CITY ELECTORS ARE ROLLING UP RECORD VOTE

24,000 MAY CAST VOTE IN LONDON

Two Thousand More Ballots
Predicted by Party Leaders Here.

PERCENTAGE GROWS

C. N. R. Shops, Banks, Rolling
Mills and Dispensary Are Closed For Day.

London went to the polls today. Party leaders were confident that 2,000 more votes would be cast today than in any previous federal contest here. The betting had it that majorities would be under the 1,000 mark, and that candidates would probably finish up like an abbreviated straight 9, 8, and 7, with pretty even betting on the high card and the second. There is every prospect that the total vote in London will reach the 24,000 mark.

Hamilton road was the center of activity. Every vote in the district has been thoroughly canvassed. The C. N. R. shops and the London Rolling mills were closed all day. The banks closed at noon. There was only a morning mail delivery. The government dispensary was closed all day.

Official figures show that the percentage of the electorate which actually votes in London is increasing year by year. Ontario average is going down. That of the whole dominion is going down. Only a struggle of centuries gave the franchise to every man and woman, though the percentage of the electorate which chooses representation is often pathetically small.

Few Vote in U. S.
In recent British elections 52 per cent of the registered voters cast their ballots. In the last presidential election of the United States only one-half of the registered voters exercised the franchise. In the 1921 Canadian election the percentage was 70.3 of the registered vote, a decrease of 11.2 per cent from 1910.

Canadian citizens are today electing 245 representatives to the dominion house of commons. These representatives will, for a period, control the destiny of a nation composed of 9,226,740 people, having an aggregate tangible wealth of about $22,155,000,000, and a potential wealth of an untold amount.

In London there is a possibility that the representative vote will show the greatest percentage of electors in the history of the city. Municipal and provincial election contests have here shown larger percentages of the vote than federal elections.

A Record in 1917.
The largest majority for any federal election was won by the Conservative candidate, Mr. J. M. McEvoy, K. C., by a majority of 4,363, nearly 3,000 of which were soldiers' votes.

Better comparison can perhaps be made in the general elections of 1911 and 1921. In the reciprocity election Major Thomas Beattie, Conservative, carried the city by a majority of 1,561. There have been two three-party election fights for federal honors in London. In London, back in 1909, Robert Roadhouse was the third candidate, but he lost his deposit, while the straight party candidates were divided by only a few hundred votes.

In the last election the three-party fight reached unprecedented proportions. The success of Dr. H. A. Stevenson, Liberal representative in the provincial legislature, had given the Labor cause considerable impetus, and their candidate in 1921, Arthur Mould, polled 4,315 votes. Supporters of John Colbert in the present contest believe that Labor will poll more than 5,000 votes.

Big Vote This Year.
The 1921 election brought out the largest number of electors in the history of federal contests here. More than 55 per cent of the registered vote cast their ballots. It is expected that this percentage, as well as the number of voters, will be increased considerably this year. The King Liberals and the Labor movement have both increased in strength.

Electors of London pinned their faith in Sir John Carling on the occasion of no less than five general elections and one by-election. He was defeated by the majority by Liberal candidates on two occasions.

The Hon. C. S. Hyman led the Liberal forces in campaign fights for a great many years. Three times he was the choice of the general election to represent London at Ottawa and he was also named member in the by-election of 1905. The close campaigns brought defeats for Liberals at one general election and for Conservatives at others. Mr. Hyman was defeated in the last election.

Thomas Beattie was elected in three general election contests here, while Major Walker, Liberal, Hume Cronyn, Unionist, and J. Frank White have had one term each.

NEW BRIDGES COST $8,000.
Fourteen new bridges have been built in Middlesex county this year at a total cost of $8,000. County Engineer Charles Talbot states. The bridges have been erected in various parts of the county to take care of increased traffic over Middlesex road.

Polls Close At Six—You've Still Time To Vote

Men Who Directed Liberal Campaign

THESE MEN HAVE WORKED EARLY AND LATE.

Whatever the result of the voting today, London Liberals have reason to feel proud of the energetic and fair campaign which has been conducted in the city. It has shown a remarkable revival of Liberal strength in the unselfish personal work of some of the hundred canvassers, the efficiency of chairmen in

Liberal Workers In City Close Energetic Campaign; Fine Organization Created

Election Fight Characterized by Few Speeches But Intensive Canvass.

LEADERS ARE PRAISED

Much Credit Given to Major
Kippen and Col. Brown
For Efforts.

Three candidates, all of high calibre backed by efficient and loyal support of workers in their respective organizations, have given London one of the most intensive election campaigns ever waged in this riding.

There has been comparatively little public speaking, and a most satisfactory absence of personalities. All three parties have concentrated on a personal canvass of the electorate, and this method, while undoubtedly effective, lends an additional element of uncertainty to the result.

The so-called "silent vote" will be a big factor in today's battle of ballots. Supporters of the Liberal candidate, E. S. Little, have excellent reason for congratulation built up by the Liberal party in the city during the campaign, is a truly excellent one.

and represents much faithful and self-sacrificing effort on the part of over seven hundred workers who have been actively engaged. Realizing the extreme importance of the personal canvassing in the contest, the organization had a system which has adequately covered the field. Twenty-one supervisors have directed the activities of subdivision chairmen in every division of the city. Each of these in turn had his own committee of four or five, including many ladies who did most effective work.

If the Liberals capture the London seat in today's polling their success will be due in no small measure to the direct hard spade work accomplished by the subdivision canvassers.

Major Kippen Directs.

Actively directing the campaign, as chairman of the organization committee, was Major W. H. Kippen, D. C. O., M. C. To describe him as chairman is almost a misnomer, because he has spent very little time sitting in a chair ever since the campaign opened.

Like a true campaigner, he has contrived to be wherever the battle was hottest, and much credit for the high degree of efficiency attained by the campaign organization may properly be claimed for him. Able work has been done by the acting president of the association, Col. Claude Brown, who, as vice-president, stepped into the breach when the nomination of the president, J. C. Elliott, K. C., as candidate in West Middlesex, made it necessary for him to retire from participation in the contest here. Col. Brown has spent most of his waking hours at Liberal headquarters, where his presence has been a source of real leadership. Ray Lawson, in an advisory and executive capacity, has given able direction to much of the campaign. The secretary of the association, C. C. Ferguson, ably assisted by Douglas Wanless, Miss Angus and other members of the office staff, have handled a multitude of detail in most satisfactory manner.

Every member of the Liberal party owes a debt of gratitude to the candidate, E. S. Little, for the untiring

Canada Piling Up Record Vote

Good Weather Throughout the Dominion Is Bringing Out
Millions of Electors Today.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A heavy weather generally prevails, although rain and snow are reported from some points in the maritimes. The campaign closes with whirlwind effort, but without serious turbulence. Both Liberal and Conservative parties end the fight with claims of a clear majority in the next house of commons.

Extraordinary interest is shown everywhere in the election. Here, in the capital, especially elaborate preparations have been made for announcing the results.

Three and a half million voters are expected to mark their ballots—the largest number in the history of the dominion—and expectations are that there will be the minimum of irregularities. Elaborate precautions have been taken to see that all officials are duly advised of their duties, although some minor points have arisen. One arises in connection with challenged votes. It is pointed out that any voter who is challenged at the polling station must take the oath. If he refuses, he cannot vote. But every voter who takes the required oath is entitled to a ballot paper unless a formal charge of perjury is forthwith laid against him. Both Premier King and Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition, will receive the results in Ottawa. Premier King has a special telegraph wire installed in his offices at the east block to get a prompt service.

