Hens Tokio, July 3, 10.10 a. m.-The Vladiostok squadron eluded Vice-Admiral Kamimura's squadron, eastward of the Island of Tsu, on Friday night, in the darkness. A dazling rain and fog favored the Russian vessels. The Island, and the Japanese south of Tsu apart. The Russians bolted to the by Vice-Adm ral Kamimura. The latter chased them at full speed. The Japanese torpedo boats steamed ahead Japanese torpedo boats steamed anead and entered within the range of the Russian guns. The Russian vessels shelled the Japanese torpedo boats. This firing explains the cannonading heard on Tsu Island, and gave rise to the belief that a general engagement was im progress. Vice-Admiral Kamimura gained on the Russian ships, and was only five miles in the rear, when suddenly at 9 m. all the Russian suddenly at 9 p. m., all the Russian vessels extinguished their lights and disappeared in the darkness. At that time the Japeness torpedo boats were pressing the Russians who had been asing their searchlights. The torpedo

DECREASE IN HOGS

Stockraisers will go in more for cattle. There is very little difference in the number of cattle being prepared for the market this year in camparison with last, but as pasture is not as with last, but as pasture is not as with last, but as pasture is not as good, a larger acreage is required to feed them.

Sheep have not been popular with Kent farmers in the past years, scarcely any mutton being noticed on the market for some time, but with the exit of the hog, sheep will probably become more in evidence.

In regard to prices, stockmen say that the price paid for beeves is comparatively better than it was at this time last year, but that hogs are not profitable as heretofore. profitable as heretofore.

BALFOUR WILL NOT RESIGN

ply Closure - Attitude of the Liberals.

Do Not Want at the Present Time to Handle Reins Of Govern-

London, July 2 .- It is nine years ago to-day since the Conservatives entered on their long lease of office, Lord Salisbury having become Prime Minister for the third and last time, July 2, 1895. Lord Halsbury, the Lord High two squadrons met early in the even- | Chancellor, and Lord Ashbourne, the ing, the Russians being north of Iku Lord Chancellor of Ireland, are the only two ministers who hold the same They were then ten miles posts as they did then. In spite of incessant attacks on the Government in north-cast, when they were d'scovered | Parliament during the past week, and the difficulty of maintaining anything like normal majorities, there is no reason to believe that Premier Balfour has any present intention of ten-dering his resignation, for have the Liberal leaders at this moment any real desire to attempt to force him to take this step. Mr. Balfour recognizes that it is not in accord with strict parliamentary principles to transact the nation's business by means of the closure, as he proposes doing for the remainder of the session. But the Premier pointed out in the House of Commons yesterday that in view of the persistent obstruction tactics of the Opposition to all the Government's main legislation, there was no other course open to him. Mr. Balfour desires to remain in power at real desire to attempt to force him Balfour desires to remain in power at least until important pending ques-tions are settled, such as Tibet and the Russo-Japanese war, and he also is determined to carry through the largest domestic legislation promised in the King's speech, for instance, the Adien Bill and the bill to compensate owners of saloons for the depri-vation of their licenses when the Government reduces the number of such houses. The Government is not seek-ing to curtail the session of Parliament and does not expect an adjourn ment until late in August. The atti-tude of the Liberal leaders in the House of Commons, in desiring the re-tention of Mr. Balfour in power grows out of their opposition to Lord Spencer, the Liberal leader in the House of Lords, who, in case the Gov-ernment resigns, would naturally be selected to be the new Premier. More-over, they do not wish at the pres-ent time to undertake the manage-ment of some of the questions now conding.

A FELLOW-CITIZEN

The poise and skill of the leader of the Opposition and the fine edge of his polished blade were in evidence in the debate on the Haggart motion censuring the Government for withholding public documents to which Parliament was entitled for the proper 'consideration of matters to which they relate, and appeared to decided advantage when turned upon the Liberal leader's argument, says the Ottawa Citizen. What could be finer or more effective than his reply to to Sir . Wilfrid's complaint of criticism made upon his application of the words "foreigner" and "stranger" to Lord Dundonald and the public's insistence of its right to be a judge of the propriety of the premier's words! a final load of "My right hon. friend," said Mr. Borden, "must not forget that perhaps he is not always so ready to 'extend a courtesy of that kind to gentlemen on this side of the House When I stood up in my place during this session and stated that a certain word reported by Hansard as having been used by me had not been used by me and gave my word to the House to that effect, did I find my right hon, friend accepting that statement? No, I did not. My right hon, friend spoke in a rather discourteous way, and I was compelled to get proof from the Hansard office in support of that word of mine which I thought he might have accepted. Let my right hon, friend be not too sensitive when he is criticized himself. He has told us he is not sensitive to criticism, but at the first breath of strong criticism he uses very strong and very militant lan-

"He referred the other day to great many illustrations of the words 'stranger' and 'fore gner.' I do not doubt my right hon. friend's assurance as to the sense in which he intended these words to be used, but let me quote for him from that well and fountain of pure and undefiled English a few words that may be of service to him in interpreting the ordinary sense in which these words are used:

'Now, therefore, ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints.'

"I do not know any better illustration of the use of the words 'stranger' and 'foreigner' and 'fellow citizen,' and while I accept the right hon. gentleman's assurance, yet notwithstanding any assurance to the contrary from any quarter whatever, a man of the race and the birth of the Earl of Dundonald will always be regarded in Canada not as a foreign er' or a 'stranger,' but as a fellow citizen."

LORD KITCHENER'S INSUBORDIN-ATION.

In India Lord Kitchener is doing the sort of work that the Canadian dian Government would not permit Lord Dundonald to do in Canada. The great General has been reorganizing ing the Indian army. He finds many of its methods obsolete, and parts of the system particularly faulty. Lord Kitchener does not hesitate to con demn where, in his judgment, con demnation is merited. Indeed, he declares that a general must be able to detect and point out faults "but he adds that such criticism is useless unless he be able and ready to apply the remedy that is needed." It does not occur to Lord Kitchener the office of a general is merely to say flattering things to politicians and to be their pliant tool. We fear that the same spirit of fearless independence that our Ministers found to be intolerable in Lord Dundonald is cherished by that other soldier-Lord Kitchener. India, it is true, has not got responsible government, but there is a Minister in the Imperial House of Commons responsible for its affairs. Yet Lord Kitchener's criticisms and recommendations are laid respectfully before Parliament. They are, moreover, received without offense and acted upon. Now, if Lord Kitchener were in Canada, what would happen. First of all, his report would be suppressed. He would be told that it was simply a confidential communication to a Ministerial pigeon-hole. There it would remain until buried under the dust of ages, it was forgotten. But perhaps, Lord Kitchener might object treatment. That is not unlikely with a man of his spirit and courage. In that event we know precisely what would follow. The hero of the Soudan and of South Africa, the man whose genius and devotion have contributed more, perhaps, than any living Briton towards the stability of the Empire, would be told that here, under the British flag, he is a for- House. Minard's Lintment in the eigner, or a stranger; that he was to dragoon Canadians into his foolish way of thinking, and that he must be dismissed. Happily, that is not the way Great Britain treats her coldiers. So there is good hope for the reorganization and rehabilitation of the army, in India.-Mail and Em-

