decorated by Leighton. The ceiling cost five thousand pounds!"

Lord Heron walked across the magnificent room, and looked round him pensively. There were flowers on the tables, and books. He picked up one of the latter, and as he opened it, he saw written on the blank page, "Iris Knighton, from her beloved father."

With a pang he put the book down as if it had stung him, and crossed to the piano.

Some sheets of music lay on the top, and as he bent and looked at them, the name again stared at him—Iris Knighton!

"Let us go on," he said, in a pained voice.

Mr. Barrington glanced at him questioningly; but Lord Heron, in silence, followed him into the conservatory. It had been built in the Italian style, and utterly regardless of cost; and was, indeed, rather a palm house than an ordinary conservatory. Lord Heron looked round at the rare and exquisite exotics, over which the palms formed a canopy; at the fountain of white marble and the aviary of singing birds.

"It is a lovely place," he said, and walked down one of the aisles.

As he did so he saw, lying beside a cactus, a pair of small scissors and a lady's long glove.

He took it up.

"Miss Knighton's," said Mr. Barrington, in a suppressed voice.

Lord Heron dropped it quickly. The whole place seemed eloquent of the poor girl whom he had supplanted!

Mr. Barrington directed his attention to the view.

"One of the grandest in England," he said, "and all you see, my lord, is your own!"

The words struck almost harshly upon Lord Heron's heart, and the very glove where he had dropped it seemed to echo them.

Mr. Barrington turned, and they went by a corridor, lined with statuary, into the smoking and billiard room.

"This room was not much used," said Mr. Barrington; "but it was always kept in perfect order for visitors. Here is the billiard table. The square often dined here; it faces south, and Miss Knighton liked it better than the large dining-room."

Lord Heron followed him up the staircase into the upper corridor, and a maid-servant opened some of the doors. At one of the doors of Knighton and Beverley, Iris had been a personage of some importance, even in London, and her beauty and grace made her the belle of many a ball and reception. Her former visits had been ones of pleasure and social triumph, but how was she entering London now? In a carrier's cart; nameless, friendless, and alone!

Pale and wan she leaned against the boxes and looked out with an aching feeling of solitude and misery, but still resolved to maintain her determination.

Nearer and nearer the now tired horses drew toward the great drive, and presently they stopped at a wayside inn, and the old carter came to the back of the cart with a steaming cup of coffee and a plate of bread and butter.

"Oh, you're awake, are you, miss?" he said, with a nod and a smile. "You have had a good sleep, haven't you? I've looked in at you now and again, and you was sleeping like an infant. Ah, there's nothing like clean straw! I've heard of folks that stuffed their pillows with hops to make 'em sleep, but give me a toss-up of clean straw in a cart as don't jolt too much! I've brought you a cup of coffee and some bread and butter. I expect you be hungry."

Iris could not eat even a morsel of the bread and butter, but she took the coffee gratefully.

"That's all right," said the old man, cheerily, as he gave him the cup back; "nothing like a cup of coffee in the early morning for ladies, but give me beer!" and with a chuckle he tossed off half a pint.

After a short rest the horses plodded on again, and entering London by a southern suburb, pulled up, finally, at a quiet inn in one of the streets near Covent Garden.

That great thoroughfare, the Strand, was in full stream, and Iris, as she stepped from the cart, felt like a feather dropped upon the bosom of a rushing river.

In her excitement and nervousness she left the bag containing the jewels behind her in the straw, but the old carter climbed in and got it, and held it out to her with a smile.

"Very nearly forgot it," he said, as Iris, flushing a little, was sliding a half-sovereign from her purse. "What! is this for me?" he exclaimed. "Oh, but it's to me, miss!" and he eyed her with a new-born curiosity and interest.

"No, no," said Iris, hurriedly, "it is not too much. I am grateful, deeply grateful to you. But for you—" she stopped, and the old man, scratching his head, looked at her doubtfully.

"Well, it's very liberal of you, miss. I suppose they give you good wages down at the Revels! And now you know where you are! That's the Strand, there," he added, pointing his whip, for Iris looked around confusedly; "what part are you going to?"

Iris hesitated a moment.

"This will do," she said at last; "will you mind my asking you not to let me see one?"

He interrupted her with a chuckle and an elaborate wink.

"I'm mum, miss! Lor' bless you, you've no call to be afraid. It ain't likely a young lady like you would like to have it known that you traveled up to London in old Joe's cart! Wild horses won't drag it out of me. But this 'ere half-sovereign, you're sure you can afford it?"

"Quite sure!" said Iris, with a faint smile, the first her face had worn for many a day. "Good-by, and thank you again," she added, and, letting her veil fall, turned away.

Make a plain sauce from stock, add chopped walnuts and peanut butter, and serve with fish.

"What is the matter, my lord?" he said.

Lord Heron, without removing his eyes from the portrait, raised his hand and pointed to it.

"Whose face—whose portrait is this?" he asked, as his voice, in his effort to make it calm and indifferent, sounded strange and harsh.

"That," said Mr. Barrington, in a low voice; "that is Miss Knighton—Miss Iris, poor girl!"

Lord Heron's hand dropped to his side, then went out toward the back of a chair, and grasped it firmly.

"What is the matter? Are you ill, my lord?" asked Mr. Barrington.

Lord Heron stood for a moment silent and motionless; then he turned, and Mr. Barrington saw that his face was white to the lips.

"Nothing!" he said. "Nothing is the matter!"

CHAPTER XVII.

MINIATURE PAGANINI.

Iris was exhausted, and soon the rhythmic sound of the horses' feet and the tinkle of the bells on their harness lulled her to sleep and to a brief forgetfulness. How long she slept she knew not, but when she awoke the sunlight was streaming through an opening in the canvas cover of the cart, and looking out, she saw before her the cloud of thin filmy smoke which hung like a canopy over the great city.

Mr. Knighton had no town house, but nearly every year he rented one of the large mansions in Park Lane, and he and Iris used to spend a month or two there in the height of the London season, and they had been welcomed as noteworthy additions to the ranks of society. As the daughter and heiress of the lord of the manor of Knighton and Beverley, Iris had been a personage of some importance, even in London, and her beauty and grace made her the belle of many a ball and reception. Her former visits had been ones of pleasure and social triumph, but how was she entering London now? In a carrier's cart; nameless, friendless, and alone!

Pale and wan she leaned against the boxes and looked out with an aching feeling of solitude and misery, but still resolved to maintain her determination.

Carnation Milk

"From Contented Cows"

Thousands of Canadian Homes Now Use No Other Milk Supply

THOUSANDS of Canadian homes buy milk ahead—a week's or a month's supply—with their groceries.

They keep Carnation Milk—on their pantry shelves—pure, rich "whole" milk, fresh whenever needed. You'll prefer to get your milk supply this way, too—once you try Carnation Milk.

Not only because it is handier, but also because it is economical.

The rich milk is delivered to the Carnation condenseries which lie in the heart of Canada's finest dairy counties.

Part of the water is removed by evaporation. Then the milk of creamy consistency is sealed in air-tight containers—and sterilized.

It Keeps for Months—Always Handy

Marriages by Months.

July John should marry March Mary.

The months in which a bride and bridegroom were born have much to do with their married happiness. A boy and girl must each find their "month mate" if they would find their soul mate and be happy.

Each month has its own peculiar gifts of temperament. All lovers have to do is to see that their respective birth months, however different from each other, shall harmonize.

Month can marry month only in the cases of June, July, December, and February. The July girl is meek, visionary, and sensitive. She would be fairly happy with a July boy. He, however, is rough and ready, rather obstinate and obtuse. He would be kind to a July girl, but he would certainly be happier with a March girl, who, though gentle, is tactful and firm. Similarly, the most desirable husband for the July girl is the March boy.

August attracts April.

May boys and girls are passionate and wilful, and two "Mays" might make a Kilkenny cat marriage. May lovers are quick to quarrel and slow to forgive. May should marry January—or remain single.