COMMISSIONER ASKS 15,000 MORE TROOPS

French Forces in Syria Suffer
6,000 Casualties in Week.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, Oct. 29.—The new cabinet formed by Premier Poincaré as soon as it is sworn into office—if it will have facing it the annoying situation in Syria, which is declared to have obtained such a serious aspect that General Sarrail, the French high commissioner, has requested 15,000 reinforcements with which to overcome the attacks of the natives.

Even in official circles the silence of General Sarrail in reporting completely on the situation has caused considerable irritation and open criticism of him. This is due to the premier's admission before the chamber committee on finance that there were more than 6,000 casualties in last week's fighting between the French and the Druses.

MEIGHEN SAYS STATEMENT PREFERENCE MISCONSTRUED

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Hon. Arthur Meighen, in referring to a statement yesterday by Premier King at Newmarket, in which the prime minister reported as criticizing an alleged declaration by Mr. Meighen at Kitchener, to the effect that "the British preference was wrong in principle," issued the following statement last night:

"What I said on this subject at Kitchener," said Mr. Meighen, "was exactly what I said in parliament on June 2 last, and was in support of the clause in the British preference bill that we should give British and British dominions preference in return for preferences given us and that no preference should put Canadian workmen out of employment."

PUT BAN ON PRAIRIES OF REVELLERS

Board of Education Moves For
"Sane Halloween"—Principals
To Give Warning.

TRUSTEES DISAGREE

Board Hears That Building of New Collegiate Will Begin in Three Weeks.

Building will be commenced by John Petherborough, London, on the new 20-room collegiate institute and public school at the corner of Dundas street and Highbury avenue within three weeks' time. Such was the information given the board of education this morning when the recommendations of the building committee awarding the general contract to Mr. Petherborough at $217,000 and the contract for the plumbing, heating and ventilating to Wm. Skelly, London, at $39,219, were endorsed at a special meeting of the board.

Chairman S. F. Lawason suggested that the principals of the schools ask their pupils "to make this Halloween a sane one, and to behave themselves." Trustee Rev. R. D. Mess, M. M., thought that the suggestion "would be inviting trouble, because he did not think the school children were the ones to blame."

Not the Grown-Ups.
Trustee W. G. Murray: "Well, I know it is not grown-ups who put ashore the suggestion of 'sane halloween.' Mr. Lawason: 'In United States they are taking this question up quite strenuously.'"

Trustee J. Willmot: "I believe the chairman is on the right track; there should not be any vandalism or destruction of property on Halloween or people's property."

Mr. Murray and Mr. Willmot then moved that the chairman's suggestion be carried out with Trustee Mrs. John T. Rose and Mr. Mess voting against the motion.

The board accepted a motion proposed by Mrs. Rose that Canadian and British-made goods be used in the new school and that only London labor be used wherever possible. This was passed on to the contractors as a recommendation of the board of the wishes in the matter of promoting the use of London products and London labor.

To Slope Hall Floor.
Some comment on discussion took place as to whether the floor of the auditorium should be flat or sloping. The general feeling being that the sloping floor would be more convenient for the audience, it was finally decided to have the front half flat and the back half sloping. This plan meets with the approval of the board.

The department wanted two waiting rooms put in the school, but the board declined to do so because, as Mr. Lawason puts it, "they would cost $20,000, and the principals do not want the rooms. The chairman said that 'it is believed the board has use of the $25,000 saved in the purchase of the site,' and added, 'We'll require it, too.'"

While approving of the plans of the new school, the department of education recommended certain extensive changes.

H. W. YORKE LEAVES ESTATE OF $23,988

Dorchester Farmer's Property Will Provide Income For His Widow.

Henry Wesley Yorke, North Dorchester farmer, who died on September 5th last, left a total estate of $23,988, according to the will filed for probate at the court house today by Harold Barnum, K. C., of Aylmer.

The estate is made up principally of property, a 300-acre farm in South Dorchester being valued at $20,000. Mr. Yorke left the income from 90 per cent of the estate to his wife, and 10 per cent to Miss Catherine Morton, of Toronto. On their death, the entire property passes to a nephew of Mr. Yorke, Yorke McConnell, of Aylmer.

WITH ELECTION OVER, BECK FUND DRIVE STARTS

Dinner at Government House
Within Next Two Weeks Will Launch Campaign.

OBJECTIVE IS $500,000

Chairman of Preliminary Gifts
Committee Outlines Fund Organization.

With the election over, active planning for the drive for $500,000 for the Beck memorial endowment in aid of the Queen Alexandra sanatorium will be started immediately. Philip Pocock, chairman of the preliminary gifts committee in the drive, stated this morning that not a great deal beyond organization had yet been done because of the election. The drive would be started, he said, with a function at government house. Toronto, when His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will give dinner to the leaders in the drive and their friends. The actual date has not been set, but it will be within the next two weeks.

The leaders in the movement recently held a meeting which was purely to plan for greater organization. The drive, of course, is not local, although London has a tremendous interest. All the hydro municipalities in Ontario are asked to share besides individuals.

Dr. F. H. Pratten, medical superintendent of the sanatorium, has been visiting the larger hydro municipalities in the province, marshaling the forces for the drive, which starts on Nov. 28.

"My committee has not yet approached anyone in the matter of contributions, because the election has been taking the interest of the people," said Mr. Pocock. He added that all the committees would get busy after the election and particularly after the opening shot was fired at the dinner at government house, Toronto.

Men in the drive wish to impress the people of the province that the sanatorium is in no way a local institution in London. It has treated patients from 38 of the counties in Ontario, and as many as 196 from a single county. There have been patients from the extreme northern counties of the province. There are at present 52 patients from the city of Toronto. Free treatment to the value of $163,716 has been given to 1,381 patients. The committee is well pleased with the assistance being given by numerous clubs, business firms and individuals in advertising, printing and general activity.

Immediately after the opening dinner at government house the drive will get away in earnest, and it is expected that the objective will be easily and early reached.

TWO GIRLS FLEE JAIL AFTER SAWING SINGLE BAR

New York, Oct. 29.—Miss Marion Brazier, 27, sawed the bars of her cell in the Bergen county jail at Hackensack, N. J., Tuesday night and escaped. It became known today.

With her went Alice Condarli, 16, of Ridgedale, N. J., who was awaiting arraignment on a minor charge.

Miss Brazier was awaiting trial on charges made as the result of passing a number of small checks at stores in Hudson and Bergen counties. Both were in cells on the ground floor of the prison.

When County Detective Allyn went to the jail today he found a note left for him by Miss Brazier in which she said she had secreted a knife in her corset, and had used it to cut the one steel bar of her cell window.

BUFFALO MAN SLAIN IN $93,000 HOLDUP

Associated Press Despatch.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Robbers today shot and killed one Bank of Buffalo employee and wounded another in making away with money contained in a bank automobile. The loot amounted to $93,000.

Ideal Weather For Balloting

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Oct. 29.—Clear, bright, moderately cool weather reported from most points in Ontario this morning augurs well for a heavy poll throughout the province. Roads in practically all ridings are in good condition, firm and hard, so that rural electors are expected to muster heavily.

