ARTS WEEK
BEGINS MONDAY

VOL. 92 NO. 30

FREDERICTON, N.B., FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1960

The Voice of UNB

Model U.N. in Montreal; Harris SUNAC Atlantic Director

Three UNB students attended the University Model United Nations held in Montreal Feb. 3 to 6. Representing the Union of South Africa were Malcolm Harris, Law student, and Margaret Cowie and Tim Arnold, Arts students.

Sunday, Feb. 7, Mac Harris was elected national treasurer and Atlantic director of SUNAC, the Students' United Nations Association in Canada. The aim of SUNAC is to co-ordinate the activities of university UN clubs and international affairs clubs such as the one recently formed at UNB. The program of SUNAC, still in the planning stages includes trips to the UN, special speakers travelling from club to club, movies, panel discussions, and model UN's similar to the one held in Fredericton this spring.

UNB's delegation, representing the Union of South Africa voted NO to a resolution admitting Red China to the UN and YES to the setting up of a space control commission. The main problem facing the delegation was simply the lack of opportunity to speak. In order to make the most of the session, UNB obtained the right of "MALAYA" to speak, and played a prominent part in general assembly debate. Three hundred and fifty delegates representing sixty-five universities from Canada, the US and Mexico took part in the model UN.

Special events included addresses by Lester B. Pearson, a reception given in City Hall by Montreal Mayor Sarto Fournier, and an international banquet and dance given by the U. of Montreal. The UNB delegation considers the model UN a great success and gives unqualified support to SUNAC.

SRC Hoists Honorariums

At the Wednesday evening meeting, the SRC granted $204 to sponsor a banquet for the Central and Eastern Canada Law School Convention to be held here next November. Bob Higgins, the President of the Law School, represented the Law School in asking for the grant.

The Honorarium system was shuffled as Barry Yoell of the Finance Committee suggested changes in the amount to be paid to the holders of several campus positions.

The Honorariums for the Vice-President of the SRC was raised from $50 to $125. Considering his extensive duties, the committee felt that he had been grossly underpaid. The Treasurer will receive $100, a raise of $50; the Year Book Editor honorarium was boosted from $100 to $125, and a $50 honorarium will be allotted to each of the two co-editors of the Year Book. Previously there had been only one. The honorarium paid to the Brunswickian editor was raised from $125 to $150. The only cut went to the Photo Editor of the Yearbook—whose honorarium was reduced to $75 from the previous $125.

One new honorarium was instigated. Hereafter, the chairman of the Winter Carnival Committee will receive $100.

Other honorariums remained unchanged.

Norm Goodridge, Winter Carnival Chairman appeared before the council to answer statements made by SRC members regarding the dance which the Carnival Committee put on Saturday, January 30. That dance was not included in the events covered by the Winter Carnival pass and the SRC passed motions protesting against the dance and the cost of the pass.

"The Winter Carnival Committee felt the Council could have waited until a person from the Committee could have been present to explain the situation", said Mr. Goodridge, "the Council discussed it without knowing the facts. We feel quite strongly about it". He stated that such action could have harmed the Winter Carnival and suggested that there should be more communication between the SRC and the Winter Carnival Committee.

Arts Week '60 — Kicks Off Mon.

The second annual Arts Week opens on Monday, with the Arts Ball on Friday evening the highlight of the week-long festivities. The following is the schedule of events:

Monday: 8 pm—A special guided tour of the Beaverbrook Art Gallery. Refreshments will be served afterwards in the Maggie Jean Chestnut Residence.

Tuesday: "Intervalles" goes on sale.

Wednesday: 8 pm—A hockey game will take place between the Arts and Science teams in the Lady Beaverbrook Rink. This is the annual grudge match—won last year by Science 6-5—and will be a full three periods. The game will be officially opened by Dr. K. B. Sayeed of the Political Science Department. A SKATING PARTY will be held afterwards on the outdoor rink at Wilmot Park. Hot coffee will be served in the Recreation Center, (where you may also change your skates).

Thursday: 7.30 pm—A "Fighting Words" panel, sponsored by the International Affairs Club, will be held in the Tartan Room of the Student Centre. The panel discussing the controversial quotations will consist of Professors MacNutt, Whalen, Weisner, and Dr. Sayeed. Moderator will be Dave Covert.

