

Tight Binding

A few copies of the present half-year of the Genesee Farmer can be had at this office, for three shillings a copy. The Farmer is a monthly publication, devoted to Agriculture, Rural and Domestic Economy, &c., and is full of practical information for all engaged in these pursuits. The 1s. 10d. will purchase six numbers of this excellent work, from July to December inclusive. Those desirous of getting a copy had better apply immediately. Journal Office, Sept. 15.

LAST WORD TO DELINQUENT SUBSCRIBERS.

Having given those of our subscribers who were two years in arrears on the 7th inst. (yesterday) timely notice of the means which we should adopt to collect the sums which they owe us, those who have disregarded the warning will have to take the consequences. To-day a large number of accounts will be placed in the hands of a magistrate; and we will continue to hand them over to him as fast as is found convenient. Journal Office, Sept. 8.

The River Saint John.

It is an unfortunate thing certainly for our enterprising lumber operators that the improvement of the navigation of our noble River has not been aided by further appropriations by the Legislature. The large amount of business evidently intended to be done by our lumbermen during the present winter will be brought nearly to a "stand still" in consequence of the difficulty of getting necessary supplies brought from Fredericton up. Had fifteen hundred pounds more been expended in improving the navigation the steamboats now lying idle, awaiting a freshet to enable them to run, might be engaged in plying from Fredericton up, to the advantage and convenience of all interested, giving an impetus to the winter's business, and adding materially to the industrial facilities of the country. As it is, large quantities of goods are now lying in Fredericton for want of conveyance, and a great portion of them will have to remain there until a snow road is obtained, then to be hauled from sixty to one hundred and eighty miles to carry on the winter's operations, at a cost much above what would be incurred were the navigation such as to allow the running of the steamers.

This improvement of the river navigation is one of those useful and practical reforms which far surpass in value the whole budget of political theorisings in which our legislators are wont to indulge. In a new country internal communication is the first great want; and to furnish facilities for internal communication and commerce should be a primary object of the Legislature. What matters it that Carleton and Victoria Counties can raise luxuriant crops if the means of transport of these crops to good markets are wanting? if the cost of transportation eats up all the profits? What matters it that we can afford to purchase in foreign markets products which we do not raise and manufacture, to carry on our industrial operations, if the means are not to be had for their carriage hither?

Nature has done much for internal communication in New Brunswick by providing a magnificent river running directly through its midst. But the people themselves, or rather the Government, as their representative and agent, has done exceedingly little in the completion of the work which nature has begun, or rather in making available the vast facilities which she has placed almost in our grasp. Were the River St. John located in some portions of this continent, and those not a whit longer or more thickly settled, or a whit more wealthy, than New Brunswick, it would be made by the care and enterprise of the inhabitants a great highway throughout the year. But our Government is so inert and so inattentive to the practical good of the country that the advantages which are bestowed upon us are to a great extent neglected. We cry out against our country, while we neglect the resources which might make it one of the most prosperous on the continent. We cry out for railroads and for means of cheap and speedy transportation and communication, while we neglect the very means which Providence brings to our doors.

The Diocesan Church Society.

THE TWENTY FOURTH REPORT OF THE DIOCESAN CHURCH SOCIETY OF N. BRUNSWICK furnishes some interesting and valuable information concerning the Church of England in this Province. The objects of this Society are concisely set forth in the 8th article of the constitution. They are:

- 1. Missionary visits to places where there is no settled Clergyman, and aid to new and poor missions.
2. The establishment of Divinity Scholarships at King's College, Fredericton; and assistance, where necessary, to those who may be under preparation for the Ministry, especially sons of Clergymen.
3. Aid to Sunday and other Schools in which Church principles are taught, and the training and encouraging of Schoolmasters and Catechists.
4. The supply of such books and Tracts as are on the catalogue of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, and none other.
5. Aid to the building and enlarging of Churches and Chapels.
6. Aid to the building of Parsonage Houses.
7. The creation of a fund towards the augmentation of the stipends of Clergymen who are poor; and towards the education of the children of such Clergymen; and towards the making a provision for those who may be incapacitated by age or infirmity.
8. The creation of a fund for the widows and orphans of the Clergy.

Towards the carrying out of these objects there have been appropriated since the organization of the Society in 1838 £29,324 19 7. During the half year which ended in June 1859 the receipts of the Society were Table with 2 columns: Description and Amount. Includes Balance per last audit, Subscriptions and donations, Collections in Churches, Interest, Expenditures during the same period, etc.

From the Report we learn that there are in the Diocese fifty-four Clergymen, of whom eighteen receive stipends from the Society. The Society appears to be a very useful and active one; and it seems to meet with the success which it deserves.

THE RIGHT WORD IN THE RIGHT PLACE.

By the Author of "How to Write," "How to Talk," &c. New York: Fowler & Wells, Publishers. The publishing firm of Fowler & Wells are famous for the issue of little books like this, calculated to supply wants which many feel, but for which few attempt to provide and to shorten as much as possible the road to knowledge. This volume is a neat little octodecimo of 214 pages, well bound, and costing but half a dollar, yet it contains in a convenient and portable form a collection of matter of the utmost value to writers and speakers,—to all in short, who desire to use their mother tongue with clearness, precision and force. It contains first a dictionary of synonyms which covers seventy-two pages; secondly, a dictionary of technical terms, with their meanings; thirdly, a dictionary of abbreviations; fourthly, a vocabulary of the foreign words and phrases most commonly found in English works, with translations; fifthly, a series of brief rules for punctuation; and, sixthly, some valuable information respecting writing for the press and proof reading.

MEETING OF THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL.

The only results which we have yet heard of the meeting of the Executive Council recently held in Fredericton are the appointment of a commission for the framing of a Bankrupt Law, under the resolution of the House of Assembly of last session, and of the three Government members of the Medical Council. The members of the former commission are Charles Duff, Barrister, St. John, J. D. Lewin, President of the Bank of New Brunswick, John Glasier, of Lincoln, County of Sunbury, and William Parker, of whose residence, occupation, or standing no one of whom we have inquired can inform us. The members of the Medical Council are Hon. Robert Gordon, of Northumberland, and Drs. Harding and Livingston, of St. John.

UNITED STATES ELECTIONS.

