IRISH OUTING

The Irishmen of Port Lambton and vicinity are arranging for a monster picnic there on the 23rd inst. A new pleasure and picnic ground has been opened on the banks of the river, which will be utilized for the occasion. Detective Skirving, who is one of the leading promoters of the picnic, says it will be the greatest gathering of Irishmen ever known in Western Ontario.

THERE WILL BE NO COALITION

Mr. Whitney and Friends are Opposed to It—The Idea an Absurdity.

Nothing Will be Done Till Party Strength is Determined by Bye-Elections.

Toronto, July 9.—The coalition has been buzzing in political circles. A recent article in the Peterboro Times has set politicians talking of a reconstructed government of the Sandfield Macdonald pattern, with half the members Conservative and half Liberal. The members of the government were kept busy this morning denying that negotiations are in progress. In reply to friends and newspaper men the invariable answer was "We must fight it out on party lines, which are necessary to the good government of the province." This may be taken without reservation as the position of Mr. Harcourt, the acting premier, and also Messrs. Dryden and Latchford. As to Mr. Stratton, his friends are equally emphatic, and the only thing that lends color to a contrary view is the Peterboro Times article, which suggests a working partnership with Mr. Whitney. At the Albany Club, the headquarters of the Conservative party, the idea of a coalition is regarded as an absurdity. The chief executive officers of the association say that Mr. Whitney will not go in except as a leader of a Conservative government. It may be taken for granted, therefore, that until the bye-elections are held and the party strength decided by them, neither side will make any move toward coalition negotiations. Mr. J. A. Whitney was interviewed at Ottawa on the suggestion contained in a Peterboro paper, and evidently coming from Hon. J. B. Stratton, that a coalition government should be formed under a premier other than Mr. Whitney, the Conservative leader laughingly remarked that he was receiving news every day which was more or less surprising. If such a proposal were made to him he would promptly decline it. Mr. Whitney remarked that the popular opinion of the province would force the Ross government to give up the reins of office in a very short time. The popular vote in Ontario is such as to make the present government, as well as their record. It was a certain thing, he said, that before the new House was called, the Ross government would have to resign. Mr. Whitney thought he could easily pick out the author of the item.

USE DYNAMITE

Prisoners Wreck Part of Jail Wall and Make a Daring Dash for Liberty.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 9.—James Blade, Leek Allen and James Murray, prisoners in the Buchanan county jail, wrecked the rear wall of the jail building to-day with a powerful charge of dynamite. Then they made a fierce fight for liberty, but the guards beat them back with Winchester. Seventy-five prisoners are confined in the jail, most of whom made no effort to escape. Those who did were clubbed into submission. No one was injured, although the explosion was felt several blocks away. Blade and Allen are under sentence for highway robbery, and Murray is a Government prisoner. They are now chained to the floor of their cells. Other prisoners were told what was to happen about five minutes before the wall was lighted, and on advice of the leaders they sought safety in their cells. The jailer was at dinner in another part of the building. Until the damage to the jail and court house can be repaired a large armed guard will be necessary to restrain the prisoners.

KING'S CONDITION.

London, July 9.—Following is the bulletin posted at Buckingham palace regarding King Edward's condition at 10 o'clock this morning. "The King's progress is uninterrupted. His Majesty sleeps well, and is gaining strength. The wound is slowly healing. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow." King Edward's progress is reported as uninterruptedly favorable. His Majesty reclines on a movable couch most of the day. Some of his physicians are still in constant attendance upon him. It was announced this evening that it was His Majesty's present intention to be taken on board the royal yacht early next week.

NO COSTS IN LENNOX APPEAL

Mr. Justice MacLennan Sets a Precedent—North Grey Case To-Day.

Money Paid Into Court in West Huron and North Westworth Protests.

Toronto, July 9.—Judgment was given this morning by Justice MacLennan on the application for costs in the appeal against the recount in Lennox. S. H. Blake asked for costs on the ground that his client had been successful both in the appeal and cross appeal, and G. H. Watson opposed this argument, that there had been only a partial success. In his judgment Mr. Justice MacLennan refused to make any order, and each side must therefore pay its own costs. This probably will be considered a precedent in other cases where there are both an appeal and cross appeal. The cross appeal against the recount in North Grey will be heard before Justice MacLennan at Osgoode Hall tomorrow morning. The money in the protest in West Huron against M. G. Cameron, and in North Westworth, against the return of R. A. Thompson was paid into Osgoode Hall this morning. The $1,000 to accompany the protest of W. J. Bibly against the return of S. Galtager, member-elect for Frontenac, was deposited with the registrar of the High Court of Justice at Kingston.

WORK WAS DONE

The Board of Works, accompanied by the City Engineer, went through the city this morning inspecting the different earth lots for which tenders have been received. They also inspected the different sidewalks, weeds which needed cutting, and other general work.

