Stella Mordaunt;
—OR—
The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER V.

She had emerged from the edge of the wood, and stood on a slight elevation looking over the plain of "burrow" to the sea.

As she stood there, not knowing what to do of which way to take, she heard footsteps, and instantly she took alarm. It might be the young man Rath, or it might—well, be something in the shape of one of the wild beasts with which her imagination peopled the island.

Mechanically she threw herself down behind a bush, and waited.

The steps came nearer, and she saw Rath coming across the open space. Her heart beat fast as she watched him approach. He had a rifle over his shoulder, and was walking slowly, with his eyes cast down, as if he were deep in thought.

Girl-like, she could not help noticing the strength and grace of his supple form, the almost classic beauty of his face, and its absorbed, self-contained expression, which is only to be found on the face of the solitary.

That he should find her hiding from him, crouching as if with fear, was intolerable to her, and she rose slowly and stood erect, an exquisite picture against the background of firs.

Rath heard her, and looked up, and in an instant brought his Winchester to position, and aimed at her.

Stella went white, and she quivered like an aspen leaf; she could scarcely feel the bullet striking her heart; but she did not scream or cry for mercy.

Slowly she stretched out her arms, and looking straight along the barrel of the rifle, said in a low voice:

"Fire; but let me speak first!"

Rath hesitated, and lowered the Winchester; but held it as if ready to shoot at any moment.

"What do you want to say?" he said, not angrily, but with the calmness of the judge demanding of the prisoner why the sentence of death should not be passed.

The girl's breath came a little more easily.

"Come up here," she said; then, as Rath hesitated, she could not withhold the taunt. "Oh, you need not be afraid, I shan't hurt you—though I am a girl. Besides, you can shoot me just as easily up here as down there."

This argument being quite incontrovertible, Rath, after a moment's hesitation, ascended the rise and stood within a few yards of her, leaning on his rifle, his eyes regarding her steadfastly.

Catarrhal Forehead Pains Go Quick!
Sniffling, Clogged Nostrils Cured

Not a Sign of Cold, Catarrh, or Throat Trouble Will Remain!

Quick relief for that headache—just one breath through Catarrhose Inhaler and you feel better. The soothing, piney vapor of Catarrhose clears the head instantly; its healing balsamic fumes takes the sting out of the nose, stop sniffles, ease the throat, cure the cough and destroy all the violence of catarrh.

No other remedy treats Catarrh so directly, so quickly; every breath you draw through the Inhaler carries a marvelous lot of healing virtue—carries death to the germs that cause the trouble.

You can't keep Catarrh—nor can you hang to a cold, or have any chest

Her heart was beating fast, but she managed to conceal her agitation, and actually looked out to sea, as if something had attracted her attention, and she had, for the moment, forgotten him; then she turned her gaze upon him, and enquired, with the calmness of the girl who addresses a man who is about the same age as herself, and therefore of course, only a boy in her sight:

"Will you please tell me why you were going to shoot me?"

Rath did not reply. Though this was the first woman he had seen, his man's instinct told him that it was safer not to reply to some of their questions.

"Oh, I suppose because you were afraid of me. How very strange that a big man—man like you should be afraid of a girl; and I'm not a very big one, either. But I assure you there is no need for alarm. I shall not hurt you."

A civilized being would have flushed with shame under this sweetly uttered taunt; but Rath heard it unmoved.

"I am not afraid," he said in a matter-of-fact way.

"Oh! then it is because you don't like me—my sex—and want to get rid of me," she said. "I'm very sorry to have intruded; but you'll do me the justice to admit that I'm not here by my own choice; and I assure you that I—well, my mother and I—would be as pleased to get away as you would be to get rid of us. Can you help us to escape?"

Rath shook his head.

"Not yet," he said, quietly. "It is far from the town where men and women live. I do not know the way by land—you would be lost; and there is only the boat and my canoe, which would not live in the sea outside the bay. The Indians do not come again for eight months."

"A ship might see us and take us away," she suggested, eagerly.

He shook his head again.

"No ships pass within sight of this part of the island."

Stella sighed, and slid slowly to the ground.

"So we must stay prisoners until when—for months? Oh, it is dreadful! dreadful for us and you, but worse for us. I think, perhaps, after all, you had better shoot us."

He looked down at her thoughtfully.

"I suppose that you would kill us quickly; we should not have much pain," she remarked.

He frowned.

"I am not going to kill you. I will do you no harm—if you will keep out of my way."

She looked up at him with innocent—or mock innocent—widely opened eyes.

"Thank you—thank you very much. I am grateful. I have also to thank you for your kindness in putting the milk and things outside the door last night."

"You must eat," said Rath.

"Yes," she admitted, repressing a smile; "but I don't like being beholden to a person who hates me so much that he wants to shoot me every time he sees me."

"Why did you deceive me?" he said, rather sternly. "You pretended to be a boy."

"I didn't," she retorted, indignantly; then she blushed furiously. "Oh! you mean because I was dressed like one. It was not my fault. I was asleep when the ship was sinking, and I took the first clothes the man flung to us. I didn't suppose you would take me for a boy, that it was necessary to inform you that I wasn't."

He did not reply, and she sat for a moment in silence; then he said:

"Is there anything you want? Now you are here, and must stay here—"

"You don't want us to starve," she finished. "It is very good of you. Is there anything I want?" She sighed.

"Oh, plenty of things! I want my trunk that went down with the ship—"

she glanced ruefully at her one mother, and a piano, and a brush and comb and back-hair glass—Oh, what is the use of telling you what I want?"

"There is a brush and comb in the small cupboard—" he began; but she interrupted him.

"But what I want most is to get away from this place."

As he had already informed her that he could not help her in this, he did not deem any further assurance necessary, but sat regarding her for a moment in silence, then he said:

"What is your name?—what are you called?"

"My name is Stella—Stella Mordaunt," she replied. "Do you like it?" she demanded, dryly.

"I don't know," he said, gravely.

"Well, it can't be helped, if you don't."

"How did you come here?" he asked, presently, and reluctantly, as if he were fighting against his curiosity.

"In a boat," she retorted, then, as if relenting, she went on: "That's a long story."

Do you suffer from Indigestion

Indigestion is largely due to a debilitated condition of the stomach. In this condition the stomach is unable to digest food—this is, extract the nutriment from it. Therefore, the food lays in the stomach and ferments, causing pains, fullness and heartburn. You almost dread mealtimes because of these terrible indigestion pains afterwards.

But—try taking a wineglassful of "Wingarnis" a quarter of an hour before meals. You will find that "Wingarnis" will give a "tone" and a vigour to the stomach and enable it to perform its functions in a natural manner. Don't continue to suffer needlessly. Take "Wingarnis" to-day. Will you try just one bottle?

Begin to get well FREE.

"Wingarnis" is made in England, and you can obtain a liberal free trial bottle—not a mere taste, but enough to do you good by sending 6 cents stamps (to pay postage) to COLEMAN & CO., Ltd., Wingarnis Works, Norwich. Regular supplies can be obtained from all leading Grocers, Chemists, and Wine Merchants.

Yesterday you refused to tell me why you disliked women and feared them. Won't you tell me now?"

"They are dangerous things," he said. "I promised my father—"

He stopped, and she regarded him with keen interest and curiosity.

"I never heard such—nonsense!" she said, in girlish fashion. "It is very evident that you have not met many—"

"You are the first I have seen," he said, calmly.

"It was so amazing that she had to reflect over it; then she said:

"Won't you sit down, and put that ugly gun aside?"

"It isn't ugly; it is a very good Winchester," he remarked; but he laid it on the grass and sat down, but not too near her.

"Is it loaded still?" she asked; and as he replied in the affirmative, she took it up gingerly, but raised it to her shoulder and pointed it at him.

"Now, why shouldn't I kill you?" she demanded, her eyes dancing with a girlish merriment and triumph. "Why shouldn't I kill you, and take the island? It is yours, you say. It would be only fair."

He did not move a muscle, but looked her straight in the eyes.

"Yes, it would be only fair," he said, with perfect calm.