A number of state elections have taken place this fall, in which the Republicans have been generally victorious. In Indiana they have made gains; they have carried Iowa; in Minnesota they have elected state officers and a majority of the Legislature; in Ohio they have carried a majority in the Legislature. Pennsylvania which has been considered Democratic hitherto has elected an opposition Legislature. These elections are regarded with much interest, as they are supposed to be to some extent premonitory of the Presidential election, which takes place next year.

THE WEATHER AND THE RIVER.

Since our last issue the weather has been cold and frosty. Owing to the slight falls of rain and snow which took place last week the river rose to a height sufficient to allow the Bonnie Doon to make one trip up on Monday and Tuesday, but has again fallen below steambating pitch.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Western Recorder published in Carleton, St. John, is now issued twice a week, as The Morning Herald. It presents a neat appearance. Godey's Lady's Book and Arthur's Ladies' Home Magazine, for November, have come to hand. These publications are both excellent in their way, and are deservedly favorites with those to whose benefit they are specially dedicated. Our Musical Friend, Number 47, has come to hand.

RAILWAY COMMUNICATION WITH CANADA.

By private advices we hear of the opening of the Grand Trunk Railway down to River du Loup, bringing that place within four miles travel of Quebec. Thus Canada is pushing on the iron road towards New Brunswick; while New Brunswick, who would be the principal gainer by a railroad connection, is doing nothing towards it, but seems absolutely to be, according to the St. John Globe, reflecting upon the propriety of completing that magnificent mistake, the Shediac road, by continuing it on to the United States.

EXECUTION OF BLANEY.

As our paper although dated Thursday is not issued until Friday, we have been enabled to hear that Blaney was hanged at 9 a.m. this day by Sheriff Beckwith. When on the scaffold he said that he was insane from the effects of liquor when he committed the deed. He thanked the Sheriff for his kindness and expressed a wish that all present should pray for him. He did not live above a minute after the fall. There was a very large crowd present.

FLORENCEVILLE, N. B.

A few days ago, we passed through this thriving little village for the first time. It seems more like a Maine village than any other we have visited in New Brunswick, if we may except Grand Falls. John D. Baird, Esq., is erecting a large steam mill near the river, and we noticed that a large number of building lots had been laid out. Mr. Smith, the enterprising landlord of the Florenceville House, is building a new house near the one he occupies at present. From its location, this place must soon become one of considerable importance. Its most serious drawback is the height of the banks of the river, as it is a long and steep hill from the village to the water's edge. —Aroostook Pioneer.

ARRIVAL OF THE ANGLO-SAXON.

BOSTON, Oct. 24th. The Anglo-Saxon passed Farther Point yesterday.

The Great Eastern had gone round from Portland to Holyhead. It was reported she would not leave England this year, but would go in to winter quarters at Southampton soon.

Negotiations at Zurich still linger. Large numbers of volunteers were flocking to the standard of the Italian League. Rumors are current of difficulties, and even a split, in the English Cabinet on the Chinese question.

Robert Stephenson, the eminent Engineer, was in a dying state.

ARRIVAL OF THE PERSIA.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. The Persia left Liverpool at 11 on the morning of the 15th inst. and arrived at 3 this morning.

Zurich rumors conflicting. Some report delays and misunderstanding regarding Lombardy debt; others say signing of the treaty hourly expected and the Congress which follows has been convened, all the Great Powers, England included, being represented.

Nothing regarding the Great Eastern's movements. It is denied that Clarendon succeeds Canning.

Napoleon has returned to Paris. The Italians in Bordeaux were arrested during the Emperor's stay there.

Garibaldi issued a stirring manifesto to the troops, saying the hour for new struggle approaches.

The Pope prolongs his stay at Castel Gondolfo owing to the agitation in Rome, where striking manifestations took place in honor of departing Sardinian minister. Justice being done Parma for a while assassination Farini issued proclamation vehemently branding crime.

Rumors of an approaching interview between the Emperors of Austria and Russia, also that Austrian Emperor will visit Napoleon.

Breadstuffs generally drooping. The advance early in the week lost. Provisions dull, sugars firm, tea quiet.

ARRIVAL OF THE JASON.

NEWFOUNDLAND, Oct. 26. The Jason arrived at Newfoundland today. China mail arrived. The American Minister was courteously received at Peking, and expects to be able to send home ratified treaty next mail.

Rumors say the Great Eastern sails for America 24th inst.

Zurich.—Numerous conflicting reports spoke of delays and misunderstandings regarding Lombardy. Others say signing treaty hourly expected, and that Congress which is to follow the conference had been convened, all the great powers, England included, being represented.

Stephenson dead. The British war steamer Hero, 91 guns preparing for Vancouver's Island.

It is denied that Clarendon succeeds Canning.

Reported that Prince Napoleon is about to visit London.

Garibaldi issued a stirring manifesto to the troops, saying the hour for new struggle approaches.

Consols 95 3-8. Money 90 for account.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 17.

After numerous defeats, Schamyl, as a last resource, shut himself up, with 400 murides who remained faithful to him in the fortified soul of Gounib. Gounib is a fortified stronghold, on very elevated ground, of large extent. On three sides the rocks are perpendicular; the only other side was deemed impregnable, and a handful of determined men could have defended it for months against any odds. Prince Bariatinski ordered the attack to be made on both sides at once. The attack commenced on the 7th of September. While the chief attack was made on the only accessible side a number of men, who volunteered, scaled the rocks. The enemy was taken by surprise. A fearful struggle ensued. The resistance was most determined. Of the 400 murides in Gounib only forty-seven remained alive. Five guns were captured. Schamyl retired to a house cut in the solid rock. The plateau was covered with corpses. We have lost more than 100 men. Prince Bariatinski, who had come up, summoned Schamyl to a rendezvous, and ordered his men to cease firing. The Imam asked upon what conditions 'Come out without conditions,' said Prince. Schamyl came out, and the Prince met him though advised by his officers to retire for fear of treachery. 'Are you Schamyl?' said the Prince. 'Yes, I am,' replied the Imam. 'Well, your life is safe; you may keep your wives and children, but to-morrow I send you to St. Petersburg. Your fate will depend upon the will of the Emperor, my august master.' Schamyl bowed without uttering a word. The Prince then said to him, 'I expect you at Teflis; I thought you would have come to make your submission. As you did not, I was obliged to come and see you here. Turning then to Lieut. Colonel Grabbe, Prince Bariatinski said, 'Start once for St. Petersburg—tell his majesty what you have seen and heard—I will send written details to-morrow and Schamyl with them.'

