CHAPTER X.

"Thea, Evadne, I wish to speak to you," said Lady Scarsdale. "I have something very important to discuss with you. Come to my dressing-room."

Lady Scarsdale's dressing-room was a large and handsome one with a bay-window, the view from which over the Edenwood hills was very fine. Lady Scarsdale sunk into the easy-chair and the girls took possession of the sofa. The conference was solemnly opened by her ladyship.

"I want to speak to you, my dear children," she said, "on a most important matter. Some mothers would act upon their own judgment in similar circumstances; I prefer to consult you."

Thea looked at her mother in surprise. Evadne smiled to herself. She had guessed somewhat shrewdly at her mother's plan all along; Thea had never dreamed of them.

"I have received an offer of marriage," said Lady Scarsdale. "If it had been an ordinary offer, that is, from an ordinary person, I should not have given it a second thought; but it is not. If I accept this offer, I shall marry one of the richest men in England. I need not say that I allude to Mr. Cameron; and Lady Scarsdale affected to be occupied with the gold bracelet that she wore on her wrist. She did not care just at that moment to meet the gaze of either daughter.

There was a brief pause, her ladyship hoping that her daughters would interpose.

"Mr. Cameron," said Thea, in strong accents of disapproval. "Oh, mamma, he is quite a pebehan."

"Mr. Cameron!" cried Evadne. "Why, mamma, he is worth three millions of money!"

Lady Scarsdale looked much relieved as these more cheerful words fell on her ears.

"He is, indeed, my dear, and owner of a place which is really a palace. Now let us discuss the matter fairly, frankly, and in all its bearings."

"But, mamma," cried Thea, "it cannot be thought of! There is that disagreeable girl Diana."

"I shall manage her, Thea," her ladyship answered coolly; "she need be no obstacle."

"I shall never like her," said Thea, decidedly.

"There will be time enough to discuss that," rejoined her ladyship impatiently. "Let us first see how the matter will affect ourselves."

"I would put up with a great many Dianias to live at such a place as Furness," declared Evadne, on whom her mother smiled approvingly.

"Diana need not be considered in the matter," said Lady Scarsdale; "we must think of ourselves. Our poverty is so well known that I need not now mind alluding to it. We have everything but money. No, I am wrong; we have no home. I cannot tell you how long I long for a home—a home of our own; but, as you know, of late years I have not been able to keep one, and indeed, if it had not been for the invitations of our friends, we must have been shipwrecked long ago. I cannot call the London house home. It is simply a place of torture to me, for I can never find money enough to meet the expenses. I did not tell you, but last year, Evadne, I was compelled to sell a diamond brooch that had been your father's birthday gift to me.

This year I could not manage matters at all and I left the house. Ah, my dear children," she continued—and there was a ring almost of pathos in her voice—"you do not know what I have endured in order to keep you in the society that your birth entitles you to enjoy! I have suffered humiliation upon humiliation, and only last year I had to beg Madame Lachose almost on my knees to let us have dresses. She declared she would not until I had paid something off my account. I had nothing wherewith to pay her. No one is more insolent than Madame Lachose when one owes her money."

"I think the footman you engaged last year was more insolent still," said Evadne. "I shall never forget the expression of the man's face when he waited at the table."

"There was cause for the expression," declared Thea. "We seldom had anything more than cold mutton or cutlets. As for the claret, mamma, I was ashamed when it was poured out into a glass; vinegar and water would have been more palatable."

"It was only a shilling a bottle," murmured Evadne, plaintively; "and you cannot expect much body or flavor at that price."

"Hush, Evadne!" cried Lady Scarsdale. "I do not like to hear such unseemly discussions."

Thea laughed a little bitterly.

"What a sad thing it is to be poor! I did not care to allude to it at the time, but I did feel the insolence of those servants. How is it that servants, above all other people, have so great a contempt for poverty? Do you remember the cook telling us that, if she remained in our house, she should forget all she had ever learned?"

"I know the servants in the kitchen lived much better than we did," remarked Evadne. "But it was the hired brougham that I disliked most. Mamma, do you remember the struggle for the last evening party—how many tradespeople declined to serve us? Three or four of the best florists would not supply us with flowers."

"The worst of it is that both flowers and wine have not been paid for yet," said Lady Scarsdale, mournfully. "I certainly could never give another party in London whilst in my present position."

"And this man has three millions of money," put in Evadne. "What a contrast!"

"I have not said more than I was compelled about our financial embarrassments," continued Lady Scarsdale. "No one can understand what torture it is to be fashionable and poor. I have never hitherto been able to see how the struggle would end. Of course, I had just a hope that you girls would marry well, and be able to help me in your turn; and that is the only hope which has sustained me."

"After that, it will be a strange thing if you marry first, mamma!"

"Very strange!" murmured her ladyship. "Now; what do you think, my dear children? Give me your opinion frankly, honestly, and clearly. You see that we shall have a magnificent home. I have heard that Mr. Cameron has a fine stud of horses; I know his carriages are most luxurious. Nothing could be better than the house itself—one might receive royalty in it—and three millions of money is worth some consideration."

"There is the man to be taken into account," said Thea.

"Certainly. I admit that he is a drawback. So is the girl. But I think myself that the advantages outweigh the disadvantages."

"The disadvantages mean Mr. Cameron and his daughter?" said Evadne.

"Yes," answered her ladyship, with some little reluctance.

"I suppose, mamma," continued Evadne, "that we should go with you; as a matter of course, would be our home as well as yours."

"Most certainly, Mr. Cameron is a man very easily managed, and Furness would be as much your home as it now is Diana's."

"Could we invite our friends—the Capels and Sturtons?"

"The more aristocratic the visitors the more welcome they would be," said Lady Scarsdale.

Then Thea spoke:

"Mr. Cameron has three millions of money, mamma—what will he do with it?"

"Diana will be his heiress," replied her mother—"nothing, I suppose, can alter that. He would be sure, however, to provide handsomely for me."

"Would he do anything for us, do you think, mamma?" asked Thea.

"I should think, my dear, that that would depend entirely on how you both behaved to him," replied Lady Scarsdale. "That is one of the matters I want you to take into consideration. You have no dowry. Never, I think, were girls well born so poor—the granddaughters of an earl without one shilling between them. Of course, if I marry, my little income will be settled on you jointly; but, as you know, it is very small. It is not a fortune that would tempt any one to marry you."

"That is true," laughed Evadne, the sunshine glittering on her golden hair.

"Mr. Cameron is a generous man," continued her ladyship, "and if you please him, if you both behave nicely to him, I have every reason to believe he will give you each a handsome dowry."

