HONORARY EDITOR ASKED TO BE HONORARY CHANCELLOR OF UNB

Don Fowler . . . Candidate For Prexy

Don Fowler came to UNB from Nagatuck, Conn., in the fall of 1950. Since that time Don has been very active in student affairs. His student activities consist of: two years on the SRC as class rep., Treasurer of the Forestry Association, President of the Junior class, treasurer of the residence, president of the residence and vice-president of the AAA. Don also received an athletic distinction in swimming and football.

"Two years ago, when Bob Spurvey was running for SRC President, I asked him what his program would be. 'My program is I have no program,' he told me. I thought at the time this was a good program, and so did the rest of the campus, since they proceeded to elect him President by a heavy majority.

One of the President of the SRC's jobs is to preside over the meetings of the SRC. Not an easy task when something of a controversial nature is being debated, but one I have carried out in the past as President of the Residence and the Junior Class of '53, with some degree of success. The main thing is to avoid bias, and to give everyone a chance to have their say.

The second task of the President is to carry out those motions which have been passed by the SRC. This is the executive's most important task. My experience as the Treasurer of the Forestry Association, Treasurer of the Residence, and Vice-President of the Athletic Association has taught me that a good executive needs the kind of team-work I think I can provide.

The third task of the President of the SRC is to represent the students of UNB, both on and off the campus, and since the President of the SRC is an Hon. Member of all societies on the campus, he should take an interest in them all, and where possible offer advice and encouragement.

"I believe in this University we have as much freedom as is to be found on any campus in Canada. I think this is something to be proud of, something which can only be preserved by upholding the prestige of the SRC.

Ultimately, the SRC program will be decided upon by those delegates you elect. I can only promise to carry out their wishes in the speediest and most efficient manner."

LORD BEAVERBROOK ACCEPTS . . .

Fredericton (Special to the Brunswickan)—The honorary editor of the Brunswickan, Lord Beaverbrook, has been made Honorary Life Chancellor of the University of New Brunswick.

The appointment was made through a special Bill, introduced by Premier Fleming to the New Brunswick Legislature recently, which would amend the University of New Brunswick Act. The Premier gave the Bill first reading to give effect to the unique appointment.

Lord Beaverbrook is the former Chancellor of UNB, a position which he resigned this September due "to pressure of duties." The honour, which it is understood His Lordship has been pleased to accept, is in consideration of Lord Beaverbrook's great services to the Commonwealth in two world wars and of his help and generosity to the University and to New Brunswick generally covering a period of many years.

The Senate of the university has concurred unanimously in the decision to create this new office for Lord Beaverbrook.

The amendment to the Act was introduced by the Premier in the following words:

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I ask for leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to appoint the Right Honourable William Maxwell, Baron Beaverbrook, P.C., Honorary Chancellor of the University of New Brunswick."

Whereas Right Honourable William Maxwell, Baron Beaverbrook, P.C., has rendered great and devoted service in the sphere of public life, especially during two world wars, in the course of which the Commonwealth and Empire strove in the cause of freedom and to the triumph of which he greatly and materially contributed.

And Whereas, the said Lord Beaverbrook is a distinguished citizen of Canada, a native son of New Brunswick and a generous friend and benefactor of the University of New Brunswick;

Therefore, Her Majesty, by and with the consent of the Legislative Assembly of New Brunswick, enacts as follows:

(1) The Right Honourable William Maxwell, Baron Beaverbrook, P.C., is appointed Honorary Chancellor of the University of New Brunswick;

(2) The said Lord Beaverbrook shall be Honorary Chancellor of the University of New Brunswick during his lifetime;

(3) The Honorary Chancellor of the University of New Brunswick shall have all the rights, privileges and powers of Chancellor as set out in Chapter 14 of 1 Elizabeth II, 1952, the University of New Brunswick Act.

THE RT. HON. LORD BEAVERBROOK, P.C.