She lowered the rifle and held it out to him with a feminine little shudder.

"Put the thing behind you, where I can't see it," she said.

He obeyed her, with a touch of colour in his face; for, despite his calm, he had, in his ignorance of woman's pleading little ways, fully expected her to fire.

"Now, if I owe my life to you, you owe yours to me, and we are quits. But it isn't very pleasant to be threatened, is it?"

He did not reply, and she sat for a moment in silence; then he said:

"Is there anything you want? Now you are here, and must stay here—"

"You don't want us to starve," she finished. "It is very good of you. Is there anything I want?" She sighed.

"How did you come here?" he asked, presently, and reluctantly, as if he were fighting against his curiosity.

"In a boat," she retorted, then, as if relenting, she went on: "That's a long story."

"Where did you come from—an island, like this, or a town?" he enquired.

"From an island—England; and from a town—London. I suppose you have heard of it?"

He nodded.

"Yes; I know there is such a place. I have heard my father speak of it."

She stared at him. That a man who spoke as he did, like a gentleman, should know no more than this was little short of incredible.

"Where is your father?" he asked.

"My father is dead, I think."

She added the last words pensively, doubtfully.

It was Rath's turn to look surprised.

"Don't you know?" he asked.

She shook her head.

"I can just remember him; a tall man, with a pale, stern face—like yours when you stood down there just now with the gun raised. We were living then in the country; I can only just remember that, too. It was at a big house, with great rooms and a big garden. I can remember the terraces where I used to play; there were two huge stone lions with snarling faces—" they used to frighten me when I was a very small child—that crouched at the side of the stone steps. And there was an old gardener who used to pick flowers for me; he was very kind. Then we left the big house, mother and I, and went to live in a street in London. It was a quiet street, out of the crowd and noise, but it seemed dreadfully narrow and poor and miserable after the big house with the large gardens and green fields."

"Why did you go?" Rath asked.

"I don't know," he said, calmly; but he had witnessed the fury of the waves too often to be smitten with the awe which one unaccustomed to the sea would have felt at this reflection. "So that your friends will not search for you? They will think you are lost."

"We have no friends," said the girl. "It will not matter to anyone if we are dead or alive—except to you, who, of course, must wish that we were dead."

"No," he said, judicially; "I do not wish that, though I am sorry you came here."

"The girl bit her lip.

"It is a pity I am not a boy," she said, ironically.

"It is," he assented, with something like a sigh. "I should like you, if you were not—yes, there is something about you I like; you have a pleasant face—different to the Indians; and your voice—Are all women's faces and voices like yours?"

The girl stared at him.

"Oh, no," she said, simply. "They are much better, prettier, and sweeter."

"Are they?" he said, reflectively.

"I wonder why they are so wicked, so dangerous?"

Stella shook her head.

"They are not all," she said.

There was silence for a moment, then she turned to him, as if suddenly smitten with an idea.

(To be continued.)

Unconsciously, he drew a little nearer to her, and stretched himself at full length, leaning his head on his hand, his dark, earnest eyes fixed on her face.

"I don't know," replied the girl. She was almost speaking to herself, or as one might speak who was talking to someone who would not fully understand, so that it did not matter very much if she were too confidential.

After the loneliness, the mere act of talking was grateful and pleasant.

"My mother cried when we left the big house, and, of course, I cried, too; and my mother was ill and unhappy—always unhappy."

"Why did you leave the town, the big city, and come to sea?" he asked, presently.

"My mother got worse, and the doctor said she would die if she remained in England. It is nearly always cold and wet and damp there, and in London—the big city—there are fogs that stifle you."

"Then why does any one live there?" he exclaimed, wonderingly; "why not come to an island like this?"

She looked at him, as if any attempt at explanation would be hopeless.

"So we had to come abroad. I was glad to leave London, but sorry to leave England. Ah! you don't understand!" Her voice fell. "But my mother did not care; she was, she is, too ill to care for anything. Oh! I have forgotten her! Is it far from the hut?"

She sprang to her feet.

"No; it is just round the bend. You can almost see it; you can hear if any one calls."

She hesitated a moment, then sank down again, and Carl snuggled up beside her and stretched his paws on her dress, and rested his head on them, and gazed from one to the other, no doubt rather relieved to find that the shooting was over for the present. Stella stroked his rough head as she went on:

DR. DEVAN'S FEMALE PILLS

Fads and Fashions.

Cotton satins are being used for petticoats to be worn under sheer goods.

The white and colored linen handkerchiefs grow constantly more sheer.

The military grays are relieved with coral, cherry, Dutch blue or dull green.

Sweaters come in both gay and subdued colors and of fancy or tailored design.

A lining of pompadour silk will give dash and color to the blue or black suit.

There are odd little bags of taffeta and they have two little ruffles at the bottom.

Piped scalloped appear on skirts of the new taffeta dresses and with admirable effect.

Skirts of little girls' dresses are in triple effects, and have double or triple skirts.

One sees many shades of covert cloths greenish gray, grayish brown, tan, sand and putty.

Bits of children's dresses are made either of leather, or of the same material as the dress.

Bordered foulards are good this season, and rich-colored foulards have borders of riotous colors.

Leghorn hats, elaborately trimmed with lace, fowers and ribbons, will be worn in the mid-summer.

Charming is the costume with coat of navy blue, bound with white silk braid and worn with a white skirt.

The fashion of yokes finds favor not only with skirts, but blouses, coats and dress waists are designed with yokes.

Got His Man at 700 Yards.

AMAZING SHOTS. — MARKSMEN WHO WON VICTORIES.

Private Fulton, of the Queen's Westminster, the crack shot who tied for the King's Prize last year at Biele, recently shot from a range of 700 yards a German officer who was signalling to gun batteries from a window. He thus saved the lives of many of his comrades. It has been asserted that in warfare an expert marksman is little better than the ordinary soldier, but, although this may be true in the heat of battle, there are occasions when the coolness and nerve of an expert rifleman may not only save his own life, but the lives of a hundred others. During the Indian Mutiny, Edward Ross, a Queen's Prize winner, utilized his skill as a marksman to save a military station full of women and wounded soldiers from being sacked by attempted to cross the River Gogra to attack the station, which had few un wounded men to defend it. Ross, who had only just arrived at the station after a ride of eighty miles, on hearing of the threatened danger, hurried to the river bank, and with the aid of four sepoy dogs a trench close to the only fordable spot. When the enemy appeared and manned a large flat boat in which to cross, Ross, with unerring aim, picked off the rowers, and forced the vessel to return to the other side. Again and again the natives made the attempt, but Ross, with a dozen rifles expeditiously loaded by his attendants, kept the enemy from crossing for three hours, when a body of British troops with big guns arrived on the scene.

At the siege of Lucknow, Sergeant Halliwell won the Victoria Cross for saving countless lives by picking off the natives who endeavoured to man big guns which were placed in such a position that they could have poured a pitiless hail of lead into the town. The guns were placed on a roof close to the city, but Sergeant Halliwell determined that they should be silenced. Procuring the best rifle obtainable, he took cover behind a pile of debris, and with unerring aim picked off the enemy clustered round the guns one by one. Hour after hour he continued his vigil, his only change of position being to turn over now and again upon his back to relieve his cramped limbs. At nightfall his comrades, crawling upon hands and knees, brought him food and drink. Eventually the battery was raided and blown up, much to the relief of the gallant sergeant.

During the Boer an Irish private on one occasion had a bet with his comrades that he could hit a tin mug from which a Boer in a distant encampment was drinking. The soldier won his wager, for from a range of 600 yards he knocked the tin from the Boer's hand. Later on the incident had an astonishing sequel. The shock of the bullet hitting the Boer's tin caused a crust to slip down his throat, which actually suffocated him.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The market was well stocked with fresh herring every day this week. They are very fine, and sell for 10c. per dozen.

Mr. F. C. Archibald has some tarwits out but up to the present no sign of codfish has been found. Mr. A. intends to visit the grounds every day or so until a fish is secured, he will then put out the gear for the voyage.