This is the denouement of the sanguinary drama which has lasted so long. It is not quite over yet. There are many tribes in the Caucasus who still maintain their independence, but the capture of Schamyl will contribute greatly to the subjugation.

The Globe considers the fall of Schamyl a blow to English interests in Asia.

The Great Eastern is positively to leave Portland to-morrow, October 8th. She has been determined on by the Directors in consequence of the Board of Trade refusing to allow the ship to carry passengers until certain requirements have been complied with by the Company in regard to the ship. She will, therefore, proceed on her trial trip at once, although all the alterations and redecorations may not be completed, as that will fully test her speed.

part of the works can be going at the same time, while the confidence of the public will be re-established by her successful accomplishment of the short voyage intended—viz., to Holyhead. Here she will complete her repairs and embark her passengers for America, her Majesty in the meantime visiting and inspecting her.

The return of the Quarter's Revenue in the 30th September, shows a considerable increase. In the Customs, £460,000, attributable chiefly to tea, currants, wine, spirits, and tobacco. The Excise shows an increase of £450,000, hops alone being stationary. The Legacy and Succession Duties have augmented the Stamps over £100,000. Under the head of Land and Assessed Taxes there is likewise an increase; the Post Office also advancing £35,000.

The Miscellaneous showing a falling off of over £191,000, and the Property Tax of £580,000, leaving the net increase on the quarter of £300,714, the year showing £828,798.

The strike in the Builders' Trade is not at an end, although there have been several meetings of delegates from the opposing parties and an appearance of arrangement has resulted—the masters have somewhat given way, while the men evince more willingness to submit their rules to revision: Both sides must be heartily sick of the struggle, and anxious to end it.

The enquiries into the alleged cases of bribery at elections in the country have been going forward this week. The case at Gloster is a particularly long affair, and many proofs of bribery and treating have been brought forward against the present members, a circumstance the more to be deplored since they are denominated Liberals. The local press say that bribery is a weapon borrowed from the Tories, but that the Liberals were so unskillful in its use that they bungled the business so as to unseat their own members, and call upon the Tories to prevent a repetition by adopting the ballot.—London correspondence Freeman.

The Wallace Monument committee have awarded the first premium (fifty guineas) to Mr. Rochend, architect, Glasgow. The design represents a medieval Scottish tower, the proposed height of which will be 220 feet, with a staircase leading to the summit.

We are informed that two very distinct shocks of an earthquake were felt in this City at a quarter past two o'clock this morning. They were of much longer duration than usual, and it is thought that they will have been felt elsewhere to a far greater extent.—Church Witness.

Poetry

The Summer is Over

BY EMELINE S. SMITH.

Softly Autumn winds were sighing
Over pale, sweet flowrets dying,
As I roamed the garden, trying
There to find one lingering rose.

Disappointment then stole o'er me;
Thoughts of winter gloomed before me;
Time, said I, may n'er restore me
Summer's blissful scenes again.

But alas! these hours went stealing,
Like veiled beauties by, concealing Half the charms, whose fall revealing Might have left this heart aglow—

List, ye maids now dancing lightly,
Use your summer moments rightly,
Gather roses while ye may,
Life hath but one June, remember;

Think how sad, when summer closes,
And great Nature's heart reposes,
This fond searching after roses,
When the roses are all dead?

Wisely, then, while Spring smiles o'er you Pluck the flowers that bloom before ye—Flowers whose sweetness shall restore ye Youth's delight, when youth has fled.

Select Story

The Demon Bowler

My first bat—that is, the first worthy of being called a bat, I took to school with me as a present to my mother, to mitigate my grief at leaving home. Never shall I forget the delight with which I gazed upon the beautiful finish and magnificent make of my loved bat; and how I fancied to myself the envy of my schoolfellows when I produced it on the playground, where I felt assured that, with such an ally, victory was certain. Dangerous bat! Little did my fond mother think what a fatal gift she had presented me with; for the instant I became, in my own right, the proprietor of the best bat of the school, I threw my whole soul into the game.

Notwithstanding this enthusiasm, I must confess that I was not a crack player. All my labor never placed me first, I saw worse men, with worse bats, achieve greatness; I was second-rate. How I labored, but in vain! My score was always the least, and yet I certainly had the best bat.

I joined a celebrated club when I became a young man. I was received rather as they were pleased to say, as a good fellow, than a good player. I bowed to the compliment that marked me, as not what I wished to be; and I felt sad disappointment chill my very heart.

Matches, many and victorious, were played by our club, but I did not aid much by my score; but more than once nearly lost to others their triumph, through some slip or awkwardness of my own. But they still called me a good fellow, and worked the harder to make up for my incapacity. Our side won, but I was a miserable, dejected man, when I read my name tacked to two or three runs. Why was it? My turn-out was unexceptionable; men copied my running shoes; my jacket and trousers were an admiration; my bat perfection; I was the very picture of a cricketer, but, alas! very little more than a cricketer.

I sat in my chambers pondering on my ill-luck after a day of triumph to my club, but not to me. I must confess that I was bored out without the satisfaction of a single stroke. I could not help it. A temptation to observe my sight as I doled, I had bowled out in his first ball.

never saw the ball. I heard the whistling sound of its course, and saw the stumps fly into the air from the palpable and violent hit. A roar of laughter sounded from the populace; I felt myself a degraded man, unfit ever to put on even the outside of a cricketer. My friends crowded round me, but I would not be consoled. I had only one burning desire, which was, to have the head of the aforesaid wonderful bowler just within arm's-length of my best bat. I felt convinced I should not have missed that. I returned home completely chap-fallen, and too agitated to sleep; so threw open the window and sat down to brood over my ill-luck, and bite my finger-nails to the quick.

What burning thoughts rushed through my brain. I pondered, until I was nearly mad, upon other people's triumphs and my own disgrace. I confess I swore little mental oaths, for I had been sacrificing, in my chagrin, rather too liberally to the rosy god.

