"NONPAREIL"
Billiard Hall!
SHARKEY'S BUILDING,
OPP. OFFICERS' BARRACKS, QUEEN ST.,
FREDERICTON, N. B.
E. FOSTER, Proprietor
THIS HALL has been newly fitted up, and handily furnished, and for room, light,
ventilation and neatness, compares most favorably with any Billiard Hall in the Dominion. The Billiard and Pool Tables are pronounced by players to be superior to any now in use in this Province.
They are the BRILLIANT NOVELTY, size 6 x 9 feet.
The main object in the construction of the Billiard Novelty, and the one most noticeable, is that it embodies all the more salient or most important features that have rendered popular all the other styles of tables of the J. M. Brunswick & Co. make.
The Brilliant Novelty has all the advantages and good points, including the respective inlays claimed by the "Nonpareil" and "Exposition" Tables. The Brilliant Novelty is a happy combination of all those celebrated tables, and has rapidly taken
the foremost place in the estimation of all players of Billiard and Pool Tables. The Novelty is fitted and handily inlaid in many different colors, made up from African Mahogany, Ash, Walnut, Bird's Eye Maple, Mahogany,
Rose Wood, Tulip Wood and Ebony. It is supplied with the finest of Vermont Slate bed, Simons Cloth, and a first-class outfit of everything necessary.
A call is respectfully solicited from lovers
of the game.
Boys under sixteen not allowed in the Hall.
Temperance drinks of all kinds. Cigars, etc.

HANLAN'S DEFEAT.
The Contest on the Pocomtunk River,
Sydney, N. S. W., in August.
(From the South Australian Advertiser.)
The race was witnessed by upward of 10,000 spectators, and the greatest excitement prevailed. It was 4 1/2 o'clock when Hanlan, wearing a blue sleeveless guernsey, stepped into his boat. Beach, who striped to his waist, shortly afterward rowed up from his training quarters. Hanlan's weight was within half a pound of 11 stones. Beach's weight was 12 stone.
Both competitors appeared in splendid condition. The umpire was P. J. Clark, one of the best judges in Australia. They made a splendid start, both catching water at the same moment, and taking almost stroke for stroke from 32 to 35 per minute. Hanlan's stroke was cleanest and neatest. Beach, though equally effective, being somewhat flurried for the first hundred yards. Hanlan from the first appeared to settle down to his work as a very serious business, showing his teeth closed firmly and his lips parted in such a peculiar way that it gave the impression at a distance that he was smiling. From the start he kept closely watching Beach, with whom he kept almost on a dead level for some distance.
After a quarter of a mile's level pulling,
Hanlan quickened his stroke and went a length ahead. He then slowed down in accordance with his ordinary custom, and just about maintained the same lead, going a little faster when his opponent drew closer, and easing off again when he seemed getting too far ahead. After passing the first point on the southern side and getting into comparatively open water, where the full force of the breeze caught both, they became rather unsteady, an occasional splash showing that the wind and the somewhat rough water
inconvenienced them.

About this period of the contest a most unfortunate incident occurred. The steamer Tomki, which had been chartered by Beach's supporters for the visiting party, was heading right across Hanlan's track in midstream. Hanlan pulled right up to within a few feet of the steamer's side being slightly ahead of Beach, whose course just enabled him to miss the steamer's bow. As Hanlan came up close a thousand voices called to him to be ware of being swamped, and, as he turned in his seat and looked ahead, he saw the danger in a moment, and resolved to cut Beach right out of the race. Heading the boat right across Beach's course,
he put on a magnificent spurt that passed the bows at a marvellous speed.
He had then put between four and five lengths between himself and his opponent. To the spectators this seemed to give the race to Hanlan to win as he liked and a few incidents which occurred in the rowing just afterward were interpreted as acts of bravado, when, as Hanlan now states, they were signs of distress. Shortly after he had finished his great spurt
he half dropped his left scull, but recovered himself almost immediately. He had not gone a quarter of a mile before he made a partial stoppage, entirely missing his stroke. This gave the impression that he was pulling well within himself, that he had gauged Beach's powers, and he had satisfied himself of his own ability to keep in front by responding whenever Beach spurted, and that he could play with his opponent.

Hanlan's explanation after the race was over is that, in that big spurt, when he cleared the steamer, he exhausted himself and that, so far from showing off, he was in a distressed condition.
This statement is borne out by Beach,
who states that when Hanlan went so far to the front on that occasion he began to regard it as a hopeless contest
until he turned and saw Hanlan's face,
and the sight of his opponent's face showed clearly that Hanlan was giving out. This sent the thought through Beach's mind like a flash of lightning:
"The race is mine." Acting under that impulse, as well as in accordance with his trainer's directions, he put on just such a spurt as Hanlan had done. With half a dozen quick and powerful strokes
he brought the boat right down on Han-lan, who had worked across into Beach's water, and was so exhausted that he could not respond to Beach's pace and pull out of the way, the consequence of which was a foul. The boats did not touch, but Hanlan's left scull and Beach's right scull crossed each other and prevented both from sculling. For a moment both boats were on a dead level,
and either man had an equal chance of getting away first; in fact, when they freed their interlocked sculls they could have restarted on exactly equal terms,
but Hanlan was not equal to the emergency, and held up his hands to claim a foul, by which act he clearly lost a stroke.
Then he halted for a few seconds, as if hesitating whether to go on or give up the race. This gave Beach a lead of five or six lengths, which he never really lost during the rest of the race. Once Han-lan made a fierce attempt to overtake Beach, and actually got within three boats' lengths, but his condition then appeared to give out, and he fell away.
Beach pulled hard, but as he was never nearly pushed, there is every reason to credit his statement that he could have pulled much harder. He certainly finished in a fine condition, which is more than can be said of Hanlan.

