HOTELMEN throughout the province have received information that further amendments will be made to the liquor amendments will be made to the liquor act during the coming session of the legislature, the most important change being one by which there will be a grading of licenses. According to the system proposed the licenses will be guaged by the amount of the bar business, and not as at present by the value of the premises or the business done with the traveling or the business done with the traveling public. The effect of the change will be to raise the tax on gin mills and drinkplaces of the lower class, leaving the places of the lower class, leaving the licenses of the large hotels practically as at present. It is also anticipated by liquor men that on account of the vote recently taken on local option by-laws the 60 per cent. clause of the act will be repealed and a simple majority vote substituted.

Old-Line Spelling.

By all means let us cling to the old spelling. If the present style of spelling was good enough for our parents, why not good enough enough for us? Take "gnat" for instance. Instead of dropping the g, why not, if it is a good thing, use it more freely? Why not raise your khat to a goat if she is gfat?
And k—what harm is a little more of sensible custom? If you have the knowledge, why make a knoise? Knobody is knaughty. A knife is knever knice unless knecessary. And why should not a knave knail knapkins to knavesie? kins to knarcotics? And are knapkins better than gnapkins? Kno decide lly knot!

Farmers and the Power Question.

The Toronto Weekly Sun presents these commendatory remarks:

"The Sun has from the first held the position that Ontario farmers have a direct interest in the problemthat, with rates under proper control a very large number of farmers will in a short time find it profitable to use electrical energy for the purpose of running grain crushers, root pulpers, cutting boxes, and for the pumping of water and other like services. We are glad to see that this view is susthe Ontario Power Company, one of the corporations engaged in the work of harnessing Niagara Falls. In an address delivered in this city last week, Gen. Greene expressed the belief that the day is not far distant when practically every farmbouse within 200 hundred miles of Niagafa will be using electrical energy for that source, not only in the running of farm machinery but for lighting of the house and running the sewing and washing machine as well. Gen. Greene believes it possible indeed, that the same power may be used for the heating of houses. Farmers are also indirectly interest ed in the power problem as applied to manufacturing. Electric power can and will be produced at a cost of not over half that involved in the use of steam and a cut of fifty per cent. in the cost of power means, Gen. Greene says, a reduction of five to fifteen per cent. in the cost of the finished product in the bulk of manufactured goods, and, in some special lines, the cost will be reduced as much as forty per cent. Cheap electrial power will thus give Ontario an immense advantage in manufacturing—an advantage the benefit of which should be felt by the whole country. "Farmers have cause for satisfaction therefore, in the recent overwhelming vote in favor of cheap power in Toronto and other cities and towns in Central and towns in Centra tral and Western Ontario. The vote will make it easier for the Hon. Mr. Beck to carry into effect the policy on which he has set his heart, and a policy which is so rich in promise for the people of all Ontario.

Farmers Institute Meetings at Inwood

The two day meeting of Farmer's Association arranged to be held in Inwood on the 10th and 21st inst. was, excepting one unavoidable incident a success in every sense of the word. Owing to the fact that Mr. Gardhonse, the expert judge, who was to conduct a judging examination of live stock, was unable to reach here on Saturday, this part of the program was dispensed with. It was unfortunate indeed that Mr. Gardhouse was unable to be here as the keem interest taken in this part of the proceedings was evidenced by the number of people present notwithstanding the unfavorable condition of the roads and weather.

The forencon session on Monday was opened by Mr. Elliott, of Galt, Onc., who gave a very fine and practical talk on the cultivation of the farm. Some of the strongest points advocated by Mr. Elliott were 1st the use of clover as fertilizer. He argued, and in a very conclusive marber for he is a very successful farmer himself, that clover used for this purpose is equal to the strongest barnyard manure, 2nd the seeding of clover with all crops. 3rd three years rotation cropping. Mr. Elliott explained this in the manner, He has his farm divided into three sections, viz. The hoe croptages in and the clover crops and he relates these three crops yearly. From Mr. Elliott's talk one comes to the conclusion that he is a practical, systematic farmer. The subject was further discussed by Messra. W. A. Graham, Colin Campbell, John Thomas and others.

The next speaker was Mr. Johnston. of Forest, who is the owner of a large fruit.

