CHAPTER V.

It was not a pleasant face to see. The dark features were contorted, and the strong white teeth were visible between the man's heavily bearded lips.

It was all Kelpie could do to repress a shriek of horror. But she nerved herself to do her duty.

"I must try to do something for him if he is alive," she said; and, with swift but shaking hands she tore open the heavy woollen shirt and felt for the man's heart. His chest was warm, and she could feel his heart beating with quick, irregular, but strong throbs.

"Oh, thank God! he lives, he lives! I didn't kill him!" she cried joyously. "Tulliver, poor fellow, I couldn't let you put out his light, but I'm going to save your life."

The old light keeper kept a jug of brandy under his desk for emergencies, and in less time than it takes to tell it, Kelpie had poured a glass half full, and, with Tulliver's head resting against her shoulder, was holding it to his lips.

"You must swallow a little," she said; "it will do you good. Just a little, Tulliver. Ah, that's it! Now, just a little more."

As the strong liquid went down the assistant keeper's throat, he gasped a little, and a moment later opened his eyes and looked up at the girl who was bending over him.

"What are you trying to do?" he asked, in a faint voice.

"To save your life," answered Kelpie promptly. "Are you very much hurt, poor fellow?"

He struggled half up, putting his hand to his left temple, where Kelpie saw, for the first time, an ugly bruise.

"Oh, you struck your head as you tumbled downstairs!" she exclaimed. "I wonder if the bullet struck you at all? Yes; here's the wound under your shoulder; an ugly hole it is too. Oh, poor fellow, you don't know how sorry I am to see you suffer like this. You must let me try to bandage these dreadful wounds, Tulliver."

"No; let 'em alone. The sooner I'm done for, the better for all concerned," he muttered, and the next moment relapsed into unconsciousness, his head falling back on Kelpie's shoulder.

In an hour Tulliver was a very sick man, his temperature high, and his reason quite gone. It was the blow on his temple, inflicted by the sharp corner of the iron stairs, that had done the mischief, the bullet wound being comparatively harmless.

At midnight the storm was still raging with terrible fury, a wild gale blowing, and the waves running mountains high.

If Kelpie had not lived at New Castle Light for so many years she would have looked to see the gray old tower go toppling over, so strong was the force of the heavy seas that were hurled against it from time to time.

But the sea had been her cradle and the winds her lullaby, and so far as the storm went she felt comfortably at rest, but it was almost too much for her to sit all alone in the little watch room with Tulliver's convulsed face before her eyes and his wild ravings in her ears.

She had tried in vain to get him on his feet and into her grandfather's bedroom. He refused to help himself, so all the poor girl could do was to make him as comfortable as possible with pillows and blankets, on the rough floor at the foot of the stairs, where he had fallen.

His ravings were horrible to hear, and his eyes, wide open and glowing with fever, had the look of a wild creature held at bay.

"I love you," he would cry out in his frenzy; "I've loved you ever since I came to New Castle Light. Will you promise to be my wife? There's nobody in the old tower but you and me. Tom Holland was here, and he loved you, too, but I put him out of the way, and there's nobody now to come between us, my darling. You've killed me. Ha! ha! ha! a little slip of a girl, with a hand like a snowflake, to kill a great, strong fellow like me! How could you do it, sweet-heart, when I loved you so? But, no matter; it is better to die than to live without you!"

It was terrible to hear the poor fellow going on in this way, but Kelpie nerved herself to endure it.

"I must do what I can to save his life," she said; and from time to time she bathed his head and put fresh bandages on his wounds, and moistened his dry lips with brandy and water.

Meanwhile the clock struck for midnight—only midnight—and the poor girl seemed to have lived an eternity in the little watch room, with the great, glittering denses shining overhead, and Tulliver's wild, accusing eyes watching her every movement.

Down below the winds howled and the mad sea leaped and roared, and Pete, the Prophet, roused from his slumbers, fluttered down from his perch, screaming, at the top of his shrill lungs:

"Where's Tom Holland? Where's Tom? Tom! Tom Holland! Where's—"

Kelpie echoed the question. Where was Tom Holland? Had Tulliver really thrown him over the parapet as he had declared?

She had made up her mind to go below and see what she could find out, but turning toward Tulliver, she found his eyes fastened upon her with a look of diabolical derision.

"You'd like to run away and leave me to die by myself, wouldn't you, my pretty dear?" he said, with a hoarse chuckle. "But you'd better not. I'll get up and put the light out if you budge an inch; you'll see."

Kelpie grew faint with terror. Was the man possessed of the devil that he divined her very thought? She sat down in her grandfather's old chair, fairly gasping for breath, and Tulliver turned his head and watched her with the cunning of insanity in his eyes.

Would he never go to sleep? Would he lie there and watch her until the

Quickest, Surest Cough Remedy is Home-Made

Easily Prepared in a Few Minutes. Cheap but Unequaled.

Some people are constantly annoyed from one year's end to the other with a persistent bronchial cough, which is wholly unnecessary. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make you wonder what became of it. (Get 2 1/2 ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) from any druggist, pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking it at once. Gradually but surely you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether, thus ending a cough that you never thought would end. It also loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals the inflammation in a painful cough with remarkable rapidity. Ordinary coughs are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, winter coughs and bronchial asthma.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup mixture makes 16 ounces—enough to last a family a long time—at a cost of only 54 cents. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant. Easily prepared. Full directions written on the bottle. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its ease, certainty and promptness in overcoming bad coughs, chest and throat colds.

Get the genuine. Ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces Pinex" and do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

CHAPTER VI.
Pete, the parrot, came screaming to meet his mistress as she reached the last step, his green feathers ruffled up, his eyes shining like sparks of fire.

"Tom, Tom!" he croaked, beating his bill against the back of the chair, on which he perched himself.

"Where's the cap'n? Where's Tom Holland?"

"Oh, Pete! if we only knew!" cried Kelpie, in a broken voice. "They're both gone, and you and I are here all by ourselves. What shall we do, Pete?"

"Gimme a cracker!" yelled the parrot.

"Poor fellow; that's too bad," she said. "Come along and I'll give you a bit of sugar."

The parrot fluttered his wings and laughed aloud.

Kelpie opened the door of the eating room and found the table just as Tom Holland and Tulliver had left it. She gave the parrot the promised bit of sugar, and then, impelled by force of habit, she busied herself for a moment in gathering up the dishes.

As she did so she looked about the small room at the vacant chairs and her grandfather's old storm coat hanging against the wall. Her heart ached and a mist of tears blinded her eyes.

"Dear old daddy, how lonesome it is without him! I wonder if I shall ever see him again," she said, with a pitiful little sob.

A strange sound seemed to answer her—a cry of distress distinctly heard for an instant, then lost in the noise and din of the storm.

