The Broken Circle!

CHAPTER XXX.

Sir Basil Carlton was clever and ambitious. He was most desirous of making up for lost time. He regretted the long years spent away from England. It was true that he had acquired a knowledge of art that he could have gained in no other way—music, painting, sculpture, were household words to him; but he regretted that he had not secured the education usually given to an English boy. Nothing, he fancied, could ever atone to him for the loss of that. He found that in England politics occupied the same place as the fine arts did in Italy. He found himself looked up to when the question was one of music, or painting, or of sculpture; but when he essayed to discuss politics, men smiled—and Sir Basil was not one of those who were content to be smiled at. He was determined to master the questions of the day, to see what was to be said on every side, to form his own opinions slowly, not hurriedly, and then to give his time, attention, and interest to whatever side he embraced. He longed to be a statesman; politics delighted him. He could not take up the pen—he had no faculty for literary work; he did not care to enter the army or navy, and he was not content to live without occupation. He was wealthy; his estate of Glen was a most valuable one; and hundreds of men in his place would have thought of nothing but a life of idleness and pleasure. Sir Basil thought only of what he could do to make his life useful; he had no idea of living at ease in a world where there was so much that required doing.

He resolved to study politics; and he was well pleased that chance had made him acquainted with one who in his time had caused some stir in the political world. Sir Arthur Hutton, had he lived in older times, would have been a cavalier of most perfect type; the Duke of Rosedene was a devout believer in the divine right of kings. Martin Ray believed in nothing except the rights of the people—Vox populi, vox Dei was his maxim; so that Sir Basil had every opportunity of hearing all sides of the question.

When he started for Rosewalk the next day, he honestly believed that he was going to see Martin Ray from the most honorable and the highest motives. He might, of course, see the beautiful singer again; it was not improbable; but he was not going for that purpose.

A second time he left the Abbey for a long ramble without asking Leah to accompany him. This time she noticed it, but said nothing. The wind was keen that autumn afternoon. It brought a delicious freshness from the ocean and the scent from the wild thyme on the hill-top.

When he reached Rosewalk, a young and beautiful girl was seated near the wall overlooking the sea. What, at the first sight of her, made his heart beat so fast? He had to pass close by her; but he would not look at the golden hair and sweet face. He went into the quaint flower-wreathed porch and rapped at the door. Then, as one watches things in a dream, he saw the young girl arise and walk toward him with a firm graceful step.

"I beg your pardon," he said, "I want to see Mr. Martin Ray."

She drew back a little, and looked at him with the air of one surprised.

"My father!" she replied. "He is not at home."

The blue eyes looked into his for a moment, then they fell, and a soft color like that of the fairest ink of a rose covered her face; the dark eyes looking at her were so full of passionate admiration that she could not raise her own to his again.

"Not at home," repeated Sir Basil. "I am sorry for that. I was to see him to-day, and I have walked some distance. Have I your permission to wait until he returns?"

She looked slightly confused at first; then she felt that it would be impossible to refuse. She was only too pleased that her father should have a call from so pleasant a visitor.

"You can wait if you wish to do so," she replied; "but the hour of his return is quite uncertain."

"If you will allow me, I will risk it," he said. "I do not think any one could find a more beautiful spot than this in which to while away the time."

He sat down on the pretty rustic bench, which was so placed that one could see the incoming tide. The waves were rolling in grandly; the wind had freshened, and they broke in sheets of white foam. The sunlight lay on the sea and on the shore, on the white cliffs and on the green hill; it fell on the golden hair and sweet face opposite to him. A feeling of perfect rest came over him, of happiness such as in his whole life he had never known before.

For a few minutes they were silent. Hettie did not raise her eyes from her work, and he was wondering why the presence of this one woman made so great a difference to him. No man living had a keener sense of honor than Sir Basil, but it stole upon him unawares, this sweet glamor of love, and had made its home in his heart long before he knew that it was there.

"I heard you singing in church last Sunday," he said. "I have been staying in this neighbourhood for some time. You have a very beautiful voice; I was quite delighted with it."

"I am fond of music," she answered; "above all things, I am fond of singing; it is the one pleasure of my life. I forget everything else when I sing."

"Is there so much in your life that you would like to forget," he asked, suddenly—"so young a life as yours?"

Her thoughts flew to Leah. Surely no one in the world had so much to forget as she, who had lost this best beloved sister.

"I am not sure," she replied. "There are some things I should like to be able to think less about."

She did not wish to forget Leah, but she would gladly have thought less bitterly of her loss. While singing she forgot the keen pain, but never the cause of it.

"I should not have thought," he said, "that you had had any trouble in life. You are young, and your face has something of the joy of childhood in it."

She smiled and blushed when she saw his eyes, so full of admiration, bent upon her.

Then he talked to her of the country, of the sea, and of her father, and he was delighted with her enthusiasm about him. If the scales had fallen from her eyes, she would not admit it even to herself. With all the force of her loving, tender nature, she clung not only to her father as he actually was, but even to the ideal she had formed of him. It was touching to hear her speak of him in his fallen estate; he was even greater in her eyes than he had been before. His discontent, irritation, anger, and gloom made no difference to her; his words to her were always full of wisdom. It was natural that he should feel hurt; the world, she believed, had been cruel to him—had undervalued him, and ill-used him. If gentle Hettie in her heart hated anything, it was this world which had not acknowledged her father's worth. She did not know much about his doctrines and beliefs; he had not given himself the trouble to teach her. She had every

An Elusive Quality.

What is the elusive quality which we know as charm?

Sir James Barris has defined it as "a kind of bloom on a woman." Another writer says, "Charm cannot protect us from many disagreeable things, but assuredly it can make the day-to-day business of life, composed as it is of contact with adjustments to other people, ever so much pleasanter and easier." No small thing this, that when one remembers that much of life's suffering comes from difficulty to adjust oneself to other people and to see their points of view.

One might parody the great poet thus—"Some are born charming; others achieve charm." Never, however, can one say that any have charm thrust upon them!

A sympathetic woman is always charming, and who does not feel the attraction of a pleasant manner, or of an agreeable speaking voice, even if the owner is by no means beautiful?

Self-consciousness militates against charm, though many an extremely shy girl could display this quality if only she could get away from herself.

No one can resist the charm of a truly well-bred woman, a charm largely due to self-control and to the interest, real or pretended, in other people's affairs which society demands.

Good Breeding and Sympathy.

If good breeding is good feeling, as the proverb says, then the girl may acquire charm by a deferential manner to older women and by listening with sympathy to wearisome persons. That virile and quick-witted lady, Mrs. Asquith, confesses herself to be "interested even in bores;" one has only to study her face as she listens to the laboured speech of a plethoric Lord Mayor to realize the truth of this statement.

A clever Scots professor once described an uninteresting woman as "greatly lacking in charm." A very nice way of putting it, and, as he added at least three "r's" to the word, it made it, to my ears at least, all the more charming!

Qualities of Success.

Self-confidence and self-assurance help to make a girl a success, and also give charm; but those qualities should, like a good salad-dressing, be understood and not expressed.

If frankness has charm, reserve has still more; especially perhaps for men, who at once begin to wonder about the qualities behind the maidenly reserve. Here the Scott lassie scores.

The work on which she had been so busy fell from her hands, and she began to dream. Would such a pleasant hour ever come again?

Prosperity Lost By Prohibition.

Other Countries are Boycotting Norway and Iceland.

(Toronto Mail and Empire).

Copenhagen, April 17.—The Scandinavian dry who put over prohibition or partial prohibition in Norway and Iceland have discovered they are wrecking the prosperity of those countries. In retaliation for the restrictions imposed on the importation of liquor, Spain, Spain, and Portugal are threatening to boycott their enormous fish trade. In fact Spain and Portugal have already prohibited the importation of fish from Iceland, and to prevent that island from going bankrupt the Iceland Government is now seeking to negotiate for the removal of the embargo in return for permitting the importation of a limited quantity of light wine.

