The Honourable the Speaker having put the question whether the Senate do now adjourn during pleasure, it was resolved in the affirmative.

After awhile, Her Majesty The Queen having come and being seated upon the Throne—

The Honourable the Speaker commanded the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod to proceed to the House of Commons and acquaint that House that:—

"It is Her Majesty The Queen's pleasure that they attend Her immediately in the Senate Chamber."

The House of Commons being come,

Their Speaker, the Honourable Roland Michener said:-

"May it please Your Majesty,-

The House of Commons have elected me their Speaker, though I am but little able to fulfil the important duties thus assigned to me.

If in the performance of those duties, I should at any time fall into error, I pray that the fault may be imputed to me, and not to the Commons, whose servant I am, and who through me, the better to enable them to discharge their duty to their Queen and Country, humbly claim all their undoubted rights and privileges, especially that they may have freedom of speech in their debates, access to Your Majesty's person at all seasonable times, and that their proceedings may receive from Your Majesty the most favourable interpretation."

The Honourable the Speaker of the Senate answered:----

"Mr. Speaker,—

I am commanded by Her Majesty The Queen to declare to you that She freely confides in the duty and attachment of the House of Commons to Her Majesty's person and government; and not doubting that their proceedings will be conducted with wisdom, temper and prudence, She grants, and upon all occasions will recognize and allow their constitutional privileges. I am commanded, also, to assure you that the Commons shall have ready access to Her Majesty upon all seasonable occasions, and that their proceedings, as well as your words and actions, will constantly receive from Her the most favourable construction."

Her Majesty The Queen was then pleased to open the Session by a gracious Speech to both Houses, as follows:—

Honourable Members of the Senate,

Members of the House of Commons,

I greet you as your Queen. Together we constitute the Parliament of Canada. For the first time the representatives of the people of Canada and their Sovereign are here assembled on the occasion of the opening of Parliament. This is for all of us a moment to remember.

Parliamentary government has been fashioned by the wisdom of many centuries. Its justice, authority and dignity are cherished by men of good will. It will be the high purpose of my Ministers not only to preserve these qualities but to take steps to make both Houses of this Parliament more effective in the discharge of their responsibilities to the people of Canada.

You have come here to form this new Parliament from across a great land, a land far wider than either of those older countries that first gave it birth. I am proud to contemplate the great heritage of this nation—the minerals, the forests, the lands, the waters, the sources of power and energy which fire your ever-growing industries. But I am more proud to contemplate the spirit and ideas which brought this country to nationhood, and now, drawing reinforcement and enrichment from many lands and peoples, have given Canada a national character peculiarly her own. Yet in this age no nation can live unto itself. Through the overcast of international affairs the bright constellation of the Commonwealth illumines our times. The continuing admission of nations newly guided to self-government both broadens and strengthens our diverse Commonwealth as more of us come to share the great inheritance of those institutions and ideals which make our association a quiet but pervasive force for good in an unquiet world. This was manifest when the Prime Ministers of the Commonwealth met in London last June to talk of great affairs; and again, only a few days ago when on Canada's invitation, the Finance Ministers met at Mont Tremblant and in a comradely spirit laid plans for a Commonwealth Trade and Economic Conference to take place next year.

A similar spirit has been evident in the Colombo Plan, which is a part of the high venture of the peoples of South and South-East Asia as they move along the path of national development, and which my government will continue to support.

My Ministers believe that Canada's active participation in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is essential for the preservation of peace. You will accordingly be asked to maintain modern defence forces in being which, together with those of our allies will continue to act as a deterrent to attack upon any part of that alliance.

While Canada plays a full part in these particular associations, my Ministers remain convinced that in the wider forum of the United Nations we must also continue to seek such agreements as will preserve security and bring about a wide measure of disarmament. Indeed we must continue to hope that through the United Nations the aspirations of men and women for peace and security will be fulfilled.

In domestic affairs my Ministers look forward to meeting next month with the leaders of the Provincial governments in order to discuss fiscal relations and to seek better understanding and arrangement of many aspects of our public finances.