The Republicans have built their flatform and put Roosevelt on it But it is the first instance in the history of that party where the camildate was greater than the platform. The issue to-day is the man not the policy. Of this situation the Cleveland Plain Dealer says: "The candidate is Roosevelt. The platform is Roosevelt. The issue is Roosevelt. He willed it so and so it is. If he loses he alone will be responsible for the fature. If he wins it will be a personal triumph greater than achieved by any Republican president since the organization of the party."

this politics interfering with the militia?

It was not long ago a gentleman mear Toronto thought that (as an old officer and being at the time idle) I might suit or fit into some vacant militin position being qualified, holding the highest certificate required by the Imperial Forces, Suddenly he breaks off and says "What politics are you? I believe you are on the wrong side of the House. If so, any application would be fruitless. Does not this gentleman, who is a Grit, think that politics interfere with the Militis Force?

It is surprising to me how an Imperial officer consents to fill the position of G. O. C., unless they think that their duty is:—

1st. To give the Minister of Militia his advice as an expert which would include the promotion of all officers and unless anything deregatory as to their conduct is known, the promotion be not interfered with.

2nd. To send in an estimate of what the expenditure would be for what the expenditure would be for what was required. This of course, might be cut down by the Minister if necessary and the reason given for so doing, then some other plan might be devised.

3rd. In fact, no one interfering with him, except in the matter of expenditure, and anything that might be devised, 3rd. In fact, no one interfering with him, except in the matter of expenditure, and anything that might not be beneficial to the Dominion but not be beneficial to the not to any one party.

If they don't think something like the above I can't understand anyone accepting the position.

I remain.

Yours trule.

CHANGES OF A CENTURY. m's Hearts of Oak and Modern Sii in the British Navy—Ancient and Modern Broadsides.

We wonder what Nelson would have said if he could have looked a con-tury ahead and read in the daily paper a sentence such as this: "After the receipt of the intimation the the receipt of the intimation the Russian warships Varyag and Koreitz left the harbor and engaged the Japanese fleet at from six to eight miles distance," a piece of information which we read to-day without the least surprise.

In Nelson's time a gun which would fire a 68-lb. ball with any hope of hitting an enemy's ship a mile away was a thing to be wondered at, and, indeed, such monster weapons were rarely used. The dered at, and, indeed, such monster weapons were rarely used. The standard weapon carried by the largest ship of the line was a thirty-two pounder, and to make it effective the opposing ships preferred to get within pistol-range of each other before discharging their broadsides.

And yet, when Nelson was still alive and with his greatest honors unwon, it was seriously thought that the battleship of the period had touched finality in naval construction. "The size of our ship," wrote tion. "The size of our ship," wrote a great authority in 1800, "seems now to have nearly reached its maximum; for Nature herself in some measure fixes its limits. Timber, the growth of Nature, cannot be made to grow larger, and the very element in which our ships are to naviment in which our ships are to navigate has only certain depths that cannot be increased."

And then the writer proceeds to throw up his hands in amazement at a "ship of most extraordinary size which the French have lately built—with a keel 172 feet long and a tonnage of 2,850—an unwieldy monster pronounced to be entirely unit for service and which hath never been service and which hath never been out of harbor." But what a baby this leviathan would look to-day by the side of a London or Bulwark of much more than twice the length and four times the tonnage, which can force its way against wind and waves at a speed of well over twenty miles hour. Still, a first-rate ship of a century ago was a very fine vessel and, for the time, a splendid fighting machine, well worth spending a minute or two in picturing. Al-though called a "three-decker," she had, in fact, five decks, of which three carried her hundred or more

Along the whole length of her main deck on each side was a row of seventeen thirty-two pounders; the middle deck beneath carried seven-teen of these guns on each side, to-gether with two 8-inch guns, pointing their grim muzzles, like fellows above and below, through as many ports; and on the lower deck were twenty-eight thirty-two pounders and four 8-inch guns; while still deeper in the ship was the magazine containing about thirty-five tons egunpowder.

Thus we have a stately battleship showing over a hundred victous teeth to the enemy, and sure to give an excellent account of herself. Each of her ninety-six smaller guns fired 32-lb. ball propelled by a charge of 14-lbs. of powder, and a broadside would pour something like three-quarters of a ton of metal into the battleship of to-day, like the A battleship of to-day, like the Londen, carries only forty-six guns, but a single one of them can discharge in two shots as great a weight of metal as an entire broadside of Nelson's biggest ship. The 12-inch gun, of which each battle-ship carries four, despatches a projectile weighing 850 lbs. by means of a charge of 207 lbs. of condite. The shell has an extraper or see of the lowed the example of Harriet Martineau, who bequeathed her doctor ten pounds to see that her head was amputated before burial. Lady Burton directed that her heart should be pierced with a needle and her body submitted to a post-mortem examination before burial. Meyerbeer left instructions that his body should be left undisturbed ten days, that bells should be fast-ened to his feet, and that veins should be opened in his arms and legs.

Bishop Berkeley, Daniel O'Connell, Lord Lytton, Wilkie Collins and
Hans Anderson were other wellknown men who were apprehensive of premature burial, the last-named carrying in his pocket a note solemnly enjoining his friends to make certain that he was dead before he was buried.

Numerous instances of premature burials are to be found recorded in The Lancet. One of the quaintest of The Lancet. One of the quaintest of the earlier instances on record relates to Sir William Lindsay, who was brought to life on the very day for which his funeral had been fixed. His resuscitation was, at his own request, kept a profound secret, and the company assembled for the burial at the appointed time. After some delay, occasioned, as was supposed, by the non-arrival of the tlergyman, the mourners were terrified to see the knight, dressed in black, enter the doorway, leaning on the arm of the vicar of the parish. the black, enter the doorway, leaning on the arm of the vicar of the parish. After a short thanksgiving service for his recovery, Sir William Lindsay insisted upon the company sitting down to the repast that had been prepared for them, and presided over the carousal which, after the fashion of the seventeenth century, tollowed the dinner.

