is in Sight in Gigantic Quartz Ledge Discovered Two Years Ago

AND SINCE QUIETLY PROSPECTED

By Discoverer W. O. Smith of Bonanza Springs.

PROPERTY IS ON BONANZA

Between Placer Claims 73 and 80 Below and Extends Nearly to Mouth of Hunker.

Quartz, that mineral bearing rock which has been so long and eagerly sought by the miners of this country and upon which in the estimation of everyone depends the future of this camp, has at last been located in inexhaustible quantities. The discovery was made nearly three years ago and since that time prospecting and development work has been continued until today the ledges stand revealed to the naked eye for miles and miles.

The work has been carried on in a quiet, unostentatious manner and not a word of what has been doing has been given to the public.

Today the prospecting and surveying work stands complete, and the Nugget, through the courtesy of the locator, is enabled to give its readers and the general public the first full and complete account of the work done and the results accomplished.

The properties are situated on Bonanza creek, between 73 and 80 below discovery. It is not simply one ledge but a mineral belt in which five distinct ledges clearly defined have been uncovered and traced from a point several miles up the Yukon river to Hunker creek.

The ledges run parallel in an easterly direction while the stringers of which several have been located run westerly and southerly.

The first discovery of these ledges was made by Mr. W. O. Smith, who is well known as the owners of the mineral springs at 76 below on Bonanza.

The discovery was made in April of 1899 on what is now called the Corban claim, situated on Corban hill which lies between Thistle and Trail creeks on the right limit of Bonanza opposite 78 below discovery. In the early part of May the ledge was staked and the prospecting work was commenced. On this claim four shafts have been sunk on the hill. One on the top of the hill showing the apex of the ledge, two in the side of the hill farther down 400 feet apart showing the ledge to be at least that wide, and another farther down nearly 100 feet below the apex showing the ledge to be not less than 100 feet in depth. Prospect holes have also been sunk on the opposite side of the creek where the ledge is as clearly defined and as solidly formed. It has been uncovered in the creek bottom and traced back clear to the mouth of Bear creek, where the croppings were as distinct and the ledge has been as clearly shown as at any place where it has been uncovered. This result has only been accomplished after months and years of hard work by Mr. Smith, who has spent thousands of dollars besides his entire time since coming to this country in 1889 in discovering and prospecting these ledges. He has worked in the face of the most trying difficulties and been called the Quartz crank by the placer miners but he has persevered with the work and has now possession of what is, in the estimation of mining engineers and quartz miners, a number of whom have been shown over the property, the greatest and richest proposition in the country.

In the Corban group there are ten claims on all of which enough prospecting work has been done to show the ledges clearly defined and in large bodies.

The development work thus far done shows just the edge of large ore bodies which increase in value in the precious metals as the work goes farther. This is shown by the following assay which was made by the Selby Smelting Co., of San Francisco, of five samples; the first two and last two taken from near the surface and the third one taken at a depth of three feet under the capping of the ledge:

Sample	Gold.	Silver.	Total.
1-	$3.30	Trace	$3.30 From breast
2-	5.10	3.15	8.25 Fine goosie
3-	142.22	21.37	163.59 Quartz
4-	8.10	Trace	8.10 Mixed clay
5-	3.51	3.51	7.02 Tail loose carbon

This assay was made when the work was first commenced and is the only assay of the rock which has been made. Since that was taken a large amount of work has been done and the shaft from which the sample was taken has been run in 55 feet so that now an assay can be made which will give

BEDROCK CONTRACTS

Given a Jar by Late Decision From Justice Dugas.

Mr. Justice Dugas has recently rendered a decision which is of utmost importance to miners who are employed on bedrock and also to claim owners or laymen who hire men upon such conditions. It has long been considered that persons could be hired to work through the mining season and look for their pay at the cleanup and if the dumps failed to yield enough to liquidate the accumulated indebtedness, the unfortunate miner who had toiled hard for months had no further recourse. Such is true under certain conditions, but without those conditions the employer may still be held liable for the full amount due. The case in point upon which judgment has just been rendered is styled Milne vs. J. W. Willison, George Curran and John P. Curran, the defendants carrying on business under the name of Willison & Curran. The suit is for wages due plaintiff and also one Johnston and one Babcock whose claims were assigned to Milne. The defense set up is that the plaintiffs were under agreement to work on bedrock and as the claim upon which they were employed failed to yield sufficient to pay them, they are claimed to have no standing in a suit such as has been brought. The court holds that if such a contract is to be held good, the defendants must show their good faith by bringing out the yieldings of the claim as well as the expenses that have been incurred. A straight, accurate account should be kept which in this instance was not. A set off of $100 for goods furnished by defendants is allowed, judgment going for the balance as set out in plaintiff's statement of claim.

Ten Rounds Tonight.

Tonight Caribou, the as yet undefeated light weight pugilist will meet in a ten round go at the Old Savoy theater, his adversary being Ed Kelly, lately from Nome. Caribou deserves a house if for no other reason than as a mark of appreciation by the public for his manly and honest ambition to act squarely and sportsmanlike in every contest in which he has participated. Tonight the public will witness an exhibition which will be a game contest from start to finish as far as Caribou is concerned. Kelly is said to be equally as game and as he has stood for 12 rounds of fierce fighting with Dick Case his reputation for ability fully equals his opponent. The match will be worth witnessing.

The Louise will probably get away some time this evening. Her delay is due to her awaiting the arrival of the Victorian which has 120 tons of commissary supplies aboard for Fort Egbert.

MR. HAWKINS OLD CASE IN COURT

Figuring On Construction of Railroad Up Bonanza.

Mr. E. G. Hawkins, who has been general manager of the White Pass and Yukon route since its conception, arrived in Dawson last evening on the steamer Dawson. Mr. Hawkins confirms the report, previously published, of his resignation from the company and is now in Dawson working on a proposition for the construction of a railroad to the Forks and Eldorado creek. He will remain in Dawson several days during which time he will make a complete estimate of what is needed for the construction of such a road.

SMALLPOX SITUATION

Is Not at All Alarming and No Spread Is Feared.

