MOUNT ALLISON SCORES WIN OVER ACADIA

In Closely Contested Game at Sackville Last Thursday Afternoon

SACKVILLE, Nov. 5.—Playing superb football in the last fifteen minutes of the most closely contested game seen on the Sackville campus in years, the Mount Allison football team trimmed Acadia by the slender score of 3-0 here this afternoon. Both teams had previously lost to U. N. B. and no trophy was at stake, but in spite of this fact feeling ran high and the enthusiasm was intense. When the two traditional rivals faced each other on the Sackville playing field this afternoon, it was to begin a struggle that for sheer relentlessness is worthy to go down as a classic in the history of the game. Mount Allison kicked off at twenty minutes after three, with Acadia facing the sun. The Garnet and Gold immediately bucked to within striking distance of the line, and after a few minutes of hectic football Gregg got away but was brought down. Mount A was given a free kick for a good gain, the Acadia backs relieved. The Mount A three-quarters got the ball, but Crocker was brought down after a short run. Acadia gradually worked the play back to centre field but lost the ball. The Garnet and Gold backs got away, but Mel Rice was tackled on the line after a twenty yard run. Play was kept in Acadia territory until the Red and Blue backs came through with a nice piece of combination work. Rice got going, but was tackled hard. A few minutes before the end of the period Capt. Ray Smith went through the Acadia backfield for the longest run of the game, but was tackled hard and lost the ball five yards from the line. Smith was knocked out by the fall, but gamely resumed his position. The period ended with play in Acadia territory. Acadia kicked off at the start of the second session and quickly pressed their advantage. For the first time in the game they dangerously threatened Mount Allison's goal line. The Mount Allison forwards, who were playing the game for all it was worth, got in some dribbling that was good to watch. For the first ten minutes of the period, play was mostly in Mount A territory, with backfields trying somewhat ineffectively to get away. Davidson tried a drop kick but the ball did not leave the ground. The Garnet and Gold finally broke through, the forwards bucking the ball down field. A dozen scrimmage plays were called close to Acadia's lines. The Mount Allison forwards were getting the ball out practically all the time but the Acadia players smothered effectively the desperate efforts of the Sackville collegians to cross the line. Acadia was finally given a free kick, which was the only one the Mount A had. Their goal was short lived, however, the Mount Allison squad bucked steadily for a fifty yard gain in less than three minutes. From a scrum on Acadia's five yard line the ball came out to Shorty Stuart, who was brought down. From a second scrimmage the Mount Allison three-quarter line again got the ball, and it was passed along the line to Ray Smith, who dodged Noble for the only try of the game. The goal was not kicked. From the ensuing kick-off Acadia had a decided territorial advantage, but they were able to retain only a few minutes. In the last few minutes the Garnet and Gold squad were unbeatable, and when the whistle blew, a second try seemed imminent.

WOLFVILLE CELEBRATES ARMISTICE ANNIVERSARY

Impressive Service Held on Grounds of Government Building with Address by Rev. Mr. Dixon

Principal Silver and his staff of competent teachers were responsible in large measure for the success which attended Wolfville's observance of Armistice Day this year. The weather was most propitious and a large number of citizens and out of town people assembled in front of the post-office at the time appointed for the exercises. The pupils of the lower grades of the public school held an appropriate service in the school building but a very large number from the upper grades were present at the public celebration and rendered valuable assistance. The program opened with the singing of the old hymn "Holy, Holy, Holy," and was followed by "O, Canada." Rev. R. F. Dixon, the venerable rector of St. John's church, who was this year selected to give the address, led in appropriate prayer. In his address he made many interesting reminiscences of the early days of the war. He made patriotic allusion to Canada, the land of his birth but of his choice, and described in interesting terms the progress that had been made since his coming here in those early days of the confederation. He spoke feelingly of the boys whose names are inscribed upon the memorial tablet here located, most of whom had been known to him since boyhood, and to whose devotion, as well as that of those who returned, we as Canadians owe so much. Rev. Mr. Dixon closed his address with the benediction, and after a few words by Mayor Chambers the customary two minutes of silence and the national anthem brought the exercises to a close. The customary wreaths were placed at the foot of the War Memorial by Mrs. S. Percy Benjamin on behalf of the I. O. D. E., and by Mayor Chambers for the town.

DR. CUTTEN HAS PUBLISHED NEW BOOK

Dr. George Barton Cutten, formerly President of Acadia, but now of Colgate University, has recently published his fourth book. It is entitled "Mind, Its Origin and Goal", and is printed by the Yale University Press. It is a perfectly thrilling, non-technical treatment of a scientific subject. Written in a popular style, it can be read with profit by all. It is suggestive rather than conclusive in its argument. Some of the questions treated are: Where do we get our minds? Have we animal minds? Has human intelligence superseded instinct? Is religion natural to man? Are we in danger of intellectual decline? What future changes may we expect? In his preface, Dr. Cutten credits the following Nova Scotians with having made valuable suggestions in the construction of the manuscript: Prof. S. Spide, Acadia University; R. P. Bell, and Mrs. R. W. Tufts.