Kelpie started convulsively, the dishes she had gathered up falling from her hands.

"What was that?" she gasped. "It sounded like a cry for help."

"Man overboard!" screamed the parrot. "Man overboard! Get out the boats!"

Kelpie took no heed of his noise, however. She had already put a light ladder against the wall, and climbing swiftly, she threw open the heavy wooden shutters that inclosed a deep window, not unlike the port hole of a vessel.

The glass was dim with mist, but cleaning it hastily with her apron, she peered out.

On that side of the tower the lantern threw a strong, steady light, and Kelpie could see the rocks below, half hidden in whirling eddies of foam, as clearly as if it were broad daylight.

As she scanned the rugged coast she heard the strange, tremulous cry a second time, and, straining her eyes, she discerned a dark object on the sharp summit of a rock, which was being rapidly submerged by the incoming seas.

Once before she had looked forth from the same window and discovered a dark something on the Phantom Rock, as it was called, which had turned out to be a drowning fisherman, whose life her grandfather had saved.

"There's somebody on the Phantom Rock!" she cried. "It's a man. I can see him move. It may be daddy, or Tom. I'll lower the boat."

to scan the sea below, but she could see nothing but a blinding mist of wind-blown spray and miles of treacherous billows.

If Tulliver had told the truth, Tom Holland's ringing voice would never be heard at New Castle Light again.

The thought was a terrible one, and Kelpie's heart ached with bitter pain as she turned her back on the great glittering light and made her way downstairs.

The opiate had done its work well. She found Tulliver just as she had left him—in a dead sleep—and having bathed his hot temples and moistened his dry lips, the sorely tried girl left the little watch room and went slowly down the dark stairway that led to the room below.

The old light keeper was in the habit of trimming his lamps in the middle of the long winter nights, so as to keep them up to their utmost capacity, and Kelpie decided to do the same thing. She was determined to leave no task neglected during her grandfather's enforced absence. So, with fearless feet, she climbed the dizzy stairs, and going from burner to burner, trimmed the great lights until they glowed with redoubled effulgence, casting a broad gleam out across the storm-tossed sea.

"Where can daddy be in all this storm?" she said to herself, pausing to look out to sea when she had finished her task, "and Tom? Oh, I wonder what has become of Tom? Can it be possible that Tulliver told the truth?"

The poor girl's face looked pinched and white in the golden glare of the lantern, and her eyes were filled with vague terror as she looked out across the dreadful breakers, beneath which so many poor souls had gone down to death.

There was a spyglass on the lantern deck, and in sheer desperation, Kelpie got it and made a futile effort

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF NEWFOUNDLAND!

In the matter of the Empire Wood Working Company, Limited, and in the matter of the Companies Act, 1890.

Notice is hereby given that a petition was, on the 1st day of March, 1915, presented to the Supreme Court of Newfoundland by the above named company, praying for the confirmation by the Court of the alteration in the provisions of the Memorandum of Association of the company which are set out in the special resolution passed and confirmed at extraordinary general meetings of the company held respectively on the 8th day of January, 1915, in the terms following:—

"That with a view to carrying on the business of Milling Lumber and Manufacturing Timber which under existing circumstances may advantageously be combined with the business of the company, the Memorandum of Association of the company be altered in the following manner: namely, by including among the objects for which the company is established the following: To purchase, take on lease, or otherwise acquire, improve, work, develop, sell or otherwise deal with or turn to account lands, timber limits, and water powers, to cut, manufacture and prepare for market timber and lumber of every description and generally to carry on the business of milling lumber and manufacturing timber, to build and erect all mills, houses and other erections incidental thereto or which will afford facilities for working in connection with or in aid of any of the objects of the Company." And that such petition is directed to be heard before the Chief Justice in Chambers at the Court House in St. John's on the 11th day of March, A.D. 1915, at 10.30 o'clock in the forenoon, and that any person interested in the said Company, whether as shareholder, creditor or otherwise, desiring to be heard in opposition to the making of the order prayed in the said petition should appear at the time of hearing in person or by counsel. A copy of the said petition will be furnished by the undersigned upon payment of the regular charges for same.

OFFICIAL.

LONDON, March 8.

The Governor, Newfoundland:

The French Government reports further progress north of Arras, where the Germans suffered a serious reverse; also good progress in Champagne and Vosges. Numerous prisoners were captured.

The Russian Government reports progress on the northern front. The fighting in Western Poland, in the region of the Pilica River, is developing into a great battle.

Austrian units have been annihilated on the right bank of the San River.

In the fighting of Buzrah great loss was inflicted upon the Turks. Our own casualties are somewhat heavy.

HARCOURT.

HEAVY FIGHTING.

PARIS, March 8.

Information received here from Sluis, Holland, indicates a renewal of hostilities on a big scale along the West Flanders front. It is said the sound of terrific firing can be heard at Sluis, coming apparently from the vicinity of Ypres. Many train loads of wounded German soldiers have passed eastward through Roulers.

ALLIES FORCING THE FIGHTING.

PARIS, March 8.

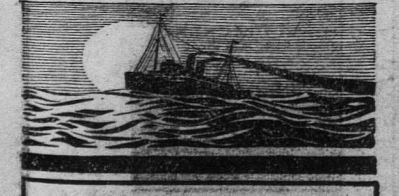

Another strong offensive movement has begun by the allies along the whole line. In the official despatches the operations of the Germans in every sphere are spoken of as counter-attacks. Another desperate struggle has developed in the Vosges mountains in the Pass of Bon Homme and not far from Hartmannswiller Kopf. Fighting in that region extends over a ten mile front with heavy infantry and artillery engaged. Advances from Belfort say that the French operations in the Vosges are uniformly successful; the Germans being outnumbered have been compelled to give ground despite their stubborn resistance. The Germans are reported to have lost 500 men in killed, wounded and captured during the past two days' fighting north of Arras.

Fighting for the trenches continues in Champagne north of Les Hostil, Perthes and Beaucourt. The Germans in that region, upon being compelled to abandon a piece of forest which they had been using as an artillery support, set the woods on fire, the flames sweeping over a big area.

RUSSIAN VICTORY REPORTED.

PETROGRAD, March 8.

The Germans are in full retreat from the forest of Augustow, and the Russians are pursuing them and are again nearing the frontier of East Prussia.

Prussia, according to official reports received to-day. Heavy fighting has been in progress in the Augustow forest for ten days, but this has terminated in a complete victory for the Russians, the second they have won in that region since the war began. In the meantime other German forces are battering away at Ossowiec fortress and are also trying to cut through the Russian lines near Pilica River between Warsaw and Ivangorod. After bombarding Ossowiec for a week, the Germans have succeeded in reaching the first line of fortifications. They made two assaults upon this line on Sunday, but were repulsed in both attempts to carry it by storm. The Ossowiec forts on the south bank of Bobr silenced two of the heavy German batteries.