In the legislative programme to be laid before you it is fitting that mention should first be made of measures to improve the lot of the senior members of our society. Accordingly you will be asked to increase old age security pensions and to shorten the period of residence required to qualify for them. Changes will be proposed in the terms of assistance offered to provincial governments to enable them to increase the payments to be made under the Old Age Assistance Act, the Blind Persons Act and the Disabled Persons Act to a corresponding level.

You will also be asked to increase the scale of war veterans allowances and to enlarge the groups to whom they are paid. Changes will also be proposed in several sections of the Pension Act.

In order to assure to the farmers of Canada a fair share of the nationall income, you will be asked to enact a measure to provide greater stability in the prices of their products. Every possible effort is now being made, and will continue to be made to seek new markets for agricultural products as well as to regain those that have been lost.

Due to inability to market their grain, prairie farmers have for some time been faced with a serious shortage of funds to meet their immediate needs. In order to permit them to receive an advance payment for the grain they can expect to deliver this year you will be asked to authorize a system of cash advances for grain stored on farms.

My government will strive to secure additional markets for the products of our fisheries and to promote the development of international rules to safeguard the living resources of the sea.

My Ministers believe that a national development policy carried out in cooperation with the Provinces, and in the territories, is needed to enable all regions of Canada to share in the benefits to be realized in developing the resources of this great nation. It is their intention to propose to you from time to time programmes and projects to implement this policy.

As an immediate start upon a programme of more extensive development in the Atlantic Provinces, you will be asked to authorize, in joint action with the Provincial governments, the creation of facilities for the production and transmission of cheaper electric power in those provinces. You will also be asked to provide assistance in financing the Beechwood project which has been under construction in New Brunswick.

My Ministers will advance this national development policy further by initating new discussions with the government of Saskatchewan in order to make possible the early commencement of construction of the dam on the South Saskatchewan River.

My Ministers are pressing for a favourable settlement of international problems in connection with the Columbia River to clear the way for a joint programme with the Province of British Columbia to develop the immense power in the waters of this River.

My ministers will place before you a measure to ensure that those working in industries under federal jurisdiction will receive annual vacations with pay.

You will be asked to approve bills relating to certain railway branch lines, amendments to the Canadian and British Insurance Companies Act, and, in so far as the other business before you permits, to several other statutes.

Members of the House of Commons,

You will be asked to appropriate the sums required for carrying on the government of Canada during the remainder of the current fiscal year.

Changes in certain of the taxing statutes will be submitted for your approval.

REPORT OF THE PARLIAMENTARY LIBRARIAN

1st Session, 23rd Parliament, 1957

To the Honourable the Speaker of the Senate:

- The Parliamentary Librarian has the honour to submit his report for the first nine months of the year 1957.

We now have in the library building some 200,000 volumes, of which 89,385 had been re-catalogued at the end of September last. Since the last report our enlarged cataloguing staff have re-catalogued 17,259 volumes. During the same period our staff have answered 2,512 reference questions, and have circulated 10,613 books.

We have brought back to the Supreme Court building all the boxes of books which were in dead storage in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics building except those intended for the National Library. Those still in the Supreme Court building are being arranged on shelves and will be gone over soon with a view to deciding which should be kept and which sent to the National Library. This is a long operation which is not likely to be completed until two or three years hence.

In accordance with a recommendation of the Joint Committee on the Library of Parliament at its meeting of March 19, 1957, the Department of Public Works have studied ways of improving the general illumination of the main Reading Room and steps are now being taken to implement the recommendation of the Joint Committee.

MEETING OF COMMONWEALTH PRIME MINISTERS FINAL STATEMENT

The meeting of Commonwealth Prime Ministers was concluded to-day. This was the first Commonwealth meeting at which Ghana was represented, following her attainment of independence in March, 1957. Other Commonwealth Ministers welcomed Ghana's participation in the meeting as a full member of the Commonwealth, and took note of this occasion as further practical evidence of the progress made by the United Kingdom Government in the pursuit of their policy of fostering constitutional development in their dependent territories.

In the course of their discussions the Commonwealth Ministers have reviewed all the major international questions of the day which are of common concern to their countries. In this association of free and independent nations it is inevitable that there should be some differences of viewpoint and opinion. But these meetings reveal a broad similarity of approach and purpose. It is not their function, nor is it the object of this communiqué, to record agreed decisions or formal resolutions. Their value lies in the opportunity which they afford for a full and candid exchange of views in the light of which each Comonwealth government can formulate and pursue its separate policies with deeper knowledge and understanding of the views and interests of its fellow members.