Friday: 9.30 pm—2.00 am—The ARTS BALL in the ballroom of the Lord Beaverbrook Hotel. Music will be provided by the nine piece orchestra of Buffy Eagen's "Legionaires". No corsages.

Saturday: 6.30 pm—Banquet and Bacchanalia at the Kent Inn. Dr. Helen Creighton will speak on Maritime folk lore and folk songs. Dr. Creighton is noted throughout the world for her years of work in this field.

Tickets: ARTS BALL—$2.00 per couple.

ARTS BANQUET AND BACCHANALIA — $1.75 per person.

The tickets for the formal will be sold only to members of the Arts Faculty, i.e., Artsmen, Business Administration, Physical Education. One guest couple may be taken by a member of the Faculty. Ticket sales will begin on Monday in the Arts Building and the Student Centre.

Wakim, MacArthur On Tory Executive

At the National Convention of the Progressive Conservative Student Federation held in Ottawa last weekend, Joanne MacArthur and Sam Wakim were elected to the executive.

Sam Wakim a first year Law student of UNB Law School was elected the Maritime Regional Vice-President of the Student Federation. In his acceptance speech Mr. Wakim reminded the students that; "Premier Flemming of New Brunswick started the Conservative trend in 1952".

Joanne MacArthur, third year Arts student of UNB was elected New Brunswick's representative on the Senior National Executive. The PC party is the first political party in Canada to give the students 12 representatives on the Senior Executive.

John Bate, President of UNB's PC Club was a delegate and Roger Harley of UNB also attended the convention.

Chester MacRae, York Sunbury MP was at the airport to meet the UNB delegates Friday noon, and then took them on a tour of Ottawa and the Parliament Buildings. The delegates saw the House in session Friday afternoon.

Friday night the students heard an address by Hon. Howard Green, Secretary of State for External Affairs. The delegates then took part in a panel discussion on Foreign Affairs. Saturday morning the Conference was formally opened by the Hon. Donald Fleming, Minister of Finance, after which the students took part in seminars on; Northern Affairs, National Defence, Foreign Aid and Social Justice.

The Hon. George Hees, Minister of Transport was guest at a luncheon Saturday Noon. Mr. Hees stressed the students part in politics and urged them to put forth their views. He promised that any suggestions or criticisms from the students would be carefully considered.

Saturday night the UNB Delegates met the Prime Minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker. After the banquet held in his honour the Prime Minister spoke to the students. He said in part; "No political party can long endure without youth. Young ideas and young persons to implement them are essential to any party concerned with the building of a great Canada." Mr. Diefenbaker announced that an essay contest will be held, open to all Canadian University Students. The essay of 10,000 words is to be written on the topic: "The Conservative Party's contribution to Canadian Nationhood."

The Convention of 493 students from all parts of Canada was one of the largest students conventions ever held in Canada. It was brought to a close Sunday by Hon. Pierre Sevigny who spoke at the Bon Voyage Luncheon.

NO C. A. CABAL

The Canadian University Atheists did not have a national conference in Ottawa last week. In this way they avoided the childish squabbles of the major political parties.

UNB received important honours as it was decided that all members of The Party were to be students on the New Brunswick campus.

Interested CA's are expected to enter the "Dief" Essay Contest on "The Conservative Party's Contribution to Canadian Nationhood". Their answers will probably be rather brief! Further the CA's were happy to see that the Liberal delegate plans to give his account of the Maritime Model Parliament soon. He, like the Tories, had plenty of time to observe the proceedings which were, of course, highlighted by the CA's.

Grits Claim Win Over Arch Rivals

The Canadian University Liberal Federation managed to get another win over their arch rivals, the Progressive Conservative Student Confederation, at Ottawa last weekend.

At the annual C.U.I.F. convention, attended by 180 delegates from 33 universities, and represented by the UNB Liberal Club in the person of Nick Mulder, C.U.L.F. president Tom Somerville stated: "The president of the Progressive Conservative Student Federation recently boasted that his federation is the largest of its kind in Canada. I challenge the president and his associates to substantiate that claim. And I challenge them to debate that issue right here in Ottawa this weekend."

