WOLESELEY IN CAIRO.

It was at one time feared that if Arabi was cornered in Cairo another massacre would result. But General Wolesley was in the city five hours after the rebel chief, and instead of the people offering him sympathy they offered him a prisoner to Sir Garnet.

The strategic strength of Cairo is very great. Its situation is fifteen miles above the commencement of the Delta. The city is almost square, and, after Constantinople, the largest of the Ottoman empire, being four miles in length and about two and a half broad. It is surrounded upon three sides by a flat plain, and being built partly on the slope and partly at the foot of the last height of the hill range of Mokattam, has special advantages for defence.

The Citadel dominates the whole town and sweeps the space with heavy guns, most of them modern in construction. Higher still, upon the crown of the mountain, there are fortifications commanding with their ordnance both the citadel and the plain beyond. The citadel is approached through narrow and devious ways winding up the rock, in part through solidly built stone walls. To this fortress much interest attaches. It was founded in 1176 by Saladin, and it was within its grim ramparts that, on March 1, 1811, the massacre of the Mamelukes took place. The citadel embraces among its buildings an arsenal, the mint, a small palace of the pasha, and the new mosque. The fortress is supplied with water from the Nile by means of an aqueduct constructed by Saladin and there is likewise a well which reaches a depth of 260 feet. The most remarkable building of the citadel is the mosque built by native architects and of Egyptian marble, enjoying the reputation of being the most splendid in the world. The fort perched still higher upon the rock, called the Jebel el Jouneh, occupies the site of a battery erected by Mahomet Ali against the citadel when in the possession of Koorshid Pasha, and by means of which he obtained the surrender of the place. The whole army of antiquarians, artists, scholars and travelers who have visited or who mean to visit the cities of the East in all that picturesque which centuries have scarcely affected, would regard with dismay the probability of a siege of Cairo. What if in all its glory, its traditions, its quaint life, its beauties and architecture, its priceless treasures of art, with these records of the oldest civilization known to history, were to be swept away in a few hours by modern artillery? Luckily for all, this has been prevented. Within the walls of Cairo there are about 30,000 inhabited houses, including several palaces, four hundred mosques, four hundred and forty public squares, and a number of public squares. The minarets of Cairo are the most beautiful of any in the Levant, of great height and built of alternate layers of red and white stone. The oldest of the minarets is that attached to the mosque of Sultan Taylan, built in 879, before the foundation of the city. The Moslem university, founded at Cairo in 975, is the largest in the world, and numbers over 10,000 pupils and 320 professors from all Mohammedan nations. It is a hotbed of Mohammedan fanaticism, and the Koran is the only text-book. The new university founded by the khedive represents civilization in the modern system of secular education and affords instruction in all modern languages. But to the student no part of this most remarkable neighborhood is so interesting as Boulak, a suburb on the Nile, at some distance from old Cairo, behind the city proper, called by the Arabs Fostat, the Babylon of the Romans, and, according to Coptic tradition, the Babylon from which St. Paul addressed his first epistle. At Boulak is the celebrated museum, having the richest collection of Egyptian antiquities in existence, before which even those of Turin, the Louvre and the British museum pale. There is hardly a street corner in the old city without its tradition of blood. There is hardly a minaret which does not mark the scene of some tragedy, and the present war may not end without leaving behind it bloody marks of destruction.

THE DESTINY OF EGYPT.

The rebellion in Egypt is crushed at last, and Arabi is a prisoner in the hands of the British. The suddenness with which the aspect of affairs has been changed from gloomy uncertainty to victory and complete success, brings with it, a new and more insoluble difficulty than the pacification of that country. The great question to be decided now is, what will Egypt's future be. Turkish suzerainty has for ages been characterized by the grossest disregard for the rights of its people, whose history is one long catalogue of despotic crimes and misdeeds. It is doubtful whether any people on the face of the earth give such evidence of the effects of long-continued subjection to misgovernment as do the Egyptian fellahs who form the great bulk of the population. What were, in the time of Mahomet and even later, a tolerably spirited race, enjoying the benefits of the highest civilization of those days, have, under the ban of Turkish oppression, degenerated into a state in many respects little better than that of savages, lacking, however, the usual stamina of the latter. It is quite evident that a complete demolition of the present order of things and a reconstruction on an entirely new basis, is what Egypt wants.