The primary objective of all Commonwealth governments is world peace and security. They believe that this objective can only be assured by increased co-operation between nations. They themselves accept the principle and practice of co-operation; it is the foundation of their own association. They will continue to work for its wider adoption.

The United Nations was designed to provide one of the main opportunities for the practical exercise of the principle of co-operation between nations. Experience has, however, revealed certain deficiencies and weaknesses in the functioning of the organization. The Commonwealth Ministers agreed that constructive action is needed to strengthen and improve the United Nations as an instrument for preserving peace, justice and co-operation throughout the world in accordance with the principles of the charter.

In discussion of developments since their last meeting, Commonwealth Ministers expressed their grave concern at the tragic events in Hungary. They took note that the forthcoming consideration by the General Assembly of the report presented by its special committee will provide the occasion for the United Nations to record its views.

Commonwealth Ministers reviewed the course of the developments in the current discussions on disarmament. They noted that proposals relating to a first stage of disarmament were put forward on the 2nd of July in the disarmament subcommittee on behalf of the Governments of the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada and France. They recognized that even a limited agreement, by reducing the suspicions and tensions throughout the world, would help to create conditions in which a more comprehensive scheme of disarmament could be developed. 31st OCTOBER

The Commonwealth Ministers discussed the international problems of the Middle East. They agreed that, in the long term, economic and social progress must be the foundation for stability in the Middle East. They agreed, however, that in the short term the need is to work toward a relaxation of the tension arising from the dispute between the Arab states and Israel, the plight of the Arab refugees and the unresolved problems in connection with the Suez Canal. They considered that solutions of all these urgent questions should continue to be pursued by all practicable means.

Consideration was also given to the contribution which might be made by the Commonwealth governments concerned toward the easing of tension and the maintenance of peace, stability and political freedom in the Far East and Southeast Asia. Commonwealth Ministers welcomed the important contribution already made by mutual assistance under the Colombo Plan toward raising standards of living and promoting economic development in the underdeveloped countries of this area.

In their general review of economic questions the Commonwealth Ministers gave special attention to the impact of the major programmes of development on which many of their countries are now engaged. These programmes call for high levels of domestic saving which can only be secured by sound internal policies. But they also call for conditions favourable to investment from other countries. The United Kingdom will continue to play its leading role in furthering economic development in the countries of the Commonwealth, and important contributions are also being made by other Commonwealth members. But, in view of the continued need for capital investment, it is also important to encourage investment from other sources on suitable conditions.

The Commonwealth Ministers noted the progress made since their last meeting toward the freeing of trade and payments. In this context they discussed the proposals for the creation of an industrial free trade area in Europe as a complement to the European economic community to be set up under the Treaty of Rome. They agreed that, as part of the continuous exchange of views between Commonwealth governments on these matters, particular aspects of the proposals which might specially affect certain countries in the Commonwealth should be examined in London next week by officials of all Commonwealth countries in the light of the Ministers' discussions.

The Commonwealth Ministers noted that the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development will be held in Washington in September. The normal practice is for this meeting to be followed by a meeting of Commonwealth Finance Ministers. The Prime Minister of Canada extended an invitation that this meeting of Finance Ministers should be held this year in Ottawa.

The Commonwealth Ministers recognized the value of the work carried out over the past thirty years by the Commonwealth Economic Committee. They agreed that the Committee should be invited to examine and suggest to governments what expansion of its scope and functions might usefully be undertaken for the particular purpose of drawing attention to the economic resources of Commonwealth countries.

The Commonwealth Ministers reviewed the progress of co-operation within the Commonwealth in the use of nuclear energy for civil purposes. They recognized the growing importance of the contribution which nuclear energy can make to the peaceful development of their countries and of the rest of the world and the value of close collaboration between members of the Commonwealth in this field. For this purpose nuclear scientists from Commonwealth countries will be invited to an informal meeting in the United Kingdom in 1958.

