YOUR EYES ARE IN TROUBLE

It is a shocking experience to see the numerous blind people moving about the streets.

Each of us gives a quick, sympathetic thought to those unfortunate and each of us goes hurriedly on our way, overlooking entirely the unconscious message these sightless humans have for us.

If you asked them they would tell you that your eyes are your most priceless possession—once gone, the wealth of an empire could not restore them.

Little eye troubles lead to bigger eye troubles. Prevent them by consulting me—free of charge.

CHAPTER XXXV.
SYDNEY DRIVES A BARGAIN.
Mary was distinctly shaking her head behind the speaker. "I couldn't undertake that—I don't think it practicable," her husband answered. "It would surely get to them who you were. Best be above board at once, Miss Alwyn."

She looked at him with distress not to be explained. "But you will make them take the money? Bind them to do it somehow?" Mary's mouth formed a visible "no."

"I fear my urging would be of no use," responded Richard Drayton, a model of marital obedience. "I must treat the matter as I should, unless he is singularly changed. He will prefer any species of work to mauling a generous woman in this way."

"But oh, if he knew how refusal would hurt me!" she cried, leaning forward with her hands clasped.

Mary made expressive signs at the supple, entreating figure. "If you told him that yourself, he might be induced to take your view of it," conceded Mary's spouse, "but I couldn't tie myself to persuade him."

"Go with Richard and me to Wynstone," suggested Mary, stooping over the girl, "then, you know, dear, you can put it in a business way, and settle it all perhaps in a few minutes."

"The best way possible, unless you prefer writing to that Miss Hurst—Mrs. Babbington, whatever she is," coincided Mr. Drayton.

Sydney changed color. That arch-bunderer, Miss Jean, might so convey her offer that Mr. Hurst would infallibly reject it. The best perhaps only, chance of extorting his acceptance of it might lie in her urging it herself on some such pretext as had lured him into book-making. Drooping, for this pang she was courting, to meet, to have him again, pierced her before-time.

"Then I think I will go," she said, and having chosen this course a feverish haste possessed her to start forth upon it. "Are you, are we, going to-day?" she asked.

"To-day! Why, Sydney, child, you need a week's nursing before you get out on that expedition!"

"I want no nursing, I am exceedingly well, Mary," this is hot haste; then sinking back wearily, "and I can come here afterward, you know, Miss Amber will take care of me then."

"Mary is wise. We should put Wynstone off for a few days, I think," said Mr. Drayton.

"And let Mr. Babbington oust Miss Hurst's brother, and sling him into the pleasant coils of Mr. Montague Carle! And you call that being his friend!" cried Sydney, brimming over with indignation.

"Then suppose we say to-morrow," yielded the gentleman; his commander-in-chief having telegraphed to that effect. And "to-morrow," soon after midday, they went.

From efforts at most charming cheerfulness—reward for their concession—Sydney subsided, as they neared Capel Moor, into speechlessness, and as they traversed the lane to Wynstone, now paced in front of her companions, now lagged behind, in a mood deplorable only by one of her own sex. Mrs. Drayton's own pulse went a trifle faster from certain conjurings up of her usually placid imagination; but her fancies she loyally kept to herself—bride though she was.

"I am afraid Miss Alwyn won't accomplish what she is come for," said Mr. Drayton, as they passed the church; Sydney lingering by the gate.

"We shall see," returned his oracles, and just then a trim West-country lass met them, looked at the unknown pair inquisitively, and Sydney with broad saluting smile and a courtesy.

"Miss Grey back, I do declare now! But they're not expecting of you, are they, miss? 'cause mistress gave me half a day to go to mother's. But if you please I'll run back again, and be ready to open the door before you get there; yes, indeed!"

"And so lose your holiday, Fanny!" said Sydney. "No, you shall not do that. We are only—making a call."

"But, miss," expostulated the maid, "Rebecca's in the garden-pickin' strawberries. She'll never hear the bell, and for sure, she's that slow she'll take five minutes answering it. And strangers, too," with a side courtesy at Miss Grey's friends. "Let me run back, miss."

"They mind waiting no more than I do," (Truly, Sydney was grateful for the respite. Like a coward, she was the wishing herself a thousand miles away.) "Shall we find all—both—at home?" That much she must know.

"Yes, miss, as yet. But come Monday, and they're a-going off, Mr. Hurst into the West Wales, and—something of a chuckle—"and mistress coming where to Mr. Babbington's sister's to get married you! The road's dusty a bit by, Miss Grey; won't you go in by the orchard?" volunteered Fanny, departing with another courtesy.

"Yes, that we will," said Mary Drayton, covering Sydney's silence abruptly, with complaints of the heat; and taking the shadier way, they just contrived to escape seeing of being seen by Miss Hurst, who, with many assurances to her brother that she should not be half an hour absent, started at that precise minute from her own porch off to the Manor House.

"Oh, the river, the river, and the Bull!" cried Mary, enthusiastically, as the new un-Suffolk-like scenes opened out. "Sydney, you never made half enough of what you had to leave. It is a picture I could look at home for hours."

"I believe Miss Alwyn would find it easier to say what she intends to Hurst and his sister without us sitting by listening. Then we would put in an appearance presently, and do our share of the persuasion if necessary."

"Flowers of the Valley,"

MABEL HOWARD, OF THE LYRIC.

CHAPTER I.
Perhaps it was that she missed that which crowns most girls' lives with happiness and peace—a mother; for look as far back as she could, Iris could not from the dim visions of the past bring back any memory of her mother. Ever since she could remember, she and her father had lived alone.

She knew that her mother was an Italian, that her name was like her own, Iris, and that the years of her own childhood had been spent with her father in the land of her mother's birth.

It was from her mother, doubtless, that she had got the dark, lustrous eyes, the soft, black hair and long lashes, while her father had contributed the patrician face and the family pride.

In addition to her beauty she had inherited another gift; she had the voice which is given to so many of the children of the sunny south—a voice as clear and full and musical as a nightingale's; imperial in its strength, and divine in its grace and power of expression.

But exquisite as it was, it was not often heard; for, strange to say, Godfrey Knighton, until the years of her father's death, had been a man who was not pleased when his daughter sang. So she sang out in the woods—her own woods, where none came but the game-keepers or the laborers—in her own rooms.

Don't jump to the conclusion that, because he did not like to hear his daughter's voice in song, Godfrey Knighton was a hard or unkind father; no man could love a daughter more tenderly, more passionately, than he did Iris. Cold, stern, almost forbidding to the rest of the world, he was tenderness itself to her. "Cold and hard," though expressive enough, scarcely convey any idea of his manner to the outside world. He was a man who spoke seldom, and smiled never. Just as a Roman lawyer, he rarely smiled to marry, and was he to the poetess caught red-handed in the act, or the thief found in the hen roost or the peach orchard!

And yet, though so inflexibly just, he was generous to a fault. There were no poor in Knighton, and no stranger was ever turned away from Revel's gates until he had appeased his hunger and got something in the way of coin to help him on his way.

But there seemed to hang a cloud over Godfrey Knighton, and the faint tinge of sadness in Iris's eyes was but the vague reflection of a deeper melancholy in his own. A shadow hung over the Revel's, less of its nature and cause every one, even Iris herself, was ignorant. He had left England a young man of twenty had left it and disappeared as completely as if he had been dead, and had returned fifteen years afterward with his young daughter, beautiful even then, though with only a promise of her future loveliness. She was fourteen when he came back, and beyond her age she knew nothing.

Of all that happened to him during his absence, Godfrey Knighton said not one word to any living soul. Of his dead wife he told nothing. His past life in the far-away south remained as dark and mysterious as it had ever been during his absence, and there was certainly no one of his friends who dared to ask him a single question.

He had married, his wife had died giving birth to a daughter, and Iris the daughter, and Iris was that daughter; that was all that was known, though no one could say that he had actually stated even this much; but the county was only too glad to have him back on any terms, and welcomed with open arms the man who was lord of the manor of Revels and the magnifi-

Bishop Advocates Permanent Pacific Conference.

SYDNEY, N.S.W. (Associated Press)—Establishment of a permanent Pacific conference and an island federation was urged recently by Dr. Radford, Bishop of Goulburn, in an address before the Governor-General, the admiral commanding the fleet and other distinguished persons. Dr. Radford said a standing Pacific conference should include all powers having possessions in the Pacific Ocean—the British Empire, United States, Japan, France and China—and perhaps Holland and India. As a nucleus for united and solid action, he proposed a triple alliance of Great Britain, the United States and Japan. He proposed that a federation be formed of the groups of Pacific Islands which are now under mandate to Australia and New Zealand, or are colonies of Great Britain. These islands would all have representatives in a federal council in which Australia, New Zealand and Great Britain also would be represented. Ultimately, he thought, Great Britain might find it desirable to withdraw from direct representation in this council and entrust the task of maintaining the prestige of the British Empire in the Pacific entirely to Australia and New Zealand.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94 P.C. AIR

Beats Electric or Gas
A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, says a letter that gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal-oil). The inventor, T. W. Johnson, 248 Craig St. W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $20 to $500 per month.

Ontario Justice.

(From an Exchange).
An Ontario farmer caught a young woman doing a "September Morn" on his property and had her haled before the country magistrate.

"What's the charge?" asked his honor.

"Takin' a bath in the spring, your worship," said the constable.

"The aged dispenser of justice consulted a doctored copy of the statutes and buried himself in its pages for several minutes, then closing the legal tome and stroking his beard he said very solemnly, "The charge is dismissed and the miss is discharged. I find that she had just as much right to take a bath in the spring as in the jail."

New Varieties of Fish Discovered.

SOME ICHTHOLOGICAL DESIGNATIONS.

HONOLULU, Sept. — (Associated Press)—Varieties of fish hitherto unknown were discovered as a result of the eruption of the volcano of Mauna Loa two years ago. This fact has just been announced by Dr. David Starr Jordan, Chancellor Emeritus of Leland Stanford junior university, California, noted ichthyologist. The columns of lava burrowed deeper into the ocean than man had been able to penetrate and thousands of fish of strange and fantastic shape and color were killed and washed up on the beach by the tidal waves caused by the "lava" flow. Among them were found six varieties hitherto unknown to science because their habitat was presumably lower in the water than science had been able to observe. Amateur ichthyologists in Hilo, Hawaii, selected species which were unknown to them and sent them to Dr. Jordan for examination. The result was that the six new species, were classified. "I consider the discoveries from a scientific viewpoint, to be among the most remarkable and important on record," Dr. Jordan said when he made public the classifications here, while he was attending the sessions of the Pan-Pacific Educational Conference.

The designations given to the six species by Dr. Jordan are:—Los Ezelias, a species of kikihi or butterfly fish, strikingly banded in yellow and black; Venosus Eregeticus, so designated because of its resemblance to a wasp's nest; Rhyacanthias Carimithi, named for Carl A. Carimith, of Hilo, who sent many of the species to Dr. Jordan. It is a deep rose red in color; Rhoichias Armaiger, a conger eel with hooks on its snout resembling black-berry thorns and is solid dull black in color; Nyctimaster Teimhardt, named for the Hilo resident who discovered it. It is a small black lantern fish, so designated because of the many luminous glands behind the eye and along its sides which give the impression of phosphorescence. It is a solid dull black in color; Peristichion Eryceros or alligator fish of a brilliant scarlet hue which is characterized by large bony plates of armor.

Each of the six is a deep-water fish. All live in water of more than 150 feet in depth and some as deep as 600 feet. Nothing except such a cataclysm of nature as the Aloka flow could have brought them to the surface. Dr. Jordan said: "Rhyacanthias Carimithi ranged at least 1,000 feet below the ocean's surface, he added. Dr. Jordan has sent to the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C., a paper detailing the results of the investigation and the new classifications.

STINGER AND STUNG.

A merchant prince can sting me once, but one time will suffice; and I would be the premium dunce to let him sting me twice. When I receive my monthly bills mistakes I've often caught; I'm charged for boots or beeswax pills, the which I never bought. "Some error of a clerk," I say, and journey to the store, where things are straightened right away, and 'no one's head is sore. All honest men may make mistakes, which they in haste retrieve, and even I have made my breaks—which fact you'll scarce believe. But if my grocers represent their sand as being pure, and no cheap sugar with it, then, their tricks I can't endure. If I discover when I try to sweeten up my tea the sand's been sugared on the fly—such methods sicken me. And if the dairyman would blink, I say to him, "Avaunt! You try to sell me lugs of milk, when water's what I want. I fain would love my fevered brow with water, ere I die, and you produce an antique cow, and say it's juice is fine." Of previous tricks the world is full, and silver, and lead, and lead, they sell us shoddy rags for wool, and paper shoes as calf. And ever, as I sing and dance, I hand out this advice; the same man shouldn't have a chance to sting the voter twice.

Household Notes.

Green grapes make a delicious preserve.

Stewed apples are good with roast duck.

Beets keep nicely packed in sand like turnips.

Stuffed ham is good served with a cream sauce.

Rice with cheese makes a good stuffing for tomatoes.

Butter for sandwiches should always be creamed.

A little cheese favoring improves stuffed baked potatoes.

A very delicious dish is creamed oysters served on snails.

When you make apple jelly save the pulp for apple butter.

Fleets of good stuffing makes roast chicken go much further.

Be sure to flood the house with fresh air at least twice a day.

Hops is a very economical meat, as there is not much waste to it.

To hasten your cake-making get the eggs through a potato ricer.

Just Talks

A BOWL OF APPLES AND A BOOK.
A bowl of apples and a book and a grate fire blinding high. What greater joy can man possess, what deeper comfort buy? So sit me down on the autumn nights with a book to thrill my soul, and I'll be content while the log fire burns and the apples fill the bowl.

For this is a dual life we lead, what- ever a man believes. There's the life of strife with its hours of care and the hours that he must grieve. But his other life is a term of peace when he finds the cloistered nooks and walks and talks with the mystic friends in the pages of his books.

A night to read from the world apart, slippered and well content. With the changeless friends of the printed page, could better a night be spent? A fire that leaps as his fancies fly, is anything needed more? Just a bowl of apples handy by from Autumn's golden store.