I looked upon the broad quadrangle of my inn, where the moon shed its light calmly and tranquilly upon the worn pavement. No light, however, glimmered in the numerous chamber-windows; it was late, and everybody had retired for hours. A calm and oppressive silence reigned around, but there was a storm raging in my bosom. I was not a cricketer. I had been laughed at—beaten. I almost took a dreadful oath that I would burn my bats, stumps, and all my useless paraphernalia. What right had I to put on the insignia of a member of the noble science, disgracing it and myself. Miserable batter! the glory had departed from my house.

I threw myself back in my chair with a savage groan, which resounded through the solitary chamber. On the instant I heard a knocking at the door as if some one was applying his knuckles on the panel. I pricked up my ears; for the hour was most unseasonable; my heart fluttered most tumultuously and unaccountably; I hardly felt alarmed, yet I experienced a most peculiar feeling. I could scarcely collect presence of mind enough to bid the knocker come in; but I did so after a little hesitation.

My lamp, which was burning low, flickered with rather an uncertain light, but with quite power enough for me to see the door open very slowly, and give entrance to the figure of a man.

He bowed most politely, and placing his hat and gloves methodically on the table, he approached me.

I felt a little startled at his appearance; his face was anything but prepossessing; for, upon close inspection, I perceived that a continual smile played only about his mouth, as if to show his white and glistening teeth: the upper part of his face, particularly his brows, being contracted by an expression of pain and disgust.

He approached with a noiseless tread, motioning me, at the same time, to resume my seat which I had risen from on his entrance. I accordingly did so, and he coolly took a chair and seated himself opposite to me, then, placing his hand familiarly on my knee, said, with a most fascinating smile—

"My dear sir, I am a stranger to you; and my visit is, I dare say, at an unseasonable hour, according to fashionable ideas, but I am a very old-fashioned fellow, and think no hour can be bad in which I can do good. I am aware of your melancholy failure to-day,—in fact, I may say, I hope without offence, for I mean none,—ridiculous failure."

I winced at his impertinence, and felt very much inclined to kick him, had I not been influenced, as it were, by a spell cast over me by his appearance and strange address.

"I feel," continued he, "that your situation is both ridiculous and painful; for not being able to do what some of the greatest fools on earth excel in, is, in fact, warm enough to drive a nigger under a palm-tree. Look at the result. Not a knot disfigures its surface—the handle laced to a miracle; and the slight and graceful turn of the back vies with the beautiful line of the Venus de Medici; but its beauty is its least merit."

"Here's the bat. Here's the little agreement," continued he, pushing the bat into my unnerved hand, and placing a small slip of paper before me. "Sign it, the bat is yours until I want it again. No qual-

fallen' beaten, disgraced, and laughed at by grooms, post-boys, chams, and fair ladies, which last is most grievous and annihilating to a man of your complexion and age. If this is not the very devil, what is? Now, I have come in a most friendly way to offer you a salve for all your wounds; to cover your head with an undying wreath, and make you the envy of all the clubs in the universe, both single and married, and the desired of all 'elevens,' however celebrated.

"My terms are as low as possible for such a large grant; and I am prepared to qualify you in the twinkling of an eye, and make you second to none. I feel you will be slow in belief of my power to do so, but the bond shall be drawn up in that manner that if you do not become what I promise you, you shall be, the penalty of the bond becomes null and void.

"Thus, then, if you will sign a bond that will not touch or endanger your worldly goods, but merely consign yourself to me after death, I am ready to perform my part of the bargain without delay. To-morrow, I know, you are engaged with your eleven to play an eleven that has almost thrashed yours most heartily, and indeed feels a contempt for you as a club. What would you not give to be the main instrument of their downfall to-morrow, and of achieving a grand triumph before the multitude which is expected on the ground. I have the power to make you do so, if you come to my terms; if you do not do as I promise you, your part of the agreement becomes mere waste paper.—think!"

As he concluded, he threw himself back in the chair and smiled in his face.

There certainly was a curious, creeping feeling over my flesh when his hand touched my knees, and I felt alarmed when I found that his face never, with the exception of the smile, remained for one instant alike. What could he be? The devil?—ridiculous! What could he be, then?—a hoaxer, no doubt. My anger instantly rose, and I felt inclined to knock him down, but was much astonished and alarmed to find I had not the power to do so. Yet I thought, if such a thing were possible that he had the power to endow me with a conquering arm, how gladly would I consent to his terms: to triumph over those whose scorn had placed a burning brand in my bosom. As these thoughts rushed hurriedly through my brain, he fixed his eyes upon me with a most unmistakable sarcastic look.

"I perceive," said he, "that it is not my terms, but my ability you doubt; but I can assure you that, although I cannot give you any reference as to character from individuals who have dealt with me—as my transactions always speak for themselves; it being always 'no cure no pay' with me; for my bond is nothing unless I fulfil the contract to the letter,—you may place full confidence in me. On my own part I will take care of myself.

"If you will allow me to show you an article I have here, manufactured by myself, I think we may do business together."

As he spoke he unfolded a parcel which he drew from an unconcealably long tail pocket. He untied the different wrappers in the most tradesmanlike manner, and at last discovered to my astonished eyes, a remarkable looking cricket-bat.

"This article," continued he, "I can offer you, with the positive assurance of its being in every way all right; warranted never to mis, and make nothing under a three-run hit; so that you may remain in as long as you wish, or as your legs will allow you. This bat has belonged to all the cricketers of the day, who have all dealt with me, more or less. The hotter the day the better will this bat play; as that kind of atmosphere suits the wood of which it is composed. This is the secret of the apparant madness, to the uninitiated, of men choosing to play a match when the heat has been almost intolerable; in fact, warm enough to drive a nigger under a palm-tree. Look at the result. Not a knot disfigures its surface—the handle laced to a miracle; and the slight and graceful turn of the back vies with the beautiful line of the Venus de Medici; but its beauty is its least merit."

"Here's the bat. Here's the little agreement," continued he, pushing the bat into my unnerved hand, and placing a small slip of paper before me. "Sign it, the bat is yours until I want it again. No qual-misness, I beg, for I really have too much to do to wait for your wavering resolution."