Beach passed the flagpost nearly six lengths ahead, and as soon as the um-pire's boat came up Hanlan pulled alongside and said: "Mr. Clark, I claim a foul." Mr. Clark promptly responded:
"You got over into Beach's water; that caused the foul, and I gave the race to Beach."
Afterward the two men met in the most friendly manner. Hanlan looked a little careworn and discouraged, as was only natural under the circumstances.
The conversation, of course, turned upon the race, and Hanlan, in a manner which it was pleasant to see, said, shaking hands with Beach: "Well, you are a better man than I am, and I hope you don't blame me for the foul, which was principally caused through the steamer coming down on us. I could not help it."

The Latest Fashion in Garters.
(From the Baltimore Sun.)
"There are several styles in garters this season," said a prominent dealer yesterday. "Here, for instance, are some pretty pale-blue, white and pink ones, which are made of satin-finished elastic and painted with roses and sprays of vines. You see they fasten with buckles, and can be made larger or smaller as necessity requires. The buckle was invented for obvious reasons. No, they are not worn in front—that is, not directly in front.
The buckle comes a little to one side,
and on the other side is a dainty knot of ribbon, sometimes a bow and sometimes frilled."
"But I think these are prettier; they are embroidered and are usually made to order. A wider scope is given here for the display of taste and originality than in the others. The embroidery is not done on the elastic, but upon ribbon in which the elastic is encased. Any design in small flowers, such as forget-me-nots and training arbutus, may be used with charming effect. Many ladies buy the material and work the designs themselves. Now, here are some upon which the ribbon, instead of being embroidered, is printed. Prices range from $1 to $5 per pair."

"Do the buckles ever come separate from the garters?"
"Oh, yes," was the reply. "The handsomest buckles are only used when specially ordered. They are generally sold by jewellers. Some are of plain gold or silver, and some are studded with jewels. The most fashionable now are those set with Rhinestones. A beautiful pair that I recently saw are of solid gold, with forget-me-nots in blue enamel. An ingenious device to shield the flesh from bruises is a scented pad, soft and tiny,
which is placed under the buckle."

Halifax Girls and the Army.
Halifax Letter in N. Y. Express.
The soldiers are great beaux. The hearts of female Halifaxians, high and low, beat faster in the presence of these uniformed gallants. Her Majesty forbids common soldiers to marry without a permit from their superiors. There are nine laundresses to each company, and they are always soldiers' wives, mothers, or daughters. Fifteen extra wives are allowed to a division. The unhappy martial Romeo is obliged to put his name on a list, and wait his turn for leave to marry.
He may have acted his part to a dozen Julietes before the time comes when his sweetheart can be appointed a regimental washerwoman. Special privileges in the pay of marrying are allowed to old soldiers and to those who have distinguished themselves by bravery. Many of the soldiers marry without permission.
The officers discipline the unlicensed bridegroom a little while, but the punishment is not sufficiently severe to prevent the practice. The wife, however, suffers when her soldier husband is ordered to some distant station of the British Empire and she is left to follow him as best
she may.

GOV. ST. JOHN'S PARTY.
The Prohibitionists Appoint a Day for Fasting and Humiliation.
Chicago, Oct. 7.—The following will be issued to-morrow:
To the People of the United States:
In view of the misery and crime resulting from alcoholism, and of the guilt fastened upon the people by Governments—municipal, State, and national—by permitting
and even licensing the traffic in poison drinks,
the Executive Committee of the Prohibition party call upon the people of this country to observe Wednesday, Oct. 25, as a day of fasting, humiliation, and confession; and in view of the fact that many all over the land are aroused and realize the enormity of the liquor crime, and are willing to be at cost and pains to put it away, we call upon all Christian believers to unite in prayer to Almighty God that His aid may be given to measures which will result in the speedy putting away of this guilt, and the suppression of the traffic in alcoholic drinks.
JOHN B. FISKE, Chairman.

The Jewish Philanthropist.
Sir Moses Montefiore, the well-known Jewish philanthropist, continues in good health. He still manages a large correspondence, and transacts a good deal of business. His wonderful memory is but little impaired, but the severe illness of last spring has left a weakness which occasionally causes anxiety to his friends.
When strong enough to receive them, he derives much pleasure from the visits of his friends, whom he entertains with much of his old vivacity and eloquence.
Sir Moses will complete his 100th year

THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK.

Whatever may be the true cause of Sir John Macdonald's sudden departure for England, his voyage has brought into prominence the fact that his health is far from good, and that unless it be restored he will soon be unfit for the discharge of his public duties. When his health does break up the Tory party will break up with it. Apart from its leader this party has no vitality, and if he were less magnetic, and we might add less unscrupulous, the hour of its dissolution would have struck long ago. Signs are not wanting that the unquestionably great powers of the Premier are failing him. He almost lost the control of his party during the last session of Parliament; his course on the liquor question has been a wretched blunder from beginning to end; and his defeat in the matter of the boundary award, besides being a terrible blow to his prestige as a public man and to his influence in the largest and most populous Province in the Dominion, has weakened his hold upon Quebec. His great reputation as a party leader was not achieved by such means as these. He has passed the meridian of his power; as a party leader his "usefulness is gone," for it is useless to think that men will long continue to follow a chief who feeds them upon an unsavory and unvarying diet of "crow."