Norway also is having serious trouble with those three wine-growing countries which are bringing all possible diplomatic pressure on her to ease up on the liquor import restrictions, under penalty of having their ban placed on the importation of her fish. As additional pressure, Spain and Portugal, have decided even to place special harbor and import taxes on Norwegian ships, and cargo respectively. The effect of this situation is already visible in the lower exchange rate of the Norwegian kroner, and that country's financiers, in considerable alarm, are beginning to wonder whether it will not be necessary to make some concessions to the wine-growing countries regarding the importation of their products.

sibility to the country. Civil war, he declared, meant not only that the Republic could not be maintained but would banish the idea of a Republic forever from the minds of the people and leaving the way open for Britain to step in. Both sides were to blame, Osegary insisted.

WANTS RACE ENCOURAGED.

OTTAWA, May 3. William Duff, Lunenburg, urged the Government to make a grant of $6000 to encourage the deep sea fishing vessels' race. Minister of Marine and Fisheries Lapointe promised sympathetic consideration.

CANADIAN REPRESENTATIVE TO WASHINGTON.

OTTAWA, May 3. The appointment of a Canadian representative at Washington is now receiving careful consideration by the Dominion Government, Premier King told the Commons to-day.

GETTING SENSE.

DUBLIN, May 3. On motion of De Valera Dall Eireann to-night adopted a resolution ordering the opposing side in the Irish Republican army conflict to cease firing immediately and arrange a Truce. De Valera said he would urge the independent army Executive to issue a similar order. Griffith declared the Free Staters were only defending themselves.

AT GENOA.

GENOA, May 3. The Economic Conference at the second plenary session to-day adopted the reports of the financial and transport Commissions.

BEATY OPTIMISTIC.

MONTREAL, May 3. At the annual meeting of the Canadian Pacific Railway, President Beatty spoke optimistically of the general business recovery which he saw in progress and urged the adoption of a more constructive immigration policy.

CIVIL WAR IN IRELAND.

KILKENNY, May 3. Sharp fighting, with machine guns rattling in all directions, was in progress here to-day. Free State troops were trying to recapture Ormond Castle, still held by Irregulars, who yesterday were driven out of other places they had captured.

NOT BENEFICIAL.

NEW YORK, May 3. The Herald observes that the emergency tariff because American sales to Canada have greatly decreased while Canadian products, shut out of the United States have been sold in Europe and in other markets formerly held by United States products. The Canadians, the Herald says, are now spending more of their money where they are selling more of their products.

PLANNING FOR PEACE.

DUBLIN, May 3. Conference representing the differing factions of the Irish Republican Army, who on Monday reached the basis of an agreement were prepared to press their plans before to-day's session of Dall Eireann. Arrangements for bringing the matter before the Dall were made at a meeting yesterday, when it was decided to issue an appeal to all ranks throughout Ireland to act in the spirit of conciliation, permitting the election of a representative Government, and putting into force the provisions of the Anglo-Irish Treaty.

FLOOD CONDITIONS ALARMING.

BRANDON, Man., May 3. The Assiniboine River overflowed its banks on Monday and flood conditions here and further west are becoming alarming. Heavy loss to seeded fields and live stock are likely to result.

RUSSIANS NOT PLEASED.

GENOA, May 3. Soviet plenipotentiaries are not delighted with the project of the powers for the reconstruction of Russia. The fact that the document on which the European statesmen have worked so laboriously does not mention recognition of the Soviet Government and ignores the suggestion of Governmental loans is said to displease the Communist leaders who are now conferring with Moscow.

FIGHTING IN CHINA.

PEKING, May 3. General Pei Fu, commander of Chihli forces, was reported this evening to have arrived near Machang to take personal command of the operations. Late reports are that General Tso Lin is heavily reinforcing his troops in that area. Heavy bombardments have depleted the big gun ammunition and fighting is now mainly with machine guns and rifles.

Tarvia Prevents Dust; Tarvia Preserves Roads.

In the United States and Canada Tarvia is the standard by which all other road-binders and preservatives are judged.

Tarvia is made in three grades—"Tarvia X" for road construction, "Tarvia B" for preservation of road surface and "Tarvia K-P" for repairing roads. Both "Tarvia B" and "Tarvia K-P" have been used in St. John's Municipal works for several years.

"Tarvia B" actually enters the road surface, acts as a cement and resists the tear and wear of traffic. By cementing together the dust particles "Tarvia B" prevents the formation of dust. After the application of "Tarvia B" to a road surface a thin layer of sand should be applied to take care of the excess liquid and to prevent tracking. This layer of sand will prevent horses from slipping and automobiles from skidding and will prolong the life of the road surface. Broken stone is not as satisfactory or as economical as sand for this purpose.

A road after being treated with "Tarvia B" does not become muddy in rainy weather, the water and dries off quickly after the rain, leaving the road in admirable condition while untreated roads are still deep with mud.

"Tarvia B" surfacing should be applied annually but only when roads are in good condition and free from surplus dust. All holes and depressions should be repaired with fine broken stone and "Tarvia K-P."

When "Tarvia B" is applied by mechanical sprinker, care should be taken to have men with brooms and hand sprinklers go over the ground so that excess "Tarvia B" may be brushed out and not allowed to run waste and so that bare spots be treated and the entire road surface secured.

A loose, "happy-go-lucky" application is sheer waste of time and money, "whatever is worth doing, is worth doing well."

"Tarvia B" is admirably adapted to the treatment of sidewalks and walks in parks, hospital grounds and cemeteries. Wooden plankings of bridges will last longer if treated with "Tarvia B." Fence posts, sills and houses etc. will be greatly benefited by treatment with "Tarvia B." Further particulars will be gladly given upon application to

THE ENGINEERS' LOCKOUT.

LONDON, May 3. The quarters of a million of the workers in England's engineering industry are now locked out; some six hundred thousand being affected by the lockout caused by a dispute on the question of the rights of management in the workshops. The employers opened their shops for the employment of men wishing to resume work on the employers' terms, but reports to-day showed very few availed themselves of the opportunity. Meanwhile an official inquiry into the trouble was opened to-day by William MacKenzie, President of the Industrial Court.

Dining Out in America.

CHANCES OF ADVENTURE AT RESTAURANTS. PROHIBITION RAIDS
(BY A MAURICE LOW, in London Morning Post, March 30.)
WASHINGTON, March 15.—The other night, in company with a friend, I went to dinner at a small but eminently respectable restaurant well known to Washingtonians, who like good food and think music interferes with digestion. We had disposed of the hors d'oeuvre and were waiting for the next course when five burly men entered the place. They hastily looked around, and one of them went to the table adjoining mine, where sat a young army officer in uniform and a girl, picked up a small teapot, poured a little of its contents into a glass, tasted it, and decanted the rest into a large flask, which he produced from his pocket. His companions distributed themselves about the room and at another table went through the same performance. Two men went to the kitchen and serving pantries.
Those of us who were not busy eating or talking at first watched the proceedings idly. It seemed rather curious and out of place, for the restaurant is peculiar in having no cabaret and no dancing floor, and the people who frequent it are respectable and decorous. Then a little wave of excitement ran through the place. We knew what had happened. We were being raided by prohibition agents. Some of the women turned visibly pale; they pictured themselves lugged off to the police station, locked up all night in a cell, and arraigned next morning to answer to the deadly crime of being present where illicit liquor was consumed; but to most persons it was a pleasant and novel interlude. The persons who really showed annoyance were the young army officer and his girl.
The prohibition agents eyed us all suspiciously, and we all felt, at least my friend and I did, much, I imagine, as a criminal does when the judge is about to put on the black cap. If not actually guilty of the vile offence of drinking, at least we were morally guilty, and we momentarily expected to be arrested on general principles, perhaps subjected to the torture to disclose what we did not know. They not only looked at us as if they recognized us from our pictures in the Rogues' Gallery and knew there was a price on our heads, but peered at our plates and dishes, as if they were certain the innocent boiled potatoes were camouflaging contraband. One of the men went to the table at which sat an elderly man and his wife. They had been drinking tea, and there was a small jug of hot water. The agent examined it. "Help yourself," said the man cheerfully, while his wife laughed. The agent scowled, and quickly turned away. The majesty of the law does not enjoy being made foolish.
THE WAY THE LAW WORKS.
If one has to be raided while indulging in no more heinous crime than eating dinner, I hope the inconvenience will never be greater than it was the other night. In New York and other cities the prohibition agents have a pleasant little habit of swooping down on a restaurant and arresting everyone, whether drinking or not, whose bad fortune has happened to bring them there. Our raiders were well-mannered pirates. It is true they disturbed the service. They examined underneath the tables with their flashlights, and were curious to know where locked doors led and what was in cupboards, but in a free country where Liberty is inscribed on the public buildings one must expect domiciliary visits and be thankful to escape immediate execution. Nothing worse happened than the arrest of the manager and a couple of waiters, and the young army man was served with a summons to appear next morning as a witness for the government. According to Anglo-Saxon law and the American Constitution, no man can be compelled to incriminate himself, yet the young army officer would be forced to admit that he had ordered something to drink, thus convicting himself of being a lawbreaker. But that is merely a trifling detail.
This is a fair illustration of the way prohibition works, which, as at present administered, is the most iniquitous and worst class law ever put on the Statute Books of any civilized country. This is not exaggeration, neither does it attack the principal of prohibition. Prohibition may be good or bad—that is a matter of opinion; but there can be only one opinion about a law which discriminates in favor of the rich as against the poor. That is what prohibition does in America.
CLASS DISTINCTION.
At the time when this raid was taking place there were in Washington a score or more of houses in which formal dinners were being given and wine was freely served. Despite the prohibition amendment that is legitimate it is illegal to buy liquor, but once you have it—and you may obtain it by being virtually a receiver of stolen goods—you may give it to your friends without violation of the law or fear of a prohibition agent walking into your house and making himself a nuisance. Consequently if a man is unlucky enough to be poor and not have a house of his own, but lives in It's Flavor that Makes the Meal!