BAD SHOOTING ACCIDENT HERE ON SATURDAY

Roy Northover Was Killed When Gun Was Accidentally Discharged

The most unfortunate accident which occurred last Saturday afternoon cast a gloom over the entire community and stirred the sympathy of citizens generally to the sorrowing home and friends of the victim. Four boys went out to the woods to the south of the university to shoot rabbits, and were sitting down to rest when the accident took place. They had a shot-gun, a 22 rifle and a 32 revolver, the latter being carried in a holster around the waist of Allan Northover. While they were talking together one of the boys reached over and took the revolver to examine it, and as he did so it accidentally became discharged, the ball entering the abdomen of Roy Northover, son of Mrs. H. R. Northover, who for some time has been a resident of this town. The bullet entered the left side emerging near the right hip.

Immediately one of the boys ran for help to the nearest house and fortunately got into communication at once with Dr. C. E. A. deWitt, who reached the scene of the accident with his car a few minutes after. The injured boy was carried to the car and rushed to Westwood Hospital where, however, it was found that very little could be done for him. Shock and collapse were so severe that it was decided unwise to operate, but every attention that hospital treatment could give was carried out. Dr. deWitt remaining all night at the hospital in order that the boy might receive ample care.

On Sunday the injured boy had somewhat revived, but his condition remained extremely critical. The most thorough investigation revealed that the injuries were such that no hope of possible recovery could be entertained and on Monday morning at 5:20 o'clock, in spite of all that medical care and careful nursing could do, the unfortunate lad passed away. Roy was deservedly popular among his mates and was a boy well liked by all who knew him.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon at St. Andrew's church, the service being conducted by Rev. Dr. Hemmison. There was a very large attendance, the Boy Scouts, of which the deceased was a loyal and popular member, attending in force. The service opened with the singing of the hymn, "Thine are All the Gifts, O Lord", a favorite of the departed, and the address of Dr. Hemmison was sympathetic and appropriate. Interment was at Willow Bank Cemetery, the pall-bearers being John Johnson, Ronald Prescott, Reginald Johnson, Fred Regan. The floral offerings included the following: Wreaths—Mr. Herbert Stairs, Mrs. P. and Mrs. A. Lowrie, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Calhoun, Sunday School of United church, Major H. R. Northover, Boy Scouts (2nd Troop). Pillow—Boy Scouts (Anglican church). Sprays—St. Andrews W. M. S., St. Andrews Ladies Aid, Mr. and Mrs. Don Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Hutchinson, Mrs. W. H. Chase, Miss Harvey and Mrs. Wm. C. Hamilton, Victor, Kenneth, John and Earl Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Jackson, Misses Mildred, Gladys and Jean Wood, Brothers Jim, Reg. and Allan, Miss Lily Shepard, Miss Longley, Mrs. McLennan, School Classmates. Cut Flowers—Gwen Patterson, Lorraine, Alma and Marguerite Jackson. Letters of sympathy were received from—Mrs. A. M. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hill, Miss Laura Boates, Mrs. G. R. Forbes, Mr. and Mrs. R. Creighton, Mrs. A. Lowrie, Miss M. Haley, Mrs. A. Fry, Mrs. Murray, Mrs. and Mr. Paul Davidson, Mrs. and Mr. W. Davidson, Mrs. L. Brocq, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Miller, Mr. Wm. Frawley, Mr. and Mrs. T. White, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Hutchinson. A cablegram was also received from Major H. R. Northover. The publishers of THE ACADIAN extend their heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family.

DECLARATION DAY AT KENTVILLE

The Declaration Day proceedings at Kentville on Thursday of last week were very largely attended and of an interesting character. Dr. Keddy, of Windsor, presided at the public meeting at the Capitol Theatre, the seating capacity of which was not equal to accommodate the large gathering. Addresses were given by Dr. Keddy, Mr. H. B. Tremain, and the successful candidate, who was given a great reception. An interesting feature was an address on behalf of the electors read by Mrs. R. T. Caldwell to Mrs. Foster, accompanied by a handsome life-sized portrait of Mr. Foster, painted by Prof. Bradshaw, of Hantsport. Mrs. Foster, in fitting terms expressed her thanks for the tribute paid her as well as for the gift. Before taking her seat she was the recipient of a handsome bouquet of chrysanthemums given by little Miss Margaret Palmer.