"There never was a time when peopl were more lacking in grace," said a dancing master. "A hostess nowadays," he added, "crowds her drawing room or ballroom with a large number of 'undesirables'-that is, people with no pretense to what is vulgarly called a stylish manner. The hostess i not to blame; circumstances compel her to invite these people. But at one time a hostess paid as much attention to her guests' accomplishments in de

Usually she does no more than nod in a way that looks shock ingly familiar. As for the men-well a quarter of a century ago one saw more masculine grace at a clerks' or shop assistants' 'cinderella' than our best bred men are capable of today!

But, after the example of the girls, who can wonder at it?" 通道! A Gladstone Anecdote: The sarcastic cheer is very commo and I recall one fatal example of its use. Mr. Gladstone was once draw ing very remarkable conclusions from some figures-an art in which he was

Gladstone stopped instantly and turned and looked with interest at the interrupter, who assuredly would at that moment have given a good deal to recall his words. Then he turned back to the speaker. "Sir," he said, "the honorable gentleman laughs." For a minute or two he quoted from memory a long string of figures proving the accuracy of what he had previously said. "The next time the honorable member laughs,' he continued in honeyed tones, "I would advise him-I would venture to counsel him-to ornament his laugh-to Building a House.

In building a house every layer of brick is termed a "course." It is usual to place in the walls upright and horito place in the walls upright and horizontal damp proof courses. These ought to be composed of some substance that water cannot penetrate. In this way the walls are mapped out into squares, and the accidental damping of any one square cannot affect the others. Unfortunately, some builders study economy unduly, and their damp proof courses act as effectively as a layer of wet sea sand. Those who intend having a house built should retend having a house built should regard the genuineness of the measures gard the genuineness of the measures adopted to prevent damp as of the very first importance.

THE AUSTRALIAN BARS KLONDYKE OF THE CLAY

BARMAIDS OF ADELAIDE LIKE A DROP

Prettier and More Stylish Than Young Wo Australia-How a Jewess "Planted" the and Spirit Circular's Sociologist

The expert inset Driaks.

The expert investigator and indefatigable sociologist who illuminates the pages of Bonfort's Wine and Spirit Circular with accounts of the bars of many peoples has reached the land of the laughing jackass in his travels. Adelaide pleases him. American beers may be bought there, but the stronger waters familiar to all observers of dead walls and bill boards are not to be had. In Adelaide the sociologist reached the decision that the barmaids there are, as a class, prettier and more stylish cision that the barmaids there are, as a class, prettier and more stylish than the young women in similar occupations in West Australia. In Adelaide the barmaids do not drink spirits, but "few will refuse a drop of fizz, for they not only like it, but to sell 'wine' redounds to the glory and profit of a barmaiden." The wages are law. The observer writes: Their boys (to them every male human being from 17 to 70 is spoken of as a "boy") suffer in proportion to provide flowers, gloves, theatre tickets, silk blouses, shoes and occasionally coats, costumes or bits of tickets, silk blouses, shoes and occasionally coats, costumes or bits of jewelry for their particular fancies among those fascinating females.

Even the earnest student from abroad is lured to extravagance. The Circular's hero spent an hour or two each evening in one bar, "swapping tales with the barmaids." Hear his story:

tales with the barmaids. Hear his story:

Of these one was a Jewess of great beauty, who always called me "Doctor," because, she said, I resembled one who had cured her mother of some dreadful eye frouble. Well, Rene asked me to take her to the circus on her next night off, and said she would bring her mother, "who adored the circus." We consented, and at the time fixed met Rene "and her mother mother." the circus." We consented, and at the time fixed met Rene "and her mother," and her father and married sister, and two brothers as well! Not bad for a plant, but we took our medicine smilingly, for cleverness ought always to be appreciated, even when it is displayed at one's expense. The philosopher victimized keeps his temper. The circus was a great success. One evening the "largest Bengal tiger in existence' mouthed his trainer, "the great Mexican Lion King," a native of Jamaica.

The management reported the trainer's injuries as "slight," but he died before morning, and in twenty-four hours the circus management had an offer of £1,000 for the tiger, which previous to this incident had been held at £200. Advertising pays.

been held at £200. Advertising pays. The circus is not unduly prosperous, but the "earnings almost paid their gas bills." But the business situation demands attention. The brewers con-trol most of the bars. Great in-ducements are necessary to obtain a footbold in the market. The outlook is by no means hopeless, however:
With a smooth, sound rye, not less than five years of age, a man versed in gentlemanly salesmanship (no

"hustler" would succeed here), with tact and a little patience might pick his brewer—as he would have practically no competition from similar lines—and with some missionary work of his own, and conversion—by tips—of a few of the most popular of barmaids, a trade would be created in very short order, with profit to the exporter from this side whose whiskey could be made to net him at least $1.50 per gallon in bond, f.o.b., Atlantic or Pacific ports.

Given a sound, mature rye, a good man, a liberal allowance, capital and patience enough to wait a reasonable man, a liberal allowance, capital and patience enough to wait a reasonable time for the adventure to become profitable, and we can get into that trade to stay; but success will be due mainly to eternal vigilance that no shipment be ever sent whose standard of quality, strength, color and flavor is not in all respects equal to that of the first shipment.

A pleasing future for the man versed in "gentlemanly salesmanship" to whom the Adelaide mission falls. "Adelaide, as to temperature, is delightful during the Antipodean autumn, winter and spring, say, from lightful during the Antipodean autumn, winter and spring, say, from May to September; but during the other seven months it is what Gen. Sherman called war!" The barmaids are "deft and smiling, and at times even frivolous"—but not so the thrifty Rene. Adelaide is "the city of churches," and the best Scotch and brandy is sold at 12c. a drink and pour your own poison.

There is a good band, the closing hours "are punctually observed." and Sundays are dry days, except in the big hotels. "Proprietors wax rich." for the "Australians are no believers in soft drinks."

Mrs. Alfred Lyttelton, the wife of the Colonial Secretary, has lately completed a drama which Mrs. Patcompleted a drama which Mrs. Patrick Campbell will produce at the Camden Theatre on June 6. It appears that the piece at present bears no title, but it may be called "The Thread of the Season." an appropriate phrase, in that it aptly describes the story. It is a society play in three acts, and deals with one of the social problems, namely, the arduous task imposed on dressmakers assistants during the season by fashionable dames. Mrs. Patrick Campbell will take the part of one of these humble workers, and she will wear the same dress throughout the performance. Among the other twenty-two speaking parts, however, there are numerous female characters who will wear dainty confections.