And the sauces that the Libby chefs have adapted for you give flavor to the simplest dishes.

It may be eggs, or macaroni, or a cheap cut of meat—an unusual and delicious sauce will make it something you eat with delight and remember with pleasure—because of its flavor.

LIBBY'S CATCHUP and CHILI SAUCE are made from red, ripe tomatoes, grown in the fertile soil of Kent County, Ontario, picked when they are mellowed by the sunshine of long summer days, then rushed to the nearby Libby kitchen.

Here in sunny rooms the tomatoes are cooked with fragrant spices, onions, sugar and the best vinegar—cooked for hours until all the flavors are blended through and through.

Now the sauce is ready to give an appetizing relish to your steaks and chops, or a new piquancy to the meat gravy you serve with your roasts.

Your grocer has, or can get you, Libby's Catchup or Chili Sauce. Use it with your cold meat teas and note how quickly the second helping is necessary.

The delightful flavor of Libby's Beans is due largely to the wonderful Sauce prepared by the skilled chefs. Have you tried them?

Libby, McNeill & Libby

chambers or on pension, as so many young men must do, and he wants to take his sweetheart to dinner at a public restaurant, he can have a hilarious time on ice-water, or he can arrange for something more stimulating and risk arrest and spoiling the girl's evening. Let him have sufficient money to enjoy the security of his castle—and an American's house is his castle which the law respects—and he can drink anything he pleases.
Of course he will have to pay for it. Which is another form of class distinction and a discrimination in favor of the rich. Good liquor is expensive because it is an illicit commodity. The young army officer living on his meagre pay must content himself with "home-made wine" and other vile concoctions, and cannot even get a glass of wholesome beer; the rich man, giving his dinner party, to whom money means nothing, can serve cocktails made not of synthetic gin, which the wine avoid as they would a plague of "moonshine" alcohol, which is rank poison, but of world-famous brands. Even in broad daylight, in the best policed thoroughfares, there is the danger of the armed bandits wantonly killing. I do not say that the danger of crime is the result of prohibition. I merely mention a coincidence.

A PARCE.
Everyone knows this—the waiters arrested at the restaurant, the servants in large houses, everybody in fact, high or low. Knowing that the law is a farce, that it is a rich man's law, that it is an imposition upon the poor, not only is the law deliberately broken, but it brings the whole body of the law into contempt. If it is no crime to "beat the law" to obtain liquor, why is it a crime to rob a man's pocket? A weak argument, of course, but it appeals to men of criminal instincts, and to-day there is more crime in America than in any other country in the world. You risk your life every time you walk the streets of New York after midnight. Even in broad daylight, in the best

HOLINESS OF SEVEN.
Seven is regarded as a holy number.
There were seven days in creation;
seven spirits before the throne of God;
the week contains seven days; there are seven graces and seven divisions in the Lord's prayer. The life of man has seven ages, while in the old days every seventh year was Sabbath, and seven times seven the jubilee. The three great Jewish feasts lasted seven days, and between the first and second of these feasts there were seven weeks. We have seven churches in Asia.

There are seven bodies in alchemy,
as Chaucer says in the Chaucer's Yemenes Tale—
The bodies seven, seek, to hem hear anon;
Sol gold is, and Luna silver, we threpe Mars yren, Mercurie quiksilver we clepe;
Saturnus lead, and Jupyter is tyne,
And Venus cooper, by my fader kyn.
The seven Sages of Greece are known by their seven wise sayings:—
(1) Solon of Athens, whose motto was "Know thyself." (2) Chilo of Sparta—"Consider the end." (3) Thales of Miletos—"Who batheth sure-lyship is sure." (4) Bias of Priens—
"Most men are bad." (5) Cleobulus of Lindos—"The golden mean, or avoid extremes." (6) Pittacus of Mitylene
—"Seize time by the forelock." (7) Periander of Corinth—"Nothing is impossible to industry."

The champions of Christendom are seven: St. George of England, St.
Dennis of France, St. James of Spain, St. Anthony of Italy, St. Andrew of Scotland, St. Patrick of Ireland, and St. David of Wales.

Students of the Bible will discover a great many references to the number seven.

The seven Properties.
According to the very old teaching, the soul of man, or his inward holy body, is compounded of the seven properties which are under the influence of the seven planets. Fire animates, Earth gives the sense of feeling,
water gives speech, air gives taste, mist gives sight; flowers give the sense of smell and the south wind gives hearing. Hence the seven senses are Animation, Feeling, Speech, Taste, Sight, Smell, and Hearing. The Seven Wonders of Antiquity are fami-lar. The Seven Wonders of the Middle Ages were (1) The Coliseum at Rome. (2) The Catacombs of Alexandria. (3) The Great Wall of China.
(4) Stonehenge. (5) The Leaning Tower of Pisa. (6) The Porcelain Tower of Nanking. (7) The Mosque of St. Sophia at Constantinople.

Russian Refugees Flocking to Berlin.

GIVING GREAT TROUBLE TO GER-MAN POLICE.
BERLIN, (Associated Press)— Hordes of Russian refugees are floating here on every train. The arrivals have settled themselves in a section of the city which they occupy almost to the exclusion of other nationalities, and have opened their own restaurants, clubs, saloons, and theaters. Some of the Russians are wealthy, but most of them are penniless. The police have found them a problem as they insist upon their own customs, and have little commerce with the Germans. The greatest difficulty is found in compelling the immigrants to observe the one o'clock closing regulations. They follow the Russian custom of beginning dinner after midnight and continuing their eating and drinking until daylight. In several of these restaurants former wealthy Russians are working as waiters, cooks, or entertainers. A prince and his wife, a baron, and another of their countrymen constitute the orchestra and must work or starve.

RUSSIANIZING THE METROPOLIS.
Profiteers who made fortunes out of the Russian revolution frequent the cafes in this quarter, where they have become conspicuous figures in the night life because of their lavish expenditures. The German newspapers complain that the great influx of easterners has deprived Berlin of its "German character." One paper asserts Germany's capital city has become a "foreign colony" as surely as it would have become if our enemies had marched in and taken it. Another declares Germans have become "guests in their own homes." Government quarters, which have shown little concern for the financial status of the refugees, have suddenly become intensely interested in the new arrivals, particularly from Poland and Russia, fearing an epidemic of typhus and cholera. German Red Cross physicians have warned the Government that unless closer border control can be maintained an epidemic in the spring is certain. The German Red Cross has also notified the government that there is danger of the Russians carrying the plague to America unless the greatest precautions are taken, for scores are seeking admission to the United States.

Revue Writer Leaves.

