 SATURDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 9.

POETRY.
 For the Guelph Mercury.

Mourn not the Aged.
 Weep when the infant promising and bright,
 And clothed in Beauty's softest robes of light,
 Tires of the path its infant feet have trod,
 And finds the way to heaven and to God.

Mourn when the violet beautiful and sweet
 Is crushed to earth by careless, hurrying feet,
 And in the dust obscurely, meekly lies,
 Emitting gentle fragrance as it dies.

But mourn not when the aged pilgrims go
 From these scenes of sorrow and of woe;
 Rejoice that their freed spirits to the skies
 On wings of Love and Faith may gently rise.

Their work is done, why should they longer stay,
 Their souls are longing for the far away;
 Their hearts are weary and their feet are sore,
 O mourn not that they will return no more.

The flowers all must droop to earth and die,
 The withered leaves upon the ground must lie;
 Rejoice that their worn bodies too may rest,
 Their spirits find a home among the blest.

HELVY HAZELWOOD.

NORAH CUSHALEEN
 HAUNTED CASTLE.

'Captain,' asked the youth, with earnest solemnity, 'did you ever love this lady with a true manly love?'

'Did I love her?' returned his listener fiercely. 'The proof of my love lies in this, that her baseness made me become what I am. Think ye I would have sworn an oath of vengeance on all the world if I had not loved her? Would I have left society and taken to the mountains to war on mankind if my heart had not been embittered by its betrayal?—Yes, I was fool enough to love, and the love, I find, has not gone out of my heart yet.'

'And,' continued Hargreave, 'did you never think that it was possible she might be less guilty than the outward facts indicated? Did you never dream that if you learned the secret truth, it might turn out that she was not the worthless mercenary being her conduct led you to suppose? Did such an idea never enter your mind?'

'Never,' returned he. 'How could it? Was she not betrothed to me? and did she not, without one word of intimation, go to the altar with an old withered man because he had gold?'

'Admitted. Nevertheless there might have been a reason for it. Now, suppose it was so—that her heart was never false to you, but that some secret overwhelming reason forced her to do what she did. Such a thing has occurred before, and it might be so in her case.—What then?'

'I can conceive of nothing to cause her to desert the man she had promised to love,' said the captain gloomily.

'Well, are you willing to learn the truth?' asked the other. 'Would not your heart, which is troubled now by its lingering love, be fortified by knowing that she was as false as you deemed?—Would you not then consign her to her doom to-morrow with less regret?'

'But how can I learn it?' asked the captain, looking dubiously at him.

'Easily enough,' replied Hargreave. 'If you choose, we shall both visit her chamber. You can remain silent in the shadow while I question her.'

'But will she tell you the truth?'

'Why should she not? She dreams not that you are her former lover, and can have no motive, even had she an inclination, to deceive us. What say you? Are you afraid to learn the truth?'

'No,' answered the captain in a tone of sudden decision. 'Let it be as you say, and you will find that in our controversy I am right and you are wrong.—There is no truth in women!'

'I unhesitatingly stake my faith on the issue,' said Hargreave, promptly.

'Then follow me,' rejoined Captain Jack.

CHAPTER XXX.—THE EXPLANATION—A MEETING BETWEEN OLD LOVERS—THE CAPTAIN'S AGONY.

The chamber in which the wife of the miser Henderwick was confined had its entrance from the extreme corner of the great hall in the cavern, and this entrance was not secured with a grating like the other, but had a thick, iron-bound door. The same jailer who attended the other prisoners, at a sign from the captain, took a key from his belt, and, opening the door, stood aside till they should pass.

Hargreave entered first, and the captain following behind, stood in the shadow just within the chamber, his face being half averted, and otherwise concealed by his velvet cap, from which a large tassel depended.

The lady they had come to visit sat on one side of the rich cushioned chairs which helped to make up the comfort of the well-furnished apartment. Her head leaned on her hand, and her expression was that of hopeless dejection. She was very youthful; her oval face was pale, but dignified, and a deep melancholy was settled upon it. It was a beautiful and intelligent countenance, but one could see at a glance that the light of happiness had faded from it, and that not newly. Hargreave, who knew the life-sacrifice she had offered up, saw there the utter misery and wretchedness she had since endured. She took no notice of their entrance. Probably she thought it was but the jailer, who was the only one who had visited her since her unfeeling husband had departed.