Fresh to strong west to north-west winds are reported as general and the prospects for the day are that the weather will remain bright throughout.

E. S. LITTLE'S SON STRUCK BY MOTOR

Nine-Year-Old Allan Little Escapes Serious Injury in Accident.

Allan Little, 9-year-old son of E. S. Little, was knocked down and run over by a motor car in front of a polling booth on John street early this afternoon. On examination at the office of Dr. Septimus Thompson, it was found that the boy had not received any broken bones, nor is it thought that there are any internal injuries.

The Liberal candidate's son ran from behind a motor car directly in the path of another, the driver having no opportunity of avoiding an accident. How the youngster escaped serious injury witnesses of the accident cannot explain, as the wheels of the auto passed directly over his body.

PACKARD FIRM FINISHES MOST PROFITABLE YEAR YET

Special to The Advertiser.

Detroit, Oct. 29.—Following publication today of the Packard Motor Car Company's annual report showing the company had just closed the most prosperous year in its history, the directors of the company this afternoon declared a stock dividend of 10 per cent, payable Dec. 1, on the common stock of the company to the stockholders of record Nov. 14, 1925. This common stock dividend is to be distributed out of the company's surplus, which, according to its statement for the fiscal year ending Aug. 31, 1925, was $15,176,338.19.

BAIL CUT IS DENIED M'DONALD

Crown Insists on $15,000 Bond
For "Ticket of Leave" Man in Bank Case.

WAS PAROLED IN 1922

Hearing Delayed To Allow
H. G. Brewer To Be Brought From Kingston.

A lengthy plea for a reduction in bail from $15,000 to $5,000 in the case of William MacDonald, 37, charged with conspiracy to defraud the Bank of Montreal of a sum in excess of $7,000, was denied by Magistrate Graydon in city court this morning. The case was delayed a second week at the request of the crown to allow time for the transfer of Herbert G. Brewer from Kingston penitentiary to London to testify against MacDonald.

Brewer was sentenced recently to a two-and-a-half-year term on a charge of falsifying accounts in the bank of Montreal to the extent of over $7,000.

Strong objection to defence counsel, Chaff's request for bail reduction was made by Crown Attorney Judd on the grounds of MacDonald being at present on ticket of leave from Kingston. He told the court that he had been advised that if MacDonald was either acquitted or dismissed on the conspiracy charge, he was to be re-arrested immediately on the charge of breaking parole regulations.

MacDonald was convicted of obtaining money under false pretences in 1921, and was given concurrent terms of five years and three years. Good behaviour brought parole a year later. Sought at the time of Brewer's conviction, he was not seen until last week, when he voluntarily came from the U. S. to face the charge of conspiracy.

FASCISTI FORCES OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY OF MARCH

Associated Press Despatch.

Rome, Oct. 29.—Fascisti yesterday fittingly observed the third anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome by numerous patriotic ceremonies, reviews of the national militia, parades, meetings addressed by Fascist leaders, and other manifestations, all of which were attended by and participated in by great throngs of people.

The ceremonies reached their climax at Milan, where Premier Mussolini, assisted by a host of attendants, including General Prince Gonzaga, commander-in-chief of the Fascist militia, and Generals Balbo and Debono, reviewed 25,000 black-shirted troops belonging to the militia, army, navy and air forces.

That Kidney Trouble,
Take It in Time!

Chatham, Ont.—"My husband and I have both been wonderfully benefited by taking Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. We have both had such help from taking the Tablets that we are in a position to know the value of this great medicine. I had an acute case of kidney trouble and was suffering something awful when I started to take Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets, and they completely relieved me of this spell with my kidneys and bladder, and I have never had another attack. And for years my husband suffered with kidney and bladder trouble, his back would pain him just across his kidneys, and many days he voided the secretion with difficulty; it would cause him great distress. But after he began taking 'Anuric' his kidney and bladder trouble disappeared and he does not have any more trouble with either. He doctor for years for this trouble, before he learned of 'Anuric' and had taken every well-known medicine without any help to speak of."—Mrs. Amelia Rushmore, 51 Scane street.

LONDONERS WILL VOTE
ON SPENDING $385,000

OF SELF-CONTROL

Five Money Bylaws To Go Before People at December Election.

GROUPING IS URGED

Five money bylaws, calling for expenditures of $385,000, will be voted on next December, according to a recommendation brought forth by a committee at last night's session of No. 1 council without recommendation.

Members of the hospital trust and Victoria Hospital staff urged a bylaw to provide for a $225,000 nurses' home. Other bylaws which may be grouped with the hospital project are: Ridout bridge, $75,000; home for incurables, $25,000; aged people's home, $50,000; annual grant to Western Fair, $10,000.

According to the mayor, these bylaws should be grouped and go to the people as the election platform of the present council seeking re-election. They would be advertised together, to avoid competition, which he argued, would hurt all of them.

James Gray, of the hospital trust, pointed out that there were 135 nurses at Victoria hospital and nearly half of these had to find quarters outside of the old residence. There would be no frills to the projected sleeping and study accommodation for the girls.

"What is the cost of quarters now outside the hospital?" asked Ald. Smith.

"$3,500 extra spent on that," replied the mayor.

Ald. Clift pointed out that some of the nurses were housed in the contagious wards of the hospital. The mayor discussed his group system of advertising the bylaws. Sending them to the people singly would defeat them all, he said.

Col. Garshore, of the hospital trust, was ready to help the fund to advertise the hospital bylaw. He said that he, too, thought the group system was good for the city, as all bylaws were sent on to the council on the recommendation of Ald. Edwin Smith.

The council-board of education pointed out the use of schools for election purposes boded ill for the above the stormy seas of election. There was no peaceful element in the committee that thought arbitration would be a good thing, as a municipal election will be held in five weeks' time.

Ald. Smith's committee was named to meet the board and straighten out the kinks of the argument. Ald. Clift and Ald. Smith and the mayor will see the board on Friday.

The motion to provide an annual grant of $10,000 to Western Fair was not recommended for adoption. It goes to the council without support of No. 1 committee.

Advertise Houses.

The mayor wanted vacant houses of the housing commission advertised for rent. The committee didn't see its way clear to legally assign funds for such exploitation purposes.

"All right, there's no business man on the council," declared the mayor. "The rest are all lawyers."

Mr. Wenige made another attempt to secure committee action for a new agreement with the street railway.

"How are we to know that the company wants any other agreement than the one they now have?" asked Ald. Frank McKay, chairman of the committee.

"I think we should find out," affirmed the mayor.

"I think we should keep the one they have," said the chairman.

"So do I," came Ald. L. H. Douglass, M.P.

Doig's testimony.

The mayor charged that there was no assurance that houses could possibly be maintained at five-cent fares. In fact, he was sure that such a fare would soon be ended and that the company would be asked to raise their fares. The question was not moved as there was no motion from the mayor or other members of the committee.

METROPOLITAN CHORISTERS ENTERTAINED AT UNION

The choir of the Metropolitan United church were entertained to an evening reception and a country club at the Victoria Hotel on Tuesday evening, George C. Carrie, musical director, and Mrs. Carrie, who provided the host and hostess, were joined by thirty guests present, who much enjoyed the games and dancing. The evening was followed by a hearty resolution of appreciation was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Carrie. A. A. Atkinson, president of the choir, assisted the host and hostess.