THE HIGHLAND BRIGADE.

It is equally evident that even a slight reform is not to be had under the administration of the port, much less a sweeping reorganization of their time-honored policy. That England has an indefatigable right, from her present position as the main creditor of the Egyptian government and sole adjuster of the present difficulties, to assume at least a quasi-sovereignty, is quite beyond a doubt. She will most probably undertake to shoulder the loss sustained by the Egyptians in the rebellion and hold the country as a material guarantee. To take this step without creating a general hubbub throughout Europe, is the great difficulty. More than one of the continental powers have eyes on the country, whose fertile soil and climatic advantages render it a valuable appendage to any empire. The end is evidently not yet.

CANDID ADMISSION.

Patronage may be an evil, but, like money, it is a necessary evil that all despots possess, and it is necessary to the class that another for joining in the hunt.—Irish Canadian. There are some people who are not thus minded—we take it that the great bulk of the Canadian people are not hunting plunder. But newspapers and factious like the Irish Canadian are after the flesh-pots and nothing else. Where the spoils, there the spolia. One time they are reformers; next day conservatives; but always spoliars. They trade on the prejudice of their co-receders and they live on the fears of the politicians. Canadians should frown down such men and papers. There is only one reason for the existence of these papers; the promotion of the particular creed they espouse. The Roman Catholics, the Baptists, the Presbyterians, all others, have a right to sectarian journals if they wish them to further their particular sect; but to employ such journals to air the grievances of other lands; to try and lead, by them, the vote they are supposed to represent; to secure political spoils and preferment; is a blow at honest government and the liberties of the whole nation. Creed has no business in politics; still less has a foreign nationality.

MANITOBA SCHOOL LANDS.

There is considerable agitation among the Winnipeg press just now regarding the management of the school lands in the prairie province. These lands, consisting of two sections in each township, are like the rest of Manitoban territory, in the hands of the dominion government. The provincial board of education find that they are unable to avail themselves of this provision for their own interests and are consequently in rather straitened circumstances. They are not treated with sufficient executive authority to dispose of the lands as they think proper, so that the question as to the advisability of placing this power exclusively in the hands of the provincial government is being freely agitated. According to the Free Press the best plan is for the dominion government to salt down the lands for the purposes of speculation and provide interim funds for educational purposes by borrowing. The Times on the other hand advocates the appointment of a commission under the central government, whose special duty it would be to look after the sale of school sections and the school interests of the province generally. The Sun strongly condemns both courses and recommends that the Manitoban legislature have the privilege of managing its own affairs in its own way and not to be controlled by extensive carpet-baggers of the dominion government. This would seem to be the wisest proposition of the three. It is the rule in the older provinces, and what works in their ought not to fail in Manitoba.

YESTERDAY THE GLOBE GAVE WHAT PURPORTED TO BE A QUOTATION FROM THE GLOBE HERALD; BUT WITH CHARACTERISTIC UNFAIRNESS IT CHANGES THE SENSE COMPLETELY BY THE INTERPOLATION OF A NEGATIVE. THE HERALD, REFERRING TO THE MATERIAL IN THE OPPOSITION OUT OF WHICH A CABINET COULD BE FORMED SAID: "MR. MEREDITH IS ALL THAT CAN BE DESIRED FOR A PREMIER." THE GLOBE MAKES THE SENTENCE READ: "MR. MEREDITH IS NOT ALL THAT CAN BE DESIRED FOR A PREMIER."

(To The Editor of the World.)