The Commonwealth Ministers noted that the Federation of Malaya was on the eve of attaining independence. They extended to the Federation their warm good wishes for its future, and they looked forward to being able to welcome an independent Malaya as a member of the Commonwealth on the completion of the necessary constitutional processes.

London, 5th July, 1957.

APPENDIX "B"

JOINT COMMUNIQUÉ ISSUED BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES AND THE PRIME MINISTER OF THE UNITED KINGDOM IN WASHINGTON ON OCTOBER 25, 1957.

Declaration of Common Purpose

The President of the United States and the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, at the end of three days of meetings at which they were assisted by the Secretary of State and the Foreign Secretary and other advisers, issued the following statement:

I

We have met together as trusted friends of many years who have come to head the governments of our respective countries. These two countries have close and historic ties, just as each has intimate and unbreakable ties with other free countries.

Recognizing that only in the establishment of a just peace can the deepest aspirations of free peoples be realized, the guiding purpose of our deliberations has been the determination of how best to utilize the moral, intellectual and material strength of our two nations in the performance of our full share of those tasks that will more surely and promptly bring about conditions in which peace can prosper. One of these tasks is to provide adequate security for the free world.

The free nations possess vast assets, both material and moral. These in the aggregate are far greater than those of the Communist world.

We do not ignore the fact that the Soviet rulers can achieve formidable material accomplishments by concentrating upon selected developments and scientific applications, and by yoking their people to this effort.

Despotisms have often been able to produce spectacular monuments. But the price has been heavy. For all peoples yearn for intellectual and economic freedom, the more so if from their bondage they see others manifest the glory of freedom. Even despots are forced to permit freedom to grow by an evolutionary process, or in time there will be violent revolution. This principle is inexorable in its operation. Already it has begun to be noticeable even within the Soviet orbit. If the free nations are steadfast, and if they utilize their resources in harmonious co-operation the totalitarian menace that now confronts them will in good time recede.

In order, however, that freedom may be secure and show its good fruits, it is necessary first that the collective military strength of the free nations should be adequate to meet the threat against them. At the same time, the aggregate of the free world's military expenditure must be kept within limits compatible with individual freedom. Otherwise we risk losing the very liberties which we seek to defend.

These ideas have been the central theme of our conversations which, in part, were participated in by Mr. Spaak, the secretary-general of NATO.

In application of these ideas, and as an example which we believe can and should spread among the nations of the free world, we reached the following understanding:

II

1. The arrangements which the nations of the free world have made for collective defence and mutual help are based on the recognition that the concept of national self-sufficiency is now out of date.

The countries of the free world are interdependent and only in genuine partnership, by combining their resources and sharing tasks in many fields, can progress and safety be found. For our part, we have agreed that our two countries will henceforth act in accordance with this principle.

2. Our representatives to the North Atlantic Council will urge an enlarged Atlantic effort in scientific research and development in support of greater collective security and the expansion of current activities of the task force working in this field under the council's decision of last December.

3. The President of the United States will request the congress to mend the Atomic Energy Act as may be necessary and desirable to permit of close and fruitful collaboration of scientists and engineers of Great Britain, the United States and other friendly countries.

4. The disarmament proposals made by the western representatives on the disarmament subcommittee in London and approved by all members of NATO are a sound and fair basis for an agreement which would reduce the threat of war and the burden of armaments. The indefinite accumulation of nuclear weapons and the indiscriminate spreading of the capacity to produce them should be prevented. Effective and reliable inspection must be an integral part of initial steps in the control and reduction of armaments.

5. In the absence of such disarmament as we are seeking, international security now depends, not merely on local defensive shields, but upon reinforcing them with the deterrent and retaliatory power of nuclear weapons.

So long as the threat of international Communism persists, the free nations must be prepared to provide for their own security. Because the free-world measures are purely defensive and for security against outside threat, the period for which they must be maintained cannot be foreseen.

It is not within the capacity of each nation acting alone to make itself fully secure. Only collective measures will suffice. These should preferably be found by implementing the provisions of the United Nations Charter for forces at the disposal of the Security Council. But if the Soviet Union persists in nullifying these provisions by veto, there must otherwise be developed a greater sense of community security. The framework for this exists in collective defence arrangements now participated in by nearly 50 free nations, as authorized by the Charter. All members of this community, and other free nations which so desire, should possess more knowledge of the total capabilities of security that are in being and in prospect. There should also be provided greater opportunity to assure that this power will in fact be available in case of need for their common security, and that it will not be misused by any nation for purposes other than individual and collective self-defence, as authorized by the Charter of the United Nations.