Messrs. W. A. Graham, Colin Campbell, John Thomas and others.

The next speaker was Mr. Johnston. of Forest, who is the owner of a large fruit farm on the lake shore near Forest. Histalk on the proper methods of growing fruit and the caring for fruit and fruit trees, was one of the most interesting heard on this topic in Inwood. Mr. Johnston talks from the standpoint of a successful fruit grower, he does not tell of a man whom he knows, who does such and such a thing, but speaks from actual experience, and when we consider that he is one of the most successful in Lambton his evidence has good weight and he is the kind of man we want to hear at our convention. Fifteen years ago Mr. Johnston grew from 300 to 400 barrels of apples which marketed over an average at $1.00 per barrel, and last $2 ason he cold $2.000 berglasses. average at $1.00 per barrel, and last $3.00 he sold 2.000 barrels some of which sold as high as $3.40 per barrel, this result was socomplished by spraying and proper cultiva-tion. In the afternoon Mr. Elliott discuss-ed the breeding of dairy cows, so as to ob-tain the best results. By means of charte-he exemplified his points. He explained by means of chart also the vast difference between the product of a good cow and that of a poor one, while at the same time he showed that it east just as much to keep the poor cow as it does to keep the good one. He advoc tes the practice of weighing each cow's milk in order to weed out the poor cows.

Old Wen Safer.

The Stratford Herald prints the following : Some of the railway companies are becoming less stringent in enforcing the age limit as regards their employes. Une thing must have struck the public forcibly of late and that is the number of wrecks. It is the belief of many that the old experienced belief of many that the old experienced hands, to whom duty has become second nature, are safer in the handling of trains and switches than younger and more venturesome men, and that with the old hands on deck the wrecks would not have been so numerous. Any healthy man is good up the age of 60, and with his experience is more valuable in responsible positions than a man of 25 or 30.

Doctors Change Their Methods.

Years ago they lought catarrh by internal dosing. They saw this ruined the stomach and changed to the ozonated air cure, better known as "Catarrhozone." This treatment known as "Catarrhozone." This treatment is sure to cure. It goes to the source of the disease; it destroys the causes that maintain catarrh and even in the worst cases permanent cure is guaranteed. Fail ure with Catarrhozone is impossible. Antiseptic, healing and far reaching, it's bound to cure every time. Why Chest Colds Are Dangerous.

They lead to pleurisy and pneumonia. Follow the advice of W. H. I have just used it for pleurisy and sore chest and found it just the thing. For Lumbago or Neuralgia it's quick as lightning. I cheerfully recommend Nerviline." Laws, 2nd line, who departed this life on Saturday at the ripe old age of 94 years. Deceased was the daughter of Thomas Hay Esq., of Harvey's Mailing, Sterlingshire, Scotland, and was married to W. B. Laws, book seller, Glasgow, in 1844, coming to Canada in 1858 and settled on the second line, S. E. R., where she continued to reside until called to her final reward. When the family came to Warwick from London in a lumber wagon Watford was not in the map and logging bees in the centre of what is now a prosperous town were in vogue. The transformation since has been something wonderful, indicating the progress of the country. Deceased was a bright intelligent old lady, retaining all her faculties until the end and was loved and respected by everybody in the community. The surviving members of the family are W. B., opposite the old homestead, Mrs. T. K. Hay, Michigan and Jennie, Helen, and Elizabeth at home. The funeral on Tuesday to the Presbyterian cemetery was largely attended, showing the high esteem in which deceased was held. The service was conducted by the Rev. E. B. Horne, M. A., pastor of the Presbyterian church, of which deceased was a life long and consistent member. The pallbearers were Jno. Caughin, C. Mansheld, T. Gavigan, T. B. Healey, R. Mackenzie and R. Mc-Ilveen, Among those from a distance who attended the tuneral were Mr. and Mrs. John Lyle, St. Thomas, and Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Hay, Deckerville, Mich.

Decision Against Oil Springs.

