U.S. MAY AVERT RAILWAY STRIKE

Attacks London's Engineering Department

APPROVES 85 CENT NATURAL GAS AGREEMENT

The City Council Passes Fuel Resolution Without Discussion.

REFERS WENIGE CHARGES

Proposed Grant to Western University Sent to Ratepayers.

Approved of the gas agreement providing for natural gaas t 85 cents.

Sent to the ratepayers the request of Western University for a grant of $250,000.

Assured the residents of Piccadilly street that if their pavement does not prove up to the standard the city will make it good.

Decided to inspect the French trade car Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

Sent, Ald. Wenige's charges against the engineering department to a special committee for investigation.

Passed a resolution of sympathy over the death of J. Harry Fowler.

By a vote of 7 to 4 the council Monday night approved of the recommendation of the special gas committee that the agreement for 85 cent natural gas for a period up to May 25, 1922, be approved. The vote was rather a surprise to some of the aldermen, who were positive that the council would turn down the recommendation framed at a special meeting of the gas committee earlier in the day, on the ground that the price of 85 cents was too high.

There was no discussion whatever, because the council turned the proposal down at its last meeting, a two-thirds vote was necessary to reopen it. This was granted. Mayor Little called for discussion. All sat mum. Then came the vote. Aldermen Watkinson, Wenige, Watt and Drake voted against. Aldermen Harley, Bridge, W. A. Wilson, Childs, Ashton, Boss and Brighton voted for the proposal.

Pass University Grant.

Without a dissenting voice the council decided to send on for a vote of the people on December 5, the request of Western University for $250,000 towards the university building fund.

Messrs. A. T. Little, C. R. Somerville, Gordon Ingram and T. J. Murphy were present in support of the proposal to submit the question to a vote.

Mr. Little said that the board of the university justified its action in asking for the grant on two points—educational or cultural and financial. At the present time the university was handicapped in the arts faculty.

It was scattered in different parts of the city, and they could not continue with that condition, or with the present accommodation. He estimated that there was about $700,000 being spent in the city yearly by the students attending the university, over and above the $200,000 which the Government granted, and the moneys paid by the students in fees, which for the most part went to the members of the faculty, and was also spent here. Mr. Little stated that the board was not

HASN'T SOMEONE SEEN POOR POLL?

There is an old adage which runs, "Has anybody seen my cat?" but to that might be added the theme, "Has anybody seen my parrot?" Habitues of the London market square spent a joyful hour Monday in a vain endeavor to capture a "pretty Polly" who hurled words of scorn and disgust at pedestrians on King street in the vicinity of the market.

A small boy "took a chance" on dislodging the parrot, and although Polly ruffled her feathers, she passed up a handful of crackers and flew across the square to a safer spot. She reached the heights Tuesday morning shrilling nasty words from the top if the sign on the Smallman & Ingram building. Later on she disappeared, hence the inquiry "Has anybody seen poor Poll?"

WENIGE CLAIMS INEFFICIENCY AND WASTE PREVAIL

Alderman Submits List of Complaints to Council.

DEMANDS NEW OFFICIAL

Makes Many Charges to Support His Arguments.

Ald. G. A. Wenige's long pending charges against the city engineer's department, presented to the city council on Monday night, were handed to the press by the alderman Tuesday morning.

The alderman was desirous of reading the charges at the council meeting. He did not take kindly to the mayor's move when he referred it to the special investigating committee.

"It was staged for publicity purposes and the mayor crabbed it," was the way in which Mayor Little described the coup which he pulled off on the alderman for Ward One, in discussing the matter Tuesday. Some of the aldermen contend that Ald Wenige has held his charges up until the municipal elections were at hand so that they would make excellent material for his campaign for the mayoralty.

May Delay Probe.

Some of the aldermen are of the opinion that the "thunder" will be taken out of the charges by the committee delaying action on them until after the election campaign is over.

The charges, as the alderman, says in his introduction, consist of allegations of inefficiency and waste of time and money. The alderman pleads that the matter be gone into by the committee just the same as if they were investigating matters connected with their private business. He asks that the committee tackle its task "regardless of whose feelings might be injured."

The alderman comes out as a strong advocate for the calling of tenders for all municipal works, including schools. He cites instances wherein money has been saved for the city by the calling of tenders, and also points to many jobs which have cost the city well over the engineer's estimate for the job when done by day labor.

Attacks the Engineer.

In the introduction to his charges, Ald. Wenige makes an attack on City Engineer Harry Brazier.

Much interest will center, it is expected, in the statements which the alderman makes in regard to the city employees loafing on the job. He says that when men have made the rounds of the contractors and cannot hold a job longer, they are generally taken on to the corporation staff.

Ald. Wenige's charges are as follows:

"As requested by you, I hand you herewith a detailed account of my charges against the engineer's department, and want to add further, that since making my charges against this department some weeks ago, regarding the inefficiency, waste of time and money in this department, I have made it my business to look further into the matter, and to my charge I want to add that it is even worse than I reported at first. And it is nothing short of a crime the way the money and time is wasted in this department, and any member of the council that does not admit that this is a fact is not working for the best interests of the taxpayer.

"The city council is elected by the people to guard their interests, guard the taxpayers' funds, the same as a trust company would guard an estate that is entrusted to them, I know, and

LANDS 8-LB. PIKE IN THAMES RIVER

J. Miller of Albert street caught a pike weighing eight pounds in the Thames River Tuesday morning just above Dexter's dam.

"He got so excited," said a friend in telling of the capture to The Advertiser, "that he jumped into the river to make sure he landed him and spoiled a perfectly good pair of new trousers. However, what's a pair of pants compared to an 8-pound pike?"

CANADIAN HERDS NOW FREE OF TUBERCULOSIS

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—Up to October 1 36 herds of purebred cattle in Canada had been given a clean bill of health as far as tuberculosis is concerned, according to a statement issued by Dr. Fred Torrance, veterinary director-general.

These herds are distributed in all the provinces except Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Alberta. The Jersey, Ayrshire, Holstein, Shorthorn and Aberdeen-Angus breeds are all represented, but the dairy breeds strongly predominate.

It is claimed that the accuracy of the tuberculin test in diagnosing the disease is abundantly confirmed in these tests. Even where the presence of tuberculosis is indistinguishable by a careful examination, the presence of the disease is proved by the inoculation of guinea pigs with suspicious material taken from the bodies of reacting animals.

He will speak principally in Pictou County, where an old friend, Col. Cantley, is contesting the seat in Government interest.

Prepares For War

Serbian Soldiers Mobilized as Result of Italy's Attitude on Protectorate.

PREMIER PACHITCH.

BELGRADE, Serbia, Oct. 18.—Military classes of 1918-19-20 have been ordered mobilized by Premier Pachitch. This move on the part of the premier follows a declaration by Italy that Albania is regarded as an Italian protectorate.

Premier Pachitch ordered the mobilization to shield the Jugo-Slavian frontier from Albanian aggression. It is said that this action has precipitated the greatest Balkan crisis since the armistice.

BRYCE DECLARES U. S. FEARS JAP MENACE

Ambassador Reviews American Attitude On Armaments.

London, Oct. 18.—The people of the United States are apprehensive of Japanese aggression, says Viscount James Bryce, former British ambassador at Washington, in an article printed in today's London Times, in which he reviews the popular United States attitude toward the conference on the limitation of armaments, as he observed it during his recent visit to the United States. He declares the United States people hold the opinion that the Anglo-Japanese treaty encourages Japan to take an aggressive attitude.

Viscount Bryce deprecates the fear of the Japanese, and says, among other things, that the Japanese in California are not numerous enough to be a danger, although they are clannish and progressive.

"Californians," he goes on, "have the same sort of dislike for them which the rougher part of the wage-earning class everywhere has for strangers who, while competing for work, are dissimilar in habits and aspect. The irritation against the Japanese is sedulously fostered and diffused by the meaner organs of the press, and it receives some support from its association with the fear of the so-called yellow races which was encouraged by the former kaiser."

The writer says that nine out of ten people in the United States seem to believe Great Britain is the exclusive ally of Japan, and that the Anglo-Japanese treaty makes the Tokio Government think it has a free hand to adopt policies of aggression upon which it would otherwise fear to embark.

"Explanations do not seem likely to remove this impression from the American mind," he continues, "even when Englishmen point out that their own interests in China are identical with those of America, and that Japanese ascendancy in Manchuria would be as injurious to Great Britain as to the United States."

FLAMES ENGULF TWO IN BURNING BUILDING

Montreal, Oct. 18.—Two men were burned to death and a third narrowly escaped a similar fate when a shack in which the three were sleeping at St. Sebastian, on the edge of Mississiquoi Bay, Lake Champlain, was burned at an early hour yesterday morning. The victims are Omer Lamoureaux of St. Sebastian and William Bloxan, a mechanic, who is said to have come to Montreal some time ago from Toronto. Jack Foster, the third member of the party, escaped.

The cause of the fire has not been ascertained.

RESCUE STARVED CHILD, 6 IN COLD CELLAR DUNGEON

Wisconsin Police Find Captive Clad in Rags in Damp Prison—Left Shoulder Is Deformed by Constant Use Warding Off Blows.

Racine, Wis., Oct. 18.—Mary, 6-year-old girl, half-starved and confined for hours each day in a damp, cold cellar in the village of Lake Fark, a suburb of Racine, was discovered by Sheriff James and Mrs. Demint, probation officer, who hearkened to complaints of neighbors.

The child was blue with the cold and her body was covered with marks of variegated hue which were the result of beatings, according to the sheriff, who wrapped the child in his overcoat and took her to the detention home.

The mother, Mrs. Annie Vetrock, was arrested and haled into court before Magistrate Burgess. Her defence was: "She's an ignorant good-for-nothing."

Plays in Dark Cellar.

The authorities were called by a woman who lives in the vicinity of the Vetrock home. When the sheriff and the probation officer arrived they found an older girl alone in the house. Going through the rooms of the house in search of the child, the sheriff and the probation agent found no one. Then stepping into the cellar, the sheriff flashed his electric torch.

In a corner sat the little girl, huddled against the damp wall, playing with a bit of string in the semi-darkness. Only a ragged bit of calico covered her gaunt little body.

As the sheriff and his woman aide approached the little girl she raised her arm as if to ward off blows, which she apparently expected. She attempted to scuttle away into a corner to avoid the outstretched arms of her rescuers, like a frightened wild animal.

The sheriff grasped her and lifting her in his arms carried her to the lighted rooms above. Her emaciated condition was noted and without waiting for the return of the mother, the authorities removed her to the detention home. There the accumulation of filth which had clung to the little body from the damp basement floor and walls was bathed away, and wrapped in a warm blanket the child dropped to sleep.

When she awoke she ate voraciously, according to the home attaches, indicating that she had been nearly starved to death.

Shoulder Blocks Blows.

When taken to the home it was noted that her left shoulder was considerably higher than the right, so much so that it was believed the child was deformed. After her long sleep it was noted, however, that the left shoulder had dropped to its natural position on a level with its mate. The authorities say the shoulder had assumed the raised position from its constant use in the child's attempts to avoid blows.

The mother's case was continued for a week by Magistrate Burgess to get a more detailed report of the child's condition and to permit the child to tell her story of her mother's treatment.

From a shy, scared little creature, the girl is reported to be developing rapidly into a playful child. And yet she talks little and appears to be able to say nothing except that she is 6 years old, and to protest at the suggestion that she be taken back to her home. When the suggestion was made, experimentally, by the matron at the detention home that she be taken back home, the child is said to have gone into a state bordering on hysteria.

GOOD APPLE HARVEST IN 3 CANADIAN PROVINCES

Western Ontario's Crop 45 Per Cent of Last Year.

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—The commercial production of apples in British Columbia, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia this year has been excellent, while in the other apple-producing provinces the crop has not been nearly so favorable. According to an estimate issued by the department of agriculture, the crop in British Columbia is 1,009,000 barrels (3,027,000 boxes), or 100 per cent in excess of last year. New Brunswick's estimate is 33,000 barrels, or 10 per cent above last year. Nova Scotia's production is 10 to 15 per cent better than last year, amounting to 1,300,000 barrels. Ontario's total crop will reach 60 per cent of last year, or approximately 960,000 barrels. Eastern Ontario, 70 per cent of last year's crop; Spies heavy. Western Ontario, 45 per cent of last year's crop; considerable scab, with a high percentage of lower grades. Quebec's crop represents only 35 to 40 per cent of last year, or approximately 35,200 barrels; color and size fair.

Tells How To Retain Hubby's Love

NEW York, Oct. 18.—Hope Hampton has given to American women this original recipe for keeping a husband's love above zero:

One phonograph.

One blank record.

Place phonograph in hidden recess and start it recording, at same time starting new husband to making violent oral love.

Set completed record in cool, dry place.

When husband's affections apparently begin to wane—at any time within period of years—serve record garnished with proper references to "when we were first married."

"I thought this all out for my own benefit in case I'm ever tempted to marry," the movie star explained, "but I think so well of the idea I'm willing that other women should profit by it."

Miss Hampton was asked what she would do if her experiment failed in her own case and friend husband should refuse to be shamed or lured back into the proper state of mind and heart.

"Well," she replied, "he certainly would be hopeless."

FIVE ARMED BANDITS LOOT TORONTO BANK

Rob Teller's Cage of $3,000 After Thrilling Gun Fight.

Toronto, Oct. 18.—Five armed bank bandits, foreigners, held up the branch office of the Bank of Hamilton, College and Ossington avenues, just after noon today, robbed the teller's cage of $3,000 in cash and escaped, after a thrilling gun fight, in a high-powered car.

In the bank at the time of the robbery were E. A. Warren, manager, who was in his office with A. E. Gray of Rusholme road, a client; Miss V. K. Harris, a young woman teller, on duty; J. C. Owen, on ledgers; Percy Phillips, junior ledger keeper, and Miss Stella Bell, who was eating her lunch in a room in the rear or the banking room.

The bandits made a quick getaway.

Four bandits filed singly into the bank. One man pushed open Manager Warren's office door, where he found Mr. Warren sitting with Mr. Grey.

While he stood guard over Mr. Warren and Mr. Gray, three other men ran down the front office outside of the railing. One man coming to the paying cage, where Miss Harris was working, pushed a gun through the wicket and ordered to keep quiet and lay down on the floor. She had no time to reach for her gun in a lower drawer, and with the bandit threatening her life, she lay down.

The two other robbers hurdled the railing with amazing speed and climbed over the desks. One ran into the cage, and, opening Miss Harris's till, swept up the loose bills and silver, cleaned off the side counter into the cage, and brushed the money into a black handbag. He also took a revolver. The other bandit stood guard over Mr. Owens, who had been working on the ledger, and who was forced to lie down on the floor also.

ULSTER ENROLLS VOLUNTEERS AS PARLEY FALTERS

Claims It Has Same Right To Drill Soldiers As Sinn Fein.

CRAIG REITERATES STAND

Declares Six North Ireland Counties Will "Hang Together."

Belfast, Oct. 18.—Reports that the Ulster volunteer force was being reorganized were verified in official quarters here today. It was said that Ulster ex-service men were being enrolled in the volunteers. "Why shouldn't they be, when the Sinn Feiners are drilling, even in Belfast?" was the comment in official quarters.

Col. Spender, who formerly commanded the Ulster Volunteers, resigned his command on assuming the secretaryship of the Ulster cabinet, but the view was expressed that the officering of the force would present no trouble.

The plan indicated is to place the men under officers living in the same locality as the rank and file, these officers to be responsible for their men to the central authority. This idea, it was explained, would be adopted to facilitate the quick assembly of the force.

Are Strong Partisans.

The belief is generally expressed here that no difficulty will be found in reviving the volunteers in the Belfast area. The Ulster ex-Service Men's Association, nearly all of whose members were volunteers in the pre-war days, is constituted on strictly party lines, no Republicans or Nationalists being eligible. The members of this association are the strongest supporters of the anti-boycott movement. At Lisburn last night 1,000 of them assembled, and under commandants who are ex-officers of the British army marched along a specified route.

Craig Repeats Policy.

Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, in answering criticisms of his recent speech by the Irish Bulletin, the Dail Eireann organ, strongly reiterates Ulster's position.

He says that when Ulster reluctantly accepted the government of Ireland act her people exhausted everything they had to give; consequently nothing was left.

"The six counties will hang together," he continues, "and I will never

400 Ontario Women Gather In London For W.C.T.U. Convention

Hear Reports and Discussion At First Session—Dr. Sara Detwiler Urges Extension of Travelers' Aid To Protect Young Girls.

Important resolutions dealing with the regulation of the liquor traffic in Ontario, conditions in connection with rum running at the border, and the handling of the liquor situation generally are expected at the 44th annual convention of the Ontario Women's Christian Temperance Union which opened Tuesday morning in St. Andrew's Hall.

Approximately 400 women from all parts of the province are attending the session with the president, Mrs. Hattie A. Stevens of Toronto in the chair.

The morning was given over to the receiving of departmental reports and their discussion, and an address by Mrs. Blanche R. Johnston of Barrie, the evangelistic superintendent.

Travelers' Aid Reports.

In her report on "Travelers' Aids," Dr. Sara Detwiler of Kitchener, stated that regular station work is being carried on at many Western Ontario points. Nearly 41,000 persons were assisted during the year. Regular station work, she said, was needed at Palmerston, but at present sufficient funds are not available.

A most important work is being done by travelers' aids in protecting young girls from their would-be destroyers. The girls literally have to be snatched away from these moral lepers at time," she said. The organizer had so many cases reported to her of girls lost that she was greatly impressed with the need of extending the work.

In 1919, sixty-eight thousand girls had disapeared in the United States.

In Toronto she said there are many places supposed to be rooming-houses or boarding houses which are nothing but places of prostitution, or procuring places for them.

Educate Mothers.

One delegate urged the importance of educating mothers to their duty of warning girls that many who lure girls are women. Young girls are often warned, she said, to beware of men, but seldom of women.

"Country girls should be especially warned," said the president. "There are any number of people on the watch to lure away pretty girls fresh from the country."

Reports Presented.

The following reports were presented: evangelistic, Mrs. B. R. Johnston, Barrie; Mrs. Morrison, Markdale; exhibitions and fairs, Mrs. John Cottam, London; Canadian marine, Mrs. Wilson Taylor, Toronto; soldiers and militia, Mrs. Asa Gordon, Ottawa; little white ribboners, Mrs. F. L. Thurston, Hamilton; press, Mrs. Lottie Moore, Teeswater; prison and police, Mrs. Jones, Toroneo; medal contests, Miss Annie Fry, Jordan Station, Miss E. Farley, Belleville; missionary work, Mrs. S. R. McGill, Glencairn; moral education, Dr. Ellen Burt Sherratt, Toronto.

Work Not Finished.

In her report on "Little White Ribboners," Mrs. F. L. Thurston stated that many people thought because the prohibition referendum carried, there was no need for carrying on work. This was a great mistake, she said. Mothers should be approached to carry on active work and also instruct their children regarding what should be done.

Montreal Mayor Fighting To Introduce New Wards System

Montreal, Oct. 18.—Canadian Press.—Montreal is today voting to elect a mayor and city council. More than ordinary importance will be responsible for the introduction of a brand new scheme of civic government. The Quebec Legislature, at its last session, decided to order the city of Montreal, whose affairs had been in a turmoil, almost terminating in bankruptcy prior to the appointment of a civic commission three years ago, to submit two schemes to the electors, one of which was to be implemented as soon as the civic commission went out of office on Nov. 1.

One scheme called for the appointment of a city manager and proportional representation. This was turned down by the electors after being strenuously fought by Mayor Martin, chief magistrate of the city for the past six years. The scheme chosen, and which the new mayor and council will introduce, decides that the city must be divided into thirty-five wards, each of which will elect one alderman.

The basic principle underlying the work of the council executive is that to properly carry on it must have the confidence of the majority of the council, in the same way as the Governments in the provincial and federal fields.

The term of the council will be for two years, but the council elected in October will remain in office until April, 1924, so as to again bring the election day back to April. The salary of the mayor will be $10,000 per year.

The indemnity of the aldermen will be $1,500.

Mayor Martin is again seeking re-election and is being opposed by Luc Rochfort.

FEARS STRIKE WOULD CAUSE COAL FAMINE

London Dealers Claim Few Are Prepared For Emergency.

Coal dealers estimate that only about forty per cent of the London winter's supply of coal for domestic and industrial uses has already been delivered to the consumer, or is now in the hands of the dealers, and so if the proposed railroad strike materializes in the United States, thereby cutting off the supply for any length of time, it probably will be a cold winter for many in this city.

Apparently the majority of Londoners who have been putting off the day when the family coal bin was to be filled, in hopes of cheaper coal, have suddenly become alarmed, for the coal men are receiving hourly rush orders for black diamonds.

"If a strike is called, coal will be the last commodity that is moved, as it is not perishable," stated W. A. Martin of the W. A. Martin Coal Company when interviewed Tuesday. "In all cases of strikes, coal, lumber and iron are the last things to be moved.

"Everybody seemingly is buying now, for we have had more orders since Monday morning than we have had in the whole of the past month, and at the present rate of selling our entire supply will be gone in the next eleven days.

"I received three telegrams on Monday from the mines cancelling all previous quotations. This is undoubtedly a result of the proposed railroad strike."

Other dealers interviewed also spoke of the "buyers' strike," which had been turned into a "buyers' rush," because of the contemplated strike. All stated that they had a few cars of coal on the way and would try to get more, but they were not hopeful, as they believed that railroads would concentrate on perishable goods in the next few weeks.

"The majority of dealers do not keep more than a month's supply on hand," stated W. C. Southcott of the Southcott Coal Company. "The people have been buying from hand to mouth for some years, and so when they could have filled their cellars in the summer months this year they held off in the hope for cheaper coal.

The expected orders did not materialize, and the mines, unable to sell, shut down. They refused to make dumps at Buffalo and other border points, as they did at one time. For these reasons a coal shortage is bound to result in winter months."

Inquiry at the offices of the Grand Trunk and C. P. R. elicited the information that, as far as was known, both railroads had large supplies of coal on hand and were still drawing. They did not contemplate any shortage.

BELIEVES LAST WORLD WAR HAS BEEN FOUGHT

Sir George Foster Speaks Before Montreal Club.

Montreal, Oct. 18.—"We have, I believe, lived through the last world mer minister of trade and commerce, mer minister of tradea nd commerce, speaking before the Montreal Women's Club yesterday afternoon. It could neither be permitted nor afforded, he said.

RAILWAY BOARD INVITES CHIEF TO CONFERENCE

Union Leaders Cancel Cleveland Strike Meeting When Summons Received.

TO PARLEY THURSDAY

Executives of Twelve Unions Gather in Chicago To Decide Action.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Telegrams summoning the chiefs of the big four brotherhoods and the switchmen's union to a conference with the United States Railroad Labor Board in an endeavor to forestall an actual walkout on the United States railroads, were dispatched to the labor leaders today.

It was announced later that the executives of the five organizations gathered in Cleveland for a conference had accepted the invitation of the board. The scheduled meeting of the union leaders, at which general plans for the strike were to be discussed, has therefore been cancelled for the time being.

The meeting will be held in this city Thursday morning.

Executive officials and general chairmen of a dozen unions of railroad employees representing 1,500,000 workers, began arriving today for conferences beginning tomorrow to determine whether they shall follow the leadership of the big five railroad brotherhoods in issuing a strike call.

A joint conference at the end of the week is in prospect. A spirited controversy over the attitude of the big five brotherhoods is indicated in the statements of the leaders outside the big five goup.

The train dispatchers have declared they will not go out at this time, the telegraphers and clerks announced their decision was still unformed, and others have indicated the question was still open, although some of the unions, notably the shopmen and maintenance of way employees, have authorized a strike call by a referendum vote.

Hopes Strike Averted.

B. M. Jewell, president of the railway employees department of the Federation of Labor, declared today he was still hopeful that a strike could be averted.

The Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees was the latest to issue a summons for a strike conference. Twenty-two grand officers and 200 general chairmen were called to meet herd Saturday by President E. H. Fitzgerald.

Union leaders here were watching closely the action of the big five conference at Cleveland, representing nearly half a million train service employees.

Extra precautions to thwart vandalism in the event of a strike were discussed today at the opening of the eighth annual meeting of the Railway Fire Protection Association for a three-day session.

Railroad fires were reduced in 1920 as compared to 1919, although property

In the meantime local railroad employees are watching closely developments on the American lines, having assumed the attitude of "watchful waiting."

WRANGEL LOSES FORTUNE IN SEA

Constantinople, Oct. 18.—Gen. Baron Wrangel's entire personal fortune, his wife's jewels, valued at 40,000 francs, and important documents of the Crimean Government were lost on Saturday when the yacht Lucullus, on which the head of the former anti-Bolshevik Government in South Russia lived, was sunk by the British steamer Adria.

In addition there were lost valued mementos presented Gen. Wrangel by the late Emperor Nicholas. Investigation has proved the accident was due to a swift current and the inability of the pilot to control the Adria.

The Lucullus rests in 70 feet of water, and it is believed divers may be able to recover part of the treasure. Russians here advance the theory that the sinking of the boat was the result of a plot by the Bolsheviki. They charge the pilot was bribed, but this accusation is not supported in other circles.

PROMINENT IN RED CROSS

Gave Generously of Time and Energy To Aid Humanity.

Lady Beck, wife of Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and herself an outstanding figure in the life of Western Ontario, died at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon in Toronto General Hospital. The news of her death came as a shock to her many friends, for she had been taken suddenly ill only a week ago, and was operated on last Thursday. Sir Adam and Miss Marion, who had been with her mother at the hospital constantly, were present when the end came. Lady Beck bore her illness with great fortitude.

In 1898 Lady Beck came to London as a bride, and from that time assisted greatly in the development of the city. She took a great interest in all of Sir Adam's work, in addition to being a leader in women's circles. Prior to her marriage she was Lillian Ottaway, a daughter of Mrs. Crerar of Hamilton, who was noted for her civic activities in that city, and who died one year ago. Her father was the late C. J. Ottaway, barrister of the Inner Temple, London, England.

