1688—he laid down three propositions. (1) The Soutish' nation, as a nation, was essentially Presbyterian; (2) Every distinct people had a right to a national conscience. That was indisputable; let them deny it if they dared. (3) The Church was an ethical association or a spiritual brotherhood, over which the State or secular power had no authority—hone at all; and any interference of the State in the administration or regulation of the Church was an act of surpation and wrong, which justified resistance and repulsion on the part of the offended conscience of the spiritual brotherhood. He afterwards touched briefly on the leading events of the period indicated, eliciting a good deal of laughter by his reference to the famous incident witnessed in St. Giles' on the introduction of the liturgy. He suggested that they should kiss the memorial brass which marked the spot from which the stool was thrown at the Dean, and asked "three cheers" for Jenny Geddes, whom he characterised as the first Covenanter. (Applause).

Burlington's Romance.

Early in the present century Burlington's admirable location attracted the attention of the pioneer settlers, and the settlement of the country extended out from Burlington, or Wellington Square as it was first called. This name was given to it by Capt. Joseph Brant, Chief of the Six Nation Indians, on account, it is said, of his admiration of the Duke of Wellington. The site of the village occupies a portion of the old Brant Block of 400 acres, being Indian reserve-land. Close to the village is the Brant House, now used as an hotel, and which has since been enlarged and improved. Around this building the memory of a tragedy exists, in which the warrior chieftain was the principal actor. A son of Brant, who was a desperate character, resolved that he would have the old man's scalp; actuated, so the story goes, by the desire for the chieftainship. Hoping the son would desist from his murderous attempt Brant secreted himself in one of the rooms. This having no effect, the bold chief threw open the door and ordered the crowd to offer no further resistance, when the would-be murderer reashed not the room and was instantly shot down by the aged chief. After the sale of this Indian reserve land, the remains of the chieftain were taken to the Mohawk cemetery near Brantford and burled.—Toronto World.

A last (Thursday) night's Lansing, Mich, despatch says: Edward M. Marietta, a Lansing man, decoyed from Canada to Detroit yesterday by means of a letter which the officers induced Mrs. Emma Parker to write, and who was wanted here for oriminally assaulting a 9-year old girl mend kettie Hedges, was brought home deed by Deputy Sheriff Cook last night. Marietta induced his brother-in-law to bail him for the offence against the Hedges girl, and last week fled to Canada on money-furnished by Mrs. Parker, who was to join him later. She was shado wed to Detroit on Monday and there arrested. An officer induced her to send a letter to Marietta at Chatham, telling him she was ill in Detroit, and afterward telephoned him to cross the river. He was arrested as he stepped off the ferry boat. The officer started for home with both his prisoners on the train last evening. When half an hour's ride from Detroit Marietta remarked that he did not feel well. A drink of water secued to revive him, but in a few moments he again complained of illness, which was not so readily relieved. Su denly his limbs stiffened out, and he then confessed that just before leaving Detroit he swallowed a dose of strychnine, purchased in Windsor for that purpose if arrested. He grew rapidly worse, experiencing convulsions frightful to witness, and died shortly Compel Their Victims to Give Up Their Money by Torturing Them With Fire.

A last (Tuesday) night's Uniontov n, Pa, despatch says: McClellandtown was terrorized last night by five armed, masked robbers. They entered Farmer Anderson's house and femanded his money. He protested he had none. They placed hot coals to his feet and compelled him to give them $30, all he had. They then ransacked the house, but finding nothing of value rode off. They next visited Farmer Lilly. The old man said he had no money, and the desperadoes tied him in bed and set fire to it. Lilly begged for mercy and finally, gave up $139. He was unbound and the fire extinguished. A fruitless search of the house for valuables followed, after which the robbers went to the house of one Grove. The latter was pit through the same torture, but had no money and after thoroughly ransacking the house the party left. They then visited the house of an old widow named Keeler. They bound and gauged her and threatened all manner of torture until she gave them a pension cheque, loney by Torturing Them With Fire her and threatened all manner of tortre until she gave them a pension cheque, which they returned. Finding nothing here they rode off into the mountains, flourishing their weapons. The gang is believed to be the same that robbed Farmer Core, of Franklin, on Saturday, of $300. The residents of Fayette County are greatly excited, and armed parties will be organized to capture the robbers.

