EASING THE BURDENS OF THE LONELY

Admirable Work of the Home for Incurables.

How the Journey to the Inevitable End Is Lightened.

An Advertiser Writer Visits the Home and Learns Many Interesting Facts.

Eight years ago, the Women's Christian Association of this city, rented a small house on the Hamilton road, and with a single inmate started a Home for Incurables.

Today, in a large, airy, attractive house on Dundas street, east of Adelaide, more than twenty frail and worn-out bodies are housed and sheltered. It might at first thought be said that of all sad, human derelicts, these must surely be the saddest. Sick and helpless, some are a burden to their friends, and some have no friends. More than once it has come to the ears of this institution that-God be merciful! -the old homestead, where once there was room for all, has shrunk to such a degree that it could not contain a side corner any longer! Drifting on the lee-shore of a hospital we find them, at last, slowly—on, so slowly-going to pieces; and living in dread of the doctor's daily visit, and the inevitable verdict, "Incurable; we feeble old man or woman at the fire-

cannot help him."

It is when this sad state of affairs is reached that the Home for Incurables throws wide its doors, and, once received, the wayfarer need not start out again until he goes forth on his last, long journey. It might naturally be thought that those to whom the pathetic word, "Incurable," may be applied, would be uncheerful; but it is not so. Perhaps it is that, looking steadily towards a certain ending, they adjust their minds to their situation, and, by some law of eternal compensation, many small alleviations, like flowers by the dusty wayside, spring up to brighten and to cheer.

Lord Bacon, in one of his essays, speaks of Death as showing a face even of friendliness to those in dungeons. But there is little of that mood observable in the Home for Incurables. No doubt it is partly because the inmates have discounted the end, and partly because of the divine anodyne of cheerful sympathy, loving attention, and resignation to the will of Providence, which is a plant not of human

The worthy matron, to whom I spoke the great blessing of such a home, plied that in most cases it was felt be so; and that only for the first ew days does the new arrival suffer

THE DIARY OF AN INMATE. In illustration, I was permitted to see an extract from a diary left by one of the patients, which reads as "I arrived here on Tuesday the 9th, and I cannot describe the feeling on leaving home. I think it must be something like the agony of parting from friends at death. It was the emotion caused by going among strangers, and leaving all one has loved at home. But I find this feeling was largely exaggerated; everyone is very kind to me, and I have a nice, comfortable room. On Wednes-day afternoon an English Church lay reader held service, which I enjoyed very much, it being the first time I had attended service for two years." Perhaps 1 may be allowed to say here that the kindly lay reader alluded to above proved to be Mr. C. F.

the home was opened, Mr. Complin has held a song service for the in-mates; and as it happened the service was in progress on the afternoon of my visit. The quiet satisfaction the inmates seemed to derive from Mr. Complin's reading, and the hymns, led me to inquire of the matron whether their tastes ever ran in the direction of anything secular.

"Yes," Mrs. Groshaw answered.
"They are very fond of an entertainment, something quite lively. It gives variety and lends passing brightness to their lives. Some young men from the Congregational Church came up here one evening to give an entertainment, one of them with his face black-ened. The fun was all wholesome and harmless, and the inmates have not got done talking about it yet." This decided predilection for life, and interest in its small pleasures, came as a surprise to the reporter, who now ventured the not altogether original suggestion of a Christmas tree. The matron of the Home for Incurables is of a responsive personality, and her eyes sparkled, as she

"Charming! And I hope when Santa Claus gets round this year, the Home for Incurables will not be left out." Mrs. J. B. Groshaw, it may be added, in passing, for five years has made the institution seem as much like a home was possible; and where she could she has considered the individuality of each patient under her care.

NO RELENTLESS RED TAPE. "When an old lady makes up her mind that she wants a tasty herring for her supper, she is going to have it, if I can get it for her," laughed Mrs. droshaw, who does not believe in relentless red tape.

"Severity is what they dread most of all, in coming to us, she went on." But when they find we do not wish to take their liberty from them, they are

The reporter was now shown all over the institution, and found it warm, clean and commodious throughout. One could not repress a feeling of thankfulness that the thought of providing such a harbor of refuge for the incurable had entered into the minds of kindly women.

The inmates are under the professional care of Dr. J. B. Campbell (who gives his services free), and all have a well-cared-for look. It is, of course, understood that anything in the nature of infectious or contagious disease does not come under the scope of a home for incurables. What the home seems to lack is a few bright pictures, plants or flowers, while reading matter is also very acceptable. One can only hope that now its wants are known the Home for Incurables will come in for its share of good things, which kind-hearted people are always willing to bestow.

Berlin, Nov. 14. - Germany will indulge in a fervent demonstration of sympathy for the Boers next Sunday, when a commemorative statue to Gen. Dewet will be unveiled in the village of Schierstein, in the Rhine Province. The money for the memorial has been raised by subscriptions of 1 mark each, contributed by Germans who bear the guerrilla chieftain's given name of Christian. It takes the form of a heroic bronze bust mounted on a massive pedestal, approaching which is the ligure of a stalwart young German, cap in hand, who is about to decorate the bust of the Dutch cavalryman with a laurel wreath. At the base of the pedestal reclines a monster typifying the horrors of war.

The monument, which was designed by Prof. Pfretzschner, of Berlin, is inscribed: "In Pride and Honor, to Our Valiant Brother in Blood, Captain in the East Prussian Army." Accompanying this inscription is the followsentiment: "May the intrepid Dethe Blucher of the Boers, achieve what every man whose heart is in the right spot hopes for - a free and eternal Boer Empire."