Mr. Mark Thomas returned from Boston on Tuesday on a visit to his home and friends.

The British Band held a concert last night for the benefit of the poor. The sum of $35 was realized. The concert was very enjoyable. Mrs. Jonathan Parsons, who has been in the United States for some time, arrived home on Monday last and will remain the summer. She intends to go back to Boston in September.

The dock is now in full swing again and quite a number of vessels have already been overhauled and painted. Others are coming in continually to be prepared for the summer's work. There is little delay, as four vessels can be taken up at once.

The schr. Studland, owned by Mr. E. Simmons, is being made ready for a trip to St. John's.

Mr. C. Pike of Simmons' grocery, who spent a few days of this week at St. John's, returned home by Wednesday night's train, after a very enjoyable, as well as successful business trip.

A special train passed through here at 11 p.m. on Wednesday with soldiers. By the look of the last car as she passed, with some shattered window glass, it was easy to see that a lively time was had by the "boys" while coming around the bay. Three hearty cheers were given for Harbor Grace as the train passed the station.

Ireland Doing Its Duty.

Brilliant Peroration by John Redmond the Nationalist Leader—To His Remarkable Speech at Manchester on St. Patrick's Day.

John Redmond, in concluding his great speech at Manchester, St. Patrick's Day, said:—
"I do not want to make comparisons. I believe every country is doing its duty in the way it can. I make no claim for Ireland except that Ireland is doing its duty. Our record is one of which we can be proud. If we turn for a moment to the record of performances at the front I think we Irishmen can hold up our heads. (Cheers.) Sir John French is an Irishman—(cheers); he springs from good old Irish stock. Admiral Beatty is an Irishman—(cheers)—from the County of Wexford. Admiral Carden, who is bombarding the Dardanelles, is an Irishman from Tipperary. (Loud cheers.) The Lieutenant-Commander of the Destroyer that sunk U-12 the other day is a Creagh from County Clare. And if we leave the high in rank and go down to the rank and file—(cheers)—I think the name of Michael O'Leary—(cheers)—will be for ever associated with the history of this war. If you look at the performances at the front from another point of view and look at the casualty lists and see how whole regiments of Irish troops have been almost wiped out, I do not think any man will be found in this country to deny that Ireland is doing her duty. (Cheers.) But after all, we make no boast of it. It is nothing to be wondered at. It is all in keeping with the history and traditions of our race. (Cheers.) If Ireland had held back in this war she would have belied her whole history."

How the calculations of the Kaiser have been falsified! He expected to meet a divided Empire. (Laughter.) It is easy to laugh. Ten years ago he might have done so. He expected revolt and disaffection in South Africa. He expected revolt and disaffection in Ireland, and in Egypt, and in India. But he forgot the march of events and the march of ideas in this country. He forgot the march of education and enlightenment in this country. He forgot that the rule of the people has been substituted for the rule of the ascendancy classes. And he forgot that the rule of the English democracy has united this Empire upon a firm and sure foundation of liberty. Principles of freedom have turned South Africa into a loyal, because self-governing, country. The principle of freedom has made Canada and Australia and New Zealand loyal because they are self-governing. The same thing has happened to Ireland. (Cheers.)

We Irishmen feel that to-day, at last, we have entered on terms of equality into the Empire, and we say we will defend that Empire with loyalty and devotion. (Cheers.) For the first time in the history of the British Empire we can feel in our very souls that in fighting for the Empire we are fighting for Ireland. (Cheers.) My own belief is that every Irish soldier who gives his life on the battlefields of Flanders dies for Ireland, for her liberty and her prosperity, as truly as did any of the heroes and martyrs of our race in the past. (Cheers.) It was a blessed day when the democracy of Britain trusted Ireland. That trust has done what force could never do. That trust has done what centuries of coercion failed to accomplish. It has bound two nations together in a unity of common interests and common rights and common interests, and it has given us for a watchword for the future the classic motto, "Imperium et Libertas"—Empire and Liberty. (Cheers.)

Got 12,000 Letters.

ZAM-BUK UNANIMOUSLY ENDORSED.

A prominent Woman's Journal recently asked its lady readers to give an opinion, based on personal experience, of several widely-known Canadian products. The publishers recently wrote the proprietors of Zam-Buk to the following effect:—"In connection with our competition, we have received in the neighbourhood of 12,000 letters. We do not know of one instance where the proportion of satisfied users of any product was so great as proved to be the case in regard to Zam-Buk."

Herein lies the proof of the superiority of Zam-Buk—the proof of experience! No amount of advertising, no mere assertion on our part could create such unbounded confidence in Zam-Buk as these Canadian housewives have expressed. Only the plain, straightforward test of Zam-Buk in the home could do this. Zam-Buk is entirely different to all other ointments. Most ointments contain coarse animal fats. In some cases these fats clog up the pores of the skin and retard its action. Zam-Buk is purely herbal.

Many ointments have no antiseptic properties, cannot ease the pain, and in fact cause pain when used. Zam-Buk, on the other hand, is antiseptic. As soon as applied to a wound or sore it kills the germs, thus banishing all risks of blood poison, and ends pain.

Zam-Buk, unlike many ointments, contains no poisonous coloring matter, no harsh minerals.

Zam-Buk is superior to all other ointments, because it is purely herbal, and is healing, soothing, and antiseptic.

If you suffer from any skin disease, injury, or chronic sore, remember the 12,000 letters from housewives who have proved Zam-Buk. Do not waste time and money experimenting with inferior remedies.—try Zam-Buk first!

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, will send you a free trial box on receipt of this article, name of paper, and 1c. stamp to pay return postage.

The Making of a Man.

Mr. Walter H. Jones, Supt. of the King George the Fifth Institute, gave a lecture on the above subject to a large gathering of Boy Scouts at Victoria Hall last evening. A vote of thanks, proposed by Mr. Russell and seconded by Mr. Murdock, was accorded the lecturer. A musical programme was then taken up. A pleasing recitation was given by Miss Parsons and the stirring solo "Your King and Country Needs You," by Mrs. Taylor, while Mr. Maunder contributed a violin solo. Gramophone selections were also rendered. Candies were disposed of during the evening to ready purchasers, the proceeds to be devoted to the Boy Scouts movement.

The Children's Matinee at Rossley's.

Last night Rossley's was filled to its utmost capacity, many unable to get in. The beautiful dramatic one-act scene, by Mr. Ballard Brown, Scotland's Glory, and Miss Madge Locke in her Welsh character studies, her lovely dancing and glorious voice called for many encores. They are the finest artistes ever seen here. On Monday they present a beautiful one-act playlet entitled "Nan, or the Unposted Letter." Miss Madge Locke dressed in character costume, will sing a beautiful song. Their rendering for an encore a Hundred Pipers simply brought down the house. All enjoyed the pictures of the volunteers. The contest was a great success, though many who gave in their names had a bad attack of stage fright. A young lad by the name of Arch Lock won the five dollar prize; the gentleman who won the second, kindly turned it over to some charity and Mr. Rossley will give it to the Boy Scouts.

Lady's Boudoir.

By GWEN SEARS.

THE VERY THIN WOMAN.

It is a common thing to see a woman whose face is so thin that it is almost a mask. The reason for this is that she has been overeating. For instance a woman who is in the habit of worrying herself day after day about nothing at all seldom gets a chance to gain weight. Then, too, it often happens that a girl who is always dancing, running and eating at odd hours is very deplorably thin. This is very easily curable, if she is only willing to take the necessary measures. The first place, you can't afford to give nerves if you are a thin girl. Rush; try to remember that there are so very few things that are worth rushing for, that it is not worth while to risk your health over nervousness, worry, and excitement. Have a definite and decided opinion on the digestive fluids. Take food slowly, masticate each particle thoroughly. Once you have decided to do this you will never again eat at the same time every day and don't eat between meals. It is just the reason that most of the young high school misses look like. They dash out without breakfast, they don't carry a lunch, they eat a foolish picnic, and they eat their suppers because they spotted their appetite by eating or chocolate sundae down town school. The result is very evil on their skin, muddy and sallow, and far a less attractive picture than that of a fresh, healthy girl with a lunch under her arm if they could only be brought back to it.