MOTORCYCLE OFFICER NOT SERIOUSLY INJURED

The condition of Motorcycle Officer Morley Leach, who was injured last night when he crashed into a street car at Wharncliffe road and Stoney street, was greatly improved today, according to an announcement from his physician, Dr. John S. Schram. He rendered unconscious for two hours, he was thought at first to be seriously hurt, but an examination proved that no bones were broken. Police officers about the arms and legs will keep Officer Leach confined to his home, 61 Mt. Pleasant avenue, for a few weeks.

F. STEELE, OPTOMETRIST, KEEPING TO THE

F. Steele's optometrists again had a very successful meeting. The speaker was Mr. Ivan Nott of Toronto, who gave a very interesting talk on the latest development of muscle work and fusion, dealing largely with the strengthening of cross eyes.

The visitors were Mr. Cole, the progressive optometrist of Woodstock, and the managers of F. Steele, St. Thomas, Kitchener and Stratford.—Adv.

CAMPAIGN TO CLOSE
ON BOOTH'S BIRTHDAY

Evangelistic Meetings To Be Held Generally by Salvation Army Next Month.

Beginning on November 8, a world campaign of evangelism, to end on March 8, will be undertaken by the Salvation Army. The closing date marks the 70th birthday of General Bramwell Booth, supreme head of the army. The definite object of the campaign is an increase of 15 per cent in army membership in each one of the 80 countries into which it has marched. A corresponding increase in giving is looked for.

A great campaign of advertising and street evangelism will be held. In the circular issued by Charles S. Norton, commissioner for Canada East, detailed instructions are given and the officers are exhorted to make this period the greatest in army history. They are urged to redouble the number of personal visits made, especially in the crowded sections of the cities.

The general plan for the appointment to time for special purposes is as follows:

Nov. 8 to Dec. 9, special campaign for souls; Dec. 9 to Jan. 8, backsliders' restoration and linking up of ex-soldiers; Jan. 8 to Feb. 8, holiness campaign; Feb. 8 to March 8, special consecration services, covenant meetings and enrolments.

During the latter month, Feb. 8 to March 8, it is planned that special meetings shall be made to illustrate and make better known the army's many-sidedness by means of demonstrations and lectures.

Looking Over the Campaign.

One election campaign differs from another, and the one just closed has proved no exception. In the 1921 contest the Conservatives devoted their energies almost exclusively to the attempt to prove that the Liberals were out-and-out free traders. Their national advertising campaign swung around two slogans, "Canada Needs Meighen" and "Meighen Will Lead Us Through." Four years of Mr. King's government have taken away the first thunder about him being a free trader and he had demonstrated that he meant exactly what he said in 1921, that no industry earning a legitimate profit had anything to fear. It is notable, too, that there has not been the same emphasis placed on the fact that Hon. Arthur Meighen is the leader of the Conservative party. The idea of 1921 that "Canada Needs Meighen" was dropped from the 1925 campaign, possibly for the very obvious reason that the voters in 1921 said so emphatically that they could get along very well without him.

Some of the advertising used by the Conservatives in 1921, especially a personal appeal by Mr. Meighen to the women voters, looks rather strained when compared to his 1925 policies. Here is one paragraph used two days before the 1921 voting day:

"I ask the women of Canada to force that unity which will be abiding, which will result in permanent prosperity for all classes, and which will make Canada the envy of the world—that unity which is my one aim and ambition."

The 1925 campaign has found Mr. Meighen in a different position. He has been promising the western coal fields a tax on coal that Ontario will have to pay; the manufacturer who wants a high tariff has had his promise of a brick-upon-brick with United States; the consumer has been assured that he means only a moderate tariff. The east has been told that the rest of the country will pay part of its transportation costs. Mr. Meighen's 1921 idea of national unity has been abandoned in 1925.

Judging by the number of Progressive candidates in the field there has been a falling away from that movement. It cannot fairly be described as serious, or as indicating there will not be a group in the next parliament, but the evidence is there. The most plausible explanation is that Mr. King's policy of bringing agriculturists and manufacturers closer together so each can better understand the problems of the other has had much to do with it. Mr. King has realized that Canada will continue to have farmers and manufacturers, and the success of one is the success of the other. It would be a serious mistake to have a fiscal policy that hedged these two great classes in separate camps.

Quebec has furnished the most strenuous form of campaigning. From several quarters have come reports of rioting, fistfights, with the occasional gun shot to express the ardor or the anger of some voter. Any lack of demonstrative qualities in the Ontario contest have been bountifully supplied by our sister province in such a way as to stir old-timers to a recital of stormy times that lurked in the offing when we had open voting in Ontario.

The Consumer Pays.

Reports from New York, Massachusetts and other states tell of near-panics over the supposed shortage of coal following the strike in the anthracite fields of United States. At the same time officials of the miners' union state there are hundreds of thousands of tons above ground, and that it has been stored there for months. To substantiate their claim they produce photographs of 500 cars in one place that have been loaded for weeks. There is rust on the rails and rust on the wheels—but coal in the cars, probably 200,000 tons of it.

Coal dealers take up the case and say that they doubt it; they have their own agents in the field on the lookout for supplies that are not forthcoming. In the center of this campaign of assertion and denial stands the consumer. Past experience has taught him that if there is a coal shortage he pays for it; if there is coal stored and not moving, he pays for it; if the operators and miners take a few more months to discuss whether they will come to terms, he pays for it.

Finding the Weak Spot.

It is not often that a paper such as the Wall Street Journal, which of necessity is immersed in the affairs of business, stops to devote front-page space to the question of religion. New York has been stirred in recent weeks by the enormity of crime in that city; the Journal was considering one case where $650,000 was involved in a burglary record. At the same time President Coolidge was making an address on the remedy for lawlessness, which, he said, is "altogether too prevalent."

Not the police power of the government, he said, could provide the remedy. All the efforts of the police power will be wasted if there is not a determination on the part of the people to observe the law. But laws cannot furnish that determination, and President Coolidge stated frankly that respect for law can come only from religion, upon which the government rests.

The Wall Street Journal recounts the words of Clarence Darrow, himself an atheist, when pleading the case of Loeb and Leopold in Chicago: "They had no religious training at home." That lawyer, adds the Journal, unconsciously put his finger on the sore spot.

It is significant that as leaders of thought and men of high estate look over the social fabric of a great nation to see what is wrong they come to the same conclusion. They agree that they have laws, plenty of them; they are convinced they have sufficient police, and yet the crime record mounts. So they are looking farther upstream, going back to the place in national life before police and laws were the potent factors in determining action. This has brought them back to the fireside of the nation, and there they stand pointing the accusing finger at those who have neglected and are neglecting the teaching of religion to the young lives entrusted to their care.

In Two Directions.

As men come to the surface in a time of national decision, two names have been much to the fore during the campaign which closed yesterday—Hon. Vincent Massey in Ontario and Hon. F. L. Patenaude in Quebec. Mr. Massey has large manufacturing and commercial interests; he is studious and conversant with national problems, and his attitude as a manufacturer has been a frank admission that the success of the farming industry is essential to the progress of the manufacturer. His appearance in public life as a member of the King cabinet was a distinct gain to the Liberal cause. The same cannot be said of Mr. Patenaude because his reappearance lacked sincerity of purpose. Mr. Meighen has been an absentee as far as the Quebec contest is concerned; he agreed to let Mr. Patenaude and his anti-public ownership group wage the fight on issues of their own choosing.