I've known rich joys in the years that were and look to the joys to be. But splendor giveth no peace like this to the restless soul of me. For these three make me a happy man, these three are my heart's desire. A bowl of apples and a book, and the blaze of an open fire.

Canadian Elections Cause Change of Heart in U.S.—Another Conference Proposed by Lloyd George—Mayflower Syndicate Will Protest Barring of Vessel.

WASHINGTON'S VIEW OF CANADIAN ELECTIONS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28. Premier Meighen's announcement that the tariff is to be the leading issue of the Canadian election campaign aroused a great deal of interest in political circles here. It is thought that the Emergency Tariff Bill recently passed, which put what was declared to be a prohibitive duty on Canadian wheat, may assume prime importance in the election campaign and in the Dominion, and this and the probably heavy duties on certain lines of goods, which the Permanent Tariff Bill will likely impose, it is thought, may produce a sentiment in Canada in favor of retaliatory duties. For this reason the campaign in the Dominion will likely be watched here with particular interest. It was learned this morning that there is a possibility that there may be no general revision of the United States tariff bill until 1923. Several prominent members of the House of Commons expressed this view to the Canadian press correspondent. The bill, they declared, is certain to be delayed until February or March, and it is anticipated that politicians will demand that the new bill be delayed until after the congressional campaign of next summer and fall.

THE LAST NOTE

LONDON, Sept. 28. Lloyd George's communication to De Valera, which is announced, will not be made public to-day, it is understood to contain an invitation to Sinn Fein leaders to attend a conference in London about the middle of October. It is believed the note makes it clear that the conference is called to discuss Irish Self-Government within the Empire, but that there is nothing contained in it that would make its acceptance by Sinn Fein impossible, or demand explicit concurrence with the British standpoint, as conditional to conference.

REPLY DELAYED.

LONDON, Sept. 28. Lloyd George's reply to Eamonn De

Valera will not be issued to-day, and there is doubt as to whether it will be available to-morrow, it is said, but it has been decided to withhold despatch another day to give all members of the Cabinet an opportunity of further consideration.

REPLY ALREADY DECIDED.

DUBLIN, Sept. 28. It is considered probable that De Valera's answer to Lloyd George's communication expected here will be prompt, and that there will be no necessity for summing Paul Eireann.

ECONOMIC PENALTIES LIFTED.

PARIS, Sept. 28. Economic penalties, imposed upon Germany by the Allies for non-fulfillment of the peace treaty, will be lifted on September 30th. Dr. Meyer, German Ambassador here was informed to-day by Premier Briand. The Premier laid before him the terms of the Allied agreement as regarded control established on the Rhine frontier after economic penalties were raised. He said the German Government had accepted the stipulations.

CHURCHILL AND CROWN COLONIES.

LONDON, Sept. 28. Development of the Crown Colonies is one of the factors which ought to be used in solving the temporary collapse of the markets, declared the Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, addressing members of the Gold Coast service at a dinner last night. He said the time had now come when the Crown Colonies, which had attained adult status, should press forward by utilizing their great resources in stimulating economic development.

AFTERMATH OF COAL STRIKE.

LONDON, Sept. 28. (By Canadian Press)—The unemployment situation in the coal mining districts cast a dark shadow over to-day's meeting of the Executive of the Miner's Federation in London. The main business up for discussion to-day was the finding of ways and means of carrying on the coal industry when

The Only Remedy.

(From the Westminster Gazette.)

For any real solution of the unemployment problem we must look further. Unemployment is by no means confined to these islands. In the United States it is more serious than here, and over a large part of Europe it has reached dimensions which are beyond all control. The whole world is suffering from under-production, which springs directly from the failure of demand. The failure of demand, in its turn, is simply an inability to buy. Europe, it is certain, wants goods of every kind. The peoples are in dire straits because they cannot obtain those goods, and the reason they cannot obtain them is that they have nothing to offer in exchange. Goods may be paid for in gold or in other goods and services, or they may be obtained upon credit. Europe has not gold, and is not in a position to offer other goods in exchange for what we have to sell. The only resource is loans, and before loans are forthcoming the lenders must have confidence that at some time more or less distant they will have their capital returned. Naturally there is reluctance on the part of possessors of wealth to lend money against paper currencies which are subject to the wildest fluctuations, and are being produced without any regard to the assets behind them. So we arrive at what is really a political question. The richer States can enable the poorer to struggle to their feet, but before they will do so they look for some guarantee of peace and the work that peace makes possible. There is no such guarantee in the present condition of Europe. We are reaching in unemployment and other evils the harvest of a bad peace, and of the failure to realize that the vast waste of material resources in the war must be made good by an era of rigid economy.

By all means let us do what we can to meet the immediate hardships of unemployment even at a cost which appears wasteful. Industry cannot escape the responsibility of maintaining in a time of depression the reserves which it requires in good periods. At the same time let us keep before our minds the fact that there can be no permanent improvement, without a revival of world trade, and that revival will only come from enabling our customers abroad, even our enemy customers, once more to resume their places as sellers of goods. For that a real peace and a helping hand are imperative.

Officers of the Nursery.

Formerly children, or boys at school, had commissions in the army, but in 1705, by a Royal Order, an attempt was made to check abuses naturally following on these clumsy arrangements. It ran: "Her Majesty, finding it very prejudicial to the service to have commissions given to children, and others unfit to do duty with their regiments, is pleased to declare that for the future no person who is not of age sufficient to serve, shall be admitted into any of Her Majesty's troops, except the children of officers who have been slain, or who have suffered extremely in the service, in which case the merits of the father may make it reasonable to show that mark of royal favour to the son." The following is an instance of the appointment:—"Whitehall, September 25, 1711. Her Majesty has been pleased to grant Titton Minshall, a child, a commission of ensign in Brigadier Stanwix's Regiment of Foot in order for the support of his mother and family, in consequence of the loss of his father and uncle who died in the service; and has likewise given him a furlough to be absent from duty until further ordered." There were to be but two such commissions for each regiment, and when a regiment was ordered on foreign service the boys were to exchange with adult officers in other regiments. The practice had so tedious an existence that stories were told about colonels in nurseries. This system was known to, if not approved by, Parliament, as is endorsed by the 1st and 2nd rules relating to half-pay, enacted 4 Geo. 1 c. 5, sect. 13, and it continued in practice until the Duke of York assumed command of the army, when not only did he refuse to make any more such appointments, but he superseded many "officers" who were children, or boys at school.

A Curious Bridge.

Across the Capilano Canyon, near North Vancouver, is stretched a swing bridge that has no other support than a few cables secured at both ends. It is about 450 feet long and of sufficient width for three foot passengers to walk abreast on it. As it hangs loosely in mid-air it sways with every step taken upon it, but it is strongly built, with good planking laid on the cables and a stout railing at the sides. The bottom of the canyon, through which pours a mountain-born stream, is 220 feet below, and an aerial crossing at such a height is a good test of one's nerves. But the Capilano swinging bridge carries its passengers safely over and for many years past has been found entirely dependable.

Towers of Silence.

Bombay has no more curious sight than the Towers of Silence, the Parsee cemetery.

The Towers, five in number, are situated in a very beautiful park, with little temples among the trees and flowers. Inside each tower, near the top, is an iron grating on which the naked corpses are laid, and no sooner are they there than the awaiting vultures descend and consume the flesh. I saw these grisly birds sitting expectantly in rows on the coping of the towers (writes E. V. Lucas in "Roving East and Roving West"), and the sight was almost too gruesome.

The Parsees choose this method of dissolution because, since they worship fire, they must not ask it to demean itself with the dead; and both earth and water they hold also too sacred to use for burial.

World's Largest Flower.

The world's biggest flower is a parasite found in the island of Sumatra and is known to botanists as Rafflesia Arnoldi. It was first discovered by a Dr. Arnold, in whose honor it was named. Other species also occur in Java and the Philippines. A party of travellers found one of these flowers about four feet in diameter, and not having any scales made a balance, using certain packed boxes to offset the flower. These were marked, and when weighed at their destination found to be 22½ pounds. This flower emits such a powerful stench that its presence is known long before it can be seen.

Do you know what constitutes a strong constitution?

To have sound, healthy nerves, completely under control, digestive organs that are capable of absorbing a hearty meal, means you have a strong constitution! Your general attitude is one of optimism and energy.

But an irritable disposition, frequent attacks of indigestion, and a languid depression, indicate your system is not in correct working order.

Probably you are not eating the proper food. Probably the nutritious elements are not being supplied to your system in the proper way.

Grape-Nuts is the wholesome, delicious cereal that promotes normal digestion, absorption and elimination, whereby nourishment is accomplished without auto-intoxication. A mixture of energy-giving wheat and malted barley comprise the chief elements of Grape-Nuts. A dish at breakfast or lunch is an excellent, wholesome rule to follow.

You can order Grape-Nuts at any and every hotel, restaurant, and lunch room; on dining cars, on lake boats and steamers; in every good grocery, large and small, in every city, town or village in Canada.

Camphor is "Solid" Steam.

Camphor is a gum distilled from trees in the camphor forests of Japan and Formosa. The most valuable camphor forests are in savage territory.

A camphor tree is felled, then sawn through lengthwise. The whole air is pervaded with the pungent odour of camphor. With a gouge-shaped adze a native chips off little pieces from the tree. These strips are taken to the stills, placed in an iron retort, and heated over a slow fire.

The camphor vapour given off by the chips passes along a bamboo tube into a cooling box, where it condenses in the form of snowlike crystals.

The chips are renewed every day, and about once a week the crystals are scraped off from the sides and bottom of the box.

Ruins Purchased.
The brick, stone and other material left in the ruins of the Trade Bakery destroyed by fire last December has been sold by private sale, the purchase price is understood to be in the neighbourhood of $500. There is quite a large quantity of brick and stone on the premises and the cost of their removal will be no slight matter.

Side Talks By Ruth Cameron

BE YOUR CHILD'S FAIRY GODMOTHER.

A wonderful mother who is a shining ornament to her profession in most ways surprised me by confessing that she hadn't the heart to make her children keep their rooms in order and otherwise develop habits of order and system.

"I try to enforce the rule that if they leave their hats and coats and rubbers, or their games, or dolls, or books around they shall be deprived of some privilege, but the only reason they forget is because they are so eager and so interested in something and I just can't bear to penalize them."

Terrible to have to disappoint a child. If one has anything to do with of the chance to develop the habits of system and order in early life. Some day, they, and others connected with them, are going to suffer keenly from that deprivation.

Habits are like paths. Once you get them trodden down it is easy to follow them. They become the line of least resistance and there is no greater blessing in life than to have the line of least resistance lead you where it is desirable to go. Habits are like paths, too, in that they are so easy to form at the beginning of life before the underbrush has grown up; later they can be formed but oh, what a struggle it is to clear the way!

Underbrush is Very Thick.

I can speak very feelingly on this subject myself because I am the child of a mother who was too unselfish, too tender hearted to force a very disorderly child to overcome her fault. I have been trying since I had a home of my own to clear the pathway for habits of order, through a tangle of underbrush and I am beginning to get it cleared, but oh, how I wish I had done it years ago.

Your mothers, who wish you might give your children all the good gifts, do not fail to give them, if you can possibly accomplish it, the habit of order and system. No fairy godmother would leave that out of her bag of 12 gifts. Be your son or daughter's fairy godmother.

But is it right to yourself? Is it fair to the children?

The time a mother of three or four disorderly children spends in picking up after them would run into hours every week. Can't she make some better use of those hours, some use that will bring greater benefits to both herself and the children than this?

She Deprives the Children of a Chance.

But even more important it seems to me is the deprivation she works on the children. She deprives them

School for Detectives.

TRAINING IN SHERLOCK HOLMES METHODS.

New York, Sept. 25.—(Associated Press)—Department of Justice agents are going to school to read books and learn how to be detectives. The curriculum of the school, just started by the Bureau of Investigation, includes study of such technicalities as the laws of search and arrest, rudiments of evidence, rights of citizens and preparation of cases for prosecution.

William J. Burns, chief of the bureau, explained that establishment of the school was the first step to do away with hit-or-miss methods. "We are going to teach our men to get results," he said. "Shipload investigation, making a search, by chance, is going to stop. And men who cannot be taught to be effective will be dropped. Federal investigators are going to learn right away that they are not to flash their shields for their own amusement; and they are going to learn that the real object of this bureau is to protect citizens and to prevent crime, not just to arrest crooks. We are not going to set the world afire, but we are going to give this country a detective service of which its citizens can be just proud as the English are of Scotland Yard."

Edward J. Brennan, division superintendent of the bureau, asserted that, to permit department officials to get a line on their men, recruits would put in a month of study before being placed on active duty. "Otherwise he would be helpless when he started out," he continued. "If without training he were sent out to investigate a bank robbery, he would not even know where to begin. He would not know how to proceed with a search without getting into legal difficulties. He would not know where the state and Federal jurisdictions overlapped. That just is one of the most complicated points of all. For example, a robbery on Park Row is a matter for the state authorities, but a robbery 20 feet away in the post office is up to us. Ordinarily, safe-breaking in a national bank is a state offence but if there is collusion between the actual thief and one of the bank employees the Department of Justice takes up the case. Our men have to be ready for any kind of investigation. One day they are in overalls on the docks, the next in a white collar in a bank. And the work is so complicated that mere experience is not enough, though it will always be the biggest factor. The man on the street cannot make a bigger mistake than to say that there is nothing about a detective's trade that can be learned out of books."

Italians Indignant.

ROME (Associated Press)—Much indignation has been aroused in Italy by the proposal that, in determining the expenses of the League of Nations, Italy should be assigned to the second category. The Italian's national pride has been hurt by the suggestion, and columns have appeared in the press protesting against the idea of relegating the country to a position inferior to other great powers. According to the suggestion, Great Britain and France would be placed in the first category, while Italy and Japan would occupy the second. The price of being registered in the first category is 2,800,000 francs a year, while those of the second pay but 1,400,000 francs a year.