Throughout the war Lady Beck was president of the Red Cross Society for the London district, and worked unceasingly, even sacrificing her health to direct the establishment of the society on a war basis. She was also a member of the central executive committee of the Red Cross. In September, 1919, she resigned as president of the Red Cross, and as a reward for her valuable service was made honorary president.

Interested in Sanatorium.

She and Sir Adam had always taken a great interest in the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium, giving at different times substantial grants to the maintenance of that institution. Lady Beck was for some time president of the Ladies' Advisory Board of the sanatorium.

"Headley," the Beck home in London, has received many of London's most distinguished guests, and Lady Beck was noted as a charming and gracious hostess.

Time and again has the story been recounted of a London public school boy who when asked to define the word "beautiful," promptly answered "Lady Beck." It was thus she was best known and beloved by Londoners.

On learning of her death Monday afternoon, Mayor Church of Toronto ordered all civic flags to be flown at half-mast.

"I feel deeply for Sir Adam in the loss of Lady Beck," said Mayor Church. "She was one of Canada's leading war and patriotic workers, and was one of the heads of the Canadian Red Cross. Her social, church, and especially her hospital work in London cannot be too highly eulogized, and will long be remembered.

Voices Sympathy.

"We shall never be able to repay Sir Adam for his splendid service, and I am sure I voice the deepest sympathy of all our citizens with him and his daughter, Miss Marion Beck, in their irreparable loss."

Similar sentiments were expressed by leading Londoners when they heard of Sir Adam's bereavement. The following resolution of condolence passed on Monday night, by a standing vote of the council on motion of Mayor E. S. Little and Ald. John Bridge:

"That the mayor and corporation of the City of London have learned with the most profound regret of the untimely death of Lady Beck.

"Lady Beck's life has been, for many years, so intimately associated with the life of the city, touching it in so many ways, that her death removed one whose place in the love and esteem of her fellow citizens must be regarded as unique.

Developed Red Cross.

"She took an active interest in the early development of the Red Cross movement in London, an interest which increased intensely on the outbreak of the great war, when the women of London set themselves to the task of succoring the wounded and sick overseas.

"How well that task was planned, how well directed, how well carried out, posterity will review with pride and will place a wreath of honor upon the memory of Lady Beck, whose energy and leadership did so much to bring that task through to completion.

"Lady Beck's name will ever be associated with that of her husband in the foundation of the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium, today one of the leading institutions of healing in Western Ontario. In the interests of that work her time and her money were given freely, the nurses' home being a special benefaction that rounded out the facilities for restoring health to suffering men and women.

Gave Life to Service.

"Lady Beck's varied efforts on behalf of her fellow men and women cannot be enumerated. Hand and heart were ready to do good wherever opportunity offered, and many were the good works done of which even those about her knew but little. With her life was but the space of time alloted to service, and she aimed to make all the hours golden.

"London citizens will look back too with tender memories to the years in the past when to the generous gifts of her time and money Lady Beck added as well of her gift of song to the benefit of her fellow citizens.

"London can never be unmindful of the stimulous and encouragement which Lady Beck gave to her husband, Sir Adam Beck, in the carrying through of the great public enterprises in which he was engaged. Her helpful advice, her steadfast support, had no small part in making possible the realization of those ideas which have meant so much to this province.

"To Sir Adam Beck and Miss Marion Beck we extend out deepest sympathy in the hour of their bereavement.

"And further that the council spread upon its minutes this their appreciation of the loss that has been sustained in the death of Lady Beck."

FRENCH TRAIN WILL VISIT CITY THURSDAY

Exhibition Includes Everything Made-in-France Except Wines

After taking the northern route westwards by the Canadian National through Edmonton to Vancouver and returning over the C. P. R. lines, the Franco-Canadian Exhibition train is now on the last part of its journey through Canada. The French industrial train will arrive at London on Thursday morning at 4 o'clock, and will go from here to Woodstock at 11 o'clock that evening. When the train returns to Montreal on Nov. 4, over fifty Canadian cities will have been visited.

The success of the train has been so great as to confirm the Canadian businessmen in the belief that a Canadian train with industrial products and samples of Canadian natural resources would be of great value as a national advertisement and would do much to create a new market for our wares in France. The French Government has offered to pay all expenses, including ocean and rail transportation, warehousing, exhibition, etc., in connection with the proposed Canadian train.

The people of France have but a vague idea of the industrial powers of the Dominion, and, as pointed out in every city where the French train has been shown, the Canadian merchants are eager to prepare exhibits for the Canadian train.

Among those on the Made-in-France train are Count d'Arnaud, a man of great tact and ability, and an excellent English scholar, who represents the French Government. Mr. A. B. Muddiman of the commercial intelligence service, Ottawa, looks after the interests of the Canadian merchants, while thirty representatives of French firms and groups of business houses are also on the train.

The forenoon is reserved for commercial, industrial and official delegations, while the afternoon will be the time for the public to inspect the train. All the industrial products of France are shown in the eight exhibition coaches—only one product, the French wines, is lacking. The extremely artistic and neat way of exhibiting the wares has been much admired everywhere, and businessmen have realized the importance of displaying their wares to please the eye and to emphasize the advantages of their products.

BRICK STREET CHICKEN SUPPER ATTRACTS 400

One hundred well-browned and well-roasted chickens were consumed by four hundred people attending an old-fashioned fowl supper given under the auspices of the women's organization of the Brick Street Methodist Church Monday night. The proceeds were nearly $170.

The fame of the Brick Street Church must have gone abroad, for from 6 o'clock until 9 o'clock the church was filled by people from the neighborhood and from London.

The program which followed the supper was of exceptional merit. Those taking part were Miss Helen Baker, London; Mrs. Sharpe, Byron; Frank McNeice, George Bycroft, Mrs. Sharpe and Mrs. Leslie Griffith of the Byron Methodist Church choir; Miss Tunsting, London, Alfred Waterman and the Brick Street choir.

Rev. J. Hunter, pastor of the church, acted as chairman, while Rev. S. Anderson of Clinton, former pastor of the church, and Rev. Mr. Headley of Byron gave short addresses.

EXPLAINS ORIGIN OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Willis F. Gross, C.S.B., Gives Interesting Lecture in London.

Willis F. Gross, C.S.B., a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ Scietist in Boston, addressed a large audience last night in London Christian Science Church on "Christian Science, the True Import of the Word."

The speaker was introduced by Miss Gwendolyn Anthistle, who presided at the meeting.

"The advent of Christianity," said Mr. Gross, "was the greatest spiritual awakening the world has ever known and the influence of this ideal religion is seen in every step of human progress. It has ever been the source of strength and courage to the faithful pioneers of truth, exalting the loftiest ideals and inspiring the greatest sacrifices. It was a thing of vital importance to the primitive Christians and they esteemed all else of little value in comparison.

Christianity, as taught and demonstrated by its founder, Christ Jesus, is a purely spiritual religion, for true worship is expressed in spiritual living and not in the observance of rites and ceremonies. So long as the followers of Jesus were able to prove their faith in healing sickness and destroying sin, Christianity was maintained in its purity, but when these works were no longer in evidence the spiritual import of the gospel was lost.

Belief Founded.

The greatest spiritual awakening of recent centuries began with the discovery of Christian Science in 1866. This awakening has increased in strength and momentum with every passing year. The light has never waned, and there has never been a time when there was the slightest evidence of decreasing interest in this new-old teaching of the Christ. Mary Baker Eddy, discoverer and founder of Christian Science and author of Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, was one of the world's greatest benefactors, and we study her life and her works with ever-increasing love and gratitude. Her discovery of the divine principle of Christian healing marked the beginning of a new era in religious teaching and practice.

Explains Workings.

Christian Science, as taught by her, is the spiritual import of the inspired word. The material interpretation of Jesus' teachings has rendered them impractical and impossible of demonstration, while the spiritual interpretation makes them readily understood and possible of application.

Jesus declared that such healing works as he did would ever be the proof that his teachings were understood. He was opposed by the religionists of his day, not because he taught the law and the prophets, but because he proved that the Truth revealed in law and prophecy could heal the sick and reform the sinner. To those materially minded persons it seemed impossible that the healing of sickness could result from the exercise of a reasonable faith in God and they declared that he cast out devils through Beelzebub.

Church Criticized.

It is sometimes said by ignorant or malicious opponents of a practical Christianity that the healing works accomplished in Christian Science are merely the result of mesmerism. The accusations of the Pharisees against the Master were false, and the assertion that Christian Science healing is the work of hypnotism or suggestion is utterly void of intelligence or truth. Spiritual understanding reveals the great difference between Christian Science and hypnotic control. The latter claims to work from a material basis, while Christian Science heals through the understanding of the oneness of Mind, God and the nothingness of any other supposed power or intelligence. The first commandment, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me," is the basis of Christian Science teaching and demonstration. Obedience to this command robs the belief in mesmerism of any seeming power or influence, either for good or for evil.

CAMERON FALLS CARRIER IS SHOT BY MAIL THIEVES

Port Arthur, Ont., Oct. 18.—F. B. Benton, a mail carrier for the Hydro-Electric Power Commission at Cameron Falls, was found dead yesterday afternoon in a lonely shack two miles from Cameron Falls. He had been shot through the head. A mail sack was found a short distance away. It had been rifled and the contents were strewn about, but officers of the hydro state that no valuable were contained in the sack. Benton, it is suspected, was murdered as he was on his way from Hydro to Nipigon, on the main line. Benton was formerly a solicitor in London, England, and had given up his practice to come to Canada. He had only been working at Cameron Falls for a short time.

STRESSES VALUE OF CHRISTIAN CULTURE

Toronto Speaker Addresses St. Paul's Men's Association.

One hundred men attended the supper served under the auspices of the Girls' Friendly League, and heard the address of Mr. Allin, organizer for men's associations in Toronto Diocese at the regular meeting of St. Paul's Men's Association, Monday evening, in Cronyn Hall.

Dr. Grant, head of the association, presided.

Following the luncheon the men joined in a community sing song, after which in an open discussion the members were given an opportunity to voice their opnions how the organization meetings might be made more interesting. Various ideas were presented by the different speakers.

Colonel Brown, who opened the discussion, suggested that "The association might improve itself in three ways. First, to solicit membership among casual churchgoers; second, to determine upon a definite aim for the society, and lastly to undertake some charitable work." Other members called upon concurred with Colonel Brown, and also made other suggestions for the advancement of the organization.

Dean Tucker Speaks.

Dean Tucker then addressed the assembly saying, "Ever since I first came to London my foremost idea has been to do something for our neighbor and the other man. And since this idea of service is embodied in the aims of all church organizations I think it ought to be the aim of this association also."

The dean then introduced a resolution asking that the men's accosiation of St. Pauls extend by way of telegram to Sir Adam Beck its profoundest sympathies in his late bereavement. The resolution having passed unanimously a telegram was composed to be sent immediately.

Dr. Grant proposed at this point that the members who were free next Saturday afternoon turn out with their cars to give the Sunday school children of St. Paul's an automobile excursion into the country.

"Waste Material" Is Topic.

Mr. Allin's address, which was delivered in a convincing style, followed. "Waste Material" was his topic and it dealt with problems which confront the church today. He stated that, "In the past the church had allowed material values to overshadow spiritual ones, and," he declared, "that one of the great lessons the war taught was the distinction between Christian civilization and civilization. The greatest civilization is the one steeped in Christianity," he said.

In addition to the above program Mr. Carson rendered two pleasing solos.

just sure when the $800,000 promised by the Government would be forthcoming, and it was desired that a start on the structure be made next year. In fact, he stated that the $100,000 grant of the county of Middlesex had a condition attached that a start should be made in 1922.

Waiting for a Start.

Mr. Somerville pointed out that there were other matters waiting for a start on the university. The Roman Catholics of the city have secured property both inside and out of the city for the purpose of erecting structures in affiliation with the university. Already the bishop has about $1,000,000 on hand for the purpose, and he has assured them that he is ready to start on his structures as soon as they were.

Irum Collins and other residents of Piccadilly street for the block between Wellington and Waterloo and a portion of the next block east, presented a petition, dealing with the complaints which they have made in the past in regard to the pavement recently laid on their street. The petition set forth that the petitioners were unanimous in their condemnation of the pavement which has been laid on the street, and also that the majority of the members of the board of works, who had gone over the pavement, were in agreement with them that the pavement was not what it should be. They asked that the council either resurface the pavement or that an undertaking be given and placed on the minutes of the council that no charge would be made for the pavement until it was proven that the pavement was equal to the average of any block of the Waterloo street pavement which was laid last year. Also that the resolution be passed on to the court of revision for its perusal.

Willing To Play.

Mr. Collins said that the petitioners felt justified in appearing before the council on the matter. They were willing to pay for a good pavement, although at the time it was undertaken, 90 per cent of the residents thought that they could have got along with the road they had for ten years. He believed that the aim of the council was to make the city beautiful, and the residents of Piccadilly street were willing to help. He pointed out that the council was busy, and so when the residents saw that something was wrong, they felt called upon to point it out.

Asked by Ald. Ashton if the openings in the pavement were not already closing up, Mr. Collins said that was the "bluff" that the engineers was giving them.

Ald. Boss said that the pavement would iron out all right.

Mr. Collins said that what they wanted was a pavement put down right in the first place.

A Patched Job.

One of the supporters of the petition present suggested that the views of ex-Mayor C. R. Somerville, who was present on the university matter, and who is a resident of the street, should be learned.

Mr. Somerville said that he did not pretend to know what was wrong or what was the best remedy for the pavement, but there was something wrong. There were certain spots where the tar covering seemed to be rotten, and in others where it bubbled. The people on the street were entitled to a good pavement. It was for the council to say whether or not it should be resurfaced, or if the holes would close up after a year. In the meantime, he did not think that the people should have to pay for the job. Question.

Will Make Inspection.

Ald. Harley said that there was no doubt but what the surface was defective. He did not think that there was any harm in the council giving the ratepayers the requested assurance, as the engineer had said that the pavement will iron out.

Ald. W. A. Wilson did not think that the pavement was as good as some of the others.

Ald. Childs said that if the pavement was not right the people should not have to wait for a period of years before it was made right.

Ald. J. C. Wilson presented a motion that before the first payment on the pavement is due that the engineers send an expert to look over the pavement, and if it is not in proper shape then the petition be acted upon.

This was agreed to, the change being made at the suggestion of the mayor that No. 2 committee name the expert to go over the pavement.

Ald. Wenige's charges against the engineer's department were presented by City Clerk Baker. They were not read. Mayor Little said that the charges were made on May 16, and he at that time stated that on the presentation of the charges to him in writing he would name a special committee of three members of each of the council's standing committees to go into them. The charges were now in the hands of the clerk, and he named the following on the committee: No. 1 committee, Aldermen Bridge, Harley and J. C. Wilson; No. 2 committee, Aldermen Childs, Drake and Ashton.

Not for the Council.

Ald. Wenige asked the mayor if that meant that the matter was not coming up at the meeting of the council.

Mayor Little replied only on a two-thirds vote of the council. This was not asked for.

Ald. Harley asked the mayor if the police commission's opinion on the matter of a juvenile court judge had been secured.

Mayor Little replied that there had been no meetings of the commission owing to the illness of Magistrate Graydon.

Ald. Harley called for a report from the city building inspector on the needed repairs to the city fish stall. He said that the stall was now facing keen competition, and it should be put in such shape as to let the people know that the stall was doing business.

A standing vote of condolence and sympathy over the death of the late J. Harry Fowler, who for years was a reporter around the city hall, was passed, as was the one over the death of Lady Beck.

No Appetite

Nervous exhaustion leads to distaste for food. The nerves of the stomach are weak, digestion fails and you become generally upset and out of sorts.

The secret of complete restoration is in getting the nervous system fully built up.

Mrs. R. Cheney, 208 Richmond St., Chatham, Ont., writes:

"I was troubled with indigestion, which caused me many sleepless nights. I would be in terrible distress at times, and would get no relief for two or three hours. For sixteen months I ate nothing but Shredded Wheat biscuits, as I dare not eat anything else. I did not know what to do, as I had tried so many different remedies, as well as doctors' medicines, without gaining permanent relief. Finally I got some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and while on the second box noticed that I was improving. I continued the treatment until I am now fully restored, and have returned to my regular diet. My husband has also taken Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with splendid results, so we are glad to recommend it to others."

Curfew No Longer Heard Within Sound of Bow Bells

London, Oct. 16.—Dan Cupid, who resides on top of a fountain in the center of Piccadilly Circus, and knows a thing or two about London's night life, for Piccadilly Circus is to London what Times Square is to New York, rubbed his eyes the other night and wondered what had come over the old town. Restaurants and grillrooms which for seven years have been in darkness after 11:30, were blazing with light and orchestras, within were dropping into fox trots and waiters hustling about with drinks.

At the Piccadilly Hotel, the Criterion restaurant, the Trocadero and one or two other popular resorts near the Circus, hundreds of persons danced and made merry in celebration of London's partial emancipation from the gloom of seven long and depressing years, during which everybody was expected to be in bed by 11 p.m.

War Lid Was Tight.

Heretofore, that is to say, since the commencement of the war, the lid on London's gaiety was clapped down at 10 o'clock, when every man and woman had to empty his glass and get out. Now we've gotten back our pre-war liberties and many imbibe the cup that cheers until 12.30, provided we eat a sandwich or something with it.

One of Paris' famous fashion arbiters, M. Paul Poiret, is in London just now organizing and superintending special supper dances, which are being held at the Trocadero, one of the fashionable restaurants in the theatre district of London.

The musical fetes and costume balls which he held in a garden of his home in Paris this past summer have been so much talked of that London woman's curiosity has been piqued, and every mother's daughter wants to go to the Trocadero for an after-theatre supper.

One of the several schemes put forward for the solution of the unemployment problem in England is to build a circles of satellite towns around London and to divert to them both population and industry. A legacy of health and wealth may be left to the next generation if this plan is brought to fruition.

More Behind Plan.

A great deal more than the creation of the ordinary residential suburb lies behind the plan. The cabinet committee on unemployment are considering a proposal of government subventions so that private enterprise may be induced to carry out the plans.

A sub-committee of London members of parliament has been appointed to consider the whole problem.

Thousands of women in England have been initiated into the secrets of Freemasonry. They have formed more than 720 lodges. New women's lodges are constantly receiving consecration and lodge meetings are being held at several centers in London and the suburbs and also in a large number of provincial towns.

They are not recognized by the grand lodge of England, but this does not seem to worry the female "brothers," by which term they designate each other. They claim to have learned the "close inner secrets" of the ancient order and are serenely indifferent to the attitude of the male lodges toward them.

They are not recognized by the "craftsmen" of Freemasons are employed by the women.

The last lodge to be consecrated in this country was the Lodge of Reconciliation, No. 729, at Leytonstone. The "brethren" assembled sent a message to the King, signed by Jessie Page, "worshipful master," and Lord Stamfordham, the King's private secretary, telegraphed a formal reply.

KITCHENER MINISTER SCORES GAS VERDICT

Judge Judd's Decision Subjected to Warm Attack.

Rev. W. E. Pescott, former pastor of Dundas Center Methodist Church, now pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, Kitchener, scores the law which allowed Judge Joseph Judd to decide that the City Gas Company could legally keep the money collected by it under its readiness to serve charge.

The former Lodon pastor has written a letter to Ald. G. A. Wenige, who launched the action against the gas company to recover the money, and he deals at length and rather farmly with the decision of the court, and concludes with the hope that the matter has not been dropped. He also states that he had written a letter to the City Gas Company, expressing the hope that they would save their honor by refunding the money illegally taken.

The text of the cleric's letter to the alderman follows:

Disappointed at Decision.

"I was greatly disappointed with the decision of the judge in your case against the Gas Company. Such a confession of moral helplessness on the part of the court destroys the last vestige of respect one may have entertained for the law. If we are to be tied to iniquitous precedents in the way suggested by the judge, then the sooner some social revolution comes to deliver us the better. Think of a thing being immoral and legal! That is the kind of thing that would give the utmost glee to devils. What I wonder at is the meek submission of the public. So far as I have noticed not a word in disapproval has been uttered in the press of the country.

"What is the matter?

"Our great ancestors refused to submit to the authority of the King himself, and when nothing else seemed to cure him of his presumption, they cut his head off. We, however, 'like little mice, crawl in and out between the leg" of a thug like the Gas Company, which perpetrates its injustice under the sanction of our boasted 'British justice.'

Wrote Company.

"I wrote the company a letter the other day in which I told them that in view of the judge's statement, that they had no moral right to retain the amounts paid them for service charges. I hoped they would save their honor by refunding the money illegally taken. For that, in effect, is the judgment. They could not legally take that money, but they can legally keep it.

"So much for logic, as well as morality.

"I think you are to be thanked for fighting the battle for others, and I feel the least that the rest might do is say, 'Thank you.'

"I have never been a Socialist, but that kind of a judgment will make Socialists. Something ought to come to set us free from the bondage of precedents I hold that we are more capable than any judge or jury sitting in the past to settle what ought to be done in a given case today, and to go on settling things wrong just because somebody settled them that way years ago, is the essence of stupidity.

"The greatest moral leader the world has ever seen, said to his generation—'Ye yourselves judge what is right,' and hence there was no harm in breaking with the tradition of the elders. We need that same word today, and n no place so much as in our law courts and parliaments.

"I hope the last has not been heard of this case."

BRITISH COMMITTEE URGES REDUCTION IN ARMY'S SIZE

Would Cut Down Royal Family's Guards One-Third.

London, Oct. 18.—Reduction of the size of the British army and a cutting down of the household cavalry by one-third is recomemnded in a report formulated by a committee of businessmen appointed to examine the expenditure of the war office. The committee, however, urges that British troops be trained in Mesopotamia, says the Daily Sketch. Sir Eric Geddes, who yesterday tendered his resignation as minister of transportation in the British cabinet acted as chairman of the committee.

The Household Cavalry includes the Life Guards and Horse Guards gorgeously uniformed horsemen who attend members of the royal family at state functions.

SEEKS SHARE OF STILLMAN MONEY

New York, Oct. 18.—John E. Mack, guardian for Guy Stillman, yesterday brought legal proceedings to establish the child's right to a share in the trust funds totaling $37,393,000, established by his grandfather for his five children. This action was taken in connection with the divorce brought by James A. Stillman, millionaire banker, against his wife, in which the child's legitimacy is questioned.

CLAIM CHANCE FOR FRAUD IN PENSIONS WAS SMALL

Clarkson Commission Wants Statement of Bank of Montreal.

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—A statement required from the Bank of Montreal covering $4,000,000 transferred by it from London to Canada for Canadian soldiers to be paid at par on this side, was the principal reason for the adjournment here yesterday afternoon of the Clarkson commission. No date could be set for the final hearing, as it is not yet known how soon the statement can be ready.

At the morning sessions evidence with regard to payments of pensions at par for imperial soldiers brought out the satisfactory statement that scarcely any fraud has been possible. Some 22,300 checks had been exchanged, totalling in all some $2,000,000, and it was shown that the total possible loss through fraud was $2,900, while the department of militia felt that it would be considerably less.

Unemployment To Be Main Issue Before British House

London, Oct. 18.—Parliament opened today for its autumn session, but interest in today's session was diminished by the announcement that the premier had deferred until Wednesday his important statement relative to unemployment.

This announcement came as a surprise last night after a late meeting of the cabinet council, and it was inferred that the full details of the cabinet's policy had not been completed.

This session of Parliament is intended to be brief, its business being limited to one topic, unemployment, although financial matters inseparable from the business situation must necessarily be handled.

It was understood today that although measures dealing with the situation had been decided upon by the Government, it was necessary, owing to the rules of the House of Commons, to give that body notice of the introduction of legislation.

The first business to come before the Lower House today was a motion from the Government to devote the whole time of the House to the unemployment question.

Whether this would be moved by Mr. Lloyd George or Austen Chamberlain was not announced, but it was understood yesterday that if it was introduced by the prime minister, he would also touch briefly on other matters, possibly the Washington conference and negotiations with Sinn Fein Ireland.

Detroit Children Wash Necks To Be Knights of Cleanlines

DETROIT, Oct. 16.—If there is a pair of ears, or the back of a neck, in Detroit which the youthful owner is prone to neglect, Mrs. Blanche Bartlett, educational secretary of the Detroit Tubercular Society, will find it.

Mrs. Bartlett is the new fairy queen of "soap and water." She is spreading modern health propaganda to 100,000 school children.

Mrs. Bartlett came to Detroit last month from Iowa, where she was a health crusader. She was formerly active in the public health association of Maine.

The health system has been well organized in public schools here and has been established as part of the regular curriculum. Since her arrival, Mrs. Bartlett has been concentrating her efforts in the parochial schools, where the children have named her "the healthy crusade lady."

Daily Habits Taught.

It is Mrs. Bartlett's task to establish health habits among the children, such as washing hands before meals, keeping the neck, ears and finger nails clean, brushing the teeth after meals, drinking four glasses of water each day, standing and sitting erect and taking a bath each day. The children are given score cards for each day in the week, on which they keep track of their health habits outlined by the tubercular society.

Each chore is checked off. To rise to the different ranks of health knighthood, it is necessary to do at least 54 chores a week, which is 75 per cent of the total 72 chores. The candidate is a Page during the first five weeks. He becomes a Squire at the end of this period; a Knight at the end of the second five weeks; a Knight Banneret at the end of the third five weeks. This makes a total of fifteen weeks. On repeating the work for a period of fifteen weeks the candidate becomes a Page advanced Order, Squire Advanced Order, Knight Advanced Order and Knight Banneret Advanced Order at the end of each five weeks.

"The object of the health crusade is to prevent disease and sickness," Mrs. Bartlett said. "These health habits are aids to nature. In my work as health crusader in both rural and city schools I have observed a marked difference in the health of the children. Contrary to what might be expected, the city children are in better health generally. This I attribute to the health movements, which seldom reach into the rural districts.