This Tory-Patenaude campaign in Quebec finally developed into Montreal's financial dictation of the fiscal policy of Canada. The men who are putting up the money for the Ontario-Quebec Conservative campaign are there. They want to destroy the British preference; they ask a tariff which, six of the nine provinces would not endure; they are in league with the ocean steamship combine; they seek to get rid of the C. N. R. Autocrats and monopolists; they have had a free hand to dedicate the Conservative campaign in Quebec to channels of private gain. This double-dealing in Quebec has been a blotch on the face of the campaign.

An Expert Opinion.

The Babson commercial reports are regarded as the most reliable business surveys made on this continent. They never exaggerate conditions, but in a direct analytical way present basic facts, and from these form their conclusions.

The Babson October report has the following reference to Canada:

"For the first time in five years, Canadian business has risen above the X-Y line. The period of readjustment just ended is approximately the same size as the era of over-expansion which preceded it. We expect that any development on the upper side of the X-Y line will come in a conservative way and that a period of sound business improvement is ahead. Canada's position in the business area has been built on a firm foundation. At home the various fundamental barometers of business have worked out logically and conservatively during the past five years. Canada's exports and imports have made rapid strides and should continue their development because the dominion is well attuned to conditions abroad. We have witnessed an increase of exports over imports, due in part to the investment of foreign capital in Canadian developments of natural resources and Canadian enterprises. No more favorable sign of business stability could be found."

That is exactly the condition needed for a period of good business in Canada, a gradual working back from post-war conditions, a sound recovery of trade and a definite reaching out into world markets for exports. Babson's October report is decidedly encouraging for fall and winter business in Canada.

Note and Comment.

The day's best joke is where a Brooklyn poet was held up by a bandit.

One doctor says that men who weigh over 225 pounds should not dance. On first reading we thought he had said could not.

The Rotary club of Stratford sent up a balloon filled with gas and it went out of sight. If astronomers tell of a new spot on the sun's face we'll know in advance what has happened.

The Toronto Globe surely has come to a strange pass when it is obliged to secure approval of its position from the columns of a Conservative paper, the Hamilton Spectator.

In the death of R. J. Fleming of Toronto that city lost a good citizen well known in the province. He was honorable in his dealings, outspoken in his convictions, and played well the part to which he set his hand.

The Kiwanis club of Galt purchased a half-page in the Reporter of that city, using it to urge people to vote. The idea is commendable, but is there not something wrong when voters have to be nudged into saying how they want their own business conducted?

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, the former Liberal member in South Wellington, claims that he has not been swallowed up by the Conservative party. The reply of Nicol Jeffrey, K.C., is that Mr. Guthrie, then, must have swallowed the Conservative party. To illustrate the point Mr. Jeffrey uses the following limberick:

There was a young lady of Niger
Who, with a smile, took a ride on a tiger;
They returned from the ride.
With the lady inside.

And the smile on the face of the tiger.
That, declares Mr. Jeffrey, is what has happened to the Conservative party.

Training Children

By ARK.

Ten hundred teachers in a hall they listened to addresses there, about the methods folks should use to train the youngsters in their care.

And there was lots of notions spoke, and many theories brought out too, by delegates from up the state and experts come from Timbuctoo. And there were those who said the way to train the young was couched 'n love, that parents they should bill and coo and treat 'em like a turtle dove.

While others said to coax them on, reward them when their ways be right, and speak in gentle terms to them when they were gaddin' out at night.

At last come one of sterner view, a plain, outspoken guy was he, who said 'twas trash the stuff they said, like wrinkled prunes and salted tea.

"I may be old about my views and not in line with modern thought, but what you've heard of rearin' young is plain to me a lot of rot. For years we've coaxed them to be good, for years we've coaxed that method fail, for them we coaxed about the most they landed in the village jail.

"So with that milk and sugar stuff I tell you now that I am through, and henceforth we should lead 'em out and spank 'em like we ought to do."

Surprisin' though it seemed to me the meeting cheered him to a man, and none there was who cried aloud to hurl him in the garbage can. No more they'll coax the erring youth, nor pour sad pleadings in his ear, they'll lead him to the woodshed now and whack him soundly in the rear.

Can You Qualify?

JUDGE GARY, in a recent speech, said a man to be successful in business must be absolutely clean and healthy, mentally, morally and physically. His habits should be above reproach; he should know himself, study himself and look into his own heart and mind and conscience. He should be diligent, never intentionally negligent, keep his appointments punctually and fulfill his promises, up to date in everything pertaining to his occupation, fully informed, reasonable, fair, patient and have a good disposition toward every other person; he should make friends and avoid making enemies; he should not live for himself alone. He should acknowledge and practice the Golden Rule. He should be a loyal, patriotic citizen, devoted to country, respectful to public officials and faithful in the observance of all laws so long as they exist, not talk too much, weigh every word he says, be patient and wise and absolutely honest.

Facing the Drifts and the Storm

To The Editor

Will Not Stop Them.

Editor of The Advertiser:
Sir.—A tremendous flow of oratory is gushing forth over the why and wherefore of the Canadians going to the States, even the wife of the Opposition leader is taking a hand and talking protection. But it is not true that no nation or people can be greater than the homes in which they live.

Every boy, even when he is a little fellow, has the home instinct. He falls in love with a lady friend; she may be old enough to be his grandmother, but he plans some day he will marry and have a home. When he starts to school he falls in love with all the pretty little girls, and on up till he is old enough to take his place in the world and establish a home, he has that home-making instinct. When he has finally found the only girl in the world, what confronts him at the present time? He finds that in order to make a start and establish a home, that on the furniture he has to buy 30 per cent tariff tax. That is if he plans to buy $130 worth of furniture for his kitchen he gets $100 worth of furniture and pay $30 tariff; the same applies all through, with some things 35 per cent. The prosperity league, if they have their way, intend to add to his burdens. If a 20 per cent increase is added it will mean that instead of getting $100 worth for $130, he will have to pay $150.

Now we all agree that the loss of so many native-born Canadians is a serious matter, but the kind of protection that is being peddled at present will not stop any thinking young man from going where he can better himself.

It may have been necessary to protect the infant industries that were striving to establish a home for themselves, but what about our young men and young women, who would like to establish homes for themselves? Are they to be held in serfdom to protect organized capital simply because of the flood of propaganda that is being soaked into us? The fog of protectionism is all around us; it is so flooded over Canada that we almost have to breathe it in the air, and it may be that we will have to be burned still more with it before we feel the blister rightly. Canada is a great country, and has stood a job of mismanagement before, and may have to stand some more, but to make it harder to establish a home will not stop the flood of young men who are crossing the border, and are making their contribution to the nationhood of Uncle Sam by establishing their homes and becoming citizens of that country.

Use the Newspapers.

Editor of The Advertiser:
Sir.—Were it not for the opportunities for reflection associated with country life, the rural elector might readily be confused by the clamorous and contradictory appeals in the press for his suffrage by political party managers. The situation is further complicated in constituencies by triangle contests. Public meetings are held, as in East Middlesex, for example, to further the interests of the respective candidates, but apart from groups of village people, the bulk of voters in many cases do not attend them, and the discussions are not always clear and enlightening, or to the precise standing of would-be M. P.'s on public questions. What is needed is a clear-cut statement over their own signatures in the newspapers of their stand on such issues as immigration, senate reform, national railways and transportation, taxation, the tariff and national prohibition of the liquor traffic, which in the judgment of many is as vital, or more so, to the economic and general well being of Canada as any other question. What we look for as a guide in marking the ballot is not just a follow-the-leader declaration, but a concise and definite expression of the candidate's own conviction and purpose.