An odd sort of vertigo seemed to be reeling my head round as I almost unconsciously took the pen in my hand. I signed the paper. I saw the signature was red, and supposed I had dipped by mistake in the red-ink bottle. As I finished my last down stroke, the paper slipped from under the nib of my pen, and I was alone, I heard no door close—no creaking footstep; but my friend had gone. But there was the bat grasped in my hand, and the moon-light shining on my writing-table.

The next morning dawned. "How sweet and refreshing was the morning air to my fevered head? I prepared for my jaunt to join my club, as I had promised: ever and anon looking to see that the strange-looking bat had not vanished. But no,—there it stood, in all its perfect beauty, and I had not been deceived. How extraordinary! Would it do all that had been promised? Should I have the glory of seeing my rivals' chagrin? It did not seem possible; it was some dream. Devils no longer came visibly upon earth to tempt mortals. Besides, I had never heard of a cricketer devil.

But devil or no devil there was a bat of unexampled beauty, so, non despondam, I must go—I must play—my fate was sealed. I packed up all my traps, and prepared to depart, but found the door locked inside, as usual. A shudder came over me at the discovery. I felt that my friend of the bat must have been more than mortal to have entered through the keyhole; and there was the chair placed exactly as he had taken it from its usual standing, and sat down in it. "What's done cannot be undone," I muttered to myself, with no pleasant feeling, as I shouldered my bat and emerged from my chamber.

I soon reached the place of rendezvous, and was greeted by the merry voices of my companions, who were already seated on the coach which was to convey us to our place of destination. They bantered me upon my dilatoriness, and the fear they were in that such a valuable member should be missing at the muster to meet our formidable opponents; at the same time hoping that I had saved up my runs for to-day, as I had not used up any the day before.

I bore all this like a martyr, and trembled in fear that my promised triumph might vanish at the very moment that I hoped to astonish the field.

We bowled merrily down the road thro' the pleasant little villages, all looking peaceful and happy as the invigorating morning sun shone brilliantly upon their flower-decked casements. The children gambolled after us as we passed, and the echo of their ringing laughter followed us along after the turning of the road shut them from our sight. How envious did they appear to me—happy and innocent; whilst I, the fool of pride and paltry ambition, had become the victim of the—

But I dared not think: I clutched my bat tighter as I recalled to my memory the insults of yesterday; notwithstanding which a heavy and oppressive feeling seemed to throw a shadow over my mirth.

My companions soon perceived my dullness, and laughed at my lowness of spirits, bid me hope for better things, and said they would feel satisfied if I even got three runs.

We reached the ground, a lovely village green, surrounded by the white-washed that cottages peeped at us from amidst most patriarchal-looking trees; the bells were ringing from the mass-grown tower of the venerable church, in honor of our arrival. Everybody seemed to have put on their holiday faces to greet us.

Our opponents soon followed, coming in little groups over the fields and through the shady lanes. We were all soon shaking hands with the jollity of feeling that inspires such a meeting upon such a spot, determined upon a day of enjoyment.—The village belles formed themselves into a pretentious little group around the field of action, and many a bright look was sent to inspire our opponents, who were playing upon their own ground.—Such an audience, you may be sure, made me feel tenfold the desire to distinguish myself; and, if all turned out according to the promise of my last night's vision, I felt that my desperation would not allow of any regrets.

After the usual preliminaries had been settled, and all had taken their places, one side going in first, and our best man at the wickets, the bowler, a powerful man with a frame of a Hercules, approached his task. My heart shrank within me as I heard the whistle of the ball, as he delivered it with the force of one fired from a culverin. It was blocked by the wary batter, but with a shock almost enough to shake his shoulders from their sockets.

Again he bowled, when, to my astonishment, I saw the stumps fly like chips, and our best man had got not one run.—Cheers ran round the circle as our man threw down his bat with a burning blush upon his angry brow. Well did I understand his feelings, for I had so often been placed in the like situation. The hopes of our club fell below zero, especially when they saw unfortunate me take my bat in my turn.

At that moment a sort of desperation seized me, as I saw the smiles of the other clubmen, and the despairing looks of my own dear friends. I stood erect in my faultless dress by the side of the stumps, with my bat elegantly poised in my hand. The magnificent bowler looked with a sinister eye upon my attitude, and I thought a smile of contempt curled his lip, and I made no doubt that my fame had gone before me, and he held me as almost unworthy of his prowess. Wait a bit, thought I to myself, as I stooped to take my position; but as I did so, guess my feelings, and the thrill that rushed to my very heart, when I felt a warm pair of hands grasp the handle of the bat in the spaces of my eyes down, but saw nothing but my own round handle. Strange! Dreadful! but I must go on. The bowler's arm was in motion; I saw the dreadful ball rush on its rapid course through the air; my bat raised itself, and with itself my arms, and dealt such a blow upon the whistling missile, that it flew far away in the distance, far beyond the chance of being caught. I flew with almost winged feet along my course;—again—again—again!

Five runs! Huzza shouted the excited gazers. Huzza shouted the astonished members of my own club.

The bowler looked puzzled. He seemed suddenly to feel that he had been hoaxed, and appeared to lose confidence accordingly. He however nerved himself for his next ball and most beautifully and scientifically did he deliver it; but my magic bat hit it with such a tremendous blow, that its velocity made it almost indistinct. At last its course was distinguished by the astonished spectators, but it was handled only after six more runs were scored to me.

Our opponents began to look a little blank, whilst my own side looked at me as if they thought they must have changed me by some accident on the road down; for it was impossible that I could be the poor and timid player that was looked upon as naught among players. They looked at each other with unbelieving eyes, and seem to hug themselves, as they saw the downcast look of the vaunting club at my unexpected success and prowess.

But I had only just begun. The great bowler tried all his best manoeuvres, but in vain. My bat sent the ball flying high and thither; the scouts got redder and redder in their faces; the bowler's arms became powerless.

"Forty runs!" cries the scorer. I saw nothing but the round of my friends, which were gradually distending with astonishment, as they saw me polish off one bowler after another. As for my part I felt myself getting red-hot. I glowed with delight and exertion. The cheers of the populace maddened me. I felt no fatigue. Hour after hour flew by; I drank draught after draught, but my thirst seemed unquenchable; still my spirit upheld me, and I stuck to my bat.

The twilight gradually settled down upon the scene as I achieved eighty runs, to the despair of the village club. For a long time both sides had done their work quite mechanically, as if they had been spell-bound by the magic of my bat. All eyes were fixed with a stare upon me in perfect wonderment.