After the trip the City Engineer was met by a Planet reporter, and a breezy interview was the result. "You papers are a little late," said he. "You have been at me to have the weeds cut on the city dump lot, I might say that those weeds were cut the day before yesterday. During our drive this morning we saw only one lot which was covered with weeds and in a bad shape. Upon investigation it was found that this lot is owned by Ald. Waddell, so I suppose it will soon be attended to."

"It is all very well to talk about getting this work done and telling a man what to do, but I could get through far faster if I could find the men to work. You can't hire a good man in the city. You can get a lot of men who are no good, but a good competent man is the hardest thing to find these days."

The proprietor of a German menagerie kept caged together a lion, a tiger, a wolf, and a lamb, which he labels, "The Happy Family." When asked confidentially how long these animals lived together, he answered: "Ten months, but the lamb has to be renewed occasionally."

"Is that an historical novel you are reading?" "That's what they call it at the library, but it seems to me to be more hysterical than anything else."

Wilton Hall is busily engaged superintending the removal of a crop of hay from the fields on the north end of Victoria Ave. He reports the hay as being "very thick."

BOARD OF WORKS

Chairman McKeough, and Ald. Waddell and Ald. Mounteer, of the Board of Works and the City Engineer, drove about the city this morning. They found the weeds on the streets and lots which they saw during the drive, all cut. They examined several lots with a view to purchasing some to procure earth for filling for cement walks. They inspected the different places where catch basins were required for carrying off the water. The Board of Works will also take the initiative in regard to a few more new sidewalks.

HAVE FAITH IN NORTH GREY

The Conservatives Hopeful of Winning out on the Ballot Scrutiny.

Evidence That Machine Plungers Personated Absentees Conservatives.

Toronto, July 9.—The Conservatives of North Grey are firmly convinced that after the scrutiny of ballots has taken place in that riding, Mr. Geo. Boyd will be their member at the Ontario Legislature, and not Mr. McKay. They do not base this belief entirely upon the question of the four ballots in St. Vincent township, which they allege were defaced, but upon the fact that a large number of Liberals voted who had no right to do so, according to the present residential law, and that a number of machine plungers registered their votes for absentee Conservative voters. The Conservatives intend to push the scrutiny most vigorously, and spare no pains to open up what they consider to be an election which was not a credit to this province.

Should the courts decide that Mr. Boyd shall not have the seat after the scrutiny has taken place, then the local Conservatives will file a protest, and they state that it will be a snap to unseat the Liberal member, and that once he is unseated they have not the slightest doubt but that the Conservatives would sweep the riding. They do not, however, think that the state of affairs should have to drift that far, but Mr. Boyd should be rewarded with the seat at the scrutiny.

THURSDAY, JULY 10.

IF THE KING HAD DIED.

Henry Clews, the famous American banker and world known authority on financial conditions and affairs, discusses in his last trade review the possibilities and probabilities in case of the King's death. Now that the King's recovery is almost positively assured, it is interesting to read this opinion of this great American finance authority, written as it was when the gloom and shadow of death overspread the British Empire. He says:

"King Edward's death, should it occur, can have no lasting injurious effect upon the business world. Profoundly as England's sorrow would be shared by other nations, and especially by the United States, the event would cause but a ripple in financial circles. His death would involve no change in national or international policies. In actual political effect the sad event would be of less importance than a change in the British Cabinet or a Parliamentary election. It would be of far less consequence in such respects than the sudden death of President McKinley, who had a much greater influence and responsibility in party leadership and national policy than the ruler of the British Empire. Great Britain is practically as much of a republic as the United States; and, exalted as the position of the King may be, a change does not effect the commercial or financial stability of a nation governed so completely by the will of a sovereign people. The death of Queen Victoria, in spite of her long reign and great influence, had no real effect upon business affairs; and the death of King Edward, sad as disappointment as it would be to the whole Empire, would have still less effect. British credit has been through so many trials lately that its general soundness is well demonstrated, and it would recover as readily from this blow as it has from its predecessors."

CURSED BY CUSTOM.

Says the Toronto Star:—Custom is sometimes a blessing, but more frequently it is a burden and a curse. It is a blessing to the man who but for it would yield to some evil temptation either to give up the good to accept the bad. But even that saving exemption the influence of custom is to make the mechanical and conventional, taking from it all moral quality whatsoever.

In individual life, when habit becomes law, custom ceases to have any moral worth. There is no free, intelligent, positive choice on the part of the will, and that absence of choice destroys the moral quality of an action. But even more harmful is the influence of custom in deceiving a man as to the quality of his own conduct. He thinks more highly of himself than is his due, and he despises others because he observes a custom or convention which they disregard. There is always need for self-examination lest the leaven of pharisaism work to the hurt of one's whole moral nature.

Social life is for very many people little more than a bundle of external rules and observances out of which all morality has gone. To violate one of the conventions of society, to offend in outward behavior against some arbitrary regulation, is, in the eyes of many persons more utterly unpardonable than the breaking of all the commandments of God. And custom lays its hand even on the observance of divine laws, and makes the law of God of no effect by its traditions. The man who is honest, not because his choices are right, but because in the social order under which he lives, honesty is the best policy, escapes the police court, it may be, but in the interior of his own soul and before the bar of conscience he is a thief.