Toronto, Jan. 10.—Canadian Oil Fields Co. v. Town of Oil Springs.—Judgment, on appeal by plaintiffs from judgment of Boyd, C., 8 O. (W. R., 48th.) dismissing, except as to one matter, an action for a declaration that an assessment made upon plaintiffs was illegal, and to restrain defendants from enforcing it. The chancel-lor held that it was in the power of the municipality to assess both lands and buildings in the case of the mineral lands, and the jurisdiction to assess having attached, the judgment of the court of revision as to the amount of the assessment was conclusive. Held, that the ment was conclusive. Held, that the assessor exhausted his powers when he fixed as the value of the plaintiffs' land "the value of other lands in the neighbor-"the value of other lands in the neighborhood for agricultural purposes," and when he added to that amount his valuation of something also which could not be assessable as part of the land, but attempted to render subject to taxation something which the statute in effect exempts. Although the court of revision is, subject to appeal, the appropriate and the only form in which the taxpayer can seek redress for an assessment excessive in amount, the owner of property not liable to taxation, and which has been illegally assessed, is entitled to ask this court to relieve him of the burden thus improperly imposed. Appeal allowed with costs and judgment for plaintiffs, with costs. A. Weir, Sarnia, for plaintiffs; R. I. Towers, Sarnia, for defendants.

In 1843 she married Isaac Pinkham a builder and real estate operator, and their early married life was marked by prosperity and happiness. They had four children, three sons and a daughter.

In those good old fashioned days it was common for mothers to make their own home medicines from roots and herbs, nature's own remedies—calling in a physician only in specially urgent cases. By tradition and experience many of them gained a wonderful knowledge of

Its length and severity were too much for the large real estate interests of the Pinkham family, as this class of business suffered most from fearful depression, so when the Centennial year dawned it found their property swept away. Some other source of income had to be found.

At this point Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made known to the world.

The Pinkhams had no money, and little credit. Their first laboratory was the kitchen, where roots and herbs were steeped on the stove, gradually filling a gross of bottles. Then came the question of selling it, for always before they had given it away freely. They hired a job-printer to run off some pamphlets setting forth the merits of the medicine, now called Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and these were distributed by the Pinkham sons in Boston, New York, and Brooklyn.

The wonderful curative properties of the medicine were, to a great extent, self-advertising, for whoever used it recommended it to others, and the demand gradually increased.

In 1877, by combined efforts the family had saved enough money to commence newspaper advertising and from that time the growth and success of the enterprise were assured, until to-day Lydia E. Pinkham and her Vegetable Compound have become household words every-where, and many tons of roots and herbe are used annually in its manufacture.

Lydia E. Pinkham herself did not live to see the great success of this work. Shepassed to her reward years ago, but not till she had provided means for continuing her work as effectively as she could have done it herself.

Mrs. Pinkham took a great interest in the study of roots and herbs, their characteristics and power over disease. She maintained that just as nature so bountifully provides in the harvest-fields and orchards vegetable foods of all kinds; so, if we but take the pains to find them, in the roots and herbs of the field there are remedies expressly designed to cure the various ills and weaknesses of the body, and it was her pleasure to search these out, and prepare simple and effective medicines (as her served a record of every case that came to serve a record of every case that came to her attention. Harvell lay in the bottom of his canoe. The canoe was tied a few feet out from the shore, and the river, deep, powerful and mysterious, tugged at the frail little craft. But Harvell did not heed the call. The darkness was deep, yet luminous, with the promise of an early moon, and the night wind that swept from shoreward was sweet and heavy with the fragrance of blooming

Harvell stared upward to the stars, every; sense as keenly alive to the beauty of the scene as if mind and heart had not been given over for days to the problem which he had thrown himself into the canoe to solve. Finally he stirred restlessly and said half

"No. It's no use. I can't do it. She is too fine and thoroughbred for a great, common born chap like me to marry

"MARGARET!" HE CRIED. And-no, even if she should be willng, which is an insane thought on my part, I've no right to let her sacrifice nerself. I'll stay until tomorrow and then plead business and disappear." There was a little stir near the pier, as of the underbrugh, then a woman's voice, wonderfully clear and sweet: "Let's sit here and wait for the moon to rise. The bungalow is so close and hot tonight."

Harvell caught his breath. It was she. The voice that replied he recognized as that of his married sister, who was chaperoning the bungalow party. You haven't been yourself at all, Margaret, during the entire week."