At last, a figure, with careful step and well poised ball, took his place at the bowler's stand. I shuddered as I looked upon him; his scrupulously elegant cricketer's stature, and the deep shadow cast from the broad rim of his straw hat, could not hide from me the bright eyes and sardonic smile of my last night's visitor.

Fatigue and excitement had long hushed the murmurs and the applause of the lookers-on. My preternatural tenore of my post had stilled them into silence; so that I was surrounded by hundreds of astended eyes that had long become painful to my sight, when my occupation allowed me an opportunity or a fugitive glance at them.

They watched with quickened glances the approach of the new and mysterious bowler.

Not a breath nor a word broke the silence of the evening. All around looked the pale statues waiting the wand of the enchanter to release them, or give them vitality.

A tremor passed through my frame as I saw his hand preparing to launch the ball.
 The magic bat quivered in my hand—it refused to move—and the ball struck with superhuman force upon the stumps, which,
 the next moment, lay shivered at my feet.
 The bat became, as it were, animated, and whined itself round my wrists.

The shout that followed my downfall was tremendous. The bowler walked up to me with perfect unconcern, and passing his arm through mine, led me unresistingly through the crowd, which a rapidly falling darkness turned into phantoms.— The moment he touched me, a parching and burning feeling seemed to scorch me, and a liquid fire ran through my veins.

"You've had your game," he hissed into my ears; "and had not I the foresight to be on the ground, you would never have been finished. Your exertion, as it is, has completely finished you; therefore I claim you while your remaining strength allows me to walk you off. You are not the first man I have bowled out. You have beaten all these fools—I have beaten you. Of course you pay me the forfeit; come, stir your stumps, for I shall not accept bail; and you are now going where you will make a long stop; for, you see, I've not only bowled, but caught you out."

I felt that I was in the power of the fiend, and for what? I looked back des-pairingly to the fast fading crowd of my friends. They seemed to take no heed of me, and I was lost. A thought of resistance rushed into my brain; I endeavoured to struggle with my tormentor. He only smiled at my puny efforts; yet I preserved, and in a moment burst from my bonds. In my struggle I awoke myself, and found that I was seated by the window of the chamber, where I had slept all night after the day of my mortifying defeat. Heated as I had been, the cold had seated a fever in my blood, which had carried out the full vigor of my dream.

The cold grey light of morning saw me crawl, almost crippled, to my bed, from which I did not rise for some weeks, as the penalty of my folly; and when, in after years, I became a rising man in the game of the world, I looked back with horror to the dream of the Demon Bowler.

EVIDENCES OF THE BIBLE.—Nature is a vast tablet, inscribed with signs, each of which has its own significance, and becomes poetry in the mind when read; and geology is simply the key by which myrials of these signs, hitherto undisciph-erable, can be unlocked, perused, and thus a new province added to the political domain. We are told by travelers, that the rocks of the wilderness of Sinai are lot-tered over with strange characters, inscribed during the forty years' wanderings of Israel. They testify, in their very existence, of a remote past, when the cloud overshadowed tabernacle rose amid the tents of the desert; and who shall dare say whether to the scholar who could dive into their hidden meanings they might not be found charged with the very songs sung of old by Moses and by Miriam, when the sea rolled over the pride of Egypt? To the geologist every rock bears its inscription engraved in ancient hieroglyphic characters, that tell of the Creator's journeyings of old, of the laws which he gave, the tabernacles which he reared, and the marvels which he wrought—of mute prophecies wrapped up in type and symbol—of earth gulls that opened, and of reptiles that flew—of fiery plagues that devastated on the dry land, and of hosts more numerous than that of Pharaoh, that sunk like lead in the night-y waters; and, having in some degree mastered the occult meanings of these strange hieroglyphics, we must be permitted to refer to the poetry of our science, to the sublime revelations with which they are charged, and the vivid imagery which they conjure up.—Hugh Miller.

Don't SMILE THE GRAVE.—Catin, the famous American traveler and collector of Indian curiosities, has seen some stirring incidents in the course of his adventures. The following is related by a fellow-traveler, who gave Catin the Sobriquet of Governor:

One day, when we had landed, and most of our party were lying asleep on the boat, which was drawn under the shade of some large trees, the Governor and I had collected wood and made a large fire on the bank, two or three rods from the boat, over which we were roasting a fat pig, which I had shot from the boat during the morning. I was squat down on one side of the fire, holding a short-handled frying-pan in which we had made some very rich gravy, which the Governor, who was squatted down next to me, was lading over the pig with an Indian wooden spoon. All of a sudden I observed his eye fixed upon something over my shoulder, when he said to me in a very low tone, "Now, I want you to keep perfectly cool, and don't spill your gravy; there is a splendid tiger right behind you."

I held fast to the frying-pan and turning my head gradually around, I had a full view of the fellow, within eight paces of me lying flat on his side, and with his paws lifting up and playing with the legs of one of our Spaniards, who had laid himself down upon his belly, and was fast as-sleep. Our rifles were left in the boat! The Governor drew himself gradually down on the bank, on his hands and feet, ordering me not to move. I was in hopes he would have taken the old Minnie, but he preferred his own weapon, and getting it to bear upon the beast, he was obliged to wait some minutes for it to raise its head, so as not to endanger the poor Spaniard; at the crack of the rifle the animal gave a piercing screech, and leapt about fifteen feet straight into the air and fell quite dead.
 The Spaniard leaped nearly as far in a different direction; and, at the same instant, from behind a bunch of bushes on the opposite side, and not half the distance from our fire, and right behind the Governor's back, where he had been sitting, sprang the mate, which darted into the thicket and disappeared. We skinned the beautiful animal, which was shot exactly between his eyes, after all hands had withdrawn to the boat, waited several hours in hopes that the other one would show itself again; but we waited in vain, and lost our game.—[Exchange.]

SCANDAL.—Scandal has brought distrust into the bosom of happy families, and caused the separation of kindred spirits; it has led many to forsake the home of their childhood, and driven them to the first act of sin and wickedness, and they have madly plunged into the abyss of ruin and death—scandal has done all this.

Those who have spent their lives in active benevolence, and worn the blossom of charity within their breasts, have also become the victims of this vile tongue, which like a serpent, coils around the mortal, and surely stings at last.