The same processes are going on in business life and in politics and in the Church. In business circles transactions are allowed by custom which are essentially immoral while others are condemned which only violate external and arbitrary rules. The conventions of business are now binding on some more than the ten commandments. In politics they are winked at by custom which are condemned by law. In the Church observances are kept up long after they have served any good purpose. And in religion custom is more hurtful than in any other sphere, for vitality, spontaneity and the personal element are of the essence of true religion. Custom is a clog on the spread of truth, and bars the way to useful service. More conformity to use and wont has been the cause of innumerable failures in the ministry of the church as in all other spheres. Indeed, such is the nature of the case that religion is more likely to suffer at the hands of mere conventionalism than in any other human interest. Where life should be freest, most original, most dependent, there as almost nowhere else, custom has laid its hand upon us, "heavy as frost, And deep almost as life."

THE ELECTION JUDGMENTS.

The Farmers' Weekly Sun (Independent) says:

In our last issue we expressed the opinion that the result of the appeals from the recounts in Lennox and North Bay would be the seating of Mr. Carscallen and Mr. McKay. The decision of Judge MacLennan announced last week has confirmed our prediction. While, however, Judge MacLennan confirms the general result of the recount of the North Grey ballots before the County Judge, there is a conflict of opinion between himself and Judge Morrison in regard to the four ballots cast at No. 9 St. Vincent, which were clearly marked for Mr. Boyd, but upon each of which there was a small and somewhat indistinct cross in the space containing Mr. McKay's name. Judge Morrison found that these ballots had been properly marked for Mr. Boyd, but had been subsequently tampered with by Judge MacLennan, on the other hand, expresses the opinion that the crosses in McKay's compartment were made prior to the close of the poll, and were overlooked by the deputy returning officers and the scrutineers. Judge Morrison's conclusion that the ballots were tampered with, being silent on that point. Having found, however, that the crosses in the McKay compartment were on the ballots when the polls closed, Judge MacLennan declined to count these ballots for Mr. Boyd, and they were therefore all disallowed. Two ballots counted by Judge Morrison for McKay were, however, disallowed by Judge MacLennan, and one that had been rejected was counted for Mr. Boyd, with the result that Mr. McKay's majority was reduced to two. Had the four ballots above referred to been counted for Mr. Boyd, he would have been elected by a majority of two.

The numbers of these four ballots were 6418, 6421, 6427, and 6429, and they were apparently cast in the order indicated. As we have already said, it is inconceivable that four voters should mark their ballots clearly and distinctly for Mr. Boyd, and then deliberately proceed, all in the same way, to cancel their votes. The fact that they were all spoiled in the same way is in itself strong evidence that the work was done by one person. In our opinion, it is clear that the ballots were tampered with, and, although the evidence on this point is not conclusive, the probability is very strong that the tampering was done after the close of the poll. The jurisdiction of a judge conducting a recount is limited; he has no power to summon witnesses, but must base his judgment on the ballots as they come before him. Had the judge been empowered to call as witnesses the officials in charge of the poll, the scrutineers, and the voters who cast the ballots the question as to whether the additional crosses were or were not on the ballots when the poll closed might have been settled beyond a doubt. But it appears to us that in the absence of this evidence Judge Morrison had quite sufficient ground upon which to base his finding, and we believe that the general opinion will be that the crosses in McKay's compartment were made after the close of the poll. Indistinct as some of the crosses were, it is not at all likely that they would all have escaped the vigilance of the election officials, of the scrutineers, and of the four voters themselves.

The net result of the decisions in the Lennox and North Grey cases is to reduce the Government majority by two. Of the members-elect at the present time forty-nine are supporters of the Government, while forty-eight belong to the Opposition. If, however, the ballots at No. 9 St. Vincent that were marked for Mr. Boyd had been counted for him, the Opposition members-elect would to-day number 49 and the supporters of the Government 48; or, if the member to be elected for North Renfrew were counted for the Government, both parties would be equal, and the Government, after electing a Speaker, would be in a minority on the floor of the House. The fact that the present majority of one rests upon the tampering with the four Boyd ballots at No. 9 St. Vincent is the most serious feature of the situation. Under the circumstances, it becomes more than ever the duty of the Government to act with vigor in discovering and prosecuting the guilty party or parties. They should put skilled detectives at work to run down the individual who before or after the close of the poll tampered with the St. Vincent ballots. It is clear that both from a public and a party standpoint this is the right course for the Government to take.

Yes, Mr. Whitney is in the hole, but Mr. Rose's position is still more precarious. It appears as though he was standing on quicksand and the well was about to cave in on him.—London News, Ind.

Not one passenger was killed in train accidents in Great Britain last year. Eleven trainmen were killed and 137 persons injured in that period, while for the last three months of 1901 on American railroads 274 people were killed and 1,383 injured. Commenting on these figures the New York World says: "We surpass the Britons on every form of railway equipment, and simply overwhelm them in the work of smashing, killing and maiming on the rail."