This little school-girl's mother only sees that her daughter finishes her breakfast before leaving, that she got to bed in time to get eight hours' rest, and that which was plain and filling, her mother's health and spirit would be ruined. There would be no more answers, and unpleasant scenes a correction was made. The thin girl would follow the directions for her diet which physician will give her—such as plenty of starch and sugar and—sleep, eat and exercise regularly, her weight will increase. This won't happen all at once, she is run down, you will have to wait until the body catches up to normal standard before any improvement begins, but if you keep at it you are bound to get fat, some serious illness prevents.

A Few Remarks On Current Events.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—While the war is waging in Europe and the attention of the world is turned to the attention of the struggle which shall change the map of the universe, it seems that little Newfoundland is also going to do some wonderful things. Our Premier has dropped two cards out of his sleeve, and the Colony has to wait for the third to see the wonderful and dexterous three-card manipulator at his best. The $1,000 Mackinnon ready-watered salt fish "Cod" is now to be cooked, canned and exported to the greedy and impatient millions who are breaking their hearts to pay a price for it to our fishermen three times as great as that which they now receive per green quintal. Our noble Premier from Baxter's Hill, where the late lamented Buckley's goat passed his brief days of struggle and turmoil, is about to draw aside the clouds of Olympus and let fall into the bake-pots and stewing kettles of our fishermen the manna and ambrosia of the gods.

Then again, there is a $20,000,000 scheme to manufacture nitrates for explosive and agricultural purposes and our noble Premier is going, as another Franklin, to draw from the very sky that surrounds us the nitrogen that with machinery he will convert into potatoes, oats and hay and eventually into pork, poultry and mutton.

Three thousand of our laboring men will receive employment at high wages in this work. There is a shortage of ammunition in England, France and Russia. He will have Newfoundland supply the picric acid and nitrate that these nations will require. Each session beholds our untiring one with some fresh scheme, some new joke, some ingenious raffle for the amusement of the spectators who attend the Circus, and like little men pay the gate money that runs the show.

Would it not be well to pause a little, and ask ourselves a few questions as to the manufacture of explosives. What are the risks run? Is the rate of pay commensurate with the risks? Let us try and remember what happened at Dupont's explosion works when they blew up on the N.Y. Sound? What happened at the explosion of the picric works at Manchester—the terrible tragedy at Creusot works in France, or some other massacre caused by the action of unsuitable chemical compounds. There should be a clause in the Bill incorporating this company, providing that the life of every operative engaged in the works should be insured for at least $1,000, the premiums to be paid by the Company. It is a principle of modern legislation recognized at first in France and now world-wide, that if an employee uses a highly productive and dangerous machine by which he makes large money, a portion of these earnings

"Cascarets" Always Straighten You Up

If Costive, Headachy, Bilious, Stomach Sour, Breath Bad—Clean your Liver and Bowels.

Get a 10-cent box now. You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel worn out.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passage-way every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

Cascarets work while you sleep, cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and the toxic gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular, and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

At the City Hall.

The Chairman, Messrs. Harris, McNamara, Ayre, Bradshaw, McGrath, Morris and Anderson were present at last night's meeting of the Civic Commission.

A petition from the Parishes of St. Mary's Church, Southside, asking for a plank sidewalk from Water St. to the Southside was read. Negotiations with the Reid Mfd. Co. for the same are being made by the Board.

T. H. O'Neill wrote calling the attention of the condition of the lane next his premises. Mr. Harris also wished to call the attention of the Board to the lane east of the Telegram office. Both matters will receive the attention of the Engineer.

Patrick J. Casey made application for 6 feet of land at the junction of Power and Hamilton Streets for which he offered to pay the sum of $180.00. The offer will be accepted.

Residents of the north side of Quidi Vidi Lake petitioned for water and sewerage. The Engineer will report as to the probable cost of same.

M. and E. Kennedy submitted plans and specifications for alterations at the R. C. Palace, approved.

James J. Wilson applied for position with the Council. Application will be filed.

A joint meeting of the Road Committees reported on the matter of stone crushing, fixing the working day at 10 hours, the pay of foreman at $1.80 and assistant foreman at $1.70 per day. The men will also be supplied with respirators.

The report of the Engineer was read and adopted.

A recommendation was made for a supply of drinking fountains for horses. The Engineer will enquire into the cost of same.

The Health Officer called the attention of the Board to the unsanitary condition of the property known as the old railway yard. A copy of the report will be sent to the Reid Mfd. Co., the owners of said property. The old stone building at Fort William will be ordered to be removed.

Permission will be given M. A. Devine to erect a stable on King's Bridge Road, said building to be subject to the approval of the Engineer.

R. English, Pennywell Road, applied for permission to erect dwelling. Permission was granted subject to the approval of the Engineer.

W. Wright submitted plans of proposed building in Franklin Avenue. The Board do not recognize said street and consequently cannot approve of plans.

After the passing of pay rolls, and transaction of other routine business the meeting adjourned at 10 p.m.

BRILLIANT WORK.

PARIS, via St. Pierre, April 15.

Near La Boisselle our heavy artillery completely destroyed the enemy's shelter trenches.

On the 15th the Germans bombarded our positions, but did not attack. This occurred on the day following our artillery success, in which a counter-attack on Eparges, debouching from Combes, was repelled.

In Alilly Woods we maintained our front as reported yesterday. In spite of a German counter-attack, our progress left us masters of part of the main German trench, and to the north of this German trench we captured a piece of ground of 400 metres front on 100 metres depth. The new trench captured near the road from Flirey to Issey remains in our hands.

Near Poyenhayt, cannonading took place but it was not followed by any infantry attacks.

In Le Petre Wood on April 13th, after capturing a part of the German lines, we maintained our gains and repulsed a counter-attack with our quick-firing guns.

In Alsace north of Lalanche we have advanced 1,500 metres towards Schampfenrithkopf.

To the north of Arras we scored a brilliant success, which completes that of last month. The whole spur southeast of Notre Dame De Lorette, has been taken in an assault by our troops, who now occupy all the slopes from the southeast up to the border of Abbinge St. Nazaire Wood. We have captured 100 prisoners, including several officers, three trench mortars and two machine-guns.

At Thirpval and La Boisselle, in the Albert district, the enemy delivered two attacks which were immediately checked.

In the Argonne at Bagatelle our artillery destroyed one of the main German trenches. Further east at Meurrissons Broo, we repelled an attack.

At Eparges, the enemy delivered three counter-attacks during the night of 14th to 15th, with a view to the recapturing of the salient points our lines are acquiring towards the east, but the Germans were repulsed with heavy losses. At noon they fiercely shelled our positions, without attacking.

In Montmare Wood we repulsed several counter-attacks, and on the ground gained on the 13th April we gathered our spoils, composed of two revolver cannons, two trench mortars, a quick firer, several hundred guns and several thousand cartridges and grenades.

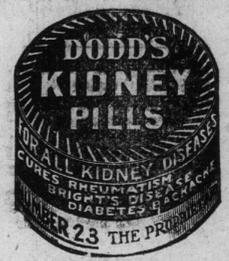

In Le Petre Wood we repulsed an attack and captured several prisoners. A German aviator threw bombs on Mourmelon Hospital. As reprisal for the bombardment of Nancy by a Zeppelin, one of our aviators dropped five bombs on the German headquarters at Mezieres and Charleville; all the projectiles struck the buildings which were occupied by the staff. We also bombarded the railroad station of Fribourg-en-Brissgan.

Finally a batch of 15 aeroplanes dropped bombs with complete success on the German barracks of Ostend. Our airmen ran the gauntlet of tremendous gunfire, but succeeded in returning safely.

LONDON PREPARES FOR ZEPPELIN RAID.

LONDON, April 16.