Premier Fleming, during the debate on the second reading of the Bill to create the position of Honorary Chancellor of the University of New Brunswick, said: "Following World War I Lord Beaverbrook entered the highly competitive field of British newspaper publication. In a short time he had built the London Daily Express into a newspaper with the largest circulation in the whole world. There, in the powerful steel and glass building which houses The Express, Lord Beaverbrook still spends some time each year directing his many enterprises. "The list of his gifts to institutions in this Province is a marvelous story of one of man's generosity. The Residence, the Gymnasium, the Bennett-Law Library, and other gifts to the University of New Brunswick have been of great benefit. The Lord Beaverbrook Scholarships are of the greatest assistance to our New Brunswick boys and girls. The establishment of the new Residence and Library in connection with the Law School in Saint John is another instance of service to our provincial community."

DARKNESS AT NOON PRESENTED TUESDAY FOR TWO DAY RUN

Fredericton (UNB)—The play, Darkness at Noon will be presented on the stage of the Fredericton High School Auditorium on the nights of the 9th and 10th of March, with curtain time at 8:30, and admission will be free to UNB students. This production is the biggest and most ambitious ever undertaken by the UNB Drama Society and promises to be a great success. The production of Sidney Kingsley's "Darkness at Noon" will be their New Brunswick Regional Drama Festival entry.

This play is a political melodrama dealing with the years following the revolution in Russia, when the old revolutionaries were slowly being replaced by the automatons of the New Regime. Rubashov, one of these old revolutionaries, is to be put out of the way by the conventional methods. He is jailed for various crimes he knows nothing about and is even charged with conspiracy and an attempt on the life of Number One, who is of course Joe Stalin, although his name is never mentioned outright. During his time in jail and preceding his final trial and execution he reflects over his past life in a series of flashbacks and we get glimpses of his political career as a valiant party member and the people and circumstances with whom he was connected.

Bill Reddin . . . Candidate For Prexy

The following is his speech and introduction: "Bill came to Canada six years ago and served for three years as a Radio Mechanic in the Canadian Army Signal Corps in which he now holds a Commission. He has been active in the Boy Scout movement for ten years and is, at present, the Assistant District Commissioner for Training in Fredericton District.

"He has taken a great interest in student affairs while at UNB and has been elected to fifteen executive positions including President, University Investment Syndicate, 2 years; Campus Co-ordinator, 2 years; assistant Manager and Manager of the Track Team; member of the AAA, 2 years; President of the Junior Class, and Vice-President of the Deating Society. Academically, Bill is taking Honours in Economics and Psychology and had been the recipient of three undergraduate scholarships.

"Bill says that though he gave his full platform during the address of the SRC presidential candidates held in the Memorial Hall yesterday, he would like to emphasize the following points:

"It is difficult for an SRC president to make any election promises concerning policy. I believe that the SRC president's main job is to see that the wishes of the students are satisfied and also to see that SRC meetings are properly managed, he himself being impartial.

"As far as my qualifications are concerned, I have attended council meetings for the last three years and have held fifteen executive positions, both athletic and non-athletic, during that time.

"On the campus at the moment, there is a persistent rumour that an SRC President should not have a platform. I believe that we have lamenable proofs every day before our eyes that this is quite wrong. A presidential candidate without a platform (formed by close association with student opinion) is attempting to assume the responsibility he is in no way prepared to accept. If the election of an SRC President is to be anything but a popularity contest, the President must have a platform, so that students may discover whether or not they agree with his views.

"Some say my program is too ambitious, but I am firmly convinced that it will succeed if I am elected."

Pete Trueman . . . Candidate For Prexy

The following consists of extracts from the election speech of Mr. Pete Trueman, Third Year Arts student, who is a contestant for the position of president of the SRC.

Pete, a resident of Ottawa, has been a member of the SRC for the last two years, and is Sports Editor of the Brunswickian.