"What should you call a handsome dowry, mamma? Perhaps about twenty thousand pounds each?" queried Evadne. "That would be nothing to him, and everything to us."

"I should not wonder," allowed Lady Scarsdale.

"It would be a great thing for us," said Evadne, slowly. "It would altogether change the current of our lives. I need think no more about the matter, mamma; I say 'Yes' at once."

"We shall never like the girl Diana," remarked Thea, coldly, determined that something like a thrill of pity went through what little heart Evadne possessed. She knew what her mother's management could be like.

"What do you say, Thea?" asked Lady Scarsdale.

"I say 'Yes' to a bad alternative," replied Thea, slowly. "I wish you could have the mansion and the money without the marriage."

"So do I," said Lady Scarsdale; "but that is impossible. After all, it will be almost unalloyed gain—from penury to affluence at one bound. I must, however, give you this piece of advice, my dear girls: Hold your own. Mr. Cameron naturally looks up to me, and has a great idea of my superiority; he must never be allowed to abate that."

"Never," agreed Evadne. "We must keep the family well to the front. I can easily annihilate Diana by a few references to our ancestors."

Suddenly Thea turned to her mother and sister.

"Do you not think," she asked, "that it will be rather painful for Diana? She has been mistress for some time and we talk coolly of taking possession, as though she did not exist."

"Each one must do the best for himself or herself," said Lady Scarsdale. "If Diana acknowledges the inevitable, as a sensible girl should and would do, it will be an excellent arrangement for her. With my introduction to society, she will find the world a very different one from that to which she has been accustomed. Without me she cannot obtain the entree to the highest and most select circles."

"Yet she is a lady, and certainly a great heiress!" said Evadne.

"She will be quite sure to find her level," observed Lady Scarsdale, calmly. "And now, my dear children, our conference is closed."

Household Notes.

Attach a two-inch piece of transparent gummed adhesive tape to the lower corners of sheet music instead of binding them back. This will prolong the life of the music.

For egg toast, take one cupful of milk, add a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, beat the egg and add the liquid and salt. Soak the bread in this until soft and try to a light brown.

In making curtains the selvage should be cut off and the material turned in one-half inch and then the two-inch hem made. The curtains will then hang correctly and wear longer.

Ice cream croquettes are made by grinding a cupful of browned almonds; to these add a cupful of sifted macaroon crumbs, then dip in spoonfuls of frozen cream and roll each in the nuts.

CONCILIATION POSSIBLE.

LONDON, Oct. 1. While delegates of the transportation federation were assembling to-day to decide whether 325,000 workers represented should go out in sympathy with the striking railroad men, Great Britain, government officials report on the situation issued at noon announced a continued improvement in actual conditions. The train service had been bettered a commensurate, more than eight hundred trains having been run yesterday, exclusive of those in operation in a way service. Additional railroad cars have returned to work, it was declared. Arrangements have been made to replace bus men and tramway men should they strike, the statement announced. It was added that the movement of food was proceeding remarkably well. J. H. Thomas, railway men's leader, on entering the transport federation meeting said he would still using all his influence to settle the dispute to the original participants. Enormous crowds gathered outside Caxton Hall where the transport conference was being held. Whenever any of the delegates stepped themselves they were asked onlookers how proceedings were going. Most of the delegates were proached expressed opinion that conciliation was possible.

THE STRIKE SITUATION.

LONDON, Oct. 1. Organization of food and transport service by the government resumption of war time rationing has proved most effective and has worked smoothly. The Food Ministry announced that there is a general reserve of sufficient for two or three weeks and there is a plentiful supply of butter and margarine. The government made an earnest appeal to the people to observe the economy in coal, petrol and to avoid the use of automobiles for pleasure riding. If this plea does not bring general response of private cars will be prohibited and petrol will be sold only on license. Horse racing has been suspended in England and Ireland because of the strike. While the majority of London morning newspapers continue to urge the necessity of the public supporting the government in fighting the strike to a finish and emphasize cheerfulness with which the country is bearing present inconveniences. Last Night's Meeting an Answer to Squires-Coakerism--Bennett, Mulally and Martin Receive Tremendous Ovation--Sir M. P. Cashin Gives Second Chapter of Escasoni--Coaker Challenged to Take Up Gauntlet.

BENNETT, MULLALLY & MARTIN will roll up the biggest majority ever polled in St. John's West, was the verdict of last night's meeting of the West End Liberal-Progressive candidates held in the Casino Theatre. The Hall was packed, and it holds 1200 when filled. (The Coaker candidates in sending out their usual staff told the outputs and St. John's that thousands were present.) The aisles, the boxes, and the doorways were also packed, making in all about 1500 voters present. Compared with all other public meetings ever held in St. John's, last night's was the greatest, and the answer was plainly written on the faces of the intelligent gathering, that the grass is not going to grow on Water Street, nor is the dock, nor the boat and shoe factories, nor the ropewalk, nor the clothing factories, nor the wharves on which men cull and handle fish, nor where the steamboats discharge their cargoes, to be shifted and changed as the West End Coaker candidates desire. As a very prominent fisherman from the South Side, who has taken more fish from the water, killed more seals and contributed more money to the revenue, than the three Coaker candidates would ever likely do in the next century, remarked last evening, not one of the Coaker candidates ever bought a quintal of fish in their lives, and providing either one of them did so, they waited for the Labrador man to come home in the fall and then get the few quintals he had from him as cheap as it was possible to buy. And this same old gentleman, who has been a life-long supporter of the Liberal party and voted against Sir Edward Morris at the last elections, remarked that if the Coaker candidates for the West End got elected there won't be a job for us men on the Southside after two years. Good bye to our skinning and cooping, he remarked, and good bye to the handling of the fish we catch; and this good old fisherman of seventy summers pointed out that if St. John's was not in competition for buying fish, and it was left to Coaker and Squires, the price would be as Coaker makes it about $3.00 a quintal. I am glad, says he, that I have no money invested with him, and glad that I have no connections with the Coaker candidates in St. John's West. And this veteran from the Southside re-echoed fully the feeling of the 1500 intelligent voters who were present. This expression of opinion was evident before the meeting opened, but when Sir Michael Cashin told how he helped to save the F.P.U. when it was down and out, and when the appeal was made by Coaker, he was only voicing the sentiments of every man of the 1500 present, who are in sympathy with the F.P.U. and want to see it saved from destruction and placed on a sound basis. When the members of the F.P.U. read what Hon. Sir M. P. Cashin said, they will realize who is the true friend of the Union, and they will realize further that when the F.P.U. had its dark cloud and danger threatened the shareholders, Michael P. Cashin was one of the first men to come to the rescue. Eighty thousand dollars was a big sum when the shareholders of the Union were in dire need. Sir Michael Cashin was one of the backers that came forward to pledge his support with his money. But Coaker is incapable of gratitude. The F.P.U., however, will rally to Cashin's standard, and have full confidence that if they are again down and out he will be one of their best friends as in the past. These few preliminary remarks are only for the purpose of pointing out to the F.P.U. the valuable assistance that Sir M. P. Cashin has given it, and to what he is ready to do for the Union if properly conducted.