Oil-and-water marriages may easily be contracted between the Mays, the Augusts, and the Novembers. The Mays and Augusts are extremely self-willed, but very generous. November is the month that supplies the hen-peckers.

August should marry April. April is rather big-headed and self-assertive—but these types often attract each other. April and August "mix" in such a union you usually find that the man is voluble, opinionative and fussy, but his better half who has very little to say is the "boss!"

To those who can face the storms of November—notably March, July, September, and November, itself—the November wife will be loyal and capable, if waspish and meagre with caresses.

Here are some ideal combinations: June and June; June and October; June and February; August and September; September and December; October and November; December and August; and December and April.

October persons are very easy-going, and they marry well with May, February, September, and November—especially November. For the October person is mild, and achieves happiness by allowing shrewish November to rule the roost.

girls born in these months are very good brides for boys born in any month, as they become loving wives and capable home-makers. For the ideal, however, a December girl should wed an April boy. February mates well with June.

YOUNG GIRL FINDS RELIEF

Wants to Tell Other Girls All About It

Evansville, Ind.—"I am eighteen years old and have been bothered for several months with irregular periods. Every month my back would ache and I always had a cold and felt drowsy and sleepy. I worked in a millinery shop and I went to work everyday, but felt stupid and would have such cramps. I had seen Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and had heard several women talk of it, so mother got me some. This Vegetable Compound is wonderful and it helped me very much, so that during my periods I am not now sick or drowsy. I have told many girls about it and would be glad to help anyone who is troubled with similar ailments."—BETHEL L. LINDSEY, 6 Second St., Evansville, Ind.

Some girls lead lives of luxury while others toil for their livelihood, but all are subject to the same physical laws and suffer in proportion to their violation. When such symptoms develop as irregularities, headaches, backaches, bearing-down sensations and "the blues," girls should profit by Miss Lindsey's experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

SURPRISE VISITORS.

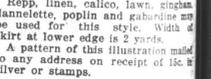

When I decided to visit friends I wrote and told them so; and from them a message ascended, I was to do so. "We have the best my cousin wrote me back when I informed him that I planned to visit at his shack. The smallpox has us in its grip," replied my loving niece. "Do not make your threatened trip, but let us die in peace." And thus I gave them every chance to dodge impending woe, when I, in pomp and circumstance, to their abodes would go. If they desire to have me, they'll let me know, I will, and if they don't it isn't fair to camp on their lot. For I detest the good guys who visit unawares, who think it cunning to surprise poor victims in their lairs. I have a great ancient aunt who plays this elaborate trick, and when they come my eyes pants to do things with a brick. One must rail at spiteful fate, and wring his hands and rant, who sees a taxi at the gate discharge a widowed aunt. She has a birdcage in her hand, and arranges on her ears, and well he knows that she has planned to stay for seven years. If she had only written him that she was breaking loose, he might have had a broken limb, or other good excuse. If you invade another's home unbidden, advertised, there is a puncture in your dome that should be vulcanized.

You must say BAYER Aspirin

Nothing Else is Aspirin—say "Bayer"

Warning! Unless you see name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting Aspirin at all. Why take chances? Accept only an unbroken "Bayer" package which contains directions worked out by physicians during 21 years and proved safe by millions for Colds, Headache, Earache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Lumbago, and Pain. Made in Canada.

All druggists sell Bayer Tablets of Aspirin in handy tin boxes of 12 tablets, and in bottles of 24 and 100. Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer manufacture of Monocetate of Salicylic Acid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

The Washington Conference.

On Thursday next, the third anniversary of the signing of the armistice, (Nov. 11, 1918) the representatives of Great Britain, France, Japan, United States, Italy and other countries meet in Washington, D.C., on the invitation of President Harding, to consider plans for the limitation of armaments, and to discuss conditions existing in the Far East, with the hope of removing friction by the adjustment of the interests of all nationalities interested. All this with the object and hope of securing for all time the peace of the world. The people of the United States are intensely interested in the chances of the success of this conference, and writes Sir Philip Gibbs in an article in the current issue of the Review of Reviews, "the women especially are organising monster-meetings, sending up resolutions to the American Senate, carrying out a campaign of popular propaganda in order that waves of enthusiasm for world disarmament may beat against the walls of the Conference Chamber and (their sound) reach the ears of the international delegates." The same writer then asks the question, "What is happening in England with regard to that Conference in the minds of our people?" and proceeds to answer his own query in these words, "Just nothing at all so far as I can discover. The man in the street is not interested in it. The woman in the kitchen or the suburban drawing-room is thinking of quite other things and does not see at all what Washington means to her. She and her husband decline to believe that it means anything at all to either of them." According to the succeeding context of the article, this lack of interest is not due to apathy, but to the varying and difficult conditions at home, conditions which they are trying to overcome, so that the Washington Conference for the 'nonce gives them no concern.

If it be true, according to a Canadian Press despatch from London, that quoting the Times, "one danger to a satisfactory agreement at Thursday's Conference is the conflict of American and British interests in oil questions, and that if Britain does not make concessions the Conference is likely to back down," then it is apparent that all the enthusiasm and all the propaganda will have been valueless, because of the more important consideration of a matter that is strictly commercial, and the whole thing may break up and the nations will go on feverishly adding to their naval and military strength and piling still greater burdens of taxation upon the already sweating people of every country involved. And that will be the whole world, for no people with interests to protect will be able to hang behind in the race for superior armaments. And the world will thus stand a good chance of being ruined. Neither nations nor people trust each other too far. There is always a suspicion. Great Britain, United States and Japan have interests in the Far East of paramount importance to each. United States and Japan are watching each other like cats watch mice, each one thinking that the other has designs. And so it goes on. France is puzzled to know how naval disarmament can end war on land and sea, having in view the fact that neither Belgium nor France were invaded by a navy in 1914, and also that the jealous nations of Europe are facing each other within easy marching distance. The but recent assassination of the Japanese Prime Minister, which is alleged to have been committed by an insane youth, may further complicate Conference matters. Premier Hara was not an extremist. Rather was he an exponent of moderate policies in all international affairs relating to his country. His removal by violence may have been because of this, and may have been aided and abetted by his political opponents who feared his influence. Altogether, it will mean much for the future, if the complex problems to be discussed at the greatest conference ever before gathered together, in point of universal importance, in the history of the world, can be solved amicably and conclusively.

GRAND CARNIVAL, Prince's Rink, on Wednesday next, Nov. 9th. The decorations will be worth the money. A regular Fairy Garden; Chinese Lanterns, Balloons, Confetti, Flags, Colored Lights, Trees, etc.

Schooner Bastian a Total Wreck. A message received Saturday evening by Mr. T. Cashin from Captain C. Moore of the Ingraham stated that the Danish schooner Bastian, which struck Dean's Rock near Change Islands, some two weeks ago, and later arrived at Joe Batt's Arm in a sinking condition, is now a total wreck at the latter place. The Ingraham was despatched to the vessel's assistance, but the storm coming on nothing could be done. When the gale abated it was found that the vessel was so badly wrecked that salvage was impossible.

C. C. C. Parade. The C.C.C. attended Mass at St. Patrick's yesterday under Major O'Grady. The parade numbered over 300 strong. Falling in at the Armoury at 9.30 a.m. the corps headed by the Battalion Band, proceeded to the church, returning by way of Water Street, Cochrane Street, Military Road and Harvey Road. There are still quite a number of lads without uniforms, but these will be provided before long.

Slight Blaze. At 6.30 yesterday morning the Central and West End Fire Companies had a call to the residence of Mr. C. E. Hunt, Waterford Bridge Road where a blaze was in progress. Sparks from the kitchen stove igniting some woodwork were responsible for the fire. The use of the chemical engine put out the blaze without doing much damage to the home.

GRAND CARNIVAL, Prince's Rink, on Wednesday next, Nov. 9th, at 8.30. See the "Moonlight" Dances. During these numbers all the regular lights in the Rink will be put out, and a powerful Searchlight will play on the Masqueraders.