The fact that British generals were just as harshly criticized in the old days is proved by this comment in the London Daily News of 1815—

"Although the official reports announce a great victory for the allied forces at Waterloo, it is plain to everybody who knows how to read between the lines that the action was indecisive and costly. As we have often had occasion to remark during the Peninsular war, the Duke of Wellington once more proved himself a poor strategist and, if it had not been for the heroic bravery of the Belgians, the English army would have been annihilated by the French."

The man who wrote that is like a good many other people who can sit in an armchair and successfully conduct the walloping of thousands of men in another country.

"FRUIT OF THE LOOM."

Men and women of taste and judgment go into ecstasies over the wonderful patterns, textures and colors which are "the fruit of the loom." But there is one they rarely consider, and that is the frail and faded woman, old before her time, because necessity compels her to work under conditions, which send her more favored sister to bed and the doctor's care.

The diseases which weaken and torment women, may in almost all cases be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularly, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"I had female trouble for eight years," writes Mrs. L. J. Dennis, of 825 East College street, Jacksonville, Ill. "Words cannot express what I suffered, I sought relief among the medical profession and found none. Friends urged me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I commenced taking this medicine I weighed ninety-five pounds. Now I weigh one hundred and fifty-six pounds—more than I ever weighed before. I was so fat I would lie from day to day and long for death to come and relieve my suffering. I had internal inflammation, a distress every month, but now I never have a pain in all my own work and am a strong and healthy woman."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

WORLD OF SPORT

BOWLING. A couple of rinks of the Chatham bowlers will go to Hidgetown to-morrow to play one of the Kent County Association matches for the VonGuntzen trophy.

LACROSSE. Bert Wilson arrived in the city this morning from Wallaceburg and said he was on the lacrosse team coming from that town this evening, and that the Eisenstein man who had given the interview in the Banner had been "stuffed" by Appleford, and no ringer would be played. "You can tell what kind of a man it is when I am on it," concluded the genial Bert.

BASEBALL. The Gray's game did not come off last evening on account of the rain. The Briscos defeated the Tigers in a league game on the Athletic ground last evening by a score of 11 to 7. McGarry and Chrysler for Briscos, and Owens and Crump for the Tigers. Umpire James McKie was very erratic in his decisions at times.

Rube Waddell, he of the $10,000 arm and a two-cent head, is now connected with the Philadelphia American league pitching staff. He was right at himself yesterday, striking out sixteen Boston players and winning a seventeen innings game by a score of four to two.

GRICKET. WESTERN TEAM TOUR. Arrangements are now being made preparatory for a second Western Team for a week's cricket in Hamilton and Toronto. In all probability the team will be largely in Detroit and Chatham territory. It is to be hoped that a team representative of the West will be sent, and one which will gain recognition in cricket circles in Toronto.

The following draft of a team would meet with a great deal of success, provided all can go. John Reeve, local secretary, is in Detroit arranging for it to-day.—J. Stewart, Windsor, bowler. Mr. Davis, Windsor, now on College eleven.

T. Jenner, Detroit. H. M. Grylls, Toronto. Bamford, Detroit, bowler. F. S. Biddow, Detroit, bowler. H. Johnson, Windsor. J. W. Kenny, Chatham. W. G. Richards, Chatham. I. L. Nichols, Chatham. R. Miller, Chatham. F. Dowseley, Chatham. N. G. Guthrie, Guelph, wicket keeper.

Both Mr. Davis and Mr. Guthrie are at present playing with the Combined College Eleven now in Toronto. Mr. Guthrie, against all Toronto, made 57 and is a splendid wicket keeper. Mr. Davis, of Windsor, is a fine bat and bowled well on the tour.

The Andes. The highest mountain in the world next to the Himalayas are the Andes of South America. In Bolivia twelve peaks of the Cordilleras de la Paz rise to over 20,000 feet.

Swindling Chinese Dead. A curious industry in China is the manufacture of mock money for offerings to the dead. The pieces are only half the size of the real coins, but the dead are supposed not to know the difference. The dummy coins are made of tin, hammered to the thickness of paper and stamped out to the size required.

A Grievous Collection. A French professor is the owner of a collection of 920 human heads, representing every known race of people on the globe.

A Liquor Cure. In Russia and Sweden dipsomanias when put under restraint are fed almost entirely on bread steeped in wine. They come to loathe the look and smell of liquor and generally become total abstainers.

Salt Bags. A bag of salt applied hot to the feet or any portion of the body is better for giving and keeping warmth than is the conventional brick or hot water bottle.

A Celestial Phenomenon. The record aurora borealis lasted for a week in August, 1859.

The Corn Record. The United States boasts of the world's record of having grown 5,200 million pounds' worth of corn and 2,500 millions' worth of wheat during the nineteenth century.

Smart Advertising Scheme. A novel advertising scheme was introduced by a merchant in Carthage. A series of prodigious hot tracks were painted leading from each side of the square to his establishment. The scheme worked to perfection, for everybody seemed curious enough to follow them to their destination.