The meeting opened at 8:30 o'clock, with 1,500 voters present. On the platform were L.G. Chafe, chairman, father of Capt. Eric Chafe, M.C., Sergt. Harry Raynes, D.C.M., G. de G., etc., Pte. Edward Crane, wounded, Private Herbert Pitcher, Corp. O. Whiteway, wounded, Sergt. Victor Smith, Pte. Tom Ryan, Pte. Whittle, J. Barrett, Sergt. Jack Mosker, Edward Warren, South Side, Edward Kennedy, contractor, William Guest, South Side, John Shea, Charles Kent, R.N.R., P. O. Matthews, R.N.R., Arthur Hiscock, M. J. Kent, Henry H. Goughan, the father of five soldiers, B. Spratt, M. Pike, Herbert Coultas, Vice-Chairman J. Fitzgibbon, C. J. Fox, Hon. W. J. Higgins, N. J. Vinicombe and Hon. Sir M. P. Cashin.

Chairman Chafe in a few brief remarks, stated the object of the meeting, and after paying a deserved tribute to the memory of the late M. J. Kennedy, and to the efforts of Sir Edward Morris, who had left the country, introduced Hon. J. R. Bennett. Mr. Bennett, on rising to address the big and gay audience that ever appeared in the Casino, was received with thunderous applause. As was fitting, he, like the Chairman, paid tribute to his deceased colleague, Mr. M. J. Kennedy, and to the great service Sir Edward Morris had given to St. John's West. After having done so, he began an address to the voters of St. John's West that must for ever go down as one of the most argumentative, honest, sincere and convincing that the voters of this important constituency ever listened to. Hon. Mr. Bennett opened by expressing his gratitude to the great audience who were present to hear himself and colleagues tell the voters of St. John's West of their policy and the Liberal-Progressive platform.

After a pathetic reference to the noble dead, and those who returned maimed as well as those in full life after the great world war he went on to give an account of his stewardship for the last six years. He traced in telling words the position that he held during all and every day of that time. Elected as a colleague of Sir Edward Morris, and as Colonial Secretary he had been called upon to undertake many responsibilities. In the great sealing disaster of 1914, when he was acting as Prime Minister, he was called upon to arrange and undertake the recovery of the bodies and the saving of those who were yet on the ice. Every effort on his part was made until the last body was recovered, and until something was done for the fatherless and those left in distress. The part he played in this unfortunate occasion had the approval of all right-thinking men. Then came the outbreak of hostilities in the world war. He as Colonial Secretary was one of those who called the first public meeting to make it possible that Newfoundland would take part in the war and help the Mother Country. When the meeting took place, Hon. Sir Edward Morris, Governor Davidson, the French Consul and others of prominence were present, and the decision was reached to send 500 men to represent the Oldest Colony. As a result of this meeting, the Patriotic Association was formed, but it was not expected, nor contemplated, nor imagined that the war would last longer than a few months. The strength, the resources and the determination of the enemy was underestimated, and we were obliged to strengthen our forces. Then went the thousand, and soon Newfoundland had a strong force in the field. The work of the Patriotic Committee was well carried out, and the volunteer recruiting did not fall behind. In 1917 when the German submarines were causing such great destruction to British shipping, and when Newfoundland was without a ton of salt, and not a vessel was at hand to take our shipments of fish to market, or able to bring the necessary salt to cure the catch, Water Street made application to the Government and then he as acting Premier undertook to help the country out of its difficulty. After consultation with His Excellency the Governor of that time, and with the unanimous effort of the Government and on representations made to the British Government that our resources would suffer. They came to our assistance, steamers of 6,000 tons with full cargoes arrived, and the situation was saved. Again, the coal question came up, when St. John's working people almost shivered in doors, and scarcely more than a "bucket" of coal could be had without applying to the Government Engineer. Through arrangement, this problem was also solved. Opposed to the Government all the time was a wrangling opposition, and it was expedient that all parties should come together with a united front, for the purpose of showing to the world that Newfoundland was prepared to carry out her part in the war. It was true that the policies of Coaker and the Government parties were as opposite as the poles, and it was a matter of sinking party differences in the interests of Newfoundland and the Empire. The Coalition Government was formed, and with every honest intention he joined it, so that the great work undertaken by the country would be carried out; and to make the Coalition certain he voluntarily resigned the post of Colonial Secretary, and accepted the office of Minister of Militia. The Militia Department was created for the purpose of taking over control of and handling of the militia that were then in the hands of private citizens, known as the Patriotic Committee, and at the suggestion of the Government, Hon. Mr. Bennett went to Ottawa, in company with Lieut. Col. Bennett and Capt. Gerald Byrne, where a study of military matters was made. On return he made an appeal to the country for the young men of military age to come forward to fill the depleted ranks of the "Blue Puttees" and the other men that followed them. The losses at this particular time were greater than recruits were coming in, and he then gave notice that if voluntary offers were not adequate, other means would have to be resorted to. All this time Hon. Mr. Bennett was acting alone, Sir Edward Morris was out of the country, and Mr. M. J. Kennedy had passed away. Then followed the retirement of Sir Edward Morris, and the induction of Dr. Lloyd. When Dr. Lloyd took over the Government he asked Hon. Mr. Bennett to retain his position as Colonial Secretary and an executive seat. But, said Mr. Bennett, I asked him what his policy was. I told him that I could not do so before consulting my colleagues of the People's Party, otherwise I could not accept. Dr. Lloyd told him he had great respect for me, but he would not accept right away. And later he learned it was the idea to spring an election on the country in February. He told Dr. Lloyd that he would not go to the country on his policy, as the people of St. John's West would not elect him on any Coaker policy, nor under his Government or leadership. Lloyd offered him another district, but he would not accept it. He was not prepared to stand by the Coaker element at that time, or any other time, and tendered his resignation to Dr. Lloyd, which he read as follows:

January 2nd, 1918.
Dear Doctor Lloyd,—
In furtherance of our conversation of to-day in relation to your forming of an administration, owing to the resignation of Sir Edward Morris as Prime Minister, I beg to say that after careful and mature consideration I find I am unable to accept a seat in the Executive Council that you offer me.