NOTED PRODUCER RETURNS TO NEW YORK—WILL WRITE
NEW REVUE.
John Murray Anderson, the famous lyric writer and revue producer, returns to New York on S.S. Rosalind, after a brief holiday spent here with his father, Hon. John Anderson. He will be accompanied by his brother, Mr. Hugh Anderson, who is acting as his business manager. Upon his return, Mr. Anderson will produce the latest edition of the Greenwich Village Follies, a show he organized and produced a few years ago and which has become quite an institution in New York. He is at present writing lyrics which will be used in the new edition of the revue. Among other things which he proposes to do during the present year, he will write a musical comedy in collaboration with Fred Isam, a well known writer. Augustus Baret will compose the music for this production. After that, he will probably go to London, where he will put on a show at the Gaiety Theatre.

KEPT CURIO SHOP.
Seven years ago, Mr. Anderson had a curio shop in St. John's. To-day he is the youngest among the famous revue writers and producers. After leaving St. John's he became an exhibition dancer in New York and also laugh dancing. While engaged in this occupation he wrote several plays, one of which was accepted by David Belasco, but never produced.
His first revue, "The Spice of Life," was staged at the Palais Royal, New York, in the days when such presentations were very much different from what they are to-day. Later, he took over the Palais Royal and ran it for three years with great success. In 1919, he originated the Greenwich Village Follies, which have passed through several editions. When C. B.
Cochran, the well known English theatrical manager came to the States, he engaged Mr. Anderson, whose "What's in a Name" was meeting with phenomenal success, to come over to London and produce a revue at the New Oxford Theatre. This revue was "The League of Nations," and not only did Mr. Anderson write the book and lyrics, but he also staged it and originated much of the scenic effects, and many of the novel costumes worn by the Dolly Sisters and other famous people who were in the cast. It was this revue that the dramatic critic of the "Daily Mail" said "It is the best and most beautiful production which the lyric stage of England has ever seen."

REVOLUTIONISED REVUES.
Mr. Anderson has revolutionised the staging of revues in America and England. He strives to obtain a more realistic effect by means of grouping and colour schemes, rather than with painted scenery. In this, he has been eminently successful, and his ingenious ideas have been copied by many other producers. He was the first to introduce to the public the amazing invention of a Russian who by means of lights and colour changes made it possible for an interior scene to be changed into an exterior, and vice versa.

Opposition Candidates Employ "Bulldogs."
BUDAPEST, (Associated Press)—
A new occupation, open only to young huskies not afraid to fight at the drop of a cabbage, has come into being here as a result of intensive campaigning for the pending election.
Candidates opposing the government have met with such pronounced hostility that they now employ as many athletic young men as their campaign funds will permit to act as bouncers, body guards, spotters and shields for the speakers. Opposition candidates decided to buy protection after dozens of their meetings had been broken up by bands of the notorious "Awakening Hungarians," who acquired remarkable skill at heaving cabbages and soft tomatoes, ill-smelling bombs and occasionally bricks during fits of political enthusiasm. The bouncers are stationed at various points throughout the hall and galleries and on the speaker's platform. Those in the audience attempt to quell disturbances at the source, but should a stray vegetable break loose and head for the stage, there is always some of the hired help ready to jump in front of the speaker for an instant. On the rare occasions when there are no disturbances, the huskies act as claqueurs. In many of the gatherings this is said to require almost as much courage as speaking, for an outburst of applause from any section of the house is sure to bring a collection of missiles.

Reduce Both Ways.

On every hand to-day is heard a demand for a reduction of taxation. This is not a new cry. For ages the lieges have been requesting that taxes be cut down to suit their purses, but perhaps never before, in the history of Newfoundland at least, has there been an era when the people were so heavily burdened as in the years of the administration of the present Government.

Notwithstanding that the Prime Minister in his pre-election manifesto advertised severely on the tariff of 1919 and previous years, and made promises that he would have it adjusted so that the load of payment would be shifted to the shoulders of those who were in a position to pay, he is the man—responsible for piling on the weight of both taxation and expenditure, until to-day Newfoundland is expected to raise a revenue equal to one-half of her exports, in order to cope with the carnival of extravagance indulged in by the party in power.

Millions have been squandered and millions will yet be squandered if the Government is allowed to pursue its financial course, a course leading to the precipice of ruin, over which the country must inevitably plunge, unless a check is placed upon expenditure. Despite warnings, despite advice, despite popular protest, despite precedents, the Government gaily carries on and apparently will not heed the signs. They will not decrease taxation, they will not reduce expenditure, and yet they can do both if only they apply a little business acumen and develop a knowledge of the situation which the Colony faces.

share on those best able to pay. That is the first axiom in economics. No Government can continue solvent so long as they persist in the policy of "robbing Peter to pay Paul." It is poor business to raise a loan for the purpose of paying off a previous loan, yet that is just what the Government of Newfoundland have been doing, all the while playing a "confidence game" with the people.

A Fine Point of Law.

WAS SCHR. LETTIE B. ILLEGALLY APPREHENDED?

Was S.S. Daisy under commission from the Customs and on Revenue Protection Service, guilty of an act of piracy when Customs Commissioner J. H. De, boarded and seized schooner Lettie B. upon the high seas a few days ago, confiscated cargo of said vessel without due trial of the master, and brought same to St. John's lodging it in the bonded warehouse set apart for such deposits? That is the question raised by the Government organ—The Advocate—yesterday.

Section 119 of the same act reads: "If any vessel is found hovering in British waters, within one league (three miles) of the coast or shores of this Colony, any officer of Customs may go on board and enter into such vessel, and stay on board such vessel while she remains within the limits of the Colony, or within one league (three miles) thereof."

McMurdo's Store News.

THURSDAY, May 4. In changeable, backward weather it is often wise to take a tonic, to ward off the results caused by severe and sudden changes of weather and temperature. For this purpose one of the best, undoubtedly, is McMurdo's Nutritive Hypophosphites, which has stood the test of many years use, and has been found unsurpassed for the purpose. Those who take Nutritive Hypophosphites are much less subject to colds, coughs, and chills, eat better, sleep better, and are in better spirits than those who have not fortified themselves. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00 a bottle.

THREE MURDERS COMMITTED and a FOURTH ATTEMPTED

Chinese Slayer Turns Gun on Himself-- Most Sensational Crime in History of Newfoundland--Is Last Night's Tragedy the Beginning of a Local Tong War?--Particulars of the Crime as Gleaned by Our Reporters--Murderer Still Alive, Makes Statement.

Three Chinamen were murdered in their laundry on Murray Street last night. Two others are in hospital dangerously wounded, but are likely to recover. The dead are:

- Hong Lon, proprietor of the Murray Street laundry, who has been in the country for several years. Aged about 28.
Hong Kam Hi, who has also been in St. John's for seven or eight years. He is nearly 34 years old.
So Hi Kai, who has been two years in the city. His age is about 30 years.

The wounded are: Hong Wing, who worked in Hop Wah's laundry, Casey St. We Fen King, who is held responsible for the shooting.

Both these men are expected to live, although their condition is still precarious.

The motive for the crime still remains a mystery and the only theory that can be advanced is that it was the result either of a tong or clan feud, or a grievance which Wo Fen King had nourished against his victim. There are several aspects of the case which are baffling to the police. Inspector General Hutchings and Mr. McCarthy, J.P., obtained a statement from the murderer this morning but this has not been divulged.

THE MURDER. It is presumed that Wo Fen King entered the Murray Street laundry, armed with a .38 calibre revolver, and shot the three inmates before an outcry could be raised. It is believed that Hong Lon was the first to be shot and that he dropped in a semi-conscious state, from which he recovered sufficiently to permit him to struggle forty feet up the hill towards Parade Street before he succumbed. This would be after the murderer had left the laundry.

SHOT AT CLOSE QUARTERS. Hong Kam Hi was shot through the heart and fell on his back, his head hanging over on the left side and his knees doubled up. After shooting Hong Lon and Hong Kam Hi, the murderer rushed through an alleyway on the left and, turning to the right, entered a tiny wash room where he discovered So Hi Kai ironing curtains. The intended victim turned and was shot in the side at such close quarters that his apron was blackened with powder. He turned and fell in a crumpled heap, with one arm hanging in a clothes basket and his head on the outside.

