"The Cloud With a Silver Lining"

CHAPTER XIII

Sidney's wedding-day came in the time of roses. They were all in bloom in the old-fashioned garden at the rear of the Gray Houses, scenting the sweet summer air with their fragrance, brightening it with their fresh loveliness and exquisite coloring, their soft hues of pink and dymask and yellow and spotless white. Never had there been a greater profusion of roses, people said; they bloomed everywhere—in the cottage gardens, in the little latticed windows, in the rosiary at Lambswoold, over the pointed porches, in the hedges, and on the hills-tops; everywhere the roses bloomed, save on the face of the young bride-elect when Bessie came in to call her on her wedding morning and found her lying back upon her bed, white and cold and insensible in a deadly swoon.

Bessie's first impulse was to summon assistance, and she had taken a few steps in the direction of the bell, when she paused, and, turning away again, went back slowly to the little white bed, and looked down at the motionless form lying there. Sidney had not been to bed; that was evident, for she still wore the pretty pale blue dressing-gown which Bessie had given her on the night before, when she had left her, at Sidney's wish, to go and assist Dolly, who was spending the night at the Gray House, and who was unused to dispense with the services of a maid. Her hair was falling around her, lying in long golden-brown waves upon the pillows, and the ivory-backed brush with which she had been brushing it lay where it had fallen from the nervous hand.

Bessie glanced round the room anxiously, but there were no other signs of disturbance, the pretty dressing-gown, with its ornaments and knick-knacks, and the candles burnt down into their sockets, were as usual. The

MRS. B. H. HART. SICK FOR YEARS

Wants Women to Know How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cornwall, Ont.—"I am now giving your medicine a fair trial and it surely is doing me good and I am going to keep on taking it. I used to feel so tired in the morning that I didn't want to get up, but that feeling is leaving me now. I also sleep better and feel more like working. For seven or eight years I have had headaches, tired feelings, pains in my back and across my body. I read letters in the newspapers saying what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done others. My husband says I quit too soon, but I am not going to stop taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine until I am better and haven't an ache or a pain. I can't say that the right way. I have great faith in your medicines. They must be good when those who take them speak so highly of them. I am recommending them to my friends and I will gladly answer letters from women asking about them."—Mrs. B. H. HART, Box 1081, Cornwall, Ont.

Mrs. Hart is willing to answer letters from sick women asking about the Vegetable Compound.

charming old-fashioned room was in its usual order; but one of the windows was partly open, and the curtain pushed back, as if by a hasty hand, which had not time to use it other than roughly.

Going back to the bedside, the old woman lifted the girl's head upon her arm, and moved her into a less constrained position on the bed. As she did so, she became aware that the swoon was less a swoon now than the heavy stupor and faintness succeeding a long insensibility, for a shiver shook the girl's frame as she stirred her, and the heavy eyelids quivered and half raised themselves from the languid eyes, only to fall again the next moment once more, while the hand Bessie touched was cold as marble, and, when she released it again, it fell back upon the bed as heavily and stiffly as marble itself might have fallen.

More alarmed now, Bessie hurriedly brought water, and, lifting her mistress's head, held it to her lips, and then bathed her face and brow with it. Something withheld her from summoning assistance; she would not do so unless she were obliged; she did not wish to give the busy tongues of the household and of Mrs. Arnold food for comment; whatever was the cause of Sidney's swoon, it was nothing they need know, she felt sure; and she redoubled her terrified efforts in her anxiety to do without the help she would otherwise so quickly have obtained.

At last a glimmer of consciousness crept into the marble face lying on Bessie's arm; the heavy lids were slowly raised, and Sidney's great dark eyes opened, and stared up with a strange fixed vacancy of regard at the tender, anxious face bending over her.

"You are better, dearie," the old woman said, gently smoothing away the hair from the girl's white brow, and thinking sorrowfully how like the fair face was to the face of Sidney's mother, as it lay among the soft white satin and flowers which lined her coffin.

"Better?" Sidney pale lips muttered, inquiringly, almost as if Bessie had spoken in some unknown tongue. "Better?"

"Yes; you have been ill, dearie," Bessie said, soothingly; "but you are better now. I will fetch you some tea. Are you well enough to get left?"

Again the strange, puzzled look of inquiry crossed the girl's pale face; then, seeming to understand the question, she faintly muttered an affirmative, and sank back again upon her pillow, turning from the light as if it hurt her.

guid to a strange degree, and she was so silent that the power of speech might have been deemed to have left her.

Bessie moved about the room mechanically, settling about her duties in some daisy and distress. What terrible thing had happened? she wondered. That Sidney's prostrate condition was not due solely to bodily illness she felt sure; and what had caused it? There had been no quarrel, she knew. Stephen had spent the previous evening at the Gray House, and that morning a mounted groom had ridden over from Lambswoold with a parcel for Sidney and a note, which parcel and note lay upon a table where Bessie had deposited them in her alarm on entering the room. What had happened?

With her head drooping forward on her breast, Sidney watched her as she moved about the room, active and noiseless in her movements, tall and erect in the handsome black silk dress and neatly ribboned cap she had donned in honor of her darling's wedding-day—an attire which perhaps served to remind the girl of what she seemed to have forgotten; for, as she noticed it, she started a little.

"Bessie," she said abruptly, but in a voice whose accents were like those of one enfeebled by long suffering, "what day is this?"

Bessie turned briskly, trying to disguise her anxiety under an affectation of great cheerfulness.

"What day is this?" repeated Sidney.

"Why, Miss Sidney, dear, have your thoughts wandered to? Have you forgotten what day this is? Surely not! No girl ever forgets on awakening that it is her wedding day."

"Her wedding day?" echoed Sidney, in the same hushed voice; and the slender, drooping frame began to tremble so pitiously that Bessie ran to her and caught her in her arms.

"What has happened, my dearie?" she asked, tenderly. "What has frightened you? Tell your old nurse, my dearie—tell Bessie."

The tender voice and touch moved Sidney as nothing else could have moved her; she clung to the old woman with her little feeble hands, and said faintly:

"Bessie, Bessie!"—and again, in a few moments, "Bessie, Bessie!"

Your favorite desserts will acquire a delicious new flavor if made with Purity. It is economical, too.

Borden's PURITY BRAND CONDENSED MILK

And the old woman, holding the lit-tle trembling figure in her strong arms, kissed and fondled her as if she had still been the child who had lain on her breast twenty years before.

"Can't you tell me, dearie? What has happened to distress and frighten you?" she whispered. "Shall I call the doctor, Miss Sidney, or—"

"No, no, no," Sidney called out, in sudden passionate alarm—"do not call any one! There is nothing—What do you mean, Bessie? I was only a little tired, and I had had dreams—yes, I had had dreams—oh, such terrible dreams!"

"But the dreams are over now, my dear," Bessie said, tenderly; "they need not trouble you to-day. Look how brightly the sun is shining for you, Miss Sidney; and, if it is true that 'happy is the bride the sun shines on,' surely your wedded life will be happy, my dear!"

"Happy!" Sidney ejaculated, with a sudden passionate bitterness. "Is any one happy in this world, I wonder? Did you ever know any one who was happy Bessie?"

"I think you ought to be, Miss Sidney," said Bessie, stoutly.

"? Good Heaven—I happy!" the girl cried out, bitterly, leaving her seat and pacing up and down with hurried, uneven steps, her long blue dresses falling around her, her hair tumbling about over her shoulders.

"I wonder if ever a woman on her wedding day felt as I feel? If so, Heaven help her!"

"You must not be ungrateful, Miss Sidney," said Bessie, reproachfully. "No young lady ever had a brighter future in store than you have. If my dear mistress had lived to see this day, she would have said so, I am sure."

"My mother!" returned the young girl, with the same passionate pain and bitterness. "Ah, she was happy, Bessie; she died before she learned how bitter life can be!"

She threw herself upon her knees by the bed, her head on her outstretched arms. For some minutes Bessie left her undisturbed, but the clock striking nine warned her of the lateness of the hour.

"Your bath is ready, Miss Sidney," she suggested, quietly. "It is getting late, and you must have some breakfast before you dress."

Sidney raised her head, wearily. "Help me up," she said, faintly; and indeed she had need of the assistance, for she could hardly stand.

But the cold water revived her, and she was able to submit to Bessie's operations and to taste the dainty breakfast she brought to her. She was calmer now, but still pale as death, and her movements were weak and languid.

A Gold Cure for China

China's epic of revolution, banditry, rioting and disorder is to be ended, it seems, by the gold treatment, and the gold is to be found by raising China's tariff wall a little higher, if the plans favored by the Government at Washington work out successfully.

Whatever others may think about it, the American press believe the plan a good one. The acceptance by the United States, Great Britain, and Japan of China's invitation to a customs conference at Peking next month are indication to the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot and other representative newspapers that "the Chinese outlook has become noticeably brighter."

True, we are reminded by the Providence Journal, "It has taken three and a half years for the United States, Belgium, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands and Portugal to ratify the treaty signed at Washington." But, points out the New York Times, "the day has arrived when the treaty Powers can proceed with whatever joint activity they deem necessary in order to help China out of her present troubles."

Practical relief, this paper believes, "must be by way of a tariff conference."

"The main purpose of the October conference," explains the Philadelphia Public Ledger, "is to get for the Peking Government tariff increases sufficient to effect its financial rehabilitation. This would go far toward putting an end to the governmental confusion that has existed in China for more than a decade."

The conference hopes to abolish the 11-kn, or provincial taxes, and to accord to China a surtax, increase of from 3-12 per cent. to 7-12 per cent. on certain imports, says the Washington correspondent of the New York Times.

Carnation Improves Home-Made Candy

Creamy full-bodied fudge, crispy nut-crackle, smooth, velvet-like chocolate creams all follow the use of Carnation Milk in candy recipes. Carnation adds a smooth richness to your candy, for Carnation Milk is just pure, fresh milk, evaporated to double richness, kept safe by sterilization. Economical—it keeps indefinitely in the can, and for several days when opened. Order from your grocer several tall (16 oz.) cans or a case of 48 cans.

The representatives of this Government will be John Van A. MacMurtry, America's new Minister to China, and Slias Strawn, Chicago attorney and tariff expert.

"It is a beginning is to be made to stabilize China, it must start with a revision of the customs duties," declares the San Francisco Chronicle, and we read on The World:

"Tariff revision is urgent, for upon it depends the vigor of the central Government. Since 1842 China has been restricted to a 5 per cent. tariff. The schedule has several times been revised; the rate, never. Since these customs receipts have been mortgaged for indemnities and loans, the administration is in foreign hands. China, in brief, lacks even the shadow of fiscal independence; and one reason why the Peking Government is impotent is its financial starvation. A higher tariff will strengthen the central authorities, help liquidate the debt and benefit certain industries. Hand in hand with it should go abolition of the 11-kn, or provincial imposts. These hinder all trade and give the military governors the chief revenues with which they defy Peking and the forces of law and order."