Can Tell By Air.

"I can tell by the air and atmosphere when entering a class room whether the children are health addicts. In my work in the parochial schools, which brings me in contact with many foreigners, I have noticed a great enthusiasm among the children. Boys and girls are developing a keen delight in knowing that they possess clean ears and necks, and polished shoes. The slovenly habits of youth which result merely from neglect on the part of the parent can easily be corrected, especially in the early years."

Mrs. Bartlett averages twelve health talks a day in the schools. She is preparing a portable puppet show which she will use to illustrate her lectures. Health plays and pageants are also being written by Mrs. Bartlett with the assistance of a number of school teachers, to be produced by the children.

In spreading the health message to the younger children, Mrs. Bartlett has an interesting way of weaving fairy stories around her propaganda which, in turn, has a magic way of producing results. To the older children she appeals to their sense of chivalry and pride.

Boy of 17, Decides School Is Better Than $50 a Month Job

Detroit, Oct. 17.—Eddie Smith has returned to his studies at Central High School. Everybody is wondering why.

Eddie quit school about two weeks ago to go to work. Now he is glad to come back. The business world refused to recognize his ability, he says.

For the purpose of saving Eddie from real embarrassment among his classmates it might be said that the real name of the youngster is not Eddie Smith. In other particulars the story is true.

Eddie always had an idea he would make a good salesman. He was 17 years old, a good talker, and he was sure he had a pleasing personality, as required in the advertisements. Everybody always sat up and took notice when he started anything at school.

During September he had trouble with a teacher over some of his studies.

"Darn it, I am going to quit," he said, and he did, unknown to his parents.

The next day he answered an advertisement for a salesman. He confided his plans to one of the neighbor boys. This boy was looking for a job too. Under the head of boy wanted the same firm had advertised for an errand boy. The lad was going after the job, so they went together.

"I'm going to be a salesman. That's the benefit of having an education and being big," Eddie told him.

"Gosh, I wish I had gone through grammer school and was big like you," the youngster said.

At the business place they found many boys and more men who had responded to the ad.

Eddie joined the men. His pal went over with the boys.

"You men in this door and the boys over there," said the manager a short time later.

Eddie tried to wedge himself in with the men.

"Boys over there," he said to Eddie.

"But I'm a salesman," whined Eddie.

"Salesman! You! We want men here. Maybe we can use you in the office and you can work up." The door was slammed in his face.

There was nothing left to do but try for the other job or leave the building. He went to the other door. After a process of elimination he was selected. How overjoyed his folks would be to learn that he was able to bring home some money, he thought.

"How much do you pay?" he asked.

"Fifty dollars."

After the first feeling of elation had passed he realized that $50 a month was meant and not $50 a week.

"Only $50 a month. What do you think I am," he asked.

They tried to tell him that he was just starting out in life and that he could work up into the business, but in vain. Eddie's eyes were opened. He wasn't such a man after all. If he couldn't hold more than a kid's job he would go back to school. And he did.

Chaplin Amuses Berlin Crowd With Imitation of Pola Negri

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—"That," chortles the reporter for the noon edition of its attention to sports and affairs theatrical, "was the merriest interview that it has ever been my good fortune to have.

"When, yesterday evening, I was led into the salon of the Tiergarten villa in which a certain American film star was a guest, an unforgettable picture awaited me. In the center of the room stood a slender man of medium height, about whose shoulders there lay a chinchilla cape, and in whose hand there was languidly waved a monster fan of green ostrich feathers. At first glance it was a simple matter to see that he was imitating Pola Negri. The original sat on a little sofa beside Mizzi Gizzi, and both ladies were holding their laughter-aching sides. The host of the evening, Dr. Werthauer, stood beside his fiance and tried, in quieting tones, to fend off an impending attack of hysterics.

Plays the Violin.

"When the slender chap at last gracefully threw his chinchilla cape over a chair, he seized the violin of a member of the trio of musicians, set the instrument under his chin with his right, and, with the bow held in his left, played, with great emotion and sentimental gestures, the 'Berceuse' of Goddard; this finished, he proceeded to convert the violin into a 'cello, and, holding it 'cello-wise, sorcered, also with his left hand, a sentimental song therefrom. Then came a little dance interlude, the slender little man cavorting with ingenious step about the salon, while at the same time a stiff black hat was sent hurtling through the air, and at each descent landed squarely on the star's curly head. At the end of this, an imitation grand opera tenor sang, with impossible gestures and an amazing tone, an aria from 'Tosca.'

"Then the performer threw himself upon a lounge, beside his spectators and laughed himself half to death at his own antics.

"This slender little man was Charlie Chaplin, the greatest comedian of the films, the best-paid artist in the world, who, at the betrothal celebration of Dr. Werthauer used all of his art to amuse the guests.

Million a Week.

"Charlie Chaplin, in whose thick hair the first grey threads are already beginning to show, is today in his thirtieth year, and earns in a week not less than 4,000,000 marks; that is, he earns 650,000 marks on each work day, and the remainder may be reckoned as his Sunday stipend. Chaplin has just spent a week in London, during which time he received 67,000 letters, in the reading of which the help of 12 secretaries was necessary.

"Charlie Chaplin broke short his stay in Paris to visit Berlin, and says that the city more than fulfills his expectations. Chaplin says that Berlin reminds him of New York. He says that to the unprejudiced observer this resemblance is unmistakable and has its ground in the fact that at least half of the inhabitants of New York are German, or of German parentage, or have lived at one time or another under German influence. The great strides of German industry as evidenced by the smoking factory chimneys everywhere to be seen were a great surprise to Charlie. He said that such industrial activity was not to be observed anywhere else in his European travels. In short, Chaplin is a student and an observer and not merely the funmaker and trickster which he appears to be on the films.

Likes German Films.

"For the German films, Chaplin sees only the greatest and most glorious future. He is certain that in the next decade this industry in particular will make the most sensational forward strides. He has, however, visited no film theatre here, it being his wish to familiarize himself with the serious spoken drama of Germany. He would have been glad, had the length of his stay permitted to have had an interview with Max Rheinhardt, and to confer with him over questions of his art. The man, Charlie Chaplin, is of very earnest nature, and is especially interested in psychology, psycho-analysis and kindred subjects. His own youth of privation in the Whitechapel district of London may be responsible for this reflective side of his nature.

"Chaplin leaves Berlin today. He will go to Paris, and then return to London, where he will be the week-end guest at the country home of Lloyd George.

"'It is not the last time,' he said, 'that I shall visit Berlin. On my next visit I hope to be here not only as an idle onlooker to the city's activities.

"The ladies implored Chaplin for some exhibitions of his film technique, begging for a showing of some of his best-known mannerisms, but his only reply was 'That is reserved for the films.' His secretary stated that no power in the world could bring Chaplin to perform, outside of the studio, any of his film tricks, with the exception of his characteristic walk which has made him known throughout the world."

TURK SOLDIER KILLS WHEN TOLD TO KILL

His Morale a Sealed Book, But He Obeys Orders.

Headquarters Turk Nationalist Army, Oct. 18.—The morale of the Turk soldier is a sealed book to any but those who have lived long with him. It may be summed up this way: If told to kill, he kills; if told to advance, he advances, and if told to retreat, he retreats.

Seldom noisy, singing only now and again monotonous airs, talking little after the manner of people who live in a country of vast distances, his enthusiasm and his depression of spirit don't show in his face.

The officers seem a different breed. Polite, anxious to oblige if they can do so without too much exceeding orders, open to flattery and willing to believe protested good intentions, they will put themselves to all sorts of personal inconveniences to satisfy requests of the stranger or guest.

Under the Nationalist Government, where the organization is such as to get prompt answers, of "yes" or "no," to any request, the stranger believed to be friendly has his way made easy.

But if he is believed to be unfriendly then he is sent the quickest way home, or if his intentions are regarded as dangerous he meets with the harsh treatment ever lurking in the Turk and especially reserved for those who have violated his confidence.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF ATTEMPTING TO FRAUD

Man Giving Name of Johnson Hill Is Held by Police.

Detective Harry Down arrested a man giving his name as Johnson Hill early Tuesday afternoon on a charge of attempting to obtain money under false pretences. The prisoner is now in the police cells awaiting a hearing before Deputy Magistrate P. H. Bartlett Wednesday morning.

Hill, the detectives say, sent a telegram to a Mr. Hill of Lakefield, Ontario, asking him to send $200 at once, as the sender purported to be in trouble. He signed the name of Stanley Hill, who is a son of the Lakefield resident. The boy, however, happened to be at home when the telegram was received.

U. S. TRIES TO AVERT HUGE RAIL WALKOUT

damage increased, probably due to inflated values, President W. F. Hickey of the association declared.

Executives of "Big Five" Cancel Strike Meeting

Cleveland, Oct. 18.—A scheduled meeting here today of the "Big Five" transportation brotherhoods was canceled this morning when the five executives were requested by the railroad labor board to meet with the board in Chicago. Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, announced today.

Those who had gathered for the conference were: W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen; Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; W. S. Carter, president of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, and E. P. Curtis, representing L. E. Sheppard, president of the Order of Railway Conductors. Whether T. C. Cassen, president of the Switchmen's Union of North America, and Mr. Sheppard were expected to arrive during the day was not known.

Prior to the reception of the request from the labor board it was announced that general plans for conducting the strike would be discussed. It is expected that the proposal of the public group of the railroad labor board to pass the July wage reduction on down to the public through reduced rates would have received only passing consideration by the leaders, as most of them have indicated they considered the plan of little value.

Can No Longer Agree.

Prior to the conference, President Lee of the trainmen issued a statement, in which he asserted that "the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen very reluctantly takes the position that it cannot longer agree to give service unless there is assurance that there will be no further wage reductions, nor attempt to eliminate working rules that have been assured through so many years of collective bargaining, and which represent only fair remuneration for extra service given."

After discussing the wages of trainmen, in which he made comparison of wages paid in 1913 with those received now, Mr. Lee said: "The men have been asked to accept what is an inadequate living wage. They know the railways are taking unfair advantage of business depression to force them to accept unfair wages and service conditions.

"To state the matter briefly, they believe that the companies are going to continue their aggressive warfare against them until they force the men to strike. Therefore they must reluctantly decide to accept the challenge now."

Statement Made.

Mr. Lee's statement, in part, follows:

"The wages of train and yard service employees were fixed in 1913, and were not changed, except in a very few minor instances, until January 1, 1918. Time and one-half for overtime was not allowed yard employees until April 10, 1919, and for road employees until December 1, 1919.

"The award of the United States railway labor board, which fixed wages, became effective May 1, 1920, while the wage reduction on which the present controversy hinges became effective July 1, 1921. The further demands for the elimination of time and one-half for overtime, rules allowing extra pay for extra service performed and further wage reductions were made following the award effective July 1, 1921.

"From 1913, through the period in which this country became commercially interested in the European war, and until January 1, 1918, transportation employees did not receive any advance in their daily or monthly wages. The enactment of the Adamson law, which was declared constitutional on March 19, 1917, did not increase either the daily or monthly wages of the men interested."

Explains Increases.

The statement outlined the wages of a through freight brakeman running into New York as typical of the wages of that class of employee, which transports more than 90 per cent of the freight business of the United States. On January 1, 1918, the brakeman's wages were increased from $2.67 per 100 miles to $3.71. On January 1, 1919, it was brought to $4.08, and on May 1, 1920, to $5.12 per 100 miles, or a normal day's work. This figured at a monthly wage of $153.60. The wage decrease effective July 1, 1921, reduced the monthly rate to $134 for 30 days' service. "On which amount he is expected to maintain himself and family decently and reasonably, and he cannot do it, as everyone who is trying to maintain an American standard of living understands," says the statement.

Harding Believes Strike Still in Possibility Stage

Washington, Oct. 18.—President Harding was in position today to lay before his cabinet an analysis of the railroad strike situation, an outline of the Government's position in the controversy and suggestions as to defensive measures to protect federal functions, if and when the tie up becomes actual.

In addition to a report submitted by the joint conference of the public group of the railroad labor board, and the interstate commerce commission, Mr. Harding was understood to have the gist of reports obtained by Attorney-General Daugherty and Postmaster-General Hayes, after surveys of the situation by operatives in the department of justice and postoffice establishment.

That President Harding does not yet view the strike as having passed beyond "the possibility" stage was one interpretation placed upon the announcement that he plans to leave Washington tonight for Yorktown, and Williamsburg, Va., where he will make addresses tomorrow. The presidential party is not expected to return before Thursday.

Mayor Little, several members of the council, utilities commissioners, members of the utilities staff, London and Port Stanley Railway, boards of education, and other bodies with which Sir Adam was associated, besides many organizations with which Lady Beck herself was connected, are making the trip. The mayor says that any other citizens who wish to go can secure their tickets on the train.

MOORE UNAFRAID OF PLAGUES NOW FACING NATIONS

Warns Baptist Convention At St. Thomas Spiritual Awakening Looms.

CITES GROWTH OF CHURCH

Dr. Shields Distributes "Literary Ammunition" To Delegates.

[Exclusive Staff Special.]
BY WILLIAM SHARMAN.

ST. THOMAS, Oct. 17.—Sounding the call for increased and continued evangelistic endeavor during the coming year, S. J. Moore, president of the Quebec and Ontario Baptist Convention, delivered his annual address at the Center Street Church here Tuesday night.

"It behooves every thoughtful person," he declared, "to consider profoundly conditions as they find them in the world today. Our religious, economic and social life is so influenced by the big events of the world that we cannot afford to ignore them entirely. The world is one big neighborhood, and nations react on nations just as one individual will react upon another."

Mr. Moore pointed out that, according to a pronouncement made last December by the solicitor-general of the United States, five plagues are now afflicting humanity; first, and of vital importance, the unprecedented challenge to authority. There has been, the speaker asserted, a most alarming growth in crime throughout the United States due to the aftermath of war.

Secondly, the president claimed, there exists an unprecedented hatred between man and man; thirdly, an abnormal aversion to work; fourthly, an excessive thirst for pleasure as the great aim of life, and lastly, a gross materialism which denies the realities of the spiritual in human life.

Plagues All Related.

"If the solicitor-general had enlarged upon the fifth plague," continued the speaker, "he would have encountered ample material and might have proved that the other plagues were closely related to it. While we deplore their existence, these very conditions, appalling as they are, should be accepted as a mighty challenge to the church, and to it is given the torch to lead the world out of darkness; and the pitiful failure of substitutes is bringing this fact into bold relief.

"Many of us are realizing this as never before. Notwithstanding the sneers that come from many quarters and the lethargy that many mourn, millions of the world's population are today looking eagerly to the Church of Christ as the agency through which the world will be lifted out of the slough of despondency into which it has fallen.

"It is reassuring to note, however, that the church in her many divisions is bestirring herself to meet the present challenge. In the Protestant churches of the United States more than 2,000,000 members were added last year, and this result, according to Dr. Goodall, one of the leading Baptist ministers of that country, was accomplished, not by feverish evangelistic campaigns, but by quiet, persistent effort. Baptist churches alone securing 360,000 members.

"How does it stand with us" asked President Moore. "There were added to our churches in Quebec and Ontario during this year 2,515 members by baptism, the largest total for several years. But we hoped for even greater results, so I will suggest, if I may, some of the reasons why we should engage in greater endeavor in the future.

Conditions Now Ripe.

"Baptists believe, first, in regeneration; secondly, conditions are conducive to a campaign. Furthermore, there is always a great spiritual awakening when any church enters heartily into personal endeavor. My chief reason, however, is that 'Christ's atonement was made on Calvary.' I leave the onus of the responsibility with you in the hope that it may grow and grow until it becomes unbearable, and until, like Christians, you take it to the cross and there get a vision that shall transform it into a glorious and enduring passion."

On behalf of the Baptists of St. Thomas and district Rev. J. R. Turnbull, pastor of the Centre Street Church welcomed the visitors. Dr. S. S. Bates of Toronto responded.

Rev. C. R. MacLeod is secretary for the week. Although the convention has actually been in session since Friday afternoon last, Monday evening marked its real opening. More than 600 delegates are expected to attend, of whom 400 were registered by 10 p.m.

Following the president's address reports were received by a nominating committee, elected earlier in the session. Included in the latter body is Rev. Mr. Leichliter, pastor of the Adelaide Street Baptist Church, London.

That the Jarvis street controversy may be introduced at any session of the convention is the consensus of opinion among the delegates assembled in St. Thomas, but although many of the latter believe that Dr. Shields himself will broach the matter, there was one member of the executive who declared that he had heard indirectly that the Toronto pastor had intimated otherwise.

"We are sitting on the edge of a volcano," was the frank opinion of this member of the executive.

Literary Ammunition Arrives.

Published in Toronto on Saturday last, 200 copies of what has been termed as Dr. Shields' literary ammunition arrived Monday afternoon. Another 500 copies arrived in the evening.

The pamphlets are entitled "Inside of the Cup," and are merely laid on a table a dozen at a time free to any delegate who desires one. It is pointed out that the executive is not officially recognizing the affair, but the pamphlets are being rapidly appropriated, nevertheless.

When Thomas Bengough arrived at Sunday's meeting the rumor was circulated that he had been retained as official reporter for Dr. Shields. It developed later, however, that he was engaged by the executive to report Dr. Graham's address, and that he will return tonight to Toronto.

"If the Jarvis street issue is broached at the convention," Rev. T. T. Shields declared upon his arrival Monday evening, "it will be by some other delegate than myself. It is my frank opinion that the convention will have ample business to transact otherwise.

"Once we get started upon these controversies no person can anticipate where the end will be. I fail to understand how the impression is created that this matter would come up, but I do know that on Friday evening last I replied from my own pulpit to the letter that was mailed by an ex-deacon of the church to certain ministers out of Toronto.

"Undoubtedly this was to create a certain impression. If, of course, it is introduced by some other person I may have something to say."

The first reference to the McMaster University question was made by Rev. O. C. S. Wallace, M.A., D.D., of Montreal, a former chancellor of that institution.

It was believed by the gathering to be an indication of his probable attitude on the issue when it comes before the conference for consideration Wednesday afternoon. He declared that he recognized in the audience many former students of his, and none were more loyal to Christ or more true to Scriptures.

"NAUGHTY WIFE" SCORES HIT AT THE MAJESTIC

William Grew Players Continue To Please Large Audiences.

It can truthfully be said that the William Grew players gave Londoners a good evening's entertainment on Monday night in a comedy in three acts, entitled "The Naughty Wife."

The play deals with a young married woman, who arranges to elope with a "lounge lizard," who has told her that she is the only woman he ever loved. The husband steps in just as she is ready to leave on an extended trip, and much to the surprise of his wife and the chagrin of the would-be eloper makes extensive preparations for the honeymoon. Developments are rapid, and many extremely funny situations arise.

Virginia Mann, playing the part of Eloise Farrington, the naughty wife, is rapidly developing into a star actress. Improvement in her acting is noted in every play.

Robert Hyman, who takes the role of the good-natured husband, plays his part exceptionally well.

A new actor on the stage was L. S. Rumble. He played the part of Thompson, a chauffeur, and although it is only a minor role, the new member of the company shows ability.

The party will hold its convention at Paris on Saturday afternoon, and it is expected that the situation will then become more clarified. It is understood that Dr. Dunton of Paris was proposed, but that he declined the offer.

In The MOVIES

AT THE GRAND.

Playing the part of an impostor, Harold Lloyd, in one of his latest successes "Among Those Present," kept the large audiences that witnessed the picture at the Grand Theatre in continual roars of laughter. The amusing way in which he becomes entangled at a fox hunt staged by some newly-rich, maintains the high standard set by him in previous roles.

"Moral Fibre," starring Corinne Griffith (Marion Wolcott) is the other feature picture of this bill. After her brother, Jared Wolcott had been deceived by a city vamp, who, while holidaying in the country, masqueraded as a single woman. Jared falls deeply in love with her, and when her husband very unexpectedly arriyes on the scene, Jared is heart-broken. Marion vows revenge, and as years go by while she is studying art she accidentally meets the vamp again, and by skillful planning almost carries out her vow, when she sees her mistake.

Other film attractions are Pathe News, showing current events, and the Ontario Government Film Craft.

A feature musical program by the Grand concert orchestra completes a well-balanced bill.

AT THE ALLEN.

"Reputation," featured at the Allen Theatre in this city during the first half of this week, is a strange mixture of gorgeousness and wretchedness, ostentatious displays of wealth and abject poverty, things that are most wholesome and not a little sordidness bound together by a plot which, while perhaps not entirely an original one, is cleverly worked out on a rather sumptuous scale.

The picture is based on "False Colors," a novel from the pen of Edwina Levin. Perhaps the name of the book would give a better key to the story than the title of the play, for in reality the climax of the picture is a daring impersonation. The theme is a tale of mother-love dwarfed and overshadowed by desires for excitement, fame and wealth. Here and there those who watch are caught up by wisps of tenderness, but soon the wholesome atmosphere becomes smudged again by scenes of unwholesome debauchery and excesses. Any depression which might be created, however, is thoroughly dissipated by the picturization of the brave and successful struggle of a motherless girl against seemingly insurmountable odds.

The star is Priscilla Dean. Appearing in a dual role, both calling for considerable versatility, she gives an excellent performance. In that of a girl filling a high place behind the footlights left vacant by a mother who has disappeared into the muck of the underworld, she appeared as the essence of purity, while in the mother part she gives an interpretation of utter wretchedness. Miss Dean is well supported by a consistently good company.

The settings and costumes at times verge on the gorgeous, but they always manage to give the right amount of atmosphere, without any time overstepping the bounds of likelihood. Some of the scenes which might have been among the strongest suffer from vagueness, while the denouement ripe with possibility proves a trifle unsatisfactory.

A Sunshine comedy giving more than is usually presented in a picture of its kind is also shown. The film involves scenes rich in Oriental art, and many new stunts are included in the laughter-creating repertoire. A Chester Outing scenic film, Pathe News and a viol solo, well received, completed the program.

AT THE PATRICIA.

"Play Square," the picture showing at the Patricia Theatre for the first three days of the week, tells a story of a boy's struggle to redeem himself from evil surroundings, and take his place in the world as a respected member of society. This is due primarily to the boy's great love for his mother and the influence of a judge who takes a friendly interest in him. To which is added later the love of a winsome and appealing country town girl, who, like every woman, cannot believe that the youth she loves could really do anything wrong.

Tom Brantford, in a vaudeville act, amused the youthful members of the audience with his imitations of train and steamboat whistles.

AT LOEW'S THEATRE.

"The Conquest of Canaan," the headliner at Loew's today and tomorrow, provides an ideal role for Thomas Meighan. As Joe Louden, a struggling young lawyer, whose fondness for the under dog and scorn for the so-called respectability of a small town has won him the hatred of Judge Martin Pike, who owns pretty nearly everything worth while owning in Canaan, Mr. Meighan has a chance for a wide range of artistic work and takes full advantage of it.

How he eventually wins out, after narrowly escaping lynching at the hands of a mob led by Judge Pike, and wins as his wife his boyhood sweetheart, makes a very interesting film story.

A film of an entirely different type is the comedy reel depicting the adventures of Hi Jinks in buying an auto from the Used and Abused Car Company.

While there is a good deal of slapstick stuff in the working out of the story, some of it rather far fetched at that, it provided a good deal of amusement.

The headliner of the vaudeville bill, "The Cantor Minstrels," made a hit with the house, if encores can be taken as a criterion. Some clever dancing is perhaps the best feature of a variety bill which includes some comedy and singing, the latter the weakest part of the show.

Robinson and Pierce in comedy chatter and songs drew generous applause, especially in the song "Every Married Man Is a Convict."

The Gordon Duo rendered a short vocal program.

The bill includes the Weekly Screen News and selections by the Loew Concert Orchestra.

Drama League Opens Season With Presentation of "Rosalind"

A full house greeted the initial production of the London Drama League at the Ryerson School Monday night. Sir James Barrie's one-act play, "Rosalind," so cleverly presented there under the direction of Mrs. Arthur Brickenden, is but the beginning of a long season of dramatic work, which will probably include three big public performances at the local theatres, to be given under the auspices of the league, which aims by its constitution to promote the idea of a community theatre in London to encourage the study of the drama, to present opportunities of study to amateur actors, and to foster a national drama by the encouragement of Canadian playwrights.

"Rosalind" is a play which presents splendid opportunity for versatility of acting in the leading role, which Miss Ella Moote undertook last night with decided success. James Barrie's character, Rosalind, is a popular Shakespearean actress, who lives before her public as a maiden of youthful years, but whom Barrie makes masquerade as her real self——Mrs. Page—"a lady of comfortable middle age whose years number 40 and a bittock." It is while she is living a comfortable, middle-age existence in a sleepy, out-of-the-way town, wearing sloppy, comfortable clothes that Charles, her 23-year-old admirer of theatrical acquaintance, comes upon the scene and creates the play incident.

Plays Part Splendidly.

The acting of Miss Ella Moote was very fine indeed, for as Rosalind she must remain in disguise as far as Charles is concerned and at the same time give her audience a subtle hint of her real identity. Mr. Arthur Brickenden, as Charles, played up to her splendidly, in his role as the effusive youth who, in the play, passes through the stages of adoration, consternation at the discovery of his Rosalind's real age, and back again to adoration as she brings the play to a climax by appearing on the stage, transformed as a vivid and youthful actress. It was at this point that the versatility of Miss Moote's acting appeared so remarkable was the contrast between the Mrs. Page of middle-age and the charming actress evolved in a few moments not only by means of a change of garments and a touch of paint, but by the dramatic ability of the actress herself.

Credit Due Producer.

A word for Miss Elizabeth Childs, who played the part of "Dame Quickley," must indeed be said. She also played well. The chief credit, however, must go to Mrs. Arthur Brickenden, the producer of the play, whose personality was constantly felt, even from behind scenes.

A small amount of business preceded the giving of the play, which included the appointment of a nominating committee—J. Stanley Meredith, George McCormick and Miss Grace Blackburn. The next event in connection with the league will be a reception at the Institute of Musical Art on Thursday afternoon in honor of Miss Marie Lohr, the distinguished English actress. Last night very fine musical numbers were given by Col. Lyne-Evans and Marcus Adeny of Toronto.