In his address Mr. Foster expressed his sincere thanks to the electors of Kings—Hants for the splendid majority they had rolled up for him, and pledged his best efforts at all times as their representative. He was proud to say that he addressed them as a Canadian and not as an alien. Although repeatedly urged to become a citizen of the United States he had not taken one step in that direction, and his hearers were authorized to give flat denial of the false statement that had been made that he was a United States citizen. The meeting closed with brief remarks by Mr. George L. Bishop, the president of the Liberal-Conservative Convention of Kings county. It is estimated that about 20 per cent. of the Ontario apple crop was destroyed by the severe cold weather experienced in that province on or about October 30. These included the apples that were still unpicker at that date.

Editorial

Our pulpits are our work clothes. Each of us live some kind of a sermon every day.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE HOME

WE HAVE recently read from the public utterances of two men eminently qualified to speak on the subject strong pronouncements on conditions existing today, which should engage the attention and ensure the action of those responsible for the young life of the country. One of these, Sir Hugh MacDonald, magistrate for the city of Winnipeg, and a man well known throughout Canada, made a scathing indictment against parents who neglect their children. "There are", he said, "in pest holes in Winnipeg and Boniface, slimy rats of the underworld and others who call themselves respectable, who lay in wait for thoughtless children". "Mothers and fathers", he added, "will have to answer to the eternal tribunal for the neglect they show their growing children. God is being banished from the home, and no proper safeguards are placed on the growing youth of the country. Dens of vice are allowed to flourish, fed with easy money, while virtue and rectitude are laughed to scorn."

The charge is a serious one and perhaps applies not only in large cities but in quiet communities as well. It is verified by a statement recently given out by Police Commissioner Enright, of New York, containing statistics which show that crimes of violence are now committed mostly by young men.

"When I first came here some 30 years ago", he says, "70 per cent. of crime in New York city was committed by persons more than 30 years old. Today 70 per cent. is by persons under 30 and a big part of that 70 per cent. by persons around 21—frequently well under 21. Why? Because the morale of the home has been destroyed."

"In days past the boy or girl was raised in a home atmosphere. They knew and loved their parents. They went to school on week days, to church and Sunday school on Sundays and they stayed home at nights. Now there is no longer religious training, no longer any home training, and the child, instead of being raised with proper ideas and ideals, sees an example of laxity in life and habits of the parents that soon leads him to a life of crime."

These are not the findings of moralists who speak without knowledge but of men of wide experience, and as such cannot be disregarded with safety. That the old-time home with its steadying influence has for a long time been on the down grade is a startling fact which must be apparent to every careful observer. What causes this deterioration is a matter which perhaps more than any other deserves the careful consideration of those who claim to seek the moral uplift of our people. Different agencies are doubtless responsible for the alarming condition, one of the chief, we suggest, being the inclination on the part of parents to allow their children to "live their own lives", as too many declare.

BOYS AND FIREARMS

INVESTIGATION of the conditions responsible for the distressing accident of Saturday last reveals an indiscriminate use of firearms and other dangerous weapons on the part of boys that should not be allowed to continue. Because of this freedom which the authorities permit to exist shooting accidents are becoming more and more frequent occurrence, as is indicated practically every day by the news columns of the public press. The recent happening brings home to us vividly the seriousness of the situation and the urgent need of preventative measures being taken. A young and innocent life has been ruthlessly snatched away leaving sorrowing hearts to mourn their loss.

The lesson is obvious. Teachers and those who come in closest contact with the young life of the country tell us that it is no uncommon thing to find among school-boys in their classes firearms and hunting-knives and other dangerous appliances. The information may come as a surprise to parents and guardians, but would have been revealed by a more intimate acquaintance with the habits of their children. Presumably there is a law which directs the purchase of these dangerous toys but at any rate the responsibility in the final summing up belongs to the home and the community.

We appreciate the fact that firearms have always possessed a rare attraction for boys, an attraction which in recent years has been accentuated by the reading of vicious books and the "Wild West" shows of the modern picture-house. A more efficient censorship of these two agencies, the enforcement of the laws controlling the sale of firearms and other explosives, and a more careful supervision of the activities engaging the attention of our boys, would add greatly to their safety and well being.

DICTATES OF COMMON SENSE

BUYING away from home is a habit which usually does nobody any good but the mail order house. Buying at home is a habit which does a world of good to the buyer, the merchant and the home town. Why cultivate a bad habit when it is just as easy to acquire a good one, and why continue a bad habit when there is a good habit which can easily be substituted?

Before the Wolfville stores became so well stocked there was some defence for the mail order concerns with their diversified stocks. There was a time when the mail order house was the only place where the resident of the small town and country could supply all his needs. But today your home-town stores can furnish all of man's needs and without delays, misunderstandings and uncertainty of satisfaction. Four essentials in buying are quantity, quality, favorable price and quick delivery. Your home-town merchants set the standard in all four of these essentials.

There are men and women who go to larger cities to buy all or part of their wants. They argue that they can save money and obtain better satisfaction, but brought down to the actual facts they usually admit that buying-out-of-town is only a habit, and an expensive habit at that. They lose the leisurely shopping, the personal service and the realization of responsibility which characterizes the local stores.