For our part we regard our possession of nuclear weapons power as a trust for the defence of the free world.

6. Our two countries plan to discuss these ideas with all of their security partners. So far as the North Atlantic Alliance is concerned, the December meeting of the North Atlantic Council may, perhaps, be given a special character in this respect. This has been discussed with the secretary-general of NATO, Mr. Spaak.

7. In addition to the North Atlantic Treaty, the Southeast Asia Collective Defence Treaty, the Baghdad Pact and other security arrangements constitute a strong bulwark against aggression in the various treaty areas. There are also vitally important relationships of a somewhat different character. There is the Commonwealth; and in the western hemisphere the organization of American states. There are individual mutual defence agreements to which the United States is a party.

8. We recognize that our collective security efforts must be supported and reinforced by co-operative economic action. The present offers a challenging opportunity for the improvement of trading conditions and the expansion of trade throughout the free world. It is encouraging that plans are developing for a European free trade area in association with the European common market. We recognize that especially in the less developed countries there should be a steady and significant increase in standards of living and economic development.

9. We took note of specific factors in the ideological struggle in which we are engaged. In particular, we were in full agreement that:

Soviet threats directed against Turkey give solemn significance to the obligation, under article 5 of the North Atlantic Treaty, to consider an armed attack against any member of the Alliance as an attack against all;

The reunification of Germany by free elections is essential. At the Geneva Conference of 1955 Messrs. Khrushchev and Bulganin agreed to this with us and our French Allies. Continued repudiation of that agreement and continued suppression of freedom in Eastern Europe undermine international confidence and perpetuate an injustice, a folly and a danger.

III

The President and the Prime Minister believe that the understandings they have reached will be increasingly effective as they become more widespread between the free nations. By co-ordinating the strength of all free peoples, safety can be assured, the danger of Communist despotism will in due course be dissipated, and a just and lasting peace will be achieved.

For Thursday, 7th November, 1957.

By the Honourable Senator Pratt:---

31st October-That he will inquire of the Government:-

1. If it has been brought to the attention of the Minister of Trade and Commerce that the Government of the Island of Jamaica is refusing to allow importations of salted codfish from the Atlantic Provinces except at prices which the officials of that Government dictate and that at the present time and for some weeks past purchases by Jamaican importers are forbidden because prices offered do not meet with official approval.

2. If the Minister of Trade and Commerce is aware of the fact that an official of the Government of Jamaica has served notice that unless shippers from Newfoundland and the other provinces enter into an immediate contract, which will guarantee that there will be no advance over previous prices for one year, that Canadian exporters will be prevented from selling any salted codfish to Jamaican importers at any price for a year hence.

(1) Combatting inflation, reducing cost of living, reducing costs of production, and thereby increasing the marketing opportunities for the products of our primary and secondary industries.

For Monday, 11th November, 1957.

By the Honourable Senator Pratt:----

31st October-That he will inquire of the Government:-

1. If it has been brought to the attention of the Minister of Trade and Commerce that the Government of the Island of Jamaica is refusing to allow importations of salted codfish from the Atlantic Provinces except at prices which the officials of that Government dictate and that at the present time and for some weeks past purchases by Jamaican importers are forbidden because prices offered do not meet with official approval.

2. If the Minister of Trade and Commerce is aware of the fact that an official of the Government of Jamaica has served notice that unless shippers from Newfoundland and the other provinces enter into an immediate contract, which will guarantee that there will be no advance over previous prices for one year, that Canadian exporters will be prevented from selling any salted codfish to Jamaican importers at any price for a year hence.

(1) Combatting inflation, reducing cost of living, reducing costs of production, and thereby increasing the marketing opportunities for the products of our primary and secondary industries.

(2) Providing at long last an opportunity for the so-called "Have Not" areas of Canada to attain a degree of economic development comparable to that presently enjoyed by the "Have" areas.