The Epoca gave expression to the feelings in this manner: "The affair is exceptionally unpleasant. Italy which has so potently contributed to the victory cannot see herself assigned to the second category, as people who spend little are assigned to a restaurant of the second class. The fact that most of the organizations and secretariats of the League are in the hands of the British constitutes another source of complaint. It is pointed out that the secretariat of the league consists of 170 members, of whom 90 are English and 50 French, while Italy has no more than a dozen.

"After France and England have monopolized nearly all the offices, after the British Empire has succeeded in having seven votes in the assembly, it could not happen otherwise than Italy is assigned in the second category," says one commentator. "If others have a greater material potentiality, it is at least necessary that Italy safeguard her moral position by not allowing herself an inferior position to the others."

HOUSEKEEPERS!

Molasses advanced in price over $15.00 per puncheon since last month but sugar hasn't started to go up yet.

Perhaps your Grocer will sell you a case of Lantic (100 lbs.) in 2 pound or 5 pound yellow packages. Full weight guaranteed.

The present price of raw sugar stock in Cuba is about $1.50 per 100 pounds, it costs $3.50 when it reaches the Refineries.

Cost of refining, packages, labor, etc., make it worth about $4.75 when delivered at terminal for export.

Freight, insurance, duty and other charges bring the value to about $12.25 on the wharf at St. John's.

With cartage, labor, interest, etc., it costs your Grocer about $12.75, and the cartage from your grocer's shop to your house will cost 50 cents or $1.00.

Now it's up to you to figure up what the price is likely to be next month and govern yourself accordingly.

When you buy Lantic Sugar in packages you get the purest, finest, cleanest, sweetest sugar that can be made. If this isn't so, we shall pay you one hundred dollars.

ABOUT WONDERFUL NATURE.

(By Ernest Crabbe, in Tit-Bits.)

When a little spider was observed to throw its silken thread over a running brooklet, and another species of the same group built a fairy dome of imprisoned air beneath the waters of the stream, great engineers were said to have taken their stand on the suspension bridge and the diving bell from these humble creatures.

No sooner does any great "modern" discovery startle us than we generally have to admit that Nature had thought of it before.

Nothing exists in the natural world that is entirely useless, although the exact purpose may not always be clear.

This is seen especially in the case of the "antennae" or feelers of insects, those strange organs which have puzzled scientists ever since the study of insect life has been pursued. The weird uses to which these "arms" seem to be put have led to the conclusion that insects enjoy the use of a kind of natural "wireless" far more delicate and more effective than our own.

At one time it was thought that these quivering "feelers" were organs of hearing, and again, organs of smell or touch, but experiments have proved these ideas unsatisfactory.

It was found that the explanation lay in the direction of a new sense that we know little of.

The antennae do not appear to be vital organs, like the heart or the brain. Yet, if a butterfly had them cut off, or they were injured on its hatching out, the insect behaved in an extraordinary fashion. It would shoot straight up into the air at first, and its flight would be erratic for a space, after which the poor insect would settle down into a numbed, listless state.

The common garden ant gives a familiar instance of the important function of antennae.

These little creatures are Nature's engineers, and perform the useful service of breaking up and aerating the soil whilst carrying out their wonderful earthworks.

Now, supposing a worker starts off from the nest in the morning and happens to find, say, a dead beetle that will provide meat for the household. She hurries back, and on the way meets another ant on her outward bound. The lightest touch of an antennae upon that of her friend is sufficient to convey full particulars as to the place and nature of the plunder. The outgoing ant proceeds direct to the spot and aids in the home-bringing, whilst ant No. 1 continues to summon others as she returns to headquarters.

The news is clearly conveyed in a way superior to speech or dumb show, and it would be interesting to compare the comparatively clumsy behaviour of human beings under similar circumstances.

The uses of the antennae, however, by no means end here, a greater mystery still remaining to be solved. The "quivering" most certainly has reference to a power of reading or sensing invisible wave-vibrations in the air.

The female Emperor Moth, for instance, can send a message with her simple threadlike antennae that will be received by the finely feathered "feelers" of several ardent males, and lead the luckiest of them unerringly to her abode amid the heather on the moor.

These moths sometimes come from remarkable distances at her silent but certain call, and, needless to say, the strongest and swiftest-winged Emperor gains the fair one!

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

RELEASE REQUESTED.

LONDON, Sept. 28. Laborite Mayor of London Boroughs to-day presented a memorial to Sir Alfred Mond, Health Minister, asking for the release of the Poplar Borough Council members, imprisoned recently for refusing to comply with an order of the High Court, requiring them to raise tax rates in accordance with the ruling of the London County Council.

Major stated that prisoners are willing to participate in a conference for an amicable settlement, provided they are released on this understanding. The memorial expresses an opinion that a settlement could have been reached without the employment of coercive measures.

BELFAST SENDS DEPUTATION.

DUBLIN, Sept. 28. Eamonn De Valera this afternoon received a Belfast deputation, which stated it represented 100,000 citizens, who were resolved to refuse recognition to a partition Parliament.

WORLD'S ALTITUDE RECORD.

DAYTON, Ohio, Sept. 23. Lieut. John S. A. McCrea, test pilot at McCook Field, today mastered the world's altitude record, attaining a height of 40,800 feet in the same Laplace biplane used by Capt. C. Schepeler, who set a record of 38,000 feet on Feb. 18, 1920.

S.U.F. LODGE FOR SYDNEY.

SYDNEY, N.S., Sept. 28. To provide a social meeting place for former Newfoundlanders in Cape Breton a Lodge of the Society of United Fishermen of the Ancient Colony is to be established here next week. Grand Master J. Curnew and other Grand Officers are coming from St. John's to assist in the organization of "Maple Leaf" Lodge, the first of its kind on the mainland. The organization will also undertake to look after the interests of fishermen on the coast adjacent to Sydney.

FUNERAL PARTY FIRED ON.

BELFAST, Sept. 28. A party, returning to the city from a cemetery this afternoon was fired upon. One man was killed and three wounded.

TO LESSEN UNEMPLOYMENT.

LONDON, Sept. 28. (Canadian Press)—What the Government actually propose regarding larger financial measures for relief of the unemployment is at present indicated only by newspaper despatches from correspondents around the Premier in Scotland. Broadly speaking, the suggestion is that banks are to be induced by Government guarantees, or otherwise, to lend money more freely for trade financing. Bankers already declare there has not been at any time undue withholding of credits.

FIGHTING AT ATHENS.

ATHENS, Sept. 28. Minor infantry and artillery fighting along the Ekefashan front in Asia Minor, is reported officially.

FROM BELGIUM TO IRELAND.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 28. Captain Paul Brewster, a Swiss aviator, has been declared winner of the International Air Race by the James Gordon Bennett Trophy. Starting out from here the Brewster balloon flew seven hundred and sixty miles, landing on the Coast of Ireland.

TYPHOON KILLS HUNDREDS.

TOKYO, Sept. 28. Several hundred people have been killed by a typhoon in Central Japan, centering upon Nagoya, an island of Hono, where a tidal wave destroyed crops and houses.

REDUCING SALARIES.

TORONTO, Sept. 28. Immediate cuts of ten per cent. in the salaries and wages of all the staff of the Spanish River Pulp and Poyer Company, from the President down to the most diminutive boy, were announced at the annual meeting of the company to-day. President Mead predicted a gradual reduction in production costs during the next two years. He thought that the market price of the commodity was approaching a point of stability.

LOSES GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28. Jack Hutchinson of Chicago, open golf champion of Great Britain, to-day lost his title as the professional champion of United States. In a tournament at the Enwood Country Club, he was eliminated by General Sarazen of Titusville, 8 and 7.

NO CHANGE IN FARMERS' PLATFORM.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 23. (By Canadian Press)—There will be no change in the Farmer's platform for the coming election, was the decision reached at this morning's session of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, which met here to-day to consider campaign plans for the National Progressive Party in the election. The platform of the Canadian Council of Agriculture is based on a substantial all-round reduction of customs tariff from trade with Great Britain in five years. It also advocated acceptance of a reciprocity agreement with United States, and the placing of all foodstuffs, not included in the agreement list, with agricultural implements, farm machinery and all materials and machinery used in their manufacture.

GERMANY TAKING ADVANTAGE.

MUNICH, Sept. 29. "We must go to the limit of our capacity with regard to reparations," Dr. Walter Rathenau, German Minister of Reconstruction, declared before the Congress of the Imperial Association of German Trades, which opened yesterday. "Complete fulfillment of the terms of the indemnity ultimatum will affect the world economically more seriously than ourselves," he said. Britain had three million unemployed, and the more Germany worked the more others would cease working.

ROUND THE WORLD BY AIR.

LONDON, Sept. 29. "We are leaving nothing to chance," was Sir Keith Smith's parting shot to an interviewer, after outlining precautions he and his brother, Sir Ross Smith, are taking to ensure the success of their flight round the world next spring. "We are pretty certain the flight will be made some day, and we are keen to have the honor go to Britishers," said Sir Keith. The route has not yet been decided, but Sir Keith favors crossing the Atlantic first.

FINAL NOTE SENT.

LONDON, Sept. 29. Lloyd George to-day despatched what was expected to be the British Government's final note to Eamonn De Valera, relative to holding a conference, which would seek a basis for Irish peace. Before sending his note to Dublin, the Premier received from members of the Cabinet their views as to its text.

RUSSIAN RELIEF.

GENEVA, Sept. 29. Recommendations that the Assembly of the League of Nations appeal to members for credits for Russia will not be made by the Russian Relief Committee, it was announced here to-day. The matter of securing funds for Russian Relief will be left entirely to welfare organizations, and to a conference to be held in Brussels soon.

Faces 750 Operations.

Having already submitted to 250 skin grafting operations but facing 750 more, Cecilia Starkey, sixteen years old, of Jersey City, smilingly awaits the ordeal and utters little prayers of thanks to the Jersey firemen, who have sacrificed their skin that she may live.

According to the hospital surgeons each individual bit of grafting has been successful and they do not hesitate to say they believe the young patient, in the course of time, will be almost as good as ever.

"We expect it will take about 750 more grafting operations before the burned surface is renewed with healthy flesh," said a hospital surgeon, "but she is bearing up wonderfully and with the sacrifices being made by her brother and his friends we expect soon to have her able to leave the hospital."

The girl was frightfully burned about four months ago when a stove over which she was working exploded. It was at first thought she had no chance for life. As a last resort skin grafting was decided upon and volunteers called for. Being a sister of three Jersey City firemen, practically every member of the fire fighting force tried to be the first to volunteer.

The Machine That a Glance Sets Going.

Intense scientific interest centres in the "Look-at-Meter"—the strange instrument which is moved by the humap eye.

With a view to clearing up the mystery, a little, an interesting series of tests is proposed by Dr. H. Hartridge, Fellow of King's College, Cambridge.

The instrument, broadly speaking, consists of a delicately suspended "solenoid" (a wire in spiral form) steadied by a bar magnet, and is somewhat in the nature of the electroscopes used to measure minute currents of electricity.

When the observer looks fixedly at the centre of the hanging solenoid it does not move. Look at the left side and it turns away from you. After your vision to the right side and it turns in the other direction. If the gaze remains fixed on one end, the solenoid remains deflected. Shut the eyes and it returns to its original position.

Dr. Hartridge infers that the effect is an optical one. He suggests a series of tests to ascertain the nature of the rays responsible. If lead glass stops them they are probably X-rays, he says. Other screens would show if the rays could be ultra-violet, infra-red, or visual rays.

He quotes Dr. J. D. Suttie's suggestion that "the fixation point of the fovea" may be responsible. The fovea is a little pit in the retina of the eye, and Dr. Suttie suggests that this spot in the eye may be very superior to the rest of the retina in its activity.

Doctor Gives Evidence.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24.—The preliminary hearing of Roscoe Arbuckle, on a charge of murder, in connection with the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, reached its third day in the police court of Judge Lazarus here to-day, with the prosecution still presenting its case against the film star.

Al Semmacher, business manager for Miss Rappe, and guest at the party at the Hotel St. Francis, at which the girl is said to have suffered her fatal injuries, was the principal witness at yesterday's court session. He had not concluded his testimony when the court adjourned for the day.

Virginia Rappe showed symptoms of an internal injury immediately after she was stricken, following the party in Arbuckle's rooms and whatever evidence there may have been of alcoholism was overshadowed by her injuries, declared Dr. Arthur Beardlee, house doctor of the hotel, in a statement made to Assistant District Attorney Milton U'Ren to-day. Dr. B. Beardlee treated Miss Rappe in the early stage of her illness.

Dr. Beardlee returned to-day from a hunting trip on which he started the day after the Arbuckle affair. After questioning the physician, U'Ren said that his explanation of his recent absence and his statement of treating Miss Rappe, was entirely satisfactory and that he was exonerated of all blame for her absence.

Dr. Beardlee said that on the morning of September sixth, after examining Miss Rappe, he suspected she was injured. He was relieved of the case that morning by Dr. E. M. Rumwell, he declared, and did not treat the actress again.

Altogether there are no fewer than ten "frank" editions of the great book, some of them of considerable value.

"Number, Please!"

I know a little girl whose name is "Central." She's in the local telephone exchange.

All day long she's working at the switchboard. With tact and courtesy, without a change.

When mashers try to call her "Little sister," Or try to spring that time-worn ancient wheeze,

"Hello, there! That you, Central? Give me Heaven!" She calmly asks the question—"Number, please!"

One day while idly waiting for a number, I heard a potent old man exclaim—

"Ah, well, on second thought, I will not tell you; But you would gasp if I should write his name."

She quite ignored his courtesy and coarseness. But instantly she brought him to his knees;

Her courtesy soon pointed out his error. For all she answered was "number, please."

And as I pen this short appreciation, I think that "Central" more than earns her pay;

She's always at our beck and call to aid us. In business through the long and tiresome day.

And when we think of those who do us service, I'm sure that everybody else agrees;

By far the best of all our public servants Is the little girl who answers "number, please!"

Coronation Perquisites.