J. R. BENNETT.
Two others of the Morris Executive also went out, Squires and Gibbs. Mr. Bennett said it was his own personal affair, as was his. But he left for the reason that he was not prepared to support Coakerism. At a very late date the old Executive of the National Government went to Government House to have a final meeting, and a different proposition was put up, as against the first instance. Dr. Lloyd was prepared to carry on the National Government as it existed and Mr. Bennett was not asked to follow him as a leader. Hon. Mr. Bennett then had an interview with the Governor and what happened is told in the following correspondence, which Mr. Bennett read at the meeting:

Letter from His Excellency Sir Charles Harris.—
Dear Mr. Bennett,—
I have had a visit from the Prime Minister and Mr. Crosbie who, as you know, was to be acting Minister of Militia, and they tell me that there is a chance of your coming back as Minister of Militia. I need hardly write many words in saying that it would not only give me great personal satisfaction, but it would be in my opinion, an act of high public duty if you are willing to resume office at this juncture. You have studied the military question and have information which no one else here has acquired—the cause of the Newfoundland Regiment and through them the Empire at large, will be saved by your actions, etc.

And then follows Hon. Mr. Bennett's reply:—
Your Excellency,—
I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of yesterday in reference to my again taking up the duties of Minister of Militia. Having seen you personally on the matter, and in view of your opinion that such an acceptance on my part would be in the best interests of the Newfoundland Regiment, and therefore in the interests of the Empire, I feel that if, for no other consideration than the one of duty warrants me now in formally accepting the position, I am glad to do so. I am, however, in reference to this effect, who personally assures me that my appointment will be entirely satisfactory to the government. Permit me to express my sincere thanks to Your Excellency for your kind interest and consideration in this connection, and my deep appreciation of the assurances expressed that my former administration of the Department was satisfactory.

Mr. Bennett properly said there was no other course left open to him at the demand of His Excellency the Governor, whose letter he read with permission and the cause of the Regiment and the Empire but to go back and take his position. But said Hon. Mr. Bennett, I did not go back to the Executive Government of Dr. Lloyd and Coaker. And he continued to tell about his trip to the other side, and his visit to the hospitals, the convalescent homes and the Foresters and Franco. His story of how he got the "Blue Puttees" leave for eight weeks and how the other regiments of colonials were compromised, certainly brought John R. Bennett to the front as the greatest friend the Newfoundland Regiment ever had or will have.

Mr. Mullaly was next introduced by the Chairman and on taking the platform received an ovation that clearly evidenced the approval of the West End electorate of his choice as candidate on the Liberal Progressive ticket. In opening he said he was proud after hearing the account of Mr. Bennett's stewardship, to be associated with that gentleman whom he was assured would be returned in the coming election by a greater majority than ever. For himself, he had no charges or vituperations to refute, not having been a member of any government before, but at the end of four years, if elected, as he felt he would be, because of the policy which his party stood for, he hoped to be able to give as good an account of his services as had the leader of the West End ticket a few minutes before. The Chairman, Mr. Mullaly said, referred to the late Mr. M. J. Kennedy, whose services as a representative in the Legislature had endeared his name to the people of St. John's West. With that gentleman he had been intimately acquainted and connected in business and to his sterling worth he wished to pay his personal tribute. Now that he had been selected to succeed Mr. Kennedy, on the St. John's West ticket, he hoped to receive the support always so loyally accorded to the worthy advocate of all that made for the benefit of the district. If chosen by the people he would make every effort to emulate the splendid example set by Mr. Kennedy as a man and legislator. When asked to accept nomination, he had agreed to do so because he felt it his duty to do whatever lay in his power for the advancement of Newfoundland. Though his talents might not be great, he felt compelled to devote himself and all that lay in him to the cause of progress which the party, under Sir M. P. Cashin, advocated. His motives in aspiring to political honors were of the purest and his action dictated by the desire to fulfill his duties as a citizen and Newfoundlandier. As a member of the Municipal Council for

"HE WAITS ON HER BY INCHES."

RUTH CAMERON

A woman was telling a group of us about a friend of hers who has just married a thoroughly unselfish man. "He waits on her by inches," she said. "The eyes of the two feminine unmarried listeners glistened. 'Isn't that wonderful?' said one of them enthusiastically. 'I'd like a man like that,' said the other covetously. 'Of course she would. And yet, after all, might it not be the worst thing that could happen to her? Why should she always be served?'

Suppose the man who now waits on his bride by inches actually continues to do so as the years go by (it is barely possible, you know, that he may not) what will be the effect on her character? Isn't there danger that she will come to take that slavish service for her due? And is there any particular reason that she should always be served? She is not an invalid you know.

The Ideal Husband of Every Woman.
I suppose that the ideal husband of every woman (married or unmarried) is a husband who will love her no matter what she does, and who will wait on her by inches.

Now I happen to know a woman who has very much that sort of a husband, and I want to draw you a little sketch of her.

She Goes to a Hotel to Rest.

She has no children. She lives in a dainty new house of which a housekeeper takes the whole care. She herself declared that all she had to do for the day was to make her bed and feed the toy Pomeranian. Now and then, however, she gets tired of housekeeping and then she shuts up her house (she would not rent it, of course, and it apparently never occurs to her that she might loan it) and goes to a hotel for a while to rest. "The war scarcely touched her. I believe she did knit a bit and serve on a few committees, but that was all. She is a pretty woman and her chief occupations are buying clothes and wearing them to small social functions (she hasn't even the ambition and energy needed to be a social climber). She came to my attention recently when her most intimate friend was sick at the hospital—and the woman I am describing never went near: "She can't bear sickness," said her husband, "it depresses her."

Think what it has done for her character! And that is the way 'he takes everything she does.

Think What It Has Made Of Her.
Think what such complaisance, such unrequited admiration, has made of her—a thoroughly selfish, useless woman. Is that wonderful? Is that an end to be devoutly wished for? I think she is to be pitied, not envied.

Of course, there are some characters strong enough to stand up against such an unrequited love and unselfishness and to develop sweetness and thoughtfulness of themselves. But they are few. Average human nature isn't made that way.

On the other hand, we have all seen thoughtless, careless young girls whom a selfish husband and a brood of children have made into unselfish, resourceful women. I have several such in mind this minute.

To a certain extent we are whatever life demands that we be. Nobody wants a selfish husband or wife because, aside from the personal inconvenience, it is so hard to go on loving a man or woman who is thoroughly selfish. But is it another example of the great law of compensations that selfishness should produce unselfishness?

DREAMS.