"If there were no other reason for co-operative Western action it would lie in the unabated chaos of Chinese affairs. The authority of the central Government has been almost destroyed, and military Governors rule the Provinces to suit themselves. The Peking treasury is notoriously bankrupt. Enterprise throughout much of China is stifled, and capital has drained to the treaty ports as the only safe place of investment. River conservation has been neglected, with the result of dangerous floods; the weak rail system, only some 6,000 miles, is debt-burdened and deteriorating. Banditry has filled whole provinces with a terrorism like that of the medieval condottieri. The opium evil thrives unchecked.

"China is tired of sympathy," asserts the Louisville Post. "What she wants is to be let alone to conduct her own affairs." Already, we read in Washington dispatches, China is making a beginning. She has just created a commission for the consideration of the financial reorganization of the country. Chief among its problems will be the balancing of the budget and the reorganization of national and local taxation."

"The United States has cleared the way through diplomatic channels, for

is going to claim that it must be allowed to make its own tariff schedule and that the Powers must keep the hands off. If this claim is supported with iron heel, there is a chance for an explosion that may spread along far-flung powder-line into Europe, Asia and America, touching capitals from Tokyo westward to Moscow, Berlin, Paris and Washington.

"China owes money to many of these Powers. That is why they have controlled the collection and disbursement of the Chinese customs revenue ever since 1858, and that is why the majority of them do not want to give up that control now.

"Great Britain, Japan and other Powers are afraid of admitting officially that China is right about her autonomy, for they see a train of power running direct from it toward a pile of explosives known in diplomatic language as extraterritoriality. In plainer words, that means the right for foreigners not to be subject to the laws and courts of China, but to have the right of trial in mixed courts or by their own consular representatives.

"Then the powder-train runs to congestions under which forty-nine cities of China are practically ruled by foreigners while Chinese pay the bulk of the taxes and have no representation.

"Next in the danger-zone would be spheres of influence, where particular nations have special rights of trading. These nations are jealous of each other, and suspicious, too, despite their association under the Nine-Power Treaty.

"The Powers want to safeguard against an explosion to protect themselves. But if they overdo the protection-business, China may explode from spontaneous combustion. In that event, the fat of the Powers would be in the fire.

"New national groupings might result from such an outbreak. The much-dreaded and long-predicted conflict between East and West might be precipitated. In order to avoid that and other possibilities of renewed warfare, that would not be confined in its effects to the East, and that would be costly in trade and in human life, some method must be found that will be acceptable to China and fair to the world at large. It is as vitally interesting to Americans as it is to China that the October conference be guided wisely in reaching its conclusions."

The Chief Causes of Motor Accidents

"I am often asked to what particular causes I attribute the increase of accidents. I think that apart from bad conditions they arise chiefly from three causes," writes Lord Montagu of Beaulieu in the Sunday Times.

"1. The inexperience of the beginner, and his or her ignorance or neglect of the manners, customs, and necessities of the road.

"2. The extraordinary carelessness of many pedestrians and bicyclists.

"3. The rashness and selfishness of a very small section of the motoring community, known as road hogs.

"There are other contributory causes, most of which could be removed by intelligent alteration, such as high hedges at corners, blind cross-roads, insufficient width of metal on narrow roads, and slippery surfaces.

"Lately, also, I have noticed a great increase in the number of cyclists riding two, three, four, or even more abreast on a busy highway, blocking sometimes more than half the road, and forcing the rest of the traffic almost into the ditch to pass them.

"May I remind them that all have an equal, but none a superior, right to the use of the road? In some municipalities...

...cipal areas cycling abreast is now forbidden, and considering the crowds of vehicles, rightly so. It is time that one vehicle at a time became the rule of the road in general, instead of in particular localities.

"All improvement in manners and behaviour on the road and off it is best achieved by a wholesome public opinion—more powerful, as we know and see every day, than the law," concludes Lord Montagu. "Let motorists remember always their responsibilities and drive with consideration, and let cyclists and pedestrians realize that they may easily cause great danger not only to themselves, but others by ignoring the altered state of traffic and forcing drivers into difficulties.

"Manners maketh man," said William of Wykeham, and they make the motorist and every class of road user a good citizen."

Radio Promises Big Development

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—With all the static barred, New York's two radio shows are tearing along in merry meter, from the tiny finger-ring set to the ponderous cabinet that relegates Dad's easy chair to the ignominy of the coal-bin.

At both the Second Radio World's Fair and the Fourth National Radio Exposition, it seems to be a battle between art and science. The wonders of mechanical development fight hard to keep the centre of the stage from the decorative skill of the designers. The latest radio set fits into the color scheme of Madame's boudoir or the draperies of the drawing room. Delicate, cream-colored instruments vie with sateen sets of deep-laid mahogany.

And the transmission of sound, more clearly and from across the seas, is not the only promise of 1925 radio exhibitions. The time is coming, say the enthusiasts and the experts, when practically every household will have an attachment to the radio set just as loud-speakers are now plugged in, by which persons will be able to see in their homes events happening at a distance.

No longer runs the prediction, must Maine and Florida travel to Washington of New York to see Walter Johnson or Babe Ruth rise to the heights or sink to defeat. The Radio will carry the swing of the bat and the crash of the ball.

Blames Dole for Emigration Lack

DAILY MAIL DECLARES HUDSON'S BAY COMPANY HOLDS PROMISE.

London, Sept. 15. (C.P.)—The Daily Mail draws attention to the decrease in British emigration which, it declares, is being strangled by doles and pensions. The paper states that the greatest demand for emigration to-day is coming not from the hundreds of thousands of young lads and young men who are content to be workless while drawing the dole, but from the older men with families who are not yet demoralized.

Despite the increasing unemployment in Britain the total number of emigrants to the Dominions this year is less than last year. For the months of April, May and June last the returns show that 11,640 persons emigrated to the Dominions as compared with 12,449 for the same period last year. There has been an actual slump in the emigration to Australia, but this is partly due to the immediate effect of the signing of the new agreement between the Governments of Britain and the Commonwealth which will require another year before it is in full operation.

New Kelvin Hall

OFFER OF £162,115 ACCEPTED.

The Glasgow Corporation Committee on Kelvin Hall have agreed to recommend the acceptance of Sir William Arrol & Co.'s offer of £162,115 for the erection of a new steel-frame fireproof hall on the site of the new building recently destroyed by fire.

Many improvements will be incorporated in the new building, notable among these being an avenue at the entrance for vehicular traffic, thus obviating any congestion with trams or other traffic in Argyle Street. The hall will have a three span glass roof, the central arch measuring 200 feet and the side spans 60 feet. The front elevation, facing Argyle Street will be of stone, and the west side, on Bunhouse Road, probably of stone-facing, with the remaining walls of brick and roughcast. Block asphalt laid on concrete will form the flooring of the main building, and the upper floors, which will be situated over the entrance, will be of concrete.

There will be lunch and tea rooms a reception room, concert room, cinema accommodation, while the administrative offices will be, as formerly, at the entrance in Argyle Street. Accommodation may also be provided for conference rooms.

Harry Carey Has a Thrilling Role

"THE LIGHTNING RIDER" GIVES HIM OPPORTUNITY TO SHOW HIS VERSATILITY.

"The Lightning Rider," which the Nickel Theatre is showing to-night, gives Harry Carey a splendid opportunity to show how versatile he is, because he has a dual characterization. By day, before the villagers, he is "slow Phil Morgan," who finds all his excitement in whittling dolls for children, but at night he becomes the fearless man of action, scouring the country to find the Black Mask, the bandit who is the bane of the countryside.

To draw the fire of the outlaw, Phil dresses like him. He makes love to his lady fair in the interesting garb, and, when the lady's father is murdered, Phil finds himself in rather a tight

War On The Reds

The announcement in the despatch published to-day of the decision of the British Government to take drastic action against Communist agitators in the country may be news on this side of the water, but as the facts were featured in the issues of the London Daily Mail on September 8th and 9th, we are enabled to give further particulars.

Following a conference of the Director of Public Prosecutions and the Chiefs of Scotland Yard on the 6th instant, it was decided to take proceedings against the agitators, and instructions were issued by the Chief Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police to the officers in charge of divisions regarding the rounding up of persons believed to be involved in the conspiracy against the State and particularly those who were attempting to stir up disaffection in the various branches of the Service.

In the campaign of the agitators, the hand of Zinoviev is again seen. An order from Moscow, the author of which the Mail declares to be the President of the Third International, reads as follows:

To prepare the armies and the broad masses of the workers for effective war against war, it is necessary to create legal and illegal soldiers' organizations, which organizations shall carry on an uninterrupted, persevering, and systematic work of agitation and enlightenment within the Army and be ready at the decisive moment to lead the armies rising against the bourgeoisie.

A continuous fight must be conducted for the disarmament of the bourgeoisie, for the arming of the working masses, and for the establishment of workers' Governments, whose task it will be to carry out these demands against the will of the ruling class.

The nefarious campaign of the agitators known as "Red week" was arranged to take place during the Army manoeuvres, but the decision of the authorities resulted in its being abandoned so far as the Forces were concerned, and confined to the industrial centres.

Already we have learned of the failure of the Communists to paralyze Britain's merchant marine by a general strike, and they have suffered another defeat at the hands of labour by the refusal of the Trades' Union Congress to approve of the scheme for a great industrial alliance.

Insignificant as this element of disorder may be numerically, it is useless overlooking the fact that they are exercising considerable influence by the less responsible citizens, not only in Great Britain, but in many parts of the Empire, and to regard their influence as insignificant, or to give the agents every latitude is only to encourage them and make their eventual suppression a difficult matter.

The most hopeful sign of their overthrow is the wisdom shown by the real labour leaders, and it is no doubt due to their attitude that the Government have decided upon the course of action outlined.

Newfoundland herself has not altogether been overlooked by the plotters against the welfare of the Empire, but such is the spirit of loyalty in England's Oldest Colony, a bond which is every bit as real to us as that which unites the members of a family, it is very certain that there is little chance of these preachers of sedition receiving any great measure of support. Further, they may rest assured that the people themselves know just what treatment to apply to the enemies of our constitution and will have little hesitation in applying it when the need arises.

Schooner Foundered Off Flat Point

The following message was received yesterday by the Deputy Minister of Customs from the Collector at Chatham: "Schooner Sunshine, Squarey, master, bound to St. Pierre, founded 32 miles from Flat Point yesterday. Crew taken off by schooner Julia A. Anderson, and landed here."

Star of the Sea Club Purchase Lake Side Property

We understand the Star of the Sea Boat Club, of which Mr. Peter Cashin, M.H.A., is president, have concluded negotiations with the Hawke Bay Trading Company for the purchase of the hanger on the south side of Quidi Vidi Lake and will use it as a boat house in future. Yesterday a number of the members removed the new racer, the Star of the Sea, from the north side to her new quarters.

The club are to be congratulated on their enterprise, and it is certain that this evidence of their faith in the future success of the Regatta will tend to arouse even greater interest in the great sporting event.

Will Hold Evening Classes in English Literature

Dear Sir—I am already indebted to you for one good turn, more than one. May I ask another? Quite a number of people have inquired whether we could not manage a class in English Literature, as part of our Evening Course. We can. And we ask all who would be interested to turn up at the Memorial College on Monday evening next, 28th Sept., at 8 o'clock. Dr. Hunter will meet them and all arrangements will be made. If any find it inconvenient to attend, would they kindly communicate with Dr. Hunter? Faithfully yours, J. L. PATON.