"Evidence has been given before the Court of Claims of some of the perquisites demanded by the principal personages taking part in the Coronation ceremony. There is, in effect, a regular scramble."

The Archbishop of Canterbury, for instance, carries off the purple velvet chair, cushion, and footstool set for his occupation during the Coronation. The Dean and Chapter of Westminster, amongst other things, claim the cloth on which the Sovereign walks on entering the west door of the church.

The Lord Great Chamberlain not only takes up the King's bed and walks, but claims the bedding and the furniture of the chamber where His Majesty may the night before the Coronation, with his (or her) wearing apparel and nightgown. As recently as the reign of James II. the Master of the Horse was permitted to loot the King's table at the Coronation Banquet of all the silver dishes and plates served thereat. Most of these time-honoured pickings and stealings have been abolished or compromised. But the resuscitation of the Court of Claims has thrown a curious light upon the manners and customs of our old nobility."—Cornhill Magazine.

Growing a New Suit.

How does a crab grow? Does his armour increase in size to accommodate his body as it becomes larger and larger? As a matter of fact it does not; the shell never alters at all.

The crab, like a growing boy, requires a new suit every now and then to cover his growing limbs.

He grows slowly inside his shell, until a day comes when he simply cannot bear it any longer. Then he retires to the safest hiding-place that he can find, and a curious process begins. Grasping a turt of seaweed firmly with his legs, he begins to move his body about inside his shell. In a short time a crack appears across the back. Through this the crab gradually heaves out his soft body.

Then after a short rest he sets to work on the long business of unshathing his claws, legs, and feet, each of which is drawn out of its armoured covering, just as a sword is pulled from the scabbard.

Your crab is now the most defenceless creature imaginable; not only is his body as soft as butter, but he is quite unable to move, for the unshathing process has completely exhausted him.

He remains perfectly still, trusting that he is well concealed from foes. And as he waits you can see him growing. There was not room for much expansion inside the shell, so he makes up for lost time once he is out of it.

In a short time a new shell begins to form, and before many weeks have passed he is as well-armoured as ever, and several sizes larger.

Mistakes Worth Money.

Several examples of "frank" editions of the Bible recently came under the auctioneer's hammer in London.

One of the most remarkable is known as the "Bug Bible." In this, the context of the 51st Psalm runs: "Thou shalt not be afraid for any bugges by night"—"bugges," in mediaeval times, meaning nightmares and other terrors.

Another curious example in the collection is the "Tracile Bible," in which the passage, Jeremiah viii. 21, reads: "There is no more tracile at Gilead."

The "Murderer's Bible" takes its title from an error in the translation of Jude, verse xvi, which in the Authorized Version runs: "These are murderers, complainers," while a curious misprint in the Bezae edition, "Blessed are the place-makers," gave rise to one set of Bibles being known as the "Place-makers" edition.

Altogether there are no fewer than ten "frank" editions of the great book, some of them of considerable value.

Making Violins Talk.

To be able to play on a violin without strings, the violinist being in a distant room, is one of the marvels of a new discovery by two Danish scientists.

Briefly, the principle discovered is that when an electrical "pressure" is applied between certain substances they will adhere firmly. Thus a current applied in this way to a lithographic stone and a piece of metal will cause one to stick firmly to the other.

The real violinist discovered in slate, limestone, flint, agate, skin, and paper show the same results. Effects can be got even with gelatine and bone and animal membranes, but there is no attraction in the case of true insulators.

The violin used is an ordinary instrument with the strings removed. It is clamped high up to a table, and in front of the instrument is placed a rotating cylinder of agate, rubbing against a piece of metal, which is the direct player.

The real violinist plays in another room and the reproduction control is perfect. On this principle the violin can reproduce the human voice.

Catching Fish by 'Phone.

Fish make a noise when they swim. When we watch shoals of fish beneath the surface of a sea or of a lake we don't associate their movements with the idea of sound.

Nevertheless, their process is sufficiently loud for the sound to be caught by a specially arranged telephone—and by this novel means the presence of fish can now be located even at considerable depths.

Some Norwegian fishermen recently devised such a telephone arrangement, and they used it with great success.

They lowered a microphone by means of a wire from their boat into the water, the other end of the wire being connected with a telephone receiver on the boat.

As the latter slowly proceeded on her course in search of a haul an operator in the boat kept the receiver of the telephone to his ear, and he was able to tell at once whenever a shoal of fish was being approached.

The Prince Sends His Love.

IN A CHARMING NOTE.

Among the passengers on the Aquitania arriving at Southampton recently, was an attractive young American who is proud of her acquaintance with the Prince of Wales. Her name is Dorothy Marcella Thompson. She is the daughter of the American Colonel Marcellus H. Thompson, grand-daughter of General John Thompson, inventor of the famous Thompson gun, and the great-granddaughter of General Hagen Thompson, of the Union Army in the American Civil War. Her grandparents on her mother's side are the American Ambassador and Mrs. Harvey. Her acquaintance with his Royal Highness dates from Alexandra Day, when, in his Royal box, his quick eye noted that the Ambassador's rose had dropped from his buttonhole. Declaring that "the international situation must be saved," he detached one of the two roses from his own coat, and replaced the one that had been lost. On the following day, in response to a request from Mr. Harvey, the Prince readily consented to the sending of the rose to Miss Thompson as a souvenir, and in a charming note expressed a desire that it be accompanied by his love. The young lady returned suitable thanks in due time, and rejoined her grandfather to "be sure to give the Prince my love, too, the first time you see him." It is considered probable that her eyes will be searching for his Royal Highness on the dock to-day at Southampton, but having failed to notify him of her prospective arrival, she will have to be content to be met by a mere Ambassador. Miss Thompson celebrated her sixth birthday while on the ocean.

Household Notes.

Cheap cuts of meat can be very appetizing if properly cooked and garnished.

Grapes can be canned ready to use during the winter for pies, sauces, or puddings.

Preserved ginger sliced and spread between buttered slices of bread is good.

A pair of embroidery hoops is just the thing to hold the top of your jelly bag.

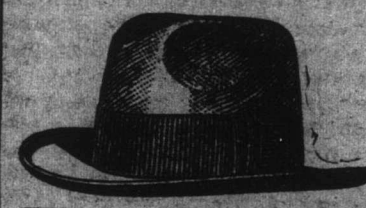

A Hat is no Better than its Price.

Fashioned by hat craftsmen with the delicate care that a Swiss cutter bestows on a fine jewel, Borsalino Hats are intended for those men who are willing to pay more in order to get more.

BORSALINO HATS.

For Borsalino Hats never will be "cheap"—to reduce those beautiful hats to the level of any other hat, even in price, would be a sacrilege.

Borsalino Hats will sell for $7.50 for but a short while longer—the new ones will be $10—a price that will be in keeping with the value they give.

KEARNEY'S.

SUCCESS

Recently an important insurance official made the statement that "the ONTARIO EQUITABLE is the most talked-of insurance company in Canada to-day."

People like to discuss successful enterprises. Success encourages confidence; it stands as an example; and our accomplishment has been so marked that our progress has been followed with unusual interest.

We have already written over $4,500,000 of insurance—all issued at low, non-participating rates.

We have given, on the average, over $200 more immediate protection than is given for the premium charged for each $1,000 of insurance by any participating company in Canada.

We have introduced the Double Disability Clause providing the insured, if permanently disabled from any cause, with $20.00 a month for every $1,000 of insurance.

We have made available the Double Indemnity Benefit, providing for payment of twice the sum insured if the policyholder is drowned or accidentally killed.

We have extended our organization into Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland, and are preparing to enter Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

By our success in cheapening the cost of insurance protection, while broadening its scope, we have justified the growing confidence the insuring public has placed in us.

SAVING MUST BE NATIONAL.

Individual saving is of little account in the present economic international situation. To make any progress at all the nations themselves must make savings out of their production...

which hundreds of millions of dollars flowed in a steady current of gold to her industrial centres and shipping ports.

Professor Viallate concludes his remarks in the following summing up:

"The impoverishment of the impoverished nations is worse than it appears. The enrichment of others is, in great part, only an appearance. The fact is that the whole civilized world—victors, vanquished and neutrals—impoverished. Millions of men who would have been producers and consumers have been killed or maimed for life.

"During four and a half years, a great part of the activity of the world was devoted to supplying munitions and ordnance of war. We have lived as prodigals upon our reserves, not reconstituting them. Nations which seem to have been enriched as a result of the war, are in truth enriched not so much by gold as by political power. They have been creators of an impoverished people and are not only unable to recover quickly their loans but are also unable to dispose of their excess of goods, because of the poverty of their expected customers.

"The most important consequences of the war must, therefore, be an inevitable reduction for all the nations, during a period, of their people's standard of living, perhaps, even below the pre-war standard. We are under the necessity of making savings out of our present production, in order to compensate for the assets consumed without replacement during the war.

"That fact is the essential background of the world economic crisis today. The crisis is accentuated by the financial measures which were made necessary in order to continue the war, such as the inflation of paper money and of credit, and the disruption of established currents of trade.

"It will take a long time for many countries to re-establish their public finances in a sound condition. It will take a long time also to establish new paths and avenues of trade, and the world will not entirely recover until Russia passes beyond the pangs of revolution and returns to regular work.

"We have seen how before the war the development of economic internationalism met opposition and resistance from national sentiment; and how the economic needs of industrialized nations, influenced by that sentiment, resulted in the effort to build up great, independent economic units under the political control of the individual governments concerned. As a result came frictions, misunderstandings and war.

The Enchanted Garden.

AT CASINO TOMORROW NIGHT. What will undoubtedly prove a treat for lovers of the terpsichorean art in store for those who will witness the performance of Mrs. Cleary's dancing pupils at the Casino Theatre on tomorrow (Friday) night. Some 60 talented girls ranging from 5 to 16 years are taking part and as each is costumed to represent particular flowers the galaxy of colors cannot fail to be but pleasing. The affair may be designated as a spectacular extravaganza, having of the plot the selection by the queen of the most beautiful of the flowers, the rhythmic movement being however the principal feature. The costumes have all been specially designed and Mrs. Cleary with her aides have spared no pains in the arrangements. The dress rehearsals exceeded the expectations of those who had the good fortune to be present, and any person wishing to have a couple of hours of delightful entertainment should not fail to secure their tickets at once for either Friday night's performance or Saturday's matinee.

Sachem Arrives.

S.S. Sachem reached port at 10 a.m. to-day from Liverpool, after a splendid run of 7 1/2 days. Summer weather was experienced during the trip. The ship brought a full freight and the following passengers for St. John's: Mr. D. Baird, Mr. D. M. Baird, Mr. I. M. Baird, Mr. H. H. Banks, Mrs. C. B. Chafe, Miss E. Chafe, Rev. G. Conway, Miss N. Fletcher, Mr. A. C. Holmes, Mr. H. Hopkins, Miss M. E. Joyce, Mrs. E. V. Judd, Master M. F. Judd, Miss Judd, Mrs. M. Kevill, Miss C. J. MacLaren, Mrs. A. Medlock, Miss F. A. Medlock, Miss V. L. Paris, Mr. Y. Parkin, Mr. J. W. Penny, Mr. W. H. Pippy, Miss A. Reid, Miss K. Seymour, Mr. C. G. Skyrms, Rev. W. Swann, Mrs. R. C. Tuckfield, Master C. J. Tuckfield, Mr. W. Tucker, Hon. R. Watson, Miss G. Weatherhead, Mrs. C. B. Schief, Master M. L. Schief, Miss Schief, Miss E. K. Brown.

Pronounced Insane.

The girl O'Reilly who is charged with the murder of her five-month-old child at Placentia, has been pronounced insane and has been sent to the Lunatic Asylum. The enquiry into the case had not been quite concluded and has now been postponed until the unfortunate girl recovers her reason. She was examined by Dr. Keegan, who decided that she was sane and reported to Judge Morris through the Department of Justice that she was not in a fit condition to be present at the enquiry.

"Fence" Raided.

Acting on information that a certain party was keeping a "fence," the police last night raided a West End premises to ascertain for themselves the actual conditions. They found the place was frequented by young men holding responsible positions in the public service, young boys, and several men who have police records. These play cards practically all night for goods of which there is strong suspicion that they were stolen. A "fence" in thieves' argot means a receiver of stolen goods.

New Teachers Arrive.

Misses V. L. Paris, A. Reith, G. Weatherhead and E. Clarke, who are joining the staff of Bishop Spencer College, and Miss Joyner and Mr. H. Hopkins who will teach at Bishop Field College, arrived by the Sachem to-day from England. They were met at the Purmess Withy plot by Dr. Blackall and other directors of the colleges, whilst Miss Richards, principal of Bishop Spencer College was also present to welcome the new additions to her staff.

Had Leg Broken

While having a practice match on the Shamrock grounds yesterday afternoon, Lawrence Purmess, of the St. Bon's College football team, fell and fractured his leg an inch or two above the ankle. The accident was caused by a player falling on him when he tripped in an unnoticed hole in the field. First aid was quickly rendered, after which the injured lad was taken to his home at Smithville, some brothers and a trained nurse accompanying him. The limb was set by Dr. Griveau, who was called in attendance. "Lar" who is a great favorite with his schoolmates, will be missed for a while as the accident will keep him in bed three or four weeks.

Men Out of Work.

Owing to the close down of the South Side branch of a well known and long established business firm, quite a number of men have been thrown out of employment. Some of the men have been on the premises for upwards of half a century, and they will have some difficulty in finding employment elsewhere.

Wedding Bells.

SMITH-AVERY. Yesterday afternoon at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Mr. George Maxwell Smith, of Cupids, led to the altar, Miss Ethel May Avery, daughter of Mr. Isaac Avery, merchant of Grate's Cove. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. J. Power. The bride was attended by Miss Jennie Hudson, while the groom was ably supported by Mr. James Hudson, only the immediate friends of the contracting parties being present. Immediately after the ceremony the wedding party motored to Breanock's, where dinner was served, returns being made to town at 11 p.m. where they were the guests of Mrs. E. R. Clouston. The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful pendant, and to the bridesmaid and best man gold souvenirs. They left by to-day's express for Grand Falls, where the honeymoon will be spent. We extend cordial felicitations.

