LADY LAURA'S RELEASE

THE STORY OF A SPOILED BEAUTY.

CHAPTER IX.

"It is caused by your manner of speaking of him, Angel," retorted Lady Rooden. "You must not so offend me again. You must not say that Captain Wynyard loves Gladys Rane, and you must not say that he does not love me, or that he is going to marry me for my money. I will not hear or tolerate any such disgraceful charges. If you wish to please me you will learn to love and respect the man I am going to marry. Good-night, Angel. You had better leave me. You will be calmer to-morrow."

"Yes," returned Angela; "I shall be calmer; but I shall never be happy again. To-night I have lost all that is best and brightest in my life; to-night my hope and happiness have died."

"You will be wiser to-morrow, Angel," said Lady Rooden, coldly. "Now say 'Good-night.'"

With weeping eyes and aching heart the girl bade her mother good-night. Coldly, for the first time in her life, she kissed the beautiful face—coldly, for the first time in her life, Lady Rooden dismissed her daughter; but, when the door had closed and the sound of the bitter sobs had died away, Lady Rooden felt very unhappy. She asked herself if it were worth while to persist in this engagement which was so repugnant to Angela. Her answer to herself was "yes." After all she had a perfect right to do as she would in a matter that so deeply affected right to happiness. She was not compelled, she argued with herself, to pass a long lonely life because her daughter had romantic ideas concerning what was due to her father's memory. It was unheard of that a woman should decline to marry the man she loved simply because her daughter objected to him. It seemed to her both selfish and unkind that Angela should so bitterly oppose this her dearest wish. Yet warm tears filled her eyes when she thought of her daughter's loyal love of her father. A vague foreboding came to her; but she drove it away. To her there seemed nothing strange in the fact that Captain Wynyard should be deeply in love with her. She felt that she was beautiful enough to win and to keep the love of any man, and she could not understand why Angela should persistently deny that the captain loved her, and persistently assert that it was for her money alone that he wanted to marry her. If she were plain or old, one might believe such an assertion; but, being what she was, she argued to herself that it was impossible. It was not with a feeling of unmixed happiness that Lady Rooden laid her head on her pillow. Side by side with her love and her happiness was the memory of her daughter's sorrow and despair. Angela could neither sleep nor rest; nor could she yet thoroughly realize the terrible blow that had fallen upon her. Rooden, which to her had always been the fairest spot on earth, her father's inheritance and his home, would now have a new master. This man whom she instinctively disliked would take her father's place there, would use his rooms, rest in his favorite chairs, read his books, monopolize the love of his wife, usurp his place in every shape and way. Her father's old servants would have to obey him; the tenants and dependents who had loved and respected her father must now transfer their allegiance to him. "If he were worthy of it," she cried to herself, "I should not care so much; but he is not—he is not! He will make my mother miserable when the veil falls from before her eyes."

The first red flush of dawn was in the skies before Angela had wept herself to sleep.

CHAPTER X.

It was late when Angela woke the next morning, and even as her eyes opened a dark shadow seemed to settle upon her as she remembered that her mother was going to marry Captain Vance Wynyard. A weight as of lead lay upon her heart; her brain seemed bewildered.

"My misery is greater than I can bear!" she cried in an agony of despair. It seemed impossible to her that she could face the realities and duties of life. Hitherto her first thought in the morning had been to fly as soon as she could to her mother, to kiss and caress her, to know what her plans were for the day, to find the fairest and sweetest of flowers for her, to show her every possible mark of love and attention. Now she shrank from meeting her. Hitherto she had felt that her mother's waking thoughts were given to her, that her mother's first desire was to see her; but that would never happen again. Already a barrier had sprung up between them, and the girl's heart was desolate.

The pretty breakfast-room, usually redolent of roses, was empty when she entered; her mother was not there. Thinking she was in the drawing-room, Angela made her way thither listlessly enough. She had opened the door and entered the room before she saw that Captain Wynyard was there, too. At the very sight of him her face flushed hotly and her heart began to beat violently. She would have withdrawn at once; but Lady Rooden saw her, and called to her. She looked at her mother's face, and that one glance caused her sharpest pain. Never had she seen the beloved face so charming as now, lighted up as it was with love and softened into deepest tenderness. On the face of the man by her side there was a smile of triumph, which only served to raise every antagonistic feeling in the young girl's breast.

"Angel, come here!" said Lady Rooden. "I have something to say to you."

Slowly, and with aversion in her eyes, she went up to her mother, Captain Wynyard noting keenly the expression of her face.

"She does not like me, and does not like the marriage," he said to himself. "I shall have an enemy in this slender girl; but it will not matter."

"Angel," went on Lady Rooden, "I am glad you came in. I want to speak to you." Then a flush rose to her face, and a certain shyness came over her manner. "Let me speak for you, dearest Laura," interrupted her lover; and Angela started at the words. Never since her father's death had she heard her mother addressed by that name. "I am sure that the daughter who loves you so dearly and so devotedly will be pleased to hear of anything which will add to your happiness." The captain spoke fluently enough, and he turned his handsome face with a smile to Angela; but there was a certain uneasiness about him, a restraint that almost made his manner ungraceful, for he knew well in his heart he did not love this woman whom he was so anxious to make his wife. "Your mother," he continued, "has been so good and generous as to look upon me with favor, and I have promised to devote the remainder of my life to her. I shall do my best to make her happy; and with the love of the mother I hope to win the love of the daughter. I will do my best to deserve it."

As Vance Wynyard spoke, Angela's face grew white even to the lips. A burning feeling of hate rose in her heart against him. She could not control it for a few minutes so as to answer him, and he, almost glad of her silence, went on:

"I promise to devote myself to your interests, and, as far as I can, to fill worthily your father's place."

This unfortunate allusion to her father roused the girl at once. She raised her face to his with such an indignant flash of anger that callous as he was, he quailed before it.

"We will leave my father's name quite out of the question. Let me say, once and for all, that you will never fill his place, and that to my mind it is a desecration of his memory even to say such a thing. He was my mother's husband; he was a noble-minded man!"

"I hope in time to win your good opinion," he said. Vain, cold, and calculating as he was, there was something in the attitude of the girl, standing at bay, as it were, that touched him.

"My dear Angel," cried Lady Rooden, "speak to Captain Wynyard; have you nothing to say in answer to his kindly words?"

"Nothing, mamma," she said, wringing her hands. "I have not a word to say."

"Then, Vance," said Lady Rooden, turning to Captain Wynyard, "I must love you doubly, to atone for my daughter's ungraciousness."

Inwardly the captain felt deeply mortified. He had been so worshipped by women, he had always been so popular, he had always received such homage and adulation from the fairer sex, that his present unexpecting with Miss Rooden was as unexpected as it was disagreeable. (To be continued.)

The Critical Age of growth

From babyhood to adolescence is the time of growth—the time when the body is being built. The food must be such as will build muscle, nerve tissue and bones.

Viol is a food specially designed by Medical and Food Experts to meet the needs of growth. It is used regularly in 3,000 Infant Clinics, and prescribed by many thousands of Medical Men, because it builds the tissues and increases the defensive powers of the body against disease.

The remarkable power of Viol is seen at once in the improved condition of those who take it.