With Sir John out of active public life, to whom can the Tories turn for a leader. We take it that the chances of Sir Charles Tupper's return and acceptance of Sir John's mantle are infinitesimal. The causes which led to his resignation, whatever they may have been, will doubtless operate to prevent his return to the Canadian political arena. Sir Leonard Tilley is neither physically nor mentally able for the position of leader of his party. He has lost the principal part of whatever hold he had upon the confidence of the people. A French Premier is not among the probabilities. While none of the old party leaders are to be thought of as probable successors of Sir John in the premiership, it is a singular fact that the seventeen years since the Union no new man has come forward in the Tory party, to whom even a secondary place can be assigned. We therefore regard it as among the probabilities of the not distant future that Sir John Macdonald will surrender the power which he has so long administered, with no small degree of brilliancy, although tarnished by much that is corrupt and dishonorable, and of late sadly dimmed by a succession of phenomenal blunders. When this event does take place the edifice of Toryism will tumble like a house of cards.

THE SHORT LINE.

A report comes from Quebec to the effect that the Dominion Government will not consent to subsidize either of the proposed "Short Lines" across Maine, but will only aid a road which will be upon Canadian Territory for its entire length. This correct signifies a complete departure from the policy underlying the legislation on this subject during the last session of Parliament; but this is no reason why it may not be the conclusion to which the Premier has come. If it is correct the "Short Line" subsidized will be the connecting link between the New Brunswick Railway at Edmundston, and some point on the Intercolonial below Quebec.

One of the reasons alleged for the abandonment of the Megantic route is that the Grand Trunk threatens the government with bitter opposition if what is, while nominally a short line to St. John, really a short line to Portland, Me., is aided by money out of the Dominion Treasury. It is worthy of note that the influence of St. John has been thrown in favor of the Megantic route, although it ought to have been evident to all who examined into the matter that the C. P. R. Syndicate were not seeking to get a route to that city.

We do not place entire reliance upon this Quebec report, although it seems to come with considerable authority; nor do we think it will be any cause for congratulation, if it proves to be correct; although we would be disposed to favor any well-devised project for the extension of the New Brunswick Railway in the manner above indicated. We should prefer to see the Northern route across Maine, with a line crossing New Brunswick via Fred-erickton, selected; and such a line would unquestionably be the shortest, and in all respects quite equal to any others, thus fulfilling the conditions upon which a subsidy is to be granted under the Act. Such a line would secure a railway bridge across the river here, but if the New Brunswick Railway extension is built and becomes a part of the trans-continental trunk line, a bridge here will form no part of it, because traffic over it to St. John will cross the river at Woodstock, and the traffic to Halifax will come down to Gibson and go thence east over the Central.

If the Short Line is built by the route, which the people of St. John desire the least of all routes, and by a route which will be prejudicial to Fredericton by deferring the construction of the needed railway bridge across the river here, those persons in St. John will be alone to blame, who were so blind to the true interests of their city that they raised a feeling of antagonism against Halifax, and labored against the adoption of a route, which would have served their interests better than any other, merely because it was also more in the interest of Halifax than any other.

THE PRESIDENTIAL CONTEST.

The attention of politicians in the United States is directed to Ohio, where the State election comes off on Tuesday next. It is admitted by both sides that this is a most critical election. If the Democrats carry the State, it is thought that it will determine the result of the Presidential contest, that Butler will collapse, and a tremendous political "land slide" set in all over the West. The Democratic National Committee do not expect this, but they expect to greatly reduce the Republican majority. Money has been poured like water into the state, and it is said that "Steve" Elkins, the Republican manager, has disbursed over $1,000,000. If a majority is purchasable in Ohio the Republicans will have it. If the Republican majority is large, the effect will be discouraging to Cleveland's supporters, and may make the Butler bolt assume larger proportions. At present, although worked by the New York Sun for all it is worth, the Butler "boom" is not a very formidable element in the contest.

The Prohibitionists are making a powerful canvass. To those who tell them that they will not succeed in electing their own candidate, and will likely make the election of Cleveland certain they reply that the Republicans have the remedy in their own hands; that St. John is as good a Republican as Blaine, and a man with an unspotted record; that if the Republicans will throw Blaine overboard and take St. John, the latter will be surely elected, while if St. John should retire, it is by no means certain that Blaine would succeed. Therefore, they say, if the Republican party is defeated it is not our fault.

The American Alliance candidate, Ellsworth, has turned out to be a fraud and a political dead beat.

Mrs. Lockwood is pursuing a policy of masterly inactivity.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

It is the Machias Union which remarks that:—

"They say that when William H. Vanderbilt parted from Maud S., he fell upon her neck and wept. This is one of the most touching instances of watering stock in the whole Vanderbilt history."

We give elsewhere a synopsis of the address delivered by Chief Superintendent Crockett before the Northumberland Teachers Institute. It is a fair and unanswerable statement of the educational policy of the government. In respect to the course of instruction, it will be observed that Mr. Crockett, while recognizing its completeness and adaptability to certain conditions, thinks that experience has shown the necessity of such changes as will make it more in accordance with the demands of the rural districts for practical education.

In order to satisfy certain city contemporaries and correspondents of other papers, who appear to be worried over the proprietorship and editorship of THE GLEANER, we may mention that this paper is owned by a Syndicate consisting of Baron Rothschild, the Bank of England, Jay Gould, William H. Vanderbilt and Lord Crockett before the Northumberland Teachers Institute. It is a fair and unanswerable statement of the educational policy of the government. In respect to the course of instruction, it will be observed that Mr. Crockett, while recognizing its completeness and adaptability to certain conditions, thinks that experience has shown the necessity of such changes as will make it more in accordance with the demands of the rural districts for practical education.

His Little Scheme to See the Show.
 "Ma, did the wicked children say 'Go up, old bald head,' to good Elijah?"
 "Yes, dear."
 "And did the bears come and eat them?"
 "It is so told us, my son."
 "And would they come and eat me if I said 'Go up, old bald head,' to pa?"
 "Possibly."
 "Would they you?"
 "Probably not."
 "Then you say it to him and I will give you five cents to see the bears!"—Scissors.