Personal

Misses A. Maude Foran, Rose Berrigan and Madge Meaney, all ex-pupils of the Academy of Mercy, Military Road, are leaving on Saturday for St. Rose's Hospital to enter the French Hospital of Nursing at New York, conducted by the French Sisters of Mercy. All three are well known in the city for their high attainments, and that they will keep up the prestige of their Alma Mater is quite certain. Miss Berrigan has already spent several months nursing in the hospital referred to, and has been visiting her parents for the last three weeks.

Magistrate's Court

A labourer convicted of being drunk in a public place; 2nd, assaulting Const. Bee, whilst in the execution of his duty, was fined $5.00 or in default 10 days' imprisonment.

A motorist convicted of parking his car on the public street after the midnight hour, which is a breach of the Street Traffic Regulations, was fined $5.00 or in default 10 days' imprisonment.

A taxi driver was arraigned before court this morning at the instance of Const. E. C. Pittman, charged with (1) on the 17th inst. by driving a motor car on the public street whilst intoxicated, thereby committing a breach of Section 48 of the Highway Traffic Act; (2) on the 17th inst. by driving a car on the public street with danger to the public committing a breach of Section 23, sub-Section (a) of the Highway Traffic Act. Mr. Browne, B. L., appeared on behalf of his client and entered a plea of "not guilty."

This is a case arising out of the collision which occurred on Topsail Rd. on Thursday last when the defendant's car, proceeding citywards, crashed into a horse drawn vehicle which carried several passengers. Two witnesses for the prosecution were called and gave evidence when adjournment was taken till 3.30 p.m. One of the witnesses stated that the defendant was under the influence of liquor at the time, but this could not be corroborated by a second witness, although he said the man had showed signs of slight concussion.

A Distressing Case

An aged widow whose maiden name is Elizabeth Houlehan, was brought to the lockup this morning having been found sitting on the door step of a house on Signal Hill. Last night the woman was taken in for shelter by Mr. Walsh who reported her condition to the police. Shortly after being brought to the lockup she was taken suddenly ill and guard Murphy was obliged to call a doctor and priest. Both were quickly in attendance, as it was feared that the aged woman would die in the cell, she was removed to hospital. Dr. McDonald, who was in attendance, gave a certificate that the woman was suffering from a lack of care and attention. She is nearing ninety years of age according to her own story as she states she was a young girl at the time of the 1846 fire. Her husband, Charles Thoms, a native of Plymouth, England, died a number of years ago.

Met With Gunning Accident

James Furlong, working with a survey party between Harry's Brook Station and Stephenville Crossing met with a gunning accident early in the week as a result of which he is now at Corner Brook Hospital with a shattered right forearm. A report of the accident was forwarded to Mr. T. A. Hall, Chairman of the Highroads Commission, but no particulars were given beyond stating that an operation has been performed, and so far there is no need for amputation of the injured member. The victim of the accident is son of Mr. P. Furlong and grandson of Mr. L. Furlong, Smithville.

Rosalind in Port

S.S. Rosalind arrived from Halifax and New York at 10.30 a.m. after a splendid passage. The ship brought a fair cargo and the following passengers:—Fred Edmonds, Winifred Edmonds, Mary King, Edward Hawkins, Alice Hawkins, Agatha Hatch, Gertrude Davis, Virginia Davis, Garfield Pollard, Duncan Mackenzie, W. J. Martin, M. C. Martin, George R. Martin, Olive Murrin, Carlos Morales, John Willis, Gilbert Anderson, William I. Bishop, Frank Lasky, James Brown, Joseph Gardner, Charles Stovell, James Hart, Garland White, Patrick Duggan, Thomas Carter, Francis Walsh, Maria Walsh, William Walsh, Irene Walsh, Antoine Manser, Alfred Geoghegan, Samuel Freeman, Henry Laird, Bert Abbott, Charles Holt, Arthur Martin, Robert Halsey, Roy Brydall, Albert Arsonault, James Willcock, William Sutherland, Caroline Parrott, Patrick Carney, Simon Farrell, Martin Phelan, Anna Phelan, Patrick Phelan. There are in addition to the above fourteen cruise passengers.

Charged With Selling Liquor

Charged with selling liquor without a permit, a woman shopkeeper of Duckworth Street appeared before the Magistrate this morning at the instance of the Liquor Control Board. On Saturday evening Detectives Byrne, Pittman and Walsh, acting on a report that liquor was being vendied there, made a raid on the premises. In the shop an unopened bottle of liquor and one containing but a small quantity were discovered. A third bottle partly filled was discovered upstairs in the bedroom of the defendant's husband. He was in bed at the time of the raid and the bottle found in his room was not seized. Mr. Browne, who appeared for the accused, called a carman of Quidi Vidi and a member of the Fire Company as witnesses. The former said he owned the bottle of liquor and had left it at the store until he was ready to go home. The latter said he saw the carman leave the bottle. The case was dismissed. His Honor commenting on the right of the police to make a search, said they were perfectly within their rights in the matter under review and had sufficient prima facie evidence to bring the case to trial.

Fireman Receives Slight Scalding

While the Southern Shore train was on her way to Trepassey on Wednesday morning last, Fireman Noseworthy got his face slightly scalded by escaping steam from a joint in one of the pipes. He remained at his post until relieved by another fireman farther along the line, when he got off and had his wounds dressed. Noseworthy was well enough to return to the city on the next day when he again resumed duty.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

Sept. 22.—LAY long, being a whole day, the last for the season, so do take full advantage of it. Anon up, and abroad, and the weather which was fine, turns squally, but do become fine again, and is the healthiest possible kind of weather, being fine even if somewhat cold. Talking this day with Claxton, who professes some knowledge of the Labrador, he talks of the absurdity of the land being sold for 15 millions, which he do believe was offered, and says how he would estimate its value at not a penny less than $200,000,000. Indeed, says he, the value is incalculable, and it will be many generations before it is known beyond any doubt. The case is now set for hearing before the Privy Council for the spring, and 'tis indeed, to be hoped that 'twill be determined for all time. Out with Pevey in his motor coach this afternoon, and do take much pleasure from the drive, going over some new roads, which I have not travelled over this long time. By news out of England this night, do learn how the Communists will now be deported, which is an action the Cabal should have taken these many months ago, yett is never too late to do good.

Meigle Arrives From North

S.S. Meigle, Capt. Burgess, arrived from ports as far as Hopedale at 9 o'clock this morning, bringing nine car loads of freight, consisting of fish and oil and the following saloon passengers for this port:—Miss M. Ives, Mrs. J. W. Hiseock, L. Hiseock, G. Hiseock, Mrs. E. Groves, T. Kennedy, Jos. Moore, W. F. Caldwell, H. Strange, J. Crocker, Mrs. R. Buntin, Mrs. A. Simms and five in steerage. Capt. Burgess states fine weather prevailed throughout the trip, and the only snow reported on the coast was at Holton when the ship was going north. The fishery north is practically over. Upwards of 300 fishermen who were operating with a splendid Hopedale and Battin Harbor returned by the steamer and were landed at their homes in various parts of Conception Bay. Whilst the ship was lying at Brigus at 3 o'clock this morning, a fire broke out in the Ladies' Hospital, destroying several berths and a quantity of linen. The blaze which looked very serious for a time was confined to the one department, and was finally quenched by the use of the ship's hose. There was nobody sleeping in the department at the time, and the first sign of fire was the smelling of smoke by one of the passengers. How he first originated is not known. The Meigle headed over from Bowring Bros' premises to the Southside at 1 o'clock to-day to take bunker coal.

The Meigle headed over from Bowring Bros' premises to the Southside at 1 o'clock to-day to take bunker coal.

Meigle Arrives From North. S.S. Meigle, Capt. Burgess, arrived from ports as far as Hopedale at 9 o'clock this morning, bringing nine car loads of freight, consisting of fish and oil and the following saloon passengers for this port:—Miss M. Ives, Mrs. J. W. Hiseock, L. Hiseock, G. Hiseock, Mrs. E. Groves, T. Kennedy, Jos. Moore, W. F. Caldwell, H. Strange, J. Crocker, Mrs. R. Buntin, Mrs. A. Simms and five in steerage. Capt. Burgess states fine weather prevailed throughout the trip, and the only snow reported on the coast was at Holton when the ship was going north. The fishery north is practically over. Upwards of 300 fishermen who were operating with a splendid Hopedale and Battin Harbor returned by the steamer and were landed at their homes in various parts of Conception Bay. Whilst the ship was lying at Brigus at 3 o'clock this morning, a fire broke out in the Ladies' Hospital, destroying several berths and a quantity of linen. The blaze which looked very serious for a time was confined to the one department, and was finally quenched by the use of the ship's hose. There was nobody sleeping in the department at the time, and the first sign of fire was the smelling of smoke by one of the passengers. How he first originated is not known. The Meigle headed over from Bowring Bros' premises to the Southside at 1 o'clock to-day to take bunker coal.

Do Strikes Pay?

By the RT. HON. J. H. THOMAS, M.P. Colonial Secretary in the late Labour Administration

When we face the question of labour troubles and disputes and the "way out" one is inclined to say, pessimistically, because of much past experience, that there is none! That disputes have always arisen and will continue to arise, and that, as long as human nature remains what it is, men will continue to fight each other, whether on the battlefield, with gun, bayonet, and bomb, or, on the world-wide field of labour, with strike and lock-out—the weapons respectively of worker and employer.

We should all be perfectly agreed, nevertheless, that one very definite road to renewed prosperity, to financial recuperation, to economic soundness, is that every man should put his heart into his daily work, whether he be master or labourer, organiser, mechanic, manager, scientific investigator, inventor, miner, railwayman, or any other of the thousand and one of those who work with hand and brain. That, of course, goes without saying. It is my creed: it is your creed: and the man who does not believe it, theoretically, as the only plain way of duty, is a bad citizen, and ought not to be supported.

But when it comes to the actualities of life such a platitudes as this often breaks down because its antecedent condition of smooth working is a satisfied populace, who feel that they are getting a fair share of the ordinary amenities of life. In the past, manhood, womanhood, and even childhood were exploited. The trade unions arose to fight these conditions, and many of the rules and regulations which are criticised to-day were originally framed as very necessary measures of defence against tyranny and injustice. No one who studies our industrial history can for a moment doubt this. The worker has had to fight for what he has got.

The fight has been against low wages, miserable and insanitary conditions of life both at home and at work, the repression of liberty, and many other things of a like nature. Much has been accomplished. On the whole the workers have had good success; but it has almost always been success on the battlefield, and without the clash of battle little has ever been conceded.

This, I think, has been the tremendous mistake. What might have been conceded to the sense of justice and fairness has been denied, instead, to be wrung by force from unwilling hands. Here, too, is the secret of the difficulty which always faces the labour-leader when he advocates conciliatory methods. What is the reply he gets? "We tried negotiation last time. We were met with a blank refusal. Concessions were out of the question. Give and take was not a matter of discussion—it was all take. Then we went out on strike, and what was refused during negotiations was conceded to war."