FERED FOUR SHOTS. Rushing from the place, Wo Fen King hurried to Casey Street, a considerable distance away, and entered that thoroughfare by a maze of side streets. In his mad course he must have reloaded his revolver, which contains five chambers. He entered Hop Wah's laundry and found three Chinamen there. Singling out Hop Wing, who turned to salute him, Wo Fen King fired two shots at him, one of which entered near the jugular vein, the other piercing his ear. The murderer's next action was most amazing for he turned and fired one shot directly in front of him and another to the right and then left the laundry.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE. He now turned down Barron Street, a narrow lane leading into New Gower Street, and directly opposite the Casey Street laundry. Here he stopped and turned the revolver on himself. The flash was seen by Mr. Frank Martree, who also saw Wo Fen King stumble and then proceed on his way down the street. After shooting himself he evidently ejected the empty shells and slipped the revolver in his overcoat pocket. Coming out on New Gower Street he ran to Jim Gay's laundry, but those inside were frightened and would not let him in. He fell exhausted, with blood flowing from his mouth, and was picked up groaning and hurried to Dr. Roberts' surgery.

THE CRIME DISCOVERED. The crime was discovered by Sergt. Nugent, who was superintending the watch in the Murray Street section of the city. He was informed that a drunken man was lying on the sidewalk near Parade Street, and on examination he found that the man was a Chinaman and that he was dead. He hurriedly sent for assistance and had the dead man carried into the laundry. Entering it himself, he was confronted with the dead body of Hong Kam Hi, stretched on his back with his feet pointing towards the door. So Hi Kai was discovered in the wash room in the position already described. Through the courtesy of the police authorities a Telegram reporter was permitted to see the laundry this morning. Beyond blood stains on the floor of the outer apartment, nothing was disturbed and everything pointed to the victims being taken by surprise.

POLICE TAKE CHARGE. Inspector General Hutchings and Superintendent O'Neil, accompanied by other members of the force, quickly arrived on the scene and a hasty search was made for clues. Two constables were left in charge of the laundry after all possible evidence had been obtained. A few minutes later the startling news came that there had been more shooting, and upon hurrying to the Casey Street laundry, news of the remainder of the tragedy was gleaned. Hong Wing, the wounded man, was upstairs in Hop Wah's laundry, waiting for medical aid.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL. Dr. Roberts was not at home when the self-injured murderer was brought to his surgery, but assistance was rendered by Dr. J. N. Macdonald, and Dr. Anderson was also quickly on the scene. The ambulance was summoned and both murderer and victim was placed in it, and accompanied by Constable Pike were driven to the General Hospital. At the Hospital, Hong Wing was immediately operated upon and the bullet was extracted. A search of Wo Fen King's clothing revealed a revolver in an overcoat pocket and five cartridges were found in another pocket.

THE MURDERER. Wo Fen King is a native of Canton and has been in this country almost twelve months. He is a brother-in-law of Hong Kam Hi, who is among the dead. Wo Fen King was with the Chinese Labour Battalion in France, and after returning to Canton, came out to Newfoundland. Last night he endeavored to explain the shooting but his broken utterances could not be understood. Part of what he seemed to imply was that he placed the blame for the murders upon Hong Lon, the proprietor of the Murray Street laundry. He was also understood to say that he had been poorly paid by Hong Lon, for whom he worked, and that he found it impossible to live in any degree of comfort.

AFRAID OF HANGING. While at the Hospital, a nurse heard the self-wounded murderer say something to the effect that he was afraid he would be hung to-day, and that he would like to die. From this, it appears that he was fully conscious of the terrible crime he had committed. His statement made this morning to Inspector General Hutchings and Mr. McCarthy, J.P., has not been made public.

THE MOTIVE. Unless the motive of the crime has been divulged in the statement made by Wo Fen King this morning, it will probably never be laid bare. Several theories have been advanced, but there are points against all. One greatly favored is that the murderer was of a different Tong or clan than his victims and that the crime was the culmination of a feud. It is believed that he is of a different Tong from his victims, but lived with them because of his brother-in-law. Another theory is based on the garbled statement made by Wo while undergoing medical attendance. This was to the effect that he had been badly treated by those whom he shot. Here the question arises, why did he single out Hong Wing in Casey Street and not trouble about the others? The final theory is that of insanity, but there seems to be little evidence to support this. Kim Lee, the well-known proprietor of the Dominion Cafe, could give no explanation of the motive for the tragedy. He knew very little about Wo Fen King. George Dean, the proprietor of the Casey Street laundry, was also mystified by the occurrence.

THE RANDOM SHOTS. Among the mysteries connected with the crime, is that of the random shots fired after the wounding of Hong Wing. Nothing has yet been advanced to explain this. Three empty shells were found by a police constable in Barron Street this morning, in the spot where the murderer shot himself. The revolver is a nickel plated one and is of a well known make. How long it was in the possession of Wo Fen King is unknown.

THE POST MORTEM. The bodies of the murdered men were conveyed last night to the Morgue where they were seen by a Telegram reporter to-day. Their faces did not show any expressions of surprise or fear, proving that they could not have realized what was happening, so quickly were their deaths accomplished. Doctors Anderson and Griev conducted a post mortem examination this morning. Hong Lon was found to have been shot through the heart, and the bullet was found lodged near the heart. The bullet which killed Hong Kam Hi penetrated his heart and, coming out, lodged in the spine. So Hi Kai was shot through the right side, the bullet passing through his liver and out on the left.

The funerals will take place to-morrow and the arrangements are in the hands of Undertaker Martin.

Our Local Peeps

HIS DIARY.

May 3rd.—Up late, being wearied with my last night's debauch, and in great pain from a stiffness of my limbs. Long at the office, where much work I wait upon Mr. Anderson at his home, and am told divers things which I did not know, but pleased me mightily to learn. I meet Mr. Poy, and he tells me how there do be rumours how Sir E. Bond will not come to town, but he will not believe them. I to the Board of Trade, and hold discourse with Mr. Church and Mr. Baird of last night's Ball. Home and see my wife doing her hair, which is off so much that I am troubled at it. At night, to the Pettican meeting where I am made of the Executive. So home, and a sad, snowy tempestuous night, such as I never thought to see in May. Come a phone call from Mr. Gedland to tell me how there do be three Chinamen slain in a brawl, and two like to die. A strange occurrence, and one that will cause a great sensation, I think. To read awhile in "Punch," and so to bed.

"The Chimes" are wonderful. Enjoy them to-night.

Unemployed Meet.

ANOTHER DEMAND FOR WORK. A meeting of the unemployed opened at the Star Hall at 3 o'clock this afternoon. There was a large number of men present. The purpose of the meeting was to call the attention of the Government to the fact that quite a number of men find themselves in a precarious position without prospect of getting work. It is stated that of the eight or nine hundred men who were given employment during the winter, less than 400 were fishermen and the rest comprise laborers, clerks and tradesmen, amongst the latter being engineers, firemen and cooper.

"The Chimes" will ring for two nights more only.

Drowned While Seal Hunting.

BODY RECOVERED. The Deputy Minister of Justice received the following message this morning from P. J. Bryan, J.P. Tilling, Fogo District:—"A young man named Lambert Burke fell overboard from a gunning punt here to-day and was drowned. His body was recovered." It is presumed that the man was out hunting seals when the accident occurred.

The Matinee will be on Saturday.

NOTE OF THANKS.—The Ladies' of the Dorcas Society wish to express their sincere thanks to Messrs. O'Neil and Coady of the Majestic Theatre, for the very generous donation representing part profits from performances during Lent—May 4, 11.

A Haven of Rest.

"THE ANGEL OF SIBERIA" LOOKING AFTER WAR PRISONERS.

STOCKHOLM (Associated Press)—A refuge of rest and physical rehabilitation where the human wrecks of German war prisoners from Russia and Siberia may be treated and salvaged is being purchased by Miss Elia Brandstrom, known throughout Central Europe and Russia as "The Angel of Siberia." Miss Brandstrom is negotiating for a village in Southern Germany which she proposes to turn into a human reclamation camp for the derelicts that once marched proudly under Hindenburg and other Teutonic military leaders against the Russians and were captured and sent to Siberian concentration camps. They remained in Siberia till long after the world war was over and there are still thousands of them left, free to return home if they could. But they have neither the means nor the physical strength to do so.

A LADY WITH A LAMP.