Big business buys its raw materials from the nearest source of supply. Every individual is a business in himself or herself. Thrifty buyers figure in the time, labor, transportation and market costs and buy accordingly.

IT PAID HIM TO ADVERTISE

ONE OF the most persistent advertisers in the history of success was Robinson Crusoe. He knew what he wanted—and he put an ad for one. He flung a shirt on a pole, at the top of his island, and that, in the language of the sea, was plain to every sea-faring man.

The circulation was small—there was no other medium, but Crusoe kept at it, despite the fact that he got no inquiries for a long time. He changed his copy—as one garment after another was frayed out—and in the end got what he wanted.

Suppose Crusoe had taken down that signal after a time and declared—"Advertising doesn't pay," where would he and his story be now?

Put up your signal and keep it there. Crusoe advertised under very discouraging circumstances. You've got a sure thing—it is only necessary to have the patience, persistence and pluck of Robinson Crusoe—and the good ship "Better Business" will soon tie up 'longside your pier.

LOCAL LADY TELLS WESTERNERS OF EVANGELINE LAND

(From the Omaha, Nebraska, World-Herald.)
Miss Georgia Miner, of Nova Scotia, whose home is two miles from Grand Pre, the scene of Longfellow's "Evangeline", will leave Monday for her home, after spending two weeks with her sister, Mrs. P. T. Hobbs, and Mr. Hobbs. Miss Miner's home town is Wolfville, three thousand population, the seat of the Acadia schools.

A life-size bronze figure of "Evangeline" was placed in Grand Pre recently, and thousands of people visit this shrine every summer, says Miss Miner. A church, built of white stone, was opened July, 1922, on the site of the old church described in Longfellow's immortal poem. The old French well is still there, dating back to 1713, when the trouble arose between the French farmers and fishermen and the English authorities. There is an old Presbyterian church at Grand Pre, relates Miss Miner, with its high pulpit and old sounding board, suspended from the ceiling. Some of the old dykes are still there, built many years ago by the French. Descendants of the Acadians, betrayed by the authorities and scattered through the United States, go to the old churches and revere the memory of the pioneers.

Miss Miner, a nurse by profession, tall, vigorous, with splendid coloring and robust health, might well personify "Evangeline" of poetic fame. Longfellow has told how the heroine, attending the sick, found her lover, "Gabriel", in his dying days, and ministered to his needs.

The land of Grand Pre has an equable temperature, determined by the ocean currents, and the people are, to this day, farmers and fishermen.

"The most splendid autumn colors in the world are seen in Nova Scotia", declares Miss Miner. "The frosts give rare coloring to the wonderful maples, oaks and elms, while the spruce, white bark birch and other trees are particularly beautiful."

No wonder, then, that Longfellow began his poem with the words, "This is the forest primeval. The murmuring pines and the hemlocks. . . . stand like Druids of old."

The Council renews in the statement its pledge of unequivocal support of national prohibition in the United States. The statement urges the friends of prohibition in other countries not to be deceived by various attempts to interpret the research report as a confession of failure or even discouragement, and calls upon the churches to undertake a new moral crusade to strengthen the hands of those who are responsible for prohibition enforcement.

The Thanksgiving services in the different churches on Sunday were of a particularly interesting and impressive nature. Rev. Dr. Dickie occupied the pulpit of the United church in the morning and Rev. Dr. Prestwood in the evening, both delivering impressive Thanksgiving messages. In the Baptist church in the evening the sermon by the pastor, Rev. Z. L. Fash, was exceptionally interesting, the subject of his discourse being many things to be thankful for, viz.,—Preservation, Plenty, Peace, Power, Patriotism and Piety. The solo, "Jesus Lover of My Soul", H. C. McDougall, was impressively rendered by Mr. Hugh Rolph.

DIARY OF MARGARET D. MICHENER

April 14th, 1851. Yesterday was a very cold stormy day. Rev. Hall preached from the text, "There is but a step between me and death". He pointed out the uncertainty of the things of time, and the necessity of a preparation to meet God. Revs. Grant and Angel came to Mr. Elder's. Saturday night, Rev. Hurd went to Windsor. Rebecca and Maria came home with me to dinner. In the afternoon, Rev. Marshall preached J. Frost's funeral sermon; the text was John 9:4. He spoke on the work the Christian had to do, and can only do it in the day which is our life. I went home with Mrs. Nunn. Mr. Angel preached in the evening. The ministers intend visiting around today; may their calls prove profitable. I should be lonely indeed when I return to my house at night, were it not for the blessed privilege of prayer.