DOING IT WELL. When I was busy shearing sheep I did the work so well that other shearers used to weep, and wring their hands and yell. And when I started painting pumps so well I played the game my salary kept taking jumps, whenever payday came. Whatever chore I had to do I did it with a will, and often, when the day was through, I'd earned a dollar bill. And now I'm in my green old age, no wolf is at my door; of coin, which seems to be the rage, I have a goodly store. My credit's good, and when I croak The Daily News will say, "He surely left a trail of smoke along life's tollsome way!" The heedless fellow does his tasks in such a lazy way! And every hour he stops and asks the boss for higher pay. He has no longing to excel, to more than earn his mon, to do his work each day as well as it was ever done. And every day there is a chance to take an upward step; but trifling fellows won't advance; they have no use for pep. When I was washing Maltese cats, I did the work up fine; I soaked them in the sudsy vats, and hung them out the line. Whatever work I had to do, I humped on buoyant feet, and now, the journey nearly through, I live in Velvet street.

Marriage of Extremes. Love triumphs over all! A three-foot dwarf was married to "the largest lady" of the World's Fair, Royal Agricultural Hall, Birmington, during the week. The bridegroom is Mr. Robert Goudin, who tips the scale at 42 lbs., and his bride was Miss Ruby Truby, who weighs 23 stones. "My only regret," declared Mr. Goudin, "is that my contract at the Royal Agricultural Hall will make it necessary for our honeymoon to be postponed until the spring." Mr. Goudin, who is 42, was born in Brazil, and has travelled all over Europe and North and South America. He speaks nine languages, including English, French, German and Italian. The bride, who is 21, stated that she met her husband at Leicester in the winter of 1921, and became

"I Had Terrible Backache From Kidney Disease"

Mrs. M. A. McNeill, Canaan Sta., N.B., writes: "I was troubled for years with terrible backache, resulting from kidney disease. At times in each month I remained in bed, the pain was more than I could stand, and to walk was almost impossible. I used about $50.00 worth of other medicines, but with little results. Now I am completely better, after using only five boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Tropical Garden For Wembley Park.

Tobacco, Cotton, Tea, Coffee, Cocoa, and Spices of the West Indies to be Grown in The Exhibition Grounds.

At a recent meeting of the West India and Atlantic Group Committee, subject of a West Indian Garden at the British Empire Exhibition was considered, and it was decided to accept the proposal, since it would add greatly to the attraction of the exhibition if a garden with planting material, say, an acre supplemented the Indian exhibits. It was thought that, as sugar, tobacco, bananas, etc., are exported, and trade samples will be shown in the Pavilion, plants yielding these products should also be on exhibition. The most natural way of growing such plants would be to place them out of doors where they would stand an average English summer climate, and it would add to the interest of the garden if some of the ornamental plants that are grown in Jamaican gardens were included. A list of such plants has been drawn up with the assistance of Mr. William Watson, late Secretary of the Horticultural Section of the British Empire Exhibition of 1924, which will last over a period of more than six months, represents a very special effort to encourage trade throughout the Empire, and there was therefore good reason for a great effort to attract attention to West Indian products. Should the Government of Jamaica decide to assist the Committee in forming a West Indian Garden at Wembley, it is suggested that Mr. Cradwick might be seconded for part of his time to select and prepare plants for the purpose, and to make arrangements to ship them to England next summer. The plants that require to be placed in tubs should be dealt with at once so as to get them semi-established before shipping. As many of the plants as are fit should be despatched to arrive in England early in June next. Only those plants that will require to be nursed into condition after the trials of packing and transit need be sent to arrive in June this year. Such plants as Agave, Cacti and Pine-apple need not be sent till May, 1924, as they will not require to be nursed here. The plants considered suitable for exhibition in a garden in front of the Pavilion of the West India and Atlantic Group at Wembley Park include Tea, Coffee, Cocoa, Sugar-Cane, Cacaoanut, Tobacco, Cotton, Allspice, Cassava, Bread Fruit, Ginger, Arrow-root, Yam, Banana, Pine Apple, Orange, Grape Fruit, Lime, Lemon, Guava, Papaw, Mango, Etaal, Mahogany, Cedar, Juniper and others of economic importance. Plants of striking ornamental character, such as the Royal and Cabbage Palms, Hibiscus, Hedychium, Carludovica, Heliconia, Cannas, Monstera, Philodendron, Anthurium, Turke Cap Cactus, Crinum, Orchids, etc., would add to the general effect of the garden and furnish some idea of the variety and interest of Western tropical vegetation. The representatives in England of the West India and Atlantic Group are Messrs. William Fawcett, late Director of the Botanical Department at Jamaica, and Algernon Aspinall, C.M.G., Commissioner and Secretary of the West India Committee, 14 Trinity Square, London, E.C.3.—B.E. STRIKE OVER. SYDNEY, Feb. 17. The Sydney steel workers voted by a large majority this afternoon to return to work on Monday under the arrangement made between their representatives and the British Empire Steel Corporation early this morning.

WHO WON? SYDNEY, Feb. 18. Sydney steel workers will return to work on Monday morning following a large majority vote yesterday afternoon to end the strike of about three thousand men which commenced on Tuesday, when one of their number was discharged for alleged insubordination. The British Empire Steel Corporation agreed to an inquiry into the case. Barring unforeseen accidents the mills will be producing at full swing again in about a week's time. The strike cost the workers between seventy-five and one hundred thousand dollars in wages. The workers are jubilant in the belief that the settlement is a victory for them. The Company is pleased the affair ended before extensive damage was done the expensive equipment.

WAYS OF RECEIVING WOE TALKS. Isn't it delightful (with the reverse English on it) when you have had something unpleasant happen to you and can look back and see where a little more care would have prevented it, to tell someone about the mishap, hoping to receive sympathy and have done thus and so" (mentioning, of course, the thing you know perfectly well you should have done and are already cursing yourself for having not done).

One is so grateful for the help! There is an old conundrum "What is it everybody likes to give and no one likes to receive?" and the answer is "Advice."

Genuinely Sympathetic People. Here is another "What is it everyone likes to receive and no one likes to give?" and the answer is "Sympathy." After writing this brilliant conundrum, I am suddenly impressed with the fact that there could be quite a few other answers besides sympathy. But never mind, that is the answer this time.

How many people do you know who are genuinely sympathetic? Mighty few, I'll wager. There are, I think, three ways of receiving a "ale of woe. The first is the actively sympathetic. Here is an example of what I mean. Cousin to "I Told You So."

GUARDS AND FELIDIANIS WILL FIGURE IN THE CUP SERIES.

The opening hockey game of the Tie cup series takes place to-night at 7.30 between the champion Guards team and the Felidians. The latter team are just beginning to hit their stride, and with "Duke" Winter, who is now in top form, up in the attack, the outcome of to-night's clash will be awaited with interest. On the other hand the Guards, by no means covetous, are determined to hold fast to their well earned laurels, and not allow their winning streak to become broken. Both clubs are producing their same line-ups as appeared in the league series. The Tie Cup before becoming the property of any one club has to be won two years in succession or any three. The Terra Novas were the first winners in 1921, but the St. Bon's wrested the silverware from the Oranges and Black a year later and is now in their possession. To-morrow night the St. Bon's and Terra Novas will clash in the second game of the series. It has been decided to play the opening game of the mercantile series on Wednesday night. The Royal Stores and Baird's will figure in the first game.

Another Wonderful Picture at The Nickel.