USE BRACE AND BIT TO MAKE ENTRY TO GARAGE

GALT, Oct. 17.—Some time last night or early this morning burglars, by the aid of a brace and bit, effected an entrance to the Preston Garage on King street, Preston, owned and operated by William Driever, and rifled the cash register of between $20 and $25, overlook, however, $10 in 5c pieces done up in packages. Failing to open a big door in the rear, after removing the screw nails from the hinges, the robbers cut out a piece of the door with the aid of a brace and bit. To get into the office at the front of the building they bored all around the lock and removed it. The thieves left a clue, upon which the police are working, and an early arrest is expected.

BUILD COTTAGES ON SKYSCRAPER ROOFS

Lofty Bungalow Is Popular With N. Y. Industrial 'Kings.'

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—A snug little cottage on the roof of a downtown skyscraper, Battery Park for a front yard, a view over the harbor, towering office buildings for next-door neighbors—such is the up-to-date, 1922 ideal of home for the Manhattan dweller.

The fashion is said to be spreading with such rapidity that the sight of a family washing out to dry some hundreds of feet directly over the heads of the busy denizens of Wall street is looked for any day now.

But, however its popularity may grow, no one has ever insinuated that the innovation has come to combat the high cost of living or to be a simple, economical solution of the housing problem.

In fact the contrary is the case and experimentors in the field of literal "high life" boast that their new abodes represent a step "up"—both figurative and literal—from former dwelling places in palatial Riverside Drive or Upper Fifth Avenue apartment houses where annual rents are computed in sums of five figures.

Most Recent Pioneers.

Among the most recent pioneers in the realm of aerial dwellings are Henry L. Doherty, head of the Wall Street banking house of that name; Percy A. Rockefeller, financier, and Sir Ashley Sparks, head of the Cunard Line in the United States.

Of these the last two have fitted up sumptuous apartments—half dwelling and half office—atop the new Cunard Building at 25 Broadway, 22 stories above the noisy bustle of the most famous and the most congested thoroughfare in the world.

Even more elaborate and extensive are the quarters of Mr. Doherty on the roof of the 15-story Battery Park Building. Here the elderly bachelor's "bungalow" covers the entire top of the large building, containing 16 rooms, besides hallways, porches, sun parlors and "hurricane decks."

Here he lives alone with a retinue of servants, as isolated as if he were in the heart of a primitive country. After the hush of night closes over the tip of Manhattan, when a pedestrian in the streets is a rarity, the only sounds which penetrate to his aerie are the low-voiced fog horns of craft plying rivers which inclose the battery on two sides and the harbor which lies beyond it.

Chemical Laboratory Also.

Besides reception, sleeping and drawing rooms the "bungalow" contains a gymnasium, hand ball and squash court, billiard room and chemical laboratory, in the last of which its master, who is also an inventor and scientist, spends many hours a week in experimentation.

A feature of the apartment of which its owner is particularly proud is the bed in his own living quarters which, by merely pressing an electric button, may be made to move automatically through a concealed opening in the wall to a sleeping porch outside.

More than 16 miles of telephone wire are said to have been used to install the apartment's communication system, which includes a portable transmitter and receiver which may be plugged in at any one of the half dozen or more contrivances with which each room and hallway is equipped.

The entrance of the apartment, at the head of a flight of stairs from the fourteenth floor, is adorned by an oaken frame with the legend "A. D. 1829" and a stone sill, both brought by Mr. Doherty from the home of his grandfather in Columbus, O.

URGES CO-OPERATION AND UNITY IN WORK OF CLUBS

In an interesting address at a meeting of the Union Mothers' Clubs, Assistant Inspector V. R. Greer impressed upon the mothers' clubs the great necessity of unity and co-operation in their work. He stated that the keynote of successful organizations was the fact that they worked upon subjects and points wherein they all agreed, and discussed points upon which they disagreed, but did not follow up these latter ones if they were worth while.

He went on to say that they should give in a combined way the best they possibly can for the children. He impressed upon them also the fact that the course of study was only an instrument in the personality of a teacher, and that a teacher should not be judged alone by examination results. The child must be studied individually, and teachers are working towards this goal in spite of methods of education.

He expressed the opinion that he thought it would be an excellent idea to have a joint committee, consisting of mothers and teachers, and the affairs be discussed at their meetings and then brought before the mothers' clubs. He stated that he did not think that the main object of the mothers' clubs should be to supply articles of equipment for the schools, but rather to unite the home and school, and that this unity can be strengthened by having social hours after school hours, and more exhibits of the children's work.

Delay Taking Action.

A subject that was brought up for discussion was the fact that the board of education had expressed its intention of charging for meetings held after hours, but it was decided not to make any move until the board had notified the mothers' clubs to this effect.

Reports were given from the presidents of the various clubs, telling of the work they had done and intended doing to aid the Sick Children's Hospital fund.

Dr. Hugh Stevenson gave a short address, congratulating the clubs on their splendid union meeting. Mrs. Rose presided over the meeting.

Three cowboys will make the trip from Yellowstone National Park to New York City on horseback without purchasing fresh horses. They are to dress in typical western style and expect to arrive in New York on Jan.

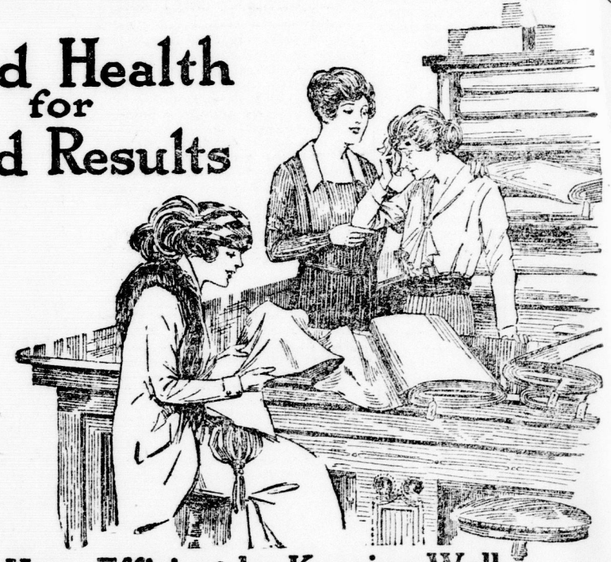
Good Health for Good Results



Keep Efficient by Keeping Well

This Letter Will Tell You How

Plunkett, Sask.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness. I had pains in the back and bearing-down pains in the abdomen and was in a general run-down condition. I could not sleep, rest or work and was quite unfit to do even slight household tasks. A friend told me about your Vegetable Compound and I in my turn truly recommend it, as my severe symptoms vanished and I am better in every way. I do my own work, look after my children and see to chickens, a cow and my garden. I also recommend it for young girls who are weak and rundown as my 16 year old daughter has taken it and is quite her own gay self again."—Mrs Fred. Wiley, Plunkett, Sask.

This letter is but one of a great number received every year from women, young and old, and from almost every walk of life. These letters testify to the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Wiley suffered mentally as well as physically, because her home and her children demanded the care and attention which she was unable to give because of her wretched health. Finally she tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and in this letter tells what it did for her.

CRERAR INSISTS THAT TARIFF IS NOT VITAL ISSUE

Opens Ontario Campaign, Challenging Tories To Bare Source of Funds.

NOT TO "SCRAP" TARIFF

Goal Is Elimination of Protection Principle, He Declares.

BRAMPTON, Ont., Oct. 17. — The issue, emphatically declared Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the National Progressive party, opening his Ontario campaign here tonight, is not a straight issue between protection and free trade. "That issue exists nowhere except in the imagination of those who want to create a wrong impression."

Progressives argued that the basis on which the Canadian tariff rests should be changed. "But we are not going to wipe the tariff out," he added. "Don't be afraid of that. We have our goal; the ultimate elimination of the protective principle. But we recognize that industries built up under a protective system would suffer if the tariff were swept out at once."

Mr. Crerar spoke to a crowded hall and to a large overflow meeting. He was accompanied on the platform by Hon. E. C. Drury, premier of Ontario; Hon. Manning Doherty, minister of agriculture for Ontario, and J. J. Morrison, secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario.

Failed To Reply.

When the chairman called Mr. Crerar's name the crowd rose en masse, singing "O, Canada." In the course of his speech Mr. Crerar passed over ground made familiar by his manifesto, intimating that at further Ontario meetings he would take occasion to develop his argument. He pressed the point that the Government had so far failed to reply to his Brandon challenge to give the source of their campaign funds. "I repeat," he insisted, "Where is the money coming from?"

Bert Taylor, Progressive candidate in Peel County, declared that he had signed no "recall resignation." "I do not," he said, "believe in the principle of a signed resignation left in the hands of a committee at home."

Hon. Manning Doherty, minister of agriculture for Ontario, claimed that the Progressive party stood for the breaking down and smashing up of the old party machine—the machine that was now creaking and groaning and missing fire in the city of Toronto. The Progressive party stood for the building up of the Dominion of Canada and the breaking down of class government.

"The time is at hand," he added, "when we shall all have to realize that the great dominant industry of Canada is agriculture, and we shall have to allow that idea to permeate our government."

Whirlwind Campaign.

Mr. Doherty predicted a whirlwind campaign in Ontario to stampede farmers into voting against their own party. Thousands upon thousands of dollars would be spent. "Tell me," exclaimed Mr. Doherty, "who is paying the shot and I will tell who will run the country if the Government wins."

Hon. E. C. Drury, premier of Ontario, said never had any movement been so maligned as the Progressive movement. Yet, through a most difficult period, the present Ontario Government—though consisting of men unskilled in politics—had stood and concluded its business satisfactorily. The Ontario Government had been criticized for increased expenditure, but every dollar spent in increased expenditure had brought increased service.

"The condition of the Dominion is serious," Mr. Drury proceeded. "It demands good business ability; it demands men who will develop industry normally, and not in a hothouse factory. But, above all, it demands men who belong heart and soul to the people, and not to some hidden force behind it."

Slandered Farmers.

J. J. Morrison, secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, charged that Premier Meighen had slandered the farmers of Canada. "If you put in a government which does not represent the common people of this country, queried Mr. Morrison, "what hope is there for it?"

The meeting had been in progress for nearly two hours before Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the National Progressive party, was called to speak. He referred at the outset to Premier Meighen's claim that the Government was entitled to credit for the conferring of the suffrage on women. As a matter of fact, the great Farmers' organization first pushed that great reform forward, and it was the Union Government which submitted it to Parliament. The Progressive movement arose among the farming classes, but it had attracted to it thousands and thousands outside of agriculture. The prime minister had referred to the Progressive party as the Wood-Crerar party. It would be just as sensible to describe it as the Wood-Crerar-Drury-Doherty-Morrison party. Why was the prime minister using such a designation? It was because he sought to draw the attention of the people of the country to side issues and away from the misdeeds of his Government.

Not Only Issue.

A recently-appointed members of the Meighen Government was reported to have said that three vacant judgeships were to be given to Conservatives.

"That," said Mr. Crerar, "is the sort of thing we want to get away from in our system of government."

The prime minister claimed that the tariff was the only issue before the people. "I am ready to discuss the tariff at any time," Mr. Crerar proceeded, "but it is not the only issue. There remains the vital issue whether the Government shall be free from corrupting influences that have operated on it in the past."

"In the city of Brandon a week ago," Mr. Crerar declared, "I challenged the Government to give the source of its campaign funds. I have had no reply up to the present. I know that the plans are laid for the expenditure of large sums of money. Again I ask, where is the money coming from? Are the 'interests' putting up the money to secure the election of men who will be subserviant to theeir bidding?"

Needs of Future.

Mr. Crerar returned to the tariff. "The prime minister states," he said, "that the issue is one of protection versus free trade. That issue exists nowhere except in the imagination of those who want to try to create a wrong impression throughout the whole Dominion of Canada. The question is not of a straight issue between protection and free trade. The question is whether or not the tariff we have had for 40 years, based on the principle of protection, is the soundest and best tariff for Canada at the present time.

"There was never a time when the people of Canada needed so much to focus their attention on the problems of government. There were the problems of post-war obligations, the problems of taxation. Vast sums would have to be raised to meet the needs of the future. Were these not the questions which should be discussed, rather than 'the miserable, small, petty, personal things?'

"There was, too, the question of railways."

"They are the questions," said Mr. Crerar, "which I hope to discuss before the people of Ontario.

Develop National Resources.

The proposals of the Progressive party in respect to the tariff, Mr. Crerar pursued, were that the whole basis on which Canadian tariff had been built in the past should be changed. "We are not going to wipe the tariff out," Mr. Crerar added. "Don't be afraid of that. We have as our goal the ultimate elimination of protection as a principle. But we recognize that industries have been built up under a protective tariff, and that they would suffer if the tariff were swept away at once."

No one in his senses would fail to take cognizance of the way in which industries have been built up, said Mr. Crerar. But Canada's fiscal policy should be shaped so as to develop the natural resources of the farm, the forest and the mine.

"Let us forget appeals to racial and religious prejudice," Mr. Crerar concluded. "They are the meanest and the most miserable of all appeals, and let us as honest men face the great problems before us, using the best judgment the Almighty gave us."

MAYOR BRISCO BREAKS BYLAW; CASE DISMISSED

CHATHAM, Oct. 17—Mayor Fred H. Brisco was today nearly a victim of a bylaw which he signed at the last meeting of the city council. The bylaw was an amendment to the old parking bylaw, and amended the clause regulating the distance a car must be from a fire hydrant. On Friday last the mayor's car was discovered blocking a hydrant and accordingly an information was laid against him. He appeared in the city police court today and hotly contested the right of the police department to lay the information against him. Magistrate Arnold dismissed the case.

MISS AGNES PETRIE DIES.

INGERSOLL, Oct. 17.—The death occurred somewhat unexpectedly today of Miss Agnes Petrie, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Petrie, at her home, Charles street west. She had been ill for some time, but recently was believed to be slowly recovering. She had resided here the greater part of her life, and was an active worker in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Ellen at home, Miss Elizabeth of Toronto and Mrs. (Dr.) McWilliams of London.

Government Orders That 20,000 Electors Register in Six Days.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 17—The federal Government a few days ago notified Returning Officer Wade that a complete registration of the riding would have to be made for the coming election. As this would mean that some 20,000 voters would have to register at nine registration offices within six days it was regarded as absolutely impossible. Mr. Wade has accordingly notified the department at Ottawa of the futility of such a task and, although he has not received any definite word in reply, it is expected that an effort will be made to have the 1920 municipal lists used as a basis for registration.

MUST PLACE FIRE ESCAPES ON SCHOOL

Sarnia Council Backs Up Order of Building Inspector.

SARNIA, Oct. 17.—As the result of an agreement reached at the council meeting tonight between members of the city council and Grand Trunk representatives, the railway will continue to contribute its usual water fees until the issue is definitely settled at a meeting to be held in the immediate future. A week ago the railway threatened to install its own pumping plant if the city fathers insisted on increasing the water rates to the railway. The railway now contributes about $10,000 per year in water rates to the city of Sarnia.

The council also went on record as filing a protest against the assessment on the suburban roadways in the vicinity of Sarnia.

Following a session between the board of education and the city building inspector, the council tonight passed a resolution backing the building inspector, and announcing that fire escapes must be placed on Sarnia's new $500,000 collegiate institute.

PARIS GIRL IS KILLED BY AUTO IN BRANTFORD

Ran From Behind Calliope Right In Front of Car.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 17.—Edith Parrott, a 10-year-old Paris girl, died this afternoon following injuries received in an automobile accident, when she was struck and knocked down by a car driven by Mrs. Alfred Taylor of Galt. The young girl had been following behind a steam organ in a procession advertising a show playing here, and after crossing William street bridge, darted out from behind the organ directly in front of the approaching auto.

Although the car was being driven slowly there was no time to avert the collision. The child's skull was fractured. Medical aid was summoned, but efforts to save her life were futile, and she succumbed a few minutes later. An inquest will be held.

WM. SUTTON TO CARRY TORY FLAG IN NORFOLK

SIMCOE, Oct. 17.—William Sutton, local mill owner, was nominated Government candidate for Norfolk at a mass meeting this afternoon. His nomination was made unanimous when six other nominess withdrew. They were H. P. Innes, K.C., of Simcoe; John S. Martin, Port Dover; Frank Reid, town treasurer; Henry Wallace of Middleton; Peter Quance of Delhi, and J. R. Waddle of Woodhouse. George H. Luscomb was chairman.

A life-long Liberal, Mr. Sutton stated that if the Liberals gained a majority in the House and followed the national policy, he would feel impelled to support them.

"If any one had hinted that I would be nominated as a Conservative candidate a few years ago I would have said they made a great mistake," said Mr. Sutton.

WINDSOR BOOTLEGGER BEGINS PRISON TERM

KINGSTON, Oct. 17.—Cecil Smith, the Windsor "bootlegger," arrived at the penitentiary this morning to do five years for attempted bribery.

Before entering the institution, Smith engaged a local lawyer to work on his case in conjunction with his lawyers at Windsor, seeking his release.

Solution of Ulster Tangle Lies in Conference Extension

Both Sides Agree That Settlement Will Be in Sight If Discussion Is Protrac ted Over Friday.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The Irish conference held another two-hour session today. Complete reticence is maintained as to the nature of the discussion, which is believed to have concerned the Ulster question. The date of the next meeting will be fixed later.

There was great activity at Sinn Fein headquarters after adjournment of the conference, but assurance was given that no unforeseen hitch had occurred. Inquiry at both the Irish office and Sinn Fein headquarters disclosed that as yet neither side has been able to estimate the prospects of concession by the other. The Sinn Fein maintains its full separatist claim, and makes unity of Ireland an indispensable condition to inclusion in the British Empire.

Elaborte statistics have been prepared for submission to the conference to prove the injustice of excluding Northeast Ulster. The next stage is expected to be the presentation by the Irish delegates of a plan of local autonomy within the Irish state, which will then be submitted to Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier.

If the Government supports Ulster in refusing any compromise, the conference, it is declared, will break up, and the Irish delegates return to Ireland; if the Ulster difficulty is overcome, finance and trade policy will be debated, the Sinn Fein having prepared long statements on both these subjects. Both sides agree that if the conference continues over Friday a settlement will be in sight.

Behind the scenes, pressure is being applied to both sides for and against peace. Civil and military representatives of the Irish Government, who have been in conflict with each other in Dublin Castle, are now in London urging their respective views.

Members of the Sinn Fein profess to discredit statements made in the newspapers here that United States supporters of their movement are threatening the withdrawal of subscriptions if peace is not made, and they equally discredit a rumor that influential members of the Sinn Fein organization in Ireland, including one minister, are urging the break-up of the conference and the resumption of warfare.

PROHIBITION OF TOBACCO MOVE SILLY, SAYS PASTOR

DETROIT, Oct. 17.—An educational campaign to induce Americans to quit the use of tobacco was proposed Monday by Rev. H. A. Hersey, Muncie, Ind., addressing the Universalist general convention, in session here in the First Universalist Church.

Rev. Mr. Hersey is in charge of temperance work for the Universalist Church.

"It would be untimely and silly to attempt prohibition of tobacco," he said, "but we must attack the tobacco evil through education, approaching the subject on a scientific basis. We must show the youth of our church and of the country at large the harmful effects of narcotics."

Other reports submitted to the organization Monday cited the need for establishment of additional Sunday schools of the denomination, and for enlargement of the present ones.

The general conference will also be asked to vote on the question of adopting a church catechism. Previously the church has been without a written creed.

The report of the executive board of the general Sunday School Association of the Universalist Church, given by Rev. M. A. Brown, shows that 20 new schools have been organized during the year, and there are prospects of several more in the near future.

PERJURY CASE IS AGAIN LAID OVER

Defendant's Lawyer Detained in Toronto.

ST. THOMAS, Oct. 17.—The hearing of the perjury case, in which J. E. Jones, South Yarmouth, is charged, was again postponed this morning by Magistrate Maxwell. J. M. McEvoy of London, counsel for the accused, was detained in Toronto. The former bail bond was renewed.

The judgment on the appeal against the finding of Police Magistrate Maxwell, who decided that Jones was the owner of $1,600 worth of varied brands of whiskey, is being reserved until the perjury case is settled. The whiskey and wines are still in the keeping of Inspector Ross.

To Be Officially Welcomed.

Hon. Arthur Meighen will be given an official welcome to the city by Mayor Brinkman and members of the council Saturday afternoon. After the premier's address he will be tendered a banquet, and the invitations are not limited to the members of Mr. Meighen's party, all citizens being invited.

The Mayor Is Willing.

If a largely-signed petition will do it, Mayor Frank L. Brinkman will be re-elected for the fourth term. Although there may be others who would have the old habit remain of electing a mayor for one year, and giving him a second period and $1,500 yearly as a bit of old-fashioned municipal courtesy, Ald. Lemon and Ald. Raven may also be in the paddock. Interest may again center on the election of head of the corporation as soon as the federal elections are over.

Wilson, at home, and one sister, Mrs. Annie Crowley of Chicago. The funeral will take place Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock from Holy Angels Church.

EDMONTON TO RESTORE ANTI-LOAFING WAR ACT

EDMONTON, Oct. 17.—Non-workers will not find any encouragement for loafing in Edmonton this winter, if plans to revert to the anti-loafing regulations of the war times measure act are carried out. The provincial government it is believed, is considering the enactment of such a law, and a plan proposed is to tabulate the industrial career of every man that is out of work. Under such a scheme the city would not employ men who had refused work in other places. In this way it is hoped to discourage genuine idlers, making the handling of the local situation easier in the way of helping bobna fide citizens who are without employment.

PARDEE OR MERRISON WILL BE THE CHOICE

Political Campaigning in West Lambton Is Becoming Warm.

SARNIA, Oct. 17.—The West Lambton political campaign will get away to a flying start tomorrow when the Liberals open their convention in the city hall. It is expected that Fred Pardee, M.P., or Dr. J. G. Merrison, will receive the nomination for the Liberal party in this riding.

As the result of the Conservatives bringing Premier Meignen for their convention on Thursday, Liberal officials tonight announced that Hon. L. Mackenzie King would visit Sarnia in the interests of the Liberal party on Nov. 2. The political situation is gradually warming up, and the latest report is to the effect that there is a threatened split in the ranks of the farmer party.

Considerable interest is being taken here in tomorrow night's meeting of the Trades and Labor Council. The labor party recently broke away from the United Farmers' party and it is now announced that they will tomorrow night decide just what action they will take in the ensuing political campaign in West Lambton.

FREIGHTER GOES AGROUND IN BLACK RIVER, PT. HURON

SARNIA, Oct. 17.—The freighter C. F. Bielman went aground in the Black River today while on its way to deliver a cargo of pulpwood to the Port Huron Paper and Sulphite Company plant. The big boat successfully manoeuvred the entrance to the river after several trials, only to go aground when it got further up stream. The undertow at the river's mouth was strong this morning, and considerable difficulty had been encountered in getting the freighter through the narrow channel at the Pere Marquette bridge. The boat was cleared this afternoon. It is owned by the Reid Wrecking Company.

Mayor Dean has an enviable municipal and business record, and should he decide to run, South Oxford will witness one of the hottest contests in many years.

When Mr. Jones was saved from the frying pan—

They talk yet of the change that came over Jones. Some said it was psychology. Some said it was a miracle. All said it was a mystery.

When they asked Jones, he said it was liberation from slavery—slavery to the frying pan, and to grease and starch.

Jones used to take his breakfast fried, and followed this with a heavy lunch.

In those days they said at the office: "Old Jones has a secret sorrow and he's sore on the world."

One day Jones started late—no time for the usual breakfast to be cooked.

Jones had a breakfast on Grape-Nuts with good cream. He was delighted with the crispness and rich flavor. Felt satisfied and "fed." Tried it again at lunch. Kept on breakfasting that way—often lunching, too.

Jones began to "perk up," talk up, step up—GET up.

"Let Jones show you how to do this," they began to say at the office.

As to Jones—he said: "That's a great food—GRAPE-NUTS."

There are thousands of Joneses, both kinds—reckless feeders and wise feeders.

How Teeth Show!

White or dingy—how conspicuous they are
Remove the cloudy film

There is a way to keep teeth whiter, cleaner, safer. Millions now employ it.

The glistening teeth you see everywhere now largely result from this method.

This is to explain that method. To tell you why authorities advise it. Then to offer you a ten-day test and urge that you accept it.

The film discolors

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it with your tongue. It is ever-present, ever-forming. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

The ordinary tooth paste does not end that film. The tooth brush, used in old ways, leaves much of it intact. So very few have escaped the damage which that film creates.

That film-coat absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Countless facial attractions are marred in that way. Combat that film for a little while and see how your teeth improve.

How teeth are ruined

That film is now known as the cause of most tooth troubles. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of many other troubles, local and internal.

Despite the tooth brush, these troubles have been constantly increasing. Some have become alarming in extent. So dental science has for years been seeking ways to combat that film.

Two effective methods

Two effective methods have been found. Many careful tests have proved them. They have been combined in a dentifrice called Pepsodent.

Millions of people who have tried it now employ it daily. Leading dentists everywhere advise its use. In almost every circle, glistening teeth show its visible results.

Every home is welcome to a ten-day test. Make it and watch the effects.

Other desired results

Pepsodent brings other effects which authorities desire.

It multiplies the salivary flow. That is Nature's great tooth-protecting agent.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is Nature's agent for digesting starch deposits which may otherwise form acids.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is Nature's factor for neutralizing acids which cause tooth decay.

These results come from every application. They last for some time. And they give Nature much-needed aid in combating the possible effect of modern starchy diet on teeth.

Tooth pastes based on soap and chalk have the opposite effect. Modern authorities oppose them. So Pepsodent omits these ingredients.

You can see and feel what Pepsodent is doing. A book we send explains every effect. Watch these results, learn the reason for them. Then judge for yourself between the new way and the old.