Precautions taken here to-night indicate that the authorities fear a great Zeppelin raid upon London to-night. Special warnings have been sent out that any notice to extinguish lights must be immediately obeyed under the penalty of arrest. To assist the police in enforcing this order, and to prevent panic, if an attack is made, a special force of 7,000 constables, organized since the war began, was ordered to report at Scot-

$1,000,000!

The answer is that on Monday evening the much talked of and beautiful five reel social drama "A Million Bid" will be produced at the Casino Theatre. This "work of art" of filmdom was produced by the world-famous Vitagraph Company, of America, and when shown in London and New York, where it ran for many months, it created a "furore."

The management wish to go on record as promising to the St. John's picture-loving public one of the greatest "pictorial treats" ever offered. The new policy of the House will be to run "feature pictures" only—each one consisting of from 5 to 8 reels—produced by the best English and American Companies and portrayed by the "stars" of both the theatrical and picture world.

One feature will be given every three days, changing on Thursdays. Appropriate music. Two shows nightly at 7.30 and 9, with a matinee on Saturdays only. The price of admission (10 cents) is the lowest price that these pictures were ever shown for.

BUT G. K. MACDONALD FOUND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

"My trouble started from a strain and a cold," Mr. MacDonald states. "I was troubled with stiffness of the joints and cramps in the muscles. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing, my limbs were heavy and I had a dragging sensation across the loins."

"My back ached, and I suffered from rheumatism, when reading an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I am only pleased to say that the treatment was successful. Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me a great deal of good."

Mr. MacDonald's symptoms show that he was troubled with Kidney Disease. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

"In going to the dining room the host should offer his arm to the oldest guest or stranger, unless there be a bride present. In which case she takes precedence. Dublin Giant Wins

At New York Last Night and he Will Challenge Willard for the Championship—Fight Films will not be Permitted in Ontario.

DUBLIN GIANT WON.

New York, April 7.—Jim Coffey, the Dublin Giant, administered a severe beating to Carl Morris, of Oklahoma, in a ten round bout here to-night. Coffey forced the fighting nearly all the way and twice had Morris groggy at the bell. Coffey made good use of a left jab and a right hook to the head, while Morris, who weighed 228 pounds to Coffey's 200, leaned heavily upon his opponent in the clinches. At close quarters Morris landed many hard body blows. Both fighters had issued challenges to Willard.

WILLARD AND MORAN.

London, April 7.—A London syndicate has offered a purse of $20,000 for a fight between Jess Willard, who won the heavyweight championship from Jack Johnson at Havana last Monday, and Frank Moran, of Pittsburgh. Willard will be offered $1,000 for his travelling expenses.

Moran was defeated by Johnson in 26 rounds on points in Paris on June 27 of last year.

JOY AT BOSTON.

Immense crowds were on the streets in Boston to read the bulletins of the Willard-Johnson fight. When the announcement was made that Willard had won every man, woman and child in the street and upon the sidewalks and in the wide-open windows cheered; hats, canes, umbrellas and overcoats were thrown into the air—to fall where they would. Strangers, maid and dignified and chipped, clasped each other on the back and the shoulders. It was a scene that has never been equalled in Boston.

NOT IN ONTARIO.

Toronto, April 8.—Moving picture scenes of the Johnson-Willard fight will not be viewed by Ontario Board of Censors have reached the decision that it would be unwise to depart from the precedent, by allowing the exhibition of fight scenes, and they are fortifying themselves against all applications.

Your Fault, My Virtue.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Orthodoxy is my doxy; heterodoxy is someone else's d o x y."—Bishop Warburton.

When is a fault not a fault? When it's your own, of course.

It's an old saying that distance lends a gloss; a fault is so very close to you that you see it as a virtue.

Most of us believe in calling a spade a spade when it belongs to our neighbour; when it's our own we're just as likely to call it a silver teaspoon.

Cowardice is Alchemized to Common Sense.

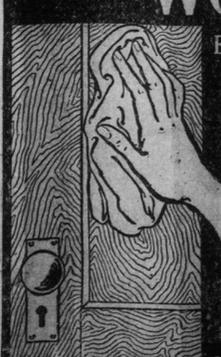

For instance, I know a man who never hesitated in his youth to criticize others for what he called "cowardice." He is older now and "whether from the growth of experience or the decline of animal heat" has acquired considerable of the quality which in others he used to stigmatize as cowardice. Does he call it cowardice in himself? Indeed no. In him it is "common sense"; he has children, he is careful for their sakes not for his own. He forgets that some of those whom he once criticised so freely also had family ties. Furthermore, he has come to criticize just such youths as he once was for the very qualities he once possessed and possessing them, admitted. Only he calls them by different names now. What used to be "daring" in himself has now become "harebrained foolhardiness" in others.

Again, we all know people who intensely dislike conceit in others but who call their own sense of their value to the world "self respect," and who say, with swelling chest, and chin well in, that everyone should have self respect because if you don't respect yourself others will never respect you. Whereupon they proceed to respect themselves with a fervor that if others follow their example, as advertised, should make them the most respected persons in the community.

At the House.

FRIDAY, April 16th.

Petitions were presented by Mr. Stone from Trinity District against the approval of the Governor in Council of the application of Mr. McNamara for the right to cut timber on the Trinity-Bonavista Peninsula.

Mr. Lloyd asked the Premier what had been done in regard to similar protests made last November by the press.

The Premier said it was not understood at the time the approval was made that a part of the application related to timber land on the peninsula. The Government did not intend to issue the grant.

Petitions were presented by Mr. Downey from Humbermouth and Corner Brook in relation to the matter of a road.

Notice of question were given by Messrs. Halfyard, Targest and Windsor.

Mr. Stone thought that sufficient time had elapsed for some of the answers to his questions, asked in the early part of the week, to be forthcoming.

In reply to Mr. Lloyd, the Minister of Finance tabled statement showing the Government balances in the Bank of Montreal on Dec. 31st, 1914, and also March 31st, 1915.

Mr. Lloyd also asked the Minister to table any portion of the answer ready on Monday regarding imports under and the revenue returns from the increased tariffs of last year.

Mr. Emerson asked that the discussion of the Temperance Resolutions introduced by Mr. Hickman be deferred until Wednesday to give members of the House an opportunity of reading the resolution and considering fully this important question. Mr. Hickman consented, and at the suggestion of Mr. Morine it was ordered that the said resolutions be first on the Order of the Day on Wednesday next.

The Bill relating to the Naturalization of Aliens passed its third reading; after which the House went into a Committee of the Whole on the Local Affairs Bill.

The Premier briefly explained the purport of the Bill which is to provide for defining boundaries of elective local boards on the petition of a majority of electors. Many of the phrases of the bill were fully discussed by the Premier, after which a general discussion took place, the speakers being Messrs. Kent, Morine, Currie, Bennett, Cooker, Jennings, Grimes and Lloyd.

Mr. Kent thought it was a mistake that the subject had not been more fully taken up by the Government and felt that it would be a pity to let the Session go by without attempting some reform. He was of the opinion that the system which had been going along for so many years was a wasteful way of spending public money, and should be replaced by a system that called for greater responsibility, and a keener interest of those interested in the management of local affairs. The establishing of a proper system would do away with family grants, and many other abuses that continually creep in under the existing system. The greatest difficulty under the proposed system would be the division of the country into boards. In this respect he thought that a certain number of electors, say 30, might petition the Governor in Council, describing an area, after which the Government could issue a Proclamation for the election in the said area. The most inexpensive way of election would be to convene a public meeting, presided over by a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace. He was of the opinion that some proposal of a more thorough nature than that set forth in the Bill should be placed before the Committee for discussion and that whatever system was adopted, the matter of partisan politics might be kept out of the all important question of the administration of local affairs.