NORMA TALMADGE SCORES ANOTHER STAGE SUCCESS. Once more Norma Talmadge has turned to a famous stage success for a motion picture production, for her latest picture, distributed by Associated First National Pictures, Inc., and the attraction at the Nickel Theatre, beginning to-night, is "The Wonderful Thing," which was a most successful starring vehicle for Miss Jane Eagles on the stage. Miss Talmadge portrays the role of Jacqueline Boggs, the part played in the stage version by Miss Eagles.

Jacqueline Boggs is the motherless daughter of "the American Hog King." She has been reared and educated in a French convent, and on a visit to England she meets Donald Mannerly, the eldest son of an impoverished English aristocratic family. Donald flirts with her, and "the wonderful thing" happens. She falls in love with him. A vital need for money makes Donald stifle his better feelings and take advantage of her love by marrying her. Only after several months, during which time Donald learns to love her sincerely, she learns of his motive and leaves him. The story comes to a happy ending, very cleverly worked out.

With a Flourish of Trumpets.

The Legislature has been dissolved, and in another column is published the proclamation giving effect to the dissolution. Sir Richard Squires has taken the plunge, and, whether warranted by circumstances or not, has precipitated a political crisis which is, we think, without precedent in this colony.

Citizens generally will be pleased to know that Sir Robert is now enjoying the best of health, and in a recent letter to a friend in the city he stated he was in good fettle. It will be remembered that in a letter to the late J. A. Clift, shortly after his retirement to private life, Sir Robert stated that he should the country ever need him he would respond to the call.

The dinner tendered Capt. J. E. J. Fox, representative of the G.W.V.A. on the Advisory Council of the British Empire Service League, London, on Saturday night at the West End Restaurant was a very successful affair as well as being a highly interesting function.

Come to George St. Basement on Tuesday, Feb. 20th, at 8.15 p.m. and hear Mr. C. E. Hunt describe with wit and humour his trip across the continent to Los Angeles.

Popular Sentiment

FAVORS RECALL OF SIR R. BOND TO PUBLIC LIFE.

The topic of conversation to-day is the dissolution of the Legislature, announced on Saturday, and the Government's intentions regarding an appeal to the people.

"I rejoice in the confidence implied in your invitation, and I wish it were possible that I could come, and in my humble measure assist you in your patriotic endeavour to bring about an immediate reform in the conduct of our common affairs.

OBNOXIOUS CONDUCT OF CABMAN

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—Having been given absolute control until the annual meeting, and so that there may be no misunderstanding of our position, we now beg to say that anyone wishing to question the power behind our badges has only to act as did an unknown cabman last week by telling the Hon. Agent that he was too cowardly to stop and argue a point, and on the following day called out, "Here he comes again, boys!"

Bluff is Coaker's Lever,

The account of Mr. Boone's meeting at Twillingate, as given in the Advocate, proves that bluff is the lever to pull the people together in the cause of Coakerism. But eventually it only strikes a death blow to the very cause they are propagating and their sins truly find them out.

Sagona in Same Position.

Will Leaving Halifax?

SABLE I. LEAVING HALIFAX TOMORROW.

With the Sagona still jammed, and the Kyle at Port aux Basques matters do not look very promising for any Canadian mail, probably the Government and the Hon. W. W. Halliday, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, who are now more than likely settling wise to the serious mail situation, will act promptly and make arrangements for S.S. Sable I. to call at Louisbourg, en route to St. John's, as the ship is expected to leave Halifax for this port tomorrow.

Magistrates Court.

Several drunks were discharged. Two city cabmen, arrested for being drunk and disorderly on the public street on the night of the 17th inst., were fined $2 each or 5 days. A well known city youth, taken in for vagrancy, was ordered to get out and go to work.

Families Deserting Halifax.

It is learned on good authority that no less than 700 families have left Halifax, N.S. during the past three months to seek their fortune in the United States. This looks to be rather exaggerated, but should the information as gleaned be really true, things do not look anyway rosy for our friends in the capital of the sister province.

Greater Achievement Through Electric Service.

Out of the great central power plant, electric energy leaps to do your bidding, in home and industry, lighting houses and streets, driving sewing machines and lathes, turning the wheels of transportation. Yet before the advent of this great power, generated for every conceivable use, women laboured at their household tasks from dawn to darkness; through the same hours men struggled to produce the world's goods.

Go, see that he who makes it does subside.

MESSENGER.
Dread news, my lord, dread news.
A mail has come.
HALTYARD.
What's this. You make my very senses numb.
MESSENGER.
'Tis true, great sir. The ice has moved off shore.
One ship, is here, and soon there will be more.
(A long, mournful sigh issues from the attendants. Caesar, himself, seems to have lost all power of speech and action. Finally, as if going to execution, all file out slowly, singing)
ALL.
There's a big, big small a-coming
Into the land of our dreams.
Very gloomy are our feelings.
Don't you hear our dismal screams.
There's a long, long time of working
And we thought that we were through
Now we're going down to the big mail room
To sort out billets-doux.

The Great Moment.
Elinor Glyn can no longer be referred to simply as an author. She is now an author-actress, and appears in several scenes of her own story, "The Great Moment," in which Gloria Swanson is starring for Paramount, and which will be the feature attraction at the Majestic Theatre to-day.
Questioned as to her motive for donning the grease-paint, Madam Glyn replied:
"I was determined to learn the motion picture profession from every angle. The only way I can experience the emotions of the players who enact the characterizations which I create is to actually go before the camera and put myself in the same position occupied by them. From such experience, I will get another viewpoint which will be most valuable to me in my writing. While I rank only as 'atmosphere' I find it highly diverting. I am doing this merely to get the player's viewpoint."
Her work in "The Great Moment" is not Madam Glyn's first appearance before the camera. When Cecil B. DeMille was filming his latest production, "The Affairs of Anatol," she played in some of the elaborate scenes and experienced her first taste of how it feels to stand under the critical eye of the camera and the glare of Kleiglites.
In "The Great Moment" she wears a beautiful evening gown of silver cloth and makes a striking appearance.

Obituary.

W. LLOYD WOODS. It is with feelings of regret that the Telegram chronicles to-day the death of Mr. W. Lloyd Woods, which sad event occurred at the Southcott Hospital on Saturday last at 5 p.m. Some three weeks ago Mr. Woods was taken ill, suffering severely from ulceration of the stomach, and supervenient ulceration. A dental operation relieved the pain, but the disease had gone too far. On Monday last he was removed from his home to the Southcott Hospital, but despite the unremitting care and attention of physicians and nurses alike, he gradually sank into unconsciousness, until on Saturday he breathed his last.