Stealing Motor Cars. The practice of stealing motor cars is becoming all too prevalent and owners are being put to a lot of annoyance and frequently monetary loss. Last night whilst attending service at Cochrane Street Church some person stole a motor car belonging to Mr. Richard Volsey, and up to this forenoon he had not located it. The matter was reported to the police who are endeavouring to locate the parties responsible for the outrage.

Injured by Explosion.

Cartridge Discharges in Man's Face. The powder which Signalman Bartlett of Cabot Tower had placed in the breach of the mid-day gun yesterday, exploded, injuring Bartlett badly about the face and necessitating his immediate removal to hospital. Mr. Bartlett had had everything in readiness for the firing of the gun but when the charge did not explode he proceeded to investigate. Just as he opened the breach the gun went off and Bartlett received the full discharge of powder in the face. The force of the explosion combined with the suddenness of the shock, caused him to lose consciousness. He was found by Signalman Hayward who rendered first aid and summoned medical attendance. Dr. Tait was quickly on the scene and after examining the injured man, ordered him to be taken to hospital. Bartlett is badly hurt about the face and his eyes were considerably swollen. There is, however, every hope for his complete recovery.

Funeral Notice.

The funeral of the late Corporal John T. Kennedy takes place from the premises of Harvey & Co. this afternoon, en route to his home, Harbor Grace. Corporal Kennedy was killed with the 8th Machine Gun Battalion, American Forces, Unrestricted Casualties, supervising the transfer arrangements. Corporal Mosley accompanied the body from New York and will go right through to destination. Mr. Kennedy, the father of the dead soldier, arrived in town on Saturday and will also accompany his son's remains to their last resting place.

GRAND CARNIVAL, Prince's Rink, on Wednesday next, Nov. 9th. Two prizes for the most original costumes; two prizes for the prettiest costumes, and a prize for the best all round dancer.

Fined for Larceny.

LENTHY CASE CONCLUDED. Beatrice Codnor whose trial, on several charges of larceny, occupied the attention of Judge Morris all Saturday morning and afternoon, was fined $100. The judge said that he did not think she had stolen the wedding presents and other heavy articles which she was accused of taking, but it was evident that she knew who had committed the burglaries, and he imposed a heavy fine because she had not assisted the police. The only thefts proven against her were those of some silver spoons and a brooch. The fine was paid by friends of the accused. During the course of the trial, counsel for the accused declared that she could not have been guilty of taking two pipes which were amongst the stolen goods, as she did not smoke.

Anxiety Allayed.

"LUCKY KEMP" SAFE AT LAPOILE. The schooner "Lucy Kemp" arrived at LaPoile in safety on Saturday, having been a week on the voyage from Placentia to that place. This news which was contained in a message received last night by Mr. W. J. Walsh, M.H.A., will be a great relief to those who had friends and relatives on the missing vessel. The message further states that the big public wharf at St. Mary's was almost totally destroyed by the storm as were also the two ferry wharves at Placentia. A considerable amount of other damage was done.

GRAND CARNIVAL, Prince's Rink, on Wednesday next, Nov. 9th. Hear the Full C.C.C. Band play all their Concert and Dance numbers. The very latest.

Boat Capsized.

TWO BROTHERS DROWNED. The Deputy Minister of Customs received a message Saturday afternoon from the sub-collector at La Poile stating that two young men, Philip and John McDonald were drowned in Saturday's storm through their boat capsizing, while trying to cross the bay. The message further states that both bodies were recovered.

Rosalind Arrives.

S.S. Rosalind arrived in port at 7.30 a.m. from Halifax and New York bringing the following passengers: John Nicholls, Miss Wiltshire, Chas. Hutton, Mr. and Mrs. H. Bastow, Frank Hamlin, Miss C. Butler, Miss D. Conolly, Jackson Jones, Patrick Mahony, H. C. Mott, Mrs. Alice Mott, Alfred Berg, Thos. Cartwright, Miss Rita Ellis, Mrs. L. Footo, Wm. Footo, Mrs. J. Waterfield, Wm. Usher, Chas. Maskins, T. B. Cook, D. F. Moore, A. R. Demers, E. T. Barron, H. Brown, Judge Johnson and 20 second class.

STORM'S TERRIBLE DEVASTATION.

GALE SWEEPS NORTHERN SETTLEMENTS CLEAN—CEMETERIES INUNDATED AND COFFINS WASHED AWAY.

A terrible story of the devastation and havoc which was wrought by the tremendous storm of last week, was brought by a.s. Suva which reached port shortly before noon to-day. The trip was the stormiest in her career. In many northern settlements, stages, stores and motor boats were completely swept away and only dwelling houses remain. In many cases the people are ruined for life as all their gear and even their savings were destroyed by the terrific force of the sea. When the storm commenced on Friday, Oct. 28th, the Suva was at Cape Freels. She ran back to Flow-er's Island at 5 p.m. and anchored there until 10.45 p.m. when she lost her large anchor and chain, and had to put to sea, but Flower's Island was held until 2.15 a.m. when it was lost in a blinding snow storm. Until daylight nothing could be seen. It was found that during the night 31 coaks, some containing oil and supplies, some empty, were lost from the deck. At 3 a.m. Saturday, Valley-field was made and there the Suva stayed until Tuesday morning, when she continued on her route.

SETTLEMENTS COMPLETELY SWEEP. The storm which raged from Friday, Oct. 28th, until daylight on Tuesday Nov. 1st, was the worst in the memory of the oldest inhabitants of Fogo district. Lumsden, Musgrave, Ladle Cove, Carmanville and Indian Island were completely swept. Stages, stores and wharves were destroyed; nothing but dwelling houses remained standing. At Fogo and Change Islands the effects of the storm were not felt so much. The Danish schr. Bastian, which ran ashore near Change Islands is a total wreck. At Tilling Harbor, twenty-three stages and wharves were destroyed; whilst at Seldom-Come-By, which is the finest harbor on the coast, several stages and wharves were washed away. The schooner James Jones, owned by the Union Trading Co., went ashore and became a total wreck. The schr. Vendetta, owned by J. & W. Hiscock, of Briggs, which was proceeding home with over fifty fishermen from the Labrador, dragged her anchors, and to save the passengers and prevent the loss of her cargo, she was forced to cut away. The Vendetta held on until daylight when she was sighted by the tug Ingraham which took off all the passengers and crew. At Indian Island the schr. Bessie S.

owned by the Nfld-Labrador Export Co., with 400 qts. of fish, went ashore. The cargo was saved later. At Hogwood, the wharf was washed away. The smoke-stack on the mill was blown down and lumber was hurled several hundred yards from the pile by the wind.

BOBIES WASHED FROM GRAVES. At Gander Bay, which is inland, roads were washed away and the cemetery was torn up by the terrific seas, coffins and bodies being washed away. At Carmanville, the damage to the general destruction and two of them were smashed to pieces. At Ladle Cove, everything was lost, excepting several motor boats, which were washed into Freshwater Pond from the sea. At Musgrave several dwelling houses and twenty-five motor boats were destroyed. Even cellars went in the general destruction and one man lost twenty-five barrels of potatoes. A considerable amount of wreckage was picked up near this settlement, where it was washed ashore. It consisted chiefly of schooner's rails, hatches, several tubs of butter and some chests of tea. These last were marked "E.M." Lumsden suffered more severely than any other settlement, having been clean swept. Here, as at Gander Bay, cemeteries were torn up and the coffins and bodies were washed away. At Wild Cove, near Seldom, not a motor boat, stage, store or wharf is left.