Hargreave went gently forward and stood before her. She languidly lifted her eyes, which flashed up the moment she saw him, and with a low scream she started from her seat, and stood with parted lips and wild apprehension.

'Pardon me lady, if I have alarmed you,' said the youth, in tones of kindest sympathy. 'I did not mean it. I am not a member of the association of lawless men who have their haunt in this place, but a, like yourself, a prisoner, and in their power. Learning the sad and unfortunate position in which you are placed, I have received permission to visit you. Believe me, I am deeply touched with sympathy at your condition and would gladly aid you if I could.'

She looked at him while he spoke—

there a doubt or suspicion—his open guileless countenance, the tones of his play and kindness in his voice, and the air of respect and sympathy which shone in his eyes, all combined to give him a certain confidence in his mind.

'You are very kind, sir—very kind indeed,' she said, and her accents were mournfully sweet, while the saddest of smiles passed over her face. 'My position is indeed a terrible one. Oh sir, do you think the men will show me no mercy?'

'Alas! there is, I fear, little to hope for from them. Their natures are savage and brutal, as befits their degraded occupation; and very likely know not what mercy means. Besides they are organized under certain laws which they have sworn to observe; and lawless as they are towards the Government of this country, they are tenaciously true to their own horrid customs.'

'It is not death I greatly dread,' she rejoined, while a strong shudder passed over her frame. 'I have not much to live for. A blighted heart and a blighted life have both been mine, and death I can only regard as a welcome release.' But such a death—oh such a death! She shuddered again, and passing her hand over her eyes, re-seated herself on the chair.

DARKNESS FAVOURABLE TO FATTENING.
 It is a fact that all animals fatten faster in dimly-lighted places than the full light of day. This is well known in respect to fowls. From experiments made with sheep, conclusions have been reached that in a dark shed, well ventilated and properly warm, they will make the most mutton from a given amount of food. But dark stables are not good for horses, or breeding stock of any kind. Fat is not with such the most important object in view.—Mark Lane Express.

RUSTY STRAW—EFFECTS ON ANIMALS.
 B. McClure states in the Practical Farmer that feeding rusty straw to cattle and horses has a very injurious effect upon their health and efficiency. The class of diseases induced by this ailment are marasmus, glanders, farcy, skin diseases, catarrhal affections and watery swellings of the body and legs. He adds that during the last eight months, out of 700 horses fed upon such straw, from forty-five to fifty were on the sick list.

England uses eight hundred and fifty millions postage stamps annually, France four hundred and fifty millions, and the United States three hundred and fifty millions.

OVERDRESSING. The N. Y. Tribune, alluding to the style of over-dressing which prevails among the ladies of the United States, as well as among those of Canada, to the morning walking-dresses, clanking with jet and resplendent with all kinds of fancy trimming, says truly, that the fair wearers of all this inordinate and inappropriate finery are much mistaken if they imagine that their gaudy costume will give the same effect of high style as the faultless fitting serge suit, serious and simple, with its collar and cuffs, and plain hat do to the well born English girls who wear them.

PROOFS OF THE SUPERIOR QUALITY

OF THE AMERICAN WATCH

MADE AT WALTHAM, MASS.

Referring to our advertisement in a previous issue of this paper, the American Watch Company, of Waltham, Mass., respectfully submit that their Watches are cheaper, more accurate, less complex, more durable, better adapted for general use, and more easily kept in order and repaired than any other watches in the market.

They are simpler in structure, and therefore stronger, and less likely to be injured than the majority of foreign watches. They are composed of from 125 to 300 pieces, while in an old English watch there are more than 700 parts.

How they run under the hardest trial watches can have, is shown by the following letters:

PENN. RAILROAD COMPANY. Office of the General Superintendent, Altoona, Pa., 15th Dec. 1866.

GENTLEMEN:—The watches manufactured by you have been in use on this railroad for several years by our engineers, to whom we furnish watches as part of our equipment. There are now some 300 of them carried on our line, and we consider them good and reliable time-keepers. Indeed, I have great satisfaction in saying your watches give us less trouble, and have worn at 1 do wear much longer without repairs than any watches we have ever had in use on this road. As you are aware, we formerly trusted to those of English manufacture, of acknowledged good reputation; but as a class they never kept time accurately, nor have they done as good service as yours. In these statements I am sustained by my predecessor, Mr. Lewis, whose experience extended over a series of years.