A telegram was sent to the Tories, but they refused to debate the question thereby more or less conceding the fact that they were not the largest group of its kind in Canada. The Liberal delegates delighted by the result decided to press the matter and on Saturday night invaded Eastview Hotel where the Conservatives were holding their convention. The Liberals formed a receiving line for Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his wife, and although they got by safely, one of the Tories decided to settle the question by fists and attacked—only half in jest—one of the Liberals. The struggle was soon broken up and the Liberals withdrew confident of their success in the matter.

Besides this rather humorous interruption, the C.U.L.F. convention settled some serious business by electing a new national president in Phil Gouldston of the University of Toronto, while Rick Kinley of Dalhousie University was elected Vice-president for the Atlantic Region. The delegates approved certain new resolutions and listened to two excellent speeches by Lester B. Pearson and J. W. Pickersgill, both of whom stressed the organizational need of the Liberal Party. The convention ended on Saturday afternoon at which time the delegates were told that each university Liberal Club across Canada would have three delegates at the large organizational meeting, the "Pearson Rally," to be held this fall.

On Monday, Feb. 15, at 8.00 pm in the Student Centre, the UNB Liberal Club plans to hold its next meeting at which time Nick Mulder will give his report from Ottawa and Ed Bell will present his account of the Maritime Model Parliament held in Halifax. The meeting will also include a discussion of the Liberal Club platform for the coming UNB Model Parliament and the campaign for the elections to be held on Feb. 24.

Wis - Dumb

"A community is like a ship, every one ought to be prepared to take the helm."

—Henrik Ibsen

Recently, in New Jersey, a former Columbia University student sued his alma mater charging that it had failed to make him wise. The state supreme court upheld the judge's ruling that "wisdom cannot be taught, if in fact it can be defined."

The New Jersey judge raised an excellent point. Wisdom cannot be taught. And, as for a definition, we shall refer to Mr. Webster who offers: "Wisdom is the ability to judge soundly and deal sagaciously with facts, esp. as they relate to life and conduct." For our purposes, we shall accept this definition.

The acquisition of wisdom in college, then, rests upon something more than attending lectures, performing experiments, completing all your assignments. Indeed, if wisdom is to be acquired during the collegiate phase of one's life at all, it must be obtained from other sources as well as from the academic part of college life.

We suggest that it might be acquired from participation in such things as student government.

Unfortunately, however, if this axiom-of-sorts is correct and membership on the SRC does represent an opportunity to gain wisdom, then we fear that next year our campus is going to be very deficient in this kind of potential "wisdom-possessors."

As we go to press, a total of two nominations for SRC positions have been entered. The deadline is 24 hours away. 12.00 noon tomorrow.

Is it apathy? Is it fear of not having anyone vote for you? Is it the lack of monetary benefits to be derived from these positions? —or is the sad truth simply that we no longer have in OUR community enough people "prepared to take the helm"?

We hope that in the next 24 hours all these questions will be affixed with a negative reply.

All members of the "Rose-Marie" cast who have not as yet turned in their chorus books to Mr. Trythall are asked to do so immediately.

Letters to the Editor

Sir . . . I wish to express the gratitude and praise of the students of the Science faculty to all those who helped our faculty to success in the 1960 Winter Carnival.

The credit goes to Terry Champion and his crew for their outstanding creation that won us top prizes among the floats; to Bob Ellison and the gang for the snow sculpture; to Nick Carter and his committee who did such an excellent job of queen nominating; and to the Fredericton firms who donated the goods and services so necessary for our success with the floats.

To Miss Nancy Ellis, who so ably represented the Science Faculty as our queen and 1960 Winter Carnival Queen, we all join in extending a special note of thanks.

Wayne Lockhart,
President, Science Guild.

Payola from the Carnival

Sir:

I happen to know you took that extra money. I think you are a nasty man. I don't care what you said on the first 2 pages. I didn't like the Carnival and neither did anyone I know. It weren't worth 2 bucks even. I admire Davie Petrie. He is a good basketball player so look out. Doug Caldwell was elected by the students and shut up. Al Brennan I don't know but he has done a lot around here. So you had better go back to Upper Canada before you get cleaned out.