PEOPLE RUINED. In all these storm-swept settlements, many of the people are completely ruined and it is impossible to estimate the extent of the damage done. Fishing gear, which had been purchased with the savings of many years, had been handed down to the present owners by their grandfathers, was destroyed. Stages which will require considerable labor and material to rebuild have disappeared. Not only have nearly all the stores gone, but their contents, all the supplies for the winter, went with them and immediate relief will be needed. In these districts the fishery was poor and now, with the disastrous effects of the storm added, the condition of the people is pitiful. The Susu experienced storms all along the coast on the run to this port. She brought along the following passengers: Miss Collins, Miss M. Grant, Miss E. Sheppard, Miss V. Hart, Mrs. M. Learning, Mrs. J. Hart, Mrs. E. Penny, Capt. R. Bragg, Capt. J. Blackwood, K. Way, P. Coleridge, Rev. J. Stead, A. Budden, W. E. Murdoch and twelve in steerage.

Delayed at Sydney.

HERRING FISHERY OPENS. S.S. Portia, which arrived in port Saturday afternoon from the Western Coastal Service, was delayed 48 hours at Sydney on account of the storm which prevented her from sailing. At the Cape Breton capital a small pier and several bridges were washed away by the great storm. The South West Coast does not seem to have suffered much from the effects of the gale on the whole, but it was the worst ever felt on the coast. At Francois, Burgeo and LaPoile districts, a lot of damage was done, and the chert and great amount of fish or fishery gear was lost. The herring fishery has now opened at Bay of Islands and prospects look bright. The condition of the people along the coast has improved, and no trouble is being experienced in disposing of fish as several merchants are buying. The Portia had a fairly good run down, but experienced some rough weather. She reports a schooner belonging to Channel, which was out in the big storm, as having turned up safely yesterday.

Schooner on Rocks.

Mr. L. Earle of Earle and Sons, Fogo, received a message this morning stating that the Danish schooner Fulton had gone ashore at Harbor Rock at the entrance to Fogo yesterday evening. The vessel was en her way from Catalina in ballast to load the wrecked schooner Bastian's cargo. The ballast is being removed from the Fulton, and it may be possible that she will float off at high tide.

Dispute Unsettled.

The dispute over the hauling of winter loads by the truckmen has not yet been settled despite the efforts of President Jones Barter to have freight owners come around to the union view of the matter. A special meeting of truckmen is being called to-night when action in the matter will be considered.

"Meigle's" Report.

A NUMBER OF CREWS ON LABRADOR IET.

S.S. Meigle, Capt. Burgess, arrived in port at 2 a.m. from Labrador after a round trip occupying over a month. The Meigle left here on the 6th inst. and went as far as Nain. Good weather was met until the return trip, when on the 16th it became stormy and continued so for 6 days during which time the ship was anchored in Foulmer Bay, Makovik Bay. The ship brought up about 350 fishermen and their families, which were landed at various points in Conception Bay. The Meigle reports that there is no shortage of food amongst the Esquimaux, but that a large number of fishermen were hard put to get enough to keep them alive. This is owing to the habit of the fishermen using up their supplies when nearing the time to leave the coast. This year, owing to delay, they suffered in consequence. The food shortage was particularly felt at Indian Tickle, Sand Banks, Spotted Islands and Black Tickle. The people from these places begged to be taken off, but the ship was crowded and accommodation could not be found. Some of these people had nothing to eat except hard biscuit and fish. The Lobelia has since reached there and supplied their wants. Very few wrecks are reported on the coast, and only one wrecked crew was brought up. The vessel was owned by Captain Strickland of Spaniards Bay and the men were picked up at Dark Tickle. A young man from Nain who had his hand blown off in a running accident was attended to by Dr. Smith of the Meigle, but he had to be brought to the Grenfell, St. Anthony Hospital for further treatment. Three sick people were also landed at Harbor Grace. The Meigle reports the Sebastopol as on the way South from Spear Harbor with a full freight and crews. There are still over 100 people waiting to get South but none are below Cartwright and Packs Harbor. The Meigle brought along only a small quantity of freight owing to the anxiety of the fishermen to get passage. The ship ran short of water and coal and took supplies at St. Anthony. The Meigle has been ordered to again proceed North and will sail Thursday morning.

"Lobelia" Delayed.

The Minister of Shipping received the following message this morning from S.S. Lobelia, Capt. Taylor: "Ship detained at Seal Islands owing to stormy weather. Had to supply crews (on shore) with food as all short. The Lobelia is on her way South with 250 fishermen and their families."

A RUSSIAN STATEMENT. RIGA, Nov. 7. Most celebrations of the fourth anniversary of Coup d'Etat of Nikolai Lenin, which took place November 7, 1917, began in Petrograd on Saturday. Spectacular demonstrations, either in Russia or among Communists abroad, will be distasteful to the Moscow Government which is declared to be endeavoring to demonstrate, by means of visits to foreign powers, such as that recently sent out concerning recognition by Russia of her debts, and by the partial reopening of Russia to traders and newspaper correspondents, that the revolution is over, and a new economic policy is well under way.

DISCREDITING CHINA. PEKIN, Nov. 7. Chinese officials informed a correspondent that United States Legation received a cable despatch signed Secretary of State Hughes, instructing the Legation to inform the Chinese Government that China's failure to meet the principal and interest on a loan of $5,500,000, due the Continental Commercial Trust and Savings Company of Chicago, due Oct. 31, had ruined China's financial and political position in the United States, and seriously injured China's chances at the Far Eastern Conference. The despatch also said to have asserted that United States Government might find it difficult to continue to recognize the Chinese Government as a competent Chinese Government.

FIREMEN WASHED OVERBOARD. LUNENBURG, Nov. 7. Henry Kneikle, Peltsen South and Harry Conrad, of Lahave, were washed overboard from the fishing schooner "Bishop King" on the Quero Bank Oct. 29. It became known here when the vessel arrived in port, today, as a result of the hurricane that day.

Coastal Boats. CROSSBIE'S. S. S. Susu arrived from the Fogo at service at noon today. GOVERNMENT. S. S. Portia in port. S. S. Prospero on northern coastal service.

(Before Chief Justice Horwood.) Elias Wellman and Henry E. Cowan, Fred W. Hayward and C. C. Pratt, assignees for the benefit of Elias Wellman, and A. S. Radovsky and Joseph S. Radovsky, trading as the Universal Trading Co.

This is an application on behalf of the plaintiff to strike out the following part of the particulars of the defendant's counterclaim, viz., "Damage for non delivery of 26435 barrels of herring, being loss of profit $7048.80, on the ground that such particulars tend to prejudice and delay the fair trial of this action." Mr. McNelly for plaintiff, Mr. Hunt for defendant. Mr. McNelly is heard in support of the application. Mr. Hunt is heard in reply. It is ordered that the application be allowed with leave to amend.

Lady St. John Appellant vs. Harold Conrad Respondent. Mr. McNelly for appellant, Mr. Foote, K.C. for respondent. The hearing was adjourned until Monday, 14th inst. at 11 a.m.

Trepassey Local Derailed.

The Trepassey local was derailed east of La Manche, Hell Hill, whilst on the way to St. John's at 10.30 a.m. Saturday. Six cars left the track but no damage was done, nor were any passengers hurt. A wrecking crew was quickly on the scene and replaced the derailed cars on the track. The train arrived in town at 8 p.m. Saturday, having been delayed altogether just over eight hours. The derailment was not caused by a broken rail but by the condition of the road bed. The Trepassey local is now running on schedule.

PASSENGERS AND FREIGHT HELD UP.

Special to Evening Telegram. ST. JOSEPH'S, To-day. Several passengers and a lot of freight left here owing to the Portia not calling on way from Westward, thus causing inconvenience to the people, as we have no means of communication with the city, except by connecting with train at Holyrood, over 28 miles of a road that would be considered bad 100 years ago. The whole people are indignant, and if our representatives can get money to build motor roads to other parts of the district, where they have steamers and trains calling daily, the least they can do is to see that we get the Portia going and returning every trip. Jewellery Store Burgled.