Miss Brandstrom is a young Swedish Red Cross nurse, the daughter of the late General Edward Brandstrom, for many years Swedish Minister to Russia under the Czar's regime. Leaving her comfortable home in Stockholm and the aristocratic social set in which she had been brought up, she led a small Red Cross expedition into Western Siberia and has succeeded in repatriating thousands of German and Austrian war prisoners. But she found that when the former soldiers reached their homes they were unable to assume their former places in society. They were wrecks that had to be attended to. So she has collected a considerable fund and hopes to purchase a village and have it ready for occupancy this autumn. As to the war prisoners still wandering about Russia and Siberia, many of them will never be found, and none of them will ever be able to get back without outside aid. Miss Brandstrom proposes to continue rounding up these waifs and bring them to her haven of rest.

Our Book Review.

"The Return of Alfred" (Published by Herbert Jenkins and retailed by Dicks and Co.) This book by the author of Patricia Brent-Spinner is almost sure to obtain the popularity of the author's previous works as it abounds from the dedication (of which more anon) to the final sentence in cheery narrative. The Dedication is:

To Those in Many Countries Who have generally assumed responsibility

For the authorship of "Patricia Brent-Spinner"

This Book is dedicated by the author. The final sentence is:—"I'll be murdered if I catch you," laughed Smith, making a movement in the direction of the red blob, where it disappeared and once more the pin-wood resumed its sombre colouring of greys and greens and browns."

The story is one of complications, starting with a railway strike and including Marjorie and ending with the awful complication of a red-headed brother-in-law who is desperately in need of bowling practice. To follow "James Smith" through all his adventures will hold one for hours. In inheriting the identity of "Miss Alfred" the hero inherits his retainers, faithful friends and enemies, and last but not least, his fiancée. The book is good throughout and it will be a very crochety person who will even after a second reading, find any faults in it. We should like, however, to ask two questions of the publisher: Who is the author? and what happened to Pte. Gadget after Peters finished with him?—R. S. F.

Norwegian Fishery.

FIGURES EQUAL TO DATE.
The report of the Norwegian fishery furnished the Board of Trade shows that the fishery is equal to that of last year, and by the close of the season the catch will be in excess of last year's. Although the Lofoden fishery is closed operations at other places will not cease until the end of June. The report is as follows:—
May 3, 1922 . . . 33,700,000
May 5, 1921 . . . 33,700,000
Lofoden closed.

Two Judicial Tribunals.

QUEER LEGAL ANOMALIES ENSUE.

DUBLIN (Associated Press)—Extremes in Ireland of two sets of judicial tribunals—the Republican courts and the old courts of the King—has resulted in some queer legal anomalies, as both courts are recognized by the government as valid, and their decisions do not always coincide. One of the most notable of these "double action" cases concerned a bookmaker who entered suit in King's Court against a man who refused to pay his seasonal losses, said to exceed his earnings with the same bookmaker by 20 times. The defendant pleaded the Gaming Acts, prohibiting legal proceedings to collect gambling debts, won his case, and the bookmaker added counsel fees to his other losses. Hardly was the case decided in King's Court when the defendant entered suit against the bookmaker in a Republican court, demanding judgment for the amount of his earnings. The astonished bookmaker, realizing that he could not afford to jeopardize his trade of betting by taking refuge under the Gaming Acts as his client had done, found that the question before the court was merely whether the horses named in the action had won. When the proof of this was submitted, judgment was entered against the bookmaker.

Prince Will Visit Shrine of Terror.

JAPAN'S VENERATION FOR GREAT MEN.

TOKIO (Associated Press)—Japan's veneration for her great leaders of the past will be brought home to the Prince of Wales when he is taken on a pilgrimage to the sacred Tenno shrine, bordering on the ancient capital of Kyoto, burial place of Meiji Tenno, father of the present ruler and the great figure-head of the restoration period; and of Jimmu Tenno, founder of the empire. The Meiji tomb is situated at Momoyama, a wooded eminence some five miles from Kyoto, a spot which the late emperor is said to have chosen as his last resting place. The tomb itself is remarkably simple, consisting of a huge mound of concrete, covered with 800,000 minute slabs of white granite, and so constructed as to withstand the ravages of time and nature. The mound rests on a terraced slope, behind which, amphitheater like, is a grove of trees, the open space in front being covered with fine white sand, while round it is a double line of stone fences pierced by "torii" gates bearing the imperial insignia.

MAGNIFICENT RUINS.

This district is particularly rich in historical associations. It is the site of the famous palace of the dictator Hideyoshi, built in 1594 but now completely destroyed. It is said to have been the most magnificent mansion ever built in Japan. Here, too, not far from the Meiji tomb is the mausoleum of the Emperor Kwammu, who in 792 founded the imperial capital of Kyoto, a distinction which belonged to this city until Meiji Tenno moved to Tokio in modern times. The mausoleum of Jimmu Tenno is built on the low hill of Unebi overlooking the romantic land of Yamato, where in the dim ages was founded the Empire of Japan. It is a large mound or tumulus of stone and earth, surrounded by ancient trees and a double line of moats. To both these tombs are attached shrines, simple and severe in aspect, perfect examples of Shinto architecture. That dedicated to the founder of Japan is situated at Kasaharabara, at the foot of Mt. Unebi, while the Meiji Shrine, in recognition of that Emperor's long connection with Tokio, has been erected in the present-day capital.

Railway Concession.

TO BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The British Consul-General for Peru on the railway concessions by the Peruvian Government Robert William Dunsmuir, of Columbia, points to the British trade and industry derive from this undertaking. Some will be expended in the use of material and equipment also. No doubt, a large amount of British labor will be required for the actual construction.

Construction. The port goes up to the sea, the roads, covering a distance of 100 kilometres, the harbour, and terminals, is about £13,000,000 over a period of seven years.

It is probable that before the expiration of this time most of the railways to be constructed will have become revenue producers.

It is proposed that the whole of the materials, tools and machinery used in the construction, as well as the rolling-stock, shall be bought in Great Britain.

These will include large quantities of cement, nails, steel bridge work and framing, corrugated iron, drilling machinery, steam shovels, pile-driving machinery, picks, shovels, and small tools of all kinds, machine shop, wood-working and smith's equipment, and the other material necessary to such an enterprise, including, the docks, warehouses, freight and coal-handling machinery, river steamers and tugs, portable houses, tents, general living equipment, supplies of clothes, boots, etc. for at least 10,000 workmen and their families, who will be employed for at least seven years on the construction work.

The coal and iron mines along the course of the railways will take from Great Britain large quantities of explosives and machinery of all kinds.

Once the railways reach the immense sugar, cotton, cocoa, tobacco, and other agricultural regions, there will be an enormous demand for cotton gins and presses, sugar machinery, centrifugals, vacuum pans, tractors, steam ploughs, and, in fact, all kinds of agricultural machinery.

Special Inducement to Labor.

As a special inducement to labor the following substantial offer has been made:— To all skilled and unskilled laborers it is intended to give, under agreement, a block of land of 40 hectares, say 100 acres (English), the surface rights of which he will hold in perpetuity, to be selected by himself, out of the land grants which the concessionaire receives under the terms of the concessions the concessionaire undertaking that such allotment shall be made in a part of the country suited to Europeans, as far as climate and general conditions are concerned.

The Concessions are generally admitted to be the most important ever granted by any government in the world, and comprise two distinct groups of railway concessions, carrying with them land grants amounting to over fifty million acres, the surface rights of which the concessionaire will hold in perpetuity; the exclusive right to the oil, coal and all other minerals found within this area for a term of 33 years; and total exemption from all taxation, including import and export duties, inland revenue, income tax, registration and stamp duties, all for a similar period of 33 years.

Further, by the terms of the concession, the Government will hand over to a company to be organized by the concessionaire under the laws of Peru, the tobacco monopoly for the whole of the Republic for 33 years, with the sole proviso that such company, while operating as an independent concern, shall not sell tobacco or tobacco products at higher prices than those ruling to-day; except where the company puts on the market superior qualities, in which case the price shall be previously approved by the Peruvian Government.

The tobacco company, its capital and revenue, is exempted from all and every form of taxation for 33 years, except from the customs duties on the importation of foreign tobacco, which, however, the Government agrees not to increase during the life of the company.

Railways Taken Over by the Concessionaire.