Unfortunately, this is a statement of fact and not fancy. Nevertheless, any reasonable thinker will admit that it is madness to concede to force what is denied to reason, and I personally have had a hand in hundreds of disputes which have so resulted.

As a rule strikes, like fires, arise from little things, like the careless dropping of a match of tactlessness amongst the inflammable matter which is always lying around; and at this stage in the evolutionary process of society, when it is hopeless to expect the working man to return to the hard conditions from which he has emerged, there is a fierce determination to hold the ground gained. Thus, when the workers hear the sort of hectoring speech which their fathers were accustomed to still tacitly indulged in, it is a matter for little wonder that they should harden their hearts and refuse even to listen to more reasonable counsels.

To an amazing extent conciliation is dependent on the right atmosphere. The Lancashire spinner will tell you that, when the east wind blows, his work is doubled. It sucks all the moisture out of the air; this in turn sucks all the moisture out of his yarn—and the "breaking point" is reached much more easily and quickly than when the south "wind," with its moisture-laden breath, keeps the yarn intact. It is not otherwise in industrial negotiations, from which the public often expect so much. The atmosphere needs to be right—and quite frequently it is far from being right. There are faults on both sides, as in all human affairs, but the wrongs have been the workers', and until those wrongs are put right, and put right from a sheer sense of the justice of the case, it will continue to be a hopeless matter to expect that we have seen the last strike—any more than the last war, although both are "consummations devoutly to be wished."

We may take it for granted that the man who talks about legislation making strikes illegal is a fit subject for a mental specialist. The first effect of such madness would be a universal strike to teach legislators the limits of their powers, and the foolishness of supposing that Parliament can name the date of the beginning of the millennium. We must look deeper than this type of talker is capable of look-

MAN AND HIS MIRACLE

AROLD REGGIE, in Daily Mail states an American Cardinal lately returned to the United States is the one country in Europe which manifests a recovery from the economic ravages of the three years ago this same Italy plunging into the anarchy which devastated the Russian Empire. Mussolini's achievement, separated from the methods of some of his followers, seems to me incomparably the greatest act of modern statesmanship. He has destroyed cynicism in the highly civilized State and kindled a flame of idealism in an ancient people. He has taken the threat, to the battalions of sedition, and driven down Russian Satanism under the clouds of civil war and sublimated class hatred, to give a new hope of enthusiasm to forty million of war-wearied people, and to give to these forty millions that sense of sacrifice and hard work which are the very springs of real existence. He has shown the world since the days of Cromwell that a man in England thinks I expect let him try to make unselfishness in our trade unions or in our public life. He has shown the world that a man in England thinks I expect let him try to make unselfishness in our trade unions or in our public life. He has shown the world that a man in England thinks I expect let him try to make unselfishness in our trade unions or in our public life.

national unity, expressed by courageous Youth cheerfully enduring hardships triumphantly going out to meet death unquestioningly accepting sacrifice as the true glory of life. He returned to find middle age complaining of incontinence, and old age moping over the dread of ruin. In order that Italy should be saved from ignominy and ruin he formed a legion of men who had fought in the war, making each man take the sacred oath. "In the Name of God and Italy, in the name of those who have died for the greater glory of Italy, I swear that I will consecrate myself, entirely and for ever, to live for the good of Italy."
 The poet may be seen in this oath and those who smile at its solemnity or shiver with disgust at its fervour must wait to understand its meaning (Ill Revolution trusts its bloody first into their faces.
Triumphal Idealism.
 Mussolini had discovered the secret of statesmanship. He who would save his country must appeal to Youth. "Youth," he said to me, "has no money values. It is life uncommercialised, the human soul without a trade mark. Youth feels itself insulted if you speak to it of the wages of patriotism. Its natural impulse, where the cause is sacred, is self-sacrifice. It understands better than the wisdom of old age the two greatest things in the world, love and sacrifice. The complete glory of human existence bursts upon the gaze of Youth only when it has found a cause for which it can die."
 I said that I understood what he meant, but I wondered if this impulsive idealism of Youth could survive the cold and encroaching materialism of middle age.
 He replied instantly that whenever true idealism clashes a sword with materialism, materialism falls. Materialism destroys a nation only when it is an unheeded disease; let it appear armed as the contrary principle of idealism, and humanity will rise to destroy it. When the Italian Communists ordered a general strike he exclaimed, "Thank God! Now they shall meet their deathblow."
 Idealism, he protests, is not a speculation of philosophers but the instinctive knowledge of every man's daily life. It is the natural effort of the soul, to ascend, not to fall. It is the warfare of man's higher nature with his lower nature. Man cannot rest in materialism. Neither man or nation can be satisfied by the things that perish. To strive for an ideal, to reach up to the higher, to long and agonise after the perfect, this is the only state of existence which can satisfy the intelligence of man and secure the continuing greatness of a nation. Without the impulse of idealism at the very birth of creation there could have been no progress of evolution.
 Mussolini has seen what no man in England has yet seen, and pray God never shall see. He has seen the forces of Satanism organised to destroy civilisation. Two thousand of his Fascisti perished in the three years of Italian Leninism, some brutally tortured before they were hacked to death. Children were taught in schools that conscience has no authority over animal instincts. Red Guards were openly recruited from the police, the firemen, and the municipal workers. Seditious propaganda was organised among the soldiers and sailors. Peasants were forbidden to reap the harvest. Engine-drivers refused to carry officers in their trains. The Italian flag was torn down. Factories were seized by fanatical and drunken mobs. Murder and looting spread like a prairie fire. It was not until the Italian Government, trembling and surrendering, refused to meet the menace of a general strike that Mussolini exclaimed, "Inaction is a crime," and ordered the forces of idealism to converge on Rome.
"Discipline, Sacrifice, Work."
 His idealism did not forsake him with accession to power. Bolshevism was conquered, but everywhere was corruption, idleness and waste. He swept away Ministry after Ministry; he dismissed thousands of unprofitable Civil Servants and thousands of useless railway workers. He called for longer hours, more honest work, and lower wages. There is not one act in his life and not one word from his lips which can be cited as an effort to gain the popular favor. Italy, saved from Bolshevism, was now to be saved from economic bankruptcy. He addressed her not as a condescendant, but as the mother of Italy's future. Discipline: Sacrifice: Work. These words became a trumpet from the Alps to the Straits of Messina.
 A distinguished Roman said to me, "I once heard Garibaldi make a curious remark. He said, 'I had volunteers from many countries in my army, but never one Italian peasant. Think of that! But now in the processions through our cities which celebrate Mussolini's triumph you may see hundreds of peasants. They had driven or tramped into the cities to march side by side with landowners and professional men, with merchants and shopkeepers, with mechanics and labourers, to acclaim IF LUCE—the leader. Because of this enthusiasm of the slow-moving peasant I say that Fascism has given us a national resurgence. Mussolini is neither a usurper nor a traitor. He is our Liberator and our Leader."

The Boy Scout Troop at St. Anthony

(By A. C. BLACKBURN, Scoutmaster)

Quietly and unostentatiously for a number of years we have been carrying on Boy Scout work here. The past year has been one of great progress that I am sending a short report for the magazine in the hope that some of the readers may be interested, especially so the boys and girls.

The visit of His Excellency, the Governor, Sir William Allardye—who is our chief Scout for Newfoundland—last September gave us much encouragement and a needed fillip. Through his help this "First St. Anthony Troop" has been at last officially recognized and registered at the Colony headquarters, at St. John's. Naturally, we now feel more than ever that we are a real part of the great world-wide Boy Scout movement. His Excellency's address to the Guard of Honor consisting of Boy Scouts and the returned World War Veterans of our little harbor, will not be forgotten for many a day. His Excellency's kindly interest in the individual was much evinced, and gave each Scout a keener regard for his personal duty and privilege as a Scout.

Our troop number 24. During the year we have met weekly. The policy has been to work outdoors, summer winter, and we have had very few indoor meetings. Indoors, games and the mainly sport of boxing have been encouraged. Talks on health and first aid work have also been given attention. Outdoors, we have carried on all sorts of Scout work and healthy games. Some drill, just enough to ensure the troop moving as a unit when necessary, and setting-up exercises have formed part of our programs.

We have had several picnic parades to the woods, one, on a winter day at zero temperature (needless to say we did not wear our shorts). We walked about five miles along a winter trail. On each occasion we had one team of dogs to haul our grub box, axes, kettles, etc., and all the boys wanted to drive this one team, so keen is their interest in our great sport of dog driving. This added not a little to the entertainment. I wish we could have taken you with us this midwinter day to one of the many fine ponds we have encircled by trees of spruce and fir in this Northern Newfoundland. One travels easily along the well-worn trails the dog team make. We do not mind the cold for we are garbed in our light, but warm winter clothing, our delightful windproof "dickie" or caesock of khaki cloth, and the light seal-skin boots that make traveling easy and comfortable. On arrival at the places set for the picnic everyone's first interest is in a good game of football on the wide level stretches that these frozen ponds offer. These ponds in winter are just right for such games; snow frozen deep heavily on top of the ice makes a perfect field. Some of the boys cut holes in the ice and fish for trout, but luck was against them to-day. After two hours exhilarating sport you can imagine every one is ready for the "mug up" around the big blazing outdoor log camp fire.

TO HIDE MOTHER'S INFLECTION. CHICAGO, Sept. 16—(A.P.)—How a devoted daughter for two and a half years, imposed upon herself voluntary imprisonment, in a downtown hotel room, to care for her mother and prevent exposure of the mother's mental condition of an enigma by her father, Raleigh D. Harding, of Wilmington, Delaware.

Neither mother nor daughter had stepped out of the room after they came to Chicago. Dreading of thought of confinement in an institution, the daughter, Louise, had brought the mother from Wilmington to Chicago.

The father was kept from knowledge of his wife's real condition by assurance from Louise, that "mother is improving." From Wilmington he regularly mailed checks for their expenses.

Then the hotel management became suspicious, and notified him. He started an enquiry, obtained police assistance and a commitment from county authorities and had Mrs. Harding removed to the Psychopathic Hospital.

Only then the story of the filial sacrifice and deception became known in the tearful explanation of the daughter.

Fads and Fashions

The pouch bag in suede or soft kid is very good.

The coat for afternoon wear is apt to have a flare.

The coat of the tailored ensemble is apt to be straight.

We note a number of small suede hats for sports wear.

By EDGAR GUEST, DEXTER CUMMINGS' FAIR SCORE.

Out in thirty-one and in in nine, There's a round to boast, and that it were mine; Eighteen holes in sixty strokes. He's it now or doubt it. But I was there and saw it. I know all about it; So here's to Dexter Cummings, 'til I spill this ditty. For he shanked every record on course at Huron City.

The links belong to Billy Paddock, built them and he runs 'em. And foolish is the golfer who doesn't accurately regard them; For golfers, world wide over, the greater and the lesser was. Have come to Huron City, Michigan, to play with the professor; But not 'til Dexter Cummings has amateur pro gone round that course in strokes. That's something else I know.