Many an innocent person has been out down in the bloom of life, by the voice of scandal.

Who have attained the summit of perfection that they are enabled to judge the character of a fellow creature? Many have habitually practised scandal, until it has become a part of their nature to wrong one another.

And the unfortunate one, with a wounded spirit droops like a frail blossom, its goodness and purity are scattered by the chilly winds of envy and malice, brightest hopes are blasted, and an immortal spirit is crushed to earth. Who would not extend the hand of brotherly love, to raise the oppressed; one kind word will dispel all gloom, and bring the wronged one before the world again. The sympathy will turn darkness into day. Then let those who hear the angels whisper, and live under the influence of spiritual guidance, be governed by laws of charity, and show themselves worthy of the endowments that are bestowed upon them, that when the tumults of life are ended, and the spirit freed like an unyoked bird, they may soar to the bosom of God, and meet his loving approval, for having dealt gently and kindly with all that is his—and Heaven shall be the reward.

The pen of the tongue should be dipped in the ink of the heart.

All Sorts.

Not so Bad.—A young man, clad in homespun—was standing in court street, a few days since, devouring a doughnut, when he was accosted by one of a half-dozen genteelly dressed city idlers, with,
 "Yes come down?"

"Yes, guess I have; great place this, ain't it you?" said the countryman.

"'Tis so bub; how's your maim?" asked the city buck, bent on sport with "greeny."

"Wall, she's purty well, she sent me down on business."

"She did?" What kind of business are you on?"

"Why, she wanted me to come down to Boston and look round and find half a dozen of the biggest fules in Boston, and bring 'em up country, to educate 'em; and I rather guess I've got my eye on 'em, now," said the stranger, taking in the whole crowd at a glance.

The next moment he had the edge-stone to himself, when he quietly finished the doughnut.

At College the Senior Class was under examination for degrees. The professor of Natural Philosophy was badgering the boys in optics. The point under illustration was that, strictly and scientifically speaking, we see not objects, but their images depicted on the retina. The worthy professor, in order to make the matter plain-er, said to the wag of the class. "Mr. Jackson, did you ever actually see your own father?"

Bill replied promptly, "No sir."

"Please explain to the Committee why you never saw your own father."

"Because," replied Mr. Williams, very gravely, "he died before I was born, sir."

A lady one night at a party was much annoyed by the rude and impudent remarks of a coxcomb who sat next her. At length becoming tired and vexed, she turned towards him with an angry countenance, and said: "Be pleased, sir, to cease your unbecoming impertinence."

The fellow was astonished at so sudden a rebuke, and could only say: "Pray, Miss do not eat me." "Be in no fear," she replied, "I am a Jewess."

"Have you found a verdict?" said a judge to the foreman of jury.

"No, your honor, we have hunted the every nook and corner of the room you sent us to, and we can't find nary one."

A lover received the following note, accompanied by a bouquet of flowers:—"Dear flowers. They are like my love for you. The nite shaid menses keeps dark. The dog fence means I am ure slave. Rosie red and possis pail; mi luv for a shal never fail."

A lady who began to weary of the arti-culations of a party of youngsters on crinoline, exclaimed, "So long as hoops skirts keep foolish people at a convenient distance, just so long will they be tolerated."

WEBSTER'S Unabridged Dictionary. NEW PICTORIAL EDITION. WE have just issued a new edition of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, containing 1500 PICTORIAL ILLUSTRATIONS. Beautifully Executed. 9000 to 10,000 new words in the Vocabulary. Table of Synonyms, by Prof. GOODRICH, in which more than 700,000 words are carefully discriminated, forming a fuller work on English Synonyms, of itself than any other issued, beside Crabbs, and believed in advance of that.

Table giving Pronunciation of names of 5900 distinguished persons of modern times. Peculiar use of words and terms in the Bible. With other new features, together with all the matter of previous editions. IN ONE VOLUME OF 1750 PAGES. PRICE, $5.50. Specimen-pages of Illustrations and other new features will be sent on application to the publishers.

An English edition of Webster's Dictionary appeared with the Pictorial Illustrations ten years since. Prof. Goodrich first introduced the feature of Synonyms in this country in connection with a popular Dictionary, in Webster's Octavo in 1857.

No other English Dictionary ever contained or announced as to issue, a Table giving Pronunciation of Names of Persons until after the above announcement. Webster's Pictorial Dictionary in Boston. "So exhaustive and satisfactory, we have uniformly found it to be, that an enlargement and improvement seemed hardly desirable."—Boston Journal.

"As a whole, the work has no parallel, nor is it at all probable that it will soon have one."—Boston Traveller. "Leaves so little either for the strict scholar, or the man of general culture, or the limited employer of common words, to desire, that it may with truth be said, that nothing in the lexicographical line is left to be desired. The critics of Webster are, as a general thing, mousetraps and mole hunters."—Boston Ledger.

"Some of the foremost scholars of the age, both in Europe and this country, have been occupied for years in the task of revision and addition."—Boston Transcript. "It is a fixed fact, a living entity, and will maintain its place as the most complete and accurate dictionary of the language extant."—Boston Atlas and Bee.

"A monument of learning in this single line of literary effort, such as no previous age has seen."—Boston Recorder. "Making the entire work one which cannot be surpassed, and which in our estimation will remain unequalled."—N. E. Farmer.

"These important improvements must make this far in advance of any competitor in the field."—Boston Congregationalist. "To every writer and speaker of English it is indispensable."—Boston Pictorial. "This new edition is a perfect mine of knowledge, and a most complete book of reference."—Commercial Bulletin.

"Appears to be as complete as it is possible to be made."—Boston Post. From Hon. J. M. Gregory, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Michigan. Office of Sup't. of Public Instruction, Lansing, June 30, 1859. Messrs. G. & C. Merriam, Gentlemen: I know not how to express my gratification with the valuable and beautiful features added to the great national work, Webster's Quarto Dictionary.

They render it if possible still more worthy of the proud place it occupies as the standard dictionary of our good English language. I say standard, for while a few scholars and others here and there, prefer other Dictionaries, Webster's is beyond dispute the book of the people, the common standard of appeal among the great masses, learned and unlearned, in our land. Nor need this be regretted, so long as its publishers take such unwearied pains to keep it abreast with every improvement made in the language. I can only express my very sincere hope that you may be fully rewarded for the good work you are doing in the cause of sound learning.