The Elephant's Tail and the Buddhist.
 Two young ladies were gazing at the white elephant as it stood enthroned in all its sacred splendor and surrounded by the mystic emblems of its holy character and the adoring priests who were kneeling devoutly on every side.
 "How curious it is," remarked one, "that any race of people should be so devoted as to worship an elephant!"
 "It is indeed," replied the other, sadly, "when I look upon this worshipping throng of ignorant, superstitious creatures and realize how earnest and sincere they are, I cannot but feel that there should be no rest until the missionary message is borne to the last one of these benighted heathens."
 "True," asserted the first speaker; "it is a grand and solemn duty."
 Just at this juncture the animal flicked his tail and struck one of the Buddhist priests in the mouth.
 "How! Moses!" he exclaimed, interrupting his devotions, "ye heathen bastards—then the young ladies strolled on to the monkeys' cage."

His Hair Turned White in Three Weeks.
 LITTLE FALLS, Oct. 7.—This place was filled with colored people yesterday from all over the State. They came to attend the funeral of Henry Atkins, one of the oldest porters of the Wagner Drawing Room Car Company, and a man well known to the travelling public. For twenty-one years he was a porter, and politely whisked the broom for many of the most distinguished men in the country, including several Presidents of the United States. For some neglect of duty he was discharged a few months ago, and this so preyed on his mind that his hair turned white within three weeks, and he was unable to turn his attention to any other employment.

THE SCHOOL LAW.

The Chief Superintendent on the Recent Changes.

The need of a Practical System of Education Demonstrated.

On Thursday of last week the Chief Superintendent of Education gave an address in the Chatham before the Northumberland Teachers' Institute. We give below a synopsis of the report of the address as published in the Advance.

He laid down the principle that a public school system ought to provide for the youth of the country the means whereby they may be prepared for entrance upon the duties of life and for the performance of the duties of good citizenship. To enter upon these duties the youth required some apprehending power and some sense of his obligations to his fellow men.

The subjects of instruction are to be used as means to these ends. Whatever subjects are taught are to be at least fairly mastered as it is through the mastery of a subject that power is acquired. In our rural schools—and it was to these schools that the speaker intended to confine his remarks—there was a lack of promptness and accuracy in most things. The cause of this condition of things may be attributed very largely to the fact of too many subjects being imposed upon the school. They must be restricted in number and such subjects selected as are deemed essential.

The three R's must from their very nature form a part of the instruction in our common schools—if through the acquisition of these subjects the pupil were trained to observe, to reflect and to know the path of duty, the school had done more for him and for the country than if a more extended course were followed and these ends not secured.

The speaker then proceeded to consider the educative effects, under proper methods, of reading, writing and arithmetic. When the mechanical steps of reading have been mastered, the pupil is in a position to gain from his reading lesson, new thoughts, new powers, and larger intelligence. He will often find in his reading lesson the expression of his deepest and purest thoughts, of his subtlest insights, of his truest moral instincts—He may get not only social instruction but moral culture—His soul may kindle with aspiration as he reads burning words of patriotism and immortal valor, of disinterested heroism and self sacrifice for others.

With the reading should be associated practical exercises in composition.—When the thought is mastered, the form of expression in which it is clothed should receive attention and other things, containing the same idea should be required. The Useful Knowledge Lessons shown in the course of instruction under a variety of heads may in such schools be largely confined to such useful knowledge as is contained in the readers. With proper drill and explanations the pupil will acquire more accurate information and better habits of attention than from many of the oral lessons given by our average teachers in rural districts.—He is thus led to take out of the reading lessons what there is in it.

Writing and arithmetic were also spoken of at some length in relation to their educative aspect—the one fitted to impart habits of neatness and order, and the other to cultivate the reasoning powers and lead to habits of investigation. If teaching the other subjects of the course debared the teacher from giving due attention to the three R's, let the others go.

The speaker did not find fault with the course of instruction as a course founded on the principles of child nature so far as we know them, he believed it was second to none. With suitable conditions and in the hands of a skillful teacher—one who knows how to group kindred subjects so that one subject may irradiate and fertilize another, it is fitted to secure the object education aims at. But to do this requires more knowledge and more skill than our average teachers possess, and higher conditions than have yet been reached in many rural districts. Moreover, the teacher is tempted by the Inspectoral regulations which require that each subject taught in the course be examined upon, to treat each one separately. The speaker thought that the course and the Inspectoral regulations, though probably workable in cities and towns, would require to be so far modified as fairly to meet conditions in rural districts, and at the same time press upwards.

He held that when so large a number of our pupils as 45,000, out of an enrolled number of 52,000 for the Province, left school

intelligently or in such a manner as one could readily follow them to write a letter legibly and correctly, and to cast accounts to simple interest, it would be better to secure an acquaintance with the three R's to the great mass of our pupils, to the extent indicated, than to continue the course we had been pursuing.

The Chief Superintendent next took up the subject of Industrial Education. There had been for years a demand for results of a more industrial or commercial character than our schools had yet yielded. The school is bound to consider in what way it can best meet the demand, and so system of public education can be successfully carried on which is not in line with the sympathies and tendencies of the age.

For the girls the Chief Superintendent proposes

Instructions in Domestic Economy

in addition to the above. He showed what subjects might be taught under that head, and how provision might be made for engaging the attention of the boys while the girls were under instruction, and how the difficulties attending the teaching of the subject might be overcome.