GERMAN GENERAL KILLED.

BERLIN, March 8.

Major General Von Bistritz, Commander of the Landwehr Brigade, and member of the Prussian Diet, was killed in battle near Lamsa, in Poland, last Saturday. He had been well known as a writer on military subjects, since his retirement from active service.

BEATING DOWN TURKISH DEFENCES.

LONDON, March 8.

With inexorable precision, cautiously and without haste, the attacks of the Anglo-French coast defenses continue, according to despatches from Athens. It is predicted now that the Dardanelles will be forced within the next fortnight, and that before the beginning of April British and French warships will be hammering at the Gates of the Golden Horn.

AROUND THE PERSIAN GULF.

LONDON, March 8.

In a statement issued this evening regarding recent fighting between British troops and Turkish forces at the head of the Persian Gulf, the Official Press Bureau said: "The enemy's losses near Alwaz, in Kurdistan, on March 3rd, were heavier than previously reported; 600 were killed and many wounded. In an action on the western flank, the enemy lost 300 killed."

HEAVY GUNFIRE HEARD.

AMSTERDAM, March 8.

For the first time since Admiral Sir David Beatty engaged the German squadron in the North Sea in the latter part of January, heavy gunfire according to a despatch from the Hook of Holland, to the Telegram, was heard in the North Sea to-day.

RESULT OF BLOCKADE.

LONDON, March 8.

The British Admiralty announces that out of a total of 1,513 ships arriving at, and 1,342 leaving Britain during the period from Feb. 18th to March 3rd only seven were torpedoed by hostile submarines.

'LA TOURAINE' SAFE.

LONDON, March 8.

A message to Lloyds from Havre to-night announces the arrival of the 'La Touraine' at that port.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

LONDON, March 8.

No belligerent Government has a right to requisition a cargo belonging to a neutral government, according to a decree given out by the Prize Court to-day. The question at issue arose over 1,000 tons of copper sent from the United States to Gothenburg, Sweden, and destined for the use of contractors to the Swedish Government. This cargo was captured by a British warship, and an ex parte order was made by the Registrar of the Prize Court, releasing the copper to the British Government, which desired to requisition it for making guns at the Woolwich arsenal. The Swedish owners of the copper asked the Prize Court to discharge the order of the Registrar, and in spite of the opposition of the Attorney General, on behalf of the Government, Sir Samuel T. Evans, President of the Admiralty Court, decided in favor of the Swedes. He said the copper would not be disposed of pending prize proceedings, still to come before court.

MORE FORTS SILENCED.

LONDON, March 8.

It was officially announced in London this evening that the Turkish battery at Mount Dardana, and the forts of Rurpili, Midjeidieh, Tabar and Wamidjeh Itabia in the Dardanelles, have been silenced by the shells from the Allied fleet. The British battleship Queen Elizabeth, the announcement also said, was hit by a shot from the Turkish forts and slightly damaged.

COLLIER SUNK.

LONDON, March 8.

The Admiralty announces that the British collier Bengrave was sunk on Sunday, probably by a torpedo, off Fitzcumb, which lies ten miles northwest of Barnstable, County Devon, England.

B. C. ELECTIONS.

VICTORIA, March 8.

Sir Richard McBride announced to-night that Saturday, April 30, would be the date of the provincial elections. The Legislature was dissolved to-day.

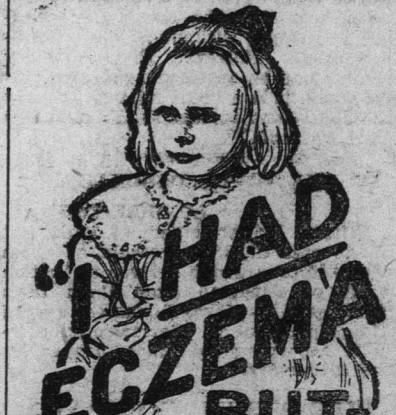

WILL BE HELD AS CRIMINALS.

LONDON, March 8.

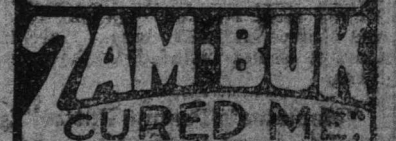

The Admiralty announces it is not justified in extending honors to captured crews of German submarine boats, owing to their methods, and that it is intended to segregate them under special restrictions, pending their possible conviction at the conclusion of peace. The Admiralty states that this ruling applies to the 23 officers belonging to the German submarine U-8 which was sunk recently off Dover. This policy to be adopted toward the crews of German submarines, was made known in an answer to the demand of Admiral Beresford, retired, and others, that such men be tried for murder. The Admiralty statement refers to the generous treatment accorded to the German officers and men saved, numbering upwards of one thousand, and then says, with reference to the U-8, this vessel had been operating in the Straits of Dover and in the English Channel, and there is a strong possibility that she has been guilty of attacking and sinking unarmed merchantmen, and firing torpedoes at ships carrying non-combatants, neutrals and women. In particular, the steamer Oriole is missing and there is grave reason to fear that she has been sunk with all hands numbering twenty.

FUNERAL YESTERDAY.

— The funeral of the late Mrs. James Penock took place from her late residence, Forest Road, yesterday afternoon and was largely attended. Rev. Canon Bolt officiated in the chapel and at the graveside. Interment was at the C. of E. Cemetery.

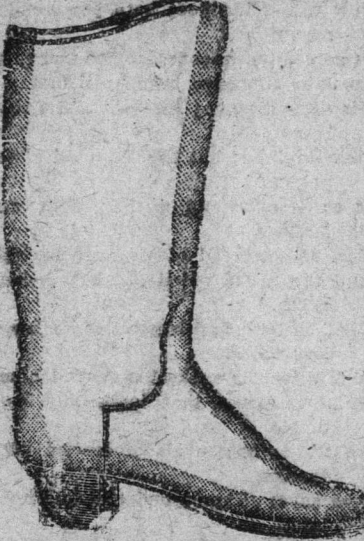

"I HAD ECZEMA BUT"
Mrs. Elgin Cosslett, Joggins Bridge, N.S., says: "When my little daughter was five months old a rash broke out on her face and body. I called in a doctor, who stated that it was eczema, and treated her for it. His treatment, however, did not bring any relief, and the child got worse. I then tried a great many salves and so-called eczema cures, but nothing proved of any benefit. The sores continued to spread, and became one large mass. One day a friend advised me to try Zam-Buk. "At that time the disease had defied all remedies for over a year. By the time I had used one box of Zam-Buk there was a marked improvement. I continued the Zam-Buk treatment and day by day the sores showed signs of improvement. Finally Zam-Buk banished every trace of the disease." For the tender delicate skin of babies, nothing equals Zam-Buk. Unlike other ointments, it is purely herbal. Use Zam-Buk for cuts, bruises, eczema, piles, cold sores, chapped hands, and all skin diseases and injuries. At all druggists and stores, 50c. box. Name "Zam-Buk" is on every box, refuse substitutes.