Which Will You Buy?

Ordinary felt which costs $4.00 per roll and for which you must buy tins, nails and cement or tar: Volcanite Roofing complete with nails and cement, ready to put right on your roof, $6.00 per roll! Volcanite first made in England and now made in Canada is as far ahead of felt as electric light is ahead of tallow candles.

Mails Delayed in Delivery.

What is wrong with the General Post Office, was a question heard frequently this morning by those who expected mail by the Sachem. Although the ship arrived in port at 5.30, up to noon hour no mail matter was forthcoming. This delay is an outrage on the business community and would not be tolerated in any other country.

Range Boiler Explodes.

A rather severe scalding accident, which might have proved fatal but for timely assistance, occurred at the residence of Mr. Frank Connors, Water Street, this forenoon. The victim, Mrs. Stapleton, a widow, was taken to hospital in the police ambulance with her forehead out and her arms and legs badly injured. The accident was caused by the explosion of a copper boiler attached to the kitchen range, it being supposed that the cold water supply pipe became corroded and the supply being cut off, steam was generated. The top portion of the boiler was blown off with the force, and an attached piece of pipe hit Mrs. Stapleton in the head, as when Mr. Connors, who heard the explosion, went to investigate he found her unconscious and lying in a pool of boiling water. Dr. Campbell was called and after a hurried examination ordered the victim to hospital. It is expected that it will take about three weeks before she recovers.

McMurdo's Store News.

Jergen's Benzoin and Almond Lotion is much appreciated by the Dominion in these things as being particularly bland and mild and as of wide application for various complexion and skin troubles. It is very refreshing for instance after exposure to hard dry autumn winds, but is indeed useful throughout the year. Price 50 cents a bottle.

Although the Ice-Cream Season is over with us, it should not be forgotten that our Soda Fountain still has its attractions. We have again secured some of that delightful "Phaz" which goes so well with Soda Water. Price 10 cents a glass.

Huge Doctor's Bill.

The sensation amongst medical men to-day is a bill presented to a well known gentleman who had a narrow escape from death about this time last year. The practitioner who has been attending the patient ever since presented his bill a few days ago for the modest sum of $5,000. The recipient of the bill is not yet sure whether the bill is intended as a last effort in a prescribed course of treatment.

Coastal Boats.

GOVERNMENT. S.S. Fortia in port. S.S. Prospero no report. REIDS. Argyle left Lamaline at 10 a.m. yesterday. Clyde at Lewisporte yesterday. Glenora left Port aux Basques yesterday for Humbermouth. Home left Parsons Pond yesterday. Kyle at North Sydney. Malgie at Venison Island Wednesday. Malakoff due at Port Union.

Personal.

Mr. Wilson Vardy of Channel, who came out of hospital on Monday last, will leave for home by S.S. Porlia. Mr. Vardy has improved greatly since being treated at G.H., and is feeling quite fit. Rev. Wm. Swann, who has been visiting England, the land of his birth, was a passenger on S.S. Sachem from Liverpool. He will probably take up residence in Cupids. Baird's premises and shipping were decorated to-day as a welcome to Mr. D. Baird, who returned by the Sachem on an extended trip abroad. Mr. Baird, during his absence visited various fair markets including Bristol. He was accompanied by his sons, Masters D. and M. Baird. Miss M. Seymour and Mr. J. W. Penny, who were visiting England in the interests of the Royal Stores, Ltd., returned to-day by the Sachem. Hon. R. Watson, who had been on a visit to England, arrived by the Sachem. Mrs. Schief, daughter of Mr. W. C. Job, arrived by the Sachem from England, accompanied by her two children.

Shipping Notes.

S.S. Digby arrived at Liverpool yesterday morning, having left here on Wednesday night next week. Sch. Isabel Marlow has sailed from St. Anthony with 6000 qts. fish in bulk for Lehigh. Sch. Acme has arrived at Harbor Grace with a cargo coal from Sydney. Sch. Gordon M. Hollett sailed yesterday from Burin for Lisbon with 2575 qts. codfish shipped by W. & T. Hollett. Sch. L. M. Smith has cleared for Halifax from Bonns Bay with 1180 qts. codfish. R.S. Sabie L arrived at North Sydney at 3 o'clock this morning. The ship will leave for here on Saturday afternoon. S.S. Seal with a full general cargo, left North Sydney at 4 p.m. yesterday and is due to-morrow. The Seal will continue making weekly trips in conjunction with the Sabie L. R.S. Rosalind arrived at New York this morning from Halifax. S.S. Manna is due this afternoon with a general cargo from Montreal.

Our Sporting Column.

ENTERTAINED N.E.B. TEAM. We are pleased to learn from Mayor Morris that our people living at Halifax have taken great interest in our boys and have shown them every kindness. Amongst others we mention one in particular—Mrs. Ashworth, who was formerly Miss Pettie of our city, and who resides on Henry Street, Halifax, gave a party to our boys, and invited several other guests, amongst whom was the Mayor's daughter, Miss Meta Morris, who is attending the Conservatory of Music for violin lessons. By this action, Mrs. Ashworth has shown herself a true daughter of Terra Nova, and we congratulate her upon her thoughtfulness, in this respect.

WITH THE N.F. TEAM AT HALIFAX. Manager Goodland's team leaves Halifax in time to connect with Saturday night's Kyle, and are due at Port aux Basques on Sunday morning, arriving here by Monday's express. It is understood that at several of the principal stations along the line the team will be extended a warm welcome, while judging from present indications Monday night's reception will be amongst the biggest of its kind to take place in St. John's. Practically all motor owners have signified their intention of being in the parade, whilst private citizens have hired taxis and will be in the big procession. Both Bell and his manager Mr. A. H. Thomas, have left Halifax, and are now at Truro, working on a farm and preparing for the big event which takes place on October 15th. Whilst Bell is now looked upon as the winner.

Navy vs. Army.

It is expected that a football game will be arranged between a G.W.V.A. team and one from H.M.S. Raleigh when that ship reaches port to-morrow. The game will be played on Saturday afternoon in St. George's Field, and will be in aid of G.W.V.A. funds.

Shipping Notes.

Schooner Faustina, 23 days from Oporto, arrived at Burgeo yesterday with a cargo of salt. Schooner Democracy has cleared for Barbados with 2066 qds. of codfish shipped by Messrs. Job Bros.

Here and There.

Eat MRS. STEWART'S Home Made Bread—april 5.60 HIGH MASS.—Requiem High Mass for the repose of the soul of Albert Sphre will be celebrated at the R. C. Cathedral on Saturday morning, Oct. 1st, at 8.30 a.m.

Eat MRS. STEWART'S Home Made Bread—april 5.60 NOT ON SACHEM.—Contrary to the personal note in our morning contemporary to-day, Rev. Dr. Bond was not a passenger on S. S. Sachem from Liverpool.

Renew your old boots with Black or Brown Boot Dye, best make, now procurable at BISHOP'S Shoe Store.

CLEAN DOCKET.—There was a clean docket at the Magistrate's Court this morning, a most unusual occurrence after the busy time the police have been having lately.

WEST BONDSMAN.—Mr. Sutherland of the Singer Sewing Machine, went bondsmen for the young man from St. John, N.B., who is on bail on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences.

Dressing for renovating silver or gold slippers that are faded and tarnished can be had at BISHOP'S Shoe Store.

BIG WHISKEY SHIPMENT.—Amongst the cargo brought here by S. S. Sachem from England to-day were 1500 cases whiskey, which are evidently required to make up the shortage of stocks in the Controller's Department.

PUTTING UP SEARCHLIGHT.—A searchlight will be fitted up on the Majestic Theatre on Monday night when our Halifax team returns, and when the procession appears on Job Street the light "ill be flashed on it and will keep it in focus for some distance.

PLUMBERS SHOPS.—It would be a surprise to many to learn that there are 18 plumbing shops in the city, most of which have opened up within the past three or four years. Practically every journeyman plumber now owns his own shop, a record that could scarcely be beaten by a more pretentious city.

BOXY BEING SENT HOME.—The body of Steward Cotes, late of S.S. Manica, is being forwarded to his home on the outward trip of the ship. Cotes was removed from the ship on her last trip and taken to hospital, where he died on Tuesday last. Undertaker Carnell took charge of the remains, which will be sent to the late home of the deceased in Montreal.

of this event, the Maritime Athletic Associations will be sending along their best 10 milers, and there is a rumour current that there is a possibility of two big guns who have already established records for this event entering this contest, in an effort to save the cup from coming to St. John's. Bell however feels confident of success, and all sporting enthusiasts are looking forward to the ultimate result. Yesterday morning President Ayre sent the following message to Manager Goodland. "You can't keep a good man down. Tom Butler's pluck and ankles makes even more popular the popular performance of you and your men. Everybody is delighted and Butler is to-day the talk of the town. A royal reception is planned for your arrival. You will return by Monday's express and detain at Donovan's where you will be met by the National Sports' Committee and it will be time to have lunch and later be driven to Cross Roads where citizens with three bands will meet you and escort you around town. Mayor Morris will address you at City Hall after which at the Casino you will be welcomed by Committee. You will give a short resume of the trip, which has brought you and your men such outstanding honour."

CONGRATULATORY MESSAGE.—The M.G.C. sent a congratulatory message to Tom Butler, a member of the Association, on his achievements at the indoor sports at Halifax on Tuesday night.

Venezelos Married.

GREEK STATESMAN WEDS LADY OF ENGLISH BIRTH. One of Europe's greatest statesmen, M. Venezelos, ex-Prime Minister of Greece, was quietly married to Miss Schilliz, at the register office at St. Francis Town Hall. A religious ceremony, according to the rites of the Greek Church, took place next day at West-hill, Hightgate, the residence of Sir A. H. and Mrs. Crossfield, where the bride and bridegroom have been staying for some time. Dr. Pagonis, the Greek Archimandrite, officiated, vestments and sacred vessels necessary to the rite being taken to the house by the sacristan of the Church of Aghia Sophia, Moscow-road, Baywater. The civil wedding took place at 11 o'clock. M. Venezelos and Miss Schilliz drove to the hall together. The bride was dressed in a navy blue costume and a dark blue hat with a silk bow. M. Venezelos wore a dark grey lounge suit, a soft felt hat, and a dark brown overcoat. He smiled at the few strangers present, and shook hands all round at the conclusion of the ceremony. "I have never seen a bridegroom look more happy," said an official of the registrar's office. In the register, the Greek statesman signed his name as Meneliosis Kyprianos Venezelos, using an "r" and an "s" instead of the "o" and "z," with which his name is usually spelt in this country. His age was given as 57, and he is described as a widower, and late Prime Minister of Greece. Madame Venezelos signed "Helena Schilliz" and gave her age as 47, and her condition as spinster. Both bride and bridegroom gave Lady Crossfield's house at Hampstead as their address. The witnesses were Madame Marie Elhad, Lady Crossfield's mother, and Mr. Stephen Schilliz, brother of the bride. M. and Madame Venezelos have left for Brittany, where the honeymoon is to be spent. The former Miss Schilliz is a wealthy lady of English birth, who has been a friend of M. Venezelos for many years, and has helped him politically.—News of the World, Sept. 18.

Good Roads Campaign.

Motor Association Approaches Government.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—At a meeting of the Executive and Road Committee of the Newfoundland Motor Association, held on the 24th inst., I was instructed to forward you enclosed copy of letter to the Colonial Secretary with the request that you be kind enough to give it publication in the interest of the general public.

I am, Sir,
Yours respectfully,
THE NEWFOUNDLAND MOTOR ASSO.,
P. E. OUTERBRIDGE,
Secretary-Treasurer.
Sept. 28, 1921.

The Colonial Secretary,
St. John's.

Dear Sir,—At a meeting of the Executive and Road Committee of the Newfoundland Motor Association, held on the 24th inst., we were instructed to respectfully convey to you the following Resolution passed unanimously at that meeting:

"That if the Government decide to pass further grants for relief road work, the Road Committee recommend that such amounts be expended only upon the main highways, many of which are badly in need of repairs, citing for instance that part of the road leading from Seal Cove to Holywood, commonly known as the 'Cow Path,' roads leading to Bay Roberts and Spaniard's Bay and from Carbonear to Heart's Content; also the road from Holywood to Salmonier, certain sections of the Southern Shore road and certain sections in the eastern part of St. John's."

"The Executive and Road Committee further strongly recommended that all moneys expended in relief road work should be expended under the direction and control of the Newfoundland Road Commission."

"The Road Committee further recommend that where bridges are unsafe and consequently need replacing, they should preferably be replaced by concrete and that in the case of smaller bridges they should all be replaced by concrete culverts."

We were further instructed that copies of this letter should be sent to the Press with a request for publication in the interest of the general public.

We are, Sir,
Yours respectfully,
(Sgd.) For and on behalf of,
THE NEWFOUNDLAND MOTOR ASSO.,
H. E. COWAN, President,
P. E. OUTERBRIDGE, Secy.-Treas.

Keep At It.

Premier Squires has inquired into the Forestry Bill with the Senate Committee at Washington, and that body may not allow the passing of the measure, thus affecting the entry of our produce into America.

If the Premier should be successful in his endeavours, the $5 tax on herring will be saved, thus giving us a chance to keep up that industry at a profit to U.S.A.

When we consider the immense trade done in herring, even in this section of the District, we see that even though the price is not the highest, but it has helped to accommodate our people with the present needs.

The American tariff has not effected last spring's catch, and many of our shipments have been to Halifax, thence to the Southern markets.

The catch was, we are surprised to learn, in the neighbourhood of 1,000,000 worth for this District, the exports from Twillingate being about $75,000. In the Northern part of the District we learn that not more than 10,000 barrels of herring were shipped. This includes Springdale, and the people there will have a chance to sell again this fall, as buyers are thinking of doing business there. The Union Trading Co. intend packing, also Redman and Book.

This industry gives employment to coopers, sawyers, and a host of our people who engage in netting, packing and shipping, besides gaining a livelihood when other industries are in abeyance.