"It is worse than useless for a prospective SRC president to outline specifically, in terms of names of student organizations, any major changes he wishes to bring about. This would be a direct violation of the SRC constitution, and of the generally accepted definition of a chairman or president. His function is to guide the council in the lines of argument not to push his own personal ideas. Theoretically then, all the sincere presidential candidates is entitled to say on his platform is: (1) I will chair meetings well and (2) I will do my utmost to maintain the constitution.

"Fellow students, if elected, I will chair the meetings of the SRC to the best of my ability. In my two years on the Council I have seen that I would have to be impartial in my chairmanship and do my utmost to see that debate is carried out in a logical, orderly manner. I would endeavour to make the Council 'stick to the point.' Secondly, I would strive to see that everything under SRC jurisdiction is run properly and according to constitution. Two years spent on the constitution committee of the SRC should help in this aspect of the job. These are only formal aspects of an SRC president's duties.

"One of the informal duties is the usually little stressed matter of arranging agendas. The president must use his discretion as to what should go before the Council. I assure you, that if elected, I will give this important aspect the attention it deserves. My policy, if elected, will be the policy of the Student's Representative Council; that is, the policy of the students who elected the individuals who make up that body. To this end, if elected, I would be pleased to hear complaints or criticisms from students who feel that any of our campus activities are not going the way they should, so that I might bring the facts to the attention of the Council."

FESTIVAL TROPHIES ARRIVE

Fredericton (UNB)—Two trophies which will be presented to the winner of the New Brunswick Regional Drama Festival in Fredericton on March 25, have arrived here from St. Joseph's University, last year's winner. Shown above holding the Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy is Bert Williams, left, chairman of the local Drama Festival committee and Alvin J. Shaw, of the University of New Brunswick Drama group, right, displays the Calvert Trophy for the best production. The Regional Festival takes place in Fredericton on March 23, 24 and 25, when four of New Brunswick's best plays compete for the trophies.

THE FEATURES SHEET

Any Forester who takes any labs out in the woodlot will tell you that wolves around Fredericton are getting bolder. Every afternoon, wolves can be seen on the College Hill road between here and Corbett's Brook. One even ventured into town last week and was seen on Church Street beside the College Field at 1.00 o'clock in the afternoon. The Intermediate Foresters tried to go closer to one one day to get a look at his hide, but the old wolf stuck up the fur on his back and growled at them, then took off down the road leaving them in a cloud of burning cement. You should have seen his tail.

Paul invented the doughnut with the assistance of his cook Flapjack Slim. To tell the whole truth it was a bit of an accident. Slim, who was strong on sourdough let the cauldron boil over. The liquid dough poured out on the 10 x 20 acre range in the main cookery; it flooded around the 5,000 gallon tea boiler. When the boiler had been removed, Paul pried the biscuit off the range . . . and rolled the doughnut out to the bush (where it was acclaimed a new confection worthy of the tradition of the camp). After that the cooks wheeled them out to the bush for lunch.—W. J. Gorman.

MY WISH

Oh, Lord, hear my prayer this very night
And this wish I have in my very heart
Please give me strength, wisdom and sight
To spread good and evil apart
And the day I walk out through the gate
When my debt to the world is paid
Will my friends be there, my hand to shake
Or be there with eyes of hate?
With strength I'll be able to face them
The wisdom to help bear the pain
And the sight to see the gate close
On me, a free man again.

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

Writer's Workshop

Captain Manson stood in the doorway of the outpost hospital and waited. He was bent over with pain and there were beads of sweat on his forehead. He supported himself against the frame of the door and called out, "Doc! Where are you?"

An elderly man appeared and replied, "Come in Sir. The Doctor is busy right now but he will be finished in a few minutes." He then noticed that Manson was suffering and he helped him to a chair. Manson crouched over and held his sides. He groaned, "Tell the Doctor that I am too sick to wait long."

Just then the doctor appeared and asked, "What seems to be your trouble Herb?" He didn't wait for an answer. Instead he motioned to the orderly and they helped the sick man into the next room. It didn't take the doctor long to recognize the sickness as appendicitis. He told Manson that he would have to operate immediately. The orderly started to arrange lights on the ceiling and the Doctor gave the patient an injection to ease the pain. Within half an hour everything was ready and Manson found himself looking up at the lights that would shine on the doctor's work.