There is a district in Peterboro which is called Klondyke. That is its postal address, and it is aptly chosen, for the ancient city has found hidden in the earth on which it stands a treasure inestimable. It is not gold or diamonds, merely a common blue clay; but by the alchemy of modern science it is transmuted into the precious metal of our currency, and the wealth of the gold-fields has come to Peterboro without the hardships.

This ancient city has witnessed the making of England, and taken an active part throughout the centuries in events which stirred the nation's life. But it was virtually saved from obscurity in modern times by a foolish Marquis of Exeter, who, when it was proposed to run a great line of railway through Stamford, set his face against such a desecration of his broad acres. Peterboro had no such prejudices, and it gained what Stamford lost, and became a busy centre of trade. Two thousand railwaymen live in Peterboro at this day in a colony of their own, and, with the aptness for nomenclature which seems native to the district, it has been called New England.

But even better fortune was in store for the city. In the regions round about Oxford clay approaches the surface, and lies in great beds covering a wide area. It is grey and blue in shade, and has a certain oiliness, as of shale. Over it a layer of plastic clay was found, which was made into bricks, and lumps of this substance appear in the Oxford clay, giving the semblance of knots in wood. So at this day hole where made into bricks, and lumps of this substance appear in the Oxford clay, giving the semblance of knots in wood. So at this day a hole whence the clay is out is a "knot-hole."

Fletton, on the outskirts of the clay fields, and "Fletton" is the tradoname of the Peterboro brick. The clay deposits are literally inexhaustible. Their superficial area is of many square miles, and the depth varies, but is always great. Depths of 115 feet of clay have been proved, and the local feeling is that men may dig for ever in these regions, and still find the pay dirt. It is soft and easily workable; the oil in it facilitates combustion, and lessens the coal bill in firing; it can be made by the dry process, very simply and ex-coal bill in firing; it can be made by the dry process, very simply and expeditiously. The London stock brick, so called, is made laboriously, and is weather-dried; and the process is slow. The Peterboro brick is made more cheaply, with less labor, and has the advantage of being absolutely true and regular in shape, so that setting can be done more quickly.

About 20 years ago machinery to deal with this clay came into use, and Peterboro has grown because of the possibilities thus opened out. To-day there are some 30 brickyards in the district, and 2,000 men are employed in the industry. Klondyke is the name of the newly built district in which many of them live. Eighty tall smoke shafts raise their heads, and if they were set on end they would ascend over two miles into the sky. One of them alone contains sky. One of them alone contains 140,000 bricks, and they stand to all travelers in the east as an indication and advertisement of the astonishing growth of an industry which now commands an invested capital of a million sterling.

Estimates of the product of this industry vary, and it is impossible to decide between them. One puts the annual produce of the 30 yards at 500,000,000 bricks, or a million and a half a day; others say that the produce is probably $00,000,000 bricks, and that 500,000,000 of them go to the London market alone. For the new War Office in Whitehall 25,-000,000 of these bricks have bee

The work is very simple and easily described. The clay makes an uninterrupted and rapid process from the described. The clay makes an uninterrupted and rapid process from the knot-holes to the wagons in the railway sidings at the doors of the kilns. In many yards the steam digger tears the clay from the beds 150 pounds at a time; the filled trucks are drawn by power to the mill, where the clay arrives in soft lumps. One steam digger does the work of twelve men; each of the machines for manufacture does the work of hundreds of men. No hand touching it, the clay is tipped into a mill, where it is reduced to powder; then it passes by an endless traveling belt to the floor above the presses, where it falls into the hoppers of the machines. The mould is filled, a pressure of 100 tons is applied, and each revolution of the machine produces one or more bricks, truly and regularly shaped. In this way a machine makes iron 30,000 to 50,000 bricks a week. Thence they pass to the kilns, which hold some 350,000 to 400,000 bricks for the firing. Twenty days pass in this delicate process, and each brick loses in that time two pounds in weight.

And thus the work goes on contin-

And thus the work goes on continuously, and Peterboro now claims to have the busiest and biggest brickfield in the world.

Nor is this merely a passing boom. One acre of clay 100 feet deep will yield 80,000,000 bricks; so that at the higher estimate only ten acres of clay are consumed in a year. There is clay are consumed in a year. There is clay enough to serve many generations, and enhance Peterboro's prosperity. Having made great progress in the last two decades, the clay Klondyke of the Fens looks forward confidently to a bright and smiling future.—London Chronicle.

MAKES WEAK STOMACHS STRONG

Fashions among the native tribes of South Africa are thus described by a recent writer: "During one season the people are all wearing safety pins as earrings; the next season no one will look at them, for pins are 'out' and buttons are 'in.' In one tribe blue spotted cotton handkerchiefs are all the rage, but fifty miles away no one will look at such things—they want cotton shirts. The only universal ornament, perhaps, consists in beadwork. Some tribes, such as the Fingoes and Zulus, take to beadwork more than others; the one thing they are all consistent in is a strangely good taste for color combination. They never indulge in a combination of gaudy colors, never affect an inharmonious color scheme thus bearing out Ruskin's statement that bad taste in color does not arise in people who are left to themselves and nature." Hairdressing is a prodigious business among them. The process is assisted by a liberal use of red clay, and as the perfected work of art is expected to last a month the head is permitted to rest on the nape of the neck only when the owner sleeps.

Berlin Through English Speciacles. An Englishman writes of Berlin: "It is the only modern city I know of that has managed to escape looking artificial. The labor of building greater Berlin has been most dexterously hidden. There is very little of the deadly uniformity, the Euclidian lines, the prosaic precision, one notices in New York. Berlin is something considerably better than a mere chessboard of brick and stone and mortar. The streets have a curved and enticing spaciousless; they are shaded with avenues of trees, faultlessly asphalted and clean with a cleanliness surpassing that of Paris. The architecture is rather too florid for English tastes, but for all that de-cidedly effective, and a drive from Un-ing-And There Are Other It may not be generally known that there is at the present time a regular traffic in the selling and buying of human skin, said a surgeon in one of the big hospitals to a writer in Tit-Bits. We have on our books the names and addresses of many men and women on whom we can rely for several square inches of cuticle when the necessity arises. These patients, if one may call them so, are by no means among the peor so, are by no means among the peor and destitute, as might perhaps, he supposed, but are people eccupying an averagely high niche in society, young and, of course, absolutely healthy.

young and, of course, absolutely healthy.

There is one young lady from whom we have bought from time to time over £200 worth of cuticle, and who manages to make a very respectable income by disposing of her fair skin, for she supplies other surgeons besides ourselves.