He had a three on number one on number two. He missed a putt on number three. And then said Billy Phelps to me, this boy keeps it up. We'll see the greatest golf we've seen since Rufus was a pup. And when at last the nine was over, Bill shouted: "Thirty-One! Shake hands with Dexter Cummings boys! Another record's gone."

In twenty-nine long shots and ten finished up the day. And with the record for the course proudly walked away; No matter what the future holds, Dexter Cummings' game. Or shall he win or lose the one which golfers strive to claim. He still can boast that summer's Golf granted every wish. When he took sixty for the course at Huron City, Mich.

Doyle Predicts World Disaster
LONDON, Sept. 15—The Chronicle publishes an interesting statement credited to Conan Doyle, to the effect that "I have made no new plan for future work as my 'guide' has wanted to hold myself in readiness to great event, of catastrophic nature that is overtaking the world."

He adds: "I get all spiritual messages from my wife, who reads them to me. For the past three years I have been getting messages relating to this coming disaster. Each message indicates its nearer approach."

Confirmation of these messages reached me from over 60 mediums various parts of the world, who have received the same information."

Doyle, however, doesn't reveal the nature of the disaster.

Vanishing London

TAVERN PEYS WENT TO THE TO BE SWEPT AWAY.
Of the many old city landmarks that have been effaced in new rebuildings or are to disappear, the great building and rebuilding schemes of the banks, none will outlive the old London a greater part than the loss of Pope's Head Tavern. Dr. Kenneth Rogers, a student of old London, writing the history of this thoroughfare that goes as long before the Great Fire, points to a letter to the City Press.

The Alley was built before the Royal Exchange, and the Pope's Head Tavern, which gave it its name, was represented by a wine house, and had a continuous existence for five centuries.

Samuel Peys, who frequented the place, passed through the Alley on many visits to the tavern.

In 1718 the actor Quin had a dinner in the tavern with Bowen, a fellow actor who forced the quarrel on him and who received fatal wounds.

Reforestation in Britain

The Forestry Department began the work five years ago and has already set out $2,500 acres in trees, and season's work will cover 25,000 acres and bring the whole number of trees planted to two hundred million. The British Government is sore beset with problems. Seldom has there been a time when it has had more serious ones on hand. Yet it finds time and strength to devote to what is after all of more importance to British prosperity than some of the noisily exploited issues of the present day, the setting out of saplings to prevent the land from becoming treeless and desolate.—Providence Journal.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

HAVE YOU THIS GIFT?

"Oh, I hate to have her go. I love to have her here," said a neighbor of a guest who was just departing (and to feel so warmly toward a parting rather than a coming guest is quite a tribute don't you think?)

agonizing. Even the kindest people sometimes lack the ability to show their friends this particular kindness. They would do many things for them but not that. And how hard it is for husbands and wives and mothers and fathers sometimes to let those whom they love alone when that is what they most need. They would do anything for those they love so tenderly except just let them alone.

Why Men Don't Get On Each Other's Nerves.

Is it not one reason (I have seen a hundred suggested) why friendships

The People Who Won't Let You Alone.

My neighbor ruminated for a minute and then she said: "Well, she's awfully good company and she's a good sport, but I think what I like best about her is that she knows how to let people alone. . . . You know I have quite a good many guests through the year and there are a lot of them who mean to be awfully kind but they just don't know how to let you alone. For instance, there's one woman who means to be terribly helpful but she just drives me crazy by always saying: "Now I wish you would come and sit down." Don't do that now." I know what I have to do and I can get it done quite easily if I am left alone, but I get so nervous all the time thinking she's going to say that. And then there are other guests that never give me a chance to go into the kitchen by myself because they are so anxious to help. This woman is just as helpful but she makes me feel that she really wants to do what will help me most and let's me ask her when I want anything, and the rest of the time she lets me alone. I should never want to live with anyone outside of my family but if I had to pick out someone it would be she."

The Opposite of Officiousness.

It is a very livable quality, isn't it, this capacity to let other people alone, not only in a guest but in a house mate or a friend.

And rather a rare one!

I suppose it is the opposite of officiousness and is as restful and undemanding as officiousness is wearing and an-

between men are more enduring than those between women—because men are more apt to have this capacity for letting each other alone at the right time?

But when is the right time you may ask? Well, how do you know when there is going to be thunderstorm? You feel it in the air, don't you? And people who have this gift are so sensitized that they can feel it in the air when their friends want to be left alone. I call it a gift. It is partially that, but it is also partly a technique developed by thinking much about other people's feelings as well as your own. I have a friend who has just started writing fiction with astounding success. She has been all her life marvellously sensitive to other people's feelings. I believe she is having her reward now because she knows how people feel and so can make her characters convincing.

The smooth shoulder line has gone with the appearance of the furred necktie.

In the small velour hat choose a rosy tan, subdued red, dark green, blue or brown.

THE EATS.

The man whose life is sedentary, who spends it in a padded chair, should be alert and also chary when he confronts the bill of fare; stewed hummingbird or baked canary is better far than roast beef rare. One thing the doctors are agreed on; we eat too much, they all protest; the rich and gaudy things we feed on convey us to eternal rest; the underlaken draws a bead on the man who eats with fiery zest. We listen to the doctors' warning; they speak the truth, we wot and wist; we promise that to-morrow morning we'll cut the rich things from the list; to-day a fine roast is adorning the menu, and we can't resist. The next day, when we should be framing such pledges as the doc advises, the cook comes to us, proudly naming a string of roasts and soups and pies: "Next week, perhaps," we're heard exclaiming, "we'll follow up that counsel wise." And presently we're feeling seedy, our vitals do not function right; we are too fat or else too weedy; our symptoms fill our hearts with fright; the doctors say: "You're so blamed greedy, you've got yourselves in grievous plight. How often have we sawbowed told you that eating is a deadly trick, unless the toilers' clothes enfold you, unless you swing the sledge or pick; you boobus wot eat, and now behold you—you're wobbly on your pins and sick." They scare us stiff, and for a season we live like hermits, on a crust, without a slice of meat or cheese on, or decent drink to lay the dust, until we shriek: "Though it be treason, we'll eat a good square meal or bust!"

Tourist Expenditure

It is estimated that 30,000,000 persons in the United States have enjoyed vacations averaging two weeks and that the total expenditure amounts to $3,000,000,000, of which between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000 has been spent in Canada. That so many could afford to devote so much money to a matter largely of pleasure is a testimonial to the widespread prosperity which prevails. Railroad traffic has been above the average and summer resorts have had a highly profitable season. Tourist camps have been filled to overflowing. The national parks have had more visitors than ever before. All these things are taken into account in reaching the estimate, which, of course, is nothing more than approximate, since there can be no such goal as accuracy in such a matter.

That so many are able to leave their regular vocation for a time and seek relaxation, shows that as a people we are learning the value of a bit of leisure. There is, of course, a class which devotes itself chiefly to leisure, but the vacationists referred to are those who for the main part of the year are busily employed. The number of vacationists is all the more noteworthy since it must have included the farmers in but a small proportion and they are more numerous than any other class. The summer is the farmer's busy season and his leisure, if he has any, comes at other times.

Other vacation ideas call for the employment of many thousands who cater to the wants of vacationists. This involves business of vast magnitude in itself and it has wide ramifications in which Canada is bearing an increasing part. The estimated total expenditure of our neighbours, however, indicates what a wide field for exploration of the tourist business is offered to Canada.—Montreal Herald.

Cooking With Comfort

"One of the many fine features about Crisco" says Miss Olive Allen "is that it does not smoke in deep frying, nor does it smell like ordinary fats." When cooking with Crisco, the delightfully digestible fat, the news of what's going on in the kitchen need not be known in any other part of the house. In several other respects, Crisco is superior. Your grocer will recommend Crisco—more than likely his wife uses it at home. At all Grocers. Sole Agent: Gerald S. Doyle. sept17.b.s.f

Little Jack Rabbit
by David Cory

Just as the little rabbit hopped through the door of the Bunybridge Bugle? Well, I guess yes. And now he's off for some Water Chess.

which I forgot to mention in the last story Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother, had asked him to get. Waving goodbye to Reddy Comb, the rooster newsboy, the little rabbit hopped down Lettuce Avenue until he came to Cabbage Street. Then up that pretty thoroughfare he hopped, clipperly clip, lipperty lip, his little knapsack bouncing up and down on his back and his red-striped candy cane swinging from his left paw. By and by, after a while and a laugh and a smile, and nearly a mile, he came to the Bubbling Brook that flowed between the Sunny Meadow and the Pleasant Pasture.

"What brings you here?" asked his friend, the Little Fresh Water Crab, luring out of the water his big claw to shake hands with the bunny boy.

"Mother wants Water Chess," answered the little rabbit, holding back his paw, fearing he might get his thumb pinched if he shook hands with the Little Fresh Water Crab.

"Lots of it a little further down," advised the Little Fresh Water Crab. "I'll show you," and away swam the obliging little fellow down stream to a bend in the bank where the Water Chess grew green and shiny and wet with dew.

"Oh, I almost forgot to tell you something wonderful," all of a sudden exclaimed the little rabbit, as he filled his knapsack. "Old Mr. Dog has written a Cross Word Puzzle for the Bunybridge Bugle. It will be printed to-morrow. Lots of our friends' names are in it. I hope Mother's name is there," and with a smile the little rabbit bit buckled up the knapsack and hopped off to the Old Bramble Patch, leaving the Little Fresh Water Crab breathless with excitement.

"Perhaps I'll find my name in the puzzle," he thought as he swam up stream. "Hope Reddy Comb doesn't forget to bring me the paper to-morrow morning."

"Mrs. Cow, Mrs. Cow," shouted the bunny boy, as he sped down the Old Cow Path in the Sunny Meadow. "Be sure to read the Cross Word Puzzle in to-morrow's Bugle. You may find your name in it."

"Snikes alive," moaned that gentle lady cow with a toss of her head that almost upset her pretty yellow bonnet with the cowslip flowers on it, "I'd like to see my name in print." In her excitement she didn't stop to think that she'd have to find it first with the aid of a dictionary unless it appeared.

Now, at the age of eighty-four, he has at last retired from work, and he tells her joyfully that, as henceforth he will be free, he will be able to devote the remainder of his days to her, and that thus for him they will all be fete days.

"Sweeter than honey in the honey-comb" must such words taste to the heart of her to whom they are tendered.

Husbands might play their role

"What brings you here?" asked his friend, the little fresh water crab, peered in the printed answers the next day.

"Hello," shouted Timmie Meadowmouse, as the bunny boy hurried by his grass bungalow.

"Stop a moment for a chat. Have you seen the Farmer's Cat?"

No, not to-day," answered the little rabbit. "Look in to-morrow's Bugle for the Cross Word Puzzle that's all about the Rabbitville people. Maybe you'll find your name in it." And away hopped the little rabbit to the dear old Bramble Patch. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Perfect Husband Makes Life Happy

LADY BUCKMASTER EXPRESSES VIEWS ON MARRIAGE STATE.

Many women find it exceedingly difficult to be the perfect wife, but I believe all think that there would be no difficulty whatever in being the perfect husband; for, positively or negatively, the average man exacts much and the average woman little, writes Lady Buckmaster in the London Daily Express.