The smallpox epidemic which Dawson has been threatened has not as yet reached any alarming proportions. Six cases have been reported and sent to the hospital at the mouth of Bonanza, three of which have been discharged as convalescent. The disease is in the same mild form as that of last year and is not considered to be dangerous.

The last case came in on the Yukoner last Wednesday and was immediately taken to the pesthouse for treatment. The steamer on her return trip will be thoroughly fumigated and the passengers will all have to undergo a rigid examination.

"All of the steamers," said Dr. McArthur the health officer, to a Nugget representative, "should be thoroughly examined and fumigated, but my time is so occupied at the present that without assistance it will be impossible for me to do it."

The authorities will doubtless take the matter in hand and see that every precaution is taken to prevent a further spreading of the dread disease.

Police Court.

Justice Magistrate McCauley's court this morning only two offenders against law and order were up for hearing. John Thomas had looked long and frequently upon the flowing bowl with the result that he became a disturbing actor on the stage of life. A fine of $5 and costs was imposed, the cash payment of which could be avoided by the performance of ten days hard labor.

Robt. Kromell was likewise charged with having been a disturber, but as the evidence was not of sufficient weight to convict, his case was dismissed.

OLD CASE IN COURT

Involving Property Long Ago Destroyed by Fire.

A case was settled in the territorial court this morning which has been on the docket for nearly two years and dates back to the palmy days of '98. Many will remember the old Hoffman house saloon and grill room, which before the fire occupied the space between the Monte Carlo theater and the old opera house. Shortly after the failure of Theodore Kruezer, who at that time was credited with a rating of several hundred thousand dollars, the premises by lease fell into the hands of Stevenson and Howard, who opened up a saloon and restaurant in a style befitting the location and environments. The former had no money, but was long in experience and bustling proclivities and against these Howard put up $11,000 in cash, the understanding being that Stevenson was to own one-third of the business as soon as the profits yielded were sufficient to pay back to Howard that percentage of the money he invested. Stevenson was to have no salary but was to devote his time and attention exclusively to the business. Howard was to own the remaining two-thirds. Shortly afterward, Howard sold out his interests to Williams, who subsequently became defendant in the suit which has just ended. Some time later the stock on hand inventoried $14,000, but in trade retained out it was worth $34,000. Williams soon tired of his investment, giving as his reason his fear of fire which might result in a total loss of everything. He made overtures to sell out to Stevenson, offering him his interest in the business for $12,000, which amount it was shown had been agreed upon between the two partners. The terms were $5000 cash down and the balance to be paid out of the daily profits, Williams to retain possession of the stock and only issue so much each day as had been paid for out of the previous day's sales. Stevenson could not raise the amount necessary for the cash payment, and it was reduced to $4000. The deal took place December 1 and during the time intervening between that date and the 10th, while Stevenson was trying to raise the $4000, it was shown that $2800 had been paid on the deferred account out of the profits of the business. On the 10th Williams for some reason or other took possession of the premises, locked the doors, closed up the business and turned Stevenson out doors with nothing whatever, on account of which the latter is now suing for $20,000 damages for breach of contract. His lordship holds in giving his opinion that Stevenson has good cause for action. A contract was in existence when it was abruptly broken off by Williams leaving Stevenson with nothing, clearly a breach of contract on the part of Williams. The court announced that he had had some difficulty in assessing the amount of damages but had decided to fix the sum at $5000 and costs. Another case similarly entitled which was said to be a sequence of the present case was also disposed of. After Stevenson had been dispossessed by Williams and steps were taken to wind up the business, the former considered his assistance necessary in the matter and collected small bills owing the firm amounting to $177 paying out of that sum several accounts presented by various tradesmen, but leaving a small balance in his hands. Williams, it is alleged, when he learned Stevenson had some of the firm's money in his possession at once had him arrested charged with theft. On the case coming on to trial it was dismissed, a suit for damages following very naturally. His lordship finds that Williams was too hasty in beginning criminal proceedings, a most serious matter to a man of good standing in the community, and condemns him to pay Stevenson $200 and costs as damages.

The Popular Line.

The popular little steamer Nora of the "Always-Get-There" line, arrived yesterday about two o'clock and sailed for Whitehorse at midnight with 110 passengers, leaving many who applied for passage behind for lack of accommodation. The Nora brought down 26 passengers and three cattle-laden barges. The Flora will be the next of the company's fleet to arrive. She will be in the forepart of next week with five barges in tow. Already passage for her return trip is being engaged. The little steamers with the girl's names are the winners in the race for popularity. Calderhead can explain the balance.

A Happy Event.

An interesting event is scheduled to take place upon the arrival of the steamer Yukoner. On board the boat is Mrs. Grace Willis who comes to gladden the heart and illuminate the fireside of Raymond Brumbaugh, of the Ames Mercantile Co.'s hardware department. The happy groom-to-be has busied himself of late with interviewing real estate agents, and rumors has it that a newly grown beard will be shaved off in honor of the approaching nuptials.

Making Haste Slowly.

Complaint is made that the progress towards completing the new school building is not so rapid as it might be or as the exigencies of the occasion require, as under existing conditions but little good can be accomplished in the way of schools, no matter how ardently the teachers may labor. Nothing should be allowed to stand in the way of rushing the new school building to completion.

COMING AND GOING.

Jas. McNamee and wife have gone outside for the winter.

The Will H. Isom is reported to be crossing the flats below Circle.

Superintendent Primrose is suffering from a mild attack of bronchitis.

Major and Mrs. J. T. Van Orsdale left on the Whitehorse yesterday for Seattle.

Mrs. Chas. Worden and Miss Worden have returned to San Francisco for the winter.

Constable Gardner from Fortymile and Constable Cudlip of the Forks detachment are in the city today.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Rutledge, well known on Gold Run, were passengers for the outside yesterday on the Whitehorse.

U. O. Hestwood, a prominent mine owner of Bonanza, accompanied by his wife and two children, left for the outside on the Whitehorse.

A splendid hot air furnace has recently been installed in the police canteen. It will heat the canteen, three store rooms and the warm storage cellar.