He subsequently met with success varied by ill-fortune. By his efforts he managed to accumulate which he afterwards lost

On Jan. 14, 1900, according to his statement, he left Albany, Western Australia, as a stoker in the Cuzed steamer, which arrived at Tilbury docks on Feb. 19, and arrived in London the same day wearing red and green plush clothes, with 40 cents in his pocket, which was spent the same night on bed and food. He starved two days before receiving any help from the London newspapers, then received $50 for an article from Arthur C. Pearson, of the Daily Express. Success followed. THE McCLARY ASSESSMENT. To the Editor of The Advertiser:

We observe by a number of references in the press to our application to the city council for a fixed assessment, that it is referred to as an "exemption." We understand that an 'exemption" means reduced taxation, which implies a favor at the expense of other taxpayers. We have never asked nor received a favor from the city council, granted as a favor. In appearing before the city council, it is a matter of business with us. We make a proposition of one price and one limit. We are ready to accept the verdict of the city's representatives. They are selected for the purpose of guarding the city's interests. They are not asked to grant us a favor; they are not asked nor expected to sacrifice the people's interests in the smallest degree. If they were, we are quite sure the applicant would be disappointed. We have felt a delicacy in putting the proposition and liable results in too plain language, fearing that it might appear offensive, and be misunderstood and interpreted as a threat. We think it only fair for ourselves and just to the city that we should place the matter before them in as brief and practical a manner as guarding the city's interests. They are not asked to grant us a favor; in as brief and practical a manner as possible. We asked a limitation assessment of one hundred and fifty thousand ($150,000) dollars. Why do we ask this? As set forth in our application—because the assessment act his new automobile. It's one of those in the Province of Ontario applied to awful smelling gasoline ones, you know, such companies is beyond all reasonable limits on personal property. How does it compare with other countries? At our present rate of assessment, it is 221/2 times greater than in the Province of Quebec, and 221/2 times greater than in New York state under the state law. It is about 10 times as great as the war tax in England. representatives, We won't allow our capital to remain here subject to this

We said to the city, through their excessive and unreasonable tax, especially as we are about to largely increase our capital. What will we do? What under the circumstances would be considered practical and reasonable by a thoughtful business man, especially when he is a shareholder of the company? What the shareholders intend to do, and what they deem is the only practical thing that they can legitimately do, under forced condi-tions, is to remove our head office to the Province of Quebec. In this case the present property here and capital employed in manufacturing, if it belonged to the company, would still be assessable. To place ourselves on a practical and legitimate footing, we see no other course, failing in our ef-forts to dispose of the plant for say eighty thousand ($80,000) dollars, than to form a local company, and dispose of the plant to them. tate. Why is the personal property for carrying on the business not assessed? The company would be working on credit. How would it affect the city's assessment? The writer thinks he is warranted in saying the city would find $50,000 less personal property than we named in our limit, and when the foundry comes to be removed (or partly removed) from the center of our congested premises, the assessor would find a further reduction, necessarily reducing the assessment. How would it affect the future development and extension of our business in or adjoining the city? When we appeared the city council, we appeared in the interests of our company. also appeared as citizens. We felt that if we took independent action, without laying the conditions before the city's representatives, we would not have done our duty as citizens. We desire, and have always acted, and trust we will continue to act, in the interests of the city, so long as it does not conflict with the interests of our company. If our company's interests conflict with the interests of the city, we say to your representatives to protect the city, and if we fail to protect the interests of our company, it shall not be considered that it was for lack of

This matter may turn to be a good illustration (if the writer is warranted in saying so) of the senseless act, as applied to personal property in this province. If a manufacturer employs labor and gives support through his works to the householder's tenant, and the assessor puts in an appearance and assesses the dwelling house and lands at its full value, and assesses the factory and grounds for its full value, we think that there would be very narrow grounds for the householder to "howl" at the manufacturer that gives increasvalue to his premises, and furnishes him with a paying tenant.

We recognize but two legitimate methods as a basis of extensive worksfixed assessment, or work on credit. We authorize an amendment to our request for legislation, namely, that it e procured at the expense of the Mc-Clary Manufacturing Company. Dear Mrs. Roemmele,-Your many friends in the North Ekfrid Church have met together tonight to express their high appreciation of your services as an active member of the congregation. At the very commencement of the movement to start the mission, your husband and yourself, with a few others, were particularly zealous in efforts to establish preaching of the Word in the district of North Ekfrid, and when the num-bers were few, fewer still to help, the cause weak, and much temptation to be discouraged, you made yourself useful, both in Sabbath school and church in every way within your power. ## THE PLAGUE OF THE SAN JOSE SCALE

Is More Widespread Than Is Generally Known.

Expert Entomologists Tell How It May Be Checked.

Hon. John Dryden Presides at the Annual Convention of the Ontario Society.

The 38th annual convention of the Entomological Society of Ontario was begun yesterday morning in the society's rooms, Y. M. C. A. building, of this city. The forenoon session being spent at routine business, conference and discussion of the San Jose scale in Ontario began with the afternoon session. Among those present yesterday afternoon were the Hon. John Dryden, minister of agriculture; Rev. Dr. Fyles, of Quebec, president of the association; Prof. Lochead, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph; Dr. James Fletcher, Ottawa; Dr. Bethune, Messrs. Lochead, John Balkwill, John Dearness, John Law. Moffat. Brown, W. E. Saunders and Dr. H. A. Stevenson, of London; H. H. Lyman, of Montreal; Mr. A. Gibson, of Ottawa; Inspector Fisher, of Freeman, Ont.; Prof. Webster, of Wooster, Ohio.