STUCK TILL HE DIED. The Horrible Death of a Man who Feli from a Charleston Dock,

A Charleston, N.C., despatch says: John A Charleston, N.C., deepstoh says: John D. Wrede, a drummer for a commission house in this city, met a horrible death the other night. He left his home at about 9 o'clock, and was not heard from till the next day, when his body was found in the mud at Hunter's dock, on the eastern water front. The body was buried in the mud up to the arms, which were extended. It is supposed that he fell from the wharf two the dock and while trying to extricate mud up to the arms, which were extended. It is supposed that he fell from the wharf into the dock, and while tring to extricate himself sank so deep in the mud as to be unable to get out. At that hour, 10 pm., the tide was low, and at high tide there is not over three feet of water over the spot where he periahed. He must have been slowly drowned by the rising tide. There are residences within 100 yards of the place where he was found, but his ories were unheeded. He must have been alive for four hours before the tide reached his mouth and drowned him. Wrede is the fourth victim who has perished there in the same way. same way.

Strange Story of a Salvationist.

A despatch from Kingston says: William French, of Brockville, who was attacked recently for retaining connection with the Salvation Army after being told to quit, was kidnapped last Friday, and found next day beyond Precott with his feet frozen. He tells the following story: "I was obloroformed, sied hand and foot, and put into a sleigh. When I came to I untied my hands with my teeth, and then untied my feet. I then jumped out of the sleigh, and being light, the smow crust held me up, while the fellow who was driving, being heavy, went through the orust, and by that means I got the start of him. He followed me some distance. Then the horses started and he had to return to them. I took to the woods and wandered about some time before I found the road, and was taken care of by some farmers."

A last (Tuesday night's Walkerton despatch says: Miss Olga finester in high social circles, was up at the Assizes. C. J. W. Karn is a medical practitioner of Woodstock. Miss Niemeier, a fine-looking young girl of about 18 years, is the daughter of a wealthy medical gentitemar of Neustack. Karn did not deny the promise and the case went to the jury simply to assess the damages. Mr. O'Connor, much to the delight of a very large audience, read extractif from letters by Karn. The following is a fair sample of his effusions:

which never loosened even when the cold waters closed over them and hushed their stifled gasps in death. From the evidence given at the inquest it seems that the girls were driven to their mutual death through fear of being reprimagned by their employer. They got leave only to stay out until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, but when it came to 8 o'clock and they had not yet returned to their home, they seemed to have become terrified at the possible consequences and decided not to go back at all. What foolish ideas got into their childish imaginations, and what thoughts terrified them all through the Sabbath evening, no one will ever know. When they were last seen they were trying to put a bold face on the awful intentions they had already conceived, and the girl Wylde laughed as she told a boy friend of hers that she was going to do away with herself in the canal. No one saw them alive after a quarter past 9 o'clock. No one heard of them again until their bodies were taken from the canal next morning.

James Amphlett, a horse driver employed at the East Cannock colliery, stated at the inquest that he had been "keeping company" with Sarah Ward for eix months back. On Sunday evening he went to the Salvation Army barracks at Hednesford, with a friend of his named Lloyd, and there saw the two girls. They were outside the barracks then, but later they went in and attended the service, where he afterwards again saw them. At 8 o'clock he saw them again, and they talked together for a while; and then the girls told him how it was that they should have been home at 4, and were now

APARID TO RETURN.

They then turned away and began whispering to each other. Amphlett listened, them to go home, but his attempts were fraitless.

"Why won't you go?" he asked.

"Because they will begin reprimanding us," explained the girls.

"Well, what do you mean to do?"

"Make away with ourselves in the canal," answered Elizabeth Wylde, with a laugh, and Amphlett went away thinking the girls were only jesting.

He went and asked his friend Lloyd what he thought of the matter, however; but Lloyd took his view of the case, and said the girls were too sensible for anything wrong to happen them.

And so Amphlett went home and forgotabout the girl he had been "keeping company with' for the last six months, and apparently forgot all about her child companion too. And the next morning, when the canal boatmen were dragging their slow boats up the sluggish waterway, they found the two girls slimy and cold and dead, tied together with a red woollen wrapper, and embracing each other as though embraces were felt by the dead.

THE LADIES' COLUMN.

Women Look Handsome in Fash ionable Mirrors.