Only the other day we had to perform an operation on the throat of a young and beautiful leader of society, which was bound to leave an ugly scar unless we could obtain three square inches of absolutely healthy cuticle. Without our knowledge our patient advertised in a medical paper for the required amount of skin, offering £20 per square inch. She received between 400 to 500 replies from men and women in all classes of life, and, for men in all classes of life, and, for-tunately, brought them to me to select from.

Curiously enough I had not opened Curiously enough I had not opened half a dozen before I recognized the handwriting of the young lady from whom we had already obtained so much cuticle, and I at once advised our patient to accept her offer, which she did. The operation of skin-grafting was a perfect success, and no one, to look at the fair throat of the beautiful woman we had onerated on, would believe that man and woman on our books before securing the needful quantity of cuticle. A month ago a young man was brought into the hospital with half his face terribly scalded. When it was healed we knew there would be a very disfiguring scar unless skingrafting was resorted to, and although the patient was far too poor to pay for the tissue, we were fortunately able to draw on a special fund which provides for such cases. Six of our regular "cuticle merchants" were summoned, and from the arms of each we took a certain amount of skin, the half-dozen supplying sufficient to cover the wound left on the youth's cheek by the left on the youth's cheek by the lad's cheek has been built up with the skin obtained from six difman brought in who had met with a curious accident, whereby he had lost his left eyelid. The eyeball, of course, was exposed, and besides being very unsightly caused the patient considerable pain.

The work of grafting an eyelid is not easy and is very seldom attempted in England. However, Dr. Toeswall a well-known ever species.

Tosswell, a well-known eye specia ist in the west of England, determined to make the attempt, an taking various minute portions taking various minute portions of skin from the patient's arm stitched them to what remained of the eye-lid. The operation was a fearfully painful one, but the patient stood it excellently, and in eight weeks' time sufficient skin had been grafted to enable the sufferer to close and open his eye with considerable facilopen his eye with considerable facil-ity.

To give a few inches of skin does not require very much courage—the idea being far worse than the actual cutting. Besides, there is no object-ion to the victim being placed under the influence of ether if desired, the titch curiously enough it is betthe influence of ether it desired, though, curiously enough, it is better that the patient on whom the flesh tissue is to be grafted should be operated on while awake. The after-effects amount to very little, the place from which the skin has been taken being about as sore as a vaccination mark immediately after the operation.

Of course, some patients who enter the hospital for the purpose of undergoing skin-grafting have many friends who are only too willing to supply the needful material, and when they are healthy we allow them to make the sacrifice. No one, however, need ever find any difficulty in obtaining as much cuticle as he or she requires so long as they can pay for it, for there are thousands of people who would gladly part with as much skin as is consistent with safety at prices as low as one shilling the square inch.

Sometimes, of course, the necessary amount of fiesh tissue required cannot be obtained from one person, and there have been occasions when we have had to requisition every man and woman on our books before man and woman on our books before scald. Sometimes, of course, we can obtain the skin from the patient him-self. I remember such a case when I was in attendance at the Exeter Eye Infirmary. There was a young man brought in who had met with a

Our Ancestors.

Our Ancestors.

For the benefit of those who may feel "exclusive," or "stuck up," or who prate about blue blood, etc., it will be well to remember that if we go back but twenty generations, or 700 years, each one of us has 1,084,576 ancestors, and is related more or less closely to at least 270,000,000 of our fellows.

Going back but a couple of hundred years further, and tracing down our genealogy, we should find that we have more cousins than there are people in the world, and that on the basis of but two children per family. The discrepancy is accounted for by the fact that there have been so many cousins as there are people in the world to-day, but are related to a great number many times over.

The Primrose League in England is making preparations to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of Disraeli's birth on Dec. 21.

Brady, the author of the version of "Come Back to Erin," which served as Ireland's parting message to the King and Queen, combines the rather unusual qualities of the Judge and the skilled musicians. He is County Court Judge for the county Tyrone, and still enjoys the privilege of practising at the Munster Bar, though he is a Judge. His ancestor was that Rev. Nicholas Brady, Chaplian of William III. and Queen Anne, who wrote the metrical version of the Psalms, which created no small controversy in their time. Some Tories regarded them as being too poetical, while Dean Swift sneered at them. Sir Francis Brady's Baronetcy is of Mr. Gladstone's creation4 The title was conferred in 1869 on the present Baronet's father, Sir Maziere Brady, who was Liberal Lord Chancellor of Ireland under three Administrations between 1846 and 1866—or about eighteen years in all. years in all.

Valuable Romney Portrait.

Rumor is busy in the haunts of English picture dealers with the story of another Romney "find." 7

It appears that at an "out" sale in a Midland county a few days ago a very fine Romney "Portrait of a Lady" was bought under the hammer for less than £100, and that at what the fraternity calls "the settlement" it was carried off for about £300 to £400 by the man who had the best-filled purse. Valuable Ronney Portrait.

£300 to £400 by the man who had the best-filled purse.

The portrait is said to be a very beautiful one, and worth anything from £5,000 upwards. It need hardly be said that if a genuine Romney portrait is not worth more than £100 it is worth nothing, and that if it is a fine example of the master's work £5,000 would be a commercial value. There can be no doubt that there are many fine portraits by the early English artists hidden away in obscure country houses; the one great difficulty is to know where to find them.

THE BRITISH SOLDIER. onality, Religion and Pre

The annual report on the British army, says The London Express, forms an elaborate statistical guide to the numerical strength, the nationality, the religious beliefs, the progress, and condition of recruiting of the British army. The report is only for the first nine months of 1903, because the decision of the Secretary for War that it should be rendered annually in future as from Oct. 1, instead of Jan. 1.

For the regular army the number of recruits enlisted in the period under review was 29,824, and for the militia 25,774, these figures showing a large diminution on the numbers in the corresponding period of previous years.

the corresponding period of previous years.

The falling off, however, says the Inspector-General of Recruiting, is easily explained. At the commencement of the year, in consequence of the special recruiting for the mounted corps during the war, practically all these corps were very largely in excess of the establishment. For this reason recruiting has been either partially or wholly suspended in the case of these corps during the whole period covered by the report.

The order that no recruit was in future to be accepted who could not produce a satisfactory reference as to his character and antecedents, also resulted in a diminution of numbers, and in March last year the standards of height for recruits in certain corps were materially raised.