THIEF MAKES BIG HAUL. A burglar who forced an entrance to the shop of Mr. A. McNamara, Jeweller of Water Street, last night, got away with goods to the value of over $300. The entrance was made through a door in the back, which was broken open. Mr. McNamara usually goes down to have a look at the shop in the nighttime and when he entered it shortly after 8 o'clock last night he heard someone running down the stairs into the basement but was too late to see the burglar. It was then he discovered that the shop had been rifled. The police have the matter in hand and are confident that they will discover the thief before long.

bottom; several of her beams have been strained and she is leaking. The Acadia has been very unfortunate of late. On her last trip to Cape Race, with a supply of coal for the lights, she lost both of her anchors. The vessel is in charge of J. Salter's Sons, North Sydney, and Mr. Parsons, of this city, is leaving for St. Pierre shortly as their representative to see about the repairs to the vessel.—Sydney Record, Nov. 2.

The Acadia is under command of Captain Gaulton, and was driven ashore in spite of the fact that she had anchored in one of the bays on the south coast of Newfoundland. According to the information received by Mr. Parsons from Capt. Gaulton, the vessel has been refloated and will be taken to St. Pierre for repairs. The vessel sustained some damage to her

The Model of the Rue de Matin.

(By EDWARD HALLETT, in Spare-moments)

"Ah, at last 'tis finished" and the brush was thrown down with a sigh of relief.

What mattered it that its point, pink and rosy with fresh colour, struck a beautiful Madonna full in one eye? Radin, the artist, did not see, and if he had, would hardly have cared—a great task was done; he had proven to his own satisfaction, at least, that he could reproduce a picture of the human face: all other matters were but secondary to his great enthusiasm over his victory.

He was a genius, was Radin, at reproducing pictures of flowers. Reproductions, I say, for his powers of creation were exceedingly limited. Let him see a beautiful painting of roses or what not, let it be but a copy itself of an original, and, in a short time, with that before him, he had a copy that in beauty and artistic finish, far outranked even the original.

Money came easily with him, for the painters of the originals were glad to grant him permission to use them for a compensation, because his copies sold high. He was eager, however, to try his hand at reproducing a figure study, but until lately had not happened to see one that he cared to use in a first attempt.

But that very morning, going down the Rue de Bel, past the little cigar store next the corner of the Rue de This, his eye had fallen on a beautiful picture of a face beneath which it was announced that a certain brand of cigarettes was "for sale here." The face held his gaze it claimed his attention; a girl budding into womanhood, eyes laughing, yet serious, as one laughs when frightened; cheeks, rosy with healthy teeth, golden wonder at something scarce seen; hair, golden and neatly unrestrained; the figure draped in beautiful folds of purple scarce caught save slightly over the bosom—what a study!

Small wonder that he was entranced! Inspiration said, "Here is the face you can copy—try!"

He knew Poi Plow, the keeper of the shop. A couple of francs easily induced a sale of the picture-advertisement, and—

Well, it was done—gloriously done, as I who have often seen it, can testify. Inspiration doubly inspired—perfection was near improved upon—and Radin was radiant.

He sat before his lovely creation—sat there for hours; he feasted his eyes upon it; he drank in its beauty and loveliness; hardly could he lend it to fill an engagement. Back again he came, and rejoiced over the effect of his "Maiden" beneath the bright electric light.

At last he seemed satisfied—seemed, I say, for even after retiring to his couch, he could hardly restrain the mad desire to drink again of the beauty of his splendid reproduction.

It grew upon him as the days went by, this great delight in his first figure picture. He was almost lonely when duty called him away from the studio, and peaceful when he basked beneath the lovely eyes. It came to him one day, and before long, too, that he loved this artistic creation far more than he had ever loved a maid of flesh and blood. Dire dilemma! What was to be done?

The passion grew upon him, and his case became truly pitiable. One can't make love to a thing of canvas and paint; there is no reciprocity possible and what was to be done? "I can't destroy you—I can't. I can't!" he wailed over and over in his misery.

One day he rushed out upon the Rue de Matin, nearly mad in his great passion. A voice caught his ear. "Well, you're a great one, aren't you, nearly running me down?"

What was this before him—his picture, his "Maiden," in street costume? Dazed, bewildered, he stopped. "What's the matter, old boy?" the girl said.

"I—who—what—are you alive?" he tried to articulate.

"Well, yes, just a bit!" laughing gently. "Why do you ask?"

By this time he was somewhat composed. With his accustomed dignity, for Radin can be terribly dignified—he said: "Your pardon, madame, but will you

The Model of the Rue de Matin.

(By EDWARD HALLETT, in Spare-moments)

"Cert, old fel," "madame" not too elegantly replied. "But aren't introductions first on order?"

He told her who he was. "The Radin," he said simply, but she knew him. "You're a dandy at flowers, you are! Often have I posed before a background of your reproductions. I'm Juliet, the model of the Rue de Matin, you must know."

There was hardly need of his questioning; all too evident it was that she, this beautiful girl with her cascade of ringlets, was the original of the picture that held him fast bound in the thrall of love.

He told her all. How she softened! Radin is a good, true man, as men go—has a love story, as most bachelors have—girl died, poor thing! two days before wedding. Yes, he told her of the new love. She was interested. Her lip quivered with feeling and sympathy.

Well, then it was her turn. How glad I am on Radin's account, that I can report—and, better, know its truth—that she was pure—a pearl in the mire of studio model life—almost too young, if that is possible in Paris, to be contaminated by the horrible influence surrounding her.

Their acquaintance did not end here; she returned his love, and, almost before any of us knew the story, they were married. I spend some of the pleasantest hours of my lonely life with them in their cosy home in the Rue de Deucon by the Market.

Astronomers' Conference.

EASTER TO BE A FIXED FEAST. Rome, (Associated Press)—The Vatican has announced that a conference of astronomers will take place in Rome next April under the presidency of Cardinal Mercier with the object of reforming the calendar and fixing Easter.

The occurrence this year of Easter Sunday on March 27, within five days of its earliest possible date, revived the proposal for a fixed Easter. No fewer than 16 Easters will happen in March between now and the close of this century, and the average of one every five years—unless something is done to prevent the erratic wandering of the festival between March 22 and April 25. Under the existing ecclesiastical rule Easter Sunday can fall on any of 35 dates. The present rule is that Easter must be a Sunday and that the ecclesiastical full moon (which is not the same as the real moon) upon which it depends must occur on one of the seven days immediately preceding. Thus, to have Easter Sunday on its earliest date, March 22, the ecclesiastical moon must be full on March 21, which date must also be a Saturday; but so rarely are these conditions satisfied in the same years that it is over a century since Easter fell on March 22, and it will not again fall so early until the year 2285.

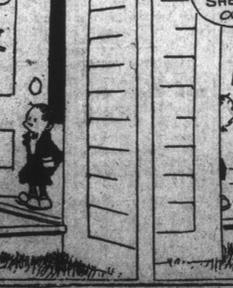

Of late years the inconvenience of a movable Easter has induced calendar reformers to propose reforms which will either make Easter a fixed festival or greatly restrict its wanderings. One suggestion is that Easter Sunday should be assigned to the third Sunday after the spring equinox, which would give it a range of eight days, between April 5 and April 13, according to the date and day of the week on which the equinox falls.

Other proposals aim at an Easter absolutely fixed to one date. That, of course, would necessitate a radical reform of the whole calendar, under which the same weekday should always fall on the same date. Any such reform will probably have to be universal throughout Christendom, for the moon-controlled Easter is common to all civilized countries; though, owing

The care of the teeth is now recognized as a necessity. In fact the large hospitals all over the world examine the patients' teeth and where it is possible put them in good condition before attempting a surgical operation. Experience has shown that the patient has a better chance for recovery with a clean healthy mouth than without it. This ought to convince the most skeptical that care of the teeth is requisite to health.

Produce and Provisions.