Rev. Dr. Fyles, president of the Entomological Association, occupied the chair, and called upon Mr. Fisher, the first speaker of the afternoon session. Mr. Fisher, who is the government inspector for the Province of Ontario, stated that there had been very few localities newly infected by the San Jose throughout the year, which seemed very encouraging. People are beginning to recognize its dangerous character, and are beginning to notify the government, and to appreciate the means devised by the government for its extermination. The speaker mentioned that during the past year there had been a number of cases of mista-ken identity—instances in which other scales had been taken for the San Jose scale. The power of the San Jose scale for destruction seems as great as (if not greater than) ever.

AN ORCHARD TRAGEDY.

The speaker cited a case of an orchard containing 1,600 peach trees, where in the year 1899, 89 of the trees were found with difficulty to have been infected by the scale. In 1900 every tree was infected, but still produced a good crop of fruit. Now every peach tree is practically dead. He also stated that he had eaten peaches this last sum-mer grown on trees that are now dead from the scale attack. A tree mo ately infected becomes soon almost in-crusted, and soon succumbs to the attack of the scale. The examples already referred to are of peach orchards, but the scale is as much inclined to attack pears and plums as peaches. Apple trees are the most resistive, and, at one time, it was thought the scale would not have much effect on them, but this belief has been exploded. Two years ago an apple orchard, consisting of 350 trees was slightly infected, but bore a good crop last year. Now the owner thinks it will never bear again.

Inspector Fisher took up in detail a number of remedies that had been found effective. They are: Whale-oil soap, crude petroleum, and a mixture of the two. Two and a half pounds of the soap to a gallon of hot water made a very suitable mixture. Crude petroleum and water, 15 per cent of the for mer, also produced good results. The speaker emphasized the importance of applying the mixture to the trees properly; it should be applied evenly, and each tree should be thoroughly saturated. As a rule, only one side of a tree is sprayed. No scale is to be had been moistened with the crude petroleum mixture, but the untreated portion, and the whole top is found to be incrusted. Apple trees are not likely to be injured by crude petroleum. Mr. Fisher preferred the crude oil to whale-oil scap in the case of large ordiards, it being much cheaper. Lime, salt and sulphur is a very good mixture, but owing to the lack of proper means for cooking it, was not found to be so convenient. It is preferable that the lime should be slacked in boiling, rather than in cold, water.

Fumigation was tried in various places, and at different times during the season. Three hundred trees were treated, and not a single live scale was treated, and not a single live scale was to be found afterwards. The crude petroleum was better for destroying insects, but cannot be used on all kinds of trees; in fact, it should not be used on any other than the most vogorous peach trees. The Japan and egg varieties of plum trees are the only kind on which the petroleum cannot be used with impunity. The speaker advised that a spray-pump nozzle with a very fine bore be used in applying the mix-

Peach trees, in the opinion of the speaker, should be branched near the ground. They were easier to prune and spray, and the ripe fruit can be obtained more easily. When the trees are kept low they are affected less by WISDOM OF DEPARTMENT'S AC-TION. In conclusion, Inspector Fisher stated that, in his professional visits throughout the province, he noticed a change in the attitude of the people on the subject of spraying. They cannot now close their eyes to the effect of the San Jose scale on the trees. The present conditions go to show the wisdom of the methods adopted by the department of agriculture. The only absolutely effectual remedy was burning. No other remedies will wholly exterminate the pest, owing to the fact that it had become so widely distributed and established before it was noticed. Remedies will, however, control it, and prevent it spreading, and if spraying were resorted to generally better results would be accomplished than applying it in special cases.

Dr. James Fletcher, Dominion ento-ologist, was the next speaker. He thought the most momentous question before farmers and fruit growers today was, Can anything be done to stop the ravages of the San Jose scale? Canada is at the present time losing hundreds of thousands of dollars simply through ignorance of the subject of treatment of the scale. Not only the Provincial, but the Federal, Government have done all that can reasonably be expected by any man. The men in charge have done their work admirably, and the methods founded upon successful experiment, and proclaimed under the authority of the government, are the very best that can be had in the light of present knowledge on the subject. The speaker dwelt upon the fatal effects of fumigation by hydrocyanic acid gas, to the San Jose scale. To make use of this method proper appliances in the shape of tents are needed, with which to cover the trees. The difficulty here, it will be seen, is a matter merely of me-chanism, which can be overcome. Dr. Fletcher called attention to the fact that specific remedies were given in the report of the inspector of the San Jose scale, a pamphlet which may be had from the government for the ask-

PROF. WEBSTER. Prof. Webster, of Wooster, Ohio, was meeting Conditions were, he said, the same in oldest society under the patronage of Ontario as in Ohio in regard to fruit growing. And speaking with an eye to conditions at home, he thought the most pressing need was for adequate machinery and trained men. He was hopeful, however, that such machinery would be forthcoming. He suggested that competent men go around among farmers with spraying apparatus, in much the same manner as threshers do at present. A great deal of harm and waste results from unskilled labor. Prof. Webster thought, in conclusion that employment might be guaranteed to competent men nearly the whole year round.