Manson was given a few papers to sign and the Doctor asked, "What do you want done with yourself if this operation is not a success?" The sick man was so overwhelmed with the speed at which things were happening that he had to think for a few minutes before understanding the question. He replied in a half pleasant tone, with a weak smile on his lips, "Oh just bury me in the glacier for posterity, Doc."

He lay there and remembered the miseries of his last operation. He recalled the awful headaches and sickness when he recovered from the gas. He looked up at the Doctor and said, "You know Doc, I hate recovering from this darn gas. When I had my tonsils out I had headaches for a week after wards." He lay on the operating table and was now a serious man. He remembered that when he was under the ether before that he had no recollection of the passage of time. He knew now that when he did recover it would be almost immediately.

The doctor tested his heart and Manson asked, "How is it working Doc?" "It seems to be alright Herb", replied the doctor in a sort of doubting tone. "It doesn't make any difference anyway for we have to operate whether we like it or not."

Manson knew that his heart was bad but he said nothing. He began to worry and he noticed every movement of the orderly and the doctor. He was like the patient in the dentist's chair watching for the doctor to pick up the drill or needle that he dreaded. He found himself taking stalk of all of the furniture in the room. He stared at the white cabinets filled with medicine bottles. He blinked at the bright lights above him. He looked up at the ceiling and observed the nails in the blocks of white insulating board. He turned his head and saw the orderly preparing the mask to administer the gas to him and noticed a white cotton mask on the doctor's mouth and nose.

The orderly came to the head of the table and stood ready with a cylinder and mask. Manson was silent now and he knew that there was nothing he could do but leave himself in their hands. The doctor nodded to the orderly who applied his mask to the patient's mouth and nose. Manson counted and waited for the timeless sleep to come.

The next thing that he knew he was enveloped in a swirling mass of gray light. His head ached and there was no feeling in his arms and legs. When the twisting grayness cleared from his eyes, he looked around the room. What he saw puzzled him. He couldn't recognize anything about the room. The cabinets were no longer there and there were no doors . . . no windows. He couldn't tell how large or how small the room was. A feeling of loneliness and despair seized him. He knew that there were no rooms like this one on the outpost and he became very confused. He thought that he might have been flown out to civilization while unconscious, but this didn't explain the odd shape of the room. The lighting was indirect and the room had an atmosphere of limited space. It must have been built in the form of a globe for there were no corners. While he occupied himself with these mysteries he noticed a vertical crack appearing in the wall about ten feet from him. The wall opened silently and two tall thin men entered.

The first visitor approached him and asked in halting but clear English, "Well, how do you feel after your operation Mr. Manson?" Manson replied, "I'm all right, but I would like to know where I am and what you people are doing dressed in such odd outfits." "Where is the Doc?"

The visitors were delighted when he spoke for they smiled at one another and said something in a beautiful musical language. It was then that he noticed himself. He looked under the bedding that covered him. There were no bandages and only a very slight scar. He became more and more surprised as the minutes flew by.

The taller visitor smiled at him again and said, "I am Karl Niden and this is my assistant Dr. Sparr."

"How do you do gentlemen", replied Manson and then he asked, "Would you please tell me where I am and what I am doing in this queer place?"

The other visitor spoke, "You had better prepare yourself for a bit of a surprise Mr. Manson". He spoke in slow steady metallic English. "You see we found you in a glacier and we revived you. Apparently you had undergone an operation and your heart stopped. According to the letter which we found with you, you had requested to be enclosed in the ice if the operation was not a success."

Manson lay in silent disbelief and hoped that the illusion would pass, but when he opened them, the odd room, the tall strangers, were still there. He murmured, "Where is the Doc and the orderly?"