GOLDSTEIN-HOFFMAN

In Territorial Court About Note of Former for Gambling Debt

WHICH "UNCLE" BOUGHT AT DISCOUNT

Goldstein Repudiates Note as Not Collectable.

BEING UNLAWFUL PURPOSE

Evidence of Witnesses All in But Decision Not Yet Handed Down by Justice Dugas.

The suit of Hoffman against Moe and Goldstein was taken up yesterday before Mr. Justice Dugas, the case being concluded at today's session. The question involved is an old one—whether or not a gambling debt is collectable. Early last spring Charles Goldstein, a Front street-merchant happened in the Dominion saloon run by John Moe, the gambling department of which, however, was a separate and distinct institution managed by Tom Sparks. Goldstein was evidently a good customer at the gaming tables as it came out in evidence that Moe had told Sparks he would guarantee any play of Goldstein's up to $1000. Upon this occasion his luck was against him and it required but a short time before he was "in" $750. Sparks presented the tab to Moe who paid it. A few days later Moe secured a note from Goldstein for the amount and when it became due $250 was paid on account and a new note given for the balance. This, before it became due, Moe, being in need of some money, asked Sparks if he could discount it. The latter replied that he was not in position to do so but would see if he could not sell it. Sparks accordingly took the note to Uncle Hoffman who agreed to discount it for 10 per cent, providing Moe would indorse it. Moe indorsed, but claims he had a verbal understanding with Uncle that he was not to be held liable. The note in time became due, but as payment was refused suit for its collection was begun. It is understood that the defense is that the debt being a gambling debt it's payment can not be enforced. Hoffman on the stand swore when he discounted the paper he was not aware it represented money lost over the gaming table, which would resolve it simply into a commercial transaction. His lordship has reserved his opinion as to one point, but in view of his decision in the Moe-Picotte case, which is almost identical, it is generally believed that the maker of the note or his indorser will be compelled to liquidate.

SOMETHING SHOULD BE DONE.

Our "All-Canadian" contemporary, the News, formerly published in Tacoma, Wash., in its issue last night, made another one of its glorious blunders which have given that paper such a reputation in this community.

From the tone of recent News deliveries it has become apparent that the office of our contemporary has become over-populated and a desperate attempt is being made to discover a political berth for some of its superfluous talent. In the pursuit of this exceedingly laudable purpose the News has called most vociferously of late for federal representation, and in this connection asked last evening the following question which undoubtedly will send a thrill of terror down the spinal cords of every member of the present government.

"Does the government," demands our contemporary in stentorian tones, "honestly intend to introduce a bill giving representation to the people of this district at the next session of congress?"

"At the next session of congress," Well, well, that demand certainly will bring results. We have no doubt that when the leaders of the government at Ottawa learn that the News of Dawson has called for representation at the "next session of congress," they will all fall down in an ecstasy of fear. It may be that they will pass over the formality of an election and merely instruct the News office to send on the man who wants representation from the "next session of congress." Doubtless he would receive a cordial welcome at Ottawa. Anyone with so profound a knowledge of Canadian institutions would be an acquisition to a curio exhibit.

Yes, the "next session of congress" should certainly do something about the matter, if nothing more than to establish a kindergarten for the instruction of some of our aspiring journalistic prodigies in a few elementary geographical and historical facts.

THE STRIKE ENDED.

The great steel strike is at an end. A compromise has been reached between the amalgamated-association and the American Steel corporation by which the men have returned to work. The details of the settlement have not as yet been received but it is evident that the strikers have not attained the objects which they sought from their employers.

Shaffer has been unable to hold his men together, and long before the compromise was reached threats of returning to work at the company's terms were made, and some of these threats came from the executive council of the association.

Meanwhile the public has suffered the greatest inconvenience on account of the strike; all lines of business have been affected to a greater or less extent; the workmen themselves are losers to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars and no good has been accomplished for anyone. The strike, as a means of redressing labor grievances has not proven successful. The advantage always lies with the capitalist for the latter has powers of endurance which the laborer cannot hope to successfully combat. The upshot of the matter must be that some other means must be found by which the laborer may secure just treatment at the hands of his employer.

The history of the great strikes of the past quarter of a century does not show that they have proven a means of securing redress of grievances.

Emma Goldman, the anarchist woman whose teachings are alleged to have incited the assassin of President McKinley to his murderous work is under arrest. An attempt will be made to connect her directly with the crime. Whether or not the police are able to accomplish their object the woman should be kept in confinement as a menace to society. Her teachings alone are sufficiently criminal to warrant keeping her shut-up indefinitely.

Chinese Mourning.

If a son, on receiving information of the death of his father or mother, or a wife, suppresses such intelligence and omits to go into lawful mourning for the deceased, such neglect shall be punished with 60 blows and one year's banishment. If a son or wife enters into mourning in a lawful manner, but previous to the expiration of the term discards the mourning habit and, forgetful of the loss sustained, plays upon musical instruments or participates in festivities, the punishment shall amount for such offense to 80 blows.

Whoever on receiving information of the death of any other relative in the first degree than the above mentioned suppresses the notice of it and omits to mourn shall be punished with 80 blows; if previous to the expiration of the legal period of mourning for such relative any person eats away the mourning habit and resumes his wonted amusements, he shall be punished with 60 blows.

When any officer or other person in the employ of the government has received intelligence of the death of his father or mother, in consequence of which intelligence he is bound to retire from the office during the period of mourning, if, in order to avoid such retirement he falsely represents the deceased to have been his grandfather, grandmother, uncle, aunt or cousin, he shall suffer punishment of 100 blows; he be deposed from office and rendered incapable of again entering into the public service.—American Law Review.

How He Found Out.

He had been in town several days, had taken in pretty much all the places of interest and concluded that he would take a trip out on Woodward avenue car. On the car which he boarded were several students from a stammering school. Two of them were sitting in front of him and were very much absorbed in an animated conversation, talking in that long drawn out, monotonous voice and beating time at every syllable with the hand. One was saying: "I was—down—town—the—other—day—and—met—an—old—friend—"

"Did—you?" his friend answered in the same way.