The Best In Bongos

by Dave Fairbairn

A teacher recently came to UNB—His name was Taylor. Just for fun he plays the bongo drums. But he plays them with such skill, he never finds the time to teach, because everyone in the North American continent wants to hear him play.

This all started 19 years ago when Peanuts was 4 years old. He was walking home from kindergarten one day, past a club owned by the famous Paul Meeres Jr. He heard music so he went into the dimly lit building, to see Paul rehearsing a dance number.

"I can do better than that, man" squeaked little Berkley. "Well come on up and try ya little peanut" replied Paul. Berkley did try and danced so well that Meeres hired him on the spot. Two minutes later "Peanuts" Taylor appeared on the billboard as the youngest star in show business and since then has never stopped entertaining people.

And at the age of 8 he appeared before the Duke and Duchess of Windsor in a Command Performance. The only thing that Peanuts can remember is that he "sat on the lap of the Duchess and she fed me ice cream all night", but "it was the biggest thrill of my life", added Peanuts with a grin.

All this time Peanuts went to school in the daytime and to night clubs at night. At the age of 18 he passed examinations which qualified him as a teacher, but he pounds the drums instead, because "I can do a better job making people happy than I can making kids do their lessons".

At one time he almost had to quit school because some people that were at his club "tried to steal me, because they felt sorry that I had to be up so late at night. Besides they said I was cute", said Taylor, with another of his famous Taylor grins. "The people were millionaires and wanted to take me around the world, but somehow I got a cop to come over and he phoned my mammy who came right down to claim me. I didn't mind the world tour, but the people forgot my drums".

"Who's the best singer that you ever drummed behind?" was another question that was fired at him. "Delamorre's great, and will be greater", Peanuts replied, but I'd have to say "The King" (Nat "King" Cole). He and I had the longest booking of any entertainers in Ciro's in Hollywood. Taylor's booking there was for 7 weeks and the longest previous booking was 3 weeks.

About future plans? My club burned down you know", Peanuts laughed. "The whole damn thing—right to the ground. Lost everything. The only thing I saved was my bongos. I had them in the liquor room all ready to come to Canada. When the fire started I rushed right in for my drums. I almost got trapped too, because I was looking around for a bottle or two of scotch to bring with me."

Now the fabulous Mr. Taylor is going down to Nassau to play in another club until a new one is put up. "This time I'm going to make it fireproof," he quipped.

But the next time there is a fire in Nassau we have thought of a better way to put it out. Just let Mr. Berkley "Peanuts" Taylor loose on his bongos, tell him to get his hands moving, tell him to start going hard, and he'll drum up a storm big enough to put out the Chicago fire of 1912.

Jones House Valentine Dance

by Nick Mulder

It looks as though the Residents of Jones House cannot get enough of the festivities during their stay at UNB this year. After all the events before and during the Winter Carnival Week, they decided to top it off by the Jones House Formal, to be held tonight at 9 pm.

The Social Conveners and their gang of decorators have converted the recreation room of Jones House into the streets of Venice complete with fountains to develop the Valentine theme. The

by Tim Arnold

At the Second Annual University Model United Nations, held last week at Montreal, most of the time was spent in sessions of the General Assembly dealing with resolutions on the admittance of Communist China and the peaceful use and control of Outer Space. For three days the future lawyers and diplomats ran wild with amendments to amendments, and points-of-order on points-of-order on points-of-order chasing each other in ever widening circles until the original resolution was completely lost from sight. Like the real body, a model UN needs a Krishna Menon or a Groucho Marx to maintain an element of sanity amidst the legal and diplomatic jargon, or it will expire from sheer boredom.

One of the more interesting events was a Panel discussion on the topic "Disarmament: Myth or Reality?" All four Panelists agreed in their opening remarks that it was a reality, but agreement ended there. Professor Otto Nathan, an Einstein-like character in appearance (he was, in fact, a close friend of Einstein) believed that the only way to avoid the annihilation of the human race, towards which we are now heading, is for all nations to renounce war and hand over to an International Agency all their weapons of war. Nothing less than this supreme effort would be sufficient to prevent catastrophe. But Professor Michael Brecher of McGill stated that there were far too many disagreements and too much suspicion for this approach to have any chance of success, and advocated a gradual, step-by-step disarmament, seeking individual areas where agreement may be reached rather than an all-or-nothing approach. It was, he believed, futile to try to assess which should come first, disarmament or security—this was merely a "chicken and egg controversy". Professor Nathan, however, believed that it was pointless to pursue a policy of disarmament and re-armament simultaneously, which occurred inevitably if step-by-step disarmament was attempted. The idealistic and practical approaches appeared to be quite irreconcilable.