If it had not been for the turn over of the herring business—although at a low value—this spring, we fear a condition of affairs would have overtaken us, that we would perhaps not have emerged from.

The Sun tenders a word of gratitude to the suppliers here and elsewhere, for their venture into the herring trade, and to the fisherfolk who helped in no mean way to get this article of food to other races of the earth.

The packages sometimes are not the best, and this often causes our product to be lying on the piers at Halifax and New York in a bad condition. If care is taken our market should continue as a lasting benefit to Newfoundland, and perhaps other markets will be opened that would be glad to purchase from us. Russia, it seems, can tackle large stocks of pickled fish, and perhaps our men in control can gain that field for big shipments. Twillingate Sun.

The Industrial Home.

OUR ONLY REFORMATORY.

The Industrial Home, in which five young girls, who would otherwise be roaming the streets, are given a good home and taught proficiency in various spheres of usefulness, is the nearest approach to a reformatory which we possess. But it is not a reformatory in the sense in which the word is now currently used. It is, rather, as Mrs. Hunter, President of the W.C.T.U. told the Telegram yesterday, a home where girls who have fallen into bad ways are weaned from their unfortunate habits by kindness. The Girls' Industrial Home, to give it its proper title, was founded in April of the present year. The Jensen Camp Committee kindly offered the Jensen Camp Staff House for the purpose and under the superintendence of Mrs. Lockyer, of Burin. The Home was opened. The first inmates were the two unfortunate girls, Teena, Mrs. Lockyer did splendid work during her stay as matron and when she left recently she was succeeded by Capt. Crann, S.A., who has as her assistant, Miss Willis, also of the Salvation Army. The girls who reside in the Home are given the rudiments of education, and are taught sewing, knitting, crocheting work and domestic science, everything, in fact, which will adapt them for the places which they should fill in life. It is proposed to add a man to the staff, and the committee in charge are planning to have poultry raised to enable the Home to become self-supporting. The Home, which has the sympathetic support of Lady Harris, Archbishop Roche, Sir Richard Squires and Judge Morris, is run under the guidance of a committee, whose officers are: President, Mrs. Hunter; Vice-Pres., Mrs. (Col.) Martin, S.A.; Secretary, Mrs. Withers; Treasurer, Mrs. (Rev.) Forbes; Asst. Treasurer, Mrs. J. C. Baird; Purchaser, Mrs. P. J. Shea. It has the support, too, of clergymen of all denominations. The Home is at present handicapped by lack of funds and its progress must naturally be retarded until this deficiency can be supplied. At present it is kept going by private subscription, but funds are urgently needed if it is to continue to flourish. That it is doing a good work, none will deny, and it should most certainly receive the support of all philanthropic citizens.

Deadly Inventions.

After laboriously working out a theory which engrossed his attention ever since 1911, M. O. Radley, a Vancouver man, claims to have perfected three engines of destruction that must be classed among the most terrible known, even in those days of scientific warfare. These are an aerial torpedo, a water torpedo and an aerial bomb, all of which are steered or controlled by wireless electric currents. According to the inventor these missiles will easily destroy steel ships, bridges and even shore fortifications. The aerial torpedo, Radley explains, will be similar to a seaplane charged with high explosive, elevated and steered with electric current and driven with gasoline. It will have an approximate speed of two miles a minute, which can be appreciably increased when the objective is sighted and impact is imminent. The torpedo can be adjusted to attack airships or aeroplanes, the distance between start and target being limited only by the quantity of gasoline which can be carried. The chief difference between the water torpedo and the aerial torpedo is that the former has no wings. It is driven with a propeller and can only be discharged from land or wooden ships. Its approximate speed is one mile a minute, and it can be adjusted to attack undersea craft after submerging. The aerial bomb, which can also smash into submarines while under water, is to be discharged from airships or aeroplanes, steering being by means of a new style rudder operated by wireless current. It is understood that these three inventions will be offered to the British War Office, and that, falling acceptance in that quarter, a friendly foreign power will be given the second chance.

Shot Gossip Dead.

Rather Than Fall Out His Tongue. How gossips are treated in Bangkok, Siam, is told by a Daily Mail correspondent, who describes the shooting of a Siamese rice merchant by a jeweller, whose ipse dixit was that "all gossips should be killed." We are not so severe on "tongue artists" in this country. "At the Baptist Criminal Courts, Nai Num, a jeweller has been sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment for shooting Nai Chun, a rice merchant, for being a gossip. "It was more merciful to kill him," the prisoner said, "than to follow the ancient law and pull out his tongue. Indeed, I gave a feast to my friends, including Nai Chun, and before ending his life I gave him opium to smoke. A few minutes before I shot him Nai Chun told me that he heard slinging and saw girls dancing in his opium dreams. His end was merciful. My conscience is clear. All gossips should be killed." It appeared that Nai Chun had gossiped about a present of jade which the jeweller had made to an actress."

Wealth From Waste.

It has been announced that a profit of $248,813 has been made for the State by an organization set up by the Government to recover useful materials from all kinds of refuse.

Formerly the sweepings from back-room floors and food products that had gone bad—bacon, beans, condensed milk, chocolate, dried fruit, biscuits, and so on—were destroyed, but when the great shortage of materials came in the early days of the war clever men set to work to see what could be obtained from refuse and rubbish.

They soon found that valuable fats, glycerine, pig and poultry food, and useful fertilizers could be made from kitchen waste, and the result of their efforts is known in this profit of $248,813, which is a net profit made in addition to the cost of the plant and machinery laid down, which was all paid for out of the sales of the useful products recovered from the waste.

Scrap From the Table.

The systematic collection of table scraps and floor sweepings in camps and barracks goes on, and the work of reclaiming what is of value in these things is being continued by private corporations and by municipal bodies.

The abundance that existed in the days before the war led to a great deal of wastefulness. A church dignitary, speaking on this subject in 1916, said: "I have travelled all over the world, and I have never known any nation or people so wasteful as people in our own country. In no other country do people so fling away God's gifts as they do in England."

That indictment was probably true, but if the terrible events of the past few years have done nothing else they have, at any rate, taught us to avoid waste and make the very best use of even the most unlikely materials. It is amazing what is done in this way nowadays. Here are a few striking instances of how wealth is obtained from waste.

Lubricating oil is reclaimed from the old rags, with which engineers clean their hands and machinery. These rags were formerly burnt; now both oil and rags are used again.

Nature Never Wastes. Fat is extracted from offal and kitchen grease; linoleum is made from cork cuttings; new glass is made from old broken bottles and window panes; glue is made from clippings of hide and skins; gas is made from plumbago and wood shavings; fertilizers are made from hair and feather waste.

In all this we are following the ways of Nature, who never really wastes anything. As Lord Leverhulme has said: "Nature knows no waste. The dust blown from the high-road settles in the nooks and crannies of walls and rocks, and is there capable of nourishing growing plants which, in turn, yield fruit or herbs for the use of man or creature. The surplus yield of seeds not required for new repetitions of plants, trees, or vegetables is not wasted; it is food for man or creature."

Let us, at any rate, see to it that we are not among the wasters of the world's wealth, but among those who create and build up fresh wealth for the future.—Tit Bits.

Getting Out of the Hole.

(From the Winnipeg Free Press.) When a man says he would buy a wheelbarrow or a necktie or a new pipe were cheaper, he is getting at the roots of the present business depression. If the man who makes pipes cannot sell them, that is his funeral, for it is impossible that people can get along without them. If a citizen cannot get his house painted because he does not think he can afford to pay for the paint and the painter, that is the funeral of the painter. No argument can be advanced to the contrary. The same thing works through the whole business and industrial fabric, with an exception in the case of the necessities of life. And with these it is possible for the consumption to fluctuate as a result of prices. Too high a price means a lower consumption.

There can be tearing of hair about the situation, but it will avail nothing. A little plain thinking all around is what is needed. The country is in a hole, and it will have to crawl out. Jerking at the boot-heel will not lift a pound.

Beckett Wins in Stubborn Fight.

(Daily Mail, Sept. 13.)

Joe Beckett, of Southampton, retained his title of heavyweight boxing champion of England in a contest held last night at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, the seconds of Roy McCormick of Farnham, giving in for him at the end of the 12th round.

The contest was a fast and hard one from the start. Beckett determined to use his superior strength and weight, went after his man with both hands at once. McCormick accepted the challenge and a fierce rally followed, with rapid two-handed fighting to the head.

Of this Beckett had the better, McCormick hitting, though fast, lacking severity, and Beckett finished the round with a decided advantage.

The second round went on the same lines, Beckett being the stronger and using straight lefts to the mouth with effect, cutting McCormick's lips. The pace in the third round was still faster and the round an even one. McCormick raised the hopes of his supporters by landing two hard right uppercuts to the jaw and by landing his own in the fighting. But from this point Beckett took the upper hand, landing repeatedly with hard left hooks to McCormick's left eye and following with half-arm right-handed jolts to the short ribs.

McCormick's Rally.

McCormick, though boxing cleverly and pluckily, was overmatched. In the seventh round he rallied in a surprising manner, landing three hard right swings to the side of the head, from one of which Beckett slipped down. These blows, though rousing the enthusiasm of his supporters, were of no advantage to him, for from this point on his right hand was of little use to him. Beckett pressed his advantage for the next four rounds, and McCormick, though using the ring cleverly and fighting back pluckily, grew steadily weaker.

The end came in the twelfth round. McCormick was weak and at the opening slipped down from a light left hook. Beckett followed up his advantage and knocked him down twice with heavy left hooks to the jaw. McCormick on each occasion took a count of nine, and only his courage enabled him to last out the round. He was dazed and badly shaken, and at the end of the round his seconds gave in for him. He protested vigorously against this action, and was with difficulty persuaded to leave the ring.

Beckett's Defence.

The contest, though not up to a high standard of championship form, was a fast and exciting one and well worth seeing. The superiority of the winner was unmistakable, but the loser showed a most remarkable improvement on his previous form in this country, and, though overweighted and out-matched in hitting power, showed magnificent pluck and science at least equal to that of his opponent. Beckett boxed coolly and with good judgment. His straight lefts and left-hooks to the head were very effective in every round, and his defence against McCormick's always dangerous right was sound. The contest was on the whole a clean one, though Beckett incurred two cautions for a careless use of his head and for roughing on the ropes. The loser received a great ovation, which was fully earned by his game struggle against a stronger and heavier man.

Britain's Mystery Monument.

The most perplexing monument in the world is the great circle of mighty stones which we call Stonehenge. No one can say how they were placed in position, or by whom the work was done.

All we know is that the builders were early inhabitants of this country and that Stonehenge was a temple. The fact that it was a temple has enabled us to find the date when it was built.

These early men were sun worshippers, and they laid out their temple so that at sunrise on Mid-summer Day the rays of the sun shone directly upon the great altar in the midst of the circle. As the earth does not spin quite truly on its axis, but wobbles slightly, like a top that is nearly run down, the position of the sun at Mid-summer is always changing slightly.

The rising sun does not now shine straight on the high altar on June 21st. We know the rate of the earth's wobble, and we can measure the difference between the present line of the sun's rays and the old one. This enables us to calculate that Stonehenge must have been built about the year 1900 B.C., or three thousand eight hundred years ago.

Newfoundland Objects to Cod Liver Oil Duty. (Toronto Globe.)

The presence in New York last week of Sir Richard Squires, Prime Minister of Newfoundland, and John M. Devine, Newfoundland Trade Commissioner, and their statements in protest against the proposed tariff of 12 1/2 cents a gallon on cod liver oil, attracted the attention of the oil, pharmaceutical and leather interests, who handle large quantities of the Newfoundland product, says Drug and Chemical Markets of New York. Mr. Devine declares that a United States tariff will make it necessary for Newfoundland to sell her products in England, which will result in British leather manufacturers capturing the leather markets of the world, because Newfoundland oil used in the leather industry is superior to any oil available in the United States. Prime Minister Squires says the Newfoundland's purchases in this country are about $16,000,000 annually, while Newfoundland products sold here are valued at only $4,000,000.

In the oil market prices showed great improvement; cotton seed oil continues to advance. Corn and linseed oil are higher. Stocks of many vegetable oils are short.

Prices of fine chemicals, which are now well under, pre-war quotations on many items, are attracting buyers, and the trade is gaining confidence. Buyers are purchasing coal tar products more freely. Manufacturers are optimistic over the legislation by Congress, believing that the Fordney bill when passed will include adequate protection for dyestuffs.

Indications that heavy chemical prices abroad are advancing are expected to relieve the local market of the competition with imported material, which has caused concessions in many lines here. Prices are fairly firm, with less pressure from sellers.

(Mr. Devine's expressions, as quoted in the above article, are roundly condemned by the Daily News this morning in a strong leading article.—Ed. Telegram.)

A Venerable Relic.

Seventy years ago there was a great regatta held in British waters, the races being participated in by craft from most of the great shipbuilding countries of the world. Many a trim racer was there, the great majority being the products of the shipyards of Britain; but among the competitors from abroad was a very plain, almost homely schooner yacht from the United States. If she attracted any attention at all in the beginning it was her homeliness that was chiefly responsible. When the contests began, however, the eyes of all European spectators were fascinated by the ease with which she walked away from all competitors. She had no serious rival from first to last. It was "Eclipse first and the rest nowhere." The great trophy, the "Cup," was carried by the schooner "America" to America and has been held there ever since. Such an event was naturally a memorable one and the wonderful winner was an object of pride and affection to the people of the United States and so the "America" has been carefully looked after, as carefully as Nelson's "Victory," and is still safe and sound in every way. But her sailing days are over, or soon to be, for she has just been towed to Annapolis, U.S., to be delivered to the Government authorities to be permanently preserved as a national monument for future generations to see. All along the route she called into different ports and was greeted in the most enthusiastic manner by the crowds which gathered to see the venerable vessel which gained such honor for American shipbuilders and American seamanship. It is not often that honors of this sort, won apparently by mere chance, should remain such a permanent gain.

The Prince of Impostors.