After the more formal lecture, of which the above is a mere outline, Mr. Crockett proceeded to give some explanations with reference to the recent school amendments. Through the ranking system had been overshadowed by the law it was evidently brought into operation with a view of reducing the Provincial expenditure for educational purposes. Schools were increasing and of course the demand upon the Treasury increased accordingly. The legislation of last Session had abolished the ranking system, inasmuch as its working had borne very heavily upon a very large number of the rural districts and had not been found to be satisfactory generally. Unless a school obtained first rank, the salary of the teacher would be much lower than what it would be greatest number that ranked first in any year, had been between 700 and 800, that is about one-half of the Teachers of the Province. This number includes the teachers in cities, towns, and populous localities where required conditions would be fairly met, thus leaving about four-fifths of the teachers in rural districts either without a rank or lower than first. A first class female teacher for example receives a fixed salary from the Province of $70, if the school obtained first rank she received $40 more, thus making the salary $110, if no rank she only receives $70. She will under the new amendment receive a fixed salary of $100. The change does slightly reduce the salaries of those whose schools were invariably ranked first, but it increases the salaries of those whose schools situated in poor localities could not generally fulfill the conditions. The speaker hoped to see the salaries of teachers higher, but he thought that the Legislature had dealt liberally in respect of salaries according to its means and as compared with other Provinces. In Ontario the Government gives 11 cents to the dollar raised by the people, in Nova Scotia the Government gives 50 cents for the people's dollar and New Brunswick 66 cents for the people's dollar. The superior schools to be established were not only in the interest of secondary education, but would be found helpful in many ways to rural districts. Some of these points were dwelt upon at some length and much valuable information given.

JUDICIOUS ADVERTISEMENTS.

The first epistle on the judicious advertisements of Frederickton closed with a recommendation to persons wanting watches or eye-glasses. Having purchased these you will naturally feel like exhibiting them, and when you can do so better than at the law-tennis ground and as you stand there watching the swiftly flying balls and gay graceful maidens or "words to that effect," you may chance to turn and get a good view of that fine block of brick which owns and where he keeps a splendid assortment of dry goods suitable for fall and winter wear, all of which he tells about in THE GLEANER. A careful prudent and successful business man is Mr. Sharkey, and he tells you a thing is worth a dollar you may know it is full value for one hundred cents. But it is not sufficient that men and women should be clad and their persons adorned. They must eat, and where shall they be more likely to be suited than at a store whose proprietor changes his advertisements at short intervals. Variety is the spice of life, and the man that knows it is a good man to deal with.

Owen Sharkey

George T. Whelpley

is a grocer where one may safely go on a search for things that are good, fresh and palatable. He tells the readers to-day about his fine stock of confectionary, and it is the stock and no mistake. Strange, isn't it that people eat too much sometimes, but if they did not perhaps doctors would not drive in their carriages or druggists have plate glass windows. But as people will not do themselves justice and as they require more or less doing it is well to have so good a place to go and buy it as that kept by John M. Wiley.

Before you allow physics to the dogs try what the worthy alderman of St. Ann's Ward can supply you with. He has a reputation in this line that has been earned in quite a long business career.

Eastern Province Guides.

We are in receipt of the advance sheets of the third edition of a guide book to St. John and the Province, intended for the use of travellers and business men. It is published by John R. Hamilton, St. John, and this edition contains a valuable introduction and an article descriptive of the Woods and Woods Manufacture of the Province, by Ira Cornwall, Jr., Agent General for New Brunswick.

Normal School Note.

The Students' Debating Society held its weekly meeting in the Principal's room last evening. The Vice-President, Mr. J. Deacon, having left the School, Mr. L. A. Belyea was elected in his place. The subject was "Resolved, That temperance has done more injury to Society than war. Mr. S. L. T. McKnight was leader of the affirmative, Mr. J. B. Stevenson leader of the negative. The different speakers were Messrs. Wetmore, Duffy, Morris, L. A. Belyea, A. Allen and Hopper on the affirmative and Messrs. McIntyre, Stout, Burgess, Toland and J. Belyea on the negative. The chairman, Mr. A. F. White, gave the decision in favor of the affirmative. Mr. C. F. Gorman acted as Critic. The meeting was very interesting. The subject for the next debate is "Resolved: That man has done more to ornament and beautify the world than nature. The leaders are, Mr. McIntyre, affirmative and Mr. Stout, negative. The meeting was concluded by singing the National Anthem.

An Interesting School Meeting at Maugeville.

The Annual School Meeting, as required by law, was held here yesterday. The Secretary submitted his accounts, duly audited, showing a balance to the credit of the District. He also reported that the present teacher, A. M. Thurott, would remain in charge of the school during the school year of 1885.

Mr. Dudley Perley was elected Trustee in place of Mr. C. T. Clowes whose term of office had expired. A. Harrison was appointed Auditor.

The sum of $225 was ordered to be assessed to meet the expenses of the school until the next annual meeting. The Secretary was ordered to provide new seats and desks as recommended by the Inspector. On motion of George A. Perley, seconded by C. B. Harrison, the following resolution was

Whereas, The County report for the year 1884 (this being the only one at hand) shows the average of the amount paid for the year annually by the respective parishes to be as follows:—

	Paid.	Rec'd.
Maugeville.....	$367.18	$140.04
Sheffield.....	406.48	280.95
Lincoln.....	422.54	222.54
Burton.....	483.05	483.19
Blissville.....	228.53	342.67
Gladstone.....	188.63	301.02
Northfield.....	97.74	222.68

Thus showing the Parish of Blissville to have received $114.14 more than the amount paid in. Gladstone $111.20, Burton 14 cents and Northfield $124.34. Also that the Parish of Maugeville has paid $27.14 in excess of what it has received; Sheffield $125.53, Lincoln $20.10. And

Whereas, This District has from the very inception of the School Law paid the several Teachers employed a sum not less than $250 per year. And

Whereas, There are at present in attendance at the school pupils in Standards VI, VII and VIII; one of the optional subjects (Latin) also being taught with Mathematics in advance of the highest Standard already named, which of necessity requires the services of a teacher of the highest grade.