Are You a Stenographer?

If you are a Stenographer, this will appeal to you, for it tells of DICK'S SPECIAL, the best Typewriter Ribbon to be had anywhere at any price. They sell at only 60c. each, $6.00 per dozen (not less than half a dozen sold at the dozen price). For three years we have been experimenting with Typewriter Ribbons, and during that time we have tested some dozens of different makes; but of none of them we have been so absolutely sure that we would guarantee them. At last we have found a Ribbon that has stood our most severe test. We have had one of them in use on our own typewriter for over three months, and the copies now are as clean and as clear as they were when first we began to use it. It is Non-Filling, Non-Fading, and Non-Drying; only the finest fabrics and the brightest colors have been used, so that it makes Sharp Writing, Solid Prints and Strong Copies. We have them in Purple Record and Purple Copying, in Black Record and Black Copying, in Red Record and Red Copying; and we have them for Underwoods, Oliviers, L. C. Smith's, Remingtons, Smith-Premier, Empire, Fox, Denmore, Bar-Loek, Hammond, New Century, and all the other Machines used in the city and outposts.

The Patriotic Fund on the French Shore.

The secondazaar on this part of our coast for the benefit of the Patriotic Fund was held at Griquet on Jan. 28th. For one month we had been making our preparations, and the plan was for each little neighboring village to have a stall of the goods made by the people, and with that purpose we visited every village to explain matters.

A full-moon evening had been chosen, so as to enable friends from a distance to attend, and a heavy blizzard of snow on the two preceding days made the most optimistic of us somewhat fearful of the result of the fair. However, six well loaded komatiks left from St. Anthony on the morning of the sale, and were joined by others from Brehat and The Bight, as we went North. When we arrived, the large Orange Hall was already decorated, and the stalls arranged within, while there was also a good representative crowd from other parts of the coast, some having come from as far as thirty miles. Every corner of the village abounded in dog teams, and every house overflowed with generous hospitality. The good war news of the successful North Sea naval battle lent interest to the opening speech, and the buying began with such vigor, that for some of the useful articles, many purchasers were soon contending in miniature battle.

The idea of making useful things in one's spare time had enabled everyone to help. But with such an array of good things, wherever was all the money coming from to buy them? Several of our richer men had not come to help us out on this occasion. Cape Norman people had brought a splendid contribution of komatik pieces and snow shoes; Ha Ha had sent many beautiful mats, woolen articles, skin boots, swings and a most excellent hand-made baby cradle. The gifts from Noddy Bay and Quirpon included cow hides, racquet bows, netting needles and dog whips, while Griquet itself had specialized more in articles, and household linen. The Brehats had raised cash and purchased goods further south, besides sending many articles made by the ladies. St. Leonard's sent wine, loads of fire-wood, and refreshments, while St. Anthony had a stall which contained a mixture of everything from candies to dolls cradles. The array of wonderful cakes, buns, sandwiches, soup and tea from Griquet itself, forms a large feature of the fair, and their long refreshment stall was a vaudeville of continuous entertainment from start to finish. A five cent dip-well, a bean guessing competition, a big barrel of spruce beer, and such adjuncts all added largely to the success of the occasion.

One of two kind friends had sent in cash donations, both our lighthouses being represented in this way. There was a football match between Griquet and a team made up from all the visiting villages, while an Auction and an illustrated stereopticon lecture brought the day to a close. Only two small articles had not been sold out of the hundreds made and given, and these two had got covered up by mistake, and were promptly disposed of to the committee who remained to count the proceeds. Five hundred and fifteen dollars was the total, and this with over a hundred dollars collected previously, with between five and six hundred from St. Anthony, two hundred from Conche and two hundred from Englee, will make a total of over fifteen hundred dollars from our small and somewhat out-of-the-way district of Newfoundland. Griquet, moreover, has sent six of her sons, St. Anthony, three, and Conche and Englee each at least one, while others also have volunteered.

There is sure to be some sore-head in every crowd, and remembering the Government relief that once used to be almost an annual affair on this coast, his kick this time was that we could not afford so much. Well, we haven't done yet. While the war continues, and our brave lads are giving their lives for our safety, it makes some of us feel queer to hear any man who loves his country cry a halt to helping, while he has a penny left to spend on luxuries. Our fish is higher than it has ever been, a direct result of the war, we are told; the pill-prop industry has been added to our revenues; and owing to our splendid Navy, who is afraid here of the fate of Louvain or Termonde, or a hundred French and Belgian villages.

We are told that over six thousand dollars was spent in tobacco in this district last year, and approximately two thousand in spirituous liquors. For although no saloons are allowed on the coast, the liquor dealers in St. John's send the stuff down in the mail boats as regularly as clock work.

We feel that so far the coast has honored itself with these little fairs. It has done well. May every other section of the Empire of which we are so justly proud, and so fortunate as to be members of, do as well in proportion, and we believe that we can do it.

No better day have I ever spent on this coast than at the Griquet fair. Petty differences were forgotten, sect and creed no longer divided, love and jollity abounded as the outcome of the people's unselfishness—and when we returned for the last hospitality of the day, for which our shore is so justly famous, the "Joie de vivre," which the strain of modern life seems to be increasingly regarding as a perquisite of youth, throbbd in all our veins. Our best wish for every section of Newfoundland is that it may have just such another day.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Will you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper for a few remarks from Pouch Cove. I have seen some reports from many other places around, and thought it time to let you know that we are not at all idle here with regard to working for our soldiers.

The Methodist and the Roman Catholic ladies banded together early in the winter, and have been working hard, knitting and sewing ever since. They have not confined their work to this alone, either, but in order to gain funds for their work, and do all in their power, they got up a concert. Under the able supervision of (Rev.) Mrs. Browning, who is President of this branch of the W.P.A., the concert was well prepared and rendered. The programme consisted of dialogues, recitations and singing, etc., and the ladies who took part are highly commended for their grand work.

After the concert, tea and soup were served, and at the end, the magnificent sum of fifty dollars ($50.00) was realized. The R. C. Hall was kindly given over for the purpose, and everyone will agree with the writer in saying that a more successful entertainment was never held at Pouch Cove. It certainly showed what the ladies can do when once they get to work. Trusting that I have not trespassed too far on your valuable paper, and thanking you for space, Mr. Editor, I will close. God be with our gallant soldiers On the land and on the sea, While they're watching, guarding, fighting For our land—for you and me. MEMBER. Pouch Cove, March 6, 1915.