WALT MASON

I sometimes dream I'm living in halls of dazzling light, musicians round me giving new beauties to the night; and there are stately ladies, in noble garments drest, rich robes from Cork and Cadiz, and Araby the blest. And all around is splendour, and laughter fills the hall; I have the legal tender, and I'm the lord of all. But when the dawn is gleaming on hill and wood and lake, I wake from all my dreaming, and find it was a fake. I have no garments crusted with jewels fair to view; but when I dream I'm busted, I wake to find it true. I sometimes dream I'm soaring among the distant spheres, with starlight on me pouring, strange music in my ears. For this world, punk and shoddy, I'd give no playunc; and on my pinions gaudy I circle round the moon. I have no pain or trouble, no sorrow anywhere, and lightly as a bubble, I float upon the air. But when the sunlight's streaming upon the marsh and brake, I wake from all my dreaming, and find I'm full of ache. The window of my attic, it seems, I failed to close; and I have pains rheumatic in fetlocks and in toes. My dreams of pomp and pleasure all fade away at dawn; and dreamland's store of treasure in morning light is gone; a dream cannot be trusted unless it deals with woe, and when I dream I'm busted, I always find it so.

Just Folks

GREATEST.
"Too busy to come," said the famous man. When a neighbor called for aid. "For you I grieve, but I cannot leave."

Said the man with a fortune made. Proud pomp replied in a similar way. "I haven't the time to be kind to-day."

The sick man sighed for a friendly hand. And the smile of a friendly face. But the great passed by and he wondered why.

And the swift still kept the pace. They were all too bent on their own affairs. To give much thought to another's cares.

But one unknown to pomp or fame. Who plodded along the way. Heard the sick man cry as he wandered by.

And he turned from his busy day To sit with him for a little while With a cheerful word and a friendly smile.

For kindness isn't of time or chance. Nor something that dwells apart; It does its tasks when a brother asks. And throbs in a friendly heart.

And I think some day we shall come to find That the greatest man is the one who's kind.

LET HIM TRY HIS HAND.

For the past six years or more Mr. Coaker has made it his boast that he has been the means of keeping up the price of fish, and one, at least, of his chief supporters has advanced the astounding statement that the laws of supply and demand have nothing whatever to do with the rise or decline of prices in the foreign markets. That any sane man could put forward such preposterous doctrine is almost incredible, because we know that from the earliest days of trade and commerce the exchange rates of commodities were always regulated under such circumstances. At the present moment the prices of our staple is somewhat lower than it was last year, at this time, and it is therefore squarely up to Mr. Coaker to make good his loud-voiced assertion that he is the arbiter of prices at home and abroad.

Glancing over the commercial record of the concern managed by Mr. Coaker, it will be found that that gentleman accepted no risks whatever in the issuance of supplies by his Trading Company to fishermen, neither in the past or the present. The Wordy President preferred to leave all the risk of credit to the merchants - whom he has ever roundly abused. But at the end of the voyage it suited Mr. Coaker's purpose, through the columns of his delectable journal - The Advocate - to endeavor to make trouble between the supplying merchants who issued, and the fishermen who took their season's outfit. The suppliers accepted all the risk in making advances on credit amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars before a fish had been taken out of the water. It was not so with Mr. Coaker. His idea of aid was to use the money invested in his Company in erecting large plants, bungalows and cruising yachts, taking especial care to look out for his own comfort.

Various officials of the Union Trading Company have been sent to districts to contest the forthcoming election, ostensibly in the interest and for the common good of the fishermen, but in reality to further his own personal ambitions and desires. Among all the candidates sent out, there is not one man, who has supplied, to any extent, the fishermen of Newfoundland. Neither Messrs. Winsor, Abbott, Halfyard or Jennings, are in any way suppliers of fishermen, nor are they connected with general trade in the way of being of service to the men who toil by sea. Compare them then with such captains of industry as Kean, Winsor, Crosbie, Hickman and others who have conferred more practical benefit on the fishermen in a year than Coaker and his men will ever do. There is a sentiment abroad, too, that a feeling of confidence should exist between the supplier and supplied, the merchant and the fisherman, the planter and the shareman, and that this sentiment should be fostered by square dealing. But when political agitators step in and by bolshevik doctrines seek to foment commercial strife between these two important factors in our greatest industry, a spirit of unrest becomes manifest and that confidence which should exist for the mutual benefit of merchant and dealer becomes partially undermined.

As an illustration of this, look at the district of Port de Grave, a district whose people hold a record second to none in Newfoundland, in both the cod and seal fisheries. Whether on the frozen pans or in the fishing boat on Labrador, the hardy mariners of Port de Grave district were ever the first about, and it has produced men famous in our fishing annals. Who does not remember the Bartletts, Roberts', Byrnes', Smiths', Mundens, Clarkes, and scores of others who have taken a foremost position in the history of Newfoundland's advance to progress? The descendants of these men to-day are as fully qualified to occupy a foremost position as their sires and grandsires were, provided they be given the opportunity. But who will give them that opportunity? Is it Mr. Geo. Grimes, who has misrepresented them for six years, and who now goes to Port de Grave district again as the candidate of the Squires-Reform - Coaker - Tory Party? What interest has he in the fisheries, and what does he know about them? If his publicly stated doctrines of Bolshevism were put into practice, the honest, upright, industrious fisherman, farmer, laborer, artisan, who had earned a fairly good income, and saved considerable of it by the exercise of thrift, would be compelled to share with any indolent, shiftless, dissatisfied neighbor who holds the bolshevik belief that all wealth should be equally divided, and that one man is as good as another - if not better. Truly a pleasing prospect. There is not, however, any danger of any person becoming wealthy through Mr. Grimes running any risks in supplying for the fishery, and the people of Port de Grave are now perfectly aware of this fact.

The opportunity to once more become a leader is being offered this district, with the prospect of once more becoming prominent and occupying that proud position it once held in the industrial life of this Colony. Sir John C. Crosbie is a candidate for his native district. He is a business man, keen, successful and enterprising. He invests his money in the industries of his native land, and it is but natural to suppose that he will take the most sterling interest in the district in which he was born and spent his boyhood days. He is not afraid to risk his steamers at the seal fishery, and his pluck and enterprise has been rewarded by bumper trips. What has Mr. Grimes to offer in the way of employment and advancement? Merely lip logic and such promises as his master, Mr. W. F. Coaker, will allow him to make. How then can the result be in doubt for one moment? Crosbie the successful business man or Grimes the paid servant of the Union Trading Company. The choice is obvious.

Not the Ghost of a Chance.