OURIOSITIES OF THE FASHIONS Styles.

"It is true," said a dealer in mirrors to a writer in the New York Graphic, "that none of us know exactly what manner of men we are. The mirror does not enable us to see our outer scives as others see us. Only the finest mirrors approach perfection of surface. The best are made of plate glass, but if you happen to look into a large mirror you discover that the straight lines and right angles of a room appear all awry. The reflection most nearly true to the object reflected is obtained perhaps from a head mirror made of plate glass or from a metallic mirror of moderate size. Great pains are taken to secure a true surface in plate glass, but few mirrors long in use have a surface in a single plane. A alight defect distorts the image. I have seen homely wemen look almost handsome in a mirror by reason of a defect in the surface that remedied a bad feature. It is not difficult to sell such mirrors to ladies who need a flatterer near at hand.

"Here is a mirror that illustrates what I have said," continued the dealer, taking down a circular glass enclosed in a stout frame which was provided with a handle. The listener, looking in, beheld an odd distortion of his own features. One eye appeared higher than the other, one cheak bulged as if swoollen with toothache, and the whole countenance was caricatured.

"Look steadily for a minute," said the dealer, and he began to turn the mirror slowly. As he did so the features reflected engaged in a sort of kaleidecopic dance. For no two seconds was the face the same. While this was going on the eyes of the gazer felt as if they were being twisted out of their sockets and before the mirror had made a full revolution the performance had become very painful.

"Feels odd, doesn't it?" said the dealer. "Now, that mirror is a scientific toy. Its surface is cast purposely in several planes. One eye is reflected in one plane, the other in a different one, and the bulging cheek in a till another. The pain to the eyes of the revolution of the mirror."

The ladies who declaim agains heavy skirts may as well step to the front again. The new accordion-plaited skirts are from seven to eight yards wide before they are made. A Baby Farmer Sentenced.

In the High Court of Justiciary, Edinburgh, on Monday, Jessie King, or Macpherson, was tried on a charge of murdering, at different times during last year and the previous year, three babies entrusted to her to bring up. King in her declaration admitted suffocating the children, with each of whom she had received a premium, but when placed at the bar she denied the crimes. One charge was withdrawn, and as the jury returned a unanimous verdict of guilty on the other two charges, prisoner was condemned to death on 11th March. On hearing the sentence the prisoner almost fainted, and was carried downstairs by a policeman, and was heard moaning by the people in the court. She afterwards exclaimed to the Police Inspector, 'Oh, to be hanged! What a death!' adding that she expected only eighteen months' or two years' imprisonment,—Trowbridge Chronicle, Feb.28th.

A general talk ensued. This, doubtless, was the first meeting in Farmersville on the subject of a High School for that place. It was evidently not the first time the subject had employed the thoughts of Mr. Parish. The incident is only of interest as showing how early and continuously the educational interest of that place, and of the country, occupied the thoughts of Mr. Parish. meeting was held in the Methodist Church here last Friday evening. Mr. G. Sherman occupied the chair. The peakers of the evening were the Rev. L. McGillivray, of Brockville, and the Rev. D. Y. Ross. of Westport, each of whom gave eloquent and logically forceful addresses. The Rev. J. E. Thurlow, of Delta, was called upon and responded with a neat speech, and the Rev. D. D. Munro, paster of the Baptist Church, gave a short address in which he defined his position. He strongly favored the Scott Act or any other prohibitory measure.

Narrow Escape.
On Friday last, while Mr. Wolf was sawing wood with his machine, at Mr. John Pritchard's, near the Redan, the heavy fly wheel of the machine burst, sending large fragments flying with terrific force in all directions. One peice, weighing 19 pounds, was thrown a distance of 60 rods. One spoke cut the toe off a man's boot and then penetrated a block of wood two inches. Another spoke was hurled to a great height, and in descending almost grazed a man, while a flying fragment cut the pants off another man. There were several other nar-row escapes, and considering that the wheel burst in the midst of eight horses and nine men, it was wonderfuthat not even an injury was inflicted. Ritley Agricultural Society. The Directors of this Society.

By the death of Mr. Denaut, a man for many years a prominent figure in the social and political life of Leeds County has passed away. The village of Delta owes much of its early prosperity to Mr. Denaut, who for many years carried on an extensive milling and mercantile business.