From Saturday's Trade Review.
Codfish—The total exports this week amounted to 37,540 quintals as follows:—From St. John's—By Schooner Clara B. Creaser 2,247 quintals to Messrs. Baine, Johns, Barbados & Co., Job Bros. & Co., Monroe & Co. and Campbell & McKay; by schooner Netherton from Messrs. Bros. & Co. Ltd., 4,571 quintals to Messrs. H. Carter & Co., 5,314 quintals to Messrs. Gilbert, E. Waiter & Co., by schooner Export Co., 4,698 quintals to Pernambuco; from Messrs. A. E. Hickman Co., Ltd., 1,874 quintals to Kingston, W.I.; by schooner Gaspe 5,520 quintals from Jamaica, Ltd. to Pernambuco; from schooner Amy B. Silver by schooner T. Wakeley & Sons, Harbour Street, 2,232 quintals to Oporto; by schooner and barque 2,750 qtls. to Oporto; by schooner Roy Bruce from A. E. Hickman Co., Ltd., St. Jacques, 3,580 quintals to Oporto; by schooner Mattawa from Messrs. Farquhar & Co., Bonne Bay, 425 qtls. to Halifax, and by schooner from Messrs. Clement, Moulton and Webb, Ramea, 4,223 qtls. to Oporto.

Beef—It is claimed that the price of beef as last week was not correct. A local agent here made a mistake in translating his cypher telegram and believed that he was authorized to pay $105 per ton here, whereas it was intended to be that the price delivered in Boston, which means less than $90.00 per ton at St. John's. There are no further developments in the market, and owing to the heavy weather there has been very little business done.
Pork—The imports of Pork for the week amounted to 544 barrels, making the total for St. John's 18,405 barrels, against 21,500 this date last year. The market continues dull without appreciable change in quotations. American reports continue to show disappointing exports from that country, with consequent accumulation of stock. This week's prices are:—No. 1, $23.50; No. 2, $23.00; No. 3, $22.50. The new duty on Pork the week will be seen to be down to previous quotations.

Beef—The imports of Beef for the week are 1,293 barrels, making the total 22,190, as compared with about the same quantity last year at same date. It is the opinion of dealers here that present beef prices are not capable of much further downward pressure, but it is noted that when we consider the present of beef is now quoted at local prices. It is deplorable that local prices in fresh beef seem to be able to exist in existing conditions and to still be existing war prices for beef. The market for barreled beef are:—No. 1, $23.50; No. 2, $23.00; No. 3, $22.50. The new duty on Pork the week will be seen to be down to previous quotations.

Wool—The market is unchanged at present, according to reports from Refinery. The market continues inactive for wool, owing to the immense amount of new sugar held at points of destination. The imports to St. John's for the week were 835 barrels and 200 sacks of White Granulated Sugar, making the total to date 63,300 lbs. as against $3,290 same date last year. The price is $10.80 for lots per lb. and $11.00 in single barrels.

Potatoes—The whole trade is now in home-grown potatoes, none having been imported for over a month. The prices are down to very reasonable prices and range from $2.00 to $3.00 per bushel in St. John's, according to quality, and $1.50 to $1.80 in the outports. The want of a cheap and convenient method of freighting the surplus output of potatoes to St. John's and other local points is rendering agricultural enterprise and government expenditure largely to a very great extent.
Apples—The imports this week were 100 barrels of seasonal fruit from Canada. The market is now well supplied and there are some big consignments of winter keeping stock due to arrive the week after next. The local quotations are as follows:—$7.50 "Kings" and "Wagners" No. 1; $7.00 No. 2; $5.50 for No. 3, and $6.50 for "Blenheims." Next week there will be "Baldwins" and "Starks" in the market for about $6.50 per barrel for No. 1.

Hay—The imports this week were 1,773 bales from Quebec, Halifax and Prince Edward Island. The market is now believed to be in a favorable condition from the buyers viewpoint, as the price of this season, and the next change in prices in Canada is expected to be upward, as is almost invariably the case in December. The local quotations are, $50.00 for lots per ton and $52.00 to $53.00 for single bales.

Oats—The Gulf steamers brought in no less than 4,296 bales to the St. John's Market this week. Heavy shipments are also due next week. Importers are now rushing business while navigation is good and space is available. Besides it is realized the price of oats has reached rock bottom for this season, and nothing can be gained by holding on longer. The St. John's quotations are, $3.70 per sack of 4 bushels for White and $3.50 for mixed, wholesale.

Currants—The new crop of fruit is now on the market and selling at reasonable prices. The quality was never better and meeting with a good demand.

Spanish Raisins—A very short crop is reported this year, and the market is held very firm. The new fruit is now on the way and expected by an early steamer. We hear of shipments to arrive next week: Valencia, 4 Crown Layers, Malaga 2 and 3 Crown Muscates, Malaga Seedless Raisins, Malaga Table Raisins.

Smyrna Broad Flgs—We hear of a shipment direct from Smyrna of high class goods at very reasonable prices.

Mexican Oil Production.
 MEXICO CITY, Oct. 20. (Associated Press)—More than 20,000,000 barrels of petroleum are stored in tanks and behind dams in Mexico, of which two-thirds is American owned, according to recent figures given out by the Department of Industry and Commerce. Reports from Tampico indicate that oil shipments are exceedingly heavy from that port, and that approximately 12,000,000 barrels were exported in September. Less than 5,000,000 barrels were taken out during August, prior to the settlement of the controversy at Tampico between American oil producers and the Mexican government.

Far Eastern Republic Has Improved Position
 Riga, Oct. 15. (Associated Press)—The economic position of the Far Eastern Republic with headquarters in Chita has much improved lately, affirms A. T. Krasnochevok, formerly a Chicago lawyer, and until recently premier of that republic. Interviewed in Moscow by the newspaper, NOVY PUD he said:

"Government undertakings are approaching the level of pre-war production. The republic has nationalized only industrial enterprises of state importance or owned by enemies. Private external and internal trading is legalized. Finance is based on the free circulation of gold and silver rubles, while 1,000 paper rubles equal 10 copeks, gold. (A copek normally was 1/100 part of a rouble)."

"At the head of the Foreign, War and Home Departments are Communists. A powerful revolutionary army safeguards the republic's independence, assisted by red guerrilla troops, which combined, constitute a considerable force."

"The increasing number of applications made for gold and silver rubles, commissions indicate the favorable opinion entertained abroad of our resources. Many proposals have also been received from Japanese capitalists seeking concessions, but the republic is disinclined to entertain them until its territory is cleared of Japanese troops."

Mystery More Mysterious.

One of the most closely-guarded secrets of nature is how the microscopic ovum (or egg) of a living thing develops into a full organism. The starting point is a tiny speck of plasma which is barely visible even to the sharpest eye, and which shows comparatively little structure even under the most powerful microscope. In the early days of science it was thought that the adult body must be entirely present, on a very minute scale, in the germ. The germ of a bird, for instance, would be a real bird of such proportions that we could not see the various organs. The modern microscope has made an end of all this nonsense, but it has made the mystery more mysterious than ever. The germ-cell breaks into two, then four, and so on until there is a cluster of cells like a blackberry. Then nerve and muscle, stomach and lungs and brain, slowly take shape; the most marvelous machine in the world is built up, in the course of a few weeks or months, out of the tiny germ. It has taken man ten thousand years of civilization to learn how to make (in the front part of a camera) a clumsy imitation of the front part of the eye. Yet the unconscious, embryonic forces build up in a week or two the magnificent eye of a bird!

BREAD AND GRAVY.
 There's a heap o' satisfaction in a chunk o' pumpkin pie, An' I'm always glad I'm livin' when the cake is passin' by, An' I guess at every meal-time I'm as happy as can be, For I like whatever dishes mother gets for Bud an' me; But there's just one bit of eatin' which I hold supremely great, An' that's good old bread and gravy when I've finished up my plate.

I've eaten fancy dishes an' my mouth has watered, too, I've been at banquet tables an' I've run the good things through, I've had sea food up in Boston, I've had pompano down South, For most everything that's edible I've put into my mouth, But the finest treat I know of, now I publicly relate, Is a chunk o' plain home cookin' an' I've finished up my plate.