The deceased was born on Sept. 5th, 1890, and received his early education at the Methodist College. When the war broke out Lloyd Woods responded to the call of King and Country, and in February, 1915, he joined C. Co., of the Second Contingent, Royal Newfoundland Regiment. By good hard work and devotion, he worked his way up from a private to the rank of Lieutenant, which came to him a very short period. During his war experiences was a serious illness at Mudros during the Gallipoli Campaign, and wounds on two occasions, the scars of which he bore with him to the grave. Since demobilization Lieut. Woods has been an Assistant Engineer in the Municipal Department. The late Mr. Woods, was deservedly a popular favorite. His magnificent voice never failed to attract and enthrall, and he was ever ready to employ it on behalf of any worthy object. The St. John's Oratorio numbered him as one of its members, and none more sincerely mourn his passing. The deceased was also a member of Gower St. Church Choir, his rich bass voice being heard on numerous occasions to advantage. He was a member of the Methodist Fellowship, having held the office of organist in Whiteway Lodge. Mr. Woods was married at Edinburgh in 1917 to Miss Jean Barnes Miller of the Royal burgh, who pre-deceased him a year ago last January. To-day her grave will be re-opened, and the mortal remains of her beloved husband, William Lloyd Woods, interred beside her. The deceased leaves to mourn, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Woods; two sisters, the Misses Claire and Alice Woods of this city, and one brother Jack, now at McGill University, and many near relatives. St. John's to-day can ill afford to lose young men of the type of Lieut. Woods, but God ruled otherwise. The mortal remains of the deceased were interred at the General Protestant Cemetery to-day at St. John's Cathedral, taking place from the home of his father, 66 LeMarchant Road. The Telegram extends to the mourners heart felt sympathy in this their hour of great sorrow.

MRS. PATRICK J. FOX.

(H. F. SHORTISS.)

There are hundreds of people in Newfoundland to-day who will learn with deep regret that a cable message was received a few days ago from Brockville, Ontario, announcing the death of Mrs. P. J. Fox (nee Bridget Humphrey) formerly of Hr. Grace. Mrs. Fox was ill about three weeks, and all that medical skill and the kind attention of the nurses of St. Vincent de Paul Hospital could do was done for her, and fortified by the rites of Holy Church, she passed to the eternal reward of a well-spent Christian life. She was an ideal Christian woman, and, even when quite young, she was noted for her love of God, and her charity towards the poor, and her countless deeds of mercy and kindness will always be remembered by those who knew and loved her. Mrs. Fox was born in Hr. Grace 54 years ago, being the youngest daughter of the famous seal-killer and most enterprising Labrador planter, Capt. John Humphrey, and his wife, nee Mary Benson, of Old Perlican. I may here mention that it was her father, Capt. John Humphrey, of the brigantine "Glide," who in the year 1858 won the silk flag and one hundred pounds (four hundred dollars) for being the first vessel to arrive from the sealfishery with six thousand one hundred prime white-coats, to grease the new machinery then erected by the great firm of Messrs. Ridley & Sons. The Messrs. Ridley offered the flag and the money to the first vessel in, and Capt. Humphrey was only 18 days out when he succeeded in winning the prize. Mrs. Fox was twice married, her first husband being Mr. Alex. Wilson, by whom there were no children, and who died about forty years ago. She was a highly cultured and refined lady, everywhere winning the sincerest regard by all who came in contact with her. A woman of noble character, pleasing personality and the highest type of a Catholic. She leaves to mourn two children in Canada one sister, Mrs. Edmund Moore, of Bay de Verde, several nephews and nieces, scores of relatives, and hosts of friends in Newfoundland, United States and Canada. Rev. F. J. Humphrey, of Little Bay, Notre Dame Bay, is a nephew, and Rev. Father Forristal, of London, Ontario, is a cousin, and Mr. Richard Hesebery, the well known Labrador pilot, is a nephew, and Mrs. W. F. Telfer a niece. Her second husband,

Mr. Fox died in Brockville, Ontario, some years ago. He was a highly educated gentleman, being a pupil of the famous Alexander O'Donovan, M. A., of Trinity College, Dublin; a master of the English language, a profound classical scholar, and for several years was teacher in the Roman Catholic schools of Carleton Place and Harbor Grace. He subsequently studied telegraphy under the late George Nicholl, Esq., emigrated to Canada, and was employed in the telegraph service at Brockville, Ontario up to the time of his death. The daughter of the deceased lady holds a responsible position in the telegraph employ, and her brother is also employed in a lucrative position in the land of his adoption; to whom and to all the relatives and friends the Evening Telegram extends its sincere sympathy in their bereavement.—Requiescat in Pace.

MARY T. WADLAND.

Last evening, at 9.15, there passed to her eternal rest Mary T. Wadland, beloved wife of John B. Wadland and daughter of the late J. P. and E. H. Martin. The deceased was born at St. John's on the 11th of December, 1882. In her younger days Mrs. Wadland taught at both Virginia and East End Schools, and the many children for whose benefit she laboured so faithfully will shed many a tear at her passing. The deceased, who was in her 61st year, enjoyed fairly good health up to Tuesday last, when she was suddenly stricken with Paralysis and passed away last night. Left to mourn their sad loss are a husband, one son, Albert, one sister, Mrs. J. M. Macqueen, of Pennsylvania, U.S.A., three brothers, Albert H. in Montreal, William J. and Michael G. of this city. The funeral takes place to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

PHILIP OXFORD.

There passed away at Phoenix, Ariz., U.S.A., on February 18th, Philip Oxford. Left to mourn their sad loss are a wife and two children residing at Phoenix; two brothers, Stephen at Edmonton, Can., and Peter of this city; two sisters, Mrs. Hugh Forward at Badger, and Mrs. J. Willis at Three Arms, N.D.B., and mother, who also resides at Three Arms.

JAMES PATERSON.

We regret to chronicle the passing of James Paterson, whose sudden death took place at Glasgow to-day. The late James Paterson was the third son of the late John Paterson, of Harbor Grace, and was born in that town. He received his early education at the Harbor Grace Grammar School, later going to Merchiston Castle School, Edinburgh. After leaving the former school he subsequently taking place in Glasgow University where he took his B.A. degree. He later entered the office of his uncle, of the law firm of Paterson & Ross, of Glasgow, of which firm he later became a partner. He leaves a widow residing in Glasgow, two sisters, Mrs. J. A. Chitt and Mrs. F. W. Hayward, and one brother, Dr. Lamont Paterson, of this city.

Free State Determined. TO PUNISH FEARLESSLY.

DUBLIN.—(Associated Press).—The Free State ruling extending the death penalty to cover a wide range of crimes heretofore dealt with as petty, has convinced the average Irish citizen that the new regime means business and realizes that the time has come to test its powers to govern. The effect of the new ruling is to apply the death penalty fearlessly to every person proved to be assisting in any way the campaign of the irregulars against the constituted government. In future the mere possession of hostile plans or documents, and the unauthorized possession of military uniforms will involve the death penalty. Threatening letters have been falling like snowflakes on all prominent supporters of the government, but now the sending of a threatening letter will involve penal servitude. Trials for all these anti-state offences will be held in private by military courts. Although some deputies, including Mr. Fitzgibbon, member for Trinity College, hesitated at conferring such broad powers on the army, General Mulcahy's insistence on them caused his opponents to waive their objections, and in the vote on the question the government had no opponents except 13 members of the Labor Party. There has been some expression of uneasiness regarding the silence of the army on the exact condition of the country, and this has been criticized by such papers as the Irish Times; but there is a disposition on the part of the average citizen to give the new ruling a chance to prove its worth.

ON DAILY MAIL STAFF.—Messrs. Mrs. J. Goodland and John T. Coffey have been appointed on the Reporterial Staff of the new paper The Daily Mail, which makes its first public appearance to-day.

Christian Education in The Home.