With considerations of high respect, I remain, gentlemen, Yours truly, J. M. GREGORY. SLD BY ALL BOOKSELLERS. "GET THE BEST"—GET WEBSTER. G. & C. MERRIAM, Springfield, Mass.

NOTICE.—Parties indebted to GEORGE F. PALMER (formerly Tin-Smith in this place) are requested to call and pay their several accounts to the Subscriber, who is duly authorized to collect the same, and give receipts therefor. JOHN C. WINSLOW, Atty-at-Law. Woodstock, Oct. 1, 1859.

HAVANA CIGARS.—A few very prime imported Cigars, at $25 per M. or $3 per 100, at UNION STORE, 767, Calais, June 23. ALEX. GILMOR. SUGAR and MOLASSES To Arrive.—The Subscriber is daily expecting from Halifax: 8 Bbls. Porto Rico SUGAR; 15 Do. do do MOLASSES, which they will sell cheap for cash or approved paper. MYSHALL & RICHEY. Fredericton, September 14, 1859.

HORSE TAMING.—A Co-Partnership has been entered into by the subscribers for the purpose of breaking and training Horses. Mr. Rose has had seven years experience in the Harney system, having been a pupil of Mr. Harney one year. The stable is opposite the Hotel of Mr. A. P. English, where they will receive and undertake the breaking and taming (under Harney's system) of Horses of any age or temper. Terms made known on application at the stable. C. H. ROSE. C. H. ENGLISH. Woodstock, Sept. 21, 1859.

T. G. & H. ALLAN, King-street, Fredericton, Aug. 10, 1859.

MRS. WINSLOW, An experienced nurse and Female Physician, presents to the attention of mothers, her SOOTHING SYRUP, For Children Teething, which greatly facilitates the process of teething, by softening the gums, reducing all inflammation; will allay all pain and spasmodic action, and is SURE TO REGULATE THE BOWELS.

Depend upon it, mothers, it will give rest to yourselves, and Relief and Health to your Infants. We have put up and sold this article for over ten years, and can say in confidence and truth of it, what we have never been able to say of any other medicine. Never has it failed in a single instance, to effect a cure when the stomach is disordered, did we know an infant suffering from colic by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operation, and speak in terms of the highest commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter, "what we do know," after ten years' experience, and pledge our reputation for the fulfillment of what we here declare. In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

This valuable preparation is the prescription of one of the most experienced and skillful nurses in the Province of New England, and has been used with never failing success in THOUSANDS OF CASES.

It will not only relieve the child from pain, but invigorates the stomach and bowels, corrects acidity, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. It will most instantly relieve the BOWELS, AND GRIPPING IN THE COLIC, WIND, and overcome convulsions, which if not speedily remedied, end in death. We believe it the best and surest remedy in the world, in all cases of Dysentery and Diarrhoea in children, when it arises from teething, or from any other cause. We would say to every mother who has a child suffering from any of the foregoing complaints—do not let your prejudices, nor your fears, stand between you and the relief that will be sure—ye s, absolute—ly sure—to follow the use of this medicine if timely used. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. No one genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS, New York is on the outside wrapper.

Sold by Druggists throughout the world. Principal office, 13 Cedar St., New-York. FLUID, CAMPHENE, and Whale OIL.—For sale low in the city, at Union Store 767. Calais July 5. ALEX. GILMOR

I BEG leave to inform my friends and the public, that I have commenced the

Corn, Flour, Provision,

And Grocery Business,

ON STRICTLY CASH PRINCIPLES.

My past experience having led me to this conclusion. The man who buys for CASH should certainly have an advantage over the one who buys on Credit,—for then he has not to pay the bad debts made by credit sales.

So long as I sell for CASH ONLY, I shall have no losses for my customers to make up, and I am determined to allow you every advantage this should command, making it an object for you to purchase for money.

I shall buy for cash in the most advantageous markets, either personally or through reliable agents, and shall endeavor at all times to keep well-selected and varied stock on hand

By means of Rail Roads, we are now placed in easy communication with other places, and am confident that it will be for the interest of Traders abroad as well as customers at home to examine my stock before purchasing elsewhere.

With the full determination of doing all in my power to please and satisfy my customers,

I would solicit a share of your patronage.

Respectfully, Yours,

ALEX. GILMOE.

The Great Ambassador

OF HEALTH TO ALL MANKIND

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

A BOON TO THE SICK.

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ill and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all-powerful medicine was ushered into the world. HOLLOWAY'S IN-

VALUABLE PILLS have become the Household

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

A compound remedy, in which we have labored to produce the most effectual alterative that can be made. It is a concentrated extract of Para Sarsaparilla, so combined with other substances of still greater alterative power as to afford an effective antidote for the disease

Sarsaparilla is reputed to cure. It is believed that such a remedy is wanted by those who suffer from Strumous complaints, and that one which will accomplish their cure must prove of immense service to this large class of our afflicted fellow-citizens. How completely this compound will do it has been proven by experiment on many of the worst cases to be found of the following complaints:—

SCROFULA AND SCROFULOUS COMPLAINTS,

ERUPTIONS AND ERUPTIVE DISEASES, ULCERS,

PIMPLES, BLOTCHES, TUMORS, SALT RHEUM,

SCALD HEAD, STYLLIS AND SYRILLIS AF-

FECTIONS, MERCURIAL DISEASE, DROPSY, NEU-

RALGIA OR TIC DOULOUREUX, DEBILITY, DYS-

PEPSIA AND INDIGESTION, BRYSPELSIA, ROSE

OR ST. ANTHONY'S FIRE, and indeed the whole class of complaints arising from IMPURITY OF

THE BLOOD.

This compound will be found a great pro-motor of health, when taken in the spring, to expel the foul humors which fester in the blood at that season of the year. By the timely expulsion of them many rankling disorders are nipped in the bud. Multitudes can, by the aid of this remedy, spare themselves from the endurance of foul eruptions and various sores, through which the system will strive to rid itself of extraneous, if not assisted to do this through the natural channels of the body by an alterative medicine. Cleanse out the vitiated blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it whenever it is foul, and your feelings will tell