Therefore Resolved, That this District make application to the Board of Education for a superior school as provided under the recent amendments to the School Law and to which it is the opinion of this District they are in every way justified.

HARVEY STATION.

Opening of the New Hall Erected by Mr. Taylor.

Railways build up some localities and pull down others, as several places along the St. John river valley attest. Among those which have taken a rapid stride forward is Harvey station on the New Brunswick Railway, now quite a thriving village, although before what was then called Western Extension was built, it had neither a local habitation nor a name. Near Harvey Station are several fine lakes, which with the streams flowing into and out of them, are Favorite Resorts of Fishermen.

Many visitors from St. John, St. Stephen and elsewhere, with not a few from Fredericton make Harvey Station their head quarters for a holiday, and the number is on the increase. The village has taken a new step forward, and now boasts a fine public hall, which was erected by the late Mr. Taylor, and is a great credit to the village, and to the citizens, Mr. John Taylor, has just erected. He saw that something of this kind was needed and rather than have a poor structure erected by some one else, decided to take the initiative himself. The new hall stands within fifty rods of the station, and fronts on the principal street of the village.

Adding Much to the Beauty of the locality, as well as enhancing the value of the other property in their neighborhood. The new hall is an elegant and spacious wooden structure, very well constructed both in style and in execution. The stairways are of black ash finely stained and polished, with handsome hand-rails and newel posts. The seats are from the well-known manufacturing of G. W. Garrity, Woodstock. The lower story of the hall is divided in two rooms and is well lighted and ventilated. The whole interior finish is very neat and reflects a great deal of credit upon the designers and builders, Messrs. L. Robinson and W. Embleton. The hall was so fully opened to the public on Tuesday evening last.

An Entertainment.

of a very excellent description. The exercises began with a short and pleasing address by A. Heron, Jr., of Marysville, who congratulated the audience on having secured such a useful acquisition to the village, and on behalf of Mr. Taylor gave the audience a hearty welcome. Prof. Sterner, of Marysville, acted as organist, and brought down the house by his rendition of the famous Scotch ballad, "When the Kye Comes Home." Songs were sung by Miss M. Glendinning and Miss A. Saunders. Mrs. Develer rendered excellent aid, and the instrumental solo by Miss Cantin, of Boston, was much admired. Mr. Taylor's flute solo, and Mr. Heron's reading helped to fill a very pleasing programme. The climax of the evening came when Mr. Taylor sang "The Laird of Cockpen," the applause being sufficient to test the capacity of the building to resist a tornado, and only ceasing when Mr. Taylor responded with a flute solo.

County Court.

In the case of the Queen vs Grace the Jury disagreed and the Defendant was discharged on his own recognizance.

W. D. Foster and J. H. Foster vs. Solomon A. Russell, was an undecided case. The verdict for the plaintiff was $41.54. Mr. Wetmore for the plaintiff.

William Cavell vs. Robert Coulthard. This is an action of assumption. Mr. James A. Vanwart for the plaintiff, and Mr. Gregory for the defendant. The defence is that it is technically known in law as "novation."

The jury answered a number of questions submitted to them by the Judge in favor of the defendant, and then by direction of the Judge found a verdict for the plaintiff.

School Meetings.

The annual school meeting was held at Lower Line Queensbury, at the required date. The trustees for the year are James A. Cliff, William Sloan and Alanson McNally, who was re-elected. $120 was voted for school purposes.

At the annual meeting at No. 4 Keswick Ridge a resolution was passed asking the Board of Education to change the limits of the District. A similar resolution was passed at No. 3, District.

CHIT-CHAT.

Notes from a Man about the Town—Some Things that Some People Talk about on the Streets.

I was talking with a man who was at the Stanley Fair and he said that when Mr. Wetmore got done his speech, the crowd concluded that he endorsed and approved of everything connected with the administration of the present government, except that he would like to draw the salary of Attorney General instead of Mr. Blair's doing so.

By the way though the meeting was not a political one, what a fine chance there was for Mr. Wetmore to make the old joke about "the paper bridge."

The influx of Capital into Canada has been very great during the last few months. The last immigrant of wealth whose advent is chronicled is only a $200,000 man. The name of the bank he swindled is not stated.

GLEANINGS.

On Tuesday last an attempt was made at Hantsport, N.S., to wreck a train filled with Methodist excursionists.

The will of the late Luke Stewart has been admitted to probate. The personality is valued at $8000 and realty at $1000.

John and Best Bent, who were committed some time ago for stealing a horse, wagon and harness, were tried before Judge Thompson, of Annapolis, N. S., on Wednesday, and sentenced to fourteen and twenty years imprisonment respectively. Their father and some other members of the family are already in Dorchester.

The derrick in course of construction at the falls was blown over by yesterday's gale and precipitated into the river at 6.30. At the time the derrick, which when completed would have been about 50 feet in height, was about 30 ft. high.

Anna E. Killam, who is ouliding the Havelock Branch railroad, is experiencing much difficulty with the land-owners who want to charge exorbitant prices for their lands, and he has ordered a new survey of the route.

The frame of the Alms House building, which is to be of wood, and out of town, is well advanced. The main building will be two storeys high, covering a space 35x50 feet. An ell 20x30 feet will be added. It is expected that there will be accommodation for 100 persons.

A meeting of persons interested in the erection of the proposed open house in St. John was held on Thursday. A report was submitted, showing that the estimated cost of the structure would be in the neighborhood of $20,000. At present about $3000 have been subscribed. The general feeling was in favor of employing an active canvasser to solicit subscriptions, but the meeting adjourned without taking any definite action.