TORONTO, Ont. (Associated Press).—Dr. Harold M.G. Robinson, of Philadelphia, Pa., general secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Publication and Sabbath School Work, to-day reported as chairman of the Committee on Christian Education in the Home, Church and Community, to the annual meeting of the Western (American) Section of the Alliance of Reformed Churches Throughout the World holding the Presbyterian System. Dr. Robinson's report was in part as follows:—"It is said that no one gets a new idea after he is 23 years old. It is not true. But there is too much truth in it. The time to evangelize and to educate is before the evil days come when there is no pleasure in the things of the spirit. The Presbyterian and Reformed Churches have an opportunity now such as they have not had since the epochal days when the Church in America adopted the Sunday school, to work out a comprehensive and effective system of Christian education in the home, church and community.

Family Religion.

"There are two outstanding developments in this general field. The first is the rediscovery of the Christian home. We have been complaining about the condition of family religion for years. Now we are preparing to raise Christian education in the family to its rightful place in the church's programme and to provide adequate assistance for fathers and mothers in the discharge of their direct and inescapable responsibility for the Christian nurture of their own children. The other outstanding development is the movement to bring together into one program the existing agencies and the rapidly growing new agencies in the Church—the Sunday School, the expressional societies such as Christian Endeavor, the specialized boys and girls clubs, the Daily Vacation Bible Schools, the week day schools for religious instruction. Such a program, with adequate educational standards, under the blessing of God will be one of the greatest achievements of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches in this century."

Germany Currency.

WEIGHS DOWN RUHR VISITORS.

COLOGNE.—The tremendous devaluation of the German mark, besides creating a boom in the business of hand valises and small satchels, has caused several amusing incidents in banks and money brokers' offices. It is a common sight in Cologne and in cities in Ruhr to see foreigners, Americans, British or French, emerge from the banks bearing huge packages of bills loosely wrapped up in newspapers. A party of French correspondents came to Cologne from Essen the other day to change some French paper money. They were all millionaires when they returned to the Ruhr in the evening. They had changed one thousand francs each. A British soldier walked up to the cashier's wicket and presented a cheque, drawn on a London bank. The check was duly accepted, endorsed and perfectly in order. The cashier gazed at he looked at it. The amount read two pence. For a long time the bank employe scribbled figures on a sheet of paper looking upon the Tommy with increasing malevolence. He had a suspicion the soldier wanted to have a little fun with him. Finally, the German cashier threw away his pen in disgust, began rummaging through his cash drawer and after a few minutes handed the Tommy the amount of the check. A few bystanders who had appeared much interested in the proceedings snickered audibly at the British soldier, who left without exulting. The joke was on him. The German cashier had passed out two English copper pennies.

Chinese Landlords Cannot Profit.

BOSTON.—A "gentleman's agreement" has been struck in Boston's Chinese district to combat rent increases in tenements and stores. By custom, it is said, a Chinese will not move into quarters from which a fellow countryman has departed whether voluntarily or not, unless the latter consents. Regardless of the landlord's views on the subject of property rights, if the departing tenant is not satisfied with the landlord's treatment, he may refuse to release to another person a certain indefeasible equity he is supposed to possess. As a result, it is declared there are to-day many vacant tenements in Chinatown.

Kazan District.

STILL NEEDS RELIEF. LONDON (Associated Press).—It has been learned here that the district of Kazan, one of the hardest hit famine spots in all Russia, is only half as bad off this year as it was last. This information has been obtained from J. Rives Childs, of Lynchburg, Va., who has been in charge of the American Relief Administration feeding in Kazan almost continuously since the famine relief operation started last fall. "A year ago," said Mr. Childs, "the famine was visible. People too weak to stand would fall by the roadside and freeze. In other instances whole families died quietly in their homes. Instances of cannibalism were being reported, and a little later had become common enough so that we knew of them first hand.

"This year the famine is not yet visible, but its coming is certain. There isn't enough food in the area to carry the people through, and there isn't enough purchasing power to bring in the absolute minimum requirements. The children whose lives were saved by American food last winter and this summer up to the harvest, are again looking for America for their lives. Adults, too, are hoping that 'the corn miracle' will come again. Corn saved their lives last year, and unless they get corn or something else from the outside this year, many of them will die. From all the facts available, I would say that two hundred and fifty thousand daily rations through the hardest months, January, February, March and April, will effectually prevent famine in its grimmer phases. Up to the harvest of this year the American people were feeding five hundred and fifty thousand persons in the area that can now be just as thoroughly relieved by the feeding of two hundred and fifty thousand.

Why Some Sounds Sets Our Teeth on Edge.

A "sound" is really the setting in motion of a wave, which in time strikes our ears. We then say we "hear" it. When two tones sufficiently near in pitch are struck together, the effect is as though two waves of sound are simultaneously launched at the hearer. If these sound-waves arrive, as it were, separately, nothing happens; we have only heard two noises. But if they reach us as one single wave in which both tones are blended, we hear it as a discord. And if this discord is sufficiently acute, it sets up a vibration in ourselves which results in the unpleasant "rough" feeling which we speak of as having our teeth set on edge. Since all our ears are not precisely similarly constructed, we do not all get this feeling at the same sound.

Literary Detectives Face a Hard Winter.

LONDON.—"Searchers" at the British Museum made comfortable living before the war, but nowadays when it is not so easy for the wealthy to indulge their hobbies of investigation, they are having hard times. These "Searchers," a small body of highly trained men, were familiar with the vast collection of books and records within the museum, and acted as literary detectives for their patrons. One "searcher" has had only three jobs in the last 12 months. Americans used to be good customers, but to-day they hardly ever appear.

Life's Half-Way House.

WLY THIRTY-FIVE IS A "TICK-LISH" AGE. Thirty-five is also given as the age by a special investigator quoted with a number of characteristic quotations. "It doesn't seem to be a man whose feet are on the road at thirty-five will go ahead bravely and surely, but he who is thirty or has halted will soon be late. Certain doctors who specialize in the treatment of drunkenness have given it as their opinion that the alcoholic indulgence is most thirty-five is the vital and decisive age. In their experience, the man who is a heavy drinker at the age in question very rarely indeed manages to come, or even to moderate, the man, on the other hand, the man who is a moderate drinker at that age very unlikely ever to need treatment.

The City of Miracles!

First-Hand and Unprejudiced Account of the Mysteries of Lourdes.

(Continued.) I admit frankly after I have investigated, theorized and argued with Lourdes with ecclesiastics, scientists and psychologists, I am still utterly puzzled. Either the miracles of Lourdes are what Catholics claim they are, or there is some occult law, or series of laws, in operation, of which we have little or no knowledge. The proposition resolves itself into two alternatives. If you admit that you must believe in miracles you must believe in a category of sounds and languages as yet unheard of only at Lourdes. There are, in reality, two cities in Lourdes. There is the old quarter where the inhabitants still speak the Gascon dialect, a quarter dominated by the tower of the castle on the hill. There is the new part, where curious shops and religious relics and emblems are piled close together, over the hill rises the tall, majestic Church of the Basilica, built on the Rock of Massabielle.

The mixture of religious enthusiasm and commerce is harsh and glaring at times. Every shop by the boulevard facing the enclosed grounds of the Grotto has something of the vulgarity of the village fair about it. It is at the Grotto, however, that one escapes the roar of commerce, and where one touches the very heart of Lourdes.