Smoke discolors film

With men who smoke the film is often conspicuously discolored. They are apt to see the greatest effects from the film removal.

Children need Pepsodent most. Young teeth seem most affected by these film attacks. Dentists advise that Pepsodent be used at least twice daily from the time the first tooth appears.

Watch the change

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. Watch how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear

Note the other effects, and read in our book what each one means to you.

Ottawa Is Afraid.

Disappointment is expressed by those who have been looking for some tangible move on the part of the Dominion Government toward a reduction in the cost of administering certain of the departments at Ottawa.

Some months ago a group of experts were put to work on the proposition. The idea was to put modern business methods in some of the departments that had more or less gone to seed.

The Printing Bureau was one of the first places invaded, and a big shake-up resulted. There is chance for more work in this department, as the country is even yet bombarded with material that can serve no real use in keeping with the amount of money spent for its publication.

The Financial Post, in its last issue, expresses its disappointment in the move of the Ottawa Government to side-step the whole business and let the expenses ride just as they are.

The Post is friendly to the Conservative interests, yet does not hesitate to touch this matter. It says:

"To those who have been looking to Ottawa to do something effective to reduce the high cost of government, the decision to dispense with the services of Griffenhagen and associates, and pigeon-hole their recommendations for the reorganization of over-manned public services, comes as a shock; to the businessmen of the country and all who bear a material share in the burden of national taxation it is a matter for keen disappointment." After referring to the saving of $500,000 made in the printing department, the Post continues: "And then just when it seemed that the cost of government might be cut down by millions annually, and the tax burdens of the people thus relieved, the whole plan is suspended."

At the conclusion of its article the Post goes to the root of the matter: "Whether this step has been taken as a matter of pre-election political expediency, or whether it is just another instance of the lack of governmental spine when it comes to the introduction of efficient, business-like methods in the administration of public affairs, is not of great importance. The disappointing fact is that an opportunity such as seldom presents itself to reduce the cost of government has been neglected."

The Government is afraid to make a move because votes are at stake, and votes are needed to win elections.

The experts who have been working on the question are able to show where departments are overmanned and notoriously inefficient. All this means that the taxpayer of the country is paying through the nose in order that jobs at Ottawa may abound.

The Government knows what should be done, but it dare not make a move, because votes must be considered. Never mind if the taxpayer has more than he can stand—never mind if the service is woefully inefficient—don't disturb the arrangement, because in so doing votes would be sacrificed, and in the eyes of the hangers-on at Ottawa nothing today looks as big as a vote.

Not United Now.

Conservatives are not finding it an easy matter to put the old candidates back in their old places.

In East York Thomas Foster was slated for the carrying of the convention again, but when it came to a vote he was put down and out in a very decisive way.

In West York, which takes in a large part of the western end of Toronto and a portion of the county, A. Anderson has the Conservative nomination. He will be opposed by a Liberal and likely by an Independent Conservative, Len. Wallace, brother of the late Capt. Tom Wallace, the last member to hold the seat.

West Toronto, another riding, has the same problem, and there will be a number of heads to crack before a seat can be found for the present member, H. C. Hocken.

The seatless Mr. Drayton has to be provided for, and at present there seems to be no great rush of Conservative sacrifices with the greeting: "Here is my seat—take it."

The truth of the matter is that while Premier Meighen is going the length and breadth of the land, trying to make it appear that his opponents are hopelessly at sixes and sevens, his own house is far from being in order, and each day is bringing this fact more and more to the surface.

Sources of Waste.

Archie B. McCoig has again received the nomination of the Liberals of West County, and deservedly so. Mr. McCoig is an able man, and a fearless and independent exponent of Liberal principles.

In the course of his address at Chatham there were two points upon which Mr. McCoig touched, which have more than a passing interest for the elector. Both references were in regard to transportation, and although one dealt with the railways and the other with marine matters, the factor of mismanagement to which the speaker drew attention entered into each.

The first of the sources of incompetency and waste to which Mr. McCoig drew attention was the Canadian National Railways. He contended that one-half of the people traveling on the Government roads were "dead-heads." This charge, he said, was recorded in Hansard, and had never been disputed.

If the friends and the cousins and the uncles and the aunts of members of Parliament and of ex-members, who have landed jobs on the Government roads are receiving free transportation, it is no wonder that these roads do not pay. The elimination of the "dead-heads" would have to be the preliminary to a readjustment of the finances No enterprise could thrive under such a serious leakage.

The people are the real owners of these roads, and it is a betrayal of their interests for the revenue to be frittered away in this manner.

In regard to the Mercantile Marine Service, Mr. McCoig took up a point to which reference has previously been made in these columns. He thinks that these boats, which cost the country some seventy millions, should be utilized for the conveyance of Canadian chilled meats to the markets of Europe.

There is no doubt that the conditioning of cattle in this country, their slaughter at the port of embarkation, and the rapid transit of the meat to Liverpool and other ports would afford Canada a very satisfactory solution of the embargo question. In addition to receiving top prices for the meat in the Old Country, Canadian manufacturers would have the benefit of the by-products in the shape of hide and hoof and horn, besides valuable fertilizing material.

Canada's greatest need at the present day, as Mr. McCoig says, is honest men of clear vision to take hold of questions such as these, and deal with them in a business-like and straightforward manner.

The Old Town Constable.

Amherstburg Town Council has notified the chief of police that he is going to be dismissed from office.

This is not the first case of the kind that has been reported in recent months, and the frequency of these happenings might lead one to suspect that some of the aldermen in these places have become students of efficiency in their spare hours.

Or it may be that the present system of specialization makes it comparatively easy to let one of these civic officers go without making a general disturbance in the whole scheme of town government.

A few years ago 'twas not thus. As witness to this we call upon any person whose younger days were spent in any of the smaller centres in this or any other district. At that time there was one official in the town, and the chances were that his entire badge of office consisted of a peak cap with gold braid, from which the lustre had long since fled, or some sort of a tag of generous proportions, which set forth the fact that to him had been intrusted the administering of various and sundry laws, around which the social and commercial life of the community was built and fashioned.

In those days this office constituted a monopoly of all the spare jobs there were to be had in the town. To be specific and go into detail it would look something like this: Town constable when there was any constabulary work to be done; sidewalk repairer, which meant that he had to own a saw, hammer and have a thorough knowledge of how to put in a new plank after some influential citizen had plumped into a hole; poundkeeper, meaning that he was supposed to know who owned every stray brindle cow and tagless dog in the neighborhood; noxious weed cutter, involving possession of a scythe and whetstone, and an intimate knowledge of the habits and whereabouts of all streets where the soil was good enough to grow weeds; town bell ringer, meaning that he had to own a watch or alarm clock, or have a constant speaking acquaintance with some one who did, and it also called for an unusual degree of punctuality; then there was the janitorship of the town hall and the operation of the weigh scales on the town square.

It is easy to see that this man's activities gave him a great hold on the whole life of the community—in fact, everything sort of radiated from him, and without him did nothing radiate that should have radiated.

It wasn't easy to fire him, for in so doing the council was practically firing a dozen men. But now it's quite different, and with the increasing of the staff around the town this one or that one can be snuffed out, and things go on pretty much the same.

It all goes to show that it was a whole heap safer to be town constable and town everything else 30 years ago than it is to hold down the one job of town policeman today.

Political Newspapers.

The Orangeville Banner believes the weekly papers have solved the matter of politics—by leaving it entirely alone. Here is the Banner's view of the subject:

"About the only 'party' papers left in Ontario are the city dailies. The rural papers are not saying a word—a great contrast with their atitude of half a decade ago. In five years the country newspaper has graduated from a Grit or Tory back into a real business. Campaign stuff that used to fill editorial columns is now published at the regular rates."

There is something very true in what the Banner has to say, and yet the case is stated in the extreme.

One can pick up many of the rural papers today and look in vain for any editorial expression on politics or anything else for that matter.

On the other hand, there are papers which carry editorial topics to extreme in their pages.

The dropping of political discussion by any paper in order that material of this nature may be put on the basis of dollars and cents may yield more revenue to the paper, but it is very poor business for that paper.

If there is any one thing this country needs at present it is men and papers that actually believe something or other—have convictions along certain lines, and not afraid to give expression to them.

The business of running newspapers to make money is urgent, but it should never be done to the obscuring of the fact that a paper has a mission in the community, and in the nation.

The study of politics is not certain to make a paper a "Grit or Tory hack." The study of politics is the study of our national development—it is the study of Canadian history, and if simply ignored, or replaced with nothing better, the paper and its readers are the losers.

There is a happy medium in between the two extremes, and the weekly paper that has found it is on the way to success and pleasurable occupation.

LITTLE 'TISERS

A person never realizes what a fine place London is until after they spend a couple of days in Toronto.

Detroit bootleggers have been making something out of nothing by adding ciphers to the denominations of dollar bills.

If a man wants an appreciative audience any place in this country about all he has to do is make a speech in favor of lower taxation.

There is no use trying to engineer a revolution in England. The average Englishman is an evolutionist all the way through, but he seldom sees red.

The British high commissioner reports that tobacco-growing will become one of the most flourishing industries in the Holy Land. Holy smoke!

It is said that in New Brunswick the Tory party is as dead as Julius Caesar—with none so poor as to do it reverence. It may now be assumed that the electors will soon come "to bury Caesar, not to praise him."

Figs may not grow on thistles, but one would imagine that whiskey bottles grew on lilac bushes and other shrubbery, judging from the number of empties one sees while going to church on Sunday morning.

Stands Nova Scotia where she did (politically)? If so, Liberals need have no fear of sweeping the country at the forthcoming general election, for experience has shown that Nova Scotia's verdict is that of the whole country.

If it had not been for the prompt action of the Ottawa fire department the election papers for December 6 might have been destroyed. Thus friend Meighen loses about the last chance that was open to him.

Some one has made a fine blunder in Toronto, where no lists are ready for the federal election. It may be that an army of enumerators may yet be turned loose to count noses. But, of course, Toronto can always find enough little Tories to run around on these little jobs that in the end make the electors pay a little more for their democratic form of government.

A London businessman, who recently returned from Alberta, says that considerable progress has been made in developing the coal areas there, with the idea of supplying the west with Alberta coal. A dispatch in the papers of the same day says there will be no reduction in the price of western coal until the present wage scale runs out. This is taken to mean that a lower wage is contemplated, and that in turn means a miners' strike. A miners' strike means that Alberta loses the gains made in holding the Western Canada market.

Read Your Character

[By Digby Phillips.]

NO. 11—NARROW HEADS.

They say that no man ever thoroughly understands women. Even a woman cannot always tell what a woman will do. This is due, in part at least, to the fact that women unconsciously conceal many indications of character by the way in which they wear their hair.

Except when certain styles are followed it is difficult to see the shape of a woman's head. And the shapes of heads play a large part in the reading of character, whether you read them instinctively or scientifically.

Undoubtedly you know somebody, possibly a number of people, with narrow heads. Reference here is not made to the face, but to the head itself. It's a question of thickness through from ear to ear, from temple to temple and through the head in the same direction above and behind the ears. Check up what you know of these people against the following characteristics, and you'll be surprised at the number of them that fit. All of them will not, of course, and later, when you read of the other character indications these people have which counter-balance the tendencies of the narrow head, you will understand why.

Narrow-headed people are not "scrappy." This does not mean that they are lacking in courage. But they do not like to fight. They'll do it when they have to out of a sense of duty or necessity, but they are, by nature, mild, diplomatic, easy-going and lacking in the desire to be despotic or dominating. They rely on tact rather than "bulldozing" to gain their ends. But, on the other hand, they are lacking in complete thoroughness. They're more inclined to be satisfied with approximate results than to devote themselves to painstaking accuracy.

TO THE EDITOR

ASSESSMENTS AND TAXES—LAST CALL.

Editor Advertiser:

Sir,—There has always been one criticism of the plan that I suggested recently to our fellow-citizens which was forceful and rational, and for which until today I had no solution that seemed satisfactory; but now I think the question is solved so simply that I feel somewhat foolish not to have realized it before.

The criticism was, Is it just to force an owner that has a home to put an excessive value on that home to avoid selling it at the valuation of a fair market value? My best answer has been that it was really worth more to that owner than a fair market value. The solution is this way: A decent home is very desirable to any community, and should be made as easy for the owner as is possible; therefore, when an owner files the claim to possession and makes the valuation called for under my plan, the right must also be given to file a claim that the property is used as a home by the owner, and if it still is so used when the taxes are payable, a discount should be allowed to the owner as a home-maker. The amount might well be 10 per cent of the regular taxation; this will allow the owner to place a price that is 11 per cent more than the fair market value on the property, and still come out exactly even with owners of property not used as a home, and if 10 per cent proves too little, it can be raised higher still, but probably that will be sufficient for the purpose. Churches and other property used for non-profit-making, but desirable purposes, might well be exempted up to a reasonable amount; but those that have cash to make a display with should also pay some taxes. The case of a tenant home-maker might also be met by permission to file a claim for the home discount on the taxes, and if still a home-maker when taxes are paid in, be entitled to the allowance, inasmuch as the tenant has paid the taxes as a part of the rental, and a tenant's home is just as desirable as an owner's home. But probably in this case the matter would be too complicated to work out easily and satisfactorily. Finis. Yours respectfully, JAMES W. EASTON.

PRESS VIEWS ON POLITICS

WOMAN AGAINST MEIGHEN.

[Montreal Herald.]

At a farmers' convention to be held today in Portage la Prairie, the name of Miss Mary McCallum, assistant secretary of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, is to be submitted for nomination. Miss McCallum was on the editorial staff of the Grain Growers' Guide for four years, and previous to that was on the staff of the Regina Leader, a Liberal paper. Portage is the premier's constituency, where he has announced he will run again, and a determined effort will be made to defeat him. It looks as if they rely on Miss McCallum as the instrument.

TO THE BOW-WOWS.

[Halifax Chronicle.]

In Toronto the prospective Tory candidates are pinning to their battle flags the slogan that "patronage must be restored or the nation will go to the dogs." Mr. Meighen is telling the electors that ruin and desolation will ensue unless his policy of high protection is maintained. So whatever program is set forward, apparently the Government and its supporters are resolved to send the country to the bow-wows.

MR. McCURDY'S BLUNDER.

[Charlottetown Patriot.]

Hon. F. B. McCurdy, minister of public works, during his address, stated that in 1911 the issue was between reciprocity in natural products and the national policy of Sir John Macdonald. When Mr. McCurdy comes to Charlottetown to address our people he must be made to realize that he has an intelligent audience before him, who know the history of politics and political parties, and if he does not know it himself we beg to inform Mr. McCurdy that the national policy of Sir John Macdonald embodied in the statute creating same provision for reciprocity in natural products between Canada and the United States. Sir John was in favor of such reciprocity and actually provided for it by statute. In 1891 Sir John went to the country on receiprocity and won out. What have you to say to this, Mr. McCurdy?

POETRY AND JEST

EVENING.

[Sara Teasdale.]

There was an evening when the sky was clear,
Ineffably translucent in its blue;
The tide was falling and the sea withdrew
In hushed and happy music from the sheer Shadowy granite of the cliffs, and fear
Of what life may be, and what death can do,
Fell upon us like steel armor, and we knew
The beauty of the law that holds us here.

It was as though we saw the Secret Will,
It was as though we floated and were free;
In the southwest a planet shone serenely,
And the high moon, most reticent and queenly,
Seeing the earth had darkened and grown still,
Misted with the light the meadows of the sea.

"A bird bath, I tell you. Why do you doubt it?"

Flaunt leaves of red,
While chilly night winds chant a mournful dirge
To summer dead.

A girl, crossing to England, got friendly with one of the ship's officers, a young man of 25 or so. The two were leaning side by side on the rail one day when the officer said:

"Oh, stop your kiddin'!" said the girl. "Whoever heard of a watch striking as loud as that?"—Washington Star.

As a Man Thinketh

THE old adage which said a man's thinking controlled his subsequent activities and condition, is equally true of a community for the very simple reason that achievement is always preceded by thought, so, whatever is accomplished in the life of a man or community is the result of thought.

What are you thinking about current topics pertaining to your community—London? You might say—"What good is my opinion?"

Suppose Edison had said that; suppose Marconi took that attitude; suppose Alexander Graham Bell felt as you do; can you imagine how it would have retarded our civilization?

It is true, we cannot all be Edisons, Marconis or Bells, but we are all endowed with the faculty for thinking intelligently.

So that you might give expression to your thoughts on any subject of public interest, the "Letters to the Editor" section was started and is maintained in

The London Advertiser

This is your section. Use it. Use it often. Read what others have to say.

It is better to sign your name. Always give full name and address, even if you use a pen name for your letter to be published.

Your communications will be welcome. Your ideas or thoughts do count.

MIDDLEMARCH W. I.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute of Middlemarch was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. William Lyle, when the members of the Women's Institute of Shedden were their guests. The visiting ladies provided a program of unusual merit, consisting of an instrumental by Mrs. Bradt; a paper, written by Mrs. Moore, entitled "A Comparison of the Autumn of Our Lives With the Autumn of Nature"; music, Mrs. Stafford and Mrs. Holborne. A paper by Mrs. A. E. Orchard, "Is a Woman's Time Worth Anything?" was both interesting and original, and provided much food for thought. A piano solo was given by Mrs. Bradt. Mrs. J. Sells read a carefully-prepared paper on "The Talbot Settlement," which was followed by a duet by Mrs. Holborne and Mrs. Stafford. A hearty vote of thanks to the visitors was moved by Mrs. E. E. Luton, and seconded by Miss Hattie Robinson. Mrs. Lyle then served tea, assisted by Mrs. McNiven, Misses Lyle and Futcher.

After the business meeting, arrangements were completed for the fancy dress dance to be given in the Grange Hall on Halloween. Following are committees: Hall, Mrs. Lonsberry, Mrs. C. Welter, Mrs. Curtis, Mrs. Burton; lunch, Mrs. McNiven, Mrs. Butler, Mrs. Irwin, Mrs. Dubber, Miss Lyle; reception committee, Mrs. Wm. Lyle, Mrs. E. E. Luton; doorkeepers, E. E. Luton and W. Lyle; judging costumes, Mrs. Geo. King and Mrs. George Carroll; advertising, Miss Lyle. The proceeds will be in aid of institute funds. It was moved by Miss Humphries, and seconded by Mrs. C. Welter, that the date of the meetings be changed to the second Thursday of each month, the hour to be 2:30 p.m. instead of 3 p.m. Carried. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ross Tufford on Nov. 10.

A SHOWER GIVEN.

An interesting party was given recently at the old Sifton homestead, near Thamesford, in honor of its new occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sifton. Mrs. Sifton was formerly Miss Adeline Ball of Toronto. The party was given by Mr. Wm. Smith and Mr. Payne, and took the form of a shower. There were about one hundred guests present. Rev Mr. Baker gave a short address, welcoming Mr. and Mrs. Sifton to the community. A dainty buffet luncheon was served and a dance followed. Many guests were present from London, St. Thomas and Thamesford.

CVII.—Over-Reached.

"And so," said Julian Vandaveer, staring dejectedly at his bride, the still pert and piquant Eve—"and so nothing remains now but to do some honest work."

Kismet had gone—a violent exit. His master's boot had assisted him on his descent downstairs.

"Some honest work" repeated Eve. "Well, Julian, the old proverb tells us that variety is the spice of life. And honest work would certainly be a change for you and me."

Julian's lugubrious countenance did not lighten. Eve's flippancy annoyed him.

"We haven't got much money between the two of us," he remarked. Eve smiled.

"I have forty-five hundred dollars. Cheer up!" she said. "That includes what's left of the money Carrington gave me for inveigling Dick Calardin into an engagement"—here she giggled in sprightly fashion—"the engagement was short-lived, thanks to you, Julian dear! Carrington lost his money—"

"But Dick Calardin won his freedom, which he wanted," cut in Julian nastily.

Eve's eyes narrowed. This was a hit at her vanity.

"Oh, well, I got another twenty-five hundred out of him—at least, indirectly," she said tartly. "For he went security on a note that Carrington made out for me. And, of course, I don't intend to pay up, Julian. So the immaculate Dick will head. You see, I've scored off both of them."

A sharp knock sounded at the door of their sitting-room and a servant entered with a telegram, which was handed to Eve.

The latter tore it open.

"Speaking of angels, it's from Carrington!" Eve was all smiles and satisfaction now. "He asks me to come round to his office at four o'clock today. He got the note I sent him—and this message doesn't sound a bit as though he were angry!"

"Get on your things and hurry!" Julian, too, looked pleased. "Shall I come with you, dear?"

"No! That would ruin everything! He can't stand you, Julian!" cried his young bride.

Twenty minutes later she stood in the inner office of her guardian. Bellairs' face was quite inscrutable.

"And so you've gone and done it!" he remarked. "Well, there's no good arguing out the matter now. You've made your bed, and you've got to lie on it, I suppose!"

This opening was not hopeful. Eve sat down.

"You've got about five thousand dollars on hand," he went on. "For I take it you've no intentions of paying back the money that young Calardin went security on? No, don't contradict me, Eve! You always were untrustworthy, and always will be to the end!"

Here he drew out his check-book, lifted a pen and cast a meditative eye on Eve.

"Strange to say, I'm going to do the decent thing by you! Yes, I'm going to write you out a check for a wedding present—although you don't deserve it! But I'll only write it on 'conditions'—"

"Yes. What are they?" inquired Eve, hugely pleased and quite determined to agree to any conditions whatsoever, if she only got the money.

"Firstly," said her guardian, "you're to agree never again to ask a penny from me. Secondly, you're to keep your precious Julian out of England. And, thirdly, when he throws you over—as eventually he will do, of course—you're not to come whining back to me for help."

Although considerably taken aback, Eve assented. Her greedy eyes were fixed on Bellairs as he wrote out the check.

"Take a taxi straight back to your husband, and let the two of you open this together." He put the check in an envelope and sealed it.

"He'll be waiting for you on the tiptoe of expectancy!" Bellairs' laugh was not pleasant.

All tuned up to a glad expectancy, then, the girl departed. She even managed to suppress her namesake and progenitor's besetting sin, too—for she did not open the envelope until Julian was by her side!

"I'm sure that Carrington has done the thing handsomely this time!" Eve's face was flushed as she drew out the check. "Maybe it's for fifty thousand—a hundred thousand—"

Her husband snatched the paper from her hand. He stared at it—incredulous. Then he broke into shrill, angry laughter.

"Fooled! Fooled again!" he cried. "Your precious 'marriage portion'—a hundred dollars? A paltry hundred dollars!—confound your guardian's impudence!" He crumpled up the check and hurled it to the floor.

Puppy Stories

By Vincent G. Perry.

THE PRANKS OF IMP.

They called him Imp, and indeed that was the very best name for him, for he was a mischievous and saucy little puppy. How he did delight in playing pranks. It was necessary to keep 'most everything out of sight, for it was Imp's main delight to carry things away or chew up anything he found.

"Where's mother's slippers, where's the baby's doll, where's the left shoe of daddy's Sunday boots?" That was the cry when Imp first came. Of course, the naughty puppy had carried them away somewhere. Sometimes they were easily found, but more often a long hunt had to be made before they were brought to light, and then what a commotion there would be. Gone were the bows off mother's slippers, all chewed was the face of baby's doll, and sharp little teeth had made scratches on daddy's shiny new boots.

Now, Imp soon learned it was unwise to anger his kind master and mistress, and he did not like to make baby cry, so after he had been spanked a number of times, he directed his pranks elsewhere. Old Tim, the bulldog next door, was just the kind of good-natured dog to play pranks on, so Imp started in. First of all, he learned that Tim did not like to have his tail chewed, and straightway set to work to nip the old fellow's tender spot. Next he discovered that ears were nice things to chew, and much to old Tim's discomfort attacked the ears with as much joy as he had attacked the harmless old dog's tail. Poor old Tim! He was much too good-natured to take his own part when such a little dog was botherng him, so Imp was permitted to act disgracefully without any interference. But doing things that did not seem to annoy, was not much fun, Imp thought, so he watched his chance for a new prank. One day he made a discovery—Tim buried bones. When nobody was looking one fine afternoon, Imp stole into Tim's backyard and as quickly as possible dug up the biggest bone he could find. What a prize it was! But prizes like that were heavy, and it took all Imp's strength to lift it from Tim's storehouse. A sound at the front yard where Tim was last seen sleeping, caused the pup to hurry. It was hard work, and by the time the pup had carried it a few feet he was tired. Where would he bury it? The open well at his feet suggested an idea. Tim was coming. In his fright Imp leaned too far over the well and down he went.

Gurgle! gurgle! gurgle! What a mouthful of water and what a soaking the pup got. The well was deep, but at first Imp did not realize his danger. Around and around he swam, shaking the water from his mouth and eyes. Soon he tired. Then he became frightened. Was he going to drown?

"Woof, woof." It was Tim leaning over the well.

"Save me, save me," cried Imp.

In the twinkling of an eye the old dog disappeared. In a minute he was back again with a rope in his mouth. He held on to one end, pushed the other down to Imp. Imp grasps it between his teeth and hung on. His play with Tim's tail had taught him that trick. The next thing he knew he was pulled out of the well, cold and dripping. How grateful he was to his rescuer.

Tearfully Imp confessed the prank he was playing when the accident happened.

"Why I haven't a tooth in my head. I was saving those bones for you," Tim told him, and then how ashamed the naughty pup felt.

THE FASHIONS

SPAIN AND THE SPIRAL.

Spiral draperies and spiral tunics are a boon to the woman whose figure cannot stand horizontal lines. Nowadays, so many trimmings are in banded effects, that were it not for the spiral some of us would be in despair. Net evening dresses are ruffled in spiral formation, and all manner of devices are employed to break the line which has a broadening effect. It was natural that the Spanish influence and the spiral twist should unite, for it is almost impossible to drape a shawl without acquiring something of the grace of the slanting line, and this naturally inspired designers to use fringe and other trimming in this way.