For Ways That Are Dark.

The American people are having their eyes opened to the wily ways of the Germans resident in the United States. The campaign of the German-Americans to aid Germany by their efforts to induce the American Government to commit the unneutral act of forbidding their citizens to trade in arms has been fully exposed. Now we find that the authorities have been investigating a conspiracy against the on the indictment against Stegler, German resident, has been charged with two other persons with obtaining an American passport by false representations. Stegler himself implicates a German military attaché and a German naval attaché at Washington in the affair. A Federal Grand Jury has returned a true bill on the indictment against Stegler, and also against Richard Madden in whose name the passport was issued and against Gustave Poole, of Hoboken, who is charged with participating in obtaining the passport. The attaches of course deny connection with Stegler. The charge against the indicted men will be tried in the usual way. If the charge is sustained, the facts warrant Stegler's story of the attaches' complicity, no doubt President Wilson will take the proper steps in obtaining the withdrawal of the attaches from Washington. Another case of conspiracy against the United States is attracting considerable attention. A Federal Grand Jury has been investigating charges of violations of the Customs Laws in connection with the supplying of German cruisers in the Atlantic. A true bill has been found against five men for conspiracy to defraud the Government through the filing at the Customs House of false records, false clearances of vessels and false manifests of cargoes.

The Federal Grand Jury had been investigating a complaint made by Sir Courtney Walter Bennett, British Consul-General here, and evidence submitted by the office of the United States district attorney. Sir Courtney alleged violations of the Customs law in connection with the chartering of the American steamships Berwind and Lorenzo and the Norwegian steamships Fram and Sommerstad. Gotter is superintendent of the Hamburg-American Line here, and Seffner was super-cargo of the Lorenzo, a vessel owned by the New York and Porto Rico Steamship Co., which was surprised and captured in West Indian waters by a British cruiser while coaling the German cruiser Karlsruhe.

The Federal authorities here are said to have learned of the operations and movements of the Berwind and the Lorenzo in their efforts to furnish supplies to the German auxiliary cruiser Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse and the Karlsruhe from various members of the crews of the two American ships. The sailors complained that they had been badly treated on the trips to the German warships. Alleged facts in this connection were considered by the Grand Jury.

Burglary.

A few nights ago some unknown person or persons broke into an unoccupied house in the neighbourhood of Hopkinstown and stole a considerable quantity of clothing. An entrance was effected through a window at the rear of the building, as an investigation proved this. The police have the matter in hand and have a slight clue to work on.

Supreme Court.

The Court met at 11 a.m. to-day. Present the full Bench. Mary Eleanor Rawlins vs. William H. Liddy.—On motion of Kent, K.C., and with consent of Gibbs, K.C., this matter was referred to Mr. Conroy, the master.

William F. Coaker vs. Robinson & Co. Ltd.—Morine, K.C., moves for leave to withdraw this action, on the understanding that each party pays its own costs. Furlong, K.C., for defendants consents. It is ordered accordingly. The Court adjourned until 11 a.m. to-morrow.

GERMANS STEAL SHAKESPEARE.

It appears that Germans, convinced that Shakespeare's works disapprove of the British policy of to-day and that Shakespeare would find England to-day as repulsive as Germans do, have decided to transfer Shakespeare's birthplace and home from England to the land of real Kultur. The deed of transfer took the form of a poem, recited at the Altes Theatre, Leipzig, as a prologue to a recent performance of "Twelfth Night," the reciter appropriately enough being Olivia's fool:—

My master, the great poet, who behind This curtain built—his world, and therewith too In numerous other worlds as marvelous— Ye know him well, for near as man can climb To godhead, he won godhead by his works— Now this same poet hath commanded me In solemn earnest to declare you this: Ye unto him have been until to-day His second home; his first and native home Was England; but this England of the present Is so contrarious in her acts and feelings

Ye, so abhorred of his pure majesty And the proud spirit of his free-born being. That he doth find himself quite homeless there. A fugitive, he seeks his second home, This Germany, that loves him most of all, To whom before all others he gives thanks. And says: Thou wonderful and noble land

Remain thou Shakespeare's one and only home, So that he wander not, uncomprehended, Without a shelter in the barren world.

HEALTH OF TROOPS IS REMARKABLE.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—The military attaches of neutral countries, among them Major Spencer Cosby, and Major James A. Logan, Jr., U.S.A., last week visited the French and British battle line, starting from Arras. They report that they found the health of the troops remarkable. Only Two hundred men in the 11th Corps were on the sick list.

Dr. Cagniard, after five months' observation at the front, declares that all former records have been upset by the present war. The number of deaths from illness being less than from wounds, which is said to be contrary to previous experience.

In spite of the conditions predisposing to typhoid, the soldiers are being kept in good health. The men sent to hospitals for all maladies decreased 95 per cent in six weeks and that now less than which is said, as compared with an average of 4 per cent when the soldiers are in barracks. Seventy-seven per cent of the injured are now recovering. The number of deaths from illness being less than from wounds, which is said to be contrary to previous experience.

The neutral attaches declare that the Allies' soldiers are being boundedly fed and that they are well clothed and in excellent spirits.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel fit my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. JOSIE HAM, R. F. D. 1, Box 22, Shamrock, Missouri.

AIR ATTACK ON OSTEND.

LONDON, To-day. The Admiralty issued the following statement: Commander Longmore reports that the air attack on Ostend was carried out yesterday afternoon by six aeroplanes of the naval wing. Of these two had to return owing to their petrol freezing. The remainder reached Ostend and dropped eleven bombs on the submarine repair base; four bombs on the Kursaal, the headquarters of the military. All the machines and pilots returned. It is probable considerable damage was done. No submarines were seen in the basin.

BRITISH NAVAL SUPERIORITY.

BERLIN, To-day. In an article in the Vorwärts a former London correspondent of the newspaper in dealing with the Dardanelles attack says: "The composition of the British fleet appears to confirm the rumor that Britain has added two squadrons of new ships to her navy since we began the sending of Queen Elizabeth type of vessels to the Mediterranean shows how little is the anxiety the British Admiralty feels concerning its superiority in the North Sea. The view generally expressed is that the Dardanelles cannot be forced without a heavy landing party. However, this difficulty should not be given exaggerated importance. It is a great mistake to view the operations against the Dardanelles as mere bluff."

THE PAPER BLOCKADE.

LONDON, To-day. Fifteen British steamers sunk out of a total of 8,734 vessels of more than 200 tons which arrived at British ports or departed from them from January 21 to March 3 was the record of achievement of German submarines, according to figures issued by the Admiralty.