The Protected Family

When a man makes successful application for an adequate policy of life insurance to acquire what is popularly called "Protection," he comes into what is possibly the greatest asset a man may possess.

—And it is so easy to furnish this "Protection" the London Life way. For instance, a man age 30, by laying aside any proportion of his monthly earnings for a London Life Jubilee Policy, can make it guarantee four times as much monthly to his wife (age 30) for life—no matter at what time he may die, nor how long she may live after him. For instance: A deposit at the rate of $25.00 per month would provide $100.00 per month income for life.

Such protection for the family can not be obtained by any investment other than life insurance. And the policy that makes it possible at so low a cost is issued by the London Life.

Play safe! Secure life insurance and then enjoy your income in the happiness of knowing that all is well.

WOMEN and THE HOME

HALF CENTURY DISCOVERS W.C.A. STILL FLOURISHING

Will Ask City For $75,000 in Grants For London Institutions.

ELECTS MRS. HUNT

The Women's Christian association completed a half century of splendid endeavor in the city of London yesterday, with the holding of the 50th annual meeting in the Victoria home for incurables, South London. Mrs. C. B. Hunt, president of the association for the past two years, was again returned to that office, receiving an acclamation. For the past 50 years the organization has been fortunate in just such excellent presidents as Mrs. Hunt, whose services to the society were warmly lauded at the meeting.

This year the Women's Christian association is going to the city of London for a $25,000 grant for the Victoria home for incurables and a $50,000 grant for the aged people's home in North London, both of which are run under its management.

It was pointed out at the meeting that although the organization has enjoyed 50 years of work in the city, it has but once before appealed to the city for financial help. That was five years ago, when the association received a grant of $50,000 from the city to assist in the enlargement of the Victoria home for incurables. The institutions are financed entirely through government grants and voluntary gifts and bequests.

$83,671.80 Handled.

According to the treasurer's report, presented by Miss Christine McIntosh, the total amount of money which passed through the treasury last year was $83,671.80.

The expenditure in connection with the home for aged people last year amounted to $21,930.23, the cost per patient per day being $1.20, a decrease of $1.20 in 1974 to $1.00. This was due to the fact that improvements made at the home this year were less costly than the improvements necessary last year.

The Victoria home expenditure amounted to $49,510.50, the cost per patient per day being $1.20, a decrease of 12 cents a day over last year. In both homes there is great need for extension. The new wing, which is just being completed in connection with the Victoria home for incurables, will be opened in about two weeks.

Is Already Filled.

The actual opening of the wing, accommodating 30 more patients, will see it filled, however. Almost two wards will be emptied from Victoria hospital, patients being kept there for some time on account of lack of accommodation at the Victoria home. Many applicants have been received from different parts throughout the district. The home for aged people is also overcrowded and an addition is badly needed there.

The aim of the association now is to build a second wing on the Victoria home and to build an extension to the aged people's home, should the bylaws go through which are to be put to the people of London next December.

Miss Little, superintendent of the aged people's home, and Miss Laura Griffin, superintendent of the Victoria home for incurables, gave excellent reports of the work which is being carried on in both institutions. Miss Griffin made the suggestion that annual reports of the work be printed and distributed in the district. This suggestion was carried by the meeting. Other excellent reports of the work were given by the different conveners.

Elect Officers.

The election of officers featured the meeting. Mrs. C. B. Hunt being again returned as president, Miss Jennie Moore, Mrs. John Currie and Mrs. William Lamb as vice-presidents, and Miss Christine McIntosh as secretary-treasurer.

The board of directors includes Mrs. C. B. Hunt, Mrs. D. S. Perrin, Mrs. John Currie, Mrs. William Lamb, Mrs. E. F. Brighton, Mrs. P. L. Brighton, Mrs. Jeffrey Hale, Mrs. Joseph Marshall, Mrs. Max Lermer, Mrs. Cummings, Mrs. J. K. McDermid, Mrs. John Hyatt, Mrs. Bickell, Mrs. R. W. Travers, Mrs. W. E. Kelly, Mrs. Henry Meek, Mrs. C. J. Burns, Mrs. S. J. Moore, Miss C. Cannell, Miss Emery, Mrs. J. B. Bowen, Mrs. Mayer and Mrs. W. E. Bateson.

At the close of the meeting tea was served by Miss Griffin and her staff.

HYDE AULD WILL VISIT MUSIC CLUB

Distinguished New York Baritone To Sing in London on Monday.

A very interesting concert is promised by the Women's music club for Monday evening next, when the visiting artists will be Hyde Auld of New York, distinguished young Canadian baritone, and Miss Flora Matheson, talented Toronto violinist. Miss Lela Ward of Guelph will act as accompanist. Mr. Auld made his debut in New York last season where he had a most flattering reception from critics and lay audiences.

Like Edward Johnson of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Mr. Hyde Auld has his home in Guelph. It was during the painful and weary process of recuperation from wounds received during the late war that Mr. Auld began to study music as an antidote to shattered nerves.

It quickly became a serious interest with him and he determined to make it his life work. Mr. Auld made his debut in New York last April, and is returning there again shortly.

TRAFALGAR MOTHERS' CLUB

A Halloween tea and sale of home-cooking is being arranged by the Trafalgar Mothers' club for Saturday afternoon, October 31, at the kindergarten of the school. It is planned to have real food, especially for the children, than to buy these fancy packages which, without milk, are hardly foods at all. Certainly you would.

FEED YOUR CHILDREN UPON GHOST CEREALS

If you will, but a farmer would laugh at you if you told him to feed them to his live stock, for he would know that live stock will soon die if fed upon them exclusively. Yet your children have not half the resistance of horses and cows. Then why feed them foods that will kill horses and cows?

Ghost cereals is the name science applies to certain substantial cereal foods whose chief claim for your attention is flavor and ease of eating. Now would you not like to buy real foods, especially for your children, than to buy these fancy packages which, without milk, are hardly foods at all? Certainly you would.

Well, Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal is precisely such a real food. Science has proved it is the darker, rougher parts of the grains that nourish and build sound and vital health. Roman Meal has the dark parts of three whole grains with bran, used in proportions to make a balanced human food. Beef contains 522 units to the pound; Roman Meal contains over 1,600 food units to the pound. Prevents indigestion, positively relieves constipation. A truly wonderful food. You ought to try Roman Meal. At grocers.—Adv.

WORTLEY CADETS ARE GIVEN FLAG

Interesting Ceremony Takes Place at School—Mrs. Carnie Makes Presentation.

An interesting ceremony took place at the Wortley road public school this morning, when the Trafalgar chapter, I. O. O. E., presented the cadet corps of the school with a beautiful silken Union Jack.

The pupils assembled in the upper hall shortly after the opening of morning school. A space was reserved at the front for the cadets, who marched into position and lined up before the speakers. Two verses of God's Word were sung, followed by a verse of The Maple Leaf and O Canada. Several hundred heads were reverently bowed while Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

The principal of the school, E. Wyatt, then introduced Mrs. T. Carnie, who, in an appropriate speech, handed over the flag to Captain Maier of the cadet corps. Before receiving the flag, Captain Maier addressed his company, and the Union Jack was saluted. He took the flag from Mrs. Carnie immediately afterwards, and in a very nice speech expressed the thanks of the corps for the gift.