Chenille has come in with a leap and a bound, and with it, all sorts of dangling ball trimmings which are associated in our minds with the bull ring. A costume such as illustrated is decidedly ultra—in fact, almost too extreme for the average woman, but it is so pictorial and so filled with suggestion that it would be folly to pass it by without first adapting some, if not all of its features, to your needs. Visualize it shorn of its ball trimmings, and you will see at once that it is a perfectly wearable afternoon frock, capable of being interpreted in broadcloth, velvet, duvetyn or any of the fabrics which may appeal, and it will at once occur to you that it is also appropriate for either satin or crepe, in which case, either chenille or jet might be used as trimming.

The Chenille Veil in New Forms.

A chenille rimmed hat may be conspicuous, but a hat draped with a chenille dotted veil will be capable of being worn with or without the veil. One of the new veils is very narrow, and has hanging from each of the points which edge it, a goodly sized chenille ball. It is supposed to be worn over the brim edge of the hat after the fashion of the lace veils now in vogue, and has really a great deal to commend it. Hats, by the way, are frequently nothing but a series of balls or knobs, sometimes of jet, other times of cellophane and even of pads of pasted feathers. One of the hats made by Evelyn Varon, if my memory serves me right, is known as the mushroom because it is made of pads of velvet not unlike the pinkish fawn of the mushrooms. Rows upon rows of beads or the use of festoons of beads falling over one or both sides of the brim continues, as does the use of dangling pins, many of which are more gipsylike than Spanish in their spirit.

Interest in Spain presage an interest in laces, but while laces in Spanish designs are very fashionable, curiously enough the heavy silk type which is really Spanish lace is not very often in use, although scarfs are reported as being worn extensively abroad. One of the latest lace vogues, is colored filet, a lace which many predict will duplicate in color, the success of the natural filet.

Miss Hazel Heacock of Calgary, niece of Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Curtis, with her friend Miss Lamb, have been recent guests with Mr. and Mrs. Curtis.

Many entertainments have been given for a bride-elect of this month, Miss Winnifred Jane Colbert, whose marriage to Mr. Wm. S. Clark, takes place on Thursday, Oct. 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Carrothers of this city announce the engagement of their daughter Reta, to Mr. Ernest L. Harding of Port Stanley, the marriage to take place in November.

The finals of the ladies' championship trophy donated by the president of the Ladies' Hunt Club golf committee, were played off yesterday, Mrs. Frank Spry winning from Miss Jo Belton.

The Nicholas Wilson Chapter, I. O. D. E., are holding a meeting today at the home of Mrs. N. L. Curtis, William street. The time will be spent chiefly in sewing for the coming bazaar.

Mrs. Frank Ware gave a little informal tea last week in honor of Mr. Harvey Skey's mother. Mrs. Skey has been visiting for several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Skey, Piccadilly street.

Miss Lillian Johnson has returned home after an enjoyable visit in Windsor and Detroit. While in Detroit Miss Johnson was a guest at the Agnew-Fitch wedding, held recently at the Woodward Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Harold K. Callard, formerly Miss Agnes Morrison, will receive for the first time since her marriage, on Friday, Oct. 21, at her home, 228 Piccadilly street. In future Mrs. Callard will be at home on the second Monday of the month.

Many delightful parties have been given recently in honor of Miss Doris Yarker, a bride-elect of next month. Among these was a tea given by Mrs. John I. A. Hunt. Miss Grace Blackburn poured tea from a table very attractively decorated with tiny pink roses.

A delightful shower was given last week at the home of Mrs. J. Rennison, Glanworth, in honor of Miss Viola Batten, whose marriage takes place this week. Many lovely gifts were received, among them being some handsome pieces of cut glass and china. After the presentation a dance followed, and a dainty lunch was served.

Mrs. J. M. McEvoy's daughter-in-law, Mrs. A. M. McEvoy of Oakland Hill Country Club, has had the honor of winning the 1921 championship of the Women's District Golf Association. She won the title in the final 36 hole-match at the tournament on the south course of the Detroit Golf Club, when she defeated Miss Dorothy Scherer of that club.

Miss Mowat, Charlotte street, was the hostess of a surprise shower, given in honor of Miss Winnifred Colbert, a bride of this month. The gifts, which consisted of groceries, were presented to Miss Colbert in a prettily decorated express wagon, in charge of a large kewpie, drawn by Miss Jean Roberts. A dainty supper was served and the remainder of the evening was spent in games and music.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Purdom are leaving today to attend the wedding of their son Llewellyn, whose marriage to Miss Cora Louise Matheson, daughter of Mr. Donald C. Matheson, takes place on Wednesday evening in Detroit. Among the guests who will be present from London are Misses Jean and Margaret Purdom, Mr. and Mrs. Archie McKnight, Misses Purdom, Mr. Alex. Purdom, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Tanton and family, Mr. James Croden, Mr. Claire McPherson of Woodstock and Mr. Jack Tanton of Toronto.

A delightful tea and shower was held in the kindergarten of the Boyle Memorial School, in honor of Miss Gladys Pulling, a bride-elect of this month. Miss Pulling, who is a former teacher of this school, was presented with a dozen cut glass goblets. The room was prettily decorated with autumn leaves and flowers. Tea was poured by Mrs. Alexander. The presentation was given by Mr. Ferguson, the principal of the school. Miss Flora Carson, Prospect avenue, also entertained in Miss Pulling's honor, giving a miscellaneous shower. Among those present were many teachers and ex-teachers. The gifts were presented in a very novel manner. A Japanese parasol, with a tiny bride on top, was given to Miss Pulling to open. Upon opening it many cards fell out, bearing directions in rhyme where to find the gifts. A dainty lunch was served, the table being prettily decorated with orange and yellow mums, with tall candle at the four corners and small ones at each cover.

GRAPE JELLY.

If you live where wild grapes grow in abundance, you will find it worth your while to do picnicking one day and gather a six-quart basket of them just before they are dead ripe, for they make the most delicious jelly to serve with cold meats. Grape jelly is wholesome and nourishing, very good for children and invalids, not so acid as currant, and often much preferred to it. Any grape not too sweet nor too ripe can be used to make jelly, for the acid and pectin are present in the right amounts. The sugar may be scanted just a little, about three-quarters of a pound to a pound of juice is really enough. Wild grapes, however, have a delicate flavor, a sort of concentration of the exquisite fragrance of the wild grape blossom, that makes them peculiarly desirable. Besides they are cheap, and the trip into the open to get them is worth while for its own sake.

Pick over the grapes, wash and stem them. Heat to boiling point, mash, and boil them thirty minutes. Let them drip through a flannel jelly bag over night. In the morning, measure the juice, boil it five minutes, add the sugar, heated, boil three minutes or less if jelly forms on the spoon, and pour into clean glasses. Seal with paraffin.

Venison jelly is made with a peck of wild grapes, a quart of cider vinegar, a quarter of a cupful each of whole cloves and stick cinnamon, and six pounds of sugar. Put grapes, vinegar and spices into preserving kettle and cook until grapes are soft. Strain as for grape jelly, boil the juice twenty minutes, add the sugar, heated, and boil five minutes. Pour into glasses.

WITH THE BRIDES

RUEHLE—RYCKMAN.

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, on Kitchener avenue, when Frieda Ryckman was married to Robert Ruhle of Detroit, Rev. A. C. Bingham officiating. The bride looked charming in a gown of white charmeuse, wearing the conventional wreath and veil, and carrying a shower bouquet of roses. The wedding march was played by Miss Nettie Blinkhom. The bridesmaid was Miss Florence Ryckman of Brantford, who wore a smart gown of French blue. The bride was given away by her father. After the wedding a reception was held, after which Mr. and Mrs. Ruehle left on a short honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside in Detroit.

FREWING—McPHAIL.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. McPhail, Main street east, West Lorne, on Oct. 12, when their daughter, Miss Maude McPhail, was united in marriage to Albert Frewing, of South Bend, Ind. The ceremony was performed at noon by the Rev. A. L. Carr, in the presence of immediate friends. The bride was given away by her father, the wedding march being played by Miss Eva Fordham of Fingal, cousin of the bride. Wilbert Dubeau of Wallaceburg, cousin of the bride, acted as groomsman, and Miss Sadie Liverington of West Lorne acted as bridesmaid. Helen Layson acted as ringbearer. The bride looked charming dressed in white silk crepe de chene, with bridal veil, and carried a bouquet of roses and carnations. During the signing of the register, Harold Sharrat, brother-in-law of the bride, sang "O Promise Me." The groom's present to the bride was a string of pearls, to the groomsman a pair of gold cuff links, to the bridesmaid and pianist sterling silver bar pins, and to the ringbearer a ring. Mr. and Mrs. Frewing motored to St. Thomas, where they will make their home, the bride's going away suit being of navy blue tricotine, with hat to match.

Cynthia Grey's Mail-Box

[By Cynthia Grey.]

WE have all noticed young men and women in public places, and as a rule it is the young lady who does all the talking.

Now in many cases it may be well that she does, but all youths are not of the same nature, and in a great many instances it is very annoying for a young gentleman to have to listen to his girl friend talk incessantly.

It is very encouraging, though, to a young man, to have his lady friend tell and show him in every way possible that she has enjoyed his company, but to never cease talking for a moment and give him a chance to talk, is not the best way to encourage him to ask her out again.

It is very much more enjoyable for both parties to partake in a conversation than to have it all one-sided, and if many folks would think of this when they are out, their afternoons and evenings would be better enjoyed by themselves and those with whom they commingle.

SENDS SEEDS.

Dear Miss Grey,—As I am an interested reader of your Page, I saw where Another Reader was asking for the song entitled "Grandfather's Clock," so I copied it off for her, and she need not return it.

Has anyone a pattern for a crochet bedspread? I would very much like to get one. I am sending in a few seeds, double marigold, zinnias, bachelors' buttons, also a package of snapdragon, for Jamseg, as I saw where she was asking for some.

Inclosed find stamped, self-addressed envelope. Wishing your Page every success, I am A NEWCOMER.

Thank you, A Newcomer, for your song and seeds. I will send the snapdragons on to Jemseg and forward you the seeds you ask for.

CROCHET FOR PILLOWCASES.

Dear Miss Grey,—I see in Monday's paper, where Health wanted to know if any of the members knit sweaters. I have never knit any for anyone but myself, but would be glad to knit for Health. I will leave my address with Miss Grey in case Health wishes to write me regarding same. Last winter I knit myself a Sweater Waist, and also a scarf that everyone admires. I received the song and address I wrote for some weeks ago, though I have not written Silver Lands Road until today. Do any Boxites that want crochet patterns for pillowcases ever crochet the lace on to the pillowcase? I trim all my cases, and of late have crocheted the edges on. I cut out the scallop I desire and crochet the buttonhole stitch over the edge, then my pattern. By getting good material, I find the cases last as long as the crochet cotton. I have one pair of cases made of Indian Head; they look very nice when laundered. I hope this quilt will be such a success that the Boxites will make another.

Inclosed find mite. Will sign as before, EASTERN STAR.

P. S.—If any of the Boxites would like to have a teapot handle, I would knit them in the form of an ear of corn and charge 35c a piece, giving what I make out of them over the price of yarn to the S. C. H.—E. S.

IN DOUBT.

Dear Miss Grey,—It's been quite a while since I've written, but I've enjoyed the Mail-Box all the same.

I would like the words to "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia" if anyone has them, and would lend them to me. Miss Grey has my address. It's a question whether you are a man or a woman, but I think you are a man on account of your being so wise; I've never met a woman with as many brains yet.

With apologies to all the fair Boxites, I'll sign myself,
A ROAMING ROMEO.

I do not agree with you in regard to the brains of women, as this Mail-Box is sufficient evidence that women have good brains, and when reading your letter I wondered if you ever heard of a man named Cynthia.

OFFERS SONGS.

Dear Miss Grey,—I received your letter and song some time ago, and wrote back thanking you for it, but I guess you never got my letter, because I did not see it in The Advertiser. I am sending in the song named "Go and Leave Me" for Margaret. I have sent this one that other time with the other two, "Little Maggie May" and "Mother's Dying Prayer," but like copying songs, so thought I would copy it again. I can also send any other song for any of the Boxites if I know the names of them and if I have them, as I have an awful lot of them. Miss Grey, I saw in today's paper, where Margy sent in a copy of "Peggy O'Neill," and as I have been trying to get it, may I have a copy of it, please, also, Miss Grey, may I have a copy of "Margie" if it is sent into the Mail-Box, as I asked for these two before and they were not in the Mail-Box then. Well will close now and hoping I have not stayed too long and that you receive my letter. In the other letter I sent in "Grandfather's Clock," as Another Reader was asking for it, but seen where Patriotic sent it in, as my letter was delayed, but we can't expect good luck every time, can we, Miss Grey? Well, this will be put in the W. P. B. If I don't hurry, won't it? Yours truly, MISS A. B. W.

I am very sorry your letter went astray, and am pleased to see that you did not get discouraged and leave us. I will forward you the songs "Margie" and "Peggy O'Neil," very soon.

WANTS SEEDS AND SLIPS.

Dear Miss Grey,—I am very anxious to know if you received the money and names I sent in for the quilt. I hope it didn't go astray. Would like some of Aunt Rose's flower seeds if there are any left. Could anyone send me some everlasting sweet pea seeds or a slip of Lady Washington, or is it too late. Inclosed find mite for Hospital Fund.
CANAAN,

Canaan, I did not receive the money or names you sent in. If you did not send a money order or registered letter we have no way of tracing them. I am sending you some of Aunt Rose's flower seeds, and many thanks for hospital mite.

OFFERS ENVELOPES.

Dear Miss Grey,—Inclosed please find self-addressed envelope for Pussy Willow's No. 1 address.

Also any other Boxites who may want envelopes, as I still have several hundred of them. I am sewing them, the correct size, or rather the size December Bride made hers. The Mail-Box friends are more than welcome to the envelopes. My address is with Miss Grey. Anyone wanting envelopes for seeds can let me know. Thanking you, Miss Grey, for your trouble. WIFE.

I am sending you Pussy Willow's address, and many thanks for the seed envelopes you offer the Boxites, December Bride's envelopes were a very suitable size.

WANTS TO EXCHANGE.

Dear Miss Grey,—I saw in today's paper where A. C. Vine wants to exchange hollyhocks. I have a few double pink ones, if she would like to exchange. My address is with Miss Grey. Yours truly, M. C.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

ST. GEORGES M. C.

St. George's Mothers' Club are holding a meeting this evening. Miss Susan Blackburn will give an interesting address on Japan and a program will follow. There will be several business committees formed.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN'S CLUB.

"The History of the Novel," as given in two most interesting papers before the University Women's Club Saturday evening, was a fitting introduction to the club study program of the year, which is to deal with modern novelists. Miss Weir was the first speaker, recounting the history of the novel in its first phase from Daniel Dafoe to Fielding and Smollet.

The early novel, she said, did not deal with sentiment, emotion or mental state, but confined itself merely to incident, mentioning Swift's "Robinson Crusoe," as an example of this type of novel. She cited Daniel Dafoe as the pioneer writer of fiction and Richardson as the first writer in whose novels sentiment appears.

Mrs. Albright continued the subject, dealing with the novel of romance and its three schools of sentiment, theory and terror. Her time was largely taken up in the reading of passages from novels of this period, which proved very entertaining.

Several new members were admitted to the club on Saturday night.

ERIE AVENUE CLUB.

A delightful evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Ramsay, Erie avenue, when the members of the Erie Avenue Club were entertained at cards. Halloween decorations lent an added beauty and charm to the party, while scores of candles and illuminated pumpkins produced a novel lighting effect.

The occasion was the first of many social events which will be given by the different members during the coming months.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Jarmain, Mr. and Mrs. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Wenige, Miss Ramsay, Misses Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. Nugent, Mr. and Mrs. Archer, Dr. George A. Ramsay, Mr. and Mrs. Kenerson, and Mr. and Mrs. Deacon.

TORONTO SENIORS ISSUE ULTIMATUM ON KINDER AS REFEREE

ST. MARYS MAY CLAIM SENIOR TITLE BY A RIVERSIDES' DEFAULT

Seniors' Hedge On Agreement Brings Stone Town's Threat of Default Claim—Team's Supporters Aroused.

ST. MARYS, Oct. 17.—"We refuse to play Wednesday's game with Allan Kinder as referee," was the text of a telegram sent the St. Marys Alert Lacrosse Club this morning by the senior Riversides.

A hurried meeting of the club was called this afternoon, and St. Marys refused to consider any change of date or referee, and stated they would claim the senior championship by default unless the Riversides carried out their agreement to appear here Wednesday in the second game of the play-off for the senior title.

President's Signature.

The signature of Len Smith, president of the O. A. L. A., is attached to an agreement between the two teams, in which Kinder is named as referee, and the Alerts will fight the matter out to a standstill.

The matter has aroused the town, supporters of the St. Marys Lacrosse Club generally, the new move being considered but another evidence of Toronto sportsmanship.

ASK FOR MINT TO MEET IN LONDON

President Heard Asks For Meeting by Nov. 1; Pinto Sold

London has won two pennants, but nary a Mint League meeting here since January, 1920.

President Heard yesterday sent out telegrams to the club owners of the Mint League, asking that the president be requested to call a meeting of the circuit before Nov. 1, suggesting London as the logical place for the meeting.

The closest a Michigan-Ontario League meeting has been to Ontario for some time is Port Huron or Detroit, and the Ontario owners will welcome a change.

Pinto Is Sold.

Pinto, the London rookie southpaw, has been sold to the Philadelphia Nationals, and the chances are that he will not be farmed out next spring but kept with the club and coached along.

Buzz Wetzel sent in the contract of an outfielder yesterday. Leonard Haas is the ambitious player's name, and he hails from Blue Island, Illinois.

Mixed Doubles Finals Today

Miss McKenzie and Mr. Ferguson Qualified as One Pair.

The finals of the mixed doubles will be played out at the London Hunt Club courts this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Miss McKenzie and Mr. Ferguson earned the right to go in as one of the pairs when they won from Miss Spence and Mr. Taggart, 6—3, 6—4, yesterday afternoon.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock Miss McFarlane and Mr. Walker meet Miss McCausland and Mr. Willan, and the winners meet the victors of yesterday.

Ladies' singles are also on today's bill, but the draw is not yet known.

St. Kitts In Finals.

The London ladies lost to the St. Catharines ladies at Brantford on Saturday by losing three out of five sets in the finals for the Western Ontario Cup. The scores were as follows:

Miss McKenzie lost to Mrs. Harris, 4—6, 3—6.

Miss Spence and Miss Woolley won from Miss Plummer and Miss Watts, 6—2, 2—6, 8—6.

Miss Miller lost to Miss Marquis, 2—6, 6—2, 6—8.

Miss McKenzie and Miss Spence lost to Mrs. Harris and Miss Marquis, 1—6, 2—6.

Miss Wooley won from Miss Plummer, 6—3, 6—4.

RUTH KNOCKED IN 137 RUNS DURING 1921 CAMPAIGN

TALLIES RUTH HIT IN THIS YEAR.
By home runs—106.
By singles—22.
By triples—17.
By doubles—10.
By infield outs—8.
By outfield outs (sacrifice flies)—3.
Total—166.
1920 total—137.

Those fans who assumed that because Babe Ruth broke his home run record this year he also smashed his runs batted in record were right. He did. His hammering honor put the Yankees in possession of 166 of their tallies, scoring himself 59 times, and sundry other persons, Roger Peckinpaugh probably oftenest, 107 times. Ruth's 1921 record of runs batted in was 29 more than it was the year before.

Hits sent in 155 of the counters Ruth was responsible for in the year that gave the New York Americans their first pennant, outs 11. Thre of the latter were sacrifice flies, Ruth getting one of these against Boston, one against St. Louis, and one against Washington. A long fly hit by the Babe that wasn't a sacrifice fly was that poled in the game in Cleveland on Sunday, July 24, off J. Walter Mails. Yankee war correspondents report that when the world's greatest outfielder, otherwise Tristram S. Speaker, raked in this offering, Ruth had almost reached third.

Not a Cleaner.

About the only thing Ruth overlooked doing during his greatest year was blasting a four-bagger when the traffic lanes were congested. His homers gave him a great start toward smashing his own record for runs batted in, since they were good for 106 counters.

Ruth's singles were good for 22 counters, and his triples for 17. George H. showed, in the second inning at Detroit on Friday, May 13, that he cared not for superstition, for then he blew himself to a three-bagger when Walter H. Schang, Harry C. Harper and Robt. Frank Roth were stationed on the runway. Howard Ehmke yielded this hit.

Another three bagger just as valuable was that obtained off David N. Peefe of the Athletics in the ninth at Philadelphia on Saturday, Sept. 10. The Yankee base tenants at this time were Carl Mays, Elmer Miller and Roger Peckinpaugh. In the same session Ruth batted again, this time against Young Freeman, from Kalamazoo, and he singled, or rather Peckinpaugh singled for him. Roger got in the way of the ball hit by the Babe and retired the side anatomically and automatically. It was about time, for the New Yorkers had rung the scoring gong nine times.

His Doubles.

Ruth's doubles accounted for 10 tallies, his infield outs for eight and his flies to the outfield for three. Once he was passed with the bases full by Davenport of the White Sox, and this may mean another run batted in for him in the American League records.

One remarkable thing about Ruth's batting in 1921 was its remarkable evenness. The Babe picked on no one team in particular when hammering runs across the plate. The greatest number of runs Ruth knocked in in a series was 28 and the smallest number 21—a difference of only seven between the high and low figures.

Ruth knocked in one or more run in each of 67 games and no tallies at all in 65. The greatest number of counters he drove in in any one contest was four, and every time he did this (he did it on seven occasions) he was adding to his collection of belt line blows.

This was Ruth's record in batting in runs against the seven clubs in 1921, possibly a world's record for a fast set performer:

Against Philadelphia, 28—On home runs, 14; singles, 6; doubles, 4; triples, 3; infield outs, 1.

Against Detroit, 26—On home runs, 21; triples, 4; singles, 1.

Against Washington, 25—On home runs, 15; singles, 5; doubles, 2; triples, 1; infield outs, 1; sacrifice flies, 1.

Against St. Louis, 23—On home runs, 13; triples, 3; singles, 3; infield outs, 3; sacrifice flies, 1.

Against Boston, 22—On home runs, 16; singles, 3; triples, 1; doubles, 1; sacrifice flies, 1.

Against Cleveland, 21—On home runs, 15; triples, 3; singles, 2; doubles, 1.

PRINCE McKINNEY IN 2:10 BEATS THE WISE HOMBRES

Patrick Todd, Favorite, Did Not Like Heavy Going.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., Oct. 17.—Owing to heavy rain racing did not start until after 3 o'clock this afternoon.

In the 2:10 trot Frank Cares put one over on the wise men, when he won with Prince McKinney. Little Patrick Todd, favorite, did not like the heavy going, for she raced on the outside half of the track. He led to three-quarters, where Prince McKinney got him in the stretch. Baron Worthy flashed by and landed the place.

Prince McKinney and Comet fought it out next time and were even on the last turn, but the Prince beat her.

Dundee Lad, winner on Friday, repeated, showing that all sorts of tracks look alike to him. Victory was not hollow, as Iowa Knight set the pace, and made him hurry in the stretch. Sheriff Direct made a strong bid for the last heat, but Dundee Lad scooted by him when ready.

The unfinished 2:15 trot, in which Ruth Roland had a heat Saturday, was won by that mare through the mistake of Gen. T. in the second heat. General T. had the speed and won the final heat, the judges penalizing the driver of Ruth Roland for carrying wide.

Inter-City Boxing Meets Will Find London Represented Strongly

Breakers Ahead

Johnny Buff Constitutes Trouble In Store For the Flyweight Champion.

JIMMY Wilde has sustained few knockouts. Pete Herman, formerly and twice bantam champ, administered that concoction to the Fighting Atom early this year, and now Johnny Buff, holder of the American bantam and fly titles, who knocked Herman out, is after Jimmy's title.

JUST BETWEEN US

(BY SEE S. GEE)

The hockey war clouds always begin to loom up in London just about this time of year. They are as sure as autumn tints, but usually fade away like the leaves.

Sometimes the city is threatened with no hockey at all; sometimes with a plethora of teams. This year the latter situation is the case. Alerts and Manhattans have both announced junior teams for the season, and the latter are said to have even contemplated entering the intermediate arena as a sort of retaliatory measure for the Alerts carrying out their last year's intentions of directing both teams during the coming winter.

Just which club holds the best hand is beside the point; the point is that without any better ice conditions this year than for years past there is enough interest for a little controversy.

There certainly isn't room for four teams in London. But there is room for plenty of harmony in running two good teams, and this will be found when one of the clubs retire from the field.

Most of the fans will favor one club control of both teams. It does away with any possible private interest, and will assure what is best in the general hockey interest being done.

With Varsity tieing McGill in Montreal it only needs a victory of Queens there next Saturday to spill the rugby dope all over the lot.

* * *

Most of the other circuses have struck winter quarters. Wonder where George Maines winters?

* * *

Varsity and McGill backs are being roasted for not doing enough back field passing and thus saving danger from juggling. Western U backs seemed to have that down on Saturday, but they stumbled on it without the aid of high-priced coaches.

* * *

Babe Ruth must be awful hard of hearing. He hasn't heard the gavel in Judge Landis' court rapping for less noise and home runs in post-season games.

Morrissey, Grand Rapids owner, is off big leaguers as minor league pilots. He wants pilots who can teach youngsters and develop them. College-bred coaches, he believes, deliver more development in the season.

London fans will now realize why Buzz Wetzel is such a failure. He must have gone to the wrong night school.

Renew Relations With O. B. A. After Year.

AFTER a year's absence from the O. B. A. London will again be represented in the junior series by a team from the 12th Field Battery.

The matter has been under discussion for some time, and at a meeting Wednesday night the 12th Field Battery will make definite arrangements for the inclusion of their team.

A squad of sixteen of the city's best junior talent has already been mustered, and the appointment of a coach is the main business of the organization meeting.