Now the epicures may snicker and the hotel chefs may smile, But when it comes to eating I don't hunger much for style; For an 'empty' man, waitin' fillin', an' you can't do that with things Like bread o' guinea under glass, or carried turkey wings-- You want just plain home cookin' an' the chance to sit an' wait For a piece o' bread an' gravy when you've finished up your plate.

Oh, it may be I am common an' my tastes not much refined, But the meals which suit my fancy are the gold-old-fashioned kind, With the food right on the table an' the hungry kids about, An' the mother an' the father handing all the good things out, An' the knowledge in their presence that I needn't fear to state, That I'd like some bread an' gravy when I've finished up my plate.

Lord Weir on Trade Revival.

Lord Weir, the famous captain of industry, makes these suggestions in the Glasgow Herald for the revival of trade:—
 (a) That we concentrate on reviving employment for workers in their own trades by initiating a demand for the products of these trades.
 (b) That we cancel this demand by reduction in price, and thereby quick-sible for the revival of employment through more efficient conditions of industrial production are the employers and the trade unions, and so far as I know, the Government have not yet pointed out to these authorities for reviving employment. I am unaware of any meeting yet held between any responsible body of employers and trade union leaders to consider the employment position and to make proposals as to its amelioration, and it is useless to ignore the difficulties associated with a meeting between the employers and trade unions.

 "These are all eminently practical and would be immediately effective, but, unfortunately, it would appear as if the Government cannot dissociate them from political considerations. We are faced with a grave national emergency. Must we wait for that emergency to become graver still before we deal with industry on a common-sense basis?

 "The Prime Minister solved the munitions difficulty by bringing industry right up against its war problem and making it shoulder its responsibilities. The same handling can go far to solving the employment question."

A Soldier's Protest.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Being a soldier who served during the war and who was unfortunate enough to be wounded, I crave space in your paper to express my indignation at the treatment we wounded soldiers have received at the hands of the Government. When Mr. Squires issued his Manifesto in 1919, he said (referring to our sailors and soldiers) that he would put them on the same status as the soldiers and sailors of the neighboring Dominion, Canada. Shortly after Mr. Squires was elected Premier he was asked to redeem his promise to the G.W.V.A. but with the exception of a 20 per cent. bonus to totally disabled, and a 10 per cent. increase to all other persons for 1920 only, no increase has been granted. Considering that two years have elapsed since the Premier gave his promise to pay Canadian rates of pensions, one cannot blame the returned men for coming to the conclusion that he is only bluffing and that the time is now ripe for using means other than those employed during the last two years. When we left here to fight for our King and Country we had a higher sense of moral duty than the persons who said "We were paid to fight." When a Committee of the G.W.V.A. met the Premier in June 1920, he told them that the Canadian scale of pensions was being considered and that Dr. Parsons had gone to Ottawa to compare the Canadian scale of pensions with that of Newfoundland, also that it would be dealt with in full on receipt of his (Dr. Parsons) report. Last week (nearly a year and a half later) the same bluff was used. Dr. Parsons arrived home and tabled his report, and we of the G.W.V.A. concluded that it was favourable to the adoption of the Canadian scale, considering we heard nothing to the contrary. Last Fall, we were told by our Executive at a general meeting of our Association, that, (in the absence of

(the Prime Minister) they had taken up the matter with Mr. Coaker, who assured them that the money would be paid, and that it would make a nice Christmas box for the Veterans. The money was never paid, Mr. Editor, and the men's indignation was so great in May, this year, that the Premier agreed to the suggestion of the G.W.V.A. to appoint a Parliamentary Committee of the G.W.V.A. on Pensions, etc. The Parliamentary Committee tabled their report which was never adopted, although we were assured that it would be. It seems rather peculiar that the technicalities of the House of Assembly were not observed in the Resolutions presented by the Prime Minister, and which were different from the report of the Parliamentary Committee. The natural decrease yearly in pensions is about 10 per cent. The amount paid to-day is considerably less than that of 1919. Let us take the Pensions Grant for the fiscal year 1919-1920 which was $556,000.00. That of 1920-21 was $502,500.00, a decrease of $53,500. We can consider approximately another decrease of $150,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1922, making a total decrease of about $300,000.00 for two years. A great many of the Veterans contend that the administration of the Pensions, Militia and other soldiers' departments are paid out of the soldiers' and sailors' Pension Grants and that the amount actually paid in pensions is considerably less than the amount given above. We were told that the amount necessary to pay the 20 per cent. increase for one year to totally disabled soldiers would be $24,000. If that be so, the amount paid in pensions in A. B. C. and D. classes for one year would be $60,000. Also to give a 10 per cent. increase to all other pensioners for one year would cost $18,000 making a total for one year of $180,000.00 or in all $264,000.00. In closing, Mr. Editor let me remind the Prime Minister that the returned soldiers and sailors have exhausted their patience over this matter and it will be to his advantage to stop quibbling.

Yours truly,
SOLDIER.

Coaker's Regulations.

MR. MUNN RELATES A FEW FACTS. Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Why the "Evening Advocate" draws its name from the political animosities is hard for me to understand, as I have always expressed my views in no uncertain way regarding Coaker's crazy regulations, that have caused such trouble and ruin to the whole Country, and have no hesitation in giving the public the facts. Read my speech, published in the "Advocate" given at Coaker's Conference in the Grenfell Institute one year ago last September, when these regulations were being put in force. Coaker promised then, that there would be no interference with any person selling to whatever market he liked. Shortly afterwards he got members of the Advisory Board to form an Exporters Association, which the Directors understood was to be a branch of the Board of Trade, but it was run by Coaker and his Advisory Board without any approval of the Board of Trade. One of their first efforts was to appoint George Hawes, as Selling Agent for Italy. For the next two months, which is the best fish selling season of the year, there was nothing done with Italy. Both Greece and Spain were completely overstocked, and everyone who had any conception of the fish business saw nothing but ruin starting them in the face. I had two cargoes of fish on the way to Gibraltar, and knew I had to break my promises to repay the Bank for advances I had got from them, and also to break my promises to pay everyone else I owed, or I must find some means to dispose of this fish, so I dropped everything and left for Europe at short notice.

I protested against this, and was given permission to sell all I could for Italy as well, and had no sooner completed my arrangements to get to work than Premier Squires, who had left London in an aeroplane with Mr. Hawes, wired the Government insisting that Geo. Hawes be appointed "Sole Agent" for Italy. For the next two months, which is the best fish selling season of the year, there was nothing done with Italy. Both Greece and Spain were completely overstocked, and everyone who had any conception of the fish business saw nothing but ruin starting them in the face. I had two cargoes of fish on the way to Gibraltar, and knew I had to break my promises to repay the Bank for advances I had got from them, and also to break my promises to pay everyone else I owed, or I must find some means to dispose of this fish, so I dropped everything and left for Europe at short notice.

The first telegram I got on arrival in Italy in December was one from Coaker, telling me that Hawes had been dismissed as Agent, and I was to take his place. I saw Mr. Ragnoil at once, and he pointed out to me, that he had telegraphed to Coaker, when Premier Squires was in Genoa, that if he appointed Hawes, or any one else, as "Sole Agent" it would cause trouble, and the Regulations must be arranged to allow more than one person in Newfoundland to sell fish to Italy. This information I am given to understand, was suppressed by Coaker, and caused the whole trouble, for not even the Premier's advice would have been taken if it was known. It at once wired Coaker declining the position as "Sole Agent," and told him business could be done as soon as this "Sole Agency" was cancelled.

Mr. Ragnoil told me he was ready to buy fifty to one hundred thousand (50 to 100,000) quintals of fish, and was reserving this order for Newfoundland to the last moment, but as he had some very favorable offers from France he did not intend to wait any longer. I wired several of the principal merchants in St. John's, as well as my own firm, and asked them to let everyone know the seriousness of the situation, and gave them facts and figures. The replies I got were that Coaker had started retaliation against any firm who would order a cargo of fish from Malaga to Italy, and that they would be prevented from doing any more business in Newfoundland. Mr. Ragnoil told me there was no hope for anyone now, and showed me contracts he had drawn up with agents of French fish merchants for about 100,000 quintals of fish. He thanked me for my efforts to help Newfoundland business. He gave me the chance to include my two cargoes, which I was glad to do, and this was the very last purchase he made. Subsequent events have proved abundantly that the information I gave was correct. Coaker's stubborn pig-headedness, thinking everyone was wrong except himself, and without any correct knowledge of the trade, has led the whole country into its present troubles.