The principal G. A. Wheable was also present and delivered a very fine address to the boys on "Our Duty to the Flag." It was not only inspiring but instructive. Three lusty cheers were then given for the Trafalgar chapter, I. O. O. E.

THIS AUTUMN HAS LOVELY FABRICS

Fur and Lace Are Popular For Trimming—Velvet Hats Taken For Granted.

By ALICE LAMONT. Special to The Advertiser. Copyright.

New York, Oct. 28.—The beauty of the fabrics chosen has done as much as the designs originated to make this autumn a bright spot in the fashion year. Gleaming metallic brocades, supple velvets and shimmering satins are being used even for daytime frocks.

The flaring lines of these frocks frequently are terminated by a trim of velvet or fur. The use of draperies, fur now is treated by designers exactly as if it were a fabric. Some of the new fur coats seen in the window displays of the city are made of velvet or fur.

LIBERAL WOMEN CLOSE CAMPAIGN

Complete Election Activities by Driving Voters To Polls.

The members of the London Women's Liberal association have just completed a very strenuous election campaign. Perhaps never in the history of London politics have the women of Liberal convictions worked so energetically or so wholeheartedly as they did in the contest just ended.

Mrs. Donald McLean, the president, was backed by a fine working committee. And, no matter which way the election goes today, they will have the feeling of a task well done.

The final work of the women is being done today, when they are acting as agents of the party at different polling booths, and are driving cars to take voters to the polls.

Matrons Announce Gay Festivities Will Be in Order On All Hallow Eve.

FUN APLENTY

A group of merry children, cheeks aflame and wide-eyed, chattered merrily on a street corner following school the other day. It was a sort of secretive meeting, at which everyone was most excited over the topic under discussion—Halloween. Now several were going to masquerade parties, and the others were simply going to roam the streets in disguise. Yet all were keenly on tiptoe with the thought of Saturday night.

So it set me a-thinking of the little people in the various shelters in the city, and so I got me busy and inquired of the matrons if the witches, ghosts, goblins and black cats would be admitted within the portals of their various institutions in the city.

Bath Night Interference. Indeed they will be. None of the home youngsters in the city will be lacking of fun on the festive night of October 31. In every home where something is being done to entertain the children. The only sad fate of some is the fact that Halloween and bath night come on the same date, so it has been found more convenient in some cases to have a frolic on Friday night.

Starting with the Protestant Cyprian home, I discovered from "Mum" that a real good time, which is an annual event, was being arranged. Not only will they dress up, but, following a merry chase about the spacious grounds, they will have a treat of maple cream and duck for apples amid the guest of decorations of pumpkins, black witches and black cats.

Will Have Visitors. There will be some 55 children to enjoy the fun, and also about 100 young people, not counting interested people in the neighborhood who might plan to pay a visit that evening.

Next I made an investigation of the Roman Catholic home in South London. The same plans were reported, and it is expected that many persons in that part of the city will drop in on the tiny folk and enjoy with them All Hallow's Eve.

It was learned from the Ronald Gray Home that a double feast of pleasure was in view. Tonight the residents are to be entertained by a church society, while tomorrow night they are invited to St. Andrew's United church to be entertained by one of the groups there.

Fun For Sick Kiddies. Even the sick kiddies, who are at the present time at the Sick Children's hospital, will have an evening of fun. Before it is time for lights out and quiet on Saturday night games will be enjoyed by those well enough to be up and around, while some still confined to their beds, will enjoy looking on and eating some of the goodies.

Last, but not least, the sisters at Mount St. Joseph were questioned, and they let me in on their plans. Halloween is an annual event at this residence for children, and besides a masquerade and games, a short program is being given in the form of a concert.

Now older folk, after reading this summary of what is afoot, and ghosts and goblins and cats can do for the very young people, don't you just wish that some mischievous Halloween spirit would be kind enough to make you a child again for Saturday night (or Friday night if a lot of baths are in order in the family)?

WOMEN and THE HOME

VELVET SHAWL IS LATEST NOVELTY

Since Prince of Wales Arrived Home, London Has Been Tanguing.

By AILEEN LAMONT.
Special to The Advertiser.
New York, Oct. 28.—The perfectly proportioned figure is a rarity. Designers have come to recognize that fact. As a result the bolero effects, while still popular, and fashionable, have been modified. Instead of present straight, cut-off lines, which are so trying, the bolero effect is confined to the back or sides, while the tailored effect, with its long lines, is preserved in front.

"The little old gray shawl," renowned in song and story, is out. Mothers and daughters now are wearing velvet shawls if they are up to the minute. The velvet shawls are long and wide, silk fringed like the Italian variety in the same shade which harmonizes with the frock and lined with contrasting silk.

Ever since the Prince of Wales got home from Argentina, London has been tanguing. For some unknown reason the feminine dancers have selected jeweled head-dresses to do it in. The jewels are of tremendous size, but they are far from real. If they were, not a hold-up man or burglar would be left in the United States. The "diamonds," rubies and emeralds are synthetic, and one head-dress carries as much glass posed on its satin background as an 1870 chandelier.

Are the new evening gowns low-necked? Surely, some of them in four places. The favorite décolleté is of a broad V-shape. It opens fairly low in front, extremely low in back, and strikes a happy medium under each arm. The openings are divided from each other by the fairly broad shoulder straps of the same material as the dress.

SMOKING OUTSTANDING AS EMPLOYEES' DEFECT

E. E. Reid Addresses Entrance Pupils of Trafalgar School On Insurance.

Three outstanding defects in the young men and women were given by E. E. Reid, manager of the London Life Insurance Co., in an address to the pupils of the principal's class of the Trafalgar school yesterday. Foremost among them was smoking, and by his statement emphatically that he would not employ a man who he knew to have been a smoker during his juvenile period. He claimed that the boy who smoked lacked the mental and physical stamina that was so necessary in making a success of his work.

"I have no use for the boy who smokes, and no respect for the girls who smoke," he said.

Have Wrong Attitude.

The other defects included the wrong attitude of the employee toward the employer, and by his statement, he stated, "They were also lacking in courtesy toward customers. Then he said that poor penmanship was a great drawback."

Mr. Reid spoke of the scholars on "The Value of Life Insurance." His address was but one in a series of talks being given by business men of the city to L. D. McCamus' class at the Trafalgar school.

He discussed the endowment policy, its advantages, and also spoke of the value of carrying some amount of whole life insurance, stating that the latter was a patriotic duty as well as a favor to one's relatives.

Theory of Probability.

An amusing instance in his address was his explanation of the theory of probability. He gave a new coin to one of the boys, and in the first eight flips the tail was turned up, while in the last four was heads. Mr. Reid explained that if the flipping were kept up long enough it would turn out to be 50 per cent heads and 50 per cent tails, according to the law of averages. He brought the idea into insurance through an explanation of the company's tables of possibilities of death at certain ages, and showed how, by this process, premiums were decided. He also gave blackboard illustrations.

He stated that the young man coming into the employ of any company with certain amount of insurance rose in the employer's estimation. He also pointed out that insurance aided business transactions, and that a policy had a loan value.