FEWER SHIPS BUILT IN BRITAIN IN 1914.

London, Feb. 9.—Great Britain's output of new merchant ships in 1914 shows a decrease of 248,000 tons over the record year of 1912, but at the same time the past year's building of 656 vessels of 1,683,553 tons will compare favorably with any other good period.

Of the vessels launched in 1914, says Lloyd's Register in its summary a fourth of the tonnage went to other countries, of which Holland was the largest single buyer. The Clyde district still remains first in Great Britain in ship construction, followed by the Tyne, the West, Belfast, Middlesbrough and Hartlepool.

Outside the United Kingdom there were launched 663 vessels of 1,169,200 tons in the past year, a decrease of 231,000 tons as compared with 1913. Germany led in this production with 387,192 tons, the United States with 200,762 tons, Holland 118,153 tons, and France 114,032 tons. Warship tonnage is not included in these returns.

Sagona Chartered For Cabot Strait.

The s.s. Sagona, Capt. Kennedy, which arrived in port from Louisbourg yesterday afternoon with a cargo of coals to the Nfd. Produce Co., has been chartered by the Reid Strait to replace the Bruce on Cabot Strait while the latter ship is on dock. The Sagona's coal cargo will be discharged at the dock premises, and as soon as the ice clears she will leave for North Sydney to take up the Cabot Strait route in conjunction with the Kyle. A large quantity of freight has accumulated at North Sydney since the Bruce was put out of commission and one steamer is unable to do the work. The charter of the Sagona for this route will probably be ready to take up the service by the end of the week.

Fogota Among The Whitecoats.

The S.S. Fogota, Capt. Dalton, which left here for the northward on February 16th, is now into a big patch of whitecoats off Pinchard's Island, Bonavista Bay. The little ship it will be remembered, was jammed in the ice at King's Cove for several days on the way north, then at Greenspond and later at Wesleyville. She left the latter port at 4 p.m. Friday last, coming South, and was at Greenspond until yesterday afternoon when the ice slackened considerably, and she started for the north again. She is now at Pinchard's Island endeavouring to get down to Newtown to land mails and passengers. The seals are numerous Pinchard's Island, and according to the drift of the ice are coming right into Bonavista Bay.

BULLET-HEADED ARGUMENT.

A true illustration of the reasoning powers of the Prussian bureaucracy comes to us in the latest batch of literature that still continues to pour into every newspaper office from subsidized German sources in New York. It is headed, "Current Miscalculations About the War." If argument of this kind were not so pathetic it would be funny.

The German military officers, seem not to have lived a fine-upon Brussels. Rather they seem to have imposed these levies, in place of taxes, and are in place of regulations. Hence their system of "contributions" may prove to be highly commendable. It may be reasoned on the same line that the butchery of defenceless priests, women and children in Belgium was the best thing for the victims, who might have starved if they had been permitted to live.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

PARTICULAR ABOUT COMPANY THEY KEEP.

London, Feb. 25.—"The English have placed themselves beyond the pale of human recognition. They are utter barbarians and as such are not fit to be admitted to civilized German circles."

So writes Prof. von Leyden in the Frankfurter Zeitung. He continues in the same vein: "When peace has been restored not a self-respecting German will ever consent to remain in any room of 'Germans are the salt of the earth.' If the German cannot eject the Englishman he will himself leave the room."

"We cannot be expected to breathe the same polluted air as our deadliest foes who fell upon us from the rear and in the dark. There can be no rest or repose for any honest German till the British Empire has been swept into the oblivion of past history."

He deals with Russia and France in similar trenchant fashion. Prof. von Leyden concludes: "Finally there are the neutral nations. Most of them sympathize unreservedly with the English, Russians and French; most of them entertain hostile feelings against Germany."

"Let us ban them from our homes and our tables; they must understand that they are condemned to be left out in the cold just because they do not merit German approval. 'Germans are the salt of the earth; they will fulfill their destiny, which is to rule the world and to control other nations for the benefit of mankind.'"

AN UNQUALIFIED SUCCESS. A large attendance, clear and much enthusiasm combined make last night's Charity Ice race at the Prince's Rink, the unqualified success that they were. Over a hundred people were present, including His Excellency the Governor was accompanied by Lady Davidson and Miss Davidson.

At 8 o'clock, the time appointed the first event to start, standing was at a premium. Every available place around the boards was filled while the reserve seats were well filled.

BOYS' RACE. The first item on the program was a one mile race for boys under years of age. Nine competitors the starter. Kavanagh came first in mins. 51 1-5 secs.; Squires, 2nd; Lett, 3rd.

ALL-COMERS' RACE. This was an exciting event. The distance was one mile or 13 laps. Young men entered, namely; Squires, Woods, Hackett, Evans and F. They got away in this order but one lap the later fell and later screeching that his chances were less, stopped. Each of the others led in turn. When the bell rang for the last three rounds Squires made a splendid spurt and broke the tape first in 3 mins. 26 3-5. Hackett, 2nd.; Woods, 3rd.

LADIES' HOCKEY.

Next came the ladies' hockey between the Kewpies and Billies. The time limit was twenty minutes each way. The game was a draw. The exhibition creditable and aroused great enthusiasm, and the stick handling of Crowley for the Billies, and of Sotry, of the Kewpies, would credit to some League players. The result was one goal each, scored by Misses Storey and Reid. Mr. Herder was referee.

COLLEGE HOCKEY.

Undoubtedly the fastest and best of hockey that has been seen at the rink for several years was the contest between the City and the collegiate players. The contest was between the Collegians vs. the Bon's and Fieldlans. The former by two goals to nil, R. Stick doing the trick on each occasion, after clever work.

LEAGUE HOCKEY.

The final event was none the less interesting between the City and the Collegians, this season's champions. The City scored first through Higgins, followed by Payne equalizing, notched up No. 2 and Payne also evened the tally. In quick succession Payne notched up two more goals. Munn then sent in the 5th goal, Payne the 6th for the Fieldlans, by scoring the 3rd for the city.

General skating followed until 11 o'clock, while the ladies skated.

During the evening the City band, under Capt. Bulley, rendered lightful airs, principally patriotic amount of proceeds is not yet known, but we understand are in the region of $350, which will be distributed equally among the Dorcas and Vincent de Paul Societies and the St. John Army for the relief of the city poor.

To Mr. Arthur Bulley, the promoter and to the Committee generally; also to the prize donors Messrs. T. J. Duley, F. Martin, J. Ayre and P. Johnson, the success of the event is due in a large measure.