Perhaps the cleverest swifter of any age or country was Andre Collet, a man who might have made a great reputation as an actor if his gifts had not been hopelessly perverted. He was born in France on September 28, 1785, and from infancy to an early age he never seems to have had the inclination to run straight. His parents, highly respectable people, were obliged to send him to a military school, where he quarrelled with a brother officer, fought a duel, and found himself in hospital at Naples. Here he nursed a sick major, and was rewarded by a legacy of several thousand francs. He turned his back on the army, and entered the monastery of St. Pierre, where, owing to his "zeal and piety," he was entrusted with the collection of subscriptions. He misappropriated thousands of francs, and, fearing detection, fled from the place. Then he forged a cheque for 22,000 francs, and this placed him in a position to commence a series of swindles and impositions which for daring and success had never been rivalled in the history of crime. First he blossomed into a noble, dubbing himself Marquis de Dada, and being received everywhere as a man of exalted rank. Tiring of this he procured the papers of a sea-captain called Iolanen, an infamously man, and adopted his name and personality. By this means he was introduced to Cardinal Fesch, the most powerful dignitary of the Papal Court and an uncle of the great Napoleon, and in turn was introduced to the most select circles in Rome. Using the Cardinal's name he borrowed 30,000 from his bankers, and a wealthy merchant gladly endorsed for him a bill for 60,000 francs. By making large purchases of jewellery and other convertible valuables on credit, he was soon in possession of a quarter of a million francs. His next haul was in Switzerland, where he pocketed 30,000 francs which he had collected for the building of a new church. Then he commenced a long and adventurous tour of Europe, becoming in turn a Bishop, a Count, and a military General. In the latter guise, and smothered with medals and gold lace, he reviewed troops and investigated military accounts, by which means he netted another half-million francs. His bogus character was at length revealed and he arrested and lodged in jail. Escaping from detention he was re-arrested, put on his trial, and sentenced to five years in the galley. Even as a galley-slave he, by some means returned himself with luxuries, purchasing delicacies, bringing his warders, and paying his fellow-convicts to do the work for him. He did not live to enjoy his liberty again, however, for he died within a few days of the termination of his sentence.

White Villages.

There is a "secret" village named Whitley in Surrey. It was founded by Mr. W. Whitley, who left $5,000,000 to provide homes for the aged. The village has grown behind the fences and lodge-guarded gates of a private park that suggests the retreat of a captain of industry. There are now nearly 300 villagers, and more than that number of names stands on the waiting list. All villagers must have a small income, which is supplemented by a weekly allowance, a house lit by electricity, fuel, flower and vegetable gardens, several meals a week from the community kitchen, a medical attendance and a hospital. A nurse can be summoned by touching a bell-push in any cottage. For all this the villagers pay nothing. The youngest villager is 60, and the oldest nearly 90.

Health From Waste.

It has been announced that a profit has been made for the first time by the organization set up by the Government to recover useful material from refuse.

The sweepings from houses, floors and food products gone bad—bacon, beans, coffee, chocolate, dried fruit and so on—were destroyed in the great shortage of material in the early days of the war. It is now set to work to see what can be obtained from refuse and rubbish.

It was found that valuable fat, pig and poultry food, and fertilizers could be made from waste, and the result of their work is known in this profit of $42,000. It is a net profit made in addition to the cost of the plant and machinery, which was all paid for out of the sales of the material recovered from the waste.

Systematic collection of table scraps and floor sweepings in camps and barracks goes on, and the work is being continued by private organizations and by municipal bodies.

It is interesting to note that the same method existed in the early days of the world's history. A church dignitary on this subject in 1914, said: "I have travelled all over the world and never known any nation so wasteful as people in this country. In no other country do people so fling away God's gifts as in England."

The terrible events of the past have done nothing else they have taught us to avoid waste and to make the very best use of our most unlikely materials. It is in this way that we are now getting a new wealth from our waste.

An Unsolved Puzzle.

FATE OF WRANGEL'S ARMY.

Athens, Sept. 1.—(Associated Press)—The ultimate fate of General Wrangel's Russian army in exile of which 20,000 officers and men still are encamped on the Gallipoli Peninsula still continues one of the unsolved puzzles of the Near East. General Wrangel held together the best of his officers and men from among the refugee army which fled from Russia before the victorious Bolsheviks. He has hoped that his forces would be again needed in Russia to maintain a new government when the Soviet regime collapsed. But this hope deferred and Wrangel's best fighting men wait in their tents and huts on Gallipoli.

Major Jean de Roover, chairman of the League of Nations commission for the exchange of populations between Greece and Bulgaria, has visited the Russian camp and brought away a very favorable impression of the officers and men. He knows something about the Russian fighting men, for he was formerly the Belgian representative with Wrangel's army when it was the bulwark of the anti-Bolshevik strength in the Crimea. He says:

"In this camp, besides 1,800 women and children, there are 3,000 officers, 10,000 soldiers and 2,000 cadets in the military schools. These troops have kept their military organization. Their morale is of the highest and they voluntarily submit to the most stern discipline. In all their hardships they are buoyed up by an unshakable faith in their chief, General Wrangel, and in the prospect of their liberation. They are suffering from lack of food, or in old huts that have no doors or windows, but are brave to an irreproachable state of mind. They are fed by France. The British General Wrangel is paying them from the little money he still has—some a dollar a month. Wrangel has succeeded in getting employment for his troops in Serbia and Bulgaria. He has sent his Cossack troops to fight in Serbia to receive his Gallipoli Army Corps. Five thousand of them are going to be used by Yugoslavia as a frontier guard. As for the other remnants of the army at Belgrade in preparation to enter them in hospitality if they are not."

Food Prices Must Come Down.

(London Daily Mail.)

It is pretty clear that the cost of most household foodstuffs is too high. Farmers are getting less for their produce, but consumers are not getting the benefit. In their shopping, housewives, especially those who deal with the small shopkeepers, should not take too much for granted. Before the war there was a ruling price for nearly everything. Now the price for the same article often varies at different shops, and in this attempt to keep up prices unduly the little shopkeepers seem to be the chief offenders.

Some of them take advantage of the war-time carelessness about money which is rapidly growing into a habit—and a very expensive one. But it is quite in the hands of householders to protect themselves by getting back into the ways of pre-war thrift. There is usually a cheapest man in every district. Take the trouble to seek him out and give him your custom. If he can sell below the other retailers in the neighbourhood, it means that they are charging too much. When they know that you know it, unobtainable prices will soon come down.

In this way every householder can turn himself into a practical anti-warrior and help to reduce the burden.

A Great Adventure.

Captain WILD, who has to his credit four Antarctic expeditions, has shown himself, together with Dr. McCreary, to be a man of enterprise in all truth and very eligible for service under Sir Ernest Shackleton if luck has anything to do with it. The romantic story of perils braved at the call to duty is told again, this time not in a book but in very life. An invitation to join the Quest from Sir Ernest discovered the gallant navigator on a cotton plantation at Blantyre, in Central Africa. Trekking across country at a speed of 40 to 50 miles a day, crossing three rivers infested by tigers, and having all manner of seemingly impossible obstacles, he comes to salute his captain in readiness for the new adventure in the Southern Seas. "REGULAR FELLERS"

Excavations at Capernaum.

What is regarded by many Biblical scholars as the most valuable discovery which has been made by the archaeologist in Palestine is the location of the site of the city of Capernaum, and the finding among its ruins the remains of a synagogue believed to be the very one wherein our Saviour preached, writes Harold J. Shepstone, F.R.G.S.

For over nineteen hundred years the very site of such an important Bible city as Capernaum has been in dispute. No one knew until the other month for certainty where the city which Jesus made His home after the men at Nazareth rejected Him really stood. Two sites have always been pointed out—Ninveh, which lies about half-way up the western shore of the Sea of Galilee, and Tell Hum, near its northern end. At the former place there is a mass of ruins covering a space of several acres. At Tell Hum there are similar ruins extending for a distance of half a mile and over a quarter of a mile in width. Authorities were divided as to which of these two places was Capernaum.

The question has been definitely settled now, and the Rev. W. M. Christie, who recently visited the place and made a careful examination of the excavations at present going on there, tells us that Tell Hum is undoubtedly ancient Capernaum. The ruins which have so far been laid bare would point to its having been an important town. "His Only City."

We know from the gospels that Capernaum was a garrison town, for it was here that the kindly centurion lived who built the Jews a synagogue; and it was also the customs and taxing centre, for Matthew and other publicans made it their home. Jesus loved Capernaum, and the place came to be known as "His only city." It was here, almost immediately upon His arrival, that He healed the centurion's servant, and on the first Sunday there He performed two miracles by curing the demoniac in the synagogue and healing Peter's wife's mother, who was sick of the fever.

But something even more interesting than the mere site of Capernaum has been discovered. The ruins of the very synagogue in which Christ preached, that synagogue which the centurion built, have been found. The excavations carried out by the Franciscan monks, under the direction of a British archaeologist, have revealed the extensive ruins of a first century building in the Roman-Corinthian style which, as none other than the fine architecture of the gospels. The positions of the stones would indicate that the synagogue was destroyed by an earthquake.

It was largely composed of white limestone resembling marble. It is about 75 feet long and 54 feet wide, the outer walls being built of very large blocks of stone. On the south side it had three entrances. The bases of the columns are still intact, though the pillars themselves have fallen. The latter were adorned with beautiful capitals and the lintels were profusely ornamented.

Can be Reconstructed. None of the stones of which the building was constructed appears to have been removed, and it is the belief of the excavators that the whole edifice can be reconstructed as it stood in the days of Christ. Among the ruins was discovered a large block of stone on which was found a bit of manna carved on its face. It was perhaps this very picture that led our Saviour to utter the memorable words: "Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness."

It was at Capernaum that Christ gave utterance to many of His sublime lessons in the form of parables. Yet, in spite of this, many mighty works He wrought in the city, the inhabitants were not moved by His teaching, and their infidelity drew forth that scathing condemnation, "And thou, Capernaum, which are exalted down to Hell, how far this prophecy was carried out is evidenced when we remember that for nineteen hundred years no one knew exactly where the city stood.

I had them cut off by a surgeon about fifteen years ago but they grew again till about three months ago I had one as large and shaped like a lady's thumb, on the very place where my hair should be parted, and it was getting so embarrassing in public that it was a constant worry to me. About three months ago I got a bottle of your Liment for another purpose and saw on the label good for tumors. Well I tried it and kept at it for exactly two months, with the result that it has entirely removed all trace of the tumor, and were it not that they had been cut off fifteen years ago, you would be seen. I have not been asked for this testimonial and you can use it as you see fit.

"DISRESPECT FOR LAW."

Attorney General Daugherty Appeals for More Reverence---Society Must Be Protected.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Widespread lawlessness in the United States has of late called forth strong pronouncements from Chief Justice Taft and other patriots of that great Republic, including Attorney-General Daugherty, who delivered the enclosed address upon the subject of "Disrespect for Law," and in view of the tendency to lawlessness in high places and low in this country, I venture to request you to kindly find space for Mr. Daugherty's address in your widely read journal, as in this way you will make a distinct contribution to the cause of law and order in Newfoundland.

Thanking you in anticipation, Faithfully yours, L. CURTIS.

The attorney general said: "Respect for law is the one essential fact of our civilization. Without it, life, liberty and property are insecure. Without it civilization falls back to the chaos and anarchy of primitive times. Under such conditions, each human being is compelled to attend primarily to his own safety and to the protection of his own property, and has neither time nor opportunity for the intellectual, moral or spiritual development."

"The history of civilization has been a continuous struggle for law and order. Through all the centuries men have striven for that protection of life, liberty and property that comes through well-ordered government. Mankind has paid allegiance to lords and overlords who were able to give this protection."

Conditioned Upon Supremacy of Law. "Paradoxical as it may seem, all progress is conditioned on the principle of conservation. Conservation, or preservation as it is usually termed, of the wealth of the world, whether it be in the realm of the material or spiritual, is conditioned on the supremacy of the law. If there is one fact history teaches above another, it is that the rights incident to wealth and the rights furnishing the opportunity to enjoy spiritual, intellectual, moral and social things are conditioned upon the supremacy of the law."

Erroneous Theory of Personal Liberty. "Another subject that undermines respect for law, especially prominent at the present time, is an erroneous theory of personal liberty under our constitutional system. This controversy is as old as government itself. It has been asserted with especial vigor recently owing to the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and to the amendments in the various state constitutions, and because of legislation on the same subject by Congress and the various state legislatures."

Only One Course: Obedience to Law. "The question of the limitation of personal liberty is, in the first instance, a question of political philosophy and not of law. The advocates of personal liberty have ranged all the way from those who favor the widest measure of license to the individual to do as he pleases, on the one hand, to those who would restrict the individual by the most puritanic standards, on the other hand. Everyone has a right to advocate any view he pleases on this subject. However, when public sentiment has crystallized into law, there can be no question as to the duty of good citizens with reverence thereon. They may still debate as to the wisdom of the law, but there is only one course of conduct, and that is obedience to the law while it exists."

Message Nations Decey. "Let us be not misunderstood, I do not mean to impute moral turpitude to those who are opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment or similar amendments in our state constitutions, or who is opposed to the Volstead Act or similar legislation in our states. All I mean to say is that the argument of undue abridgment of personal liberty advanced to-day has in the past been advanced by every champion of lawlessness who has sought to find an excuse for unlawful conduct. And, in passing, let me repeat that this question is older than the American constitutional system. In fact, it constitutes one of the fundamental points of observation in the history of civilization, and has been one of the principal elements in the cycle theory of civilization. If our civilization will place such restraints about itself as to keep it chaste and strong in its civilization will endure. If it is to these false doctrines of personal liberty, it will go the way of the nations of the past."

"But, gentlemen, whatever be our individual views as to the wisdom of these constitutional provisions and laws made thereunder in our federal and state governments restricting personal liberty, the fact remains that they are on the statute books. They have been regularly enacted and are a part of constitutional and statutory law of the land."