HON. JOHN DRYDEN. Hon. John Dryden, minister of agriculture, was the last speaker. In rising to speak he expressed himself as being much interested in what the previous speakers had said on the subject of the San Jose scale, and was glad to learn that something definite was being obtained in regard to methods of allaying or exterminating the pest. When the scale first appeared. it was a difficult matter to lead the people to see the danger, and it is only impressed with the gravity of the situation. Efforts have been put forth by way of educating the people in regard to remedies. The speaker felt that considerable headway had been made considerable headway had been made in the direction of effective remedies. But he felt that the best remedy of all was self-help, and in order to help themselves the people must know how. The aim of the department of agriculture has been to supply the necessary information. He stated that his work was chiefly effective. Every drop of Sarsaparillian Resolvent Every drop of Carsaparillian Resolvent communicates through the blood the visor of life. Scrofula, consumption, syphilis, uncured and badly treated venereal in its many forms (send tencents for book, "Radway on Venereal") glandular diseases, ulcers in the throat, mouth, tumors, nodes in the glands and other parts of the body, sore eyes, skindiseases, eruptions, ringworm, salt rheum, erysipelas, acne, black spots in the flesh, female complaints (ail weakening and painful discharges), night sweats and all wastes of the life principle are within the curative range of this Wonder of Modern Chemistry, and a few days' use will prove to any person using it for either of these forms of disease its potent power to cure them. enough in a way, as a preventive, but was not equal to education. growers, who at the time were not alive to the injuries likely to accrue from a spread of the scale. From what he had learned on the subject he was hopeful that before very long the ravages would be checked. Knowing as he did the young farmers of Ontario, Mr. Dryden believed that had they the knowledge they would soon acquire the skill necessary for the successful treatment of the disease in question. The best course to pursue was, in his opinion, to extend knowledge on the subject to the people, and interest them in their own protection.

He also laid great stress on men trained in the business of spraying and fumigating trees. He believed also in throughout the province for the purpose of imparting definite information on the subject, and gave as an instance the great good that had been accom-

-methods analogous to what he would advocate in connection with spraying.

A revolution had been wrought in the dairy business by sending dairymen throughout the country to lecture, and at the same time perform the actual operation of butter-making. What men and women see for themselves they will not forget asd will be more apt to put into practice. The minister of agriculture thought that like benefits would be derived by adopting similar methods in connection with spraying. He advised also that the matter of obtaining suitable spray pumps be pressed upon the attention of manufacturers, and that they be instructed, as far as possible, to produce a machine that would meet the demands of the public. "The chief danger I see now," continued Mr. Dryden, "lies with our nurseries. Care should be exercised in the selection of nursery stock. If you plant insect-infected trees in one hundred different places you have as many increased centers to combat."

Not only did he believe in thorough inspection, but would go further and advise that nursery stock be subjected to a thorough fumigation process by hydrocyanic acid gas.

self as possessing great confidence in the people, and felt sure that once the danger was properly impressed upon them they would rise to the occasion

On this fact, and upon the manifest needs of his declining years, James explains his chief reason for resorting to art for a living.

For years Mr. Batty has been an unceasing sufferer from Catarrhal Asthma, and although no end of time and money was spent, relief was not obtained until Mr. Batty comwas not obtained until Mr. Batty commenced Catarrhozone treatment which perfectly cured him. This case is only equaled by that of Mrs. Bannon, wife of J. J. Bannon, druggist, who was also cured of Asthma and Hay Fever by Catarrhozone after 30 years' suffering. When kidney trouble is at an advanced stage it will evidence itself by back pains, headaches and neuralgic pains in the eyes. These are the most common signs; the urine will show conclusively what causes the trouble. Powley's Liquified Ozone, the new oxygen preparation, will cure kidney disorder in a wonderfully short time. It will relieve the pains almost immediately. We want you to notice our testimonials every one we publish is from Canada. We give you to-day the statement of Mr. Henry Devnay, who was cured of kidney trouble. Every word is true; you can investigate for your own satisfaction every word we publish.

About a year and a half ago I was taken down with what the doctors called lumbago and kidney trouble of a very bad form. I doctored with physicians for a year and found no relief from their medicines. Sometime in July, 1901, the minister of the B. M. E. church told me about the Ozone preparation and said it had done him a lot of good and asked me to try it. I went out and purchased a small bottle of Ozone and after taking it I noticed a slight improvement. I continued taking it for three months and the pain has left my kidneys and I am generally built up. In every way I feel better than I ever did before. I have now taken some ten bottles and I can honestly recommend this preparation to any person suffering with kidney disease. I give this testimony so that other sufferers

Notes of the Passing Day.

The death of Mrs. George Henschel, who as a concert singer was very dear to those who delighted in the best music, recalls an incident which occurred a few years ago, when she visited Toronto as a bride, with her husband. This charming couple, whose marriage was laughingly said to be the outcome of a duet they used to sing together, "When We Two Were Maying," were giving a recital in Association Hall, Toronto. Mrs. Henschel. who apparently sang with more confidence when supported by her husband, came on the platform alone and sang thrillingly a selection that captured the audience and won for the singer a shower of applause. Blushing, and smiling divinely, she bowed her thanks, and made a dignified exit, all in the most correct form, but for a slight denouement not on the programme. Mr. Henschel, the ardent lover evidently not yet merged in the husband, was waiting just inside the small passage leading off the platform, and as his wife appeared, the row of spectators on the front seats were edified by the sight of a sudden loss of all dignity on the part of the girlish wife, who, picking up her long train, made a rush for her husband's arms, and then the hard-hearted door swung to, only allowing a glimpse of a pair of encircling arms, and a distinctly audible echo of something that sounded-well, like a kiss.