15th. This is a pleasant morning. Anna Coalfeet came home with me last night from meeting, and is in bed yet. Revs. Angel and Grant called a little before school was out yesterday and talked and prayed with the children. They seemed to pay good attention; may they all be partakers of divine grace. We had a very interesting meeting last night. Mr. Angel preached. Revs. Hall and Hurd also were there and spoke. I thought I never heard singing sound better; it thrilled me; the three ministers are fine singers.

16th. I sent a letter to brother

Robert today. Mr. Hall preached last night; he spoke well, as did all the other ministers. Mr. Angel spoke of the love of Christ; how it had won rebellious sinners and gave several examples, one being a youth who, fifteen years ago, had often been warned by a pious mother. How often in her closet had she prayed with him and directed him to the Saviour, and been listened to with contempt. That youth might have been seen one evening in a room in Acadia College with a number of others during a revival, seeking God. They were praying for that youth, who felt himself to be a lost sinner. Mr. Hunt came to him and talked with him. That night he felt to praise God for the redemption of his soul. A few years ago that same youth sought that college again, to study for the ministry; and he is to be seen in the person of Mr. Angel. I took a walk up to see mother this morning before breakfast. Mr. Hall and Mr. Grant were in to see them yesterday. I pray that the church of the living God may shine clear as the morning and that all may be united in love.

17th. Mr. Hall preached last night. The singing sounded beautifully. I enjoyed it all very much. All the ministers spoke. Some of my scholars brought their dinner today as the walking is bad.

LETTING THE WORLD KNOW

The British newspapermen who have been making a tour of Canada cannot be expected in their gallop over the country to have gained a very thorough knowledge of our complex economic and political problems. But if they have seen and understood sufficient of the advantages the Dominion has to offer to immigrants to inspire them to raise their voices against the dangerous propaganda which has been spread against Canada in Great Britain a great good will have been accomplished.

It has already been pointed out by the representative of the Belfast Telegraph, in an article spread over two columns in his paper, that serious injury has been done Canada by men who, coming to this country from Britain and finding things not exactly as they hoped for, have returned home and spread stories that Canada is no good. In particular has this been the case with men who, living on the dole for years, found themselves unable to meet the labor demands in Canada, and had returned to the old country with tales that frightened others from emigrating to the Dominion.

WRIGLEYS

AFTER EVERY MEAL

Probably one reason for the popularity of WRIGLEYS is that it lasts so long and returns such great dividends for so small an outlay. It keeps teeth clean, breath sweet, appetite keen, digestion good.

These tales have been varnished and repeated by propagandists until they have become a dangerous deterrent to many who would otherwise come out prepared to work for a living and would soon become good Canadians.

Canada has great advantages to offer to newcomers who are willing to work for substantial rewards and is ready and willing to let the world know the whole truth about them.—Financial Post.

WOMAN KILLED 140 RATTLE-SNAKES

FORT UPTON, Colorado, Oct. 30.—Mrs. H. H. Slauteback, wife of a rancher near here, killed 140 rattlesnakes with a club yesterday in a two-hour battle for her life and that of her three year old child. Mrs. Slauteback said she was riding on horseback through a pasture on her husband's ranch and was carrying her child. Dismounting to open a gate, she heard the warning rattle and saw a snake nearby. She picked up a stick and killed it.

Immediately a second snake appeared, then a third. They came by twos, threes, fours, and finally by the dozen, she said. In a few minutes she was hemmed in by scores of angry serpents, while her baby clung to the horse nearby.

Frantically wielding the club, she disposed of snakes as they came within reach. Mrs. Slauteback was not bitten. Two ranchers went to the scene and verified Mrs. Slauteback's story. Photographs also have been taken as evidence of the adventure.

A certain Western Newspaper's Circulation Department received the following from a subscriber:—

"Dear Meester Editor: I got your letter. Be payshant, i ain't forgot you. You kick about what i owe you. Now wait. When sum fools pay me i pay you. If this wuz judgement day an you wuz no more prepared to meet your maker than i am to meet your account, you sure would have to go to hel. Trusting you will do this"

WEMBLEY IS CLOSED

Believe 27,000,000 People Visited Show During Last Two Years

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The British Empire Exhibition, which opened at Wembley in 1924 to benefit the trade of the British Empire, closed its doors today. The buildings will be immediately dismantled. In the two years it has been running, 27,000,000 persons have visited the exhibition. Despite its popularity, largely due to the constant patronage of the King, the members of the Royal family and the prominent personages, it has not proved a financial success. It is contended, however, that the ultimate results will be incalculable in money.

The smartest sports frocks are always the simplest. The model above is the spirit of simplicity in its use of fine pleats and shirring.

The material is kasha in a rich prume shade. The dress has a pleated section at the front of the skirt, and is finished with shirred shoulders and front buttoning.

The same type of dress could be made effectively in jersey cloth, which is always smart for Fall wear.