Mr. Morine felt that no further attempt could profitably be made during the session until a full enquiry had been made outside the session and a full and general measure of local Government elaborated, which would set forth different schemes which could be taken up to fit the different needs of different localities, all on an elective basis. This would embrace a scheme of incorporation for the larger towns, also for districts which might combine for the purposes, and for smaller settlements which could not combine with others. The whole subject of the incorporation of local communities was a mark of civilization and progress. The introduction of local incorporation would result in subjecting the expenditure of public money to close local criticism, a factor that would be extremely beneficial in the administration of local affairs. The large deficit now facing the country and a larger one threatening, the needs for military purposes and railway obligations, besides the usual cost of maintaining the machinery of the Government, the schools, and the providing the interest on the public debt, all these emphasize the necessity of strict economy. Municipal control would teach the people the value of government money and would do away with the system of indiscriminate expenditures. "Now although I am an avowed Confederationist," said Mr. Morine, "the system of municipal control which I am now advocating would be the greatest safeguard that the country could have against Confederation." He then read passages from the Municipal Act of Manitoba, showing how much of it could be applied with profit to Newfoundland. He thought also that conditions at our charitable institutions would be much improved if local government was put in full over the Island. He was of opinion that the influx of patients who should not be in the General Hospital, would not be stopped until the localities had to pay for their own patients, as they would then refuse to send on such patients.

Mr. Currie was the next speaker. He agreed with Mr. Morine in much that he had said, though he was pleased to say that the present system of expending public money in Burin district was working satisfactorily. He was convinced that elective road boards do not always produce the best representatives. He should like to have the matter held over for another

England Demands

THAT EVERY MAN THIS DAY WILL DO HIS DUTY.

Editor, Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Drink, the greatest enemy to peace and civilization the world over, is ripe. The world's greatest nation is on the balance, hampered for the want of war material, and that is after arousing the Empire wherever the flag of freedom flies and the sun never sets.

Forty years ago the great Cardinal Manning in denouncing drink as the greatest enemy to civilization, and the greatest slave driver in existence, said it is more deadly than the sword on the field of battle, than a famine, than a plague. It is draining England of its best manhood and sends them down in thousands every year to fill a drunkard's grave. He cautioned women against marrying drunkards, because nine cases out of ten they would be dragged in slavery from their wedding day until gray hairs and broken hearts carry them to their graves. Those are a few words of the many from a great man as a warning. And don't they come home to us in this small city of ours every day? Now Lloyd George, one of the greatest statesmen that England ever produced, endorses Cardinal Manning's warning when he says, "We are fighting three great enemies, Germany, Austria and drink, but drink the greatest of the three." Our noble and glorious King has shown an example to his subjects the world over when he forbids drink in his households, and his example is followed by many great men. But we have not heard of the example touching our city yet. Has the Governor forbidden it in his household, and other leading men? Let us hear from them. Also club rooms, the coastal boats and trains, etc. Now is the time to show their patriotism, their loyalty to the flag, their example. Every right thinking man should be up and doing. Every right thinking man in the country should be instigated by Mr. Hickman for bringing the resolution before the House, and there should not be any back siding by one member. Over two-thirds of the members represent Local Option districts, so they are honour bound to support the resolution. The revenue should be no obstacle in the way, it should not be even considered when our nation is at stake, and our country should follow the example of those who are straining every nerve for victory and peace for the civilized world and the great men who are sacrificing their lives on the fields of battle. Close up the saloons and the revenue will come gack twofold in many ways, especially for peace, happiness and comfort in many homes. We have four members between the two houses who control our leading daily papers, that should show their power from their seats in the House and through their papers. No greater power in the cause of civilization than the press. There should be no backsliding. England calls that every man is bound to do his duty. Pass the bill at once and stop the sale of drink during the war, and when once it is stopped it will never come back again, and every true citizen should be a detective in the country's interest. Why should the Government look for duty at the sacrifice of the people and the destruction of manhood. There should be no time given to the saloon keepers to get clear of their stock. They have been living at the sacrifice and on the blood of the people long enough. Twenty-four hours after the Bill is passed it should be made law.

Yours truly,

CITIZEN.

session of the House, and would only favor the adoption of a temporary arrangement until some organized system for the expenditure of local money was established.

The Colonial Secretary thought that there was much diversity of opinion throughout the Island as in the House on the matter of elective road boards. Enquiries had been sent out to the different districts, with a view to getting some working suggestions, and these were persistently being sent on from the outposts when there was no room for them at the institution.

Mr. Cooker realized that the situation was drifting with difficulty, but felt that all these could be eventually overcome. He felt that he could not continue the continuance of the present system. He knew that great interest was being manifested in local affairs in the northern districts, and was of the opinion that a Commission of the House should be formed to draft a scheme of this important matter out of session. He also emphasized the increasing need of the establishing of outport hospitals. He commented also on the General Hospital and the Commission which had been sitting. He was of opinion that something should be done this session in the matter of elective boards, and a commission appointed for the consideration of a larger and fuller scheme to be taken up next year.

Mr. Jennings favoured the establishing of elective road boards but realized the difficulty of grouping the settlements. He expressed the expectation of a considerable amount of time, compiled some information and forwarded it to St. John's, as requested, but had heard nothing further on the matter.

Mr. Grimes supported the principle of the Bill, and said that he had noted that in those where elective road boards had been formed, the interest in local affairs had been most marked.

Mr. Lloyd pointed out that there was a radical difference between the Municipal management advocated by Mr. Morine as it prevailed in Canada and what was called Management of Local Affairs. The schemes in Canada were based largely on the old systems which had prevailed many centuries in England. Under the English system municipalities raised and expended mainly money raised in the locality, which was to some small extent supplemented by State Grants. Under our scheme local bodies, except in St. John's, levied no taxes locally. They were merely agents for the expenditure of State Grants, and that was so whether the local boards were elective or appointed by the Government. This did not make for economy, and was a natural temptation for the locality to seek all they could get from the Government in the way of improvement and in the way of local control. The establishment of a Government to give out as much as possible for the sake of political popularity. Great improvements in local works could be effected and more economically if the bulk of the money spent locally was raised locally and not through the onerous method of the Customs House and the wasteful expenditure of grants to families and political commissioners and political Road Boards. He advocated something being done this session in the way of the bill before the Committee and a fuller scheme being prepared for next year. He was in accord with much that Mr. Morine had said as to municipal advancement, but care must be taken in any scheme to prevent such overborrowing as had taken place in connection with Western Canadian municipalities.

The Bill was then sent to a Select Committee composed of the Premier, Mr. Kent, Mr. Piccott, Mr. Currie, Mr. LeFevre, Mr. Cooker, Mr. Jennings, Mr. Stone and Mr. Grimes.

Mr. Cooker moved that his Logging Bill be sent to a Select Committee also, and this was done, the Committee being Messrs. Cooker, Morine, Jennings, Lloyd, Piccott, Hickman and Moulton.

Mr. Kent's Bill respecting proceedings against the Crown by petition of right was read a first time.

Mr. Cooker gave notice that at the next sitting he would move the appointment of a Committee of 5 members of the House to enquire into conditions at the Penitentiary, and report in 10 days.

The other items on the order paper were deferred and the House adjourned at 6.30 p.m. till 8 p.m. on Monday next.

DUTCH INDIGNATION.

AMSTERDAM, To-Day.
 Publication here of full details of the sinking by a German submarine in the North Sea, of the Dutch steamer Katwyk, from Rotterdam for Rotterdam, with a cargo of grain consigned to the Netherlands Government, intensified the indignation to which leading papers give expression in strong language. The Algemeen Handelsblad denounces the sinking of the steamer as an unfriendly act, giving us the full right to draw the sword and join the enemies of Germany. The paper warns the German Government that it is mistaken in assuming that whatever it does so long as German troops do not enter Dutch territory, the Netherlands will maintain their neutrality and that any attacks against Dutch subjects or property will be endured.

RECKLESS TORPEDOING.