Prepare yourself for another surprise Mr. Manson," the taller man said, "You will never see them again for while you have been in the glacier, they have been dead for a thousand years."

Manson lay in silent disbelief. A thin smile appeared on his lips and he said, "Well gentlemen, now that I am out of the deep freeze, how are chances for seeing some of the world of 2954?"

The visitors replied together, "Gladly", and they led Manson into the future. — NORMAN PERT.

Residents awake!!! Observe what has happened in yonder kitchen. Food and a variety of it! And neatly labelled too. This week we have had TURKEY (a bird native to North America, two legs, one wishbone), BEEF (cow, animal with four legs, one tail, like Elsie), and LAMB (unclassified). Thanks, Mrs Neilson, for being a good sport.

The girls needn't worry about blackmail because the TAPE has been played so often to so many people that it is worn out.

An evil device in room 303 exploded of itself last week covering the occupants with broken glass and creating a mild uproar on the floor. All mention of the occurrence has been hushed up.

A new transportation system has been set up to augment the meagre supply of goodies at the Maggie Jean. All those willing to make a sacrifice for the cause may leave their scraps at room 216. The Astrological Society is sponsoring this venture.

The tensions of political intrigue can be felt in the air here. Campaign workers are feverishly hammering out publicity. Closeted discussions are going on everywhere and friendships are being broken and made overnight. Did someone say something about political lassitude on the campus? Vive La Revolution!

At last we've been found out! Men, the secret of the curfew is out. After all these years this blow to our masculine pride may be too much. As a matter of fact, there once was a time when a resident broke curfew. That was back in 1933 when the residence was new. One honourable soul found out that he had passed a whole set of exams and set out to celebrate in a manner fitting to a resident. He was not heard from for five weeks. At the beginning of the sixth week curfew time was drawing near and concern for the missing one was beginning to be felt. A meeting of the house was held and search parties were sent out. Four weeks later and, sad to relate three days after curfew time, our long lost resident was found in a hollow log in the wilds of York county.

BILLY FORD

Years ago in Northland Springtime,
When the ptarmigan were white,
White against the rocky hillsides,
Free from snow of winter night,
Out across the moss blue mountain,
Brothers with a gun in hand,
Hunted down the tall white rabbit,
And the white winged Ptarmigan.
'Mong the "Skimos and the huskies,
Lies a body wrapped in sand,
When the winds and snows of winter,
Roll across the cold Northland.
Sad they left him there in silence,
Far from sight of human eye,
Where the winds of Arctic winter,
Carry howling huskies' cries.
Tiny snow birds of the Northland,
Flutter in the crisp cold air,
Hunt the fleeting Arctic hare.
Now the clouds above the mountain,
Hide the light of polar star,
From a grave on Baffin Island,
From a grave so far so far.

We would like to extend congratulations to Marg Roach for winning the Maritime Ladies' Singles Badminton Championship. It must've been a wonderful trip! She easily defeated all her opponents, worthy as they may have been. Too bad, we couldn't have sent a doubles team but evidently the rest of the Co-eds showed little interest in a trip to Halifax. Silly people!

Friday night and Saturday, the swimming team ate their habitual meal of poached eggs and honey in preparation for the great event. Let's hope it did some good. At least it's better than pork. We hear that the boys in the residence aren't getting any more of that delectable dish, but it seems that the pig farm has been sent down to Charlotte Street.

Our clan is once more complete with the return of Sandra to the happy family. Welcome back kid—we missed you.

Two birthdays were gaily and enthusiastically celebrated last week. They were Beth's and Mary Jo's, both becoming eligible for a pension. The house was elaborately decorated and the food parcel from the "Good Kid's Club" was ravenously devoured.

As much as we hate to, we agree with the so-called authors of "Slabs and Edgings," that the Sigma Lambda Beta Rho is turning into a column strictly for Engineers. Granted you may be a bit prejudiced Diogenes, but have mercy. . . . We are eagerly awaiting news of the executive of the "Club."