There are many men who will exhaust their wives by demanding everything of them; others again will pain them by demanding nothing.

The average woman asks only that promises should be fulfilled. She will be satisfied if her husband will keep the vows he made to her at the altar, if he will cherish her in sickness and in health, and make her his first consideration. She will then willingly allow him all the liberty he wants, for, if only in order to retain his affection, his happiness will be her first concern.

I know a woman who still considers her husband perfect after fifty years of married life, and I think for this reason: he has never failed in courtesy towards her, and has never ceased to show her that he prefers her society to that of any other.

Oliver Wendell Holmes was right when he said: "The nearer you come into relation with a person, the more necessary do tact and courtesy become."

The unremembered acts of kindness and of love constitute not only the test portion of a good man's life, but also the happiness of his wife. Better a single flower on the breakfast-table than a hundred wreaths on the bier!

better if they would remember that the flattery of all is not worthy to be compared with the faithfulness of one. If they would bear this in mind they would be more careful not to forfeit their best possession.

A cruel word will cut a deeper wound than the sharpest sword; but affection shown in constant consideration and sympathy will be a healing balm. It will oil the wheels of life and make them run smoothly over the ruts and furrows of the most rugged road.

No sensible woman will grudge her husband the friendship of other women, but flirtation and philandering will murder alike her happiness and her esteem. The whole secret of the happiness of a married couple is that in honor they prefer one another.

It is the little things that make life happy: the eager welcome, the little confidences, the word of praise and encouragement, the forestalled wish, the planned surprise. Such things cost little, but they make all the difference.

It may be complained that life is a farce and heaven is afar. But it was a great philosopher who said that heaven is here and now in the life of every good man. If so, it must be doubly here in the life of every happy couple. Every husband may be the perfect husband if he will, and should be so decide he will probably soon find that he has the blessing of the perfect wife.

AT THE STAR MOVIE NEXT WEEK.

We understand that acting on the suggestion given in the Telegram last week, the Management of the Star Movie are making special arrangements for school children of all the schools in the city. In order not to interfere with the school hours, the matinees will not begin until 2:30 every afternoon, and the admission price is being reduced. It has also been arranged to give the children of the city Orphanages a free exhibition. This is highly commendable on the part of Messrs. Condon and Jackman, and speaks volumes for the business of their theatre. It is hoped that the children will parade from their respective schools to the theatre on days set aside for them.

"Why De We So Often Depreciate Politicians?"

The Rt. Hon. H. A. L. Fisher, M.P., Ex-Minister of Education, says that "Party Politics are Never so Mechanical as they seem to be."

The Principal of the City of London Vacation Course persuaded the Right Hon. H. A. L. Fisher, M.P., ex-Minister of Education, to give an inaugural address on "Politicians," and by his courtesy it was printed in full in the Teachers' World.

It is the most comprehensive address of the kind we have read for some time, and should give pause to many who glibly talk of "dirty politics." Mr. Fisher proves that our public servants are men of fine ideals. In the course of the address he stated:—"Politics in this country are remarkably clean. There may be men who go into the House of Commons to advance their private ends, but they must be very few. The vast majority of members of the House of Commons are there to promote the most honourable of ambitions—that of rendering service to the public in an honourable way. People talk about the spoils of office.

"There are in the material sense no such spoils. There can be few people who reach Cabinet rank who could not earn a larger income in other ways, and are not the poorer financially for their exhausting labours. We have, indeed, payment of members. Mr. Snowden, I remember, told an audience that so far as he was concerned, his Parliamentary salary went in postage stamps, and that must be a very general experience in the case of members representing large urban constituencies.

"All the apprehensions which used to be so freely expressed as to the corruption of Parliament through payment of members have been shown to be ill-founded. Parliament was corrupt in the eighteenth century, when it represented the well-to-do classes. It is, thanks rather to the vigilance of public opinion than to any ethical improvement in the race upon which we may congratulate ourselves, remarkably free from corruption now.

"There is, however, a comparatively new manifestation in our political life which requires to be watched. The theory of our Constitution is that the member of the House of Commons represents a constituency. He is a local member, the mouthpiece of local grievances, and where a constituency has a very strong industrial unrest he must be prepared to adjust his views.

"Thus the National Union of Teachers and the powerful Trades Unions and the Federation of British Industries are represented in the House of Commons. The brewers, the farmers, the miners, the textile workers have their chosen spokesmen.

"I do not know that any figure has been supplied for the salaries which are paid to Members of Parliament by organizations which think it worth while to be represented in the House of Commons, but the total figure must by this time be considerable, and the sums so paid have clearly a more important influence in determining the composition of the House of Commons than the small official salaries which are charged to the Treasury, and in many cases do little more than cover the postal expenses of members.

The Servile Hordes.

"Party politics are never quite as mechanical as they seem to be. People will talk about the tyranny of the Cabinet and 'the servile hordes' who troop to the divisions, and an impression is created that modern politics are lifeless and machine-made, and that the last breath has long since exhaled itself from the drying lips of Parliamentary Freedom.

"There is great exaggeration in all this. Every party is composed of a number of active groups forming and reforming themselves differently with each occasion and exercising differing modes of pressure upon the Minister in charge of a Bill. Nor can a Minister, however powerful and however loyally served by his majority afford altogether to disregard a resolute little knot of men who are opposed to any part of his proposals. Four able men, who act together and work hard, can make an impression on any Parliament.

"They can talk, they can interrupt, they can delay proceedings, they can, if they know the House, rouse all the slumbering prejudices and antipathies of their fellow members against proposals which have in them, as most legislative proposals have, a solid kernel of unpopularity. And every Minister works with his eye on the clock. The Government is always racing against time, and fears delay.

"This, then, gives a minority its chance. Though it cannot, in the end, beat the Government of the day on a large point of principle, it can create difficulties sufficient to impel even the strongest Government to make concessions. Moreover, before a Bill is introduced to the House, the Minister takes stock of the Parliamentary position.

"He considers what his own supporters will stand and what his opponents will stand, and frames his measure in such a way as seems to him to be likely to secure for it the largest measure of Parliamentary support. An experienced House of Commons man,

Correspondence

Mrs. J. A. W. W. McNEILY
AND HIS EXCELLENCY THE
GOVERNOR OF CERTAIN PUBLIC
MATTERS.

St. John's, Sept. 21, 1925.
Dear Sir—Enclosed please find
all correspondence between myself and His Excellency the Governor, which I think sufficient public interest to publish. As the Bill entitled "An Act respecting Light & Power," etc., is not and contains a large amount of matter irrelevant to the subject of the correspondence, you have my permission to omit, if you choose, all the matter except the title and the following sections, which I think should be reproduced in extenso:—

- Section 4, sub-Section 6.
- Section 5, sub-Section 1 (a).
- Section 5, sub-Section 7.
- Section 5, sub-Section 17.
- Section 6, sub-Section 1.
- Section 6, sub-Section 2.

All the above sections have been marked
in a copy of the Bill sent to you.
In justice to His Excellency and his advisers, as well as to myself, I beg
to say that there has not, at any time,
been a hint or suggestion of compromise with respect to the subject of the Bill.

I have also sent copies of this letter to the "Daily News" and the Fishermen's Advocate.

Yours faithfully,
J. A. W. W. McNEILY.

St. John's, Aug. 21, 1925.
Sir William Allardice, K.C.M.G., Governor.

I have the honour to submit for your consideration the following proposals, and respectfully to request your official action thereon.

Some time ago I noticed that a large portion of the public navigable waters of the principal part of the harbour of St. John's, at the rear of the premises of W. & G. Rendell and also in front of a public cove known as Gill's Cove, was being appropriated and piled in by persons then unknown to me. Upon making enquiry
as to who was doing this work I discovered that it was being done by
W. I. Bishop Co., Ltd., or its subsidiary
W. I. Bishop, Ltd., for a company recently formed and known as the Marine Agencies, Ltd.

Knowing that such an encroachment
of navigable water could not be made without special authority by Act of the Legislature and being aware that such an act had been passed, I called the attention of the Municipal Council
to the obstruction of the public Cove.

As a result of my action the matter
was taken up by the Municipal Council
with the Executive Council.

It was then discovered that the authority under which the parties doing the work had assumed to act was a permission from the executive Government to use the eastern King's wharf and to make extension thereof
into the waters of the harbour.

No authority whatever for the piling
in of a space of about 125 ft. by 80 ft.
of the harbour was addressed and the Executive Government, as I understand, disclaimed in a letter to the Municipal Council having given any permit whatever for this, the main portion of the work.

The Municipal Council proceeded against the parties in relation to the obstruction of the public cove which alone falls within their duty, and I understand that the parties undertook in the Magistrate's Court not to obstruct the cove, but they have continued and built over it nevertheless.
Not being satisfied that such a valuable franchise over public property
should be given gratis to the Marine Agencies, Ltd., and knowing that in ordinary cases encroachment upon the waters of the harbour has been leasedly limited by the Courts and guarded by the harbour authorities I determined not to allow this clear breach of public right to go unchallenged.

Upon looking into the law I found that it was practically impossible for me in virtue of my position as a private citizen to take proceedings of my own mere motion to restrain a continuance of this unlawful act. The usual course in such cases is for the private citizen to ask permission to use the name of the Attorney General
in a proceeding to prevent a continuance of an invasion of public rights. The person making the request is called the Relator and may be required by the Attorney General to undertake responsibility for all costs incurred by his action. In such cases the assent of the Attorney General goes as a matter of course and the action is entitled "The Attorney General ex relatione J. A. W. W. Mc-Neily vs. The Marine Agencies, Ltd." or as the case may be.

There followed thereupon between
Mr. Dunfield, my solicitor and the Attorney General the following correspondence:—

G.W.V.A. Balling,
July 31, 1925.
The Hon. The Attorney General,
City.

Dear Sir—I am instructed by Mr.
A.W.W. McNeily, Barrister, to call for official attention to the following matter, and to make the following remarks:—

As a matter of fairness to these parties I have been instructed to send
them copies of this correspondence.
An early answer will oblige.
Yours truly,
(Sgd.) BRIAN DUNFIELD.

15 August, 1925.
Dear Sir—I beg to acknowledge receipt of yours of the 12th inst.
I have made enquiries into the matter of the erections complained of, and I find that no work of construction is in evidence other than what has been done with the knowledge and approval of the Government.

I, therefore, can see no reason for any action by this Department.
Yours sincerely,
W. J. HIGGINS,
Attorney General.

B. E. S. Dunfield, Esq.,
Barrister & Solicitor,
City.

A firm of contractors, The W. I.
Bishop Company whether the parent company or the subsidiary company
recently incorporated in Newfoundland is not known to my client, acting as my client's underwriter, on behalf of the Marine Agencies Limited, a local shipping company recently incorporated, is building a wharf in the neighbourhood of Gill's Cove, St. John's
East.

This wharf is unquestionably a public nuisance in the legal sense of those words. It involves the appropriation of a substantial area of public waters,
which constitutes the approach from the eastward to Gill's Cove, and also
a serious obstruction of the said cove,
which is and has been a public means
of access to the waters of the harbour
from the earliest times.