Kate Greenaway, the friend of the children, is dead. This unique and altogether delightful artist, whose oldfashioned little boys and girls delighted the children of a past generation, as well as those of the present, was an illustration of such originality that in a way she marked an era. So great at one time was the vogue of her charming little folk, that mothers the world over adopted the quaint style of dress, and small maidens in long Kate Greenaway dresses were no uncommon sight in nursery and kinder-hardly appropriate to say, "After life's fitful fever he sleeps well," as he had a stolid kind of strength that refused to be too much fretted by the fever of life. He was a tough, wiry old man, and, considering his age, it would not have been surprising if the recent terrible troubles had killed him some time ago. However, he was not easily killed; he astonished the world by his pertinacity and endurance; but at last he has had to pay the tribute to of the nation. W. Jacobs & Co., Philatial part of Chinese religion. It is a good thing, but, like other good ideas, may become evil, if carried to extremes. China has for long been too much under the control of the dead hand of the past, and hence is unfit to make the changes which new conditions demand. The old man who has just gone was a type of China in her strength and weakness. It is too soon to give a complete judgment of his life. We in the West have not the information on the standards for judging such a man. We know that he was strong, clever and grasping, but it is difficult for us to say how far he was moved by real principle and patriotism. We are compelled to believe that he made a mistake by playing too much into the hands of Russia; but we must confess that even in forming that judgment we are influenced by patriotic feeling. All we can say is that strong as the old Chinese statesman was, the recent course of events was too violent for him. He has gone, and for a time will be missed, but his removal just now will hardly have any serious international results.

Dooley on the Booker Washington

Incident. A great sensation has been created by the southern, especially the Democratic, press of the United States, over the fact that President Roosevelt extended the hospitality of his table to Booker T. Washington, the colored social reformer. Among the more recent comments on the President's action, we have the utterances of Mr. Dooley, who has been during the past intensely alive to public events, as they found of interest. After satirically predicting defeat for the President at the next election, referring to Mr. Washington, Mr. Dooley

SPORT INDEED!

Breezy Book by Tom Martindale. a London Old Boy.

It is as good as filling one's lungs with pure ozone to dip into the breezy pages of Mr. Thomas Martindale's new book, "Sport Indeed," which is pubdelphia.

Enthusiasm is contagious, and the reader from the start finds himself en rapport with the author, in his love of the pine woods and the "big game" which lures the hunter from his city and his home to face the thorny wilderness with its accompaniment of dangers and fascinations.

A subject so full of interest for the writer cannot fail to interest the reader, and we gain from the pages of this book two distinct impressionsthe first is the breezy, whole-souled personality of the man who wrote it. and secondly, a pleasing, pungent impression of the Maine woods.

Those who are most familiar with this wild and charming paradise of the hunter will recognize the truthfulness of the description of a "dry bog," a favorite haunt of the author: "The place teems with all manner of life, except the human variety. The fox hunts his breakfast there, and the bear dines sumptuously on its blueberries. It is the home of the red squirrel, the mole and the field-mouse; and they may be seen darting hither and yon, busily employed in getting their living among the medley of vegetable growth. Here in this garden spot I used to sit by the hour, secluded from the world, and forgetful of its cares and perplexities, resting both mind and body, with a species of rest unknown to the busy city man, and which, by the way, he will never know unless he will occasionally drop his treadmill work and try it."

Mr. Martindale's book is fairly brimming over with fun and sport, hairbreadth escapes and all the delightful adventures incident to camp life, hunting and canoeing. From any number of racy stories I choose "The Killing of the Big Moose of Little Tobique," by the author himself, as one of general interest: "Something that, in the glimmer of the breaking day, they took to be the top of a fallen tree, had changed its shape. 'Twas not a tree now, but a moose, and a monstrous one! Was it a bull or a cow? I couldn't tell, for its back was towards me and its head in the water. But our doubt was of short duration. A few minutes, and the great beast turned around and started on a walk straight towards us. His appearance, as he walked majestically around the point in the light of the hazy morning, reminded me of the picture of a 'mammoth' that I had seen in my boyhood days. Leisurely the big fellow approached, until he came quite within range. Then the sharp crack of a rifle rang out on the air and the flirtation days of the 'Big Moose of Little Tobique' were ended forever. The ball had pierced his heart, and he fell in his tracks a few feet from the shore." This and many like adventures fill the book from the evening of the start until the return of the hunters, laden with antlered trophies and

"Full of vigor, tough, and glad, Feeling like a wiry lad."

MURDER CHARGE

Will Be Made Against the Would-Be Insurance Swindler N. C. Rathbun.

Louisville, Nov. 14 .- Newell C. Rathbun, who confessed that he planned to defraud an insurance company out of $4,000 by pretending that a corpse, shipped to Little Rock, Ark., was his own dead body, has admitted that the man who accompanied him to the hotel in Jeffersonville, Ind., and was found dead the next day was Charles Goodman, who is said to have come from Evansville, Ind. He will be charged with murder. On being closely questioned Rath-bun said: "You are on the right track. Goodman is the name of the dead man. I met him in front of the Salvation Army Hotel, and determined to keep him drunk for several days and then fix him." When questioned further Rathbun denied having given Goodman lau-danum, and said he would have made use of chloroform. Just before he was taken back to jail Rathbun said:

"I admit everything, except that I killed Goodman. I meant to kill him, and kept him drunk for that purpose, but he died with alcoholism, and I was forced to make away with him. I acted alone and without a confederate."

MRS NORMANDEAU

A Lady of Campbellton, N. B., Has at Last Effectively Disposed of an Enemy That Persecuted Her for Years.

For years, Mrs. Philomene Normandeau, of Campbellton, N. B., suffered with Dyspepsia. In addition to the tortures consequent on this disease, she also was very much troubled with sick headaches, the result of the derangement of the stomach.

She has found a cure, and is so grateful, that she is anxious for the benefit of others who may be suffering as she was, to give the matter the greatest possible publicity. She has, therefore, written the following open letter:

"It is my duty, and I consider it a great pleasure, for me to testify that I have been cured of a very severe case of Dyspepsia, by the use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. "For years I suffered with stomach sickness. My head ached almost continually. I could eat very little, and had to be very careful.