The young ladies of the Gofforth missionary auxiliary of the North St. James' Presbyterian church met in the church hall at 6:30 o'clock on Monday evening, where they partook of a most enjoyable supper, planned and prepared by a number of the girls. After supper the scripture lesson was read from Luke vii. The remainder of the evening was given up to sewing and planning the work for the next meeting.

It was the occasion of a party in honor of Mrs. Lewis, who is leaving for the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis for England, where they expect to spend the winter months. They sailed early in November.

Miss Roselle Furanna, Wellington street north, was the hostess at a dinner party on Tuesday evening, given in honor of Miss Nellie Forbes, a bride-elect, who was married on a bride-elect was presented with half a dozen cut-glass sherbet glasses, the gift of the hostess.

Mrs. Ray Lawson entertained at a delightfully arranged luncheon at a Woodbine yesterday for Mrs. Fred Sorenson of Paris, France, a much-feted visitor in town. An interesting fact was that all the guests, including Mrs. Sorenson, had at some time been entertained by Mrs. Sorenson at her charming chateau at St. Cloud, near Paris. Madame-Linet, mums were arranged down the length of the luncheon table and quaint little corsage bouquets of mums were used as favors.

The J. J. Pals arranged a delightful evening of euchre at the home of Mrs. Fred Vouden, Wilson avenue, on Tuesday evening, in aid of their club work. Six tables were in play, and the lovely prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. Wheatley, while Mr. Vouden and Mr. A. Biggs were awarded the consolation prize. Following the games dancing was enjoyed and dainty refreshments were served. The conveners of the successful affair were Miss Kathleen Adams, Mrs. Minnie Palmer and Miss Betty Cushman.

Mrs. Cameron Watcher presided at the organ, and during the singing of the register Miss Irene Wais sang "Bridal Dawn." The ushers were Messrs. Elliott Shipley and Teller Wais.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wais left on a motor trip to Detroit, Cleveland and Niagara Falls, the bride and groom being accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Wais, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Reynolds attended the bride couple.

The bride wore a smart navy suit and becoming small hat fashioned of colored velvet leaves, and also wore a fox fur. Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Brown left on a wedding trip to Montreal and other eastern points. On their return they will reside on Oxford street.

It seemed to John Goodheart as though the end of all things yawned before him that day.

He awoke with a depression which weighed on him as literally as a burden yoked to his shoulders. He wheeled the Wanderer to the buoy as a man will in a daze. He was long struggling against an intangible thing; so weary that he found no comfort at all in his lake, in handling his boat.

The lift was not large. The ice formed more thickly than it had before, and Ezra, turning a corner from the lake, looked at him, and said: "Not much longer. It's about the end of things for another year."

Why Ezra said that John did not know; nor did he speculate. The end of a fishing season, the end of a year, the end of a struggle.

Some weakness in him—for there is weakness in all strong men—covered by his duty as a ruthless struggle to come to the surface. He wanted to quit. He wished for some unavoidable circumstance which would take him away from the lake where he might rest . . . rest forever.

The thought obsessed him as, with fresh twice in the last afternoon. To end the whole tragic mess by going to rest beneath those heaving seas: that was what he wanted.

But at this time his subconsciousness had been at work with wheel and engine-room signal. All the way to his course, and from time to time his clear, steady eye roved the water between them and the gray horizon, because, weary and beaten out, he was, John Goodheart was a sailor, at the wheel of his craft, responsible for her place and direction.

He came out of that queer lethargy with a jolt. They were within minutes of the entrance to the channel, and he knew that unless he could have been there lay in the smother of froth off Summer Island.

He strained his eyes and then, when he saw the light, he knew that he was to remove the handicap of imperfect glass from his vision. For a time he held there, and then, one hand on the wheel, took the marine glasses from their box and levelled them on the object.

He stood rigid, then turned to the men at the dressing tables below him and said: "Cap'n Nedham!"

There was excitement in his voice and he spoke up quickly. "Yes, John?"

He rose at the curt gesture of the other's head, stuck the pipe in his belt, and came to the door.

"Take a look yonder. Just inside the surf and in a line with the hemlock," he called to the pilot.

Goodheart thrust the glasses into his hand.

Ezra steadied himself against the bulkhead and looked. John heard his breath catch and when the old man turned his face upward to his wheelman the lips were shut in a tight smile.

"Somebody went on," he said, grimly.

By then the other men had left the deck, and the old man, leaning on the rail, straining their eyes. Tense questions came from them.

"What do you make out?" John asked.

"Nobody I know; it must be—"

Goodheart snatched the glasses and muttered: "Hold the wheel a minute. My eyes are pretty good."

He dropped down to the deck, leaned against the rail to steady himself, and looked. None spoke while he took that long look and none asked questions when he turned to them with a light that puzzled them.

"The Brothers," he said, flatly. "They're on the housing gone. Somebody just now missed going overboard."

Before Ezra replied he raised his hand to the whistle cord and the voice of the Wanderer roared out across the sea.

Then he put the wheel over. The three men bore the skiff toward the channel and shelter and bore down, straight toward the latter of frustrated seas.

McNab was out of his engine-room. The rest of the crew, passing the glass from hand to hand, were looking, were uttering short, sharp exclamations in strange, unnatural voices.

"What's your plan?" John asked Ezra, as he joined him.

"The old man shook his head. "We'll edge in for a better look. John, Meby it's all we can do—unless the boys are pretty good at prayer."

"Can't run in to 'em. We couldn't get within two hundred feet," said John, gloomily. "We can't leave a line. Any chance from the short side?"

Ezra shook his head. "Not one in ten million. You'd never get a boat from the island to 'em, and if you did you'd swamp going back, and a man in that water, among those rocks, wouldn't last—"

Under close speed the tug moved in, closer and closer to that fringe of frost-white water, flecked by the black protruding rock, and then, as close to the shallows as he dared go, Ezra swung her about, rolling mightily, and with just enough speed to hold her into the seas, brought her up.

Outside, John Goodheart looked through the glasses again.

He had been right about the identity of the men. He had been right on his guess that little Will had all but been washed overboard. The wrecked craft was filled with water, and every man who rolled over her tore mightily at the three lives clinging there.

He saw that Will was dead, clinging to the rail with his head between his forearms. Willie was little better off, it appeared, for only his head and shoulders were visible. But Will stood behind them, exposed to view from his waist up, crawling line through his hands, lashing it about Will, making it fast to a diver's up-right timber that had once been part of the snug housing. MINYRE & DOMRE
LEAD AT TORONTO

Moderate Activity Develops in Smelters, Twin City and Canadian Canneries.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Oct. 28.—The Toronto stock exchange this morning in its short session dealt almost wholly with Minyre and Dome, though some activity developed also in Smelters, Twin City and Canadian Canneries. Very little business on the whole was transacted, the exchange adjourning at noon on account of the polling in the dominion elections. Some clearing of stock was done down 15 cents during the session, closing at $16.25, a gain of 25 cents. Minyre and Dome, which had been in a point and a half to 100, fell 10 cents. Smelters was strong, advancing a point and a half to 100. Twin City lost three-quarters at 65 1/2 and Canadian Canneries a quarter. Brazilian closed at an eighth.

MONTREAL TONE

governments.

While the liability resulting from the exhibition at Wembley is obviously heavy, the financial situation might easily have been worse than it is. The loss in the first year of the exhibition was £1,800,000, but the loss this year will be considerably less than this.

The exhibition closes this Saturday.