"Not a stick of timber on an acre of land, not a lump of iron, or gold in the despised territory could be so doubtfully being to Ontario as Sir John's." These are the veritable words of the bristler who, having carried the late Dominion election, is here to try to out the government of Mr. Mowat in Ontario. It is a strange and excessively improper course for him to leave Ottawa and come to this province and mingle in the domestic provincial politics, but it is still meaner in him after his recent conduct in this province in trying to take away our boundary award and to throw dust in the eyes of the public about the matter, to come here and patronizingly pretend to be the friend of the interests of the province! It is evident his game to out a government, with no doubt many faults, which is manfully maintaining our provincial rights to a large tract of lands and against his arbitrary Ottawa veto. Is there any really patriotic man in Ontario who would wish to see Mr. Mowat's government displaced and one inaugurated in its stead, presided over by Mr. Meredith, who is a political tool and follower of the wily Ottawa politicians. If such a man exists let him hold up his hands in protest for the abolition of all our provincial governments and let Sir John and his office-seeking crew "rule the roost at Ottawa." It is time for Ontario people to open their eyes to the tactics of such a man as Sir John, who is the enemy of our best interests. It is the design of Ottawa blunts to reduce the province to a second-rate province by robbing her of at least one-half of her territory, and that, too, after living upon the taxes we have paid since the union of 1841. The shillies which they have used has already been wily politicians who is here now to undermine a government better than any he can nominate. C. M. D.

STORMING AND CAPTURING ARABI'S WRECK.

This is the case, however, the case, by any means, for we find upon turning to Gen. Wolesley's despatch to the war office that the "Highland brigade" is not specially mentioned, but that the 18th Royal Irish are paid a marked compliment by the general for its gallantry during the assault. The general must surely be in a position to know who are deserving of praise, and we must therefore infer that the despatches have been partial. The gallantry of Scotch soldiers is undoubted, but it is not more so than that of their comrades in arms from the sister isles, and I hold that it is bad taste to imply that a brigade, the name of which is significantly national, exhibited more gallantry than other regiments of the service, when the facts prove that it has really done nothing of the kind. RICHARD E. CLARKE.

THE DECEMOS.

A British Columbian Character Sketch. (From Our Reporter Correspondent.) VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 2.—That ancient patriarch of all aphorisms, William Shakespeare of Stratford-on-Avon, long ago propounded the query, "What's in a name." The answer has throughout the ages, in a great measure, coincided with the great master's verdict which says, oracularly, that "a rose by any other name would smell as sweet." Exceptions, however, prove the rule and here, in British Columbia, we have a man who, by inheritance, was dubbed Smith, but who, not satisfied with that cognomen, invoked the aid of a state legislature "on the other side of the line" to remedy the defect where nature had made a mistake. Filled with a high desire for a name which he deemed the name of Smith somewhat inadequate in its expressiveness, and he moved to have an amendment passed. The previous question was not moved and Mr. Smith blossomed out into "Amor De Cosmos." You are not to suppose for a moment remember, that this man was or is a fool. If you do you are very materially "left." A shrewd judge of human nature and a keener calculator of the weak points of our common humanity it would be perhaps difficult to find on the continent. A more faithful adherent to the platform he professed on the hustings could certainly not be found in the legislature, and no more loyal man to his constituents was ever sent to Ottawa than Mr. De Cosmos. But he failed to appropriate his electors. In fact it is hard for a man to preserve his independence and to be the ignoble vulgar. Mr. De Cosmos perhaps erred in judgment, but certainly not in principle, in the stand he took at the recent election, and the substitute for him whom the electors have sent to Ottawa will make but a poor show towards filling his place. In point of fact the man is a genius, and has, possibly, the eccentricities which are inseparable from genius, but he is nevertheless, a keen, far-sighted and staunch politician. He has already made his mark on the historical page where the chronicles of British Columbia are recorded and we much mistake if he does not yet, in the near future bulk more largely still in the public eye of that province. #### FACT AND FANCY.