"I consulted several physicians, and used the medicines they prescribed, but instead of getting better, I gradually grew worse. "I read in one of the newspapers an advertisement, which told how a lady who had been suffering from Dyspepsia in much the same way as I was, had been cured by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. "Although I had but little faith, I decided to make a trial, and bought two boxes. I was relieved from the very first, and now can safely say that I am completely cured. "I can, therefore, highly recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to all who suffer from this most terrible malady, as I am satisfied that what cured my case will cure anyone.

Science today knows but one way to relieve Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sour Stomach, and other stomach troubles. That way is Nature's way-Rest.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets digest all been paying attention. Leclaire was the food and tone up the stomach by giving it a respite from the work of digestion. The small, brown Tablets stimulate the Liver, and regulate the Montreal, Nov. 14 .- In the court of Bowels. All in one box, 50c.

West Ninth street, New York city, writes: "I have commenced using Stuart's Tablets, and already they have given me better results than any catarrh cure I have ever tried." A leading physician of Pittsburg advises the use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets in preference to any other treat-ment for catarrh of the head, throat or stomach. He claims they are far superior to inhalers, salves, lotions, or powder, and are much more convenient and pleas-ant to take, and are so harmless that little children take them with benefit, as they contain no opiate, cocaine or any poisonous drugs.

All druggists sell Stuart's Catarrh Tablets at 50 cents for full size package, and they are probably the safest

The House That Jack Built" proved to be the exception, and though billed as a "musical" farce, the word "musical" was evidently used as an adis uproariously funny, and though based on the old foundation of mistaken identity, the structure is rather unique, and one forgives the little that is old for the much that is new. The author, Mr. Broadhurst, has written many good pieces, and in this, his latest effort has given great scope for a good low comedian, and Mr. George Summers as Willie Slab certainly fills the bill. Mr. Summers is an old Toronto boy who, since joining the "profesh," has developed into a first-rate comedian. His work in this new piece is capital, and as Willie the Paper Hanger he will certainly "stick" in the memory of those who saw him in Toronto. Miss St. George Hussey, as Mrs. Dooley, did some of the best character acting I have seen and her here. have seen, and her brogue is just about the right "thickness." The rest of the cast was excellent, and "The House That Jack Built," though perhaps not so large, should pretty near-

The public are the best judges of what is good and purest in the drama, and the fact that "Human Hearts" has been successfully presented for seven consecutive seasons, would seem to place it in that category. It is said that the play contains the elements of both pathos and comedy to the superlative degree which is found to be necessary to suc-cess. The play is said to be a powerful argument against conviction on circumstantial evidence, and in writing it the author had this point in "Human Hearts" will be at the New Grand next Saturday, matinee

Alexander J. Graham, formerly Lobo, Middlesex county, Ont., died at his home of apeplexy, in Washington county, State of Kansas, U.S.

The work on the new church, under the direction of Contractor McCann, is rapidly being pushed forward. A very pleasing event, in the form of a surprise party, took place Wednesday evening, Nov. 6, at the home of Mr. David Carroll, con. 1, Westminster, when his eldest daughter (remaining at home), Isabella, became the recipient of a very pretty gold watch. About 50 of the members and friends of Hope machine, and tea was served at 10:30 o'clock. A short programme was given, in which Mr. and Miss Freeland and Miss Carroll played an important part. The following address of appreciation was read: Dear Friend,-We, the members and friends of Hope Sabbath school, have watched with great satisfaction your every good word and work. Especially you have always taken in teaching us the truths contained in God's Word. and in leading us in the voice of song We cannot but feel that you have been faithful in the discharge of your duty, and we take this opportunity of ex-pressing our gratitude to you for the service you have rendered. We do not presume to reward you for labor done for the Master, believing you are prompted by a better, a higher, a nobler, a purer, motive to work in the vineyard of the Lord; but we do ask you, on this the evening of the 6th day of November, to accept this watch and We trust you may be long spared to labor among us, knowing your labor is not in vain in the Lord. Be assured that your valuable services have been and are being appreciated. May God's blessing rest upon you. "In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." (Proverbs, iii., 6.) Signed on behalf of the school and friends: A. J. Copeland, E. Dart, R. S. Freeland, F. N. Scott. Miss Carroll's many friends wish her a pleasant and profitable vacation.

THE O. R. F. U. AND LONDON. After a session lasting three hours and a half, says the Toronto Mail and Empire, that august body known as the O. R. F. U. adjourned after suspending the individual players of the London club and awarding the intermediate championship to the Peterboro

Those present were: President A. W. Ballantyne, F. H. Thompson, S. DuMoulin, Frank Reid and Secretary J. D. McMurrich. The first matter taken up was the case of the London club, who played Peel against Peter-boro in the first of the final games for the intermediate O. R. F. U. championship at London last Saturday. Peel was a member of the London Hockey Club and was one of the players who was professionalized last year by the O. H. A. for playing with a ringer. London played Peel last Saturday after an effort had been made to reinstate him. London claimed to have played him open and above hands, nose, etc., leaving the skin clear, white and healthy. Its great healing and curative powers are possessed by no other remedy. Ask your druggist for eligible to play, because he had made ywt quired by the O. R. F. "Chip" Reid represented the London club, and for a couple of hours the O.R. F. U. was arraigned by London's Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator de-ranges worms, and gives rest to the suf-ferer. It only costs 25 cents to try it and be cast on his shoulders. He had conwhole blame in the Peel case should be cast on his shoulders. He had considered Peel perfectly eligible to play after he had made the affidavit asked for by the O. R. F. U. Mr. Reid made out that the case was analogous to "Wicky" Wilson's playing with the Granites, and asked some very per-