As the days go by, and the General Election is brought nearer at hand, it is noticeable that there is a big slump developing in the campaign of the Squires - Coaker combination. Most of their erstwhile supporters have lost heart, realizing that the fight is going dead against them, and they do not wish to be identified with a losing party. This is very noticeable in the city, and we learn that the same thing is taking place throughout the outports as well. The best evidence of it is afforded by the difficulty the party has had in obtaining candidates to contest the districts. For a long while they found it impossible to make up their teams, and it is only now that they are getting together a collection of candidates who, after various inducements, have consented to lead forlorn hopes in the expectation of getting some of the public money should their party win out. That they will be doomed to disappointment is now certain.

Squires and his men have no chance whatever in the city. They will not get a look in either in the East End or the West. Squires himself is unpopular in the city and he has not selected as candidates men who are of sufficient calibre to offset this weakness. They had much difficulty in securing even a working committee to conduct the campaign, as most citizens of weight and influence did not desire to be connected with a party doomed to defeat. In the Southern districts the weakness manifested by the Squires-Coaker candidates is lamentable indeed, and they won't even put up an interesting fight against the strong men selected by the Government. Right around the coast to St. George's and St. Bage's, the Government representatives are carefully picked men, suitable to the requirements of the respective districts, the majority of them having already served the districts they are standing for in the House of Assembly, and they are going back to their constituents with a record of clean, honest and energetic work well and faithfully performed, which will earn for them a further lease of representation at the hands of the electors.

In the North Coaker has been losing his hold steadily since 1913. Perhaps the worst thing that could ever have happened him was to have had anything to do with active politics. His short lease of power in 1917-18 did more to damn him in the eyes of his own men than anything else could possibly have done, and there has been nothing but dissatisfaction in the ranks of the F.P.U. ever since. Coaker is experiencing the greatest difficulty in arousing any kind of enthusiasm amongst the members of the Union. Most of them have come to realize that by his participation in politics he is seeking only to benefit himself, and that by having so many irons in the fire, he is unable to attend properly to their business and other interests. Besides his attitude on the question of Conscription has killed him politically, and the wiser heads amongst his followers are beginning to figure out that the best thing that could happen both Coaker and themselves would be his defeat at the coming election, so that he would be in a position to devote his whole time and energy to Union affairs. Quite a lot of dissatisfaction, too, has been aroused over the amalgamation with Squires. Coaker had taught them to hate the name of Squires whom he represented to them as their greatest enemy in the country. He dubbed Squires a "black rascal" and the chief enemy of the Union in Newfoundland, and wanted to have him thrown out of the Legislative Council for alleged misconduct while Attorney General, when, according to Coaker, Squires received money from the Reids.

Oake for Fogo.

We have pleasure in announcing that Mr. Jesse Oake will be the standard-bearer of the Liberal Progressive Party in the District of Fogo. Mr. Oake is a native of Change Islands, where he lived for some years. He was during the first years of its existence connected with the F.P.U., and opened several stores. He resigned about six years ago and entered Knowling's employ, where he remained until now. There are few men in this country who know Coaker better than Mr. Oake, and he looks upon it as a duty to his native district that he should go there and help rid both the district and country of the menace of Coakerism. He has a large trade connection with Fogo, and is known to hundreds of voters throughout the district, and he can be trusted to deliver the goods on polling day. Mr. Oake had two brothers serving during the Great War; one as a soldier and the other as a sailor. The former laid down his life on the battlefield and the latter served on a trawler in the North Sea until three months after the signing of the armistice. He has been recommended for his conspicuous bravery for some special mark of distinction. Fogo District will have a splendid representative in Mr. Oake. The Telegram wishes him all kinds of success.

It is incomprehensible to Union men that Coaker can now not only associate with Squires, but endeavor to have him elected as head of an F.P.U. party. They cannot understand why they should welcome as a friend the man who was represented as their bitter enemy, or why they should help to place him in power, after he did his best, according to Coaker himself, to ruin the Union. These are some of the reasons why Coaker has lost his strength in the North, and why he is ranting and raving in the Advocate daily, in order to try and frighten and bully his supporters into voting for him and the misfits with whom he has associated himself. His influence is waning daily and he knows it, but he is trying to bolster up a lost cause and inject some enthusiasm into his followers. The country at large has been awakened to the state of affairs in the Opposition camp, and the people are one in their determination to be on the winning side. They will vote for the Government, for a continuation of our present prosperity, and are determined that they will take no chances with political adventurers who desire to secure place and power for their own purposes and not for the common weal. That is why everyone is saying that "Squires can't be trusted," and that "Coaker's cake is dough."

Tried and True.

There is no doubt, there never was any for that matter, about the sentiment in St. John's West, and those who had the privilege of attending the first Liberal Progressive public meeting last night, came away from it more determined than ever to stand fast to the principles of true Liberalism as enunciated by the candidates of the Liberal Party, Messrs. Bennett, Mullaly and Martin. There can be no mistake regarding the attitude of the voters of St. John's West. Tried and true they have been and tried and true they will remain. There is no going back for the independent electors of this district. They have put their hand to the Liberal Progressive plough and will carry on. Ample testimony was offered last night that none other than Bennett, Mullaly and Martin need solicit the franchises of the West End electors. Sold to a man for Sir M. P. Cashin and his standard bearers was the expression heard on every side and VOTE THE STRAIGHT TICKET will be the slogan. St. John's West has no use for Squiresism or Coakerism or Bolshevism or any other ism associated with the names of these usurpers and filchers of names to which they have no right or title. The answer and opinion of St. John's West will be given at the polls on November 3rd, when joining hands with St. John's East and the other sixteen outport districts all will unite in driving the Squires - Reform - Coaker elements into the abyss of political oblivion where they rightly belong.

CASHIN WILL COME BACK!

We have pleasure in announcing that Mr. Jesse Oake will be the standard-bearer of the Liberal Progressive Party in the District of Fogo. Sixty-five was the attendance at drill last evening in the C.I.B. Armoury. Three candidates were received, bringing the present membership up to eighty-two. In addition to the squad drill, setting-up drill and signalling, there was drill in patrol formation and patrol drill by patrol-leaders. Each leader took charge of his patrol, and did very creditable work. Instruction was also given in the Tenderfoot tests. Announcements were made of the anniversary banquet of the Troop in the basement of Gower St. Church, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 14th, and of a hike on Saturday afternoon next at 2 o'clock. Next Wednesday at the regular drill there will be swearing-in of Tenderfoots and a route march. The Wolf Cubs had their second meeting on Tuesday afternoon. Twenty-nine were present, and it was announced that the membership for the present would be limited to 36. The boys were taught to form the Rock Circle, Council Circle and Parade Circle, also the Salutes, Calls, Promises and Rules. A number of Tenderfoots will be sworn in next Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and Sixers will be elected. The Wolf Cub Officers are: Mr. Donald Lewis, Cub-master; Mr. Herbert Wyatt, Assistant Cub-master; Harold Pollard, Cub-leader and Drummer.