A Russian Oil Well. At Baku, Russia, there is an immense oil well that "ebbs and flows" with the same regularity as do the ocean tides. It is believed to have some mysterious connection with the sea.

A Good Thing to Remember. A wet silk handkerchief tied without folding over the face is a complete security against suffocation from smoke. It permits free breathing and at the same time excludes the smoke from the lungs.

The Turtledove. In Sweden the turtledove is looked upon as sacred. The Swedes call it "God's bird" and "Noah's bird," from a notion that it is the same species of bird that the commander of the ark sent out to bring back tidings of a receding flood.

ROLFF HOUSE
 G. H. BENEDICT.

"My early return," he said, "is no doubt a surprise. The war had hardly broken out, however, before I resolved to take the first opportunity to reach home. Mr. Saybrook had constantly assured me in his letters that there could be no outbreak of war, so I had not been led to anticipate it. But when I found that I was really shut out from my native land in her hour of peril, and when I came to think what changes might occur during the progress of the war, all interest in my studies deserted me, and I could think of nothing but the ways and means to return home. I left Dresden and went to Hamburg and other Dutch ports, but could find no vessels going to America. I then went to France, as I had heard that occasionally an American privateer would avoid the British blockade, and run into port for repairs. I went to Calais, and after waiting there until I was almost discouraged, I was gladdened one day by learning that a schooner had escaped the blockade and run into the harbor, and was probably an American vessel. I took heart, and went on board, and found, to my joy, that it was an American privateer. I at once offered the captain to ship with him as a common sailor, and, as I was an American, he took me at once. On our return I was hurt in an engagement with a British brig, which accounts for my weak condition. But I shall get well if—"

He hesitated, as if somewhat fearful to repeat the slight that had occurred to him; and Mrs. Bruyn quickly replied: "I trust you will get well without any 'if.' Claude, you are young and of vigorous constitution, and a long and useful life should be yours."
 "But, my dear Mrs. Bruyn, I would not care to live a moment if the dream of happiness I have cherished should be rudely destroyed. I think it needs no words to tell how truly Rosa and I love each other. No one else can ever fill her place in my heart. I am alone in the world, without kith or kin; my friends seem to turn to enemies; those whom I trusted with implicit faith have proven false and tried to rob me of my inheritance; and if, now, the one dream of happiness that I have cherished above all others is to be ruthlessly shattered, I shall regret that the wound I received on board the Harry did not strike me dead at once."
 The young man spoke with much emotion, and his evident suffering and piteous, emaciated features, added to the apparent sincerity of his declaration. "You are sure you speak honestly, Claude?" asked Mrs. Bruyn.
 "As I live, I do," replied the young man, fervently.
 "I do not question the truth of your statement," continued the good lady; "but perhaps it is well to have an explanation of a matter that I confess has influenced my opinions to a certain extent. Not many months ago, Mr. Saybrook exhibited a letter from you that seemed to indicate that you had formed connections in Europe that hardly tender your present statements of your feelings toward Rosa sincere."
 The young man colored, but it was with indignation more than embarrassment.
 "Carl Crum has told me," he replied, "of the base use made of a mere phrase in a letter of mine, written in humorous reply to some of Mr. Saybrook's suggestions that I might have been involved in love affairs in Europe. I now see through his double-eyed duplicity and villainy. It was his purpose not only to rob me of my property and the only girl I have ever cared for, but to incite me to conduct that would destroy in my heart the pure love it cherished. Oh, woe as I am, if I had his here I would make him own his duplicity or take the consequences."
 "Do nothing rash, Claude," pleaded Mrs. Bruyn. "Public opinion is against you, and if you have been wronged, rely first on the law for justice, and do nothing to prejudice your cause."
 "And did you believe that I had as soon proved false and villainous, Rosa?" he asked, turning impetuously to the fair girl.
 "No, indeed, Claude," replied Rosa, with a frank and kindly tone that indicated her perfect confidence in him. "I did not doubt you for a moment, or believe there was anything in the letter that you could not readily explain. Mother can bear me witness in this. Yet where all was so dark and everything seemed conspiring against us, I could not explain your silence of your strange words even to my own mind, so I attempted no defence of you, but kept my belief in your good faith in my own heart."
 Claude folded her impetuously to his heart.
 "I knew it—I knew it," he exclaimed. "God bless you! The devotion of a lifetime will be too little reward for your faith in me, Rosa."
 "Say no more, Claude," answered Mrs. Bruyn, quietly separating the lovers. "I believe in your fidelity and goodness, and see through Mr. Saybrook's evil plans. But much wrong has been done, and it may be hard to right it. It is not advisable to prolong this interview. If you will receive a little advice from me, I will suggest a course that may lead to the evil that has been done being corrected."
 "Oh, most gladly," replied the young man.
 "Mr. Bruyn is deeply incensed at what he regards as your treacherous and recklessness," continued the lady, "and it will be difficult to reverse his opinion. Indeed, he looks upon you as hopelessly fallen from good. But although I fear for the result, I am compelled to suggest that you go to him and endeavor to explain all that seems wrong to him in your conduct. He will not approve of your resuming your friendship with Rosa unless you disavow his mind of the impression he has gained—no doubt chiefly through Mr. Saybrook's influence. It would be wrong for Rosa to disobey him, and hold communication with you clandestinely in anyway. I could not approve of such a course, and I cannot believe that she would so forget her duty. I have accompanied her here, because I thought it was necessary there should