The embarrassed talk around the residence lately seems to centre around the hidden microphone in the Ladies' Dressing Room at the pool. Judging from the numerous red faces, we gather that they said too much.

FLASH . . . Paul Courtice is writing a novel called "The Story of Itsy Bitsy Bugs," on which he elaborates on the strange behaviour of an upside down lady-bug. Author's note: all crop.

COLLEGE BALLAD (Traditional)

1. Oh, a student's life is full of strife;
 There's an awful lot to know.
 He struggles along without a wife
 And never has any dough.
 A professor's mind is a thing unkind,
 And exams—they shouldn't be,
 So if I slip up, I'll fill my cup
 And switch to Forestry.
 Chorus:
 The campus is my home,
 I never want to roam,
 I could sit for an age
 And hear a sage
 Lecturing to me.

2. From the day I enrol 'til I get my scroll
 It's a long and weary grind.
 There's comfort a bit in taking a nip
 And resting my weary mind.
 The tears I've shed o'er a cute
 co-ed
 Would drown U. N. T. D.
 Tho' I'll wonder why 'til the day I die

3. If you've ever been in Residence,
 I'm sure you will agree
 For food and rest it is the best
 That ever a lad did see.
 The rooms are neat; the matron
 sweet,
 The "rads" have a rosy glow,
 So the boys are rough and the
 Dean quite tough;
 They're the finest guys you'll know.

4. If your heart should burn with a yearn to learn,
 Come to University.
 There's football, fun, and alcohol,
 And trigonometry.
 Tho' the world's unkind, you will always find
 Alma Mater the best place,
 And with your degree, if it's
 B.Sc.
 You can face the human race.
 (To the tune of — "Blow Ye Winds, Hi-Ho!")

HIDE OR SEEK (From The Varsity)

High school students have been getting it in the neck recently. A headline in one paper read: "High School Grads Dull, Slangy"; a chemistry professor claimed high school students were unable to read "text books intelligently and extract the sense from a connected discourse"; remedial English courses at this University are getting astounding results.

The public statements have been directed against the English course primarily. But generally, it can be assumed that the attitude prevalent in the English courses probably runs over into the other courses.

It does little to blast away at the students if nothing basic is done about it. We feel that behind this passive attitude of the high school student is the mechanical system of promotion in the schools.

The exam system requires only one thing of the student: an ability to acquire bundles of information for purposes of passing examinations and securing grades and certificates. There is relatively no desire on the part of the student to perfect his courses of studies—to improve ad infinitum. "Pass the exam, that's okay," they say.

To stand up on the platform and rant and rave about the stupidity of the modern collegiate student is to dangerously ignore the serious crisis in education. To say "push 'em through, there's more coming" is to create the very conditions which are now up for criticism.

We are not blaming the teacher for the mess that is evident. He is doing his best. But we also cannot blame the student, for he is subject to pressures and attitudes over which he has little control. Perfection goes when mass education is not handled properly.

On the other hand, we find ourselves very critical of those teachers who are attempting to hide from the crisis by automatically blaming the students. Their energies would be better directed toward solving the crisis.

VOL. 85 FREDERICTON, N.B., MARCH 3rd, 1954 No. 21

On Passing . . .

It seems as if fate had stepped into the office of the staff of the Brunswickan last Wednesday.

On the same day that the Brunswickan announced that it was in its eighty-fifth year of publication, the Senate announced that the first editor of the Brunswickan has established sixteen scholarships at the University of New Brunswick.

Funds for the scholarships have been derived from the interest on the University Endowment Fund initiated 30 years ago by the late Sir George Foster "to aid in maintaining the institution which is the head of the educational system in the province."

Sir George Foster, after whom the scholarships are named, was a graduate of UNB and a distinguished Canadian statesman. He received his BA in 1868 and served his university as professor of Classics from 1873-1879. Born in Carleton County, Sir George represented King's County in the House of Commons in Ottawa from 1882-1896 and from 1896-1900, he was the York County representative in Ottawa.