APLPEs HAVE MOST IRON, EXPORTS SAY

Are Heaviest Iron Carrying Fruit Available, is Statement

Iron is an essential element in food, but as it occurs in small quantities in any food, it is taken into the system in a variety of foods, one of the chief sources being fresh and dried fruits.

In order to get the required amount of iron from any one single food it would be necessary for the individual to devour three and one-half loaves of white bread a day, or ten egg yolks, or 50 large prunes, or 5 cups of raisins, or 15 tomatoes—in fact a ridiculous quantity of any one article.

Apples are one of the best sources of iron for the diet. Raisins have been much advertised for their iron content. It is true that both fresh grapes and raisins as well as plums and prunes furnish this element, but the apple is the heaviest iron-carrying fruit that we can eat, having 39-100 per cent. of iron in its make-up.

The use of all the fresh fruits two or three times a day will give a full ration of the needed iron for the system in combination with the iron contained in bread, eggs, meat and other articles which are routine in the daily meal. Pears also contain iron and are recommended by dieticians for their value in furnishing this element among others.

In the older days before the science of the diet had developed and balanced meals were part of the teaching of the domestic science classes in the school, spring tonics with iron in them or tincture of iron itself were regulation prescriptions. The iron prescriptions injured the teeth and were usually unpleasant.

In the light of chemical study, it is now known that with the regular consumption of fresh fruit the year around—and it is always available at reasonable prices in the market, particularly apples and oranges—there is no need for iron tonics in spring or any other time. The necessity only will arise when the diet is deficient in fresh fruit and green vegetables.

BUTTER AND CHEESE EXPORTS

The News Letter dated October 10th of the Dominion Dairy and Cold Storage affords pleasant reading for Canadians. It shows that the exports of butter for the twelve months ending with August, 1925, increased to 34,566,928 lbs. in value $12,453,293 from 16,007,507 lbs. in value $5,809,932, in the corresponding twelve months preceding and in cheese of 145,041,500 lbs. in value $30,099,585 from 117,185,400 lbs. in value $23,029,200. Thus there has been an increase in the year of 18,559,431 lbs. valued at $6,643,331 of butter exports and 27,856,100 lbs. valued at $7,060,385 of cheese.

Exports of milk powder show a similar increase, running to 9,617,700 lbs. and $948,919 in 1924-25 from 4,278,800 lbs. and $420,815 in 1923-24.

A Long Distance Telephone Call Always Gets A Hearing

Even the best of salesmen is sometimes put off by a customer on the plea that he is too busy to talk just then.

But, when a man gets a Long Distance Telephone Call, he is never too busy to listen to it.

He knows that the Long Distance Telephone Lines are not employed on trivial matters; that there is something of importance to him in the message.

So, even if in confab with a customer, he suspends his talk and gives right of way to the Long Distance Call.

Cal found himself framing some word of thanks, but the farmer had moved down the stalls and his voice was raised in loud criticism of Grit Wilson. A shoulder scald on one of Grit's horses seemed to be the occasion. Cal slipped out quietly to awaken Reed.

The morning sun was pouring through the window in the eastern end of the granary. Its beams fell on the tire with the blow-out and filled the room with a faint but pungent smell of rubber. On the bed in the corner, beneath a heap of blankets, lay the boy. One little foot protruding from under the rumpled mass, bore its own dark evidence of the previous day's journeyings in the dusty field; one arm thrown upwards, fell open-palmed across his forehead, the little finger linked in a flirting curl of hair; two ruddy lips, slightly parted in the sleep of childhood, disclosed the flash of white teeth through his smiles. Cal, leaning over him, paused for a moment in the clutch of a great poignancy; it was at wholly unexpected times that that same tremendous thing about the boy reached up around his heart and crushed through the word—'Celest'!

Dim-eyed, he saw the little figure through the mists of his dead mother's tragedy; dim-eyed he followed him down the eight wonderful years of his young life: down to Jackson Stake's farm and the old Ford cushions in the granary.

'Come, old Indian; time to roll out,' he said, shaking himself free of his mood. 'School today! Roll out!'

Breakfast was another hurried meal. All meals in the farmhouse, it seemed, were hurried; ample and hurried. There had been the same splashing in the wash basin by the rain barrel; the same single filing into the table; the same 'digging in'. This time it was into porridge and milk, fried potatoes and eggs, white bread and corn syrup. If Mrs. Stake had had a good night's rest, or no night's rest, she gave no sign; her pace was exactly what it had been the day before, and the day before that, and would be tomorrow, and the day after that. The same white table in the centre of the floor; the same succession of hungry mouths; yesterday, today, and forever.