Turning to a young man sitting next to him, the stranger inquired, "What sort of dum fools are those fellows?" when, much to his surprise, the young man straightened up and, getting his arm in action, only beating about 75 strokes a minute more than his friends were doing, said, "I—am—one—of—those—dum—fools—myself."

The stranger nearly fell off his seat, and every one in the car was on in a moment. He pushed the button, got off at the first corner and waited for the next car, wondering what sort of people he had bumped up against.—Detroit Free Press.

His Dilemma.

Stroller's Column.

It was in the late fall of 1898 and provisions, especially fresh meat, was very scarce. At that time Frank Slavin, Joe Boyle, Vincent White, Frank Rafael and one or two other men who then or have since made pretensions to scientific attainment in the line of pugilism, occupied a cabin at the mouth of Quartz. Bacon and beans constituted the chief article of diet and the would-be Herculean aggregation found themselves growing thinner every day. A consultation was held and the a piece of that caribou I see hanging out there?" he said one day to Chief White and the latter replied that as the caribou was all the fresh meat they had to last them until spring they were saving it.

"Save be—," said the lawyer, "I am going to have a piece of that caribou for my dinner."

White accommodated the guest and cooked a large chunk of the fresh meat. The visitor was hungry and did not notice that the others, while each had conclusion arrived at that fresh meat must be had at any price; but how to obtain it was the next question that confronted them. For use as pack animals Slavin had brought some burros to the country the previous year, one of which had propagated a colt which was then about six months old, fat, sleek and tender looking. The longing for fresh meat grew as the winter crept on and it was finally agreed that the burro colt was the only thing in sight that would satisfy the craving. It was slaughtered, dressed and hung up for a day or two at the end of which taken a piece of meat on his plate, was lifting up on bacon and beans, leaving the "caribou" untouched. The lawyer had his plate helped several times, complimented White on his cooking, said the caribou must have been a nice fat yearling and at the close of the meal complacently remarked that it was the best dinner he had put a tip over in the Klondike, and was profuse in his thanks to Frank Slavin who told him he would give him a few pounds of the meat to bring home with him.

"In fact," said Frank, "me and me time Vincent White, who was cook for the crowd, prepared what each man desired to make himself believe was a caribou stew, and they all sat down to the "big feed." The stew was passed and each man helped himself liberally and the feast was on.

Water came to Joe Boyle's eyes, he experienced a full sensation around the throat and had immediate business in the fresh air. Slavin said "Blast me bloomin' eyes if I can swally fricassee of mule," and both White and Rafael left the table hungry.

The balance of the dressed burro was left hanging outside on a limb and the old diet of bacon and beans was resumed and uncomplacingly eaten.

One day the camp had a visitor in the person of a Dawson lawyer who remained for some time and, as if by chance a guest, complained of the quality of grub served. "Why don't you cook bloody boarders like ain't much stuck on jackass meat."

Then the lawyer took in the situation. On his previous visit he remembered having seen the young burro and that time he had not seen it, but he realized that he had eaten several pounds of it. He would have liked to have thrashed every man in the crowd but after looking them over decided that the contract was too heavy. However, he hastily arose from the table, donned his coat and cap, struck out for Dawson and from that day to this has not spoken to a member of the donkey dinner party.

The other day the Stroller accompanied the police court reporter to a morning session of that cog of the governmental wheel and while there he came to the conclusion that the people who find themselves in police court lack that inventive genius that should enable them to give a feasible excuse for getting drunk. To get up and say: "Yes, your honor, I made a Poland China of myself" must be very humiliating to a man of refined sensibilities, and yet refined sensibilities are not worth two bits a rod to a man who stands in the prisoner's box alone with his dark brown tate. But this class of people appear to be pretty much the same all over the continent.

From a Florida exchange received this week the Stroller clipped the following, the gentleman referred to as Mayor Thomas, being one of his old and intimate friends:

There was rather a novel mayor's court Monday morning, when the first "victim" called happened to be a reverend gentleman, the Rev. W. H. Murray, who was arraigned before his honor upon a charge of being beastly intoxicated.

It was with a great deal of humiliation that the weak-kneed preacher stood before the bar of justice—a different kind of bar from that which caused his downfall—and faced the stern mayor upon this charge.

"The Rev. Mr. Murray," remarked this honor, "you have been brought into this court upon a charge of drunkenness. What have you got to say? Are you guilty or not guilty?"

The preacher arose, looked Mayor Thomas earnestly in the face and exclaimed:

"Mistah Thomas, I sho is guilty, but I'm mighty sorry, an' I want ter tell yer how it happen. Ver see I er gwine to Micanopy Sat'day night ter to preach de Word yistiday, an' been a little bad wide der 'flammaratory rheumatism I tought as er little gin would do me good. Lemme tell yer, Mistah Thomas, I pestered wid der viper, an' I got snake bit. I hope yer will be liniment wid me dis time, and I promise yer not to look at de wide agin."

"Well, Parson Murray, I am sorry for you for two reasons—first, because you disappointed your congregation at Micanopy, and second, because you 'pestered with the viper' and allowed it to bite you with such venomosity as to render you helpless and a disgrace to your profession. While it is with a deep regret I feel it my duty to fine you $10 and costs, or 30 days in the streets, and I hope this lesson will have a tendency to discourage you from 'pestering with the viper' in future."

There is a little lady on upper Bonanza who will hereafter have to be shown before she takes everything the miners tell her as gospel truth. The lady's husband is foreman of a rich claim. She is but a recent arrival from the outside and while an accomplished woman, knows absolutely nothing of the culinary art.

A few days ago the foreman and another man went hunting and when they returned they deposited upon the kitchen table a number of badly killed squirrels and snipe. On seeing the aggregation on the table the lady was struck with the idea of preparing a game pie for her husband and the boys and her first step was to consider how to get the skins off the squirrels and the feathers off the snipe. A member of the force happened in at that time and she took him into her confidence and asked for instructions about dressing the game, telling him that she was preparing a treat for her husband and the others.