In 1885, he served as Minister of Marine and Fisheries in Ottawa, and he was Minister of Finance for the Dominion in 1888. He was appointed to the Senate of Canada in 1921. After the First World War, Sir George represented Canada in Paris at the Versailles Peace Conference in 1919 and in 1920 he was chairman of the Canadian delegation to the first assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva. He died in Ottawa in 1931.

Sir George's interest in the University of New Brunswick prompted him to inaugurate an endowment fund in 1924 "both as a source of yearly revenue and a nucleus of what may from decade to decade grow with the growth of our people into adequate proportions."

On Voting . . .

Contrary to popular opinion that newspapers should not take an editorial stand of political nature when that paper has a monopoly, the Brunswickan will stick its neck out and defy the students.

We are stumping for a series of certain candidates in the coming Student Representative Council Elections. We will take an editorial stand in praise of these candidates and we will state that we think that they should win the coming elections.

Now all this may sound rather defiant in view of the code of honor that has been placed upon us but the trend of elections at the University of New Brunswick has been such that it needs pointing out and corrected.

The Brunswickan will go on record as unreservedly nominating those candidates that will do the job entrusted to them without the slightest regard to personal opinions. The Brunswickan will go on record as seconding those candidates who are mature enough to carry on the duties invested in them. The Brunswickan will go on record as endorsing those candidates who have shown that they have done admirable work for the student body as a whole in the past.

It is quite apparent that in the previous years of this august university, that several members sitting on the council were voted in on popularity tickets. They had no business sitting on the council when it was quite apparent that they did not know what the council was discussing, they did not speak for weeks on end and, even more than that they did not attend the council meetings unless it was an absolute necessity.

These men are of no use to any student. They might be your own personal friends and be very likeable people but, they just waste votes and time on the council.

Now is the time to vote, but when you vote, try and set your personal feelings aside and vote for those men who will do the job.

UNB SEVENTH CONSECUTIVE SWIM CHAMPS DALHOUSIE SWIMMERS SET NEW RECORDS

SPUDDERS HOOP CHAMPS UNB LOSE LAST TILTS

Sackville (CUP)—UNB's Red Devils toured in vain this past week-end, losing both their games, the first one in Sackville Friday night to the Mounties by an 83-66 score, and the second Saturday night in Charlottetown to the Saint Dunstan's University "Saints" 51-40. As a result of these games, SDU are this year's NB-PEI champions, and will now advance to meet the Nova Scotia champions, probably Saint Francis Xavier.

In the Mount Allison game, UNB's Gorman gave UNB the initial lead with six quick points, but the Mounties took over afterwards and retained the lead for the rest of the game. The Mounties wide open play proved more than equal to all UNB's attempts. Brannen, usual top scorer for UNB, was held to a very few points until the last quarter. He opened up in the last frame to boost his total for the night to 28, making him top scorer. Bain and Stairs were both fouled out of the game. White and McLennan were top men for the Mounties with 21 and 17 respectively and for UNB Gorman with 13 and Patterson with 10 placed 2nd and 3rd respectively for the Devils.

Travelling to Charlottetown the next day, the Devils fared no better at the hands of the Saint Dunstan University squad. The Saints employed an exceptionally tight defence to bottle up the UNB squad, and Mooney, of the Saints, kept UNB's Brannen down to a small 13 points. Milligan played a very good game for UNB, sinking layups and jumpshots from his favourite spot under the right-hand side of the Saints basket.

Lineups Sackville:
UNB: Brannen 28, Gorman 13, Patterson 10, Stairs 6, O'Brien 4, Milligan 2, McAlavy 2, Garland.

GIRLS' VARSITY N.B. HOOP CHAMPS

Fredericton (UNB)—The UNB Co-ed Varsity Basketball team posted a 48-42 victory over the highly rated Mt. Allison Co-ed squad at Sackville last Saturday to win the New Brunswick championship. Dot Terry of Mt. Allison was the games high scorer with 19 points but was closely followed by UNP's Lange with 18, her team mate Monro with 18, and UNB's Iris Bliss with 17.