Notwithstanding these restrictions, the regular army was on Oct. 1, 1903, 6,486 above the normal establishment, the figures being:

ishment, the figures being: Actual strength...........292,411 Normal establishment.........235,928 .. 292.411

During the year some concessions have been made, the general tendency of which is to improve the position of the soldier. For instance, a third shirt is now supplied as part of the free kit of necessaries to every soldier.

Much is expected from the increase

Much is expected from the increase in daily pay, which took effect for the rank and file on April 1.

Arrangements have also been made for the free provision of artificial teeth in the case of soldiers who have incurred loss of teeth directly attributable to active service. The services of the two dentists experimentally employed in London and Alder ally employed in London and Aldershot have been continued for a further period. The results of the experiment have been such as to lead to the extension of the scheme, and an additional number of dentists have been appointed.

How preponderating is the representation of England in the British army is shown by the following

 The percentage of deserters in 1903 among the regulars was 8.2. The Inspector-General of Recruiting regards this proportion as still too high, though it is hoped that it will be reduced as a result of the character system for recruits.

Florence Nightingale. Miss Florence Nightingale, who re-cently celebrated the eighty-fourth anniversary of her birth, received many congratulatory telegrams and many congratulatory telegrams and messages, and the number of callers at 10 South street, Park lane, London, was larger than usual. Miss Nightingale continues to enjoy fairly good health and to take active interest in works of charity. She is the daughter of the late Mr. W. E. Nightingale, a Hampshire gentleman. She had scarcely landed in the Crimea with her little band of nurses before hundreds of wounded men were brought if from the famous fight at Balaclava, and a little later thousands more from Inkerman. thousands more from Inkerman. Nothing was ready, everything was to be done, and it was her task and her triumph to bring order out of a her triumph to bring order out of a chaos of misery. At a dinner party soon after the return of the troops to England Lord Stratford suggested that everyone present should write on a piece of paper the name of the person whose Crimean reputation would endure longest. When the otes came to be examined it was found that not a single soldier had received a single vote. Every paper bore the same two words—Florence Nightingale.

Past Shirt Making. During a recent visit made by an English social reformer to a shirt factory the foreman started a piece of cloth on the rounds and made it come out a faished shirt in just six and one-half ainutes. Seven girls worked on the shirt, One maching made 16,300 auttonholes in a day or twenty-citt a minute. In tenhours ir the shop a man can cut 250 dozen, or 3,000 chirts.

Millions Unclaimed. A fortune of £3,000,000 awaits those who can prove that they are the lawful descendants of Major Sin-clair, of the 12th Foot (1st Battal-ion of the Seaforth Highlanders), who died 93 years ago.

Major Sinclair, it is believed, was a member of a well-known family at Wick. At an early age he entered the army, and accompanied his regi-ment to India. He married there, and had one daughter, who was sent home to Wick, and who married a farmer of that town, also surnamed Sinclair Major Sinclair had an adventurous career in the East, and was killed in a small engagement. His estate was never claimed, and, accumulating for over ninety years, has now reached the value of £3,000,000. An Edinburgh firm of lawyers have ecently made investigations, and, if they succeed in tracing the somewhat numerous descendants, each heir, it is expected, will receive a legacy of about £65,000.

Carlyle on Spencer.

A prominent English statesman when a boy at school was taken by his father to see Carlyle and was bidden to treasure in the depths of his soul the words of wisdom which would fall from the great man. At first Carlyle was tacitum, and the boy, by way of opening the conversation suitably, said: "I have seen two philosophers to-day, for as we two philosophers to-day, for as we came along papa pointed out Mr. Herbert Spencer in a bush." With majestic emphasis Carlyle replied: "And have ye seen Herbert Spencer, laddie? Then ye've seen the most unending ass in Christendom." It is seldom the case that the lawyer can not make out a case

CHINA AND GLASSWARE.

A Good Deal Depends Upon the Wa: They Are Washed, There is nothing which delights the heart of the housewife more than pretty china, sparkling glass and bright silver pieces for the dinner table. It is not considered necessary to have all the pieces match, and if collected whenever opportunity is offered one will scarcely miss what they cost Bowls and sauce dishes in many pret ty shapes may be obtained in plain tableware or beautifully decorated.

The preservation of decorated china The preservation of decorated china depends a great deal upon the way it is washed. This task is quickly accomplished, and if the proper utensils are provided it is not a disagreeable one. Tin dishpans wear out so quick-ly that it seems a waste of money to buy them. Galvanized iron is hard to keep clean, while granite ware seems to be the perfect material for the purpose. Two pans are needed, one for washing, the other for rinsing, and a larger tray—a rack is better—should be provided for draining.

Use water that is as hot as the hands can bear comfortably and add enough powdered soap to make a good suds. Have a clean dishcloth or mop and all the clean, dry towels necessary. Wash the glasses first, dip them in the pan of rinsing water and dry immediately Then wasl and dry the silver, after that the china cups, saucers, plates and larger dishes in the order named. Silverware that is treated in this way will be kept so bright that it will not be necessary to use the silver polish oftener than once in two weeks.—Chi-

DUST IS DANGEROUS.

Be Careful How You Send It Flying About the House.

Whether the bacilli that cause tuberulosis in the human being are the same as those which cause it in other warm blooded animals and even fish or whether they merely change their appearance with their environment is a question for the bacteriological ex-pert. That we may become infected from other animals has not the vita interest that the undoubted fact has that we can and do become infected by germs that other men carry abou and that the home, the place where we take refuge from the ills of life, is precisely where this dread disease at-tacks us.

Inside the four walls of our house is where these deadly germs are im-planted, are nurtured and bring forth their harvest. It is at home we must begin to defend ourselves. It is the part of wisdom to do away with dust catching draperies and carpets. Have the rugs shaken and beaten out of doors. If you must have carpets sweep them with wet tea leaves sprin kled on them. Wipe the furniture with a moist cloth; don't firt the dust about with a bunch of feathers on a stick Dust is dangerous. Remember that. Better to have some critic write 'Sloven" in the dust upon the mantel piece than cloud the air with it and poison your whole family. - Every-body's Magazine.

woman who leads a very active life has a theory that the preservation of a good figure depends to some extent on the manner of walking. Many people, she says, as they advance in years allow themselves to walk heavily and vithout elasticity, so that the whole weight rests on the lower part of the limbs at every step, the only effect of exercise being weariness of the legs and feet. Instead of this the body should be held erect and poised so as to have a perfect balance. In this way the muscles are braced and strengthered throughout the lunes must of me. ened throughout, the lungs must of necessity be well expanded, and it seems quite reasonable to suppose that the tendency to increase the weight may be checked. At all events a lighter step and a brisker and more enjoyable man-ner of walking can be kept up, and that in itself is a very great gain.