There are two ways to the place. The more imposing is by way of the Boulevard. To go by this way is to see the glory that is Lourdes in all its wonder and majesty. At the very gates of the enclosed ground which the church has obtained for its purpose is the Statue of St. Michael. Twenty yards farther on is a great calvary, given by the Bretons. Farther down, surrounded by an iron railing, is a massive figure of the Virgin, crowned. At almost any hour of the day pilgrims are to be seen kneeling in adoration and prayer beside the great white marble statue.

When one reaches the Crowned Virgin one is impressed with the impressive pile of the famous three churches built to do honor to Our Lady and to provide a place of worship and penance for the pilgrims. The Church of the Rosary is the lowest of the three. Its beautiful front, with a magnificent Romanesque doorway, faces the wide esplanade, just behind its dome, which rises from the terrace above, is the entrance to the crypt, cut out of the rock of Massabielle. Above the crypt, and most impressive of all, is the Basilica. Its foundations are also in the rock immediately above the Grotto, which faces the River Gave. You reach the Grotto from the esplanade. I have said that the Grotto is where you touch the heart of Lourdes. The truth is that the Grotto of Massabielle is Lourdes.

I have said that the Grotto is where you touch the heart of Lourdes. The truth is that the Grotto of Massabielle is Lourdes.

This is the cave where little Bernadette claimed she saw the Virgin, and in the niche which Bernadette indicated there has been created a large white statue of Carrara marble. Round her head, in the form of a nimbus, is the declaration made to the wondering girl—"Je suis l'Immaculee Conception." To the right is a pulpit of Lourdes marble from which leaders of pilgrimages exhort their followers during services in front of the Grotto. The Grotto itself is not very large—about fifteen feet square with a bulging roof. It is fenced off by railings, and pilgrims pass through all day long, kissing the stone on which the feet of the Virgin are said to have rested during the apparitions. At the entrance an attendant stands to receive the candles which are given him to be burned in the huge iron stand when places can be found for them. Always there is a large stock of candles waiting to be placed in the stand, although they burn day and night. The roof of the Grotto has become black and sooty owing to the ceaseless burning, and the inside of the Grotto is warm, but very quiet. A large altar is erected inside, and behind the altar are other candles stuck on spikes.

All day, and until far into the night the constant stream of pilgrims passes through the Grotto, kissing the rock, sighing as they pray for the sick or for themselves. "Lady of Lourdes," they murmur. "Pray for us! Immaculate Maid, Mother of God, heal our sick that sinners may be converted!" They move gently through the Grotto, and emerge again in the sunlight near the twelve taps which have been fixed in a wall so that pilgrims may drink or fill their bottles and jars with the water which has been blessed and sent up long, from six o'clock in the morning until late afternoon, there sit in front of this sacred Grotto the sick who have come for health. Mostly they are in bath chairs but many of them are on stretchers, and some are able to hobble to the benches which have been supplied for those who cannot stand.

Utter silence reigns, save for the shuffling of the feet of those who come and go. Priests and laymen kneel down and kiss the dust. Penance! Penance! Penance! That is the central note of Lourdes. Penance for sins, and prayers for mankind! On the left, from the roof and walls of the Grotto, are hung the crutches and appliances of the cured, eloquent evidence of miracles. It is impossible to be present and not be moved by the solemnity of it all. At certain hours a priest in charge of a pilgrimage, who has been given permission to hold a service there, mounts the pulpit and exhorts his flock. It may be that the majority of the people are ignorant of his tongue, but there is a common tongue in Lourdes, and presently it bursts forth in the hymns which other pilgrims are singing up in front of the baths where the sick are being taken behind the white curtains to be dipped.

But, in spite of this faith, in spite of the call for penance and prayer, the sadness of the scene in front of the Grotto and at the baths are indescribable. The sick, the palsied, the blind, the broken fragments of humanity who seek cures, are brought into the enclosed space in front of the Men, women, and even children are there, nervous and excited some of them, others taking the affair coolly because they have been there before. As the chairs and stretchers are wheeled up the priest's voice rises in mournful cadence: "Lord, heal our sick! Our Lady of Lourdes, pray for us!" The curtains are opened and attendants motion to the brancardiers—voluntary helpers who give up their time to transportation of the invalids who cannot walk—and as the next stretcher or chair is wheeled in, the curtains fall behind the little group, and another helpless invalid has gone to try whether he or she is to be favored with a cure in the waters. So the process goes on until the hours when the baths are closed and the greatest event of the day takes place in front of the Rosary Church—the Procession of the Blessed Sacrament. Five o'clock is the hour for this solemn event. For an hour previously the brancardiers and helpers are busy bringing down the sick and forming their chairs and stretchers in a vast oblong in front of the Rosary Church. Behind the chairs and stretchers these helpers stand during the procession. The wide accents on either side of the esplanade sweeping up to the terrace above the doors of the church are crammed with pilgrims and sightseers. These ascents, borne upward on arches, are like two gigantic embracing arms encircling the church.

Alone in the centre of the empty place, the multitude on three sides of him, stands a priest, who calls aloud the prayers while the procession is on its way from the Grotto. In the distance is heard the sound

I admitted the possibility of a miracle in my philosophy, but I preferred the natural method of cures. Dr. Boissarie was going off for a holiday and invited me to take his place. There are the cases of De Rudder, of Gargan—still living and working at the churches—of Marie Bailli, of Madame Bonchou, and many others. Marie Lebranchet, the original of Zola's "La Grievotte," did not have a relapse, as Zola stated, but returned to Lourdes to prove that her cure was permanent. Her photo is in the office—the photo of a healthy woman.

Why Dogs Howl at Music.

A dog doesn't howl at music as such, but at a medley of noises which are to him so discordant as actually to "set his teeth on edge."
 What we call "music" is only, after all, a succession of sound waves so arranged that their vibrations strike our ears in harmonious rhythm. Our ears, we say; and yet all human ears are not fashioned on precisely the same lines.
 Certain instruments, we know, will produce vibrations that strike the ears of some of us quite unmusically. The bagpipes, for instance, sound to many people as a collection of hideous discords. It isn't that the people who don't like bagpipes are not musical—they may enjoy, say, the piano or violin. It is only that their ears are not fashioned to pick up the bagpipe vibrations as a harmony, and so all they hear is a succession of noises, which, as we say, grate on them.
 In the same way, the dog's ears are not attuned to the vibrations of our musical instruments. He therefore hears no "music," but is only shaken by a series of noise-waves which set his nerves "all on edge."

"Playing Gooseberry."

This expression is really a contraction of "Playing Gooseberry Picker," a translation from one of the recognized French sayings which played so prominent a part in the conversation of our Early Victorian ancestors. Its meaning was, of course, obvious. The picker has to put up with all the pricks and stings of his unpleasant task in order that others may enjoy the fruits of his toil.

In the same way, the chaperon has to inconvenience herself for pleasures in which she has no part.

So apt was the comparison that the phrase lingered in England long after other common quotations had disappeared. Then we shortened it by the omission of the "picker," leaving "Playing Gooseberry" as the recognized term for chaperonage.

Beaver Board.

Beaver in the beard sense has nothing to do with the animal beaver, but was the name of a piece of the armour worn in the Middle Ages.

Between the helmet and the body coat was a gap, and to protect the throat and neck, which would otherwise have been open to attack, the soldier wore a piece of armour which was called the beaver. This would, of course, cover the place where would be the beard, if any, and so in time beaver acquired its beard meaning.