"I know it, Agnes." The voice, with its tired note, was very touching, and Harvell stirred restlessly. "I'm useless to myself and every one elseevery one else," she repeated, as if to

"Oh, nonsense! Peggy, you are too fine and wholesome to talk so. I wish"— Agnes stopped as if not daring to go on.

Margaret's voice continued: "I want you to help me to steal off tonight, Agnes. I want to go home, and I may joint the Westburys and go to Paris. The stage goes down at 9 and I am going to catch it and steal off without a word to any one. Please, Agnes." The perspiration started to Harvell's face as he strained his ears to catch Agnes' reply. When it came he gasped:

"Sometimes I think brother Paul is a

Margaret's voice was stern. "Agnes I wish you would never mention Paul Harvell's name to me. I"— But her voice was growing too faint for the man in the canoe to distinguish her words, strive as he would. "They've started back to the bungalow," he thought. "I am a cad to have listened even thus much. But, anyhow, I've lived up to the adage. I wonder why I'm a fool"-Suddenly a realizing sense of Margaret's words came to him. She was going away, going within an hour, and all that he had been feeling for a year was unsaid. For a moment his stern resolve of the early evening was forgotten. Then he sat erect, every muscle tenso with stress of feeling. "It's better so," he said bitterly. " my business to begin to forget, if she never wants to hear my name again." He looked off toward the bank, then gave a startled exclamation. The pier had disappeared. His canoe was floating rapidly down stream, while his paddle was safely locked in the boat-

"I must be almost on the rapids," he thought. With the thought the boat turned the bend that had shut off the sound of the falls and the canoe was in the whirlpool. To swim was out of the question, for in the river here was a mass of jagged rocks hidden in seeth-ing water. Almost instantly the cance was broken and capsized. Harrell, dazed and bruised, clung to a project-ing rock that had wrecked him. Fight would with all the force of his wonderful physique, he was dashed again and again upon the stones. Yet as he fought he was conscious of only

"I must get there. I must have just one word with Margaret before sh

Then he gave a cry of remembrance. He, with the other men of the camping party, had been planning a footbridge across the rapids. The week before with infinite toil they had laid a single line of heavy planks on the projecting rocks from shore to shore. They were not yet fastened in any way, their heavy weight serving to balance them fairly well on the stones. The darkness, not yet lighted by the moon, con-cealed the planks, but clinging desperately with one hand Harvell felt about with the other and by rare good luck found a plank, wet and slippery with spray, on a neighboring rock. With infinite toil he raised himself out of the water inch by inch until at last he crouched on the great stone and felt the teetering plank.

Then on hands and knees he started for the shore. Blinded by sprays, the planks half turning so that he could only pause, struggling with rigid muscles for balance. Harvell crawled along the foot wide planks. And with each pause came new discouragement. Margaret would surely be gone. In a panic of haste he slipped and fought his way, now half in the boiling water, half on the slimy rocks, now again on the plankway, gaining toward his goal foot by foot. At last one final spring, and he felt again the solid earth beneath him. Without thought of his dripping clothing he started on his half mile run through the woods to the bungalow.

"If the moon would only come up!" he thought as he tore his way through the heavy underbrush. "If—if only I am not too late! I am going to tell her anyhow, just to prove to her that I am a fool. I suppose— Oh, here is the stage road!"

On up the sandy road, his clothe half dry with his rapid pace, then with the great edge of the summer moon peering over the top of the pines, he perceived a dim figure standing by the roadside. The figure shrank back a little at the sight of the man storming up the road. Harvell passed. "Margaret!" he cried.

"Yes," answered quietly the sweet, clear voice that never failed to thrill

"Margaret, why do you go? Margaret, too surprised by his sudden appearance to be startled by his knowledge of her movements, made no reply.
"Because," Harvell plunged on, "I annoy you with attention, because I hang on your every word and glance, because I am an ordinary chap with no ancestors, and you are the personification of culture and delicacy-is that it, Margaret?"

"You have no right to speak tha way, Paul," said Margaret, in her quiet

"No, but isn't that true?" persisted Harvell. The moon was well above the treetops now. By its light he could see the look of pride with which Margaret drew herself up.