THE DAILY DOPE

BY THE CUB-EDITOR

THE ANGELIC HUSBAND.

There are husbands who are pretty.
There are husbands who are witty.
There are husbands who in public are as smiling as the moon;
There are husbands who are healthy.
There are husbands who are wealthy.
But the real angelic husband—well,
he's never yet been born.

Some for strength of love are noted,
Who are really so devoted,
That whenever their wives are absent
They are lonesome and forlorn;
And while now and then you'll find one Who's a really good and kind one, Yet the real angelic husband—oh, he's never yet been born.

So the woman who is mated
To a man who may be rated
As "pretty fair" should cherish him
For ever and a day
For the real angelic creature,
Perfect, quite, in every feature,
He has never been discovered, and he won't be—so they say.

ORIGINALITY FOR YOU!

"A wonderful man is my uncle," said little Binks; "so very original and witty. He says he called his dog Sausage, because it was half-bred; his goat Nearly, because it was all butt; and his prize cock Robinson, because it Crusoe."

THE FEMINE OF IT.

Sylvia and Cynthia found themselves seated next to each other at the dinner party and immediately became confidential.
"Molly told me that you told her that secret that I told you not to tell her," whispered Sylvia.
"Oh, isn't she a mean thing!" gasped Cynthia. "Why, I told her not to tell you."

"Well," returned Sylvia, "I told her
I wouldn't tell you she told me—so don't tell her I did."

Most of the women in Japan smoke, the girls beginning the practice when they are about ten years of age.

For every person that is worn out there are a hundred that have rusted out.

It is a singular fact that, while hares are excellent swimmers, rabbits cannot swim.

SHE'D MET HIM.

A young eligible in a tramcar, seeing a young lady whom he thought to be impressed with his personal charms, crossed over and took a seat beside her, and said:
"Haven't I met you somewhere before?"

To which she replied, in a voice heard by the other passengers:
"I'm not quite sure, but I think you are the man who cleans our windows."

The passengers laughed, and the youth left the car.

WOULD BE INTERESTING.

A country clergyman who was nailing up a refractory creeper observed a young lad watching him for a long time with obvious interest. "Well, my friend," he said, smilingly, "are you trying to get a hint or two on gardening." "No!" said the youth: "Are you surprised to see me working like this?"
"No!" I do be waiting to see what a person do say when he hammers his thumb."

In China, many temples are provided with a bell at the entrance and when a wor-shipper enters he gives the rope a pull to ring the bell in order that the gods may be notified of his coming and be at hand to attend his prayers.

Beautiful talk is by no means the most pressing want in Parliament—Caryle.

PAT'S STRATEGY.

An Irishman had to go to law and in consultation with his counsel he was told that he had a good fighting chance. Paddy, who was anxious to win the case, was meditative for a moment, then he said: "Do you think it would be any good to send the judge a pair of ducks?" "No no, you mustn't do that," said his lawyer. "If you send him a pair of ducks he will be sure to decide the case against you." "A day or so later the case was Wedding Bells.

SNELGROVE-COOPER.
A very pretty wedding took place at Lewisporte, on Monday, Sept. 22nd, at 5 o'clock, when Miss Minnie Cooper, of Saltpod was united in matrimony to Mr. Herbert Snelgrove of Lewisporte. The bride was handsomely attired in white silk net, over white satin, with veil and lilies of the valley and carried a bouquet of daisies and roses.
She was attended by Misses Ethel Torraville, Rhoda Small, Elsie North-cott. The groom was supported by Messrs. Curtis, Boon, Louis Northcott and Albert Anstey, while Mr. West Woodfrey acted as best man. After the ceremony the bridal party proceeded to the home of the groom where a sumptuous repast was partaken of by a host of friends and a very enjoyable time spent until 12 o'- clock.
The presents received were numerous and costly including several nice pieces of silver.

Opening Announcement!

I wish to announce to my friends and the public generally that I have taken over the business on Rawlins' Cross formerly known as McMurdo's, Military Road. I thank the patrons of this store for their patronage in the past and would solicit a continuance in the future. This store will be known from henceforth as O'MARA'S DRUG STORE, Rawlins' Cross, and I will endeavour to meet the requirements of the public in the most careful and accurate compounding of Prescriptions and other recipes, and with Toilet Articles, Patents and Sundries courteously served.

Telephone orders promptly delivered. Night calls responded to. Telephone 358.
Night bell on residence over Drug Store, 111 Military Road.

At the Majestic.

An unprecedented attendance turned up at the Majestic Theatre last evening to hear the singing of the double quartette of male voices. At both shows seating capacity was all used and there were hundreds standing at the back, both downstairs and upstairs. Ticket-selling had to be stopped several times, to prevent absolute confusion, and it was evident that the double quartette was the big drawing power. At both shows the singers were applauded and encored, so that they were forced, almost, to respond. Such applause as followed has never been heard in the Majestic, and for several minutes the clapping was continuous and loud. To-night Mr. Arthur Williams will sing. The feature last evening, a seven-reel Rex Beach's story "The Brand," was good, and was followed from beginning to end with breathless interest. The great crowds attending the Majestic point to the popularity of the newest house.

Shipping Notes.

The S.S. Mauratana leaves here Saturday at noon for Rotterdam. She carries 4000 tons of gas coal from Philadelphia, the freight on which will cost $45.00 per ton.
No word of the S. S. Taunton leaving New York, was received by Harvey & Co's. to-day. Probably the Long-shoremen's strike affected her sailing.

McMurdo's Store News.

THURSDAY, Oct. 2.
The Nujol treatment for constipation has certainly given satisfaction, and is becoming more popular as it is becoming better known. Nujol is not a medicine really, but a lubricant, and acts in a simple mechanical manner, as it is not absorbed by the intestines at all. It is not habit-forming, but tends to cure the condition that it speedily relieves. It is much approved by those who have given up drugs in its favor. Nujol is odorless and tasteless, and its effects are quite pleasant and natural. Large bottles $1.20.
When you want Sausages, why—get ELLIS'; they're the best.

Obituary.

MRS. MARY TOBIN.
It is with much regret that we chronicle to-day the death of Mrs. Mary Tobin, of Cape Broyle, at the ripe old age of 87 years, relic of the late Michael Tobin; she leaves five sons, William, John and Michael, of Cape Broyle; James, detective of H. M. Customs, St. John's; Joseph, residing at St. John, N.B.; and one daughter, Mrs. Robert Harris, wife of the City Marshal, St. John, N.B., and a large number of grandchildren. Interment takes place to-day at Cape Broyle.