Respectfully, EDWARD H. WILLIAMS, General Superintendent, American Watch Co., Waltham.

NEW YORK CENTRAL RAILROAD. Locomotive Department, West Division, Rochester, Dec. 24, 1866.

GENTLEMEN:—I have no hesitation in saying that I believe the great majority of Locomotive Engineers have found by experience that Waltham Watches are the most satisfactory of any for their uses. They run with the greatest accuracy requisite for reliable time-keepers. Every riding of an engine, and as I have never known one to wear out, they must be durable. I hope to see the time when Railway Companies will generally adopt your watches, and furnish them to all engineers and conductors. In my opinion it would greatly tend to promote regularity and safety.

Yours respectfully, CHAS. WILSON, Chief Engineer, Locomotive Department of Locomotive Engineers' American Watch Co., Waltham, Mass.

We now make five different grades of watches, named respectively as follows:

Appleton, Tracy & Co., Waltham, Mass. Waltham Watch Co., Waltham, Mass. P. S. Bartlett, Waltham, Mass. Wm. Eldery, Boston, Mass. Home Watch Company, Boston, Mass.

All of these, with the exception of the Home Watch Company to be of the best material, on the most approved improved principle, and to possess every requisite for reliable time-keepers. Every dealer selling these watches is provided with the Company's printed card of guarantee, which should accompany each watch sold, so that buyers may feel sure that they are purchasing the genuine article. There are numerous counterfeiters and imitations of our watches sold throughout the country, and we would caution purchasers to be on their guard against imposition.

Any grades of Waltham Watches may be purchased of watch dealers.

Testimonials can be obtained on application from many persons in Canada who have worn the watches with the greatest satisfaction.

VALUABLE FARM PROPERTY

For Sale or to Exchange.

THE undersigned offers for sale, or to exchange for Real Estate in the Town of Guelph, the undermentioned property, viz:

FIRST.—A valuable improved Farm North of the Durham Road, in the Township of Bent's Oak, three miles from the Village of Durham, containing about 200 acres, of which about 100 acres are cleared and under fence. On the premises are a substantial Frame Dwelling House with good cellar, garden and well, with pump of excellent water. Also, a Frame Barn 60x30, with 18 feet posts and underground stabling, and a never-failing spring in the barn yard for the supply of water to cattle. This is a very eligible property, and well worthy the attention of those who wish to obtain a good farm.

Also—Lot 42, in the 3rd Concession of Bentwick, West of the Ganaraska Road, 100 acres, about 12 acres cleared, with a Frame House on the lot. The Rocky Saugeen River crosses one corner of this lot, and has a valuable water power on it, capable of driving any machinery.

Great Cure of Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia in Canada.

Consecon, Prince Edward Co., C. W. g March, 1867.

Messrs. Young & Chamberlain—Sirs—Having proved within my own person, on that there is at least a medicine that will indeed cure Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, I am induced to make this statement, under oath, which is to certify that I have been sorely afflicted for the last three years, according to the doctors' statements, with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I had a great deal of striking and vague uneasiness about the stomach, worse than pain, a constant wind, occasional pain, drowsiness, constipation, uneasiness in the right side, headache, a poor appetite, &c., and was greatly injured in strength. Having tried your new Indian medicine, the great S. O. shonee Remedy, spoke of so highly, I tried a bottle with your Pills, from a case I must say I found but little change, but I took another and then found my health improving. I continued it until I have taken about ten bottles, using the Pills, and I find that I have quite recovered. I eat heartily; I sleep peacefully; I am well and have pleasure in attending to my business. The doctor remarked to me I was looking much better. I told him that the Great Shonee Remedy was doing it. I have recommended the Remedy in several cases, and it has invariably given good satisfaction, and I would strongly recommend it to all afflicted as I was.

Sworn before me at Consecon, C. W. g, this 2nd day of March, 1867.

J. M. CADMAN, J. P., A Commissioner in O. P., and for the Co. of Prince Edward, C. W. g.