Edward Candy, a young man who has been working for Mr. M. H. Patten during the past summer, has been missing since Saturday, Sept. 10th, says the Courier. On the morning of that day he started from Mr. Patten's store in St. Stephen, to go to his building at the Calais end of the toll bridge, and since then nothing has been seen or heard regarding him. He left his trunk and all his belongings with him. His trunk was opened and found to contain among other things, $50 in cash. There was also due him quite an amount for wages.

Rev. D. P. Harris, has been laboring with the 3rd Elgin Church, situated on Gowland Mountain, for the past five weeks, says the Visitor, who has called on the parishioners to revive of religion; backsliders have been reclaimed and sinners converted—89 have been added to the church by baptism. The work is deepening and widening.

The 1st and 2nd Elgin churches are becoming deeply interested and the Rev. Mr. Harris has consented to assist Elder Geo. Seely, pastor of 1st Elgin church, in holding special services in the church, under his care.

A reporter of the Courier recently interviewed ex-Mayor Jas. H. Ganong with reference to the land of Penfield lately purchased by him and his wife, and which, it is claimed, contains rich deposits of silica. Mr. Ganong says 50 bbls. of the mineral has been got out and is now on the way to St. Stephen, where it will be prepared for shipment to the principal cities of the United States and Canada to be tested. All who have examined the deposit are certain it is pure silica. It contains a large percentage of oxide of iron. Silica is used in all the machine shops, and is imported largely from Italy, there being no mines that produce it as far as the firms can ascertain, in this country. The heaviest deposits appear to be about Black's Harbor, Sturgeon's Cove in Letang Harbor, which is one of the finest in the world. This is advantageous to the firm, as it will enable them to export the silica in large quantities. The firm is confident it will stand the test, and is worth at cost $10 a ton. If it proves to be what they claim, they will commence operations at once with a force of two or three hundred men.

Prince William.

A Sabbath school concert will be held in the Prince William Free Baptist church on Saturday evening 18th inst.

Recovering.

Mr. J. H. Hoyt, is slowly recovering. He was removed to his home in Prince William yesterday. He expects to be able to resume his school duties after a rest of a few months.

Cool Weather.

The weather yesterday morning was extremely cold. There was a very heavy frost, and ice formed over half an inch thick.

Change of Day.

The Legislature Library will be opened on Thursday afternoon of next week instead of Wednesday. The change is for that week only.

The Cotton Mill.

The work of putting in machinery at the Marysville cotton mill is rapidly progressing.

New Buildings.

The walls of the brick houses for the Marysville cotton operatives are rising rapidly.

The Marysville Bridge.

Complaints are made that the planking of Marysville bridge has been spiked down, and now has any notice been put up forbidding fast driving.

Meeting of the Government.

The provincial government will meet in this city next week.

WHAT CAN SHE DO?

By E. P. Roe.

"Merciful heaven, we shall be struck," said Mrs. Allen shudderingly.
"What's the use of living?" said Zell in a hard, reckless tone.
"What is there to live for?" sighed Edith, deep in her heart. "There are none to be trusted—not one."
Instead of congratulations received with blushing happiness, and solitary engagement rings, thus is shown the first result of Mrs. Allen's policy, and society's im- junction—

"Keep your hands white my dears." The storm passed away, and they crept off to such poor rest as they could get, too miserable to speak, and too worn out to renew the threatened quarrel that a voice from heaven seemingly had interrupted.

The next morning they gathered at a late breakfast table with haggard faces and swollen eyes. Zell looked hard and sullen, Edith's face was so determined in its expression as to be stern. Mrs. Allen lamented feebly and indefinitely. Laura only appeared more settled in her apathy, and with Zell and Edith, was utterly silent through that forlorn meal.

After it was over, Zell went up to her room and Edith followed her. Zell had not spoken to her sister since the thunder peal had suddenly checked her bitter words. Edith dreaded the alienation she saw in Zell's face, and felt wronged by it, knowing that she had only acted as a true friend and protector. But in order still to shield her sister, she must secure her confidence, or else the danger averted the past evening, would threaten as grimly as ever. She also realized how essential Zell's help would be in the struggle for bread on which they must enter, and wished to obtain her hearty co-operation in some plan of work. She saw that labor now was inevitable, and must be commenced immediately. From Laura she hoped little. She seemed so lacking in force mentally and physically, since their troubles began, that she feared nothing could arouse her. She threat- ened to soon become an invalid like her mother. The thought of help from the latter did not even occur to her.

Edith had not slept, and as the chaos and bitterness of the past evening's ex- perience passed away, her practical mind began to concentrate itself on the prob- lem of support. Her disappointment had not been so severe as that of Zell, by any means, and so she was in a condition to rally much sooner. She had never much more than liked Edith, and now the very thought of him was nauseating, and though labor and want might be hard in- deed, and regret for all they had lost keen, still she was spared the bitterer pain of a hopeless love.

But it was just this that Zell feared, and though she repeated to herself over and over again Van Dam's last words, "I will never give you up," she feared that he would, or what would be equally painful, she would be compelled to give him up, for she could not disguise it from her- self that her confidence had been shaken.

But sincere love is slow to believe evil of its object. If Van Dam had shown preference for another, Zell's jealousy and anger would have known no bounds, but this he had never done, and she could not bring herself to believe that the man whom she had known since childhood, who had always treated her with uniform kindness and most flattering attention, who had partaken of their hospitality so often and intimately that he almost seemed like one of the family, meditated the basest evil against her.

"Gus Elliot is capable of any meanness, but Edith was mistaken about my friend, and yet Edith has so insulted him, that I fear he will never come to the house again," she said with deep resentment. "If I had declined a private marriage, I am sure he would have married me openly."