Hant's Harbor Reputable Coaker.

Coaker, the Big Chief visited Hant's Hr. recently, but his reception was of the coldest, and in his rage he told the people that they had gone back on him personally. His meeting ended in failure, and he left the harbor in his motor boat in the dead of night. Not a gun was fired or a cheer given. No chairman would volunteer to preside over the meeting, and Mr. Targett, Coaker's colleague, had to undertake the job himself. Coaker's leaving Hant's Harbor in the dead of night symbolizes the darkness into which he will be cast by the voters on November 3rd.

Glencoe's Passengers.

The following first class passengers arrived at Port aux Basques by the Glencoe this morning:—W. and Mrs. Chancey, S. Masood, Mrs. H. Walker, H. Nultry, Master J. Dreckler, F. Masood, J. Richards, R. Bator, W. and Mrs. Willis, Mrs. J. Calnes, Master S. Peale, S. Matthews, Mrs. K. Keane, D. W. Templeman, J. E. Seward, Miss M. Keane.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING LAST NIGHT.
Special to Evening Telegram.
A. B. Morine and Dr. Forbes, two of our popular candidates, held a very enthusiastic meeting here last night; every one that was home attending. Dr. Forbes spoke first, proving his ability as a public speaker, and was much appreciated by the audience. He was followed by Mr. Morine, who in his old time style held the audience entranced right up till the train entered their station. The meeting closed with rousing cheers for the Liberal-Progressive Party. Port Blandford will give a three quarter vote for Morine, Winsor and Forbes.

Hon. J. G. Stone's Address to the Electors of Trinity.

In once again appealing to my constituents in Trinity Bay for their support on behalf of myself, Mr. Andrew Carnell and Mr. Robert Matthews: I feel that a very few remarks in addition to the Manifesto of the Hon. Sir Michael P. Cashin, with which we are heartily in accord, will be necessary. My reason for severing my connection with the section of the party which was formerly presided over by Mr. W. F. Coaker have already been put before you and require no further comment from me in this note. I shall be only too willing to restate them and explain them in the frankest and fullest possible way at any time to any individual asking for information, or on any public platform should occasion arise. I am honestly convinced that in acting as I did, I was doing the only right, correct, and proper thing possible in the interests of those who had sent me to the House to act as their Representative and to do so in the best possible way. This I have done regardless of personal abuse, vilification and slander, and I feel certain that my action in so doing will have the fullest support from the thinking men of this District and that my confidence in their common sense and loyalty will be more than vindicated on polling day.

Sir Michael Cashin's platform as to Cattle compensation, Railway Extension, Steam Service, Hospital accommodation, Old Age Pensions, Roads and Education, as set forth will have our fullest support. As a practical man knowing the District of Trinity as I do, I feel that I can be of service to him and his Government and I shall endeavour to assist him and put the claims of this District first on all occasions. The extension of the railway in Trinity District has been advocated by me, and having done so I need not now comment upon its importance to the people concerned or assure them of my constant and steady support. The time has more than arrived for better accommodation and facilities on the Labrador Coastal Service and no one knows this better than I do.

While we have been kept back owing to war conditions in the above respects during the past five years, I look forward to better things now that peace is once more declared and I shall leave no stone unturned to help bring them about immediately. As one born and bred in Trinity Bay, and as one who knows the requirements of the fishermen and as Minister of Marine and Fisheries for the Colony, I feel that I have received, and am receiving, a training which should fit me to continue to be your representative and as such I ask frankly for your support. My friend and colleague Mr. Matthews, comes to you straight from the Royal Navy, with First Class discharges and with the rank of First Class Petty Officer. He is the first of loyal old Trinity's Sons—having served his King and Country faithfully and well, to come forward as a candidate and I feel sure that your support will enable him to carry on his splendid record to date, in the further service of his Country and his native District. My other friend and colleague, Mr. Andrew Carnell, is a new comer amongst us, but brings with him a sterling reputation as a manly man, straight forward in his dealings, courageous in his support of his convictions. A man who in business is carrying on and maintaining the good name of a firm against which for nearly a century not the slightest criticism has ever been made. His whole capital invested in Newfoundland, all his interests are centered in the Colony, and no one is better qualified to represent you on the floors of the House. These few remarks are made with the full consent and agreement of both my colleagues and I am certain that when we are elected, Trinity Bay will be well and faithfully represented.

J. G. STONE.

St. John's, Oct. 1, 1919.

No Use for Reformers.

OF THE COAKER-SQUIRES TYPE.

It is very gratifying to learn that an immense majority of the voters of St. John's have no use whatever for the Coaker-Squires candidates. This is glorious news and goes to prove the intelligence of the city voters. It would make the average man sick to hear a few party heebers talk about the Coaker-Squires gang, Reformers and Liberals how are you! Why—some of the most notorious of that gang would strip the last shirt from the back of an honest industrious workman, and cut the boots from off the feet of his children in order to satisfy their shylock propensities for money, money, money. There is no necessity for me to dwell on any other of the later characteristics of the wolves in sheep clothing, as St. John's is determined to turn them down badly. Let the outports do their share and the gang will be hurried into political oblivion—LIBERAL.

Doing It Too.

The Telegram stands for the cause of true Liberalism, and that is why it is in this fight to prevent interloper Squires from masquerading as a Liberal.

From a recent Magazine we have copied the following. We only need to add, Papers to suit all requirements can be had at our Store.

1. Thou shalt heed the call of Plain quiet wall papers and white woodwork wherever such is possible.
2. Thou shalt lighten dark rooms by the use of light-hued, yellow-tinted wall paper, that suggests the blessed sunshine.
3. Thou shalt see that thy walls and thine own personality are not to forward, but modestly retiring.
4. Thou shalt use no large-patterned wall papers against which to hang thy pictures. The one will kill the other.
5. Thou shalt have no centerpiece or cornerpieces upon thy ceiling, but only a very nearly plain expanse of light color.
6. Thou shalt have thy fill of bright tints, and delicate designs for bedrooms and boudoirs, but for drawing-rooms, dining-rooms, libraries and halls, thou shalt be compelled to use less frivolous papers.
7. Thou shalt, when the ceiling is not too high, run the paper of the side wall up to the ceiling, putting the border just below the angle.
8. Thou shalt not panel the walls of a small room, except it be above a mantelpiece, a sideboard or a bookcase, where a bit of tapestry, a mirror or a picture may be held in place by strips of moulding.
9. Thou shalt use attention-compelling cut out borders, or conventionally designed strips for divisions between walls and ceiling.
10. Thou shalt remember at all times that thy wall paper is but a background against which to show thy pictures, thy furniture, and thy friends.