When a pretty Irish girl is stolen away they suspect some boycott.

If a woman were to change her sex what would she become?—A he-then.

Edgar Allan Poe's house in Richmond, Va., is to be used for a hotel.

Rev. Joseph Cook spent his boyhood on a farm not far from old Fort Ticonderoga, where his father still lives.

Nearly all the post-offices in Texas are in charge of females. It works so well that the males now arrive nearly every hour in the day.

The following advertisement appeared in a daily recently and was answered by about 500 young men:—"Wanted, experienced hands on ladies' waists."

At the Iowa state fair forty-four women exhibited quilts for premiums. The Iowa ladies have not altogether forgotten the old-fashioned domestic industries.

Chicago's fair daughters have taken the aesthetic nonsense deeply to heart. One recently inquired for furniture covering—"Sometimes with a distinct individuality—but—rather subdued and—pensive—with a dash of pathos and faint suggestion of insinuating tenderness."

A young lady recently lost her husband, who was about seventy years old. "But how did you happen to marry a man of that age?" asked one of her friends. "Why," said the young widow, "you see I only had the choice between two old men, and of course I took the oldest."

Annie Nittel, of Chicago, the other day accidentally stepped on a parlor match while attending to some household duties, and the flash, unknown to her, ignited her dress. When a blanket was finally wrapped around her and the flames mothered she was entirely devoid of clothing below the waist.

A lady who had quarrelled with her bald-headed lover said, in dismissing him: "What is delightful about you, my friend, is that I have not the trouble of sending you back any locks of your hair." His reply was, had you given me one, you would not have known whose lock you were sending."

A heart-broken mother: "Then you caught your boy stealing, did you?" said a suburban woman to her neighbor over the fence. "Yes, and it most broke my heart."

"What did he steal?" "He stole two big apples from the store. I wouldn't have cared so much if he had taken enough to make a couple of pies."—Boston Globe.

Six years ago ten barrels of oysters were exported to London, and were condemned as unfit for food. The exports to British ports now amount to 2000 barrels weekly. The oysters reach London in better condition and cheaper than they reach Chicago, the constant jolting of cars being more injurious than the steady motion of a steamship.

Albert and Sullivan's forthcoming opera has been named "The Princess Pearl." The hero is Stephen, the son of a fairy mother and of a father who is only fairy from the waist down. The character and plot are very fat and gross, while a half-chance figure as quite ethereal. The men of the chorus are peers in coronets and robes.

Speaking of spiritual consolation and the comforting assurance that the severity of the just shall be blessed, a Chicago clergyman told a story the other day that is worth printing. There was an old lady in his church who was noted for her eccentricities as well as piety, and while talking with her about her hope of the hereafter he asked—"Mrs. S., did you ever stop to think what will gratify you most in heaven? Oh, yes," she exclaimed, "it will be a cheap place to live in!"

"What a tiresome thing that Mrs. Smith is!" exclaimed Mrs. Brown. "I called there to-day and she ran on so telling me about her new carpet, and her new gown, and her baby's new dress, and her new bonnet, that I didn't get a chance to say a word about my new jacket, or of our party invitations, or of Freddy's coming home with the measles, or Sarah Jane's dyspepsia, or Uncle Charlie's rheumatism, or how Bridget, beyond that batch of biscuits, Oh, she's such a tiresome thing!"

The growing scarcity and consequently increasing price of palm oil and ivory are attracting the attention of adventurous traders, and a Belgian company has fitted out a vessel with a large cargo of articles which it is designed to trade for palm oil and ivory through the natives on the west coast of Africa. A party of colonists accompany the expedition, who will erect a house on the coast and endeavor to maintain a Belgian trading station. This is the first enterprise of the kind in Africa from Belgium.