The other two members of the Panel were a member of the USSR Embassy and a gentleman from the State Department. They put forward the Party Line and the State Department Line respectively, going through their acts like two well-trained but slightly bored performing seals, that is like good civil servants. They produced an interesting contrast to the two Professors who put their cases with considerable feeling.

At the end of this two hour Panel one had the impression that, contrary to the Panelists' first assertions, disarmament is very much of a myth.

Australian Doll Taking Shape

Some of the accents heard on campus this term have started rumors that UNB now has some Australian students. In fact those responsible are the actors and actresses taking part in the Drama Society's presentation of Summer of the Seventeenth Doll.

The first Australian play to hit London and then New York two years ago, the action revolves around the lives of a couple of wandering cane-cutters during their summer lay-off. But after sixteen years of a happy existence, this proves to be a summer of change and tension. In one of the most compelling plays of the last decade we see how the characters involved must face the changes. The Doll has much in common with last spring's presentation of A View From The Bridge, seen in both Fredericton and Saint John and it should have a similar dramatic effect.

Professor Alvin Shaw, the director, has announced the cast. Michael Gordon and Walter Learning will be using their acting experience from a number of Festivals to play the two roughnecks, Barney and Roo. Pearl and Olive, the two women they visit will be portrayed by Sandra Kilburn, a Fredericton resident, and Anneke Deichmann, who last year won an award in the provincial festival. Wendy Tidmarsh, who delighted audiences with her portrayal of the snappy Mrs. Boyle in The Mousetrap, will play Bubba, the girl next door, while the part of Emma, Olive's mother, will be taken by Joyce Campion, an actress with considerable experience in Dublin. An old favorite with his native Fredericton audiences, Art Van Wart, will round out

A series of interviews with profs conducted by Brunswickan reporter, Barry Yoell

Anyone who has taken Physics 100 cannot help but remember the first few lectures given by Professor Boone. Errors, with their many difficulties, take most freshmen Engineers, Foresters and Scientists by storm; and yet the energetic, always smiling Prof Boone says that these shock tactics with "no holds barred" only start things off with a bang, and help to make people work from the very beginning. He seems to despise the "kid glove" treatment of some other faculties, and says this carry over from high school should be abandoned. He attacks the New Brunswick High School system generally, saying that "although the students have enough work to do there is a lack of organization and there is a great deal of room for improvement in the curriculum and choice of textbooks". This deficiency is particularly apparent in the sciences and mathematics and this fact is holding the Maritime Universities behind their Upper Canadian rivals. He hopes that the Department of Education committees at present experimenting with Fredericton High School classes will modernize the system and eradicate some of the "defeatist attitudes toward freshman Math and Physics".

Prof Boone's fantastic ability to mentally evaluate four figure multiplication is not going to help him in his latest scheme—(latest in the sense that it is still being improved after four years of experiment)—which is a method of determining the refractive index of liquids to within 7 or 8 decimal places, that is within one millionth of a centimeter. Asked why he was doing this he replied, "mere intellectual curiosity".

This typifies this always smiling and joking scientist—mere intellectual curiosity drives him to beat Physics into Freshman heads' and to experiment on a purely scientific level for little more than personal satisfaction.

THE HOTBED

Roses are red, violets are yellow
And as the co-ed lets out her bellow—
"—Man—give me a kiss, give me a pat—"
Man replies—
"—Never baby—with a mug like that—"

And in case everybody didn't know, this Sunday is Valentines Day. The day when man is supposed to honor women, shout the praises of women, give gifts to woman, get down on his knees and kiss the feet of woman, thank women for blessing the world with their presence.— Ha—

Hotbed asks why? What useful function does woman serve in our society? What does woman do to justify her existence? Is there a place for woman in our fast moving world of to-day, when man is obviously much superior to the so-called "fairer sex"?