The miner at once entered into the

STREET CAR TO TOPO CHICO

A Mexican Story of Beauty, Love and Strength

Which Would Be Incomplete Without the Appearance of the Mexican Highwayman.

Four miles above Monterey toward Topo Chico, uplifted from the dust and dead heat of the plain, lies the hacienda of Jose del Casa, the alcalde. His wife home sits ensconced in a wilderness of green, encircled by 5000 acres of vines and corn lands and billowing meadows that reach from edge to edge of the steep walled table-land of which his estate is the crown and glory.

Patricia, his only child, is, with close black eyes, hair like a storm cloud and the oval, luminous face of a Botticelli Madonna, had spent three years with the Ladies of the Sacred Heart in Paris. She had seen the boulevards and sniffed from afar the gallantry and gaiety of the French capital. Therefore she yearned and moped amid the desolate splendor of her Mexican home.

Have you ever seen the queer little street car line with its tandem of small brown mules that runs, or, rather, creeps, between the Hotel Hidalgo, on the plaza in Monterey, down through the narrow streets, away across the dusty fields, where sage and cactus, dry and gray, cover the rising plateaus with desolate monotony; out past the beehive hives of Casa's hacienda, which tower red and hot in the sun, to the opening canyon that leads to Topo Chico, the boiling spring, the health giving waters in whose fountain pool Aztec and Indian, peon and patrician, have sought and found health for a thousand years? This Topo Chico is the terminus of the little narrow gauge street car line that starts in Monterey. Its single car, with open seats running across the width of its seldom crowded. In the morning a few tourists bound for the baths smoke and idle through the tedious trip, but in the evening, when the summer sun sinks behind the green, cool shoulders of Del Casas, the lone car is always empty except for the driver or an errant shepherd returning from market in Monterey.

It was at this time in the evening that Patricia chose for a little jaunt on that queer little street car. With ancient Madre Anselma, her nurse when she was a romping child, her governess, maid and duenna by turns as the girl grew to womanhood Patricia would scuffle down the long stone stairway and in the purple shadow of the roadside thicket wait for that empty car to come droning out of the haze. Anselma neither spoke nor understood English, and so it was her wont to sit in the rear seat while the beautiful Patricia, her mantles now fallen from before her radiant face, would sit on the seat near the driver and urge or beseege him to send the little mules galloping.

The driver was a great, yellow haired giant, with blue eyes and a laughing mouth. For Patricia he would speed his queer little team till the car swayed like a boat on running billows and her delighted laughter fell upon his willing ears like the music of tinkling mandolins. As for Anselma, so long as the car was empty but for herself, she was content to sit in the rear seat, black, motionless, but alert, smoking her cigarettes, as Mexican women must not wonder what Patricia could have said to the big, fair Gringo to make him drive his mules so fast, to make him smile so benignantly!

Every summer evening till the chaparral lost its luster and the willows in the river bed began to scatter crackling leaves across the sands Patricia and her chaperon stole away to this desolate frolic on the street car till it became the event of the gay child's days and a habit even with the widowed woman who watched the harmless frolic.

One night as the blond American car driver was laughing and thrashing over the road with the laughing senorita at his elbow a horseman with his white powdered loomed across the narrow road. The mules hesitated, stopped, backed up in their trace. The driver put down brake and ceased to smile. He seized the reins, and Patricia lie down, and the enemy.

"Money or your life!" commanded the outlaw in good English. "You can have the box," roared the driver, "but if you rob the woman you mean fight."

The robber dismounted, boarded the car, and while Patricia and the old woman looked on he smashed in the money box with the butt of his rifle and pocketed the few pitiful centavos that jingled in the bottom. If Patricia had left the car, or drawn up her face, or even turned her face away, the robber might not have seen her. But the night was too much for him. The big American saw the flash of his eyes as he leveled his rifle, and at the same moment the switch bar swung above his head. The rifle cracked, the driver lurched over and fell in the dust by the road and the robber held out his hand to the woman. "Give me the diamonds!" he yelled.

She gave them without a word, then her watch and her ring, while the old woman, screaming like a harpy, clung to his rifle and cursed and prayed in incoherent Spanish. But the robber had no notion of harming them. He kicked the fallen driver as he ran toward his horse, and in another moment the clatter of hoof beats across the boulder strewn valley told them that he was gone.

It was nearly dusk now and, from the stairway a hundred yards off the voice of Jose del Casa could be heard calling Patricia. She paused a moment as she heard it, then leaped to the ground and bent over the insensible driver. With her small, brown hand she pushed away the yellow curls and bent her face low above his. For a moment old Anselma could have sworn that the girl was kissing his white face, but no, after all, she was only examining with tear wet eyes the facial signs of returning life. Then she unbuttoned the collar of his shirt, fumbled beneath its folds and, snatching away a cluster of trinkets that hung about his neck, thrust them hastily into her corsage.

Then old Del Casa and two of his rancheros came up. The wounded man was placed on a bench in his car. The mules were hitched to the other end and one of the rancheros drove them back to Monterey.

"Senorita, mio muchacha, what did you take from the Gringo? What was that you snatched from his neck? Tell me, pretty one, you did not rob him?" Patricia's smile came struggling through her tears.

"No, no, Mother Anselma," she murmured; "not so bad as that, but bad enough, too. You won't scold me, will you, mother?"

And she pulled from her bosom the poor car driver's cluster of trinkets. There were a little medal of the Virgin, a tiny amulet—the relic of Our Lady of Guadalupe—a stolen scapular and a golden locket.

"Look, mother, and forgive me," said Patricia as she opened the locket and displayed a miniature portrait of herself. "I gave it to him myself. I was afraid they might find it, and so—and so I robbed him of it."

"But you will not give it back, Patricia?" asked the scared and staring old woman.

"Yes, mother, I'll give it back to him, and more, too, mother. I'll give him that and more—everything—when he's well."

And old Anselma could only pray.—Chicago Record Herald.

CRUSHED BY TAXES

Is General Condition of People in Columbia.