The first maze of strangeness having worn off, Cal's eyes began to note the details of the house. The room in which they sat was large and square, and seemed to occupy half of the ground floor, which was cut through the middle by a stairway enclosed in partitions. Beyond those partitions, through an open door, came a glimpse of what was evidently the fine room of the house; a stiff, upholstered chair, with a single crimson furbelows drooping at the foot, and an enlarged crayon of some ancestral being hanging on the wall, were all the aperture commanded. The floor of the room in which they sat was covered with linoleum; traces of its staid pattern, which had long since disappeared about the table and the stove, still blazed up cheerily from the less trampled corners. The walls and ceiling were of plaster, one time white, but now stained from yellow to grey in token of many a culinary accident in the kitchen range. The door was to the east, a window in the south, another in the west. Red roller blinds, of a substance broadly suggestive of the linoleum under-foot, hung in the windows, their bareness sheathed by cheap cotton curtains which had taken something of the yellow-grey color of the walls. A poster announcement of the previous year's Brandon fair, and a calendar from the Plainville Garage, evidently intended to relieve the dull-

Mrs. Stake cleared a corner of the table and her throat simultaneously. It seemed she had a pesky tickle in her throat.

'Spring weather, I blame it on. Always like that in May. . . You must be a good boy for Annie Frolic. Do as she bids you, an' work hard at your lessons. It's the wind, the May wind—Was your sister married long; I mean—'

She stopped, realizing the indelicacy of her question, and in the momentary pause Cal recovered his balance.

'Not long; Reed was the only child,' he equivocated.

'Well, we mus' get him off,' she exclaimed, as, seeking safety in action, she drew Reed on to the floor before her. Her fingers were trifling with his tie; her old knees seemed pressing hungrily against his; her hands were smoothing his riotous hair into some semblance of order.

Cal walked with Reed to school. They went out on the winding trail among the groves of poplar and willow, still sparkling and fragrant with dew, and turned south on the main road. Across a black ploughed field, now faintly tinged with green, lay a cluster of white-washed farm buildings, probably the homestead of Fraser Fyfe. To the left they could see Gander's four-horse team and seedbed, with Gander himself hitching along behind, as he drove his slow shuttle back and forth. Further afield faint spirals of dust against a sky as clear as spring water marked the progress of Grit Wilson and Hamilton Stake.

They swung along cheerily. Reed with his noonday lunch wrapped in the current issue of the Plainville Progress; Cal with his thoughts busy over the favorable turn their prospects had taken. There was occasion for cheerfulness. He had literally motored into a job, and not only a job, but a home for himself and Reed. Over what the old farmer would say when he discovered that the bargain supposed to have been made in Plainville was the creature of Cal's imagination—provided the old farmer was under any delusion—Cal allowed himself no uneasiness. Sufficient to the day. It was enough that in twenty-four hours he and Reed had become members of the family. It was enough that Reed had captured the heart of the stern and overworked Mrs. Jackson Stake. The fiddling with his neck-tie—Cal was not blind. It was enough that Big Jim had muzzled his shoulder playfully that morning while he carried his mane. It was enough that the sun shone and the birds twittered as they hopped along the barbed wire fences that bordered the road and that the yellow buttercups glimpsed up shyly out of the green grass, and that little dribbles and shreds of a whistled tune fell from Reed's pursed lips as he jogged along by the side of his 'Daddy X'. It was enough.

As they crested a low ridge they caught sight of the school, a rectangular wooden building studded with windows on its northern side, and standing back a short distance from the road. It seemed to have been painted once upon a time, but wind and weather had taken their toll. The door stood open, and when Cal and Reed looked in they could at first distinguish nothing in the comparative gloom. A cool dampness greeted them from the darkness, and presently they discerned a young woman at the end of the room, her back to them, her arm raised in the act of writing on the blackboard. If she was aware of their presence she gave no sign, until at length Cal, in his deepest bass, addressed her.

'Good morning, Teacher. How about a new pupil this morning?'

She turned with a start, dropping the chalk to the floor.

'Oh, good morning, Mr. Beach. You will think me very rude. I thought it was some of my children. And is this Reed, whom I have been hearing about?'

'Mr. Beach?'

'Reed, whom I have been hearing about. Our fame precedes us.'

She took Reed's hand first, and then Cal's, and it struck Cal that their welcome seemed to be somewhat in the ratio of their ages. He had a glimpse of blue eyes, with thin, telltale puckers about them; fluffy hair; clean, sharp features, somewhat older than they would care to confess; a spare, light figure, rectangular like the school house and the school grounds and the quarter section which accommodated them. There was chalk dust on her hair and it may have been always heard that country school teachers are very wonderful.

'I have always heard that country school teachers are very wonderful,' said Cal, when she seemed waiting for him to speak. 'It is all true. How did you know my name, and his?'

There was a light dancing in her eye that was not bad to see. 'Oh, that's easy. You know a great invention. . . Then Mrs. Stake telephoned you?'

'No, she didn't. I see you are curious. I thought only girls were curious?'

Cal summed her up as a little witch. Very well.

'I offer no apology for being curious—about you,' he said.

There was a light dancing in her eye that was rather good to see.