The concessionaire, in consideration of the payment by him of 1,325,000 pounds Peruvian to the Government, takes over about 100 kilometres of railway in actual operation, and 170 kilometres of road bed graded. The net value of this construction is 1,725,000 pounds Peruvian.

Reviewing generally the terms of the concession as briefly as possible, it may be stated that again payment to the Peruvian Government of $11,325,000 (Peruvian), and the depositing with the Treasury of Peru $10,000,000 (Peruvian), (which the concessionaire has already done), the Government will hand over to the concessionaire 270 kilometres of railroad partly in full operation, valued at $1,725,000 (Peruvian), and the tobacco monopoly of the entire Republic for a period of 33 years, free from all taxation.

Further, the exclusive right for 33 years to build harbor works of all kinds at the terminal points on the Pacific, and at the eastern Peruvian Amazon terminals—for which a free grant of all necessary lands is made by the Government, except where such railway can be built to parallel those roads rights have been already granted. No other within 25 kilometres on either side for a period of 33 years, the concessionaire has preferential rights to build all extensions and branches, and has been granted a very liberal tariff for the railways, harbors and warehouses.

The Government also cedes certain land and mineral rights.

The concessionaire undertakes to construct within a period of six years a railway from the Pacific Coast to the port of Turumaguas on the Haut-

Twain's Dinner Suit.

Days of hobnobbing with Queen Victoria, the Prince of Wales who became King Edward VII, and called by Chauncey M. Depew in the fifth instalment of his "Leaves From My Autobiography," published in the March number of Scribner's Magazine. The famous railroad man, ex-Senator and raconteur tells of a conversation between Queen Victoria and Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii during the former's jubilee, told him at that time by a court officer.

At a dinner the dusky queen said to Queen Victoria: "Your Majesty, I am a blood relation of yours."

"How so?" was the Queen's astonished answer. "Why," said Liliuokalani, "my grandfather ate your Capt. Cook." Mr. Depew recounts many dinners, luncheons and talks with the Prince of Wales and tells how the Prince's equestrian awakened him one night at Hobart, a German watering place, saying the prince was on the terrace and wanted to see him. What he desired to do was to discuss American affairs and Mr. Depew conversed with him until daylight at a table lit by one candle.

Once Mr. Depew went from Hamburg to the near-by nerve-cure of Nauheim, where Mark Twain was on a vacation with Dr. Joseph Twichell, of Hartford, Conn., his home town pastor, Dr. Twichell was a bright humorist and often "furnished in the rough the jewels which afterward in Mark Twain's workshop became perfect gems," Mr. Depew reports.

The famous after-dinner speaker invited Mark Twain to a dinner, and the next morning the humorist, attired in his tramping suit, met the Prince of Wales. They talked and walked for an hour, but the humorist was absent from Edward's that night. "I would have invited Mark Twain this evening, if I thought he had with him any dinner clothes," the Prince explained to Mr. Depew. Upon being told that the humorist had some dinner clothes the Prince invited him to dinner the next evening.

THE DOCTOR'S ORDERS.

A friend of mine once gave his doctor a surprise. He had been attacked with eczema, an annoying affliction which, as everyone knows, it sometimes takes years to get rid of. The doctor told him what to do in regard to diet, use of ointments, and so forth, and told him to come again in a month to let him see what progress he had made. When he went back he was completely cured.

"Great goodness, man," said the doctor, "I never knew a case to clear up so quickly. What did you do?" "Exactly what you told me to," said the patient.

A Shock.
"Well," said the doctor, "that explains it. You're one man in a thousand. The other 999 do about half what I tell them to, or perhaps 60 per cent. at the best, and 10 per cent. at the worst. I've got over expecting anyone to do exactly what I tell them."

Yet that man is a specialist and charges a large fee for his advice. What fools we mortals be, to go out and pay for a thing and then by the way we use it destroy most of its value!

Think We're Smart.
And then on top of that we rather fancy our own cleverness in having done it. Haven't you often heard people tell of how they outwitted the doctor, with evident relish of their own wit?

"Yes, he told me not to smoke more than three cigars a week but I felt sure he must have made a mistake and meant three a day, so I've exceeded his mistake for him." Or, "The doctor says I ought to walk at least four miles a day, but I'd like to see his wife walk four miles a day. I think it's all nonsense, this Dartmouth.

Transmutation of Metals

HAS BEEN ACHIEVED—50,000 DEGREES OF HEAT USED IN WORK

Transmutation of metals, sought throughout the ages, has finally been accomplished. It was announced in a paper read at a meeting of the middle western sections of the American Chemical Society at Northwestern University.

Tungsten, which is used in the filaments of electric-light bulbs, has been definitely and permanently changed into another element, helium, through treatment in temperature of between 50,000 and 60,000 degrees. It was declared in a report on experiments conducted by Dr. Gerald L. Wendt and C. E. Irion, working at the University of Chicago.

"Up until 1895 it was believed that no decomposition of elements was possible. At that time, however, it was discovered that radium, which is one of the about 90 known elements, naturally decomposes into lead. Nature, however, performs that change, and until Dr. Wendt and Mr. Irion completed their experiments, man had never been able to produce a similar result.

Heat is Greatest Known.
"The heat developed to break down the tungsten atoms and change them into helium is the greatest ever known—hotter than the sun or than the hottest star known to astronomers. The heat of molten steel is about 3000 degrees, the temperature of the sun is about 9,000 degrees and of some of the hottest stars is about 10,000 degrees.

"But these scientists, by means of 'artificial lightning' such as Dr. Charles F. Stearns, recently produced, have developed the hottest known spot in the universe.

"Astronomers have long known that while in general the materials which compose the sun and stars are the same as those known on earth, the list of substances and chemical elements becomes shorter and shorter when the hotter stars are examined.

"On the brilliant white or bluish stars, which are masses of gas at about 30 degrees, only the simplest elements are present. They seem to consist entirely of the gases, hydrogen and helium. The heavier metals, such as iron, are not present.

"To determine whether this was due to decomposition by the great heat, Wendt and Irion reproduced conditions such as are on the stars and succeeded in reaching a temperature twice as high as that of the hottest star and found that ordinary metals are decomposed into the simple gases, particularly helium.

"The method used was the same as that used in producing artificial lightning, recently announced by Dr. Stearns of Schenectady, and was originated by Dr. J. A. Anderson, of the Mt. Wilson solar observatory at Pasadena, Cal.

Atoms Are Decomposed.
"It consists in charging a large electrical condenser to 100,000 volts and discharging this large quantity of electricity at high speed through an extremely fine wire. The wire explodes with a deafening report, as if struck by lightning—which, in a minor way, it is. The flash is about 200 times as bright as direct sunlight, but it lasts less than a hundred-thousandth of a second. The pressure developed is about 1000 pounds per square inch and the temperature is momentarily more than 50,000 degrees Fahrenheit. Under such conditions the atoms which compose the wire, decompose into simpler ones and the result is the change of metals into gaseous helium.

"One of the first laws of chemistry has been that the so-called elements are permanent and unchangeable. The failure of the alchemists, after centuries of effort, to change such common metals as copper and iron into gold convinced chemists that the metals could not be decomposed.

"Great advances as the result of the work of Wendt and Irion, in discoveries on the nature of the matter that composes the universe are confidently predicted."

Dr. Wendt was born in 1881. He was educated at Harvard and in Paris. He was for a time engaged by the United States bureau of

HENRY G. KELLY SINGS "MY DREAMS" AND "KILLARNEY."

Last night's audiences at the Nickel Theatre were treated to an excellent programme of vocal selections by Henry G. Kelly, the popular baritone. Mr. Kelly's splendid voice gave excellent interpretations in Post's "My Dreams" and the ever popular Irish ballad "Killarney." Will Rodgers, the well-known interpreter of character roles, did splendid work in the "Galle of Women" which was seen at this theatre last evening. In this picture Will Rogers plays a Swede sailor, who falls in love with a beautiful girl, and finds that her sincerity is not worth a snap. It's a comedy-drama which is rich in heart interest and that mellow humour which gives Rogers one of the best opportunities of his brilliant career. The Nickel will shortly show that wonderful heart story entitled "Dinky," featuring Wesley Barry in the leading role. This is a story that has had a tremendous run on the American continent and is sure to be a big hit with local movie fans.