I have to point out to you, what is familiar to every lawyer and doubtless well known to you, that it is Common Law, well established as such, that appropriation of public waters is a public nuisance; and this principle has been carried out in several decisions
of our local Supreme Court relating to the waters of the harbour. There are,
as you are aware, various remedies
for this state of affairs, the principal being criminal indictment and civil action by the Attorney General of his own motion, or similar proceedings in his name but upon the petition of some private complainant. The proper remedy applicable in this case
seems to be a civil action in the name of the Attorney General ex relatione
of the complainant. I refer you to the case of the Attorney General vs.
Shrewsbury Kingsland Bridge Co., 1882 21 C.D. 782 as illustrating this type of proceedings.

My client desires to take steps to protect the public interest in this matter, and he therefore instructs me to request your concurrence in the taking by him of an action in the name of the Attorney General, for the purpose
of putting a stop to the state of affairs above mentioned.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) BRIAN DUNFIELD.
August 4, 1925.

Dear Sir—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your communication of the 31st ultimo, respecting the wharf being erected by the Marine Agencies, Limited.

The claim made in your letter that this wharf is a public nuisance will receive the immediate consideration of this Department, and if I am satisfied that such is the case the necessary steps will at once be taken on behalf of the public.

Yours sincerely,
W. J. HIGGINS,
Attorney General.

B. E. S. Dunfield Esq.,
Barrister & Solicitor,
City.

G.W.V.A.
August 8, 1925.
The Hon. The Attorney General,
City.

Dear Sir—I thank you for your letter of August 4th, on the above matter,
and note that if you are satisfied that the wharf is a public nuisance the necessary steps will at once be taken on behalf of the public.

I have of course to point out that encroachment upon public waters or public rights of way is, by its very existence a public nuisance, and therefore is not in the present case any question as to whether such encroachment has taken place; it is obvious. Even if it could be argued that an encroachment
were actually beneficial to the public as well as those creating it, it would still be a public nuisance in the legal sense of being a thing which must not be done without legislative authority. It is evident that if such were not the case, many things might be done to the private benefit under the claim that they were of public advantage.

I have to point out that my client
has requested that he be given authorization to proceed in the name of the Attorney General's name; and that it is usual in such cases for this authorization
to be given, so that the person applying to stop the nuisance, who is known as the relator, has the conduct of the proceedings, and conducts them at his own expense and risk. This old and sound practice has the result that the party
objecting, having conduct of the proceedings, can adduce all the evidence and all the arguments he pleases, his objection if not confirmed by the Court is disposed of once for all,
whereas if a Government department
has the conduct of the proceedings,
objectors will seldom or never be satisfied that the nuisance was attacked as effectively as it would have been by themselves. On the other hand, if the relator's action is not sufficiently thorough, the Attorney General, in whose name the action is, can always intervene in the public interest to supplement it.

While thanking you therefore for your conditional undertaking to act, I am instructed to repeat the request
that my client be authorized to proceed.

I need hardly point out to you the necessity of promptitude. The parties concerned are pushing their operations rapidly ahead, and the sooner
they are stopped the less expense they will be at in removing the structures
now being erected.

As a matter of fairness to these parties I have been instructed to send
them copies of this correspondence.

An early answer will oblige.
Yours truly,
(Sgd.) BRIAN DUNFIELD.

the King's Wharf would necessarily obstruct the entrance, but this is a matter that does not enter into the Agreement as between the Government and the Company. Presumably,
in making their plans, the Company
did not consider the small section in dispute as being what is ordinarily known as a Cove. The fact of the discharge of the sewers in that limited area, really unfitted it for any other purpose, and it may have been from that viewpoint that the Company did not consider any other aspect of the matter. The question,
therefore, in respect of Gill's Cove, is one between the Municipal Council and the Marine Agency Company.

The Government thought it well to lay all the facts as above before the Municipal Council, in order that they may take any action that they consider necessary in the premises. The Government has guarded the use of the King's Wharf for the public,
which will in all other respects remain as at present.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your obedient servant,
(Sgd.) ARTHUR MEWES,
Deputy Colonial Secretary.

J. J. Mahoney, Esq.,
City Clerk.

The only effect of my protest and action in this matter appears to have been to speed up the work of construction. Perusal of the Records at the Registry of Companies will show that the Marine Agencies Ltd. was incorporated by Higgins, Hunt & Emerson on the 12th day of June 1925. The signatories to the Memorandum and Articles of Association are Olat Olson, Victor Sydney Bennett and Frederick R. Emerson.

The W. I. Bishop Ltd. was incorporated on the 13th day of April, 1925.
The signatories to the Memorandum
and Articles of Association are Joseph
S. Lee, Charles E. Hunt and Frederick
R. Emerson.

The Minister of Justice and Attorney General Hon. W. J. Higgins is the senior member of the firm of Higgins, Hunt & Emerson, Charles E. Hunt,
senior partner to the Memorandum and Articles of Association of W. I. Bishop, Ltd., is also a partner in the firm of Higgins, Hunt & Emerson, and is Solicitor or Law Clerk to the House of Assembly. Frederick R. Emerson is a signatory to the Memorandum and Articles of Association of both of the above Companies, and a junior partner
in the firm of Higgins, Hunt & Emerson.

W. I. Bishop Co., Ltd., or W. I. Bishop, Ltd., their subsidiary (owing to lack of information I know not which)
are at present engaged in large contracts with the Government of Newfoundland. When the above facts are considered it must be clear that the interest of the Hon. Mr. Higgins as a member of the firm of Higgins, Hunt & Emerson in this case is clearly in conflict with his duty as Attorney General and Minister of Justice and Protector
of the public rights.

I regret to have to point out that this position is not one which can be regarded as an accidental or isolated case. For example: The Newfoundland Light and Power Co. was incorporated on the 17th day of February,
1924 by the firm of Higgins, Hunt &
Emerson. The incorporators and sole members and shareholders appearing in the Registry of Companies at present
are W. J. Higgins, Charles E. Hunt
and F. R. Emerson. Mr. Higgins appears as President and Mr.
Hunt as Secretary of this Company. This Company immediately proceeded to apply for very wide rights and concessions.

I enclose copy of the original bill proposed to be submitted by them to the House of Assembly at its last session.

The Rules of the House with regard to notices to the public of private bills
have been disregarded in this case as they have been in several other cases this session notwithstanding considerable comment by the public and a protest made by me in the public press.

The bill was eventually put through the Legislature under suspended rules
notwithstanding a protest by the St.
John's Municipal Council and even as finally passed it contains very large concessions to the Company in the way
of remission of duties and in the way
of a right to charge increased fares,
but without corresponding concession
to or protection of the public, a protection which it is the duty of the law
officers of the Crown to consider.

These concessions were made not to a new industry but to a well established company which according to the Financial Post of June 5th, 1925 (copy of extract from which I enclose) had shown a net average annual earning of $165,116 for eight years. The undertaking was purchased by its present owners from its former owners after full investigation of its then franchises and with full knowledge of the facts, and the financial position of the Company.

The Company W. I. Bishop, Ltd., before referred to is a local subsidiary
of the W. I. Bishop Co., Ltd., and one of other of these Companies has undertaken public work upon the Dry Dock running into millions upon some basis as yet unknown to the public.
One or other of the Bishop Companies is also contractor to the Mtd. Light & Power Co., Ltd., for some very extensive works.

In the light of these facts I submit that Mr. Higgins the present Attorney General and Minister of Justice is not a proper person to decide or to pass upon questions where the rights of the public are involved and that he must be relieved of his office, and also his seat in the Executive Council.

The case of the dismissal of Mr.
Morine from his ministry by your Excellency's predecessor Sir Herbert Murray because of his Solicitorship to the Reid Co. is a parallel to the present case, particularly in so far as the firm of Higgins, Hunt & Emerson are the Solicitors for the Contractors for the Dry Dock.

In making this demand I can honestly say that I am not actuated by any spirit of malice nor do I act at the instance of any one but myself. I am not inspired by nor in collusion with any politicians, partisans of either Government or opposition. I speak for the plain citizen looking for ordinary protection of his rights. I should not take my present course if I did not feel fully my personal and I am doing and ready to take personal responsibility for it. I am no enemy of corporations or large business interests. I recognize their value and place in the order of things. They must not on the one hand be frightened or threatened into improprieties
such as I have called attention to; on the other hand they must not from the motives of cupidity be willing parties
to them. They must "play fair."

I have taken no part in party politics since Sir Robert Bond retired from public life some seventeen years ago. I have never sought or desired patronage from any political party for myself nor do I now.

What I am doing I do at the cost of many friendships, particularly those of the Hon. the Attorney General and Mr. Hunt with whom my personal and professional relations for the past five-teen or twenty years have been most cordial, and I might almost say intimate. I attack not individuals but a principle which if allowed to persist means Government for the benefit of the rulers and not Government for the people.

It may be asked why I have suddenly sold out to take up this unpleasant
and distasteful task. As to that let me say frankly that as a solicitor of some seniority I am in common with other practitioners not associated with politics, subjected to an unfair professional competition, a competition improperly weighed with the influence of public office.

This motive may have combined
with my general and growing dislike
as a citizen to the recent trend of matters of the kind referred to.

However, be that as it may, having been moved to action I take my stand,
as I am entitled to do upon the rights of the public whereof I am a member.
The question is then whether Your Excellency can submit or tolerate a position in relation to the legal advisors of your Government which a private citizen would not tolerate in any case where there was an opposition between his interests and those of the party dealing with them.

I do not allege that the present Attorney General has committed an unprecedented breach of the principles which I consider should govern his office; but this breach of principle is becoming yearly less of a technical and more of a practical and substantial grievance in the same degree as the Government is, unfortunately as I think rapidly growing from a mere nuisance with interest and expense to a grantor of and participant in large public concessions and a factor in the actual commercial life of the Colony,
an employer of commercial non-official servants in large numbers and
the controller of business enterprises.

and what upon this line of thought
I am reminded that in the present case the Government is partly assisting and partly protecting the Marine Agencies and expender of taxes into a commercial enterprise which is about to compete with established businesses in the same line. There is no justification for that unless at the very least the new enterprise pays full value for what it is given or what it is protected in taking.

During the past few years, large,
powerful and wealthy concerns have come into this country and entered into business relations with Governments from time to time. Their proposals are made and drafted by lawyers and others of the highest skill and experience, who have in view, as
is proper for them, only the advantage
of their clients.

These proposals should be scrutinized on behalf of this country with the same care, ability and zeal as their consideration has received from the experts employed on the other side.

This is impossible for an Attorney General who is receiving directly or indirectly remuneration from the parties making the proposals to the Government.

I think that any competent and impartial practitioner would be able to point to ample evidence of this after a little consideration of a few of the

Miss Gertrude Cook Lands Drowning Man

Harry Diamond Accords Her Full Credit for Bringing Him Safely Back to Earth.

And yet another near-tragedy among local swimmers has been averted by daring and timely assistance of another. Nor have the boys of the community any corner on heroism. This time it was Miss Gertrude Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cook, that was able to keep her head and show mettle, and to her Harry Diamond freely ascribes credit for bringing him safely back to terra firma.