White linens was employed for this model, with trimming of striped ratine. The design would be pretty in rose colored gingham, or blue seersucker. It is suitable for all wash fabrics, and lovely for lawn and batiste, for cashmere, voile and poplin. A neat and becoming business suit could be developed after this pattern in serge of a pretty Burgundy shade, or the new brown or Russian green, with braid binding or silk or woolen of contrasting material for trimming. The right area of the waist is crossed over the left in surplice style, and the low neck opening is filled in with a "dickey" or insert. This of net, tucking or embroidery would be very neat and cool looking. A new round collar and simple cuffs finish the smart waist. The skirt is gored and cut on new lines, with ample width at the foot. It may be finished in raised or normal waistline. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 6 1/2 yards of 44 inch material for a 36 inch size. The skirt measures 2 1/2 yards at the lower edge.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

CHAPTER XIX.

While Grand Bank has much to be said for its improvement, and judging from the public opinion of the place we think these improvements are near. The first great boon that should be done to Grand Bank would be its connection with the Capital by rail, and to this we think that the first step of the electric plant would be to connect the railway line with the bank business and earning power of Bank twenty-five per cent. in very short time, and the electric would be an all-round conveyance. Following these should be a supply for the town, and probably laundry or two. That these improvements will soon take place at Grand Bank we feel certain, and we hope that the next time we visit there, that it will not be to be delayed twelve days.

About four miles from Grand Bank lies the thriving town of Fortuque having arranged for a public school at that place, we started to go by foot. The day was wet and the tramp was none the better for it, and was far better for health than sitting around the house or lounging about in ease. The looks on the sea-side, and the looks treacherous and grim, kept in a good state of repair, about one mile outside of Grand Bank we noticed a very large building near the road side towards the ocean, on nearing it we noticed that it had an inscription painted in black letters across the stone, underneath the reading the date Feb. 11.

The word on the stone is times a striking one, and one of the old-time preachers constantly before their congregations, but we had not heard so often now-a-days the word "ETERNITY." What this word on the huge rock we know, and whether it was a vision on the part of the one who we do not know; but there it stands in the majesty of its silence, the passer-by that the journey of Time ends not. It often that such words are paid such conspicuous places, and busy men hurrying to and fro, are so suddenly and so conditionally confronted with the Bundles.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Don't you just love bundles? I don't mean bundles to carry or to do up, but to receive and open.

There are few things I hate more than to do up a bundle and few things I love more than to unwrap one which the postman or the expressman has brought me.

The Poor Little Rich Children.

I once attended a Christmas tree at which the father, who acted as Santa Claus, himself unwrapped each package before giving it to the children. The gifts were expensive and desirable but I could have wept for those children. Just think of having the fun of ripping off the string and unfolding the paper and seeing the thing emerge, taken away from you.

There is a fascination about bundles which transcends what we actually expect from them. They are so mysterious, so fraught with infinite possibilities. We open them with the zest with which we turn a page of life. You see, there might be almost anything in an unopened bundle just as there might be on the unturned page.

When Mother Came Home From Town.

Children (both those of small stature and the full grown kind) are especially fond of bundles, perhaps because their belief in the infinite possibilities of things in general is less tarnished. Will you ever forget how you used to hang about your mother when she came from town with her arms full of fascinating bundles?

WHY HAIR FALLS OUT

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Dandruftin at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After a few applications all dandruff disappears and the hair stops

After the War.

When the war is over, with its wealth of gore—the worst that the world ever knew, when the throbbing drum and the life are dumb, oh, what will the dandrels do? They may watch and wait by the garden gate as they watched in the days of yore, but the strong young men will return again to the twilight, try to no more. War's shadow falls on the hats and balls, and through it the old men grope; but the darker shade of the for the widowed maids who mourn o'er the wreck of hope. It is their to moon and to walk alone a desolate path and here, and the whispered vows "neath the swaying boughs are things of the yesterday. When the tale is told the infirm and old may weep for their strong young men; "and it's well," they'll sigh, "that we soon shall die, and be with our sons again." But the widowed maids in the darker shades no comfort like that can win; through the years they'll wait for the Jasper gate to open and let them in.

Roumania to Take The Field in April.

Paris, March 1.—Take Janescu, the Roumanian Minister of the Interior, informed a meeting of Conservative democrats who were discontented with the party policy, according to special despatches from Bucharest, that he had not attacked the government because J. J. C. Latiario, former premier and minister of the interior, had concluded a formal agreement for common action with the Triple Entente powers, Great Britain, France and Russia.

Proof of this will be found, Janescu said, in the Roumanian loan made in London, which it would have been impossible to arrange if the Bucharest cabinet had not made a categorical statement of its position.

fooling the Submarines

Occasionally we learn of humorous incidents of the war that tend to lighten the general gloom that surrounds the operations of land and sea. One of these is a device adopted by the British admiralty to fool the German submarines. In the many ports and shipyards of the British Isles are scores of merchantmen of various types that for various reasons have been withdrawn from active service. But although intended for an ignominious finish on the scrap heap, the war has found for them a useful if odd part. They are rigged up as dummy warships, and cruising up and down the North Sea where the submarines are likely to be operating, lead the real cruisers and battleships and take up the time that is valuable to the enemy, while there is always a chance of luring them into range of a British cruiser or destroyer. It is said to be a simple matter to "fake" these boats so as to give them the appearance of warships. Some changes to the masts and funnels and a dummy barbettes would easily deceive a submarine, which under the most favorable conditions is limited in its steering capacity. They are the clowns, the masqueraders of the blockading fleets, but it requires a fine courage and daring to man them as it is their definite business to cruise in the danger zones. To bluff in their game and long may they continue to escape mine and torpedo, incidentally furnishing a laugh, although doubtless the Germans have failed to see the joke.—London Advertiser.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

As a mother is responsible for the health of her children, so also does she take a most important part in building their characters, and many people will profit or suffer through her influence.

The boy who is accustomed to treat his sister and mother with tender loving manners, will make an ideal husband. If he has been trained to open the door and allow ladies to pass out first, to raise his cap, or carry a parcel, etc., the seeds of "politeness and refinement are sown."

Good manners stick through life, and are worth a very great deal. A brusque or harsh style is detrimental both socially and professionally. It is the atmosphere of home life, during the growing years that affects the manners of boys and girls, and decides whether they go out in the world with pleasing or displeasing ways.

Grand Bank and Fortune.

CHAPTER XIX.

While Grand Bank has much in its favour there is still room for improvement, and judging from the public opinion of the place we think that these improvements are near at hand. The first great boon that should come to Grand Bank would be its connection with the Capital by rail, and next to this we think that the installation of the electric plant would be in order. The railway line ought to increase the business and earning power of Grand Bank twenty-five per cent. within a very short time, and the electric light would be an all-round convenience. Following these should be a water supply for the town, and probably a laundry or two. That these improvements will soon take place at Grand Bank we feel certain, and we therefore hope that the next time we visit for a few hours, that it will not be possible to be delayed twelve days.