Colon, Sept. 6, via Kingston, Sept. 8.—(Refused at Colon by the censor and forwarded by steamer to Kingston.)—Columbia's financial straits are extreme, and she is pushed to the last point to obtain funds. The Columbian paper peso is now worth less than three cents, and gold continues to depreciate. Seventy or eighty per cent of the people of the country sympathize with the revolution and are opposed to the present government largely, it is asserted, on account of the government's exaction of taxes and imposts and other vexatious efforts to raise money.

This financial distress, coupled with the extent of the revolution, which momentarily becomes more threatening, this being especially the case in the Venezuelan entanglement, it is asserted, constitutes the strongest reason why Columbia cannot go to war with Venezuela with any hope of success. The future contains no promise of financial betterment and the people become daily more burdened. Forced loans are common and their daily recurrence is expected.

Although the government's financial extremity is asserted to be continually increasing, it has not yet been authentically reported that the government has molested foreigners or attempted to effect forced loans from them. Many foreigners, however, believe the probability of such occurrence to be approaching, especially since the going into effect of the decree of July 18, which gives to minor officials full power to take any measure they may consider necessary to crush the rebellion and preserve the dignity of the country.

The gunboat Gen. Pizon, with Gen. Alban on board, is still cruising along the coast. Her presence is greatly needed at Boca del Toro to drive the rebels from their position on Provision island. Apparently no efforts are being made to use the gunboat effectively. At the same time Columbian officials talk to the effect that Columbia intends buying other similar craft.

Minor Columbian officials unite in blaming Venezuela for whatever conditions exist on the frontier. When the Liberals come into power they will, it is believed, find the country bankrupt and impoverished through maladministration. There is nothing to show conclusively that the Liberals are any better administrators than the present conservative government. They say the Liberals are as straitened financially as is the government.

All the Columbian export and import duties are payable in gold or local paper on a gold valuation. The present departmental and national paper money is without any guarantee whatever.

INHUMAN BROTHERS

Embezzled Money Contributed for Their Brother's Funeral.

Recent arrivals from Nome bring a tale of shocking depravity and neglect which transpired in that city this summer. James Wilson, well known in this city as one of the original proprietors of the Monte Carlo theatre, and brother of William and Ed Wilson, died in Nome last January. Prior to his death he expressed a desire to have his body shipped to his mother at the old home for burial and to accomplish this his partner, J. B. Miller, so it is said, contributed $1000 and the local lodge of Eagles $300 to defray the expenses. The money was turned over to Wilson's brothers, it being arranged that one of them should accompany the body to its final resting place. The corpse was placed in a coffin, boxed up and made ready for shipment and stored on the waterfront awaiting the arrival of the first boat in the spring. A week later the brothers made a trip to Teller and liking the situation so well concluded to invest the charity fund in a saloon business. They did so, and the body of their brother, to bury whom the money was given them, still lies in cold storage at Nome.

MASONIC CHARTER HERE

Lodge Room Consecrated and Dedicated Last Night.

Impressive Ceremonies Witnessed by 100 Members of Order—Officers Installed in Their Positions.

Dawson Lodge, No. 79, A. F. M. G. R. M., yesterday evening, was duly installed as a regular lodge, the charter having been received a few days ago, from Winnipeg. The Masonic hall on Mission street was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the attendance was all that could have been desired. Nearly 100 members were present to witness the impressive ceremonies attendant upon the consecration and dedication of the hall and the subsequent installation of officers at present occupying the different stations. The services were conducted by Mr. J. C. Cowan, right worshipful district deputy grand master and were as beautiful as they were impressive. The following officers were installed: Dr. C. H. Wells, W. M.; W. Y. Tukey, S. D.; Mr. Thompson, J. W.; J. A. Donald, sec.; Dr. A. Thompson, treas.; Mr. Turner, master of ceremonies; J. S. Cowan, chaplain; Frank Johnson, S. D.; Mr. Douglas, J. D.; J. A. Greene, I. G.; Dr. Casels, S. S.; Dr. Edwards, J. S.; and R. Fontaine, Tyler.

Following the installation light refreshments were served. Dawson chapter, No. 79 is in a most flourishing condition and enjoys the distinction of being the most northern Masonic body in the world.

One More Capias.
As the season advances the demand for capias seems to increase. Another was issued last night at the instance of R. H. Coutley against one Lindstrom, the amount involved being $146.75. Lindstrom left town on the last trip of the Ora and will be gathered in the police net when Whitehorse is reached.

Going Out Tonight.
Fred Terry will leave tonight for his old home in Port Townsend, Wash., where he will remain with his family until the latter part of the winter, returning to Dawson over the ice in March. Mr. Terry has been engaged in agriculture in the Klondike during the past season and made a handsome profit from the cultivation of oat hay. He first came to this country early in '98, this being his third trip out in that time.

Attention, Eagles.
Public notice is hereby given that the next meeting of Dawson Aerie, No. 50, P. O. E., will be held in the Aerie room on Sunday next at 3:30 p. m., instead of 8:30 p. m., as originally announced. This change is made in order that the members of Dawson Aerie may be enabled to attend the testimonial concert to be given on Sunday evening in the Standard theater in honor of brother Eddie O'Brien and his wife, and Sister Annie Mabel O'Brien, who are about to leave for the outside for the winter, the fact that Sister Annie O'Brien is one out of only two lady birds, is enough to insure the chivalrous attendance of every Eagle.

F. W. CLAYTON,
Worthy President, Dawson Aerie No. 50.
A. F. EDWARDS, M. D.,
Secretary.

Will Be Warm.
O'Brien, Jennings & O'Brien are to be tendered a testimonial next Sunday night at the Standard theater. The theatrical people of Dawson have all volunteered to appear and Eddie O'Brien is now arranging for the production. The O'Brien family are going to leave for the outside the following Monday consequently this will be their last appearance in Dawson.

It is a Stand-Off.
Notwithstanding the fact that every outgoing boat is loaded to her full capacity with passengers, the incoming boats are equally crowded and from now until the close of navigation there will probably be as many arrivals in as departures from Dawson. For the previous month or six weeks, however, the volume of travel has been toward the outside.