Our Safety and Happiness. "From the standpoint of the government, the only sound view is that of law enforcement. Whatever differences of opinion exist in the views as to the wisdom of some of these laws can be of no concern to the agencies for law enforcement. The executive department cannot make the laws. It is equally true that it cannot nullify laws. To refuse or to neglect to enforce a valid enactment of the legislative department of government, or to enforce it mechanically or halfheartedly or to wink at its violation, is without justification on any sound theory of government. Those who ask it or expect it not only contribute to lawlessness, but destroy the basis upon which their own security rests. Our safety and happiness lies in obedience to law by every man, woman and child within the domain of our Republic, and no one can undermine respect for law without being, to that extent, an enemy to law and orderly government."

"I am opposed to any system of government in which the rights of any individual or group of individuals depend upon the whim or caprice or temperamental attitude of any public official. No Choice of Laws to be Obedient or Enforced. "If any citizen dislikes the law under which he is living, his relief is through the legislative department of government, and not through those who, under the Constitution, have the sworn duty of enforcing the law. As a citizen can not choose what laws he will obey, so, likewise, those charged with law enforcement can not choose what laws they will enforce. The only sound position for those who favor respect for law to take is that those charged with law enforcement must enforce all the laws, and all good citizens must obey all the laws; neither can exercise any right of choice in this matter without placing themselves above the law. It is the part of faithful officials to enforce and the part of good citizens to obey them."

Minorities and Majorities. "Another subject closely related to the topic just discussed that tends to undermine respect for law, and which has been a mooted question in every system of constitutional government, is the mistaken theories of the relation and attitude of the minority to the majority. Recently, we hear much about the rights of the minority, as if it had a special privilege of non-obedience to the law because it is made by the majority. "Our constitutional fathers understood thoroughly the political philosophy underlying the relation of government to individuals and to minor groups of individuals. There was nothing in the doctrine of minorities in relation to majorities that was not before them for consideration. They gave to the world its first solution of that problem in an instrument which protects the rights of minorities, as far as they ought to be protected, and, at the same time, left the majority free to carry out the sovereign will."

Duty of Minority to Obey Law. "The criticism of our government, as contrasted with the parliamentary system of government, has heretofore been that by its organization and structure it is difficult for the majority to express itself freely, rather than the criticism that the Constitution was so made that the majority will could ride rough shod over the minority. In view of these constitutional safeguards, there can be no excuse for any person within the domain of this Republic to hold his laws in contempt; to disobey them himself or countenance others to acts of disobedience to them, on the ground that the rights of the minority have been disregarded. It is the duty of the minority as well as the majority to obey the law. "If laws are obnoxious to the people it is their province to repeal them. Until they are repealed they must be observed and enforced without fear or favor. "The government will endure on the rock of law enforcement; or it will perish in the quicksand of lawlessness."

Obey or Leave the Country. "Those who do not believe in our government and the enforcement of our laws should go to a country which gives them their peculiar liberty. "To those who come to our shores to take advantage of American opportunities it is becoming to wave the hands of welcome. But it is our duty to warn them to stay away unless they intend to observe our customs and obey our laws. "Duty is clear. As long as I am the responsible head of the Department of Justice the law will be enforced with all the power possessed by the government," which I am at liberty to call to my command."

Home of the Eel. Expedition Starts to Find Breeding Places. The steamer Dana, formerly a British minesweeper, bought by the Danish Government, has left Copenhagen on a scientific expedition in the Atlantic to locate the breeding places of the eel. The expedition, which will cost the State about $25,000, is expected to last about 18 months and is under the leadership of Dr. Johannes Schmidt, the Danish explorer. It will visit Newfoundland, the equatorial waters, the West Indies, and Cape Verde, and will pay special attention to the Sargasso Sea, spending the summer months in the northern waters and the winter months farther south—Exchange. India Preparing for Prince.

36 GAUDILY PAINTED ELEPHANTS IN PROCESSION. Messages from India received in official circles in London regarding the Prince of Wales's tour in the autumn show that the Indian Princes will vie with each other in welcoming him with all the gorgeous pomp the East can display, says the London Daily Mail.

The great Rajput chieftains, including the Maharaja of Mewar in his fairy capital of Udaipur, the Maharaja of Jaipur in his famous Pink City, and the "Lord of the Desert," the Maharaja of Bikanir, in his sandy home, are already preparing for the entertainment of their guest.

After the Prince's progress through the Nizam's dominions of Hyderabad he will go on to India, where he will meet the chiefs of the Central States for an informal talk. All Central India will be represented here. The most interesting figure will be the Begum of Bhopal, the only Mohammedan woman ruler in the world. Before leaving for Gwalior the Prince will review the Bhopal Lancers and the Begum will watch the proceedings from the strict seclusion of a small tent. At Gwalior the Prince will be welcomed by a whole procession of 36 elephants, all painted grey with green and vermilion round eyes and ears. The Prince's howdah will be of carved wood with trappings of crimson cloth, while the maharajah will carry five whisks of peacocks' feathers. The Prince will leave Gwalior in time to arrive at Agra on February 13.

He will stay only long enough to see the principal memorials of the Mughal Emperors—the Pearl Mosque and the Jasmine Tower, from which he will view the famous memorial Taj Mahal, which has been described as a dream in marble. A few hours may be spent in visiting the abandoned town of Fatehpur Sikri, "the City of Victory," which the Emperor Akbar built in the jungle and filled with palaces, mosques, temples, philosophers, priests, and beautiful women, only to abandon it.

Boxer Deprived of $35,000 Purse. JERSEY CITY, N.J., Sept. 12.—A precedent in boxing circles was set to-day by the New Jersey Boxing Commission when it deprived Johnny Wilson, middleweight title-holder, of the $35,000 purse he was to have received for his Labor Day bout with Bryan Downey, of Cleveland. Wilson was found guilty by the Commission of failing to put forth his best efforts in winning the abandoned town of Fatehpur Sikri, "the City of Victory," which the Emperor Akbar built in the jungle and filled with palaces, mosques, temples, philosophers, priests, and beautiful women, only to abandon it.

The Commission announced, in making its decision, that it was not certain as to the legality of such action, and would take steps to learn the extent of its authority. Meanwhile, Tex Rickard, promoter, was directed to place the money in trust. Counsel for Wilson indicated that the case would be taken to the courts for settlement.

Wilson met Downey in a 12-round affair here Labor Day to settle the dispute over their bout in Cleveland, in which Downey claimed he had won by a knockout, but the referee had counted too slowly. The bout here was tame and uninteresting and Downey, who had tried awkwardly to floor Wilson in every round, was given the decision by a majority of the newspapermen present. No official decision was permitted under the New Jersey law. A member of the Boxing Commission who witnessed the bout ordered the promoter to withhold Wilson's share of the purse pending a hearing. He claimed Wilson had led only eleven times during the 12 rounds, and that he had been advised by his chief second to "take it easy."

At the first hearing before the Commission, Wilson declared that he had fought the best he knew how. Rickard, the promoter, said that Wilson had performed much better in previous bouts, and that his showing against Downey was disgraceful and an imposition on the spectators. He recommended that Wilson be ruled ineligible for all time. Referee Jim Savage testified that he would have thrown both men out of the ring and called it "no contest" if there had been a precedent in championship bouts.

Super-Giant Plane.

Like a Ship With Tiers of Wings.
A new wonder ship of the air—a giant of giants—bearing a fresh era in design, is taking shape now to the order of the Government in a huge shed at Bristol.

Viewed even from a distance the colossal looks astonishingly large. She is close at hand, with the framework of its tiers of wings, as yet unnumbered, stretching one above another, either side of its tremendous hull, the machine almost takes one's breath away.

None is the day of aeroplanes as we have pictured them hitherto. This machine wants a new name. Its body makes one think of the slim lines of a speedy sea vessel. Then, when you are inside it, the impression is rather that of some Pullman-car express on a glorified scale. But it is not really like a ship or any other vehicle. Those working on it merely call it an "airship."

It may be used to carry troops; it is big enough to act as a tender for a squadron of aeroplanes, carrying fuel and spare parts for them; it may be fitted up as a Red Cross craft of the air and have the lofty main saloon equipped as an operating theatre.

Standing under the shadow of the machine he is creating, Mr. Reid, the Bristol Aeroplane Company's designer, and his team of skilled workers look like mankind.

Engine-Room Like a Ship's.
There is an engine-room inside the master's hull. Bunched here at last is that "amateurish" scheme of dotting motors with their propellers, or some where on wings where they are not possible. Here there is a battery of engines, with their many gleaming cylinders, grouped in orderly precision; and what makes the expert power—such a system of gearing and power transmission as has never been used to any flying craft before.

It is from this engine-room that the power will be transmitted to propellers in the wings; and if the experiment succeeds it will open up a completely new field. There is talk, for instance, already, of obtaining a number of the huge 1,000-h.p. aero engines now reaching perfection and using them for our wildest dreams.

Repairs in Flight.
This Bristol giant will fly by night and day. The peril of a forced landing—practically eliminated. If any portion of the power-plant gives trouble here will be mechanics in the engine-room to put it right while the machine is in the air, the other working units being accelerated meanwhile to give the power sufficient to maintain altitude and speed.

Nothing could be more reassuring, with the flying world under the shadow of the R-88 disaster, than to see this latest marvel of British aircraft design.—Daily Mail.

Capt. Hayes an Indian Chief.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The Olympic arrived here last night after the longest trip of her career. She encountered a gale of hurricane force which raged for three days. Among her passengers was Dak-ka, chief of the Caraga tribe of Ontario, who was returning from London, where he lodged a protest against the Canadian law, recently passed, making the Indians citizens of the province they live in.

Whiskey Islands.

Whiskey Islands Make $100,000 a Year.
Further details of the "smugglers' rendezvous" in the Bahama Islands are given by the New York Herald, whose special correspondent has been spending several weeks in the little British shipalago seeing the mechanism of the great supply system for satisfaction of the parched American throat. Writes the New York correspondent: "Since liquor became more than half of its total trade, the correspondent adds, the colony has become a public debt." Settlement Point, at the extremity of the archipelago, which is only 40 miles from the American coast, is one of the chief smugglers' haunts. Forty or fifty motor boats, says the correspondent, were riding at anchor, and farther out lay two big schooners, which were formerly Massachusetts fishing craft. To all were going steady streams of rum and cases, boxes by Negroes and women, who were passing a "wired" boat. The manifest of two schooners made $150,000 a year.

The End of a Love Experiment

Sequel to "Forgiving Wife" Episode
The New York correspondent of the London-Daily Mail, sends the following sequel to the Spiker-Knowles marriage of about a year ago:

The war romance of Mr. Guy Spiker and Miss Emily Knowles, the English mother of his brother's child which became famous over two continents, has been shattered. After living happily with Mr. Guy Spiker for more than a year the former Emily Knowles suddenly left home several weeks ago, leaving a note for her husband saying that she did not care to live with him any longer.

A friend states that Mr. Guy Spiker did everything possible to make the girl happy. She is now understood to have written to her husband asking him to divorce her. Mrs. Knowles went to the United States early in 1920 at the invitation of Mrs. Cora Spiker, the wife of Mr. Perley Spiker, who met Miss Knowles while serving with the American Army in England and was the father of her child. Mrs. Spiker came to be known as the "forgiving wife" from the kindly and affectionate welcome she gave the girl. In the end Miss Knowles became engaged to Mr. Guy Spiker, the brother of her baby's father, and they were married.

Sacreligious Thieves.

INVADERS SANCTUARY OF ALTAIR.
ROME (Associated Press).—The "Sacred Bambino" of the Church of Holy Mary of the Victory has been stolen but recovered. It is the revered image of the Infant Jesus by Praga, and is believed by many Italians to possess the miraculous power of effecting cures among the people who worshipped at its shrine. So revered was it that hundreds of pieces of jewelry were placed at its feet, draped about its body and placed in close proximity to it as marks of gratitude from the faithful who were convinced they had received healing. One morning lately, the thieves gained access to the altar where the "Bambino" is placed, and made away with jewels and everything. Discovery that the adored image was not at its accustomed place was the signal for a general alarm and hundreds of devout persons, in the neighborhood of the church, made their pilgrimages to the altar to pray for the restoration of the "Bambino." During the day, one of the thieves was caught and this led to recovery of the revered "Bambino." The Church of Holy Mary of the Victory was erected to commemorate the victory of Lepanto, when the Crusaders defeated the Turks at sea. It is just in the shadow of the American embassy.

Delawana and Bluenose Enter for Race.

LUNenburg, September 23.—Both the Delawana and the Bluenose, although they have not yet officially entered for the elimination, will be among the Lunenburg contestants for the honour of representing Canada in the International Fishing Schooner Race to be held off Halifax 25th of October. It is known here to-day. The Delawana was defeated in the International races last year by the Esperanto of Gloucester. W. C. Smith and Company of this town are her managing owners. She is now in Halifax discharging fish. The Bluenose will go on the Marlin Slip here next week to be put into condition for the race, and the Delawana, it is expected, will remain in Halifax and be overhauled at that port. It is also reported that the Canada, of LaHave, the first entry, will go up to Halifax next week to prepare for the elimination contest. There is every possibility of a number of other Lunenburg County vessels entering the elimination races. Enthusiasm is steadily growing, and every day brings forth new aspirants for winning the honors of the elimination races on the 15th of October. H. R. Silver, Chairman of the International Trophy Trustees, is now in town.

Three Ears For Drivers.

Motorists are now able to use an additional means of hearing incoming and overtaking traffic. An instrument has been devised by which the sound coming from behind is caught by a large funnel-shaped drum at the rear of the car and the noise conveyed along a tube to the driver's ear. The drum "ear-globe" is so shaped that the air currents, striking it from the front as the car moves along are diverted, making a sort of vacuum, caused by suction. By this means the sounds from the rear are drawn in more rapidly and are intensified just where the chauffeur is sitting. Charabancs largely utilize these "charabancs" as the new invention is named, for it is very difficult for their drivers to see or hear behind, owing to the enormous size of the vehicles. Salads are tempting in school lunches. Pack them in paper containers with tops.