The present popular catchword is not new at all, but is a revival of a game once a passing fashion at the universities. The students did, of course, know of the old-time "beaver," and used the word in their game. So beaver still retains its catchword meaning, though it is safe to say that not one in ten thousand to-day knows its origin.

No Rescue.

A policeman walking along the side of the canal, seeing a youngster crying, stopped him.

"What's the matter?" he queried.
 The youngster pointed to a hat which was bobbing up and down in the middle of the canal.

"My brother—" he sobbed.
 In a flash the courageous constable plunged into the water.

He came up, but with the hat only.
 "Can't find him," he gasped. "Where was he standing when he fell in?"

"He didn't fall in," the boy blurted out. "He is over there. I was going to tell you he threw my hat into the canal, but you wouldn't let me finish."

Thought He Saw Double

The veteran Lord Aberdeen, who recently celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday, tells with gusto the story of how he was once walking along High Street, Edinburgh, when a man who had been imbibing too freely cannoned up against him.

Lord Aberdeen expostulated with the bibulous one, who was inclined to be cheeky, whereupon a policeman came up and reproved him sharply.

"Dye no ken," he said, "that this gentleman is the Marquess of Aberdeen and Tremair?" giving him his full title.

"Great Scott!" said the man. "Am I as bad as that? Is there twa' of them?"

"It will pay you to shop on the other side of the street."

Request to Surrender Returns

During the war with Mexico in 1847, General Taylor fell back on the 19th, to Buena Vista, to select a suitable spot for battle. The Mexicans were seen approaching about noon the next day; and Santa Anna, who despatched a letter to Taylor on the following singular terms: "Oh, Liberty! You are surrounded by five thousand men, and cannot, in any way probably, avoid suffering and being cut to pieces, with troops; but, as you deserve compassion and particular esteem, I to save you from such a calamity and for that purpose give you notice, in order that you may capitulate, under the assurance that you will be treated with the consideration belonging to the Mexican officer: to which end you will be given an hour's time to make up your mind, to commence from the time my flag of truce arrives here." With this view, I assume my particular consideration. Lopez de Santa Anna." Taylor was brief, but decisive: "Sir," he said, "in view of this date, I beg to surrender my force at discretion. I beg to say that I decline to your request. With respect, I am, sir, your obedient servant." Taylor, Major General U.S. Some fighting took place in the noon, when the Americans, on the mind that that was the anniversary of the birth of him who had been chief founder of their Republic, engaged to battle with the cry, "memory of Washington!" But the principal conflict took place on the following day, lasting from morning till sunset, when victory was declared to the Americans, who lost 746 men, wounded and missing. The story was not only important to the country, but it had the still more valuable sequence of breaking up the Santa Anna.

"Strafing" a Ship's Captain

WHAT HAPPENS TO AN INCOMPETENT SKIPPER.

When a captain is charged with incompetency, under which head his offences are reckoned, a report is forwarded by him or some other responsible officer to the Board of Trade.

This report is carefully considered by that body, and it is deemed proper to suspend the officer pending the receipt of the certificate. He is notified accordingly, although he may be asked to be present at the Board of Trade action is definitely taken.

The actual suspension takes the form of a written notice, obliging him from acting as a captain in certain time, varying according to the gravity of his offence. Much depends on his future conduct, when the certificate is restored. Pilots receive the licence from the elder brethren of Trinity House, and are empowered to continue in office against Trinity House regulations, unless the brethren meet in solemn assembly to consider the case.

The brethren not only keep a full eye on the pilot's sea record, but require that he shall conduct himself in a seemly way when ashore. Again, he is not allowed to have an interest in a public-house, any place of entertainment, or any place of sale of liquor, which offences are punishable with a fine of no less than one hundred pounds. Nor may he have an interest in the sale of tobacco or tea.

A pilot's licence, however, is the most precious possession, and for reason Trinity House seldom deems it necessary to inflict the punishment of withdrawing one of their documents.

Nothing Doing.

London's new Lord Mayor, by profession an accountant, has an amusing story illustrative of many financial methods in use of business men dealing with countries.

It concerned an old toper who, one day, being invited to a dinner, went into his favourite bar and ordered a glass of beer. He said to the proprietor, "I'll sell you drink on credit, but be shilling. Now, what do you want?"

The man gave his benefactor a glance of scorn.
 "What do you want?" he asked, picking up the coin and putting it in his pocket. "I want nothing. Nothing whatever, I tell you. A man who refuses me credit wants my ready cash."
 And he stalked majestically out of the house.

Italians Pleased With Mussolini Methods.
ROME.—"It is a real government" is the way the average Italian sums up his opinion of the new administration of Premier Mussolini. While he may not be of Fascist inclination, yet after recounting the many vicissitudes which the various Italian governments have suffered since the armistice, the Italian on the street complacently goes to his tasks and rejoices that, at last, there is one government in power which has a policy, and is free from herring and maneuvering for votes in Parliament in order to hold its own. The bold front which Premier Mussolini and his cabinet have presented in facing the problem of reducing the cumbersome bureaucracy of the state, with its army of state employees, has found joyous acceptance in the minds of the ordinary toiler, who sees therein a chance for the reduction of the heavy taxes which now weigh on all classes. And when accounts are read in the newspapers of the long and arduous cabinet meetings, with efforts to reform all the departments of government, the general comment is, "after all, it is a government."

United Holiness Meeting.

SALVATION ARMY SERVICE

A service of a very impressive and inspiring character was conducted by Colonel Martin in the No. 3 Citadel Adelaide Street at 11 a.m. yesterday; the three Corps united for the occasion. Colonel Martin is well known to St. John's audiences, having conducted a large number of public meetings during his four years' stay here and probably the best criterion of his popularity is that large crowds invariably gather where he is announced to speak. Yesterday morning's meeting was no exception to the rule, the Citadel being filled with a crowd of earnest seekers after the truths of the Gospel. Taking as his text Luke 23:31-32 the Colonel said in part: "This text reminds us that Christ is especially interested in every one of his followers and seeks to help them in every possible way. People seem to forget that the 'Disciples' were always near them, not to criticize and condemn, but to sympathize with and help. He understands our frailties and has unlimited patience with us in our mistakes and failures. We also should remember that Satan is a very real enemy who desires to bring about our destruction and who will use all sorts of devices to accomplish his purpose. The text also intimates that the power of Satan is limited and that while we trust God and seek strength from Him to do right we shall be more than conquerors. This thought is borne out by the experiences of various holy men about whom we read in the Old Testament, such as Daniel, Job and others. The text also contains a definite command 'strengthen my brethren.' There is a tendency on the part of many professing Christians to think lightly of those who become converted and fall away again; this was not Our Lord's attitude towards Peter, nor is it His attitude towards any soul who honestly desires to do right, however many times they may fall. In conclusion the Colonel made a strong plea to those present to cultivate a feeling of sympathetic interest in each other so that by helping each other the spiritual life of the whole would be deepened and the Kingdom of God extended. It is impossible to give more than a bare outline of this splendid sermon which was full of hopeful thought and will no doubt prove an impetus to those who heard it to be more earnest than ever in their efforts to glorify God and bring blessing to others. During the meeting the Colonel made touching references to Sergt. Major Jonas Barter, of No. 1 Corps, and several other comrades who are laid aside through sickness and asked the prayers of all Christians on their behalf. He also intimated that the revival campaign inaugurated a few weeks ago was still going strong and quite a number of penitents have been recorded to date. The campaign will continue for some time yet and the faith of officers and soldiers are high for greater results in the future.—R.