A TOOTHPICK BOMB.

Here is the way to make a simple apparatus out of which you can get a lot of sport: Select five toothpicks. They must be as long as you can find and quite straight and without any im-

Lay two crosswise on the table. Lay a third one on top of these two in such a way that it will divide the cross formed by the first two into equal

Then adjust the two remaining tooth picks across the ends of the others in such a way that the complete arrangements shall be in the form as shown in Fig. A of the picture, where the toothpicks are depicted as resting across the foot of an inverted tumbler. Now you must make the figure of the little demon. Make the head of kneaded breadcrumbs or of wax. The body is made of a small cork. The limbs are made of toothpicks or matches whittled into the shapes shown in

Now light a match and set fire to one end of the apparatus. When the fire burns to the point where the toothpicks are braced against each other the whole thing will fly apart with the effect of a little infernal machine and the figure will go hurtling into the air. If you do not join your little demon together too tightly it will fly to pieces, too, when the crash comes, as shown in Fig. D.

REAL BRAVERY.

Boy Who Did Not Cry For Every Bump and Bruise He Got.

When Morton was a little boy his father and mother paid little attention to his bumps and bruises, and so he learned not to mind them himself.

One day, when he was five years old, he was playing with his dearest friend, Wilfred, across the street. Morton was at the head of the back stairs—a long, steep flight—and somehow he lost his balance and down he tumbled from top

Hearing the noise and the screams of the other children, W.fred's mother and a neighbor who was there, together with Ann, the kitchen girl, rushed to the spot. Morton reached the foot of the stairs, and, turning to look at the way by which he had come, he said cheerily:

"That was quite a fall, wasn't it?" On an earlier occasion Morton displayed even greater bravery and endurance. He was on a visit to an uncle with his father and mother, and they had been for a drive in his uncle's carriage. The small boy wanted a longer ride, and the coachman, who had takes a fancy to the lad, said that he might ride round to the stable and that he would bring him home when he came So Morton jumped in again, happy enough. The coachman gave the door a hang. Alas, one of the little hands chanced to be right in the way of that door! Nobody saw it, but they heard a sudden cry of pain. When they turned the little fellow's lip was quivering, but not even a whimper did he make.
"That was my thumb!" he remarked, holding it up to view. Of course everybody was sorry, for they all knew how such an injury hurts; but, although it was enough to cause the loss of the nail, there was never any further ado about it.—Youth's Companion.

HAVE "WEATHER SENSE." Bushmen Have Gift of Prophecy as to Seasons.

One of the most remarkable in-stances of science learning from sav-agery and instinct is that which is agery and instinct is that which is of everyday occurrence in Australia. The Australian natives are expert weather prophets. It is a gift that can hardly be called instinct, inasmuch as they form their judgment from a thousand and one signs about them, such as the average white would not notice. The appearance of the trees, the length of the stalk of certain reeds, the actions and doings of native animals, insects reptiles and fish; in short, a thousand and one signs, the purport of which they have learned by long centuries of observation, constitute their stock in trade as weather protheir stock in trade as weather pro-

Years ago, in the days of the old Botany Bay settlement, the English learned to appreciate the "weather sense" of the natives, and later, when the colony became civilized and weather stations were established here and there over the country, the hest native weather prophets were best native weather prophets were employed as members of the staff. Many stories are related of their wonderful powers of foresight. In Australia the conditions are such that it would be desirable if the meteorologists could foretell the wea-ther six to eight months in advance, something which no weather forecast-er is able to accomplish, twenty-four hours being the longest period at which he can or will venture a fore-

But the native weather doctors do not hesitate to predict what will occur six months to a year ahead, and, what is most remarkable, they hit it correctly more often than one would expect.

There is a story current that several years ago the sheep farmers and winemakers in a certain quarter of REMEDY. The uniform success of this remedy winemakers in a certain quarter of Australia were much wrought up, thinking the year would be followed by a severe drought.

The Weather Bureau men held the same opinion, but would not, of course, venture any prognostications so far ahead. Yet, while all were confident that the next year would bring death to the herds and flocks, an old native weather prophet attached to the station shook his head, declaring that he had serious doubts of such a thing happening.

saying he was going to consult the no one knew, but at the end of the month he returned, declaring that the white men were all fools and that, instead of drought, the next season would be unusually rainy. No All Drugg'sts will refund your money if you are not satisfied after using Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In dry, arid countries like Australia it is oftentimes easier to fore-cast weather than in others. Plant life has adapted itself to the condi-tions, and by studying their growth from year to year one might possib-ly in time learn the significance of the short or long growth of plants.

Doubtless, after leaving the station the old weather prophet went direct

Puns and Promotions.

Canon Melville, who died the other Canon Melville, who died the other day in his ninety-second year, owed his earliest promotion to a pun, affirms a London paper. When the late Earl of Dudley, who knew Mr. Melville sufficiently to remember that his Christian name was David, had a living at his disposal, he received a letter containing only the words, "Lord, remember David." The Earl's "Lord, remember David." The Earl's reply was no less terse and Scriptural: "Thou art the man!" Perhaps the earliest instance of ecclesiastical promotion won by a pun is that of a curate named Joseph, who was prompted by Swift to take this text for a sermon preached in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, before the Viceroy, "Butler," the Duke of Ormond: "Yet did not the chief butler remember Joseph, but forgat him." The Rev. Dr. Mountain, who was the son of a beggar, owed nearly every step of his successive promotions in great part to his facetiousness, and won the last step of all by a single jest. When he was consulted, as Bishop of Durham, by George II. as to the fittest person to fill the vacant archiespiscopal see of York he replied: "Sir, hadst thou faith as a grain of mustard seed thou wouldst say to this Mountain (dramatically (o. 1-645 a.m. No. 2-12.23 p m 3-1.07 p m. 4-11.06 p.m 13-1.25 p.m. 116-2.25 a.m 115-7.03 p.m. 6-1.32 a.m 9-1.18 a.m. 8-2.49 p m The Wabash is the short and true route rom Chattam to the Great, World's Fair, replied: "Sir, hadst thou faith as a grain of mustard seed thou wouldst say to this Mountain (dramatically striking his breast), "Be thou removed and cast, into this sea (see)." That George II, should so understand and appreciate the joke as to accept its suggestion is perhaps the strangest part of the story.

He Did Not Bite.

There is a new London story about Charles Darwin.