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

"An explanation that would perhaps restore your future trouble. So far I am concerned, my dear Claude, I would willingly admit you to our home as the most welcome of guests and friends; but it is not my province to decide in this matter, and you will have to secure Mr. Bruyn's consent before again attempting to see or communicate with Rosa."
 The young man's head dropped.
 "This decision seems hard," he said. "I am fearful—but, no, I will do as you say. I am strong in my own sense of integrity; I may have been foolish, but criminal—never. I think all can be explained, and I will trust in Mr. Bruyn's justice and charity."
 He took early occasion to have an interview with Mr. Bruyn. The old farmer received him courteously, and only after the most earnest pleadings gave his consent to even hear his explanations. But this concession was of no benefit to the young man. The old fellow shut both his ears and his heart to his pleadings, and remained obdurate and unconvinced in spite of all the earnestness and eloquence with which Claude defended his conduct.
 "No, no, no," he said at last. "I tell you on this matter. You're none of the kind for my Rosa. She must marry a sensible, plain fellow, with no rattling notions about him. You don't care for her, and she's made up her mind to some one else. It will only make trouble for you to go to sparking her. I was a fool to allow it in the first place. Now, don't say anything more. I've had enough of it. You can never have her—let that end it. No, no, as good as a clubbing with me. If you can't let the first and stay away from here, you may get the second to help your understanding."
 Thus insultingly rebuffed, Claude turned away, and returned to his temporary home at old Carl Crum's utterly disappointed and miserable, and meditating a dozen expedients in his mind to restore his relations with Rosa.

CHAPTER XXX.
 Recognizing that he had a hard battle before him, Claude devoted himself heart and soul to the contest he had in hand. The thought of regaining his property, and taking revenge on the knavish lawyer, was some relief to his wounded feelings. There was balm in action, at least, and day and night he gave his time and thoughts to consultation with his lawyer and to details of the proposed suit. He did not rely alone on such legal talent as the little village afforded, but retained the services of an experienced and prominent lawyer from a neighboring town, who undertook to unravel the threads of villainy, which he was convinced from Claude's statements had been perpetrated by Andrew Saybrook.

 The name of this lawyer was Halsted. He was a short, keen, cool man whose sharp gray eyes and broad brow indicated unusual mental acuity. After a careful study of the situation, Mr. Halsted decided on his plan of campaign. He determined that it was necessary to undermine the enemy's defenses by counter-plots, and, if possible, to create a defection in his camp that would lead to a revelation of the methods by which the forgery of the deeds had been accomplished. Choosing his agents with keen judgment, he sounded every person who had in any way been employed by lawyer Saybrook, and was not long in getting a hint that the widow Grey would become a valuable witness if she was won over to their service. And this—alas for feminine constancy!—was no difficult matter. Lawyer Halsted, it happened, was a bachelor of considerable wealth. Though verging close on to sixty, he was still well preserved, and of a gallant and vivacious disposition not unlikely to impress the fancy of a susceptible and lonely widow like Mrs. Grey.
 Interviews were arranged, in which, little by little, the confidence of Mrs. Grey was gained, and step by step was learned from her every detail of the plot for the possession of Rolff House, which her sharp ears and eyes had enabled her to obtain, in spite of the secrecy with which the lawyer and his supposed friends had conducted their conferences.
 The first intimation that lawyer Saybrook had of the mine that had been arranged to be sprung under the very citadel of his defenses, was afforded by the retirement of the widow Grey from his house and service. She refused to give any explanations, and cajolments. The lawyer, in his desperation, went even so far as to lay his hand and fortune at her feet, but it was too late.
 Thus aroused, lawyer Saybrook put himself on his mettle to meet the enemy's plans. But the more he examined into the matter, the deeper and more dangerous he found the plans that had been laid for his destruction. The defenses he had imagined so impregnable had been undermined in a dozen places. Loh Sackett had been none too cautious in some of his statements as to the nature of his engagement with the lawyer, and witnesses ready to come forward and unfold the plot to rid Rolff House of the protection of Carl Crum and old Margaret. Moreover, the tools the lawyer had used as witnesses of his irregular papers had been tampered with, he found, and were not to be relied upon in case they were brought under the cross-questioning of a sharp lawyer.
 Logic which he would, lawyer Saybrook saw defeat and disgrace awaiting him, and the door of a felon's cell, to his fearful imagination, stood yawning to receive him. His confidence and shrewdness deserted him. He became demoralized and almost imbecile in spirit.