THE ART OF CHEWING.
 Your whole system depends for its health and strength on the stomach. The stomach, in turn, depends on the teeth. The very foundation of health is therefore laid at the first step in food conversion—the act of chewing. Food improperly chewed enters the stomach in a wrong condition, and it brings about a wrong fermentation which causes flat, indigestion, then kindred ailments. The proper chewing of the food will prevent these things. Chew your food plentifully.

At the House.
RAILWAY POLICY DEMANDED BY OPPOSITION.
 The Opposition made a determined demand for the Government's railway policy yesterday afternoon, and in doing so they made it clear to the Prime Minister that the House would not close until this important question had been decided in a manner which should prove satisfactory to the country.
 The Prime Minister was by no means pleased as there was yet a vote in supply for the mounted police, to be passed.
 Sir Michael Cashin in demanding that the railway policy be tabled, said that unless it was brought down, Supply would not be passed. He took this course of action because he feared that the Government might repeat their trick of last year and would close the House.
 The Prime Minister said the Railway policy would come before the House shortly. He said that there was no danger of the House being prorogued until the policy had been fully discussed.

AN OLD STORY.
 Sir Michael Cashin had forgotten what happened on the 7th Dec. last, and he reminded the Prime Minister of it. Sir Richard's story was one that had been heard before. The Opposition had been once bitten. In future they would be very shy of the Leader of the House.
 The Prime Minister said it was impossible for him to prorogue the House, even if the horse police vote were passed, as there were several other matters of legislation which have yet to be dealt with, particularly the Customs Bond Resolutions and the Cable Resolutions.
 Mr. Higgins moved that the committee should rise and ask leave to sit again. It was the bounden duty of the Opposition to delay the passage of Supply until the Railway policy came down. The Opposition would be derelict in their duty if they acted otherwise. They could not give His Excellency the Governor a second chance. That they should retard Supply was not opposition, for had they not facilitated the necessary business of the session? Before the Prime Minister got his horse police, he must tell what he proposes to do in connection with a more important matter. Mr. Higgins characterised the horse police as "a crowd of foolish men sitting on clumsy horses." He said he had made a proper request and hoped the Prime Minister would accede to it.

INJURED INNOCENCE.
 The Prime Minister appeared deeply hurt at the doubt which had been cast upon his assurance. He understood the Opposition intended to have a five day's debate on the question of whether the horse police were "to be or not to be." He thought that they could get four days of the debate over, and by then, the Railway policy might be ready. He agreed to accede to Mr. Higgins' request that the Committee should rise.
 Sir Michael Cashin said that if Supply were passed there would be a repetition of the pretty little drama which had taken place last December. While he was on the subject he would very much like to learn how far the Prime Minister's tactics on that occasion got him. He was prepared to sit in the House for another month, if duty compelled it.
 Mr. Walsh endorsed the remarks of the other Opposition members.
 Mr. Bennett also endorsed the remarks of the previous speakers. He described the fiasco of December 12, as a stain on the escutcheon of the country.

The Committee rose at this juncture and the House adjourned till Friday, to meet at the usual time.

MILLEY'S

The Mediaeval Lady.

The Old Days When Women Had No Rights.

(John O'London's Weekly)

The chief difficulty of defining the position of the mediaeval lady lies in the fact that throughout the epoch between the death of Charlemagne and the birth of Charles V. she was the subject both of the most exaggerated devotion and of the most unbridled satire. It therefore followed that her mentality was, to a great extent, the creation of the men who mocked and worshipped her. Not until the Renaissance did she become the mirror instead of the shadow of man's mind.

NUNS WITH LAP-DOGS.

What was the outlook, what were the graces and the foibles, of the mediaeval lady? For the answer we must not look to the gifted tenth-century non-dramatist Hrosvitha, nor to the charming fifteenth-century poetess Christine de Pisan; not even our knowledge of certain charitable and autocratic widows helps us much. Few women of those days were wealthy widows, and fewer still were blue-stockings "of credit and renown." The majority were predestined to the monotony of marriage or the obscurity of the cloister.

Certain records suggest that the second, perhaps, the more enviable fate of the two. For example, the nun of Great St. Helen's, London, were rebuked by a fifteenth-century bishop for adding golden hems to their veils, keeping lap-dogs in their cloisters, and receiving visitors of both sexes after dusk. A more amusing life, truly, than that of the married gentlewoman immured in some marsh-girt stronghold, while her lord rode forth in pursuit of the wild boar or the yet wilder Saracen.

"SHE WINKED OFF!"

One thing at least is certain. Whether her fate were the first or the second, the greater part of her time and her intelligence was devoted to works of piety. Almsgiving was one of the virtues most sedulously encouraged by the Church and most diligently practised by the faithful. There is a French legend which speaks of "a holy woman that was Countess of Mans, who nourished ever XXX fatherless children, and said that was her sport. Therefore she was loved of God, and had good life and good death." At her death was seen a great cloud of light about her, "full of small children, innocents."

If generally were one of her main virtues, generosity seems to have been one of the main faults of the mediaeval lady, and little affectations were among her minor short-comings, as we may gather from the improving tale told by the Knight of la Four-Landry "the delightful book which he compiled for the instruction of his motherless daughters. The good knight tells how an English king sent an ambassador to choose a queen for him from among the daughters of the King of Denmark. Though the eldest was the prettiest, "she winked off, and spake herself understood what was said to her and ever beat her eyelids together," and was therefore rejected by the ambassador, as was the second sister, who had "marvellous much language"; the third, who was less fair, but better behaved, received the crown, to her own very great astonishment as well as to that of her sisters.

Another tale told by this good knight illustrates the folly of wearing garments too tight and too thin. A young lady, whose face was blue by reason of the scantiness of the gown she wore one wintry day, was rejected by a suitor in favour of a less comely sister who was warmly clad and ruddy of hue.

Pious though these ladies were, it seems that their ruling sin of talkativeness overcame them even in church, for we read that St. Brice saw a demon writing down (in shorthand) all the words whispered by inattentive ladies while St. Martin was singing Mass.

Another fault of which satirists often accused them was insincerity. "There were three wily, three wily there were," sings an old ballad, "a fox, and a friar, and a woman," and the gibe echoes through all the sarcastic ballads of the Middle Ages. Woman was depicted as a chattering, fickle creature; her grotesque headgear called forth the anger of monkish chroniclers; and her shallowness was drawn in gay tints by Chaucer, and in angry strokes by Lydgate.

HIS IDEAL.

What was his ideal we may gather from the "Romance of the Rose":

Her hair was yellow of hue
As any basin scoured new;
Her flesh tender as is a chick;
Her nose of good proportion,
Her eyes grey as a falcon,
With little mouth and round to see;
A cloven chin eke had she.

No doubt she was very charming; and if her character lacked profundity, it was not entirely her own fault. Her education was limited.

THE STICK.

Sentimentally, her power was great. If vague; socially, it was small; legally, it was nil. Under ancient Scots law a married woman committing a

"I am glad to take this opportunity to tell you of my complete satisfaction with this machine. It is exactly the typewriter for an author like myself. It is so light and small that it can be taken anywhere, and it is so sound and foolproof that it is always in good condition. I have needed a typewriter for years, but I could not find anything sufficiently portable, hardy, willing and easy, until I discovered Corona."

REPROBANDS TO BE FOUGHT.
CAPE TOWN, May 4.—The Christian Smuts, Premier of South Africa, in his address to the Cape Town Times, said that the Genoa Conference was a preparation for victory for the victors because it did not treat the vanquished as the victors' treaty. Upon His Honor as Minister of the Gospel

REV. W. A. THOMPSON WRITES OF DR. P. G. KINSMAN'S HEART TABLETS.

I had heart trouble severely for fifteen years and had many doctors to treat me with no discernible effect. I had become so low that I could scarcely walk fifty steps. At night I was troubled with fluttering of the heart, and by no means had a night's rest for that length of time. I had pains most excruciating and could not lie on my left side even for a moment. I tried five boxes of your Heart Tablets and can now truthfully say that I am well. I am a Minister of the Gospel and upon my word as such, I believe, I could not have lived had it not been for your remedy. I am not, generally speaking, willing to give testimonials, but I fully owe this or more to you as owner of the Heart Tablets.