THE HAGUE, To-Day.
 Further ministerial conferences were held to-day to consider the sinking of the Dutch steamer Katwyk from Rotterdam with a cargo of grain consigned to the Netherlands Government, in the North Sea on Wednesday night. The sinking of the steamer without warning, has aroused a most widespread public irritation and has called forth stinging protests from all the newspapers even those inclined towards the German side. The papers say there appears to be no doubt but that a German submarine was guilty. The question asked generally is whether the captain of the submarine was acting against specific instructions to avoid the sinking of neutral ships or whether the orders have been recently changed by Germany. One reason given for the submarine's action is a widespread report that 500 Belgians were crossing to England on Wednesday night en route to join the forces fighting in Belgium under King Albert. Some papers assume this report was communicated to the submarine, which usually is lurking in the vicinity of the North Hinder Lightship, and that the commander of the submarine torpedoed every vessel crossing in the hope of striking the ship carrying the Belgians. It is understood, however, that the Belgians crossed safely.

BULGARIA MAY FIGHT.

LONDON, To-Day.
 Premier Radoslawoff, of Bulgaria has admitted the possibility of Bulgaria's participation in the war in support of the Triple Entente Powers, says the Daily Mail's Sofia correspondent. This attitude was brought about by Germany's refusal to deliver munitions of war which Bulgaria has paid for or to make the April loan advance as agreed upon.

 The official F. Renndienst declares that all reports of the alleged intention on the part of Austria to conclude a separate peace with Russia is devoid of foundation.

BOMBARD TURKISH FORTS.

LONDON, To-Day.
 The Amsterdam correspondent wiring under date of Friday says: The Turkish headquarters reports that a cruiser yesterday bombarded the Dardanelles fortifications from the entrance, and the Russian fleet bombarded Fregli and Sungulalik in Asia Minor on the Black Sea. Telegraphing from Sofia under date of Thursday, the Theses correspondent says the Russian fleet has bombarded Kara Burnaz, which lies inside the Thessalonian line on the Black Sea. Travellers from Dedeagach report that a fresh batch of German officers has arrived in Constantinople. They also say that the greater part of the garrison of Adrianople and Demotica has been withdrawn for defence of capital.

GERMAN AIR RAIDERS AVOID BIG TOWNS.

LONDON, To-Day.
 During the three airship raids by the Germans at least fifty bombs have been sent down either by error or purposely. The airmen seem to have kept away from the larger English towns, where they might have been discovered by searchlights and come under fire from the land. There is an inclination here to consider the raid only in the nature of a reconnaissance for, except in case of aeroplane bases, points of military importance were avoided, although in each case the aircraft passed within a short distance of such places. In view of this, it is believed extra precautions have been taken. The Allies already are making reprisals for all German attacks, over the fighting zone, and it is considered here to be likely that the raids over England will receive their rapier before very long.

BELIEVE AUSTRIA WILL MAKE SUDDEN ATTACK ON ITALY.

PARIS, To-Day.
 The belief is becoming general in Rome that Austria will make a sudden attack upon Italy as soon as she becomes convinced the latter country has determined to intervene in the war, according to a despatch to the Matia from Rome. This prospect is said to be causing no alarm, however, because of concentration of large forces of Italian troops on the Austrian frontier.

AUSTRIA AND ITALY EXCHANGE SHOTS. (I)

GERMANS REPULSED.

LONDON, To-Day.
 A special to the Express from the Belgian frontier says the Germans tried to advance at Westend on Thursday in the direction of Lombartzyde but were repulsed by the combined fire of the Belgian batteries and the Allies' warships. Simultaneously another attack towards Benningent, south of Dixmude, was equally unsuccessful.

Newfoundland Helps.

Her Ice-Breaker Lintrose Has Replaced Earl Grey in Far North.

Insignificant as Newfoundland may be in other respects, she is proving, in unexpected ways, of value as a factor in the present world struggle. The fleet of her fleet of local steamers, the Lintrose, was purchased recently for ice-breaking purposes in the White Sea, and messages have just been received announcing her arrival at Alexandrovsky, a port some distance from Archangel, where she arrived on Feb. 23rd, replacing the Canadian Government steamer Earl Grey, which was sent to the Russians at the outbreak of the war for this purpose, but which proved unsatisfactory and, indeed, sustained such damages that she had to return to Barrow, England, where she was built some six years ago, in order to effect extensive repairs. She arrived there on March 5th, conveying two grain-laden steamers from Archangel.

The Lintrose, which is the finest ship of her class afloat, was owned by the Reid Newfoundland Co. and was employed in carrying out the daily cross-channel service between Port aux Basques, Nfld., and North Sydney, Cape Breton, whereby the Newfoundland railway was maintained in direct daily connection with the Intercolonial Railway of Canada. The Lintrose embodied in her construction all the improvements which fifteen years of experience in navigating the difficult and dangerous waters of Cabot Strait, the southern entrance to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, suggested to the navigators and engineers of the Reid Company.

At the outbreak of the war, negotiations were opened with a view to securing this steamer, but the Canadian Government offering the Earl Grey, they were broken off. She crossed to Europe in September, via St. John's, and proceeded to Archangel, where she did a certain amount of icebreaking work in the early winter, but when the critical period came she proved unequal to the task, and as a result quite a large fleet of freighters was frozen fast in that port for the winter. These it will not be possible to free by the spring even by the Lintrose, because the undisturbed ice in the White Sea will have increased in thickness so rapidly during the long winter that nothing afloat will accomplish much against it, but it is confidently expected that the Lintrose will be able to release the ships there at least a month earlier than under ordinary circumstances, and this, in itself, will be a decided advantage.

The crew of the Lintrose are all Newfoundlanders, and there were several others from the colony on the Earl Grey. It is through these, indeed, that cablegrams were received telling of the safe arrival at Alexandrovsky on Feb. 23rd, and of the return of the Earl Grey to Barrow on March 5. There the necessary repairs will be made to the ship, and it is understood that she will then go back again to Archangel to help the Lintrose in her work during the spring. During the summer the Lintrose will probably be used as a freighter, as she has substantial carrying capacity and the Earl Grey fitted as an armed cruiser and icebreaker patrol work in that region or anywhere else that is necessary.—Exchange.

PROHIBITION AS FAILURE TO SOLVE PROBLEM OF DRINK.

London, April 9.—Although practically all the temperance to-day come out in support of any temperance measure the Government may adopt, some of them opposed stringent prohibition as a means of solving the drink problem in the British Isles. The Globe had the following to say on the subject:
 "Shirkers hindering the output of war munitions should be enrolled in a special contingent subject to military discipline and law. We need not kill liberty to abate license."
 "If we are still short of the required amount of munitions, it is certainly not wholly because a minority of the working class take more drink than is good for them," says the Westminster Gazette.
 The Westminster Gazette says that the Government, in order to produce a popular temperance measure, must have the support of the working classes.
 "What is now required is an explicit lead from the Ministers, based upon exhaustive information," says the Pall Mall Gazette.
 The Evening Standard says: "David Lloyd George continues to say a small section are falling their country, but the goodwill of the country is necessary to carry through any measure against drink successfully."

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

EASTER MESSAGES.

The newspaper is one of the greatest influences of the present day. It has the elements of power in it to do as great a good to the world as any other instrument or institution. It speaks to a bigger audience than any one preacher can ever address at one time, and unlike the spoken word, its message is such that one can read and re-read and fully take in each thought before proceeding.

The power of a newspaper is, alas, too often used for ignoble ends. There are some who follow the policy of giving the people what they want, instead of giving them "what they ought to want." The comic section of the American press is a case where the most grotesque, inartistic and positively hideous caricatures are served up to amuse children especially, without thought of the damage that may be done to that most delicate and impressionable organ—the brain of a child.

The Easter Messages, published in the Telegram two weeks ago are interesting in several ways. The three main denominations in Newfoundland were represented there and I think that if no names had been printed at the top, it would have been difficult to tell from the articles the denomination of the clergymen who wrote them. This points surely to the fact that, after all, there is no great gulf separating the religions. We are all travelling to the same goal but by different roads. That the roads will converge into one before the summit is reached is a question that I am afraid will not be settled in this century and perhaps never, while we have minds to differ and inclinations to follow as various as the wind. That toleration shall come and even co-operation, is a consummation "quite" possible, and even now may be in sight. That anyone should look with disdain upon another's form of religion, of whatever form it be, is a confession of smallness that approaches ignorance. To my mind it is a question that must be settled by every individual. We are born with various tendencies. Some find that a simple service in a school chapel, without ritual, without altar, suits them and meets the need of their inner feelings. Others find in the grand Cathedrals, and the beautiful ritual, the atmosphere which lifts their souls. And we find great men and women in both the school-chapel and the Cathedral.