Their many other friends of other denominations were present. After a pleasant evening had been spent a good program, consisting of music and addresses, was listened to by the chief feature being a nicely worded address read by Mrs. W. P. MISS MABEL'S HERO

When Miss Mabel first dawned on the office, John Henry, instead of patronizing the crap game in the noon hour, bought two cream puffs and a salt pickle from Dago Charley.

John Henry, the senior partner, began sternly, "the letter to Coulter that I dictated to you yesterday afternoon is being acted on in the market this morning."

John Henry, the senior partner, began sternly, "the letter to Coulter that I dictated to you yesterday afternoon is being acted on in the market this morning."

"Oh, fudge," retorted John Henry slyly. "Here nothing! Why, Doredevil killed ten Indians and four cowboys for the sake of the girl he loved?"

That "The Girl I Left Behind Me" is a more strenuous tune and fitter for army use than Siegfried's song of the sword is not to be gainsaid.

John Henry was not the only attendant in the office who had fallen under the spell of Mabel Moorfield.

John Henry was an ardent wooer. No country school mistress ever received a more regular tribute of fruit, and no one in the office could induce John Henry to move as quickly as when he was on an errand for Miss Mabel.

A HOT WEATHER BREAKFAST

All experience goes to prove that a hot weather breakfast should be made of food that is comforting to the stomach, easily digested, readily absorbed by the system, and at the same time a true nourisher and builder of flesh, tissue and muscles.

Truth is the golden chain which links the terrestrial with the celestial, which sets the seal of heaven on the things of this earth and stamps them with immortality.

Do not despise an opportunity because it seems small. The way to make an opportunity grow is to take hold of it and use it.

Science, armed with the microscope, has established it a fact, and this conclusion renders obsolete the practice of treating Asthma, Catarrh and Bronchitis by stomach drugging or sprays, snuffs, etc.

First Young Lady (in a quarrel) - I wonder if I shall lose my looks, too, told the Greek music writer friend.

Dear Sirs - While in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes - so badly that I thought I would be disfigured for a couple of weeks.

The mother who would be horrified at the thought of letting her daughter wander away to a strange country without guide or counsel, yet permits her to enter that unknown land of womanhood without counsel or caution.

ELECTRICAL LEAKAGE.

The greatest dangers which threaten man are generally invisible to the victim, and among these none is more productive of distressing consequences than "electrical leakage."

The air you breathe places you in direct communication with the walls, windows or hearth of your room; if, owing to the manner in which they are constructed, they place you in electrical communication with the soil on which your house is built, an "earth return" is formed, and the electricity in man's condenser - the brain - is drawn out of the body.

Mad wasps manifest great ingenuity not only in building their nests, but in placing them in localities where they will not be injured by rain or predatory animals.

The gray buzzard is said to be the heaviest bird that flies, the young males when food is plentiful weighing nearly forty pounds.

The wasp, like the bee and almost every other insect, is infested with parasites. Wasps have been captured which had two or three dozen parasites clinging to their bodies.

The alligator never leaves fresh water, while the crocodile often goes to sea and in the West Indies has sometimes been found many miles from land, heading directly for an island, possibly out of sight.

The great emotional experiences of life are belittled by the same insistence upon the trivial. Life and love look into each other's eyes, a man and woman elect each other from all the world, but the joy of matrimony is ruffled by the details of the wedding, perhaps by family squabbles over flowers and gowns and invitations.

At the door, and the little human soul, overwhelmed with grief, appalled by the sudden opening of eternity before its eyes, yet fuses (there is no other word for it) over "mourning," over the width of the hem of the veil or the question of crape buttons or dull jet.

BOATS STOPPED BY DEAD FISH

Millions, Weighing 20 Pounds Each, Clog Big Canal at New Orleans.

Forced in by Storm—Situation is Serious, as a Pestilence is Threatened.

New Orleans, La., July 10.—Pestilence is threatening in Jefferson parish, along Harvey's canal, just across the river, because of a blockade of fish. The waterway is literally choked with them. They have died by the millions, and since Saturday night big gangs of Negroes have been at work, employed by manufacturers along the canal, pitchforking the dead fish out of the water and carting them away. The situation is as serious as an unpremeditated plague, where they have been suspended. The immense cypress plant of the Louisiana Cypress Lumber Co., employing several hundred hands, has been forced to close down. The atmosphere is polluted by the poison. Families living along Harvey's canal and in the neighborhood of the mill are fleeing from the place and seeking refuge on this side of the river.

Negroes and irresponsible persons have taken the dying fish from the water and brought them to the New Orleans market, where they have been sold for food. It is believed that thousands of the fish have been eaten in this city. It is greatly feared disease and pestilence will follow the plague fish. Physicians are warning their patients, and the situation at Harvey's canal grows more serious every hour.

This plague of fish—the buffalo—is unprecedented in its history. The canal is unique in the history of southern waters and with southern fish.

July 3 the strange phenomenon was first noticed to any extent. The canal suddenly became alive with the buffalo, full-grown ones, measuring 20 to 22 inches and weighing from 15 to 18 pounds.

The towboat Florence was making her way up the canal and encountered the fish. The wheel of the boat was clogged and it could not move. The Florence was compelled to run in to the bank and fish were piled upon each other. There was no end to them.