"So you think me a snob? You know me well indeed!"

"Know you," replied Harvell miserably—"no, I know nothing, except that I love you and that I can never hope to marry you.'

There was a long pause. The summer night was very fair around them. The girl before him seemed to Harvell a part of the wonder of the night.

"You think, then," said Margaret, "that I am too brainless to admire your fine mind, your splendid physique? Being, you say, well born, I must be a Harvell drew a long breath. "Margaret," he said, "will you marry me? Will you say yes, Margaret?"

"Not until I have told you," answered the low voice, "that Lowas born and bred in poverty in the mountains of Tennessee, that I am finely born only as every American is finely born, and I am proud of it."

The sound of stagecoach wheels came up the road, but already the two figures were far up the path that led to the bungalow.

RHEUMATIC AGONY.

Nothing Reached the Root of the Trouble Until Dr. Williams Pink Pills Were Used.

"I suffered almost untold agony from rheumatism. Por several weary months I was confined to bed. I had the best of medical treatment, but nothsng seemed to reach the root of the disease until I used Dr. Willims Pink Pills. These have completely restored my health." This strong emphatic statement is made by Mrs. Edna Morrill, of Woodstock, N. S., a lady who had practically been given up as incurable by doctors. She further says:—"I suffered for over two years and rheumatism seemed to be firmly implanted in my system. At the outset I was able to attend to my household duties, but at night I suffered the greatest pain. I at once began to take medicine but my condition actually grew worse. I was attended by a skilful doctor but was ultimately forced to remain in bed, suffering untold agony with every movement. Finally the doctors told me the trouble was incurable. One day I was advised to try Dr. Williams Pink Pills. and I decided to do so. Presently the pains were not so severe, and I began to feel myself gaining. Shortly after I was able to go about, and in less than three months I was perfectly well. For this condition my thanks are gratefully due to Dr. Williams Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams Pink Pills. Cured Mrs. Morrill by driving the rheumatic poison out of her blood. They don't act on the bowels. They don't bother with mere symptoms. They go right to the root of the trouble in the blood. # JUBILEE AT WISBEACH.

Impressive and Interesting Services in the Anglican Church.

the Anglican Church.

Very interesting services were held in St, Paul's church, Wisbeach, on Friday evening (St. Paul's day). The occasion was the jublice, or fiftieth anniversary of the building of the Anglican church in that place. There was a large congregation, which filled the sacred edifice in every part. The choir of St. Mary's church, Warwick, rendered with very excellent effect, the musical part of the service, consisting of anthems, chants and hymns. The officiating clergy were Ven. Archdeacon Richardson, Revs. J. W. Jones, of Adelaide; S. P. Irwin, of Watford; J. Hughes, of Thedford, and W. M. Shore, rector of the united parish of Warwick and Wisbeach. At the close of the singing of the anthem, the rector read a short historic paper, full of interesting data, reviewing the life and work of the church since 1833, when services were begun in the house of Cap. Alison, until 1856, when the first church building was erected. After serving for just fifty years the old church was rebuilt, and the presbegun in the noise of Cap. Alson, until 1856, when the first church building was crected. After serving for just fifty years the old church was rebuilt, and the present beautiful structure, with well proportioned chancel, handsome stained glass and windows, several memorials, and generally effective interior, was set up in its place. The record contained the names of prominent active churchmen, and the several rectors who have ministered during the half century.

The jubilee sermon was preached by the Archdeacon of London from Lev. xxv. 2: "A jubilee shall the fiftieth year be unto you." After reference to the memorable Jewish commemoration period he gave a sketch of the Anglican church from the apostolic age down to the present; its chekered career, expansion, and development before and after its reformation. The planting of the church in Canada, and its growth was mentioned, and its working under nine devoted rectors in Wisbeach.

The Archdeacon paid high tribute to the faithfulness and zeal of the present tors in Wisbeach.

The Archdeacon paid high tribute to the faithfulness and zeal of the present incumbent, Rev. W. M. Shore, who enjoys the respect and affection of his people, and to whose frutful ministry is due the splendid church building recently completed. He urged the claims of the church upon all present, and expressed the hope that it might bring blessing to all connected with it.