In conclusion it would be very interesting to know, how Coaker carried out these regulations with his own fish. If there was any one person more than another who was bound to carry out these regulations, it was the man who had made them, but who now tries to fasten the blame of their failure on others, who had always opposed them. I was in Spain in March, 1920, and found that Coaker had been there just a week or ten days ahead of me, with two or three other Newfoundlanders. A fish merchant told me that Coaker had given them all a good laugh, at the way he made a dupé of the rest of us. He made everyone hold for top regulation price, but went off to Seville himself, and sold his own cargo on the sch. "President Coaker" for three or four shillings a quintal under everybody. These are facts that can be easily proved, and I challenge Coaker to clear himself.

Yours truly,
W. A. MUNN.
P.S.—I have quite a few more notes in my pocket book if wanted.—W.A.M. Nov. 7, 1921.

Tribute to Captain and Crew of Meigle.

Some of the passengers who came up with Captain Burgess on the Meigle, think that owing to the long time it has taken to complete the voyage it is due to the Captain to express their gratitude to him for his wonderful patience and handling of the ship in a prolonged series of storms that few of us have ever known equalled. The temptation to take risks when food, coal, and water were exhausted and when the enormous crowd of passengers on board were driven below by bad weather made existence a horror can only be understood on the spot. As an example of patient seamanship in the face of every incentive to hurry at all costs, the voyage seems to us almost unique. The untiring labours of the crew, and especially the cooks and stewards to keep the ship clean and decent in an unequal struggle was a lesson in self-control to everyone. The impossible task of the purser was done through the whole twenty-four hours with a good nature that was no small factor in keeping the unfortunate passengers contented. Dr. Smith needs no words from us, suffice it to say that he kept up his end with credit.

CAPTAIN BRADBURY INJURED.

The schooner Jean Wakely with the crew of the wrecked schooner Clintonia on board reached port about midnight. Captain W. H. Bradbury of the Clintonia, badly burned about the face, was taken from the Jean Wakely and moved to hospital shortly after the vessel's arrival in port. The Clintonia, owned by Messrs. Campbell McKay, left Placentia on Friday, Oct. 26th for Oporto with a cargo of 3,445 qts. cod-fish. Whilst going out of the bay the schooner met a hurricane and part of the rigging was carried away. Shelter was sought near Cape St. Mary's, but the anchor stock broke when let go, and there was nothing to do but run before the gale. During Saturday the vessel was hove-to but Sunday the Captain was again obliged to run before the wind. On Monday morning the 29th the two masts went by the board breaking off at the deck. At the time the vessel was 230 miles S.S.W. of Cape Race. Several steamers were in sight during Tuesday and Wednesday but it was not until Thursday night that the Jean Wakely, answering to distress signals, came to the rescue. Preparations were made to fire the wreck and Capt. Bradbury sprinkled the cabin with gasoline. The cabin lamp was burning at the time and the gas from the oil caused an explosion, as a result of which Capt. Bradbury was badly burned about the face and hands and the cook, Arthur Kelly, was also burned, but only slightly. Captain Pettie of the Wakely did all possible to relieve the sufferings of the injured men, but it is likely that it will be some weeks before Captain Bradbury will be convalescent. The Clintonia carried a crew of 7, including a Portuguese stowaway.

Household Notes.

Chopped dates are good in muffins and rolls.
Game should be accompanied with a fruit salad.
A pastry-brush is excellent for greasing waffles iron.
Cranberry ice is delicious. Flavor with lemon juice.
Chopped pimentos give a delicious flavor to corn pudding.
Clean the grille iron by rubbing it carefully with paper and salt.
If pumpkin pie is allowed to boil in baking it is apt to be watery.
Stewed prunes require no sugar. A little lemon juice improves them.
Currant jelly is sometimes used as a substitute for cranberry sauce.
Delicious tart filling is made by adding raisins to a cranberry mixture.
Never buy a fowl which shows the slightest sign of ring on the flesh.
Spread corn oysters with pure of tomato and serve on rounds of toast.
The canary should have lettuce, apple or dandelion greens once a week.
Garnish mashed potato with Brussels sprouts and serve in a border of sausage.

MIRARD'S LINIMENT USED BY VETERINARIANS.

LANTIC SUGAR

To make the competition easier we have decided to ask for words of not more than 3 letters, such as ant, art, is, in, etc.; therefore you will not need to send in words of more than three letters, as words of more than 3 letters will not count.

Every boy and girl in Newfoundland should enter this Lantic Sugar Competition now that we have made it so very easy. You know Lantic Sugar in packages is the best sugar obtainable, cleanest, finest, purest, sweetest. Read carefully the conditions below and save up all the Red Balls on Lantic Sugar packages, because after this competition is completed we shall have one in which the number of red balls you have will count.

Ask your mother to buy Lantic Sugar in packages, then you can cut out the red balls and keep them until our next competition. We shall have several prizes in our next Lantic Sugar competition. Send us your name and address now and we shall send you a Lantic Sugar Recipe Book which tells how to make all sorts of nice things.

EASY MONEY

To the boy or girl sending us the greatest number of words made with the letters comprised in the words LANTIC SUGAR we shall give $10.00.

CONDITIONS

Your list must be written with ink, in alphabetical order, on ruled paper and must reach us before December 1st.

With your list you must enclose that part of a Lantic Sugar package which bears a red ball showing the words LANTIC SUGAR.

Only words of two or three letters will count. Names of places or persons, foreign words and plurals will not count.

Criminals. THEIR WEIRD AND WICKED WAYS

The proper way to eat other animals is to take them, in small pieces, inside your body. Some animals, on the contrary, get inside the bodies of the animals they are to eat, and these we call parasites, and regard as criminals.

The Shameless Story. Lying in the grass in the spring-time (probably admiring the beauty and innocence of nature in comparison with London), one often sees a glossy blue beetle lumbering over the stalks and the flowers. It is probably a female oil-beetle (Meloe) laying her 10,000 eggs. Out of these some 10,000 little active six-legged things—they almost look like tiny earwigs—whose only chance in life is to get a bee's egg to feed on.

Wasted Fly. Another oil-beetle lays its eggs, in August, near the entrance of the bee's nest, and two thousand little monsters are hatched. But they do not make for the nest. They cannot eat honey until they reach the grub stage. They lie in a heap and hibernate until the bee comes along in the spring. When the innocent bee has taken one of them to her nest, it slides off her back on to her egg, and actually uses this egg as a raft to keep it afloat on the honey.

Appetite Good, Gained 20 lbs. Could Not Feel Better. From a nervous wreck this man was restored to health, strength and happiness.

Mr. Ralph A. Roberts, Lovers, Sask., writes: "In 1917 I had lost all appetite, failed 25 pounds in weight, became very nervous and shaky and in fact given up all hope of recovery. For some time I had suffered from constipation, which kept getting worse, until I was fast becoming a total wreck. Doctors and their drugs were sending me to my grave at the age of 39."

The Italian Representatives. (Associated Press Mail Service) Carlo Schanzer, Senator, 53 years old, has been Minister of Finance several times and is a keen student of international law. He is a follower of former Premier Nitti. One of Italy's representatives in the League of Nations, he has written several books, including "Laws Governing Wars and Treaties" for which the University of Rome gave him an honorary degree.

Household Notes.

Cranberries are good baked with raisins. Serve apple dumplings with lemon sauce. Baked fruit is delicious with oyster sauce. Popovers should be baked in iron or earthenware. Keep nuts cold to prevent their becoming rancid.