The UNB team, fired by last week's narrow defeat here, took the lead early in the last half and held it until the game's finish. UNB suffered a blow in the last quarter as one of the sharp shooters of the Lange-Bliss duo, Lois Lange, left the game with her quota of technical fouls. In all 24 fouls were chalked up against UNB during the course of the game. In the foul shooting section Mt. A held a slight edge over UNB as they sank 10 out of a possible 25 and UNB only got 6 out of a possible 19.

Ronan, Cheeseman, Hayworth, Forbes.
Mt. A: Stewart 16, White 21, McLennan 17, Bain 12, Trafford 7, McEwan 3, Nicholson 4, Naylor 3, Daniels, Bishop.
Lineups Charlottetown:
UNB: Milligan 12, Brannen 13, Patterson 4, Cheeseman 2, Ronan 2, Hayworth 2, Stairs 3, Gorman, O'Brien, Garland, McAlavy, Forbes, SDU: Reardon 20, Slowey 10, Lalor, Taylor 11, Fisher, Mooney 3, Shea, Dorais 7.

STEWART, PETRIE, STARR, FOWLER SET RELAY RECORD

Diane Drew, Maritime Intercollegiate and Open Champion, does a swan dive as she competes in the diving event at the Maritime Intercollegiate Swim meet held here last Friday evening. In the background, the UNB Ladies Swim team locks on.

Fredericton (UNB)—The University of New Brunswick Men's Varsity Swim Team took the Maritime Intercollegiate Championships for the seventh year running as they scored 43 points in the meet held at the Lady Beaverbrook Pool last Friday. Dalhousie took second place with 30 points and Acadia brought up the rear with 26.

Although UNB took very few firsts in the meet they showed excellent teamwork as they continually took second and sometimes third place. The only record established in the meet was by UNB in the 400 yard men's relay event as the last man came in at the 4-12-5 second mark. Stewart, Petrie, Starr and Fowler made up the winning team.

VARSIITY SMEARED MT. A N.B. CHAMPS

Fredericton (UNB)—Last Saturday night at York Arena UNB hockey fans were greatly disappointed as Mount Allison shellacked UNB with a 9-0 score. Tom MacDougal and Roger Clarke were standouts for the victors, MacDougal scoring 3 goals and Clarke 2. This gave Mt. A a 15-1 victory in the total point series, by virtue of their 6-1 win over the Hillmen at Sackville on February 20th. Mount Allison will go on to play St. FX for the Maritime Championship.

In the first period the UNB Squad managed to hold the powerful Swampmen to two goals. The first came at 7:56 when N. Walker passed to Henderson, who got the puck into the UNB net. At 10:15 Dougherty got loose on a pass from Clarke and broke through the UNB defense to score. Thus at the end of the period Mt. A led UNB 2-0.

The second period saw a determined Mt. A squad take fire. At 5:34 MacDougal opened the Mt. A scoring break when he took a pass streaked in on Griffiths, and scored. Before the period was over, MacDougal had repeated this feat twice and team-mates Clarke, Cooper and Hind duplicated the performance. It was a dispirited UNB team that left the ice at the end of the period with a 7-0 score racked up against them. The third period saw UNB return to the ice with a little of their lost spark. One lone Mt. A goal was the result of UNB's pressure as they tried vainly to chop the Mt. A shut-out. The goal was scored at 17:26 when Clarke received a pass from two team-mates. The game ended with a 9-0 victory for the Mount Allison squad.

MOVE TO MOSCOW

Toronto (CUP)—History is being made here in the field of international chess and it is being made by a Toronto University student. Frank Anderson, IUC, has been very calmly matching chess skill with Chess Grand Master, Igor Bondarevski by cable between Toronto and Moscow.

In a surprise cablegram, Bondarevski accepted Anderson's terms of one game to be played under international rules, allowing forty moves in two and a half playing hours. This does not include