About four miles from Grand Bank lies the thriving town of Fortune, and having arranged for a public meeting at that place, we started to reach it by foot. The day was wet and sleety, but the tramp was none the less enjoyable, and was far better for one's health than sitting around the stove, or lounging about in ease. The road leads on by the sea-side, and at places looks treacherous and grim, though kept in a good state of repair. When about one mile outside of Grand Bank, we noticed a very large boulder cleft near the road side towards the sea; on nearing it we noticed that it contained an inscription painted in bold black letters across the stone, and underneath the reading the date 1898.

The word on the stone is at all times a striking one, and one that the old-time preachers constantly kept before their congregations, but which is not heard so often now-a-days. It is the word "ETERNITY." Who painted this word on the huge rock we do not know, and whether it was a wise action on the part of the one who did it we do not know; but there it stands, and in the majesty of its silence reminds the passer-by that the great journey of Time ends not. It is not often that such words are painted in such conspicuous places, and that busy men hurrying to and fro in the world, are so suddenly and so unconditionally confronted with the great thought which this one word represents. Tennyson speaks of "sermons in stones," but Grand Bank gives a more practical illustration of sermonizing by its sermon of one word painted upon the rock in question.

Leaving the stone in our rear we pushed on amidst the storm, and an hour after arrived at Fortune where we were warmly welcomed by the Rev. Mr. Pincock and his good lady, and also by the good people of the place. Fortune presents a very compact appearance and like its neighbor Grand Bank it possesses a very proportionate share of independence. A splendid church and comfortable school rooms and nice society halls, all tell the tale of independence and devotion. Among the names which are prominent at Fortune are those of Lake, Bennett, Hewitt, Hickman, Forsyth, and Tulk. The harbour itself is small and requires a good deal of dredging, but the inlet beyond the harbour struck us as being a very beautiful spot, which should be well adapted to gardening and fruit raising.

We heard complaints that the dredge did not stay long enough in the district; but this no doubt will be remedied at an early date, and the obstacles which now interfere with the trade of the place will be removed. Grand Bank and Fortune have a very serious problem to unravel in the matter of their harbours, and the sooner it is grappled with and the situation secured the better will it be for the district, and the cheaper will it be for the Government. The large amount of trade done in these two harbours is sufficient guarantee to demand immediate attention in this direction. Unfortunately many of our public questions are treated from a purely party political standpoint; and no doubt Grand Bank and Fortune harbours have had their share of the same. We do not know where these places stand politically, nor do we wish to know, but from the stand point of impartiality, and the commercial worth of the places in question, we certainly think that some steps ought to be taken for the dredging and enlarging, and more properly securing the water ways and anchorage of Grand Bank and Fortune. The harbours require it, and business demands it, and the people are worthy of it.

THE BATTLE CRUISER.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Swash."

Next to the submarine, the most disagreeable craft to have around when peace isn't being indulged in is the battle cruiser.

The United States, which proceeds cautiously, adopting naval plans as soon as other nations have discarded them, has not as yet discovered the battle cruiser, but Germany has. She discovered some of England's late in December, and also in January. The result of the discovery in each instance was tragic in the extreme.

The battle cruiser is a sort of welter-weight battleship, with express train attachments. It carries guns big enough to shoot up anything afloat, and enough armor to make it impervious to any shells smaller than a nail keg. It also contains a set of engines which can drive it about 35 miles an hour.

This is the greatest talent of the battle cruiser. It is faster than the old style torpedo boat, and it can run away from a torpedo itself. It is faster than a limited train on a "safety first" railroad. It is so fast that it only has to fight when it wants to.

When a battle cruiser goes out on a little gunning expedition and meets a flock of battleships, the captain does not lash the flag to the mast and order the band to play while the ship is going down. He turns around and runs. The Lusitania would look like a dock beside a battle cruiser which was engaged in going away from somewhere at top speed. But when the battle cruiser meets an enemy with guns a little smaller in the waist than its own, it doesn't also run. It runs just fast enough to allow the enemy's shots to make beautiful fountains of water about 1,000 yards astern while it is dropping shells in the said enemy's smokestacks and other vital spots and shooting it into a mass of unidentified remains.

England has many very fine battle cruisers, and so has Germany. If these cruisers ever become peeved at the United States they would cause us a great deal of embarrassment. They would run away from our battleships and would refuse to let anything else run away from them. If our fastest cruiser set out to catch a real battle cruiser, the latter would catch up with it from behind and ram it in the stern in less than two weeks. A battle cruiser is very docile when kindly treated by its owner, and why our navy department is so afraid of them is a mystery.

"Cascarets" Cleanse Liver and Bowels.

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Candy Cathartic.

Are you keeping your liver, stomach and bowels clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

No odds how sick, headachy, bilious and constipated you feel, a Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a gentle cleansing, too.

DANCING AS A BEAUTIFER.

The popularity of the dansants seem in no way to have lost favor after two years. The modern dances are real beauty aids because they are fun making dances. Exercise of any sort is almost lacking in benefits if one does not throw oneself into it with heart interest. The mind must be pleased and contented or the muscles will move half heartedly as well. Because music and social life are a part of dancing it is more joyously exhilarating than any other form of exercise.

Like Tennis and swimming, dancing is beneficial because it uses all the muscles. The folk dances, as they are taught in the public schools of the cities, give the pulse of perfect muscular control.

The Grecian classical dances confer an even more perfect grace. If you find that the modern dances are too energetic and tire the heart and lungs, join one of the classes which teach the slow, classical movements or the graceful ballet steps. Pleasure will be combined with your exercise and the relaxation which will follow is soothing to the nerves. The average woman carries tense nerves into her period of rest and sleep which an hour's dancing would easily dispel.

We learned many new beauty lessons when the Russian ballet first visited this country. Their movements were free and inspired by joyful thought. Dancing is an expression, in rhythmic motion, of a mental state. It is not a mere pattern of actions which an instructor tells us to copy. You must feel that you want to express yourself by grace of movement before you can yourself become a creature of grace.

To gain real benefit from dancing do not eat too heartily before the evening's fun begins. Dance in the open air whenever possible and avoid close, stuffy halls. There is a time for all good things to stop, especially dancing. The excitement of the music and the chatter of friends will tend to drive you on, but if you are dancing for benefit and beauty you must rest when muscular weariness overtakes you.

Have You an Itchy Spot?

Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In Eczema—and itchy spots, whether dry and scurfy, or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin. Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylex, which will give almost instant relief, and if used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. Ask your druggist about it. Price 50c. a box. Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake. ZYLEX, London.