A. T. Taylor, former "Y" director, and Bill Duffield are being mentioned for the post, and both will be asked to act in an advisory capacity if they find it impossible to accept the coaching duties.

INTER-CITY BOUTS ON CARDS FOR THIS WINTER

Classes Starting Now Will See Some Good Boxers Developed—Early Start Intended.

There is a possibility of some inter-city boxing this winter. Classes are going to start at the Y shortly, and also at the Barracks, under the instruction of Sergt. Tommy Wallace, who put the amateur game on the map here last year, tutoring the Army and Navy boxers.

The two shows put on last season demonstrated what can be done with the amateurs in London. The Army and Navy class was composed of raw novices at the beginning of last winter, and yet developed sufficiently to put on some creditable bouts.

Seen Again.

Many of these developed then will be found in action this winter, and if an early enough start is made inter-city tourneys in Western Ontario ought to be a desirable addition to the winter sport program.

A start was under consideration last year, but a number of circumstances cropped up which made any attempt to stage a preliminary tourney impossible.

Sarnia and Petrolea, Brantford, Kitchener, Guelph and Galt all staged inter-city tourneys last year, which met with encouraging success. A series of such tourneys would produce titles which would be distinctly worth while as objectives for amateur boxers.

LOOKS LIKE WILDE HAS REAL CONTENDER IN JOHNNY BUFF

Robert Edgren says: Johnny Buff, the little fighting streak from New Jersey, has done something that hasn't been accomplished by any other small man in the ring since Terry McGovern's time. He has captured, and he holds two championships.

Only one of these is a world's championship, the other being a championship of America.

As flyweight champion of America, Buff fought himself out of a job in his class. When there were no more good matches in sight he went after the champion of the class above, Peter Herman of the bantams, and whipped him in 15 rounds.

The decision was "unsatisfactory" to Herman's backers. But that doesn't alter the fact that the New York Boxing Commission judges decided that Buff beat Herman, and the title goes with the decision of the officials.

Buff the Boy.

This brings about a peculiar situation. Pete Herman, not many months ago, knocked out Jimmy Wilde, the great little British flyweight champion. Herman had many pounds advantage, as he came into the ring overweight, losing his forfeit. But he knocked out Wilde, and now Buff has whipped Herman. This makes it look as if at last a small man of Wilde's size has come along who can give the spidery little Englishman a fight without the aid of a big weight handicap.

Tex Rickard, within a few hours after Buff beat Herman, sent Wilde an offer for an international fight with Buff for the world's flyweight championship, the bout to be held in Madison Square Garden. Of course, it isn't likely that Wilde would be willing to come to America on a straight percentage agreement, as the present commission rules call for, and probably Rickard will have to give him a personal guarantee of some sort.

A Buff-Wilde fight would be the greatest drawing card ever seen in the light classes. The flyweights are becoming popular, thanks largely to Wilde and Buff.

Upsets the Dope.

Twice-Champion Johnny Buff is an oddity among champion. His case will give a lot of encouragement in these times, when it is supposed that youth is the one great element in success, and when boxing commissions are gravely determining "age limits," after which no boxer will be allowed to compete on the theory that his usefulness is over, and it's time to turn him out to pasture like a broken-down horse.

Buff is 32 years old.

He has three children, and his fad is living at home and raking the garden at his place in New Jersey. His hair is thin on top. He looks like a middle-aged man fighting a bunch of boys. But he is bristling with aggressiveness, chuck full of confidence, iron in endurance, fast as they make 'em, versatile and quick thinking, and has a wallop like a middleweight's.

He started at an age when boxers are usually all through and looking for a job. He has become famous only within a year.

Moral: You can't keep fame away from a fellow who has a convincing clout in either hand, and who wins decisively every time out.

Buff has knocked out a number of little fellows. His first jump into the real blaze of the limelight was when he knocked out Midget Smith, who, for a time, looked like another Kid Levigne, and who gave Jack Sharkey a couple of trimmings.

He won the flyweight championship of America when he whipped Frankie Mason last April. Among the many local boys he put down for the 10-second count in and near New York was Abe Attell Goldstein, who looked very good until he met Buff. Johnny finished Abe in three rounds. Buff has been giving away a lot of weight in some of his fights, but he seems to think like Bob Fitzsimmons, that the bigger they are the harder they fall.

Is Real Champion.

His fight with Herman proved that he is a real champion. Pete Herman is a brilliant performer among the bantams. He lost the title last year to Joe Lynch. In the same ring in which he lost it again to Buff, but he beat Lynch on a decision in a later engagement in Brooklyn. Herman knocked out Wilde in England shortly after losing to Lynch, showing that he could come back.

Returning to America he knocked out several good men. He is a fast, clever boxer, with a punch. But his speed, his showy boxing, his punch didn't do him any good when he fought the plunging, plugging Buff.

Johnny went after Herman as if Pete was just another victim. Herman didn't take the little fellow seriously for a couple of rounds, and by that time he was receiving the pasting of his life. When Herman made spurts, later in the fight, hoping to win a losing battle by slipping over a knockout, he found Buff slugging with him and getting the better of it.

Once he knocked Buff down, but Johnny bounced up without waiting to hear the referee count.

In several rounds Buff's hard hits had Herman wobbling. The fact that he outfought Herman, when Herman realized that he must force the fighting, shows that Buff has the real goods and can deliver them.

Either Man's Match.

The beauty of a bout between Buff and Wilde for the world's flyweight title would lie partly in the inability of anyone to pick the winner in advance. It wouldn't be a set-up for either man, and both of them have a trick of fighting to win every time up. There'd be no Wilson-Downey joke match here.

Buff will naturally be challenged by all the bantamweights in the country, and if he wants to forget the flyweight and take care of his world's championship instead of the lesser title he can fight every week.

Of the former champions who held two titles, George Dixon was one. Little Chocolate held the bantam championship and let it go when he became featherweight titleholder. Terry McGovern was bantam champion, and won the featherweight crown from Dixon. Abe Attell had two or three tries at the lightweight title, but couldn't get it. Kid Williams, bantam champion, was beaten by Kilbane.

REPORTS CONDITIONS NORMAL IN FAR NORTH

Edmonton, Oct. 17.—Law and order in the north country is on a high plane, and not in one instance has it been necessary to prosecute any person who has entered under the clearance certificate, states Major G. L. Jennings, superintendent of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who recently returned here after an inspection trip to all the police detachments in the far north. Major Jennings' tour occupied three months, during which he traveled more than 4,000 miles, and he visited as far north as Herschel Island. The residents of the great stretches of territory lying between Edmonton and the Arctic have the greatest respect for British justice and the orderly traditions of the British race, he said, and the general conditions could not be more satisfactory.

The major was present at the trial of the Slavey Indian Lebeaux, who has been sentenced to death on a charge of murder. The trial, with all the impressiveness of a court of British justice, was an eye-opener to the natives, Major Jennings says, and the Indians from now on will have a greater respect for British law than ever before.

Toys 1,900 years old were recently unearthed in the tomb of a little girl in Rome. In the child's hand was a coin of Tiberius—the ferryman's fee for crossing to the other side. A small doll and doll's silver candlestick also were found. The girl had dressed the dolls.

COLONELS WIN JR. WORLD'S SERIES

Ogden, Winner of Three For Orioles, Out of Form.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 17.—The post-season series between Louisville and Baltimore was brought to a close this afternoon when the American Association champions came out at the long end of a 11 to 5 contest, thus giving them the necessary fifth game to clinch the junior world's series. The International League representatives had won three games.

This afternoon's contest was not much of a battle, as Jack Ogden, who had won all of his previous three starts against the Colonels, was away off form, and was hit hard. He finally gave way to Frank in the sixth inning.

Roy Sanders pitched a good, steady game up to the eighth inning, but he was beyond danger then.

The official attendance this afternoon was 2,807, and the receipts were $3,426.57.

The score:

		R.	H.	E.
Louisville	030 035 000—	11	15	2
Baltimore	000 002 030—	5	6	1

Organize Y.W. Basket League

Wednesday Meeting Billed To Organize Circuit.

An organization meeting of the Y. W. C. A.-Interscholastic Ladies' Basketball League will be held Wednesday afternoon at 5:15 at the Y. W. C. A.

The league expects to get going as soon as possible, and will be much the same as last year, when it was run as two sections—business and interscholastic. The business section expects more entries this year than last.

Thistles' Bid.

Thistles won the championship of the league, but lost out in their bid for city honors to Shamrocks, Western Ontario champions, after two closely-fought battles.

The league wants to get an earlier start this year, and a schedule will be drawn up as soon as it is possible to get all the teams lined up.

RUTH'S BOSS IS BEHIND LANDIS

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Regret that some Yankee players had violated the rule prohibiting world's series contestants from appearing in post-season exhibition games, was expressed in a statement issued tonight by Colonel Jacob Ruppert and Colonel Huston of the New York Americans.

Asserting that the rule had been violated so defiantly that Baseball Commissioner Landis had no alternative but to meet the situation firmly, the statement continues:

"This rule appears to be unjust in many respects, but as long as it exists it should be obeyed. The players made the mistake in not petitioning for a modification of the rule."

The Five-Pinners are limbering up. All the leagues are going except the Hydro and Civil Service.

The Alert Club opened the season last Wednesday in the Forest City circuit with a total of 3,084, a new record for the city. The counts were 1,089, 1,009 and 988. S. Carter was the high man with 778.

The Manhattan Five-Pinners started their season last Monday with six teams and a large following. Cubs were the only ones to register three straight.

D. S. C. R. League have five teams this season. Large scores were the rule on their opener last week.

George White & Sons' League is a four-team circuit this year and are away to a flying start.

The Ten-Pinners.

Tecumsehs turned in the high game of the present season Thursday night, when they rang up 1,021. Jake Fox was high man with a single 245, and a total of 618; Mart Smith was next with 232 and 616. Bill Hunter of the Albas was in mid-season form with 601.

The old reliable Jake McGowan started out right with a flat average of 200.

Frank Wilson claims he needs a few more workouts to get into shape, but his total of 666 Tuesday night and 643 Friday night says he's a pessimist.

The Printers League gets away Wednesday afternoon with four teams. They'll start pie-ing the pins at 2 o'clock.

ATTACKS ARE MADE ON CITY'S ENGINEER

you all know that if a trust company spent the money of an estate in such a reckless manner and showed so much inefficiency, so much waste, and got no better results for the estate than this department does for the taxpayers, then you all know what would become of the trust company. The Government would step in and close it up.

Many Support Him.

"And I trust that you will look upon this investigation the same as you would if it were connected with your own private business, and with the same spirit and intentions, regardless as to whose feelings you might injure or upon whose feet you might trample.

"Since my charges were first made I have been called upon by a great many citizens, I can safely say hundreds of them, and some of them very heavy taxpayers, and all of them reliable citizens, claiming that my charges are just, and that from their personal observations that there is real reason for an investigation of the strongest kind.

"I also want to draw your attention to a few real facts that have happened since my charges have been made that prove this one fact that all worth-while work or large contracts should have tenders called for, and only in that way will we know that we are getting competitive prices on our work.

Money Was Saved.

"I refer to the contract let for Victoria school. The estimates handed out by the school board's architect called for $185,000. The contract was let on a tender for $165,000, a saving of $20,000. The utilities commission let a contract by tender on the new sub-station for $30,000, saving $5,000 on their estimate by day labor. I ask the question: Is it worth while calling for tenders? You must agree that it is, and that is also true of the engineer's department. Money can be saved in this way.

"One of the reasons that a contractor can outbid the department is that he has more efficiency and less loss of time in connection with his business, and he specializes in certain classes of work, and can and does demand a good day's work for a good day's pay, and as soon as someone on his pay roll does not come up to the standard he is crossed off the pay roll, and very often this class of men, after having gone the rounds of all the contractors without results, they land on a corporation job. And all you have to do is take a day off and go over the ground and look at the work being done, and I am certain that you could recommend the discharge of a large number of this class of men on the department's pay roll. This does not apply to all the men; and let me make this very clear, that it is not my intention to make this charge against the men, as there are only a limited number of loafers on the job.

"The rest are good workers, but they are dissatisfied, as they only get the same money that is paid the loafers, and from this cause you have inefficiency in the department. Labor is plentiful today, and good labor at that. Bums and loafers need not be employed.

Paid Good Salary.

"The head of the engineer's department is paid a good salary, and for this he should give the taxpayers a better run for their money than is given, and if he cannot do it get someone that will, and can, even if more money must be paid. To me it looks as if the engineer has too much power in swaying the board of works. I am led to believe, by the procedure bylaws, if they are in order, and I believe they are.

"Recently a request was made to call for tenders on the garbage question. He strongly opposed this. Why? Is this department run as it should be, economically, and in order as far as efficiency is concerned? If this is his claim, then why not invite competitive prices to prove it to the taxpayers. As it stands now, very few citizens will believe that it is run as it should be, or even could be. If, on the other hand, it is not run properly and not producing the best results, for the money spent, then I believe tenders should be called for to prove the other side of the story, and I am certain that it can be improved, as I have letters from a number of cities of our size that get better results at less cost.

Big Man Needed.

"The engineer of a growing city like London needs to be a big man, in more ways than one, and I claim that the present engineer does not measure up to this standard, as is required, and I am going to point out to you some reasons for this statement.

"Why is it necessary to bring in consulting engineers, when we are supposed to have a first-class engineer on our payroll? A first-class engineer, as I see it, should be able to handle all the engineering problems of a city of this size without bringing in outside men at a big expense to the citizens. There is no getting away from this fact. And, on the other hand, if he is not a first-class engineer, as the term is understood, then let us get one that does measure up to that standard.

"I have been advised that the engineer at times not only ignores complaints that come to him of a just nature, but has on more than one occasion used insulting language to reliable, responsible taxpayers of this city, and I attach to this letter a few affidavits made to this effect. I ask the question, What would become of him if he used this kind of language towards the stockholder of a private concern that you or anyone else might be interested in, if the stockholder made a just complaint to him, as a paid servant? Would you stand for this? Not much.

Hits at Chairman.

"When these charges were first made the chairman of the works department stated that I should have come to his committee to lay my charges, and not give it to the press. That is as far as it would have gone. It would have been filed, as I find since that there is no way to get any information from them in connection with these charges that would assist in giving the taxpayer a run for his money. I am attaching hereto a letter received from the works department in reply to my letter asking for some information that would be of value to the case. I was under the impression when I asked for this information that they could not furnish it to me, as they have no record of at least a part of it, and now I know that is the case. Would you call this efficiency? A department that spends about a million and a quarter dollars has no ways and means to supply the information asked for. This is a serious condition. It leaves many openings for waste and leaks that should not exist in a department of this kind, and prevents the remedy from being applied.

"Recently the engineer sent out requests for tenders on paving (much against his wish), but the request of a few members of this council insisted upon it. However, the conditions that he imposed in the request for the tenders were such no sane man would tender on, and if the engineer were in business for himself he also would refuse to tender under the conditions he put forth in the contract. And the result was that we got no one to tender and as long as we have this type of an engineer in the city works department, just so long will we be denied the competitive prices that other cities are enjoying, as no contractor will tender on any such fool contracts as are sent out from this department. And I think it is time that the works department was placed in the hands of a really big man. This is an important department and for the citizens to get a good run for their money it requires a man of larger experience than the present engineer, as I see it, and I am satisfied that I voice the sentiment of thousands of citizens. It is much better to pay the price than the penalty—and we are paying the penalty.

Charges in Details.

"The following are my charges of inefficiency, waste of time and money:

"York street bridge—This was replanked a short time ago at a big cost, when prices of lumber and labor was high, the reason for this work having been done was on account of the old planks having worn and rotted out.

"The new planks were laid so tight, and no provisions made for a slight fall to permit the water to run off, with the results that the west end of the bridge is about as bad as it was before it was replanked, and please note that it is only the west end, so that the engineer cannot blame it on to the material. He admits that water lays there after rainfalls, but claims that it does no damage. Will any sane man believe that water laying on planks will not rot them, if so, go and look at the bridge now and see how it has affected the planks? He claims that all it does is splash the water to the sides. Isn't this enough to show that this is an inefficient job? I have personally seen the water splash on the sides when cars drive over, and damage citizens' clothes, have seen the water splash over the top of the hand-rail. Hundreds of citizens living in South London that have to use this bridge, will tell you that this is a fact, and I think that any citizen having clothes damaged in this way are entitled to collect damages for same.

"Would you call this a first-class job? Would you pay your own money out for a job of this kind? Then why pay teh citizens' money for botch jobs like this?

"York street bridge approach, west end: Here is a piece of work that has cost the city hundreds of dollars, and I daresay thousands, if there was any way of arriving at the real costs in the engineer's department. For some years past, ever since Wortley road was paved, the little strip between the bridge and Wortley road proper has been an eyesore to citizens and a bill of expense. I believe that I am safe when I state that hundreds of loads of gravel, crushed stone and marbles were placed on this spot, and the first dozen cars that drove over it spread all to the wind, and hit the bill boards there, all a useless expense. Why was this strip not paved in the firstp lace, as it is now? After years of waste of money and time it was finally paved, and I daresay that the pavement did not cost one-half as much as the amount that was wasted on it for years past. Here is a case where the engineer's recommendation for pavement either was not brought in, or if it was the board did not authorize it; or on the other hand, if it was authorized he neglected to carry out the orders, until a lot of money was wasted on it. At any rate, it was a waste of time and money.

"Ridout Street Bridge.—Here is a case of real inefficiency. On Sept. 16, 1919, the engineer brought in a report that this bridge was not safe for loads of more than four tons, but did not recommend what to do with it. Later he advised that it would be necessary to build a new bridge, which would cost $140,000 (and by the time it was paid for would have cost the taxpayers $300,000, including the interest and sinking fund). Gentlemen, there are, of course, two sides to this. One is that he obtained this information from calling in outside advice (consulting engineers). If this is the case, I say, why should a first-class engineer call for advice from outside for a regular job of this kind? If he did not get advice from outside, then I claim that it showed inefficiency on his part as an engineer, in trying to saddle the taxpayers with an unnecessary expense of this kind. This has been proven by the present state of the bridge, with some repairs done on it at a very small cost. Private citizens had to take this matter up and bring pressure to bear, showing that a new bridge was not necessary as the engineer insisted it was. And this has been shown by the results. In your private business would you allow money to be spent in this manner?

"Quebec Street Pavement.—I have seen a dozen men on this job all standing around waiting for material to arrive. I have seen that same number of men waiting for wagons to arrive to haul away the dirt, and then when one wagon would arrive I have seen that many men try and fill the wagon. Can you imagine twelve men trying to load one wagon. And these men had to wait sometimes as long as 15 to 20 minutes at a time, then in a few minutes the wagon would be filled, then another wait of the same time, and then six or seven wagons would come at once and, of course, twelve men were not enough to fill all these wagons, so most of the wagons had to wait from 15 to 30 minutes at a time at $1.10 per hour. Hundreds of dollars were wasted here on this job for want of efficiency and system. There is no wonder that the actual cost exceeds the estimate by a large sum. Please note the petition attached re this pavement. These people are all sane and reliable; and gentlemen you cannot ignore this fact, that it is time for more efficiency and the taxpayer is entitled to get a better run for his money.

"Erie Avenue Pavement—Some time ago when the Erie avenue pavement was layed I drew the engineer's attention to the fact that there was a big depression in it at my driveway, and that the water laid there three to four inches deep before it would run into the catch basin at the end of the street, and as a result it has to remain there until it dries away or we sweep it away. He replied by saying, 'Well, you wanted a cheap pavement and you got it.'

"Dundas Street Sewer.—Here is a case that is almost ridiculous, and is no reflection on the man employed or his misfortune to have only one arm, but is a reflection on the man responsible for his employment, and there should have been better judgment used in this, aside of the question of inefficiency. I refer you to photo No. 1, showing a one-armed man on a sewer job, and at times this man was put at a job shoveling. Is this efficiency? Would you permit this in your private business? Would anyone with common sense allow this? where it isn't necessary

"Wellington street pavement repairs—Some time ago a gang of 4 or 5 men were patching up holes between Queen's avenue and King street. They patched up every hole, were there several days. It cost some money to put them on the job; it cost money to do the job, and it cost money to take them off the job. Then a week or ten days later, along comes another gang to patch the holes that the first gang left. This I saw with my own eyes, and there was no reason why the first gang did not finish the whole job. Please look up the engineer's time sheet showing day and date when this work was done. It will tell you; that is, if there is such a sheet in existence, and if there isn't there ought to be. Is this waste of time and money?

"Richmond street pavement repairs—On May 17 a gang of seven men were sitting on the curb from 1 p.m. to 1:50 p.m., waiting for material to arrive. Why wasn't the material there, or, on the other hand, why were the men there? This took place near Kent street, and I can furnish an affidavit from a reliable taxpayer whose word would be beyond doubt. Would a contractor permit this?

"Catch Basin, Wharncliffe Road South—I have it from reliable men and personal observation that it took three men and a foreman four days to clean out catch basin on the corner of Wharncliffe road and Pipe Line road. One man could have done it in one day. Please look up the time sheets on this job. It took place in March or early in April. Some loafing.

"Gravel and Sand.—The city pays for thousands of dollars worth of gravel and sand yearly, and I have seen personally hundreds of loads unloaded and not in one instance has there been anyone on the job to check the load or even the size of the load (the present standard calls for one-third of a cord; the standard wagon box to hold this is 3 feet wide, 9 feet long and 18 inches deep). I have counted load after load on Pipe Line road that had chains drawn so tight around the wagon boxes that there would be at least ten per cent shortage in each wagon, and that is a very low estimate for shortage, as in many cases the wagons were far from full.

Waterloo Street Pavement, Cheapside To Victoria.

"This could have been reduced in price considerable, had there not been so much waiting for material to arrive on the job. Dozens of men were idle for hours waiting for material. This is caused by poor management in not having it there, or on the other hand in having the men there ahead of it.

"The engineer admitted that it was an unnecessary expense to grade the road too low, as has been done, but stated to owners on the street that they would have to pay for it (can furnish affidavit to this effect). Is this efficiency, or service? And besides, all the boulevards were left in a most disgraceful condition after this street was paved, the same as all others are left in the city wherever the engineer paves a street. All left for the taxpayer to clean up. In other words, the big job is left for the owner to do. Would a contractor be permitted to leave a job in this condition? Would you allow it on a job of your own? Then, why should the city permit it?

"Emery Street.—This street had a shoveful of broken stone put here and there in a sort of half hazard manner, which made it worse than nothing, and was put in a worse condition than before it was touched, (this is claimed by Ald. Brighton), and is only a sample of work done all over the city. It seems that it is only a case of supplying work for the men. No consideration is given to the results that can be obtained for the money spent. Hundreds of street holes are filled with a shovelful of costly gravel, and remains there just long enough for the first car to come along and throw it out. Is this efficiency? Are we getting a run for our money? Would a first-class engineer permit this kind of work to go on year after year?

"Maitland street pavement, between St. James and Cheapside.—Here is a case where evidently some mistake was made as to the proper grade; considerable dirt had to be returned in order to bring it up to the proper height.

"On this job I had a great many phone calls and personal visits of residents from this street as to the amount of loafing that was going on from time to time, except when the engineer came on the job. This shows that the foreman in charge did not have control of the situation. This is vouched for by good, reliable people that live on the street and watched the work going on. Ald. W. A. Wilson also received a number of complaints on this work.

"Richmond street pavement repairs, opposite Hyman's.—June 3, 1921, gang of men there from starting time, and up to 9 a.m. there was not ten minutes' work done. Where was the foreman? Why was this permitted? Is there a record kept of how long a gang of men should be allowed on a certain size job of this kind?

"Queen's avenue pavement, between Ontario and Quebec.—On this job there was so much gravel hauled that it took one team and man two days to haul the surplus away. Where is the economy here?

"Quebec street sewer, between Queen's avenue and Dufferin.—Here is a case where the foreman permitted, or at least did notp revent, two men from letting two boys aged 9 years take the shovels from the men and fill in the trench each day for many days from 12:30 noon to 1:30, when the school bell would ring, and the boys had to go to school. While the boys were filling in the trench the men sat by and looked on, when they should have been at work at 1 o'clock, and it is stated that the boys at that filled in more during that hour every day than the men did at any other hour. Should this kind of work be permitted in the public works department?

"McClary avenue—Recently the city road scraper had apparently no place to go, and no orders, so they just went up and down this street a number of times, and as it did not need scraping they did not let the scraper touch the ground, only killing time, and some reliable citizens of this street have asked me why they run a scraper on the street without it touching the ground? Isn't this a maste of time and money? Is there a record in the department as to when and where this scraper is at all times, and what it is doing? I doubt it.

"Gravel—On June 7 the drivers of four loads of gravel were stopped by a taxpayer and questioned as to size of load they were drawing, and found that both sideboards of the wagon were drawn in 7 inches. The assistant engineer's attention was drawn to this, and his answer was that the wagon boxes were stamped correct.

"On Dufferin Avenue.—Recently five or six men had to loaf from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., waiting for material to arrive. The engineer was informed of this on the very day and nothing was done. The men on the job were very impudent to the informant when he asked a question in the interest of the city. (And his word cannot be doubted. He is a reliable citizen.)

"Summit Avenue Sewer.—Recently a gang of men were put to work after the flood to haul loads of dirt up the Oxford street hill to fill in the sinkage on this sewer caused by the heavy rain. This gang and a team were there at least two or three days, and on account of the heat could only draw half loads with team. This is a case where there was enough dirt left on the street and ditch fully eight inches above the street grade, and all that was necessary was one man and a scraper for four hours and it would have been filled in. I will guarantee that I will furnish a 15-year-old boy with a team to fill this size of a sinkage in four hours. It cost the city 25 times this through inefficiency.