Mr. Meredith is a student at Os-goode Hall, a resident of London, and was eligible to play. After hearing London's side of the case, the executive decided to suspend the individual players of "The London Rugby football team is surely gone," the Toronto Star said yesterday, adding with Town Topical humor, "The meeting of the Ontario Rugby Union executive tonight, is like the chorus of a comic opera—merely a matter of form." There is no doubt that London knew what the result of the meeting would be just as surely as the editors of Toronto sporting Westerners generally-and winning westerners in particular, are not so accustomed to decent treatment from Toronto-bossed executives, or city, and the treatment that London has been given is looked upon as unfair in the extreme. How the O. R. F. U. executive can defend its action, both in the Wilson case and Peel case is beyond comprehension. If Wilson, admittedly a player for money, may be reinstated after playing a game, and the Granites allowed scot free, then, why, in the name of justice, is London put under the ban and its members suspended for playing Peel, an amateur player, if there ever was one, who had made repeated applications for reinstatement, and made affidavit regarding his status? Unfortunately for himself and the London Football Club, Peel was one of those who suffered last winter because of the misdemeanors of others. forgot that the Argonauts and the Granites are not the Londons. The mistake was made of believing that the O. R. F. U. executive treats one club as it treats another.

However, this consistent executive has given the championship to Peterboro. It is the only way that Peterboro could get the championship. They went into the game, knowing that Peel was playing, and showed that they can put up a game that is about one-fifth as good as that of London. The champion Peterboros, whom London made look like a bunch of would-bes, must be delighted with the honors that must be delighted with the honors that come of victory in committee; they would never win honors that come of victory on the field.

I picked it up, and found a crimson stone, extremely bright, cut in the form of a seal; but there was no setting—the gold had been melted away from it, and the engraving was so scratched and defaced that one could not see what it was like. When we got into my garret at the top I lighted my lamp and examined the thing more carefully. Clifton also looked at it.

made myself clean, and I put the theater. I forgot what a hard share of the world had fallen to my lot when once I found myself on a soft velvet chair in the stalks, and the fun began. "I laughed at the wit, and the way in which the mask came off the folks who assumed perfection as the motto; it was good fun. After it was over Clifton, who was in cash that night, and who is one of the most good-natured of Bo-hemians, would make me go with him to the grill-room, and allow him to treat me to a chop, potatoes and claret. I had often treated him, and lent him money, which he never was able to return, so I accepted his kindness.

"While we were at supper a gay party of distinguished looking ladies came in. of distinguished looking ladies came in. I recognized Miss Bracegirdle, She was accompanied by a fine, tall, middle-aged man, and that dashing Lady Rosewood, who was visiting at Charteris. He said that he had cardtables at his house in Montague Place, where great sums changed hands; he said that he meant to go there whenever he had five pounds to lose."

"There!" cried Elsie. "Do you think well now of that Miss Bracegirdle?"

"No, my Elsie; not now that I have heard the truth from you. Well, I went home, and the next morning I looked at the red stone by daylight, and I felt sure that it was a ruby. You know that there are some wonderful rubies in the Chase family. You have heard that whoever murdered Lord Hammond tried to get his watch, but only succeeded in breaking off a valuable ruby seal. All that was in the papers. I had heard all that, but I never thought of the seal described as set heavily in massive gold and engraved with the crest and motto of the Earls of Chase. The engraving was scratched and scraned away the activity was read the said that the said the said the activity was scratched and scraned away the activity was succeeded and scraned away the activity was succeeded and ily in massive gold and engraved with the crest and motto of the Earls of Chase. The engraving was scratched and scraped away, the setting was gone. I supposed that some of the other tenants in the Foresters' Chambers must have dropped this stone on the stairs, and I went to all the doors on each flat and asked if anybody had lost a stone. All the people were honest, and said they had not, except one old lady, with greedy eyes, who lived penuriously en a good income in the story below mine. She said she had lost a fine stone, and when I asked her to describe it, declared it was a diamond of great value and beauty. I told her I had found no diamond; and then I took the stone to Mapleson's—a jeweler I knew in Oxford street. He said that it was a ruby of great value, but he said he should take it to a firm in St. Martin's Lane, who were experts in gems, and he would get it valued.

"I meant, when I knew the value, to advertise the ruby, and to demand a couple of sovereigns or so in payment for the trouble I had taken. I was hungry, and I wanted good food, so that I might have strength to work and study more. I left the ruby with Mapleson. I was to have gone to him yesterday to hear what the experts said about the stone.

The night before last, at eleven o'clock I was about to turn down my lamp and leap into bed, when I heard a tremendous rapping at my door. I called out 'Who is there?' and Clifton's voice, in an excited

"Quick! for your life's sake, man!"
"I let him in, scrambled into my clothes and asked him what was the matter.
"'Lock the door, said he, 'and I will tell you."

"He had been carrying a Gladstone bag, which he threw on the floor.

"Make haste,' I said. 'I want to get to sleep, I have worked hard, I have had no dinner, and I mean to take it out in sleep. Qui dort dine—who sleeps eats, as the French say.

"Don't make bad jokes, answered Clifton. 'My boy, I have found you out. You are a sort of lord in disguise, as we all thought you were, and your name is no more Scott than mine is Jones. You name is Owen Hammond—your father was the Honorable Richard Hammond, and your uncle is the Earl of Chase. You are a good, noble fellow.'

"He praised me more than I deserved, and then, at last, I got the truth out of him.