A Wrong Impression.
Our morning contemporary recently gave out the impression that Frank W. Clayton would be vice U. S. consul during the absence of Consul McCook who has gone outside for the winter. This is erroneous as Mr. H. Te Roller is vice U. S. consul, Mr. Clayton being only the clerk. Each man is thoroughly competent to fill his respective position.

The Wrestlers.
Tickets for preferred seats are now being sold in bunches at the New Savoy theater for the wrestling tournament which takes place Saturday night at the New Savoy theater. The match is exciting the greatest interest and no little speculation as to its possible outcome. Opinion seems to be equally divided as to the possible winner and in fact no one can safely pick the man even if he was assured of the superior skill and strength of his choice. For a large element of chance is introduced into the contest by drawing for holds, each man having a favorite style of wrestling which he may be unable to get an opportunity of using.

Should Be Made Treason.
Indianapolis, Sept. 8.—"An attempt on the president's life is a treason," says W. H. H. Miller, attorney-general under President Harrison.
"In my judgment," said Mr. Miller, "the attempted assassination of the president again suggests that in forming our criminal laws we have paid too little attention to protection of the government. As a general rule the law takes no more account of an assault upon the president than upon a private citizen."
"If, as all good people hope, the president shall survive this attack, the offense, if the laws of New York are as I suppose they are, is simply an assault with intent to commit murder. It seems to me they should be so framed as to take into account the president's public character—in short, that an attempt to take the life of the president should be deemed treason and be punished accordingly."

Suppressed in Chicago.
Chicago, Sept. 8.—There will be no more revolutionary speeches in public in Chicago if the police can prevent them. The edict has gone forth from Mayor Harrison and Superintendent of Police McNeill that such utterances must be stopped, and the latter has sent special orders to the commanding officers of the various districts to detail men to be in attendance at all meetings that are supposed to be of anarchistic origin, and to arrest the speakers if violent language is used.
From this time on anarchists will have to be temperate in language they use in this city if they do not wish to be thrown into jail.

Polish-Americans Protest.
New York, Sept. 8.—An indignation meeting attended by about 500 Poles, of whom it is estimated there are about 80,000 in New York City, was held today at the Church of St. Stanislaus, and bitter words of denunciation of Czolgosz and his crime were uttered, while the expression of sympathy for the president and those belonging to him was warm and universal. Doubt as to the nationality of the world be assassin were expressed, and it was decided to send a delegate to Cleveland and Toledo at once to look into his ancestry and to prove to the American people that he is not a Pole but a Russian by descent. That delegate will leave New York for the west tomorrow.

Anarchists at Cincinnati.
Cincinnati, O., Sept. 8.—The ratification of the band of anarchists which is supposed to have been responsible for the commission of the terrible tragedy at Buffalo Friday is believed to extend to this city. The local police have received a telegram from Chief Wilkie, of the federal secret service department, requesting the arrest here of E. Laux, 1430 Monroe street. The police claim to have the details of a former plot which was hatched here, and in which a Cincinnati man left here for Canton, O., the home of the president for the purpose of murder, but returned unable to fulfill his purpose. It is said that Emma Goldman visited here inognito recently. Secret service agents are expected here in a few days.

Anarchists Celebrate.
McKeesport, Pa., Sept. 8.—Two hundred anarchists celebrated President McKinley's assassination today at Guffey Hollow, a mining hamlet across the Youghiogheny river from Buena Vista. Beer, whiskey, speeches, songs and praises for Czolgosz were the order of the day. This is one of the largest anarchist groups in the country.
It was started and led by Garcia Ciampavilla, who now lives at Spring-valley, Ills., and edits the "Fire-brand," the anarchist organ. When Bresci assassinated King Humbert, Ciampavilla declared that McKinley would be the next victim of the anarchists' plots.

Declined to Express Regrets.
Chicago, Sept. 8.—Two thousand members of the Socialists voted down a resolution of regret for the attempted assassination of the president at a meeting in Bergmann's grove, Riverside, today.
The argument of those opposed to the resolution was that McKinley is the representative of the capitalist class, and thus his safety or danger are matters of no concern to socialists.

ALMOST KILLED

A Daring Act at Savoy Nearly Ends Fatally.

There was a rehearsal last night at the Savoy of the daring acrobats Mason and Edgerton which almost ended fatally for the former. The team is putting on an act which for dare-devil daring is not surpassed in any circus ring at any show. Mason has finished constructing an immense net which stretches from one end of the theater to the other and over this net the performers do their act. Last night Mason for the first time mounted the stand erected in the first balcony and catching the trapeze firmly in both hands essayed the swing for life.

This act is done by Mason swinging the entire length of the theater, turning a complete somersault in the air and catching the outstretched arms of his partner (a former pupil, Lily Edgerton) who is swinging from another trapeze. The swinging was accomplished and the turn made, but owing to the opposite trapeze not having impetus enough Mason missed the hold and was hurled up to the stage end of the netting, striking a wire stay and from there falling unconscious to the stage.

Mason was fortunately not seriously injured and this morning was again hard at work on his act. He says he will be perfect by tonight and will continue with even more hazardous feats.

Czolgosz in Chicago.
Chicago, Sept. 8.—If any further proof were needed that Leon Czolgosz was the guest of Chicago anarchists shortly before he went to Buffalo on his murderous mission against President McKinley, it was supplied today by three of the prisoners in the Chicago police station. They identified a photograph of Czolgosz as a picture of a man whom they saw at the home of Abraham Issak, 415 Carroll avenue, not longer ago than July 12. The eleven men and women who are avowed anarchists were formally booked tonight, on the charge of conspiracy to commit murder.

They will be taken before Justice Pringleville tomorrow morning for hearing. It is said that the prosecution will ask for a continuance of ten days, that the police may have more time for an investigation. This was admitted tonight by Capt. Collieran. "I am not prepared to say that a conspiracy to kill President McKinley was formed in Chicago," he said.

"The evidence in our possession has been turned over to the law department, and while we are ready to begin the hearing tomorrow, it is possible that the city prosecutor may want more time. In that event we will ask for a continuance."