"Piccadilly street—This is the latest bungle of a job, and I would like to know what the engineer would have done with this kind of a job had it been delivered to him by a contractor? The taxpayers of that street are up in arms, and justly so. When this street was being prepared for the pavement the dirt was hauled many blocks away, when the taxpayers on the street made a request to the engineer to have a public lane at the north side filled in, which is in such a condition that no one can drive through. This request was refused. Why? Many dollars could have been saved on this job if this would have been done. But most likely the lane will be filled up at some later date with earth drawn from some other long distance, as this is about the way that the work is being done at present.

"There are scores of jobs on which the engineer has tendered or put in an estimate and then exceeded them by thousands of dollars, and every one of these estimates could have been lowered by contract work, and according to the procedure law tenders should have been called for on every one of these jobs. Would a contractor have been allowed these extra thousands of dollars in excess of his tender?

"I regret that the conditions are such in this department that it is next to impossible to get all the information required to make these charges even longer, but there is no doubt in your minds that inefficiency exists on a large scale in this department, and it should have been the duty of the engineer to assist me in getting all the information, and in fact should have volunteered to give me this information, and not call me into his office to see if there is not some way we could get together.

"The engineer tenders on the various jobs, and his tenders are a farce in every sense of the word. He comes about as close to his estimates as a blind man would come to hitting a target's bulls-eye. First of all, the procedure bylaw is broken by the works department in not calling for tenders for all work exceeding $200. It says tenders, and not estimates.

"And the estimated costs of his work program is nothing but misleading to the public. To prove this I have here a partial list of his recent work, his estimates and his actual cost, and want to ask this question—What would you do if these jobs had all been let to contractors on a definite cost? Would you stand for him increasing his tender in this manner?

"I claim that any engineer that cannot come closer in cost to his estimates is not an engineer at all, and is not the proper man for the city of London. Here is proof of lack of efficiency. And I claim that all of this work could, and should have been done within the estimates, as most of it was estimated when prices were at the peak and the work done when prices had fallen considerable. But on account of the amount of loafing, stalling and bumming on the jobs, caused by lack of proper supervision, in each of these cases the estimate was exceeded.

RECEPTION TO LORD BYNG BY PREMIER OF QUEBEC

Brilliant Function Given in Legislative Buildings.

Quebec, Oct. 18.—The Quebec Legislative Buildings were the scene of a brilliant function here last night when Their Excellencies Lord and Lady Byng of Vimy were tendered a reception by Premier Taschereau and the members of the executive council.

Attending the event were about one thousand prominent citizens. The corridors of the building, as well as the legislative council chamber, were elaborately decorated with flags and palms.

Their excellencies were greeted at the entrance to the buildings by Premier Taschereau and the ministers, and escorted to the council chamber, where the S. R. C. G. A. Band plaayed the National Anthem as they entered.

The guests were then presented to Governor-General and Lady Byng. A short musical entertainment followed. Refreshments were later served in the parliament cafe.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Oct. 18.—Wall Street, 10:30 a.m.—The professional element in the stock market seemed to take a more hopeful view of the railroad labor situation today. This was indicated by the light dealings and narrow price changes at the opening of the session. Some of the rails were lower, notably Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific seven per cent preferred and Delaware and Hudson. Among equipments, General Electric reacted moderately. The only feature among oils was a recovery of one point in Royal Dutch.] American Sugar was the only weak specialty, falling 1½ points to 50⅜, its lowest quotation in a number of years.

Expects Conference To Be Resumed On Thursday

London, Oct. 18.—The conference between Sinn Fein leaders and representatives of the British Government will, it is expected in Sinn Fein quarters, be resumed Thursday. The interruption of the sessions after yesterday's meeting was due solely to the engagements of Mr. Lloyd George in connection with the opening of Parliament.

Meanwhile the committees of the conference, composed of the other members, will hold sessions for the advancement of the conference's work.

Several Irish experts have been summoned to London to advise the Sinn Fein delegates and draw up reports for the consideration of the conference. Among the most notable of these is Lionel Smith-Gordon, a leading authority on rural reconstruction.

Mr. Smith-Gordon was formerly chief assistant to Sir Horace Plunkett in the agricultural co-operative movement. He left this movement to found, in conjunction with Erskine Childers and Robert Barton, the National Land Bank for the employment of Irish money in Ireland. His wife is a daughter of United States Senator Fletcher of Florida. The bank which he helped found was frequently raided by the crown forces in the days before the truce.

Lake Freight Traffic Affected But Little

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Great Lakes traffic will not be materially affected by the threatened rail strike, in so far as shipments available at ports are concerned, vessel agents said here today. The navigating season on the lakes does not close until Nov. 30, with an extension to Dec. 12 possible at the option of the vessel owners. After Dec. 12 no vessels are operated, as insurance is not available.

Grain concentrated here and at Lake Michigan and Superior ports for movement down the lakes will be handled without interruption. There is practically no iron ore being handled because of the shut-down of the steel industry. The only bulk freight traffic which will be seriously curtailed is that of coal from Lake Erie to points up the lakes. Continued movement of coal will depend on the ability of the railroads to make deliveries at lake ports.

Package freight and passenger traffic out of the port of Chicago is already on a restricted basis, the majority of the ships withdrawing for the winter immediately after Labor Day.

LANDIS INTIMATES THAT RUTH MAY BE SUSPENDED

Baseball Commissioner's Decision Expected in Few Days.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—A decision in the Babe Ruth post-season case by Judge K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, is expected within a few days, and the general impression prevailing here today was that Ruth will be let off with a suspension long enough to keep him out of a few of next season's games without pay.

"What goes up must come down," said Judge Landis. "I notified Ruth two weeks ago that the rules prohibited this sort of thing."

New York dispatches received here indicated that Ruth would receive no support from the Yankee club owners in this controversy with the judge.

The judge's statement may be embellished with some of the repartee which have made his court cases notable. It was indicated in his remark that his forthcoming statement would show "what kind of a gentleman Ruth was."

EAT HEARTILY WITHOUT DREAD

Eat Anything You Like and Don't Worry—Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Relieve Sour Stomach, Belching, Gas and Acid Conditions Due to Indigestion.

Eat After Meals—They Taste Good. Simply Chew a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tab.

No matter what you eat or drink, even though it be just a glass of sweet milk, the stomach may rebel and sour almost immediately. In such cases one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets furnish the alkaline effect to offset the acid condition. Quite often the stomach may be overcrowded with partially digested food. A cold bottle of beverage at such times may add to the difficulty and there is gassiness, a bilious taste, and other distresses due to indigestion. Travelers may save themselves much of the discomfort of wayside eating by having a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets with them, as they can be had in almost any drug store throughout the United States and Canada.

Just buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—then your material will come out right, because Diamond Dyes are guaranteed not to streak, spot, fade, or run. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods.

For Thin Waists and Sleeveless Gowns

(Toilet Tips.)

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about two minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

West Nissouri Pays Tribute To Memory of Heroic Sons

Scene At Kintore During Unveiling of Soldiers' Monument One of Great Impressiveness.

ST. MARYS, Oct. 17.—Kintore was today the scene of an unique and memorable affair, when the splendid memorial erected by the Township of East Nissouri at a cost of $1,200 to the sacred memory of the eighteen men from the district who made the supreme sacrifice was unveiled.

The monument is surmounted by a statue of Italian marble, shipped direct from Italy.

Shortly after 2 o'clock a parade headed by the St. Marys Kiltie Band and followed by the returned men and school children was formed and marched from the village to the cemetery, where the lesson, First Corinthians xv. verses 39 to 58, was read by Rev. Dr. McDonald of Kintore, following which the band played "Rock of Ages."

Rev. G. Thompson of West Nissouri in a few fitting words asked that God's approval might be with those who had set aside this memorial to the glory of His name and to the memory of these His servants, after which Rev. Butt of Kintore pronounced dedicatory prayer and the flag was removed by two returned men. Rev. Dr. McDonald, pastor of Kintore Presbyterian Church, then dedicated the memorial to the glory of God and in loving memory of those whose names appear on the memorial, the Last Post being sounded by a member of the band.

After a few selections by the band, Dr. McDonald assured those present that the trustees of the cemetery would keep the memorial and lot in good repair without remuneration. The lot, he said, has been freely given to the township and the late John Calder, M.P.P., who was born and lived all his lifetime in the township, had a short time before God called him home given a generous donation to enable the trustees to make this generous offer. Several of the councillors spoke briefly.

A Duty to Perform

Col. Graham, one of the principal speakers, then addressed the crowd. I wish, said the speaker, that I could explain everything in regard to that ghastly struggle so that you people might appreciate even better than you do the hell your boys went through.

After briefly reviewing the history of the war, Col. Graham said, "We have a responsibility which we owe those boys, and it is up to us to carry on to the best of our ability and live up to the ideals for which our boys fought."

In Sacred Memory.

Col. Beattie, C.M.G., of London, paid tribute to the township council. I am glad, said he, that you did not erect a building or something of that nature, but a stone that would last forever in sacred memory of your gallant sons. He recalled the heroism of the Canadians on the battlefield and declared "Men of such breed as those boys cannot be beaten by any Hun that ever drew the breath of life."

The names on the memorial are: Earl Abbott, Arthur Allan, Andrew Brookfield, Edwin Greenwood, Ernest Harfield, Horace Huntley, James Karn, Byron Logan, John Madden, Harvey Mason, Frank Marchant, John Morrison, Herbert McLelland, Wilfred Robinson, Edward Turner, Robert Read, Arthur Vinnicombe and Hugh Whetstone.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 17.—John Morrison, a well-known young man, made a desperate attempt to take his own life late Sunday night. The young man had retired, and shortly after his parents, hearing a noise from his room, investigated, and found the victim lying with a gaping wound across his throat. Medical attendance was called and the wound closed. The victim is very weak from loss of blood, and the doctor holds out little hope of his recovery. Morrison had been acting queerly of late, and his relatives had been instructed by his physician to watch him closely.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Tells How To Darken Gray Hair With a Home-Made Mixture.

Joicey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Orlex Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

ST. THOMAS LABORITES MUCH DISSATISFIED

Urge John Lane To Run as Independent Candidate.

[Exclusive Staff Special.]

ST. THOMAS, Oct. 17.—That the Labor element of St. Thomas is not entirely in accord with the result of the nomination on Saturday evening last in the west riding of Elgin is now quite apparent.

Frankly disappointed that John Lane did not receive the nomination, many of his friends are urging him to stand as an independent Labor candidate. Mr. Lane, who is a machinist at the M. C. R. shops here, admitted to The Advertiser Monday evening that he was undecided as to whether he would accede to the wishes of his friends or not.

"I do not really know," he replied when questioned. "I am not prepared to make a statement tonight."

SECOND WIN QUALIFIES BLUE NOSE FOR FINALS

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 17.—Sweeping across the finish line at twelve knots, the Lunenburg schooner Blue Nose, Captain Angus Walters, today duplicated her win of Saturday in the Nova Scotia fishermen's elimination series, annexed the trophy donated by the Halifax Herald, and established her claim to the honor of racing the Gloucesterman Elsie, Captain Marty Walsh, for the international trophy, won by the Esperanto last year.

Blue Nose finished three miles ahead of Delewana, last year's winner of the Nova Scotia trophy, in record time, having completed the forty miles' course in four hours, thirty minutes and thirty-three seconds.

AMERICA BOWS KNEE AT SHRINE OF BRITISH HERO

Gen. Pershing Bestows Nation's Greatest Gift On Tomb of "Unknown Warrior."

TRIBUTE PAID IN ABBEY

Simple But Impressive Ceremony Witnessed by Throngs in London.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The most sacred reward for valor within the power of the United States to confer was bestowed today on the tomb of Great Britain's "Unknown Warrior," whose resting place is in the nave of the historic Westminster Abbey.

In the presence of a representative of King George, the prime minister, diplomats and others of note representing France, Japan and other governments, the United States ambassador and an Anglo-American assemblage, General John J. Pershing placed the Congressional Medal of Honor upon the wreath-covered stone with strikingly-impressive ceremonies.

The scene within the ancient walls of the abbey was perhaps the most significant in England as an indication of friendship and union between Britain and the United States that has occurred since the historic victory, March 3, 1919, when General Pershing headed his battalion in a great ceremonial function.

The king was represented today by the Duke of Connaught. Others present included Mr. Lloyd George, Winston Churchill, Lord Lee of Fareham and representatives of various government departments, the army, the navy and other branches of the military service.

Throngs Fill Abbey.

An hour before General Parshing's arrival, people began to take places within the abbey and long before his arrival transepts and nave were well filled.

Soon after 11:30 U. S. Ambassador Harvey, General Pershing and their party entered the abbey by the north transept facing Parliament Square.

General Pershing and Ambassador Harvey walked side by side, followed by Vice-Admirals Niblack and Twining, Mr. Lloyd George following them between the ministers of war and the navy. Dean Ryle conducted the party to the barrier surrounding the tomb, over which a few seconds after Ambassador Harvey paid tribute to the thousands of Britain's unknown dead symbolized in the grave before him. At the conclusion of his tribute, he designated General Pershing to bestow the medal.

The general then stepped forward and addressed the assembly. Upon concluding his remarks he took a few steps toward the centre of the tomb and placed the medal upon a cluster of brown leaves. He then stood for several seconds in silent tribute.

Afterward Dean Ryle and Premier Lloyd George addressed the assembly. Special services followed and then to the accompaniment of the Scots Guard Band the whole congregation joined in singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." The dean announced the blessing and immediately afterward the sepulchral silence of the abbey was broken by the notes of "The Last Post." Then there was a roll on the drums, and the band broke into the national anthem.

Proceeds to Cenotaph.

After the services General Pershing drove away with the Duke of Connaught. General Pershing then proceeded to the cenotaph, Britain's monument to her soldier dead, where he halted and was received by Sir Henry Wilson and General Sir George MacDonogh. Here he placed a wreath of laurels and palms, tied with ribbon of United States colors. Attached to the wreath was a cord on which was written:

"Laid by General Pershing with loving sympathy and in glorious memory of his British comrades who fell during the great war."

More spectacular, if less impressive, was the procession of the United States officials from the embassy to the British Empire's Valhalla, which preceded the ceremonies in the abbey itself. The applause of thousands resounded through the historic Whitehall district when the imposing figure of General Pershing alighted from a royal carriage, passed across Parliament Square between battalions of United States and British troops, and on into the abbey. Mr. Harvey accompanied General Pershing in the open royal carriage sent from Buckingham Palace by order of the king.

DRURY PLEDGES AID TO RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT

TORONTO, Oct. 17.—Before leaving the parliament buildings today for the U.F.O. meting at Brampton, Premier Drury stated that the Provincial Government was prepared to do everything possible, within reason, to assist in alleviating the effects of unemployment in the province.

"I, personally, do not approve of the 'dole' system," stated the premier. "However, where we think that municipalities are actually trying to do something and are not imposing upon us we will assist them in every way."

From this it may be inferred that the local Government will co-operate with federal and municipal authorities in carrying on such public work projects as may reasonably be proceeded with, on the basis of an equitable sharing of the disbursements entailed.

SERBS IN FRESH ATTACK TAKE 3 ALBANIAN TOWNS

ROME, Oct. 17.—The Serbs have again attacked the Albanians, according to an Aviona dispatch received here, capturing the towns of Bunin, Giakova and Uravezerit, along the Drina River. The Serbs have massed strong units toward Boyana. The war fever is high in Tirana, where Nationalist demonstrations are held daily against the Government.

MAITLAND STREET CHURCH CALLS TORONTO PASTOR

Rev. Mr. Sowerby at one time was the pastor of the Talbot Street Baptist Church in London. He is well known throughout the city.

"Liberal Policy Broader" Than Any Group Ideal, Declares King

ST. STEPHEN, N. B., Oct. 17.—Declaring that the Liberal party was broader than any group, class, race, creed or section, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King expressed it as his desire that Liberal candidates should be entered in all contests from coast to coast, in a speech here tonight.

"With but an exception or two, for reasons which will be wholly apparent, I hope to see a Liberal candidate in the field in every constituency from Halifax to Vancouver," said Mr. King. "Not that the Liberal party is antagonistic to any group, but solely because the Liberal policy is broader than that of any group.

"If liberal and progressive policies are to be made to prevail in matters of government it can only be by co-operation between men and women of all classes who feel and think alike on questions of government.

"A party that in origin, in aim and in following is broader than class or race, or creed or section can alone meet this requirement, so essential to victory.

"The farmers of Canada, irrespective of past affiliations, are already beginning to see very clearly that a great deal more can be done to attain the ideal they cherish by co-operation with the other forces of progress who form the Liberal party than by becoming identified with an organization with class aims and ambitions. Indeed, it was a mistake to speak of a farmers' party as if one existed, embracing the farmers of the country as a whole

"The so-called farmers' party embraces only those of the farmer members who believe in political separation from other groups and classes in the country. We are seeking unity of all classes in the government; we need that spirit of unity to bring Canada back to true democracy.

"Increasing numbers of farmers and labor men are supporting Liberal candidates in the different constituencies, because they realize, as Dr. Michael Clark and Mr. James Murdock have pointed out, that victory can only be won for the things that are held in common through co-operation with other groups and classes enough for all the people of this Dominion."

Ford Officer Worsts Opponent In Hour's Battle in Motorboat

WINDSOR, Oct. 17.—Elmer Dorrington, Detroit, suspected rum-runner, who escaped from a cell block at Ford police headquarters a month ago, was arrested early this morning by George "Rube" Deneau, assistant chief of police at Riverside, after an hour's battle in a motor boat which Dorrington was using, police state, to smuggle liquor to Detroit.

Recognizing Dorrington's boat in the moonlight, although it was camouflaged in a manner that would have done credit to the inventor of the wartime system of disguise, Deneau gave chase in the fast police boat, overhauling the runner just before the American waters were reached.

Covering Dorrington with a gun, the assistant chief ordered him to heave to, which order was obeyed. Leaping aboard the rum-runner's launch, however, cost the officer his gun, which slipped from his hand as the boat lurched.

Attacked by Dorrington, who first used his fists and then a belaying pin, Deneau was bleeding from a half-dozen wounds on his head when he landed his prisoner at the dock near Ford police station.

LION'S TEETH REQUIRE PROFESSIONAL CARE

King of Forest Has Two Pulled and Three Filled.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Away back in the jungle they must have heard the roars that reverberated in Prospect Park when Dr. F. Gillespie dragged forth two teeth from Capt. Jack's shaggy head and filled three others.

When Capt. Jack Bonavita, famous animal trainer, showed his acts, one of his star numbers was the performance of his big lion, Capt. Jack. Bonavita was killed by a bear a few years ago. His will left the lion to the Prospect Park menagerie, where it has been gazed upon by countless thousands.

For ten days the animal had been ailing, and Dr. Gillespie discovered finally that its molars required attention. He arranged with Park Commissioner John Harman and Head Keeper John O'Brien for the operation just performed.

The lion's head was chained to a specially constructed cage before which stood a table piled with cotton, dental instruments, filling, novocain, etc. A rope was attached to each leg and two men, outside the cage, made sure that Capt. Jack wouldn't get away by holding onto each of these ropes.

Capt. Jack was just as skeptical as human patients when assured by Dr. Gillespie that "it won't hurt a bit and will be right over." As his gums were jabbed with novocain he let forth a rear that was heard a quarter of a mile away. He struggled so ferociously that the eight men clinging to the ropes seemed at one time to be licked. But he fell back exhausted by his own efforts, and when the novocain finally got working Capt. Jack submitted.

The job took an hour. The instruments used were slightly larger than for human patients.

BUS LOAD OF PASSENGERS HAVE VERY NARROW ESCAPE

Aylmer-St. Thomas Bus Overturns on M. C. R. Bridge.

ST. THOMAS, Oct. 17.—The front wheel dropping off Harold Burton's auto bus while returning from Aylmer to St. Thomas last night, filled with passengers, threw the bus clean through the fence at the approach of the M. C. R. bridge, and about 50 feet above the track. The large axle at the rear saved the party, when it stuck in the bank and prevented the bus from a serious tumble down the heavy grade. The passengers escaped injury, but were all more or less badly shaken up.

KING DENIES ANY CRERAR BARGAIN

ST. STEPHEN, N.B., Oct. 175.—(By Canadian Press.)—There is no understanding of any kind as to a compromise with Hon. T. A. Crerar or anyone else, declared Hon. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal party, to the Canadian Press representative today on reading of a special dispatch from Ottawa, which stated that a report to the above effect was gaining wide credence at Ottawa.

Regarding a further statement in the dispatch to the effect that the Liberal leaders in the west as part of the bargain had agreed to support the farmers in the campaign, Mr. King declared, that such a statement was untrue in fact and entirely without foundation.

CRAZED MAN DEFIES ARREST BY POLICE

Michigan Authorities May Use Poison Gas To Conquer Fort.

LANSING, Oct. 17.—Poison gas and smoke bombs will be used by state police, if necessary, to drive out an escaped inmate from the Traverse City Hospital, his two brothers and their mother, who have baricaded themselves in the home in Gratiot County and threaten to shoot anyone who approaches.

The fugitive is Frank Parlovitch, 30 years old, who was sent to the hospital July 13 last and escaped Oct. 1, making his way back to his farm home, five miles west of Ithaca, the seat of Gratiot County. He is under the delusion that he had been persecuted, and several times since his return home has been patroling the road in front of his home, armed with an army rifle.

No attempt to recapture him was made until Oct. 10, when hospital authorities, learning that he had returned home, sent B. P. Burns, general supervisor, and Stephen Coney, an attendant, to get him. They found the house barricaded, and were warned by three figures, standing behind the rifles and shotguns in the windows, that they would be killed if they tried to enter.

Burns and Coney came to Ithaca for the assistance of the county authorities. Accompanied by A. T. Willert, sheriff, they returned to the house and made another attempt to persuade Parlovitch to give himself up. This failing, Sheriff Fillert appealed today to Governor Groesbeck, who turned the case over to Col. Roy C. Vandercook, state commissioner of public safety.

Col. Vindercock himself will head the expedition. He said that poison gas would be used only as a last resort, and then of a strength only to overcome, not kill, the defenders of the little fort. He will be accompanied by Capt. Marmon and six state troopers.

GEDDES QUITS SEAT IN BRITISH CABINET

Tender of Resignation Monday Creates No Stir.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Sir Eric Geddes, minister of transportation in the British cabinet, has tendered his resignation from that office, it was learned today.

The resignation of Sir Eric has no great political significance. It had been understood that he would give up his portfolio this autumn after having piloted the railway bill through Parliament.

It is expected that Sir Eric will go back to commercial life. He still remains chairman of the economy committee which is advising the Government in matters regarding retrenchment.

* * *

Sir Eris Campbell Geddes, a son of Auckland Campbell Geddes, was born in India. He received his education at the Oxford Military College and Merchiston Castle School, Edinburgh. When he came to America in his 'teens he began work in logging camps in the Southern States. Later he went to the Baltimore & Ohio Railway, where he made a name for himself in engineering work.

Helped Kitchener.

Later he returned to India and at 21 cut through the jungle to build a railway. When that was completed he was summoned to England to become assistant manager of the North Eastern Railroad. He held that position when Kitchener sought his advice on the mobilization of railways for war. He was retained in the war department to see that munitions got quickly and safely from factory to the front. His later war service may be summarized:

After the Battle of the Somme Sir Eric Geddes was sent to France to help the French Government reorganize the congested railroads. In a time when speed meant much, Sir Douglas Haig insisted on keeping him on the staff in France as director-general of transportation. When a special government department for the control of munitions was organized in 1915, and Lloyd George quit the exchequer to take his place at its head, Sir Eric was called to become deputy director-general of munitions. Subsequently he was appointed to quicken shipbuilding, and enabled Lloyd George to announce tremendous increases in production.

MONTREAL HOTEL FIRE PERILS SIX

MONTREAL, Oct. 17.—Half a dozen guests were brought down ladders in night attire by firemen called to extinguish a blaze at the Windsor Hotel, one of the city's largest and oldest hostelries, at a late hour this evening.

The fire broke out in the refrigerating plant in the basement and the hotel soon became filled with smoke and ammonia fumes. Very few of the guests had retired for the night and no one was injured.

The fire did not get beyond the basement, but the damage from smoke and water will be considerable.

OWNING STILL COST HIM $200.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 17.—An illicit still proved costly to Steve Gregor, who was today fined $200 and costs for having such apparatus in his possession. Gregor was apprehended some days ago and with him, Richard Hope, a local plumber. Hope was charged with aiding Gregor, but he proved that he did not know what he was manufacturing.

LOSS IN DOWNTOWN FIRE IS ESTIMATED AT $5,000

Believe Cigarette Butt Cause of Blaze in Scandrett Bros.' Grocery.

Firemen believe that a lighted cigarette butt thrown into a pile of rubbish was the cause of a $5,000 fire in the business district Monday night, when a blaze broke out on the third floor of the building occupied by Scandrett Bros., grocers, at 175 Dundas street. Most of the damage was done by smoke and water, although, for a short time, a fair-sized fire was in progress at the front of the building, and the firemen found some difficulty in locating it, as they began operations from the back.

Later, however, the extension ladders were moved to the front of the store, and although the firemen had dense smoke to combat, it was not long before they had the blze under control. Groceries and provisions in the store were not damaged to any great extent, as they were covered with rubber tarpaulins before the water leaked through to the ground floor.

The alarm was turned in at 7:55 p.m. and the department was out more than an hour.

MUST ADD OVER 12,000 NAMES TO VOTERS' LIST

WINDSOR, Oct. 17.—With more than 12,000 names to be added to the voters' lists that will be used at the Dominion elections, canvassers for William C. Kennedy, this morning began a house-to-house search for persons whose names are not on the 1921 municipal lists.

Although led to believe that there may be no opposition in North Essex, every subdivision, both urban and rural will have been organized before the end of the week. A system of cards, employed at the last election with much success in registration, is again being used by the subdivision canvassing committees.

Committee headquarters at Sandwich tonight were too small to accommodate the workers who thronged to hear the North Essex member explain the new system of registration. Mr. Kennedy was given a rousing reception. His speech was devoted exclusively to organization and explanation of amendments to the election act, which, he asserted, were made to assist the Government party in cornering a certain vote.