Therefore when Edith entered their little room Zell's face was averted and there was every evidence of estrangement. Edith meant to be kind and considerate, and patiently show the reasons for her action.

She sat down and took her sister's cold, impassive hand, saying—
"Zell, did I not help you dress in this very place last evening? Did I not wait against my judgment till Mr. Van Dam came? These things prove to you that I would not put a straw between you and a true lover. Surely we have trouble enough without adding the bitter one of division and estrangement. If we don't stand by each other now, what will be come of us?"

"What right had you to misjudge Mr. Van Dam by such a mean little scamp as Gus Elliot? Why did you not give him a chance to explain himself?"

"Oh Zell, Zell, how can you be so blind- ed? Did he not ask you to go away with him in the night—to elope, and then submit to a secret marriage in New York?"

"Well, he told me there were good reasons that made such a course neces- sary at present."

"Are you George Allen's daughter that you could even listen to such a proposal? When you lived on Fifth Avenue would he have dared to have even faintly sug- gested such a thing? Can he be a true lover who insults you to begin with, and in- stead of showing manly delicacy and desire to shield, in view of your misfor- tunes, demands not only hard but in- decent conditions? Even if he purposed to marry you, what right has he to require of you such immoderate action as would make your name a byword and hissing among all your acquaintances, and a last- ing stain to your family? They would not receive you with respect again, though some might tolerate you and point you out as the girl so desperate for a husband, that you submitted to the grossest indignity to get one."

Zell hung her head in shame and anger under Edith's inexorable logic, but the anger was now turning against Van Dam.

Edith continued—
"A lady should be sought and won. It is for her to set the place and time for the wedding, and dictate the conditions. It is for her to say who shall be present and who absent, and woman, to whom a spotless name is everything, has the right, which even savage tribes recognize, to shield her self from the faintest imputation of immod- esty by compelling her suitor to com- ply with the established custom and etiquette which are her safeguards. The daughter of a poor laborer would de- mand all this as a matter of course and shall the beautiful Zell Allen, who, has had scores of admirers, have all this reversed in her case, and be compelled to skulk away from the home in which she should be openly married, to hunt up a man at night who has made the pitiful promise that he will marry her somewhere or sometime or other, on condition that no one shall know it till he is ready? Mark it well, the man who so insults a lady and all her family, never meant to marry her, or else he is so coarse and brutal in all his instincts, that no decent woman ought to marry him."

"Say no more," said Zell in a low tone, "I fear you are right, though I would rather die than believe it. O, Edith, Edith!" she cried in sudden passionate grief. "My heart is broken. I loved him so. I could have been so happy."

Edith took her in her arms and they cried together. At last Zell said languid- ly:

"What can we do?"

"We must go to work like other poor people. If we had only done so at first and saved every dollar we had left, we would not now be in our present deeply embarrassed condition. And yet Zell, if you, with your vigor and strength, will only stand by me, and help your best, we will see bright days yet. There must be some way by which two girls can make a livelihood here in Poughkeepsie, as elsewhere. We have at least a shelter, and I have great hopes of the garden."

"I don't like a garden. I fear I couldn't do much there. And it seems like man's work too. I fear I shall be too wretched and ignorant to do anything."

"Not at all. Youth, health and time, against all the troubles of the world. (This was the best creed poor Edith then had.) "Now," she continued, encourag- ingly, "You like housework. Of course we must dismiss our servants, and if you did the work of the house with Laura, so that I had all my time for something else, it would be a great saving and help."

"Oh, dear! oh, dear! that we should ever come to this!" said Zell despairing- ly.

"We must come to it, and must face the truth."

"Well, of course I'll try," said Zell with something of Laura's apathy. Then with a sudden burst of passion she clenched her little hands and cried.

"I hate him, the cold-hearted wretch, to treat his poor little Zell so shame- fully!" and she paced up and down the room with inflamed eyes and cheeks. Then in equally sudden revulsion she threw herself down on the floor with her head in her sister's lap, and murmured, "God forgive me, I love him still—I love him with my whole heart, and sobbing till her strength was gone."

Edith sighed deeply. "Can she ever be depended on?" she thought. At last she lifted the languid form to the bed, threw over her an Afghan and bathed her head with cologne till the poor child fell asleep.

Then she went down to Laura and her mother, to whom she explained more fully the events of last evening. Laura only muttered, "shameful," but Mrs. Allen whined, "She could not understand it. Girls didn't know how to manage any longer. There must be some misunder- standing, for no young men in the city could have meant to offer such an insult to an old and respectable family as theirs. She never heard of such a thing. If she could only have been present—"

"Hush, mother," said Edith almost sternly. "It's all past now. I should gladly believe that when you were a young lady, such poor villains were not in good society. Moreover, such offers are not made to young ladies living on the Avenue. This is more properly a case for shooting than management. I have no patience to talk any more about it. We must now try to conform to our altered circumstances, and at least maintain our self-respect, and secure the com- forts of life if possible. But we must now practise the closest economy. Laura, you will have to be mother's maid, for of course we can keep no servants. I have a little money left, and will pay your maid to-day and let her go."

"I don't see how I can get along with- out her," said Mrs. Allen helplessly.

"You must," said Edith firmly. "We have no money to pay her any longer, and your daughters will try to supply her place."

Mrs. Allen did not formally abdicate her natural position as head of the family, but in the hour of almost shipwreck, Edith took the helm out of the feeble hands. But the young girl had little to guide her, no knowledge and experience worth mentioning, and the sea was rough and beset with dangers.

The maid had no regrets at departure, and went away with something of the satisfaction of a rat leaving a sinking ship. But with old Hannibal it was a different affair.