'How nice!' she chattered. 'Then I'll tell you. Last night, between eight and nine, Hamilton Stake called up Elsie Fyfe for their usual bedtime confab. About the same time I tried to call Elsie, and found the line busy, so I listened in. Oh, don't be shocked. We all do it, although we don't all admit it. I wasn't the only one; I could tell that by the quiet lifting of receivers. You get to know it, with practice. Shall I tell you what the community knows this morning about you and Reed?'

'I am mildly interested,' he admitted, noting that there was really a curve to her throat, in defiance of her general rectangular plan. A rather pleasant curve, it was. And her eyes were full of fun, or something.

More street lights have been recently added here on the Main street and are a wonderful convenience to the residents of the place, as well as to those passing through. Especial mention is made of the one at the corner, at the top of the so called station hill, a treacherous corner on dark nights, also the good light down at the railway crossing. Both these lights were badly needed. Now a light is needed at the top of the little hill by the church. So many trees makes a dark place there.

Mr. Philip Bishop gave a party at his home on Tuesday evening in honor of the two young ladies from Sackville. A most enjoyable evening was spent, crokinole and dancing being the chief entertainment.

If you haven't yet ordered your Personal Christmas Greeting Cards, come in and look over our samples. We have some very artistic designs and the prices are reasonable. THE ACADIAN STORE.

COMPASS POINTS IN DIFFERENT DIRECTIONS

The invention of the compass is lost in the dawn of history. It is first found mentioned in a quaint Chinese legend which relates that the Emperor Hoang-ti in 2634 B.C. led forth his army and attacked the rebel Kiang in the plains of Tchou-lou. But Kiang, getting the worst of the conflict, called the wizards, magicians and sorcerers to his aid, who raised a great fog to hide Kiang and his army. Then the Emperor, not to be outdone, in his turn used the greater magic of the compass, which led his army through the great fog so that he was able to overcome Kiang and capture him.

The compass appears to have been brought to Europe in the twelfth century, most probably by the Arabians, as it is known that the Arabian and Chinese traders met in the Persian gulf; and on account of its very great practical value as a guide in all weathers, it rapidly came into general use and enabled Christopher Columbus to sail straight west from Spain, by day and by night, through fair and stormy weather, to the discovery of the New World.

But contrary to story book report, the compass does not point north, but more or less to the east or west at different places. Scientists state that this is because the magnetic poles of the earth are not situated at the geographical poles as shown on our maps of the world; that in fact the north magnetic pole is near Boothia Felix on the Arctic coast of Canada, and the south magnetic pole in South Victoria Land south from New Zealand.

It might be thought that the compass would be satisfied to call it a day's work after pointing in a different direction at each place, but such is not the case for it is all the time changing its direction and never stays put. It marches to the west for many years, then turns back and marches to the east, then reverses again and marches to the west, and in fact changes its mind more often than any maiden fair, and carries on in a different way in each place. Whether this fickleness is caused by a wandering of the earth's magnetic poles, or by something happening inside the earth, or by the sun or planets, scientists have not yet been able to find out.

It is very important to know this march of the compass, especially in Eastern Canada, because all the old land surveys in Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island were made by compass.

In spite of the fact that the compass has been known for so long, it is today more widely employed than ever before: it is the sure-fire pathfinder, the cloud by day and the pillar by night to the sailor afloat on the heaving main; the airman above the hiding clouds; the miner far underground in the deepest shaft; and explorers, surveyors, hunters, trappers, prospectors, pioneers and travellers penetrating the trackless forest, the jumbled mountains, the virgin wilderness and the far North.

But the compass still has hidden secrets. Elusive earth currents and stubborn static still act the part of highwaymen and hold up our friends the telegraph and wireless and radio. We know these highway men are in the and now-a-days, when it is desired to retrace one of the old lost boundary lines, it is necessary to know beforehand what the march of the compass has been since the time when the old survey was made.

In order that the compass may be used with reliance, therefore, the different countries of the world carry out magnetic surveys to measure its direction, and picture the information on magnetic charts for compass users.

Compass information is particularly valuable in such a large new country as Canada, and it is interesting to note that Champlain measured its direction at Halifax about 1604, John Davis in Davis Strait 1585, and Capt. Baffin in Baffin Land 1616; Capt. Middleton at Churchill and York Factory 1725; while Capt. Cook in 1778 and Capt. Vancouver in 1792 measured it along the Pacific coast. Later Sir John Franklin, 1819-26, and Sir John Lefroy, 1843-46, made some measurements, but comparatively little was done in Canada before 1880.

Since 1880, however, the Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior, has carried on a most extensive magnetic survey in this country in conjunction with its other work, at practically no expense, because the compass direction can be measured in a few minutes when the survey parties are already on the ground; until it now possesses more than 20,000 measurements, and regularly publishes magnetic maps which picture all this information for compass users.