APPENDIX

HER MAJESTY'S BROADCAST TO THE NATION SUNDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1957

When my husband and I were leaving Canada last time—in the teeth of a gale, as you may remember—we heard the kindly people at Portugal Cove singing "Will Ye No Come Back Again?". We could not tell them then that we had every hope and intention of returning as soon as possible. Now after six years I want you to know how happy I am to be in Canada once again, particularly at Thanksgiving.

Tomorrow afternoon I shall open the 23rd Parliament here in the nation's capital. As you may know, it will be the first time that the Canadian Parliament has been opened by the Sovereign in person and I am very much looking forward to performing this duty. At this ancient ceremony I shall preside at a formal assembly of the men and women chosen to guide the destinies of Canada. Tomorrow I shall address your representatives . . . Tonight I want to talk to you more personally.

Next week I have another important and pleasant duty to perform. When I go to the United States I shall be going as the Head of the Canadian Nation to pay a State Visit to the Head of our great neighbouring country. I shall be going in other capacities as well but when you hear or read about the events in Washington, and other places, I want you to reflect that it is The Queen of Canada and her husband who are concerned in them.

I am afraid my visit to Canada this time is going to be very short, but travelling is becoming so quick and easy that I hope to be able to pay more visits in the future. In the meantime I have vivid memories of my journey across the country in 1951. All the varied scenes of that tour have been crowding back into my mind since I arrived and I have been going over the great events of those days with old friends.

I remember particularly the welcome of the children . . . How you all shouted with one voice. I remember thinking that it augured well for Canada that the rising generation, whether English or French speaking, whether born here or abroad, could show so clearly that you belonged to one great Canadian family. This is a wonderful and exhilarating country worthy of your very best service when you grow up. We hope that one day we shall be able to bring our children here to see it.

Different language is no bar to unity of outlook so I want to say a few words to the French-speaking children who may be listening.

(Translation):

Whether you be English or French speaking, whether you were born in this splendid country or abroad, you all belong to one great family. You live in a wonderful and exhilarating country. So many other children would love to share your happiness! When you grow up, you will be proud to serve your country and better able to realize all it has done for you. I hope that one day I shall be able to bring my own children here to see it.

(Text):

Great things have happened here in the last six years. For one thing there are more Canadians, the cities are larger, industry has expanded and the last frontier is being pushed northwards. The strength of the Canadian currency is the admiration of other nations and it reflects the unceasing and sensible development of the natural resources, and your own hard work.

In 1959 I am hoping to be present when the St. Lawrence Seaway is opened and then I hope to take that chance to travel more widely across the country. All these developments and adventurous undertakings are making a contribution to Canada's prosperity, but I am also pleased to see the way Canada's stature has grown in the councils of the world.

(Translation):

Industry and commerce may bring wealth to a country, but the character of a nation is formed by other factors. Race, language, religion, culture and tradition all have some contribution to make and when I think of the diversity of these factors in Canada today and the achievements that have grown from their union, I feel proud and happy to be Queen of such a nation.

My stay in Canada will be so short and my duties in the capital so many that I shall be unable to stop elsewhere. But the memories of my visit in the province of Quebec, some years ago, are such that I do feel I have to say along with you: "I remember".

I remember not only the warmth of your greeting and the beauty of your ancient heritage, but also other things of abiding worth, for I know how much you love this land of yours where your ancestors lie buried. I know too of your passionate devotion to your ancient faith and to your mother tongue. Loyally united with your fellow citizens, you have helped Canada to play an ever increasing part in world affairs.

(Text):

In this wonderful land of yours, men and women of various racial origin live and work together on terms of equality. That is a splendid lesson for everyone. As Queen of Canada I am proud of it. In saying "au revoir", may I say too how grateful I am for all you have done for my husband and myself. To you and your children I wish peace and happiness.

There are long periods when life seems a small dull round, a petty business with no point and then suddenly we are caught up in some great event which gives us a glimpse of the solid and durable foundations of our existence. I hope that tomorrow will be such an occasion. I hope that all of you will feel that you are taking part in a piece of Canada's history. I wish more of you could be here to witness the ceremony, but at least tonight I have been able to speak to you directly in your homes.

And now it's time for me to say Goodnight. Good luck and God bless you all.