"Ladies, is there any truth in this bit of philosophy?—'With a woman who is either positively pretty or positively ugly the question of looks is settled once and for all, and her mind is settled on the subject, but with one who is about middling there is perpetual and harassing doubt. One day she is raised to heaven by a compliment, and the next she is lowered to hades by something that can be construed as a disparagement. Now she is tolerably well satisfied with herself, again she is somewhat disgusted. All the time she is in uncertainty. She, no doubt, was the woman whom I saw going through a stock of head-glasses. Still—no he went on after a moment's reflection—there is one plan which you might at last try: I should recommend you to be criticised and rise again on the third day."

Some official statistics have just been issued in France of the suicides that have taken place in fifty years. They show that since 1830 the number of suicides has trebled. In 1830 there were five suicides for every 100,000 inhabitants in 1850, 10, between 1876 and 1880 198 boys and 40 girls below 15 years of age destroyed themselves. Of these 209 were over 12 years of age, 21 were between the ages of 12 and 10, 4 were 10 years old, and 6 were below 9, the youngest being only 7 years old. It appears that by far the great number of suicides takes place in the summer, the proportion per cent being—summer 39, spring 19, autumn 24, and winter 18.

Mr. C. E. Higgins, Beamsville, writes: "A customer who tried a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery says it is the best thing he ever used; to quote his own words: 'It just seems to touch the spot affected.' About a year ago he had an attack of bilious fever, and was afraid he was in for another, when I recommended this vegetable medicine with such happy results."

"I declare!" exclaimed Mrs. Tisdale, "I never saw a gal like our Sara Jane. I worked almost two full days on her new bathin' dress, and don't you think, she got it wringin' wet the last time she put it on!"—Boston Transcript.

Maladies multiply one another. A simple fit of indigestion may—especially if the constitution is not naturally vigorous—throw the entire mechanism of the liver and bowels out of gear. Sick headache follows, poisoning of the blood by bile masses, and there is grave and serious disturbance of the entire system. Check the threatened danger at the outset with Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, the medicine that drives away impurity from the blood.

A year ago the Princess of Wales appeared at an entertainment at Buckingham Palace with simple white clover as floral ornaments, and it is needless to say that the clover immediately thereafter came into fashion. Now it is all rage in London.

Rev. J. McLaughlin, Canadian Baptist Missionary to India, writes: During our stay in Canada we have used Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil with very great satisfaction. We are now returning to India, and would like very much to take some with us for our own use and to give to the diseased heathen.

Mme. G. called at a friend's house on a wet day, and her feet being damp, she said to her friend: "My dear, will you let your maid bring me a pair of your slippers?" "My love," replied her friend—there were several people in the room—"do you think my slippers will fit you?" "Oh, I think so, my darling, if you tell her to put a cork sole inside of them."

To assist nature most effectually in her efforts to throw off or resist serious disease, it is essential that an impulse should be given to functions which growing ill health suspends or weakens, namely, the action of the bowels, bilious secretion and indigestion. Oftentimes, though this is impracticable by the use of ordinary remedies, it proves an easy task when Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure is resorted to.

A silver dollar was sent to the New Orleans mint the other day and pronounced counterfeit. Its weight was slightly in excess of that of the genuine dollar, and it failed before the acid test, but in all outward appearance it was an exact imitation. On a more thorough test being made it was found to be a genuine dollar, which somebody in a sportive mood had heavily nickel-plated.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL.

The Dismissal of the Locomotive Engineers - Immigration of Skilled Labor.

The usual monthly meeting of the above organization was held in Dufferin hall last evening the president, Mr. Armstrong, in the chair.

The following credentials were presented and received: Misses Gordon and Foster, female boot and shoe operators; Wm. McClements, bakers; J. Kelly, J. Corby and P. McCarthy, tailors; and R. Watson, plasterers.

Mr. Moore, from the organization committee, reported active action on the part of that committee and gave details of work done.