"Two English boys," said Miss Leiter, "being friends of Darwin, thought one day that they would play & joke on him. They caught a butterfly, a grasshopper, a beetle and a centipede, and out of these creatures they made a strange, composite insect. They took the centipede's body, the butterfly's wings, the grasshopper's legs and the beetle's head, and they glued them together carefully. Then, with their new bug in a box, they knocked at Darwin's door.

"We've caught this bug in a field,' they said. 'Can you tell us what kind of a bug it is, sir?'

"Darwin looked at the bug and them he looked at the boys. He smiled slightly.

"Did it hum when you caught it?' he asked. There is a new London story about

The baby hat made of lace ruffles has been so much copied in cheap materials that it will not be worn this summer by smart women. In its place are semi-French sailor hats of shirred tulle lace and net combined with bands of tiny roses and French satin straw. These come with an accentuated roll which is greater on one side to allow for a feather, which is fastened under the brim. In some cases this feather passes over the crown and is then run Thinking perhaps they will cure Catarrh,—but no one ever heard of a genuine cure following such senseless treatments. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wright returned last weak from a trip to the World's Fair at St. Louis, and are spending a few days with relatives in town before taking up their residence in Wallaceburg.

The annual picnic of Christ Church S. S. will be held to-morrow, Tuesday, in Jeffs' grove. Conveyances will leave the church at 1.30 p. m., returning will leave the grounds about 7.30.

A large number attended the fireworks here on Thursday night of last week, and all declared they were the best ever seen in this section of the country.

Dresdenites helped other towns celebrate on July 1st. Numbers took in the sports at Petrolea and Wallaceburg, the bowlers competed in the unfinished tournament in Chatham, and others visited in various other points for the day.

Ninety-one pupils wrote on the examinations held here last week—the largest number on record for the Dresden school. Mr. MacPherson, of Wallaceburg, conducted the exams.

THE CHATHAM DAILY PLANET

MACEDONIAN SO

The Insurgents Use Tacties Like Those of Our Indians, In Macedonia the insurgent bands Their scouting formation is more like that of American Indians than any-ten feet apart. Thus it is difficult to perceive a band's approach from the front, only the leader being visible. First goes a scout several hundred yards in advance of the first bandsman. Should he scent danger he utters the cry of a night bird common in Macedonia. When the main band hears this cry, each man throws himself flat on the ground, with his rifle in a post-passed, the scout uttters another cry, and the band rises and marches on.

Most complicated are the signals that must be exchanged between meeting bands. These signals are changed often, so that Turkish spies may not learn them, and it sometimes takes five minutes to exchange them. They consist of a code of taps on the gun barrel with a stone. Such a tap may be heard with a stone. Such a tap may be heard almost a mile of a still night. Thus after the leaders or scouts of the approaching bands have exchanged owl hoots one may tap his barrel three owl noots one may tap his barrel three sharp raps. The other answers with four raps at intervals, followed by four quick raps. Then each man advances a certain distance, when the first leader raps ten sharp raps, and the second answers with three sharp raps, after which each advances again. The signals are continued until the men meet, when if the bandsmen do not recognize each other by face they

The gun taps are also used by the scouts. After the first alarm he may give three taps, denoting the approach of bashi bazouks. Two taps may mean regulars and five taps peaceful shepherds. Seven taps may tell the band that a company is approaching, eight a battalion, and three sharp taps with two intervals may mean "Get your bombs ready. We are surrounded." Then each bandsman utters a prayer and prepares for a desperate fight.— New York Press.

Jack McQuestion, who runs a farm at Forty Mile, on the Yukon river, in Alaska, has the most remarkable farm team on the American continent. It is nothing less than a pair of four-yearold moose, captured while young, bro-ken to the harness and trained to serve as draft animals. McQuestion was an early stampeder into the Klos-dike, but he did not succeed in locating any valuable claims, and the high price of farm and garden produce in the country induced him to abandon pros-pecting and take to farming instead. So he located on the Yukon river in American territory and the first season rais ed a good crop of garden truck, which brought him fancy prices. But he was considerably handicapped in his operations by not having any horses or other farm animals. He had heard that moose could be successfully tamed, so in the following spring he took to the hills and captured a pair of moose calves. When the calves were a year old, they were quite tame, and he ceeded in getting them to work in harness, first singly and then together. That year he did some work with them, increasing the amount from year to year as they grew older, until now he has in them a valuable pair of farm animals. They are as strong as cattle and much more active as well as more controllable.-Chicago Record-Herald.

Once when I was flying over Paris a rope running from the long frame of the "engine room," suspended, got caught in the pulley, fortunately in the long frame, not in the "engine room." I walked along the frame, which is about three inches wide, sideways, leaned down, fixed the pulley and got back to my seat in four or five min-utes. How high was I then? Oh, about a thousand feet, but I held on the about a thousand feet, but I held on to the braces. If anything happens to my engine, I am a balloonist and therefore in a similar predicament to a sea captain whose ship has lost its propellers or broken its engines. He must hoist the sails or be at the mercy of the elements. The valves at the end of the balloon regulate the effect of the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Galbraith for the holidays.

Japan's Few Paupers.

The Japanese are never able to understand how it is that though their population is about the same as ours, they have only 21,000 paupers, while we have about 1,000,000. The difference is due to the Japanese attitude toward old age and parenthood. Most of their few paupers are children or elderly people whom earthquakes have deprived of their breadwinners. Old age is all but sacred in Japan.—London Chromicia.

LACRUSSE

Manager Babcock, of the Tecumsclub, thands the Wallaceburg lacrosse club the following:

"It is amusing to hear the 'Burg trying to explain why they were defeated by the Tecumsehs in two games by 18 goals to 4, and in reading the weekly papers published in that town one would think they have a 'genuine home brew team and that some of their best players had been enticed away. In fact Wallaceburg rever did have a home brew team in the C. L. A. We all know who they had in 1903, and this year they have only about four who are residents of the 'Burg-Mooney, D'Leary, Kirkwood Aemes, Perkins, Fairfield, Lawlor and others have been brought in to play lacrosse. Inducements were also offered members of the Tecumseh club to do inside wiring and other. light work at the sugar beet works; also large inducements were offered bither members of the Chatham team, in short, Wallaceburg have been beaten at their own game, and they themselves would be the first to break the resident rule. What team of home brews could they get together to play the following team, Chrysler, Copeland, Elliott, Hutchinson, Fead, Morley, Tackabarry, Lawson, Wilson, Angus, Brundage, Ross? The men now on the Tecumseh team are residents here and will be when lacrosse season is over. Wallaceburg's latest importations are Tierney, Mooney and Douse. The 'Burg's local team this year is picked from points as far east as Montreal and as far north as Stayner."