MEETS WITH NASTY FALL.
An elderly lady named Mrs. Sarah Heath, residing on Balsam Street, met with a very serious accident on Friday last when she slipped on the icy surface at the head of Adelaide Street and in the fall suffered painful injuries to her right side. Mrs. Heath was later removed to her home in a sleigh, and Dr. Carnell, who was called in, made an examination of her injuries and ordered her removal to the General Hospital, to which institution she will be conveyed to-day for treatment.

Here's Mrs. Hutton again, more entertaining than ever, tangling and untangling situations and generally putting a laughing tramp in the anatomy of theatre-goers who will attend "Daddy Longlegs" for the Orphans.—Feb. 18.

SHIPS WILL CARRY PLANKS.
Preparations for the 1923 sealing voyage are now nearing completion, and in the course of five weeks, the fleet will be leaving for the annual hunt. These "planes" are somewhat similar to those used on the "Quest" in the recent Arctic explorations.

Timber Destruction.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—The Trade Review of Saturday has an article on the "Pit Prop Industry" or the destruction of our forests through reckless cutting. I concur most heartily in the sentiments expressed in that article for with the exception of one or two views therein expressed the ideas are mine exactly. For years I have been pleading for conservation in the matter of our forests, only to be met with the silence of indifference where not with open antagonism. I am accused by the apostles of wild destruction of being an enemy to development, whereas I am the very reverse, as development of our resources has always been one of my most constant endeavours, but the development have had always in mind is not the savage depletion and reckless exploitation of those who to satisfy the exigencies of the moment would sacrifice the future. It is a burning disgrace to us that in a country such as ours, blessed by heaven as it is with natural wealth and advantageous geographical position, we are forever so close to gaunt and threatening want that we must fall back upon the senseless methods of destruction to satisfy the needs of the hour, needs that never should have arisen had our affairs been conducted with intelligence. It is disgraceful that every untoward happening, every disturbance of the industrial or commercial balance is the signal for a raid at once upon our capital which is our natural wealth. It shows how close we are to misery and want in the midst of plenty. It shows a great lack of ability on the part of those who without other recommendation than gall assume the direction of the country's affairs. We are forever having it dinned into our ears that this is a land of wonderful undeveloped wealth and the loud-mouthed tribe who keep the talk going are generally those who know least about the matter. They never seem to be aware of how foolish they are. They fail to see the sardonic joke when the closing of a mine employing a couple of thousand men must send the Prime Minister off to Montreal to make a sacrificial bargain for the re-opening of that mine which should be to us of such minor importance that its temporary closing would not even cause comment. With all the supposed wealth of this country at our doors the meagre population of scarce a quarter of a million should be able to view with very little concern the closing down of operations on Bell Island. That it was sufficient to cause alarm is tragic in its significance. The cutting of pit-props for a pittance is a crime chargeable to the neglect of the men who are elected to see that wherever intelligent industry might be applied to development of our latent wealth that no opportunity be overlooked or sacrificed. We should never have been called upon to destroy our forest wealth in order to ward off death by starvation. The sacrifice we have made and are making still is the result of crass mismanagement, nothing more. This country should be able to support its people in independence and comfort where now is indigence, penury and want. Squires was going to remedy all this. He was going to reorganize the Department of Agriculture and Mines. How he has failed is a matter of notoriety and he now confesses that agriculture is fast losing ground. Coker was going to do wonders for the fishery. Under his august care that industry has been reduced to an unrewarded drudgery and he has seemingly abandoned it to turn his genius to interior development so as to get men away from their traditional calling. As an instance of how this country is being made the plaything of kindergarten politicians witness the talk of increased and intensive assault upon the forests. I make the prediction that if a mill be established to turn out 400 tons of paper per day at the Humber you will find the operators coming back in a short time asking further concessions and demanding those concessions under the threat of closing down their works. They will demand an extension of their limits to Labrador and to every foot of unoccupied Crown Lands. The Government is approaching this question without the possession of that plenary knowledge so necessary to the consideration of such business. No study has been made of the reproductiveness of our woods or the natural annual increment, and all the talk we hear is but loose, and shall I say, disorderly guess work. There should be no room for guess work here. We have had too many painful results of dealing with corporations on the basis of guess work, and too little exact knowledge. Bell Island's fiasco is the latest example of that.

The Trade Review says that trees being cut for pit-props now will have attained a diameter of 12 to 15 inches in twenty years if permitted to stand. Such a statement is so contrary to all that we know of the growth of both spruce and fir that it must be put down to the wildest hazard. Is it on such an unfounded basis as this they tell us there is enough timber on the area claimed by the Humber Corporation to keep them in timber indefinitely. It is claimed they can cut for 50 years without considering the natural increment, and at the end of 50 years they can go back and begin again on the growth which replaced the first cutting. If I question the reliability of such a statement and ask for data covering such assertions no doubt I will be met with abuse which is the stock in trade of people who "talk through their hats." Let the people be on their guard during the next few weeks lest they be sacrificed again as they have been so often before.

Yours truly,

SUCCESSFUL MEETING AT NEW HARBOR.

On Friday last the delegates of the United Fishermen's Movement held a very successful meeting at New Harbor, N.B., of which the following particulars have been received:—
New Harbor, Feb. 16.—The delegates of the United Fishermen held a meeting in the Orange Hall here last night. The Chairman addressed the meeting explaining its objects, and reading the resolutions. He then called upon Capt. Roberts, who gave a splendid address speaking of the burden of taxation the fishermen were compelled to bear and the need for reduction. His speech was greeted with cheers. Mr. A. G. Parrott was then asked to speak, and he addressed the audience, speaking to the resolution. He also was attentively listened to. His address was heartily applauded. Mr. Bragg followed with an excellent address in which he put the situation plainly before the meeting and asked for their support. The Rev. Mr. Hunt then spoke, promising the delegation support in their good work. On motion of S. E. Crawford, seconded by A. G. Parrott, the resolution was unanimously carried. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Heart's Content, Feb. 14.—In the L.O.A. Hall last evening an enthusiastic gathering listened with rapt attention to the logical speeches of Capt. Roberts and Bragg, representing the United Fishermen's Movement for the curtailment of public expenditure, with a consequent reduction in taxation.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Chas. Rowe, W.M. of L.O.A., who acted as Chairman.

The resolutions were put to the meeting and were endorsed by a standing vote of the entire assemblage.

A Committee, consisting of Messrs. Chas. Rowe, W. N. Ford, W. R. Moore, Absalom Legge, and John Young, representing the L.O.A., Cable Employees, S.U.F., and other citizens respectively, was formed, to canvass the town with a view of obtaining signatures to the petition embodying the resolutions.

It is anticipated that the highest measure of success will attend the efforts of the Committee, as the whole community is in favor of the movement.

The Proof Positive

Out of the law courts comes proof of the wisdom of Insurance Protection. In the long experience of an eminent Canadian judge, handling estates in the court, the insurance policy is the only asset that does not shrink. Other property of all descriptions may do so; but where an insurance policy was left behind it had never within his knowledge paid less than full value. Our "Eclipse" Complete-Protection policy is the best form in which you can protect yourself while alive, and your dependents in case of your accidental death. Let us send you full details including extremely-low rates. When writing state your age and ordinary duties daily performed.