The chairman from the demonstration committee reported gross receipts as $1048.20; expenditures $319.91, leaving balance of $728.29. He reported also that all accounts were not as yet finally settled up owing to parties having claims not appearing before the committee with the same.

A communication from the secretary of the federation of trades, relative to sending delegates to a meeting to be held at Cleveland on November 21 next was received.

Mr. Oakley was elected a trustee in the place of Mr. Beecher, who has been replaced by another delegate.

Mr. Oakley drew attention to the discharge of a number of locomotive engineers on the Intercolonial railway, because of their being members of a trade union.

He said he had no doubt his motives in introducing the subject would be questioned, but he did not care he would be so treated in the premises. As trades-unionists, objections ought to be made to such action on the part of private individuals—notably a short time ago in this city. How much more ought it to be abhorred on the part of large corporations. He would not take it upon himself to say who the blame is attached to, but somebody had blundered. He concluded by moving the following resolution: Resolved that this council views with alarm the action of the authorities of the Intercolonial railway in dismissing a number of locomotive engineers on account of their joining the brotherhood, being of opinion that it is a direct blow at trade-unionism; and further that we demand in the name of British fair play that the government do reinstate the same in their respective positions.

This resolution called forth quite a debate, in which all deprecated the dismissal, and as more definite information was required, as well as a desire to see what action the brotherhood took in the premises, Mr. Maschell (a veteran) moved, in amendment, that the subject lay over until next meeting, and that the secretary communicate with the proper parties asking for further information. The amendment carried.

Mr. Heakes, from the legislative committee, reported progress. He hoped when he brought down the "Inland Revenue" bill, it would be found satisfactory and a credit to the committee.

Mr. Moore drew attention to the fact that large numbers of emigrants had been induced to come to this country under false pretences, and as a consequence lower wages were being offered by employers. He hoped the committee would take some steps to bring the matter before the governments of the dominion and province.

Mr. Oakley said the old trades assembly when in existence took active steps on the subject of immigration. It was largely due to their promptness, supplemented by the ever-active assistance of Mr. O'Donoghue, who was a member of the local legislature at the time, that the local government reduced the appropriation for immigration, and he had no doubt something similar could be done by the dominion government on proper representation.

Mr. Birmingham said from experience he knew people were bought out under false pretences, and in this the government are to blame.

Mr. Brooks said the government should be called upon to stop bringing out skilled labor. He thought some of the funds ought to be expended in sending a delegate to England to lecture and condemn the action of the dominion government for their encouragement of skilled labor emigration to this country where the market is overstocked.

Mr. Meredith gave notice that at the next meeting he would move for a special committee for the purpose of considering the advisability of purchasing a trades and labor burial in Mount Pleasant cemetery members of the different trade organizations (union) who may die in the city without immediate relatives or friends.

Mr. Oakley drew attention to the fact that Mr. Holyoke, the well-known English champion of co-operation, was to lecture in Hamilton. He hoped that gentleman would be invited to lecture in Toronto also.

Mr. Moore followed in a speech eulogistic of Mr. Holyoke and hoped that when he visited Toronto he would be awarded a hearty welcome by the Trades and Labor Council.

Funeral, well I should say so, for you must laugh, you can't help it. Baker & Farrow at the Grand.

"Many silly people despise the precision and understanding it." But no one despises Kidney-Wort after having given it a trial. Those that have used it agree that it is by far the best medicine known. It is simple, prompt, thorough and lasting. Don't take pills and other mercurials that poison the system, but by using Kidney-Wort restore the natural action of all the organs.

CLOSE OF THE FAIR.

The Last Day - Fair Attendance of Visitors - Procession of the Animals - Exhibitors Packing up.

The wind was blowing high again yesterday, but the weather was very much more pleasant than the day before. The attendance, though comparatively small, was very good for a last day. The principal attractions for yesterday were the procession of horses in the ring. The exhibition closed last night at six o'clock, and the exhibitors immediately after were busy packing and preparing for an early move this morning.