"I will tell you in his own words. Clifton told me the following story:

The C. P. R. May Control the Kingston and Pembroke--Rumor That Hays Is Coming Back to the G. T. R .---Contest for Control of the N. P.

A GRAND TRUNK RUMOR.

Chicago, Nov. 14.-The Chronicle this morning says: "It is reported that C. M. Hays, who recently resigned the presidency of the Southern Pacific, is or a moment."

"But let me tell you how this last horrible thing happened. Miss Brace-girdle has visited me in my garret; she has sat to me in costume as Lady Jane Grey on her way to the scaffold; she told me news of all my old acquaintance; she told me where you were, but I did not she told me where you were. But I did not she told me where you were y to be elected president and general about a year ago. Mr. Hays is now in England, conferring, it is said, with

THE G. T. AND S. S. DISPUTE. Montreal, Nov. 14 .- Victor Geoffrion, M. P. for Chambly-Vercheres, presented a petition to the minister of railbearing on the dispute between the South Shore Railway and the Grand Trunk, as the result of which the latter road has shut the South Shore out of its traffic arrangement over the Victoria bridge into Montreal. The petition, which is signed by many people of the interested districts, points out that the new bridge was partly constructed out of federal moneys, and it is a great injustice to the counties interested thus to be cut

Montreal, Nov. 14.-Sir William Van Horne, chairman of the board of directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was in New York with Lord Strath-cona, who sailed for England yesterday. Both gentlemen are reported, while in New York, of taking an important part in the meetings regardsettlement of the Northern Pacific Railway deal, and as a result of which the Canadian road is expected to profit materially. This is explained in some quarters as having a great deal to do with the present buoyancy in the price of Canadian Pacific stock. The sale of over 34,000 shares in Wall street yesterday is regarded as significant, being coincident with the presence in that city of Lord Strathcona and Sir William Van

CONTROL OF THE N. P. New York, Nov. 14.-There were two important developments in the rail-way situation in the Northwest Tuesday, and both tended to confirm the existing belief that a final basis of the settlemest of the contest for the control of N. P. had been definitely agreed to. Final ratification of this agreewill bring into existence the greatest and most effective example of the community of interest idea as applied to the railroad systems of the country. The Great Northern's outstanding capital is $125,000,000, par value, selling at 100 in the market, while Northern Pacific's total outstanding stock, after the retirement of the preferred, will be $80,-000,000 par value, making a total of $205,000,000, par value, for the shares of those two companies. #### THE TELEGRAPHONE

An Electrical Invention That Records Spoken Messages.

Wasnington, Nov. 13.—Vaidemar Paulsen, a Danish electrical engineer, has recently secured a patent for the United States for an instrument that has been pronounced by a number of experts as one of the most wonderful electrical inventions that has been given to the world in the past decade. It is called the telegraphone, and is a combination of the telegraph, the telephone and the praphophone or phonograph. While it has not yet been tried in every-day use in business, it is safe to predict, from its tests in private exhibitions, that it will have a large

What the telegraphone has done in these exhibitions is to receive and record automatically messages received over a telephone line. It works inde-pendent of distance. The instrument is about the size of a phonograph, not so large but what it can be conveniently placed on top of, or alongside, an office desk. It has a steel band about one-sixteenth of an inch wide. When the instrument is connected with the telephone by a switch, this band is moved with considerable velocity between the poles of a small electro-magnet. Suppose a man in Chicago calls up a man is Washington. The Washington man is not at his office. The office telegraphone is switched by the office boy into connection with the office telephone, and the Chicago man proceeds to speak his message, which is recorded on the steel band of the fele-graphone. When the Washington man returns to his office the two ments are attached again, a crank is turned, and the message is as audible in the telephone as the best phono graph could make it, and without the rasping sound of the latter machine. The impression on the steel band in imperceptible. In fact, a powerful microscope reveals no traces, the record being what scientists term a molecular impression. The impression can be entirely removed by demagnetizing the band, which can then be used over again. The instrument will not only receive messages, but it will also relay or repeat a message, and two or more messages can be traismitted simultaneously over a single wire without interfering with each other, a feat heretofore impossible. A message in the instrument can also be sent over any number of wires at the same time, a feature which, it claimed, may revolutionize methods in press association head offices, where dispatches are sent simultaneously over wires to scores of newspaper offices in all parts of the country.

Joplin, Mo., Nov. 14.—In a cave-in at Oronogo, near here yesterday, the entire plant of the Aurora Mining Company, one of the greatest zinc producers in the district, was swallowed up. No lives were lost. The plant comprises a hundred ton mill, office building and engine house, all of which were engulfed, together with six grayel cars and an immense tailing of which were engulfed, together with six gravel cars and an immense tailing On entering the ground, a short time could secure a pressure of 40 pounds, throwing water 80 feet, from a new watering car. It was suggested that the company could get water either from wells or from the river; but Mr. Carr and the committee will discuss the mode of watering at another meeting.

The plumbing bylaw will be sent to the council with a recommendation that it be adopted. Ald. Campbell, speaking in support of the scheme, said that while the bylaw did not provide for the appointment of an inspector, it should do so, though he would not press the matter of appointment at this late date. Such a bylaw as proposed would mean that if a plumber violated its provisions the owner of the property could proceed in against him. before the cave-in occurred, workmen heard the timbers crackling, and signaled to be drawn up. The last man had reached the surface only a few minutes before the timbers collapsed, the earth yielded and with a crash, the whole plant sank into the abyss.

Further caving is feared and work in that vicinity has been suspended. It is impossible to estimate the damage. a plumber violated its provisions the owner of the property could proceed against him. Plumbers, as a result, would be found obeying it.

Other routine business was disposed of.