Emma Goldman.
St. Louis, Sept. 8.—Emma Goldman, the anarchist lecturer who wrote the book that Czolgosz says inspired him to attempt to assassinate President McKinley at Buffalo, arrived in St. Louis Thursday night. She was in the city all day Friday, the day the president was shot. She stopped at No. 1351 South Thirteenth street, where she occupied a room until 7 o'clock Sunday evening. The police believe she departed later on the same evening for Chicago or Buffalo.

A woman of her description bought an order for a ticket to Chicago at a ticket shop opposite the union station early that evening, but subsequently the ticket was sold to another person. Whether she left the city or not, the police and the federal officers are making efforts to find her.

At Philadelphia.
Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—Four hundred Polish-Americans gathered in St. Laurentius Roman Catholic church today, passed resolution deploring the shooting of President McKinley and protested against the statements that the would-be assassin was connected with the Polish people in this country. Among those present were four Polish priests.

Separate telegrams of sympathy were sent to the president and Mrs. McKinley. Seventeen Polish-American socialists, it is claimed, were represented at the meeting.

A better idea of the true value of the ore. Another fact which indicates that the values increase with the depth of the ore is that the St. John mine which is located nearly a mile back of the Corbin on the same ledge shows in the croppings and in the edge of the ledge a much greater value than the mineral in the first claim. That the rock is all heavily mineralized is shown by reports which Mr. Smith made from samples taken from the different claims. The reports were made by placing the rock in the cook stove and leaving it there until the mineral had been separated from the rock. The stove used was a heavy sheet iron Yukon stove lined with asbestos which generates an intense heat. This rock, containing, as it does a large percentage of lead and other soft metals only requires, from the statement of an expert mineologist who was present at the time, a heat of 450 degrees, which was easily generated from the stove.

One report taken from a sample of the rock from the Charitable and St. John mine, weighing 18 pounds gave a result of 18 ounces of mineral which by the use of a testing stone showed lead, antimony, zinc and traces of tin. Another sample from the Corbin mine weighing five pounds returned in the same manner contained over three ounces of solid mineral which showed a larger trace of tin than the former.

Other reports were made from the other mines and ledges showing them all to be highly mineralized; but the value of the mineral cannot be estimated until proper assays are made. In the Corbin group there are ten claims, the names of which are the Corban, Charitable, Hopeful, Faithful, Hattie, Bonanza, Yuma, St. John, Lillian and Guy.

Interested with Mr. Smith in this group are Mrs. Smith, Capt. Jos. Green of the steamer Monarch, Capt. R. L. Purvis, Mrs. Dr. J. N. E. Brown, M. V. Garrison, Mrs. R. E. Miles, Mr. Roul Rinfret, Lars, Neiland, Capt. Wm. Galpin, John De Fries of Nome, Mr. George Vogel and others.

On Ophir hill adjoining Corban hill and bounded by the other ledges upon Gold creeks are the other ledges upon which work has been done and the ledges traced the same distance as on Corban hill and which shows on Hauker at the Cliff house. These ledges are of the same formation as the others and contain the same mineral properties. The claims on this hill have also been staked and surveyed but the names of the holders have not as yet been given for publication.
The ore contained in these properties is of a low grade and can only be worked profitably by means of a smelter and will take large capital to develop it. The rock is so highly mineralized and is in such immense quantities that it cannot fail to receive the recognition of capitalists and is sure to prove a great producer. Mr. Smith intends leaving for the outside between the 5th and 10th of next month and will go straight to the Grant Smelting Co., of Denver, Colorado, whose equipment for assaying and mill testing is the most complete in the country, taking with him samples from all the claims, together with the reports of the expert. He will have complete tests made of the rock and will then positively know the value of the ledge. He says with the showing he expects to make that he will have no difficulty in making arrangements for a smelting plant to be brought in and put in operation here.

A Nugget representative visited Mr. Smith yesterday afternoon and was taken over the hills and shown the work done on the claims and found everything just as Mr. Smith had said and as is described in this article.

The quartz is there in immense quantities and within easy access to Dawson. At now only remains for its value to be clearly shown and the smelting works to be erected to insure the permanency of Dawson as a mining center for hundreds of years to come.

LITTLE GIRL'S LONG JOURNEY

Travels Alone From Virginia to Seattle.

Provided only with a grip containing lunch and a meager supply of clothing, together with a shipping tag revealing her destination, little 9-year-old Mary Goldthorpe Saturday night arrived in this city over the Great Northern railway, having completed a 3000-mile journey across the continent unaccompanied.

She was placed on board a Pennsylvania train at some point in Virginia by her father, transferred to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and thence to the Great Northern, which bore her safely to her destination here at 10 o'clock in the evening. Through what appears to have been an inexcusable piece of carelessness the name of the child's uncle, to whom she was sent, was not attached to her clothing or baggage, and she is in ignorance of his address.

The little girl, who is a remarkably prepossessing, flaxen-haired youngster, was brought to the police station by a hackman who mistook her for another child whom he had received instructions to meet upon the arrival of the train.
"My name is Mary Goldthorpe and my papa put me on the train at Warren, Va., a week ago tonight," the little miss told the officers at the station in answer to their queries. She further stated that her father had told her that upon her arrival here her uncle would meet her at the train. His name she did not know, but stated he was her father's brother. The directory reveals but one person in this city of this name, a laundryman, who could not be located last night.

The child, who had not been in the police station ten minutes before she was escorted behind a big bag of sweets provided by sympathetic citizens, told a rather pathetic story concerning her life.

"My mamma died before I can remember," she said to a Post-Intelligencer reporter between big bites of a big chocolate cream. "My papa was not good to me and told me I would have to come and live with my uncle. I have two little sisters and a brother, and my papa works in a big coal mine in Virginia."
Any reference to her baby sisters, 3000 miles across the continent, brought tears to the child's eyes, evidencing a deep affection, which was all-concealed. Police Matron Chapin was sent for and took the little one in her keeping pending an attempt by the police to locate her uncle.