Hotbed takes the typical UNB female. When we take away the veneer purchased at Zellers we find hollowness—a hollowness that does not contain the ability to converse intelligently, and that is without any ideas that are even reasonably original. When we take away the lipstick what do we find?—Chapped lips. When we take away the nylons what do we find?—Legs that are too heavy from walking through the New Brunswick snow. When we take away the face powder what do we find?—A face with a poor complexion. When we take away the expensive, tight-fitting, man-trapping clothes, what do we find? A structure that—well anyway, not much.

UNB co-eds are especially noted for their unimaginative, slow-thinking, catty way of living. Why do they come to college? No other reason than they want to trap the superior species of the race: to wit—the male. Why? Because they know that they are incapable of living without man.

Valentines Day indeed. Woman should be content with the fact that they are lucky enough to have man pay any attention to them. A special day in which man can give chocolates, flowers, hearts and kisses. Nonsense. Consider yourselves fortunate "girls from UNB", man puts up with you all year . . .

A few days ago Mr. Editor wrote one of his so-called editorials re. Mr. Hotbed. It sounded much like the bad wolf who said "I'll huff and I'll puff and I'll blow your house down". Does Mr. Fluster—Fol Crumb or whatever his name might be, really think he can destroy Mr. Hotbed. "He'll huff and he'll puff but he's only a clown". Mr. Fluster wrote that he "never stated whether we (notice how he hides behind the plural) concurred or disagreed". Mostly because nobody on the paper, especially Fluster, has the intelligence to form an opinion. Let Fluster amuse himself by writing editorials like "Potentially it was a good dance—cha-cha-cha" Stimulating. Potentially it was a good paper if we had a smart editor—ha-ha-ha. Hotbed warns you in return. Fluster—don't bother a man who is doing a job of saving your paper—"issue after issue". . . .

UNB has once again proved that they have the most apathetic students on the continent. At press time officials had only received 11 nominations for the 39 positions to be filled on next year's SRC. The ironical part of it is that the students will gripe and wail when the administration takes over student affairs, because no students want to. Slit your throats and choke in your own blood.

BEAVERS - MERMAIDS SWIM

This weekend the Beavers and the Mermaids hit the road to meet their toughest competition of the season. Both UNB swim teams will be competing in the battle for the Maritimes Intercollegiate and Open titles.

Tonight the teams compete against Acadia University teams at Acadia's pool for the Maritime Intercollegiate Championships for Swimming and Diving. Dalhousie University are also expected to send a women's team. Tomorrow afternoon the UNB squads challenge other Maritime swim teams at HMCS Cornwallis for the open Championships for Swimming and Diving. Navy, YMCA, YWCA, and University teams are expected to take part in this meet.

Coach Amby Legere holds that team spirit is high and in the words of Beaver Captain Wayne Barry "We expect tough competition at both meets but the team is planning to retain the Intercollegiate title for UNB and make our presence felt at the open meet".

Red Falcons Win Ski Meet

Highlight of the Winter Carnival Week-end from a skiers point of view was the UNB Invitational Ski Meet held at Royal Road Ski Hill, Saturday and Sunday. A total of 35 skiers took part in the events.

High point man of the meet was Grant MacKenzie who with first in the Cross Country, eleventh in the downhill, fifth in Slalom, fourth in the Giant Slalom and fifth in Jumping, accumulated a total of 420 points and was awarded the Ski Meister award. He was followed by Hans Anvik with 400. Toby Rankin received the first prize for highest points in Downhill, Slalom, and Giant Slalom, and Guy Maurois from St. F.X. came second with 296 points.

In the women's events, Donny Matheson of Mt. Allison placed first in all races and was followed by Heather Love also of Mt. A.

The Red Falcons are journeying to Colby College in Waterville, Maine to participate in a meet held in conjunction with the American College's Winter Carnival this weekend. Ski Teams

Falcons for the Trophy. Representing UNB will be Toby Rankin, Ken Maxwell, Grant MacKenzie, Norm Crutchfield, Hans Anvik and Gordon Page. These skiers make up a well balanced team and are confident of placing in the top three. Brunswick College, Harvard, University of Maine and Colby College will compete with the representing Bowdoin College,