DIED BY MILLIONS.

Hundreds of people went to the canal to see the peculiar sight. Then on Friday evening some of the monster buffaloes were seen to turn up their white sides and to gasp for air and for fresh water.

They began to die by the thousands. Then the thousands soon went into the millions. The more that died the more the water became poisoned. It was the general theory that the fish had been driven into the canal from Barataria bay by the storm and the wind, pushing the salt water up after them. The brackish water came on up the canal and crowded them more and more.

There is a growing belief that a strange combination of influence has caused this unknown slaughter among the fish. The long drought caused the water in the canal to get very low. First of all, the heavy blows from Barataria raised the salt water clear up the length of Harvey's canal. The water has been fresh and the fish may have been worse for the fish than to have either of the waters straight. They seem to have been unable to survive the half salt and half sweet water.

Then the water lilies were killed by the water from the sea and the decayed vegetation poisoned the water. They may have had something to do with it, for practically all the lilies have been killed, and even those that are left are now fast fading away.

Small crabs are dying, and can be seen by the thousands crawling up on the dead carcasses of the fish. Even the snakes cannot live in the putrid waters, and many dead ones were seen yesterday.

The water in the canal, usually a muddy color, has turned an inky black, giving forth the poisonous odors that sicken man and beast alike.

FED PEPPER TO BLOODHOUNDS

Outlaw Tracy Again Gave his Pursuers the Slip Near Renton.

Discovered in Home of a Farmer, He Overheard his Would-be Captors.

Tracy's complete record to date is as follows:

June 9—Escaped with David Merrill from penitentiary in Salem, Ore., after killing three guards and murdering one.

June 10—Returned with companion to Salem, stole team of horses after stripping the owner of his clothing, and proceeded to Portland. Near Gervais, held up two members of pursuing party and took from them a buggy and horse.

June 11—Fired on pursuers at Gervais and drove them off.

June 12—Surrounded by militia, they broke through the line and escaped back to Portland's suburbs.

June 14—Stole two horses at point guns.

June 15—Compelled two men to row them across Columbia river.

June 17—Wounded a deputy sheriff in charge of pursuing party, crushing fresh horses and continued towards Alacenter.

June 23—Robbed a house at Alacenter.

June 28—Stole two horses but gave them back.

June 29—Escaped from posse which had cornered them.

July 1—Tracy killed Merrill 40 miles west of Tacoma, then rode through Olympia.

July 2—Tracy held up six men, crew of a launch; made two of them tie up the others and then take him in their launch. Tracy then shot and killed seven men since escaping from prison.

July 3—Abandoned launch and took to woods headed for Seattle, saying he would return to clean out a saloon there. Twice cornered by sheriff's posse, he killed four men, fatally injured two men and wounded two others; stole a horse after crushing its owner's head with the butt of his gun, and rode away. Entire militia of state ordered to mobilize to assist in search.

July 4—Five hundred armed men surrounded woods, with instructions to kill Tracy on sight.

July 6—Escaped from cordon. Terrorized a farmer into supplying him with food; forced a boy to row him across a river. Entered a farm house bound and gagged all but one man; made him pack up bundle of food and clothing, shaved himself and then made the man row him to a point several miles away.

July 6—Seen at Deception Pass in sail boat. Two steamers in chase.

July 7—Sheriff's posse, after chase of 125 miles, returned empty-handed to Seattle. Chase on Puget sound continued by revenue cutters and on land by militiamen and searchers for the $5,000 reward.

Seattle, Wash., July 9.—Harry Tracy the fugitive convict outlaw, has for the fourth time since his arrival at Meadow Point, escaped from the officers. Tracy was definitely located in the home of Charles Gerrels, one mile north of the town of Renton, at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

At 4:45 Deputy Sheriff Cook arrived with a fraction of the posse and advanced up the track towards the Gerrels home. Tracy stood in the rear of the premises and observed a conversation between one of the women inmates of the house, and two young men from Renton, and then the convict plunged into the brush and was lost to view.

When Tracy disappeared from the Gerrels home, the bloodhounds were hastily brought up from the rear, and burst in on a hot scent. Both dogs struck the trail down the stream, following it for a quarter of a mile and crossing the track only to double back and swim the river.

Half way between Cedar River and Burrows's boat house, both dogs ran into cayenne pepper sprinkled in the outlaw's retreating footsteps. Their nostrils were filled with the fiery substance, and fully ten minutes were lost in relieving the dogs so that they could again exercise their powers of smell.

Pressed to desperation, Tracy here made a circuit, headed due north and plunged into the outskirts of the lake where he finally succeeded in casting the scent. It was then dark and the guard returned to Renton with the dogs.

LOSS OF APETITE.

A person that has lost appetite has lost something besides—vitality, vigor, tone.

The way to recover appetite and all that goes with it is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla—that strengthens the stomach, perfects digestion and makes eating a pleasure.

Thousands take it for spring loss of appetite and everybody says there's nothing else so good as Hood's.