The incident happened in the Kettle River, near the City Park. Mr. Diamond, who is not an expert swimmer, had crossed the river twice and was attempting it for the third time. He became exhausted when in the rapids and losing his head at the same time was unable to keep himself afloat.

According to his own story he had gone down several times and had swallowed most of the river, before Miss Cook realized that he was struggling for life and hurried to his assistance, and was able to bring him to shore after no small measure of fighting against the flow of the river.

On account of the fact that Mr. Diamond had led in considerable lively repartee among bathers of the river, his cries for assistance when he actually got into difficulties were not taken seriously until the river current was seen to be getting the better of him. Sensing the situation, Miss Cook did not hesitate to plunge into the threatening part of the river, and through being an excellent swimmer from training at the Cook home on Christina Lake she had the confidence and necessary skill to be able to rescue the drowning man, plotting him out of deep water and where Miss Edith Euerby assisted in getting him to shore.

While most of the beach is shallow, there are some dangerous pools where all too many lives have been lost in past years. It was in one of these where the rescue took place and unstinted credit for her timely daring is being accorded Miss Cook.

The above clipping is taken from the Grand Forks Gazette, British Columbia and the heroine is a niece of his Honor the Mayor of this city.

To the Memory of "Bob" Clare

By L. J. DELAHUNTY.

"Soldier sleep thy warfare o'er
Sleep the sleep that knows no waking
Call to battlefields no more
But for you our hearts are aching"

The above lines are dedicated to the memory of the late Corporal Robert Clare, whose mortal remains were laid to rest on Sunday afternoon, in the little cemetery of Belvedere, where so many more of his brave comrades in arms, are sleeping their last sweet sleep.

The funeral was one of the largest seen in the city for some time, there being present citizens of all creeds and classes, and his Pals in the Days of War showed they did not forget him at the end, and by their large attendance once again proved that the "Friendships forged at Gallipoli and France are forever cemented together in the great brotherhood of kinship and will endure until the "Last Post" is sounded by the Great Commander.

"Bob Clare". What a host of memories that name recalls, bringing back to the writer who knew him intimately, the days before when peace and harmony reigned in Europe, and when Bob Clare was a leading member of the Catholic Cadet Corps, and one of its strongest and best supporters.

The boys of the "Cadets" can effectively tell, all that he did, to make the brigade what it was, how hard and assiduously he worked to forward her interests, at no personal gain to himself, and by his cheery words of encouragement, and gentle admonition, won a name for himself that time can never efface.

For a number of years he was checker at the freight sheds of the Reid Newfoundland Co., and here his gentility, and obliging manners made him extremely popular with his fellow workers, and from here it was that Bob Clare donned the Khaki in 1914 and sailed away on the Florizel with the First Five Hundred, the renowned Blue Puttees on the great adventure that for a great many was to be their last.

The story of his bravery, heroism, and dogged determination to be with the boys at the trench some sadder pen than mine can best describe. Those that were with him through the hardships and rigors of Gallipoli and the appalling carnage of France tell us that he was the same "Bob Clare" of old, making light of his wounds and happy and contented to take his chances, but always one resolve before him that they would finally win.

His recent illness, the after effects of the war, was borne with the same patience and resignation, that had characterized him "right thru" and he died as he had lived, a brave soldier and a Catholic gentleman.

No more the call of the battlefields will wake him from his slumbers, for he sleeps the sleep that knows no waking, but there are hearts that are aching for him to-day in the homeland, and friends that will never forget him.

Belvedere Orphanage Annual Collection

As will be seen by our advertising columns, the annual collection for the Orphanage of Belvedere will be taken up at all the masses on Sunday next. Announcement to that effect was made last Sunday by all the city priests, so that our Roman Catholic citizens may not overlook this annual call which to them is a duty to be rigidly carried out as well as a pleasure to be permitted to help those who cannot help themselves.

At the present time there are close to two hundred little girls at Belvedere and those who have recently visited that institution must have been struck with the extreme youth of many of those motherless little ones. A great many of them are simply lisping babies, while a larger number are under six years of age, there being only a very few who can do anything for themselves. In taking up this arduous work of caring for, training and educating these girls the good sisters of course do not seek any earthly reward. Their lives are freely offered to the service of God, who Himself showed special preference for little ones, but they do need our help in a material way in providing for the temporal needs of those children. The resources of the Orphanage are taxed to the limit and but for the generosity of Catholic citizens in the past it would be almost impossible for those unselfish ladies to accomplish what has been done. It is therefore up to us all now who have the interests of the orphans at heart to prove on Sunday next that in deed as well as in name we are friends of the orphans. It is in fact our duty to give to this good cause. Our children are provided with parents who are ever planning for them, providing them with every essential and many luxuries, but let us fathers not lose sight of the fact that those innocent little ones of Belvedere are bereft of their loved ones and are entirely dependent upon us. Let us therefore all unite for a record collection next Sunday for the Belvedere orphans.

How Will Companies' Earnings be Affected

BY $65 NEWSPRINT!

A FRANK DISCUSSION OF THE EFFECT OF A TOO LARGE PRODUCTION.

(By Rielle Thomson, Eastern Editor, The Financial Post)

The ultimate future of the newsprint industry in Canada is assured because it has adjacent markets for its output and because manufacturing costs are low. The economic basis of Canada as a home for the newsprint industry is seen by the figures of newsprint production, which show that, while production in the States has remained practically stationary for the past ten years, in Canada it has mounted by leaps and bounds.

But while the ultimate future of the newsprint producers is undoubtedly assured, there is at present undoubtedly a surplus of newsprint production on this continent, which resulted some time ago in the announcement by H. Bierman, the president of the Beico-Canadian Paper Company, that his company would sell its output at $65 a ton in 1925, instead of $70 a ton, which is the price which went into effect at the beginning of this year. It is, therefore, a good time for the holder of newsprint stock to take stock of the position and to figure out for himself just what the immediate future holds.

Will be $65 in 1926.

For those who are in touch with the newsprint situation, it is generally felt that the 1926 price will be $65 a ton. As a matter of fact, several producers have been selling newsprint at a price below $70 a ton this year—indeed, it has been rumored that for its paper, closed contracts at $63 a ton, within recent weeks.

All the newsprint mills naturally make their own contracts and, for this reason, it is hard to ascertain exactly what current prices are. But, as far as the investor is concerned, he won't be far wrong in figuring that probably his company at the moment is getting something a little under $70 a ton for its output. Of course, some companies will be selling at $70 and, on the other hand, some will be selling at $65. Prices on this continent will probably be $70 a ton until January, but many companies ship overseas at less than this figure.

Now this price cutting must mean lower profits for companies in 1926. Canadian companies can market their products and make a profit at this price, but some of the smaller American mills will probably have their profits cut materially. There is no doubt that, if there should be severe price-cutting by Canadian mills, it would force many newsprint producers in the United States out of business, or else, to transfer their factories to the manufacturer of sulphite paper. The lower prices go, the fewer operators there will be, but, although lower prices may make things harder for American mills than for the Canadian, yet it will take considerable time before any one mill actually goes out of business.

Will Lose Money?

It is quite probable that some American operators will not make the profits on their mills which they are entitled to on the money invested, but, at the same time, they will continue to operate them until such time as they have no operating profits. Indeed in Canada we have seen the same thing in some of our sulphite producers, which, although they were forced into liquidation or into the bondholders' hands, yet the output was not curtailed.

While it is unreasonable to suppose, therefore, that lower prices will curtail output to any appreciable extent for some time, yet the cut in price will undoubtedly further delay the building of those mills which are as yet only in the blue print stage. The output this year has increased since the beginning of January, therefore, the announcement of $65 a ton for January might almost have been taken for granted, when it is considered that many mills for the first six months of the year have either been selling under $70 a ton or making freight concessions.

Will Make a Living

Those who know paper and its manufacturing costs feel sure that the companies can earn a profit at $65 a ton, but still the companies should make a good living. This applies more particularly to those mills which have, during the last few years, worked themselves into a good financial position and which have fairly low production costs. One who is closely and prominently connected with the industry The Financial Post that it is the companies with the small production, coupled with correspondingly high costs, which will have the hard time standing the gaff, as far as newsprint production is concerned.

Canada's best market for newsprint is the United States—this is true, but really the market for newsprint is a world market. Here is the proof. Take the new mill which British interests are erecting at Corner Brook, Newfoundland, which is coming into production this month. This mill will produce 400 tons of newsprint per day and the market will either have to be found in Europe or in the United States. If the company sells in Europe, it will cut out some of the Swedish manufacturers; if it markets its production in the United States it will also cut out some of the Swedish pulp which is turned into newsprint there. It is but natural

Postal Association Reunion.

The Newfoundland Postal Association annual reunion took place on Tuesday night at Donovan's and proved a most enjoyable affair. The party, numbering nearly one hundred, including guests, went out by the suburban coach. Mr. George B. Lloyd, Superintendent of the Money Order Department, occupied the chair.

Among the guests were Mr. A. E. Hickman, M.H.A., Mr. W. J. Browne, M.H.A., Deputy Mayor Martin, Mr. J. G. Hodder, Deputy Minister Posts and Telegraphs; Mr. M. A. Fraser, President Nfld. Postal Telegraphers' Association; Mr. W. J. Woodford, editor Telegraphers' Journal; Mr. E. J. Devereaux, late Superintendent of the Registration Department. Letters of regret were received from the Colonial Secretary, the Minister of Posts and others regretting their inability to be present. After full justice was done the excellent dinner provided by the proprietress, Mrs. Hughes, the following toast list was taken up:

The King—Prop. The Chairman, Geo. B. Lloyd, God Save the King.
Our Country—Prop. Mr. A. E. Hickman; resp. Mr. W. J. Browne.
Nfld. Postal Association—Prop. T. R. Jackman; resp. D. J. Galway.
Our Sister Associations—Prop. A. Richards; resp. M. A. Fraser.

eric operators will not make the profits on their mills which they are entitled to on the money invested, but, at the same time, they will continue to operate them until such time as they have no operating profits. Indeed in Canada we have seen the same thing in some of our sulphite producers, which, although they were forced into liquidation or into the bondholders' hands, yet the output was not curtailed.

If the company sells in Europe, it will cut out some of the Swedish manufacturers; if it markets its production in the United States it will also cut out some of the Swedish pulp which is turned into newsprint there. It is but natural to expect that this company may market its paper in New York rather than in the States, and therefore, there is a definite demand for newsprint of only a certain amount, and its market is a world one, although most of the Canadian production goes to the States. The same thing applies, of course, to any other new producer coming into the market—no matter where he sells, he is trading in a world market.

Will Mergers Come?

The lowering of prices makes more imminent, naturally, confirmation of the mergers which are in the air. First of all there is the Spanish River. Abitibi merger and then there is the merger of those companies trying in the St. Maurice Valley. Many feel that the International Paper is probably destined to play a leading part in a merger which might come off along the St. Maurice Valley. The latter company has definitely indicated that they are eventually going to turn all their newsprint mills in the States into the manufacture of high grade papers and that their newsprint for the future will be made in Canada.