In the last analysis it matters not what church we attend or what symbols we use if we live out our beliefs in the Eternal Goodness. If we don't live out our religion it is worthless.

THE PENITENTIARY.

The outcry about conditions at the "Pen" has not come a bit too soon. I have been there a few times (voluntarily!), and I can testify to the horrible, almost putrid, smell of the prison. The floor looked clean but the atmosphere was strong, strong with the odour of humanity who have been living in the same air for years. No disinfectant was apparent to fight the germs that must have been hovering everywhere.

It is no advantage to the State to have unclean habits taught to the prisoners, and if the superintendents and wardens are content to live among a crowd that perhaps don't change underclothing for months, then it is time that they should go through a course of hygiene—a child could teach them better! And why a person under remand, untried and unconvicted, should have worse food than those doing a term of hard labour is a state of things that should not exist under an energetic Superintendent, or a live Minister of Justice. Knowing this, a man could be pardoned for asking to be given "hard labour" with his sentence. Like most institutions, our method of dealing with prisoners is woefully behind. Instead of making them better men, we degrade them more than ever—instead of making them work at trades that would help them—we have a lone broom factory that is no use to them at all when they are discharged.

A love of farming could well be given by giving them plots of ground to cultivate under proper direction, and in this way could be started the first Model Farm, and who knows how many men will be put on the right road when we obtain a Government who will see the true interest of the country in helping men on a small farm and giving them the wherewithal to start on easy terms. Mr. Ruby's article in the "Quarterly" on Agriculture is the most important in the number, and God send us men who will realize the wealth of our land in its productive power. But Mother Earth will not yield her riches without labour and hard work, and maybe this is the trouble in this age of fictitious values. A man wants money and wants it quickly, and with as little effort as possible. Somehow, money that is got easily never does any lasting good. There seems a law that evens up matters in some way and money got quickly and easily does not pay lasting dividends. Sometime or other the man must pay up.

THE WAR.

One of the greatest temptations in these times is to let our indignation and disgust run away with our good sense and make us lose those attributes of Christian civilization in which we take pride. We are apt to let the hatred of Germany beget in us a hatred for them in return. We forget that when the war is over there will still be Germans—we do not expect to exterminate them, nor would we desire such a slaughter. And we expect to treat them as honourably and as fairly as our boast is the British always act. We must recognize that we are fighting now the spirit of "militant militarism," and the leaders of Germany have influenced the consciences of their people to a (mistakenly) righteousness of its cause—for it is unthinkable that all the Cardinals, the Archbishops and church dignitaries in Germany can be hypocritical in their prayers for the German arms.

We have not been deluded as they have in regard to the war—we have seen the deep-laid plots of the Kaiser and his military party and the thoroughness with which this party has inculcated in the German mind the idea of world dominion and Germany the All Powerful. They are living and fighting under a great delusion, and it is of this that we must cure them—slowly as the cure will be, and costly as it has been and will be.

At the same time we cannot, we must not forget that the Germans belong to the Human Family—they are of our common brotherhood and appeal with us to the All-Father.

"Decadent" is an ugly word. It is a pity that conditions ever made the creation of the word possible. Dr. Schenck-Brown in an article in the "Quarterly" uses the word in describing Germany past and present, but in all honesty I hardly think it is applicable. Their methods in this war, the philosophy of Nietzsche are decadent as all bad and evil things are, but when German life in general and all German music are termed decadent I have to admit that there is no evidence to support such a sweeping statement. Does the world owe nothing to Beethoven, Bach, Brahms, Schumann, Mendelssohn, Schumann and a whole host of others? A nation is surely not decadent when we find such advances as the Germans have made in agriculture and who spend millions of pounds so effectively on education that not one in a hundred is unable to read or write. The good in a nation will never die—this war brought on by evil will in return destroy the evil—and this will be true in regard to England as well as every other warring nation.

SONG OF SPRING.

The glad birds are chanting their anthems and farmers are planting their squashes and peas. There's nothing embitters the heart in the Spring, and all human critters should be breathing is better than pills, the breeze is a tonic, the sun brings relief, so shame on the chronic dispenser of grief! Oh, kick in the Summer, and I won't object, for heat is a hummer that many has wrecked; and kick in the Autumn, when lingering flies (why didn't you swat 'em) are tickling your eyes; and kick in the Winter, with words over-ripe, that no decent printer would put into type, but now that the glory of Springtime is here, a different story we'd all like to hear. When cold months meander, and April cuts loose, that man is a gander, that woman a goose, who isn't rejoicing with luminous grin, in ecstasy voicing the rapture within. The jaybirds are croaking and scolding around, the farmers are poking fresh holes in the ground, and everything's speaking of Spring and its joys, so cut out the shrieking and whoop with the boys.

Spring fashion has brought handbags made of quantity flowered silk.

Girls! Draw a Moist Cloth Through Hair

Try this! Hair gets thick, glossy, wavy and beautiful at once—Stops falling out.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff, cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few week's use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

Missionary Service at George St. Church.

Sunday in George St. Church will be observed as Missionary Sunday. Rev. D. B. Hemmeon, B.A., will occupy the pulpit at the morning service, and will discuss the problem of Christian Missions. In the evening, at 6.30, a Platform meeting will be held at which Dr. Duncan will preside. Drs. Chesley Roberts and G. J. Bond, of Halifax, will speak, and Dr. Fenwick, Superintendent of Missions, will present the report. Perhaps no one in our Methodism is better qualified to speak on the question of World Evangelization than Dr. Bond, as from personal observation he has viewed the many phases of Christian work in non-Christian lands. Special music will be rendered morning and evening. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

What Are You Doing for that Eczema?

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."
"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured me. You can get Zylex at your druggist's."

Volunteers' Farewell

At Robinson's restaurant last evening, the Non-Com. Officers of 1 and 2 Platoons of the Reserve Company, First Mid. Regiment, were entertained by Lieuts. C. Wighton and N. A. Alderidge. The menu was a splendid one, and the toast list, although brief, was well handled, the speakers being Lieuts. Wighton and Alderidge. Q. M. Sergt. Leo Murphy, Instructor "Grady" and Sergt. K. Keegan. The affair was thoroughly enjoyed by the men in khaki, and the toast of the occasion, was drunk with all the honors.

"Calcitine."

"CALCITINE" is a hard-drying Sanitary Water Paint, for interiors, manufactured especially for those who do not care to spend a great deal on the treatment of their walls, and who, therefore, prefer simplicity in decoration to more elaborate schemes.

The disadvantages of wall papers are obvious. The effect of the prettiest and most carefully furnished room is often entirely spoiled by a background of dirty wall paper; in many cases peeling off through damp, while the health of its inmates may be actually impaired through their preference for such decoration. If exposed to the light, wall paper soon fades. "CALCITINE," in the majority of colors, never fades, and lasts for years. Thanks to its antiseptic quality, "CALCITINE" prevents colds, influenza and many other infectious complaints. Killing of many microbes which may lodge on the wall. "CALCITINE" is made in a powder which only requires mixing of cold water, and which, while not rubbing on the clothes, can be removed with water if desired.

It is only intended for interior decoration. 14 lbs. of "CALCITINE" will cover up to 150 square yards of surface, while the same quantity of any ordinary Washable Distemper covers little more than half that area.

"CALCITINE" is admirably adapted for plain or decorative work, not only in private houses, but also in churches, chapels, shops, factories, schools, hospitals and public buildings of every description, affording a beautifully smooth, velvety eating. The 65 shades in which "CALCITINE" is manufactured lend themselves to the most charming and striking effects.

"CALCITINE" is equally suitable for new or old work, does not blister or flake, and will not rub off. One coat is sufficient. It can be used with equal success by amateurs as by experienced workmen.

All Colours in Stock, 7c. a pound.
