VERY INTERESTING CEREMONY

Sir Oliver Mowat and

nce of Ontario and the New Minister of Justice of Canada ed by High Officers

Sworn In.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—The ceremony of administering the oaths of office to the new Lieutenant Governor of Ontario and the new Minister of Justice of Casada was performed at Government House yesterday afternoon in the presence of the high officers of state. The sence of the high officers of state. sence of the high officers of state. The occasion marked the transition of one of Canada's greatest statesman from the position of a responsible adviser of the Crown in the Federal arena to that or representative of the Crown in the province which for a quarter of a centur he governed wisely and well.

It also saw the elevation to the Ministry of a streaman whose long experience.

SIR OLIVER MOWAT.

affairs qualify him in an eminent degree to fill the position to which he has been called.

The simple ceremony appointing then to fill the position to which he has been called.

The simple ceremony appointing them was performed in the private chamber of His Excellency the Governor-General at Government House at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Following precedent, Lord Aberdeen made the function a very private one, and aside from the officials participating in the ceremony, only a few friends of Sir Oliver and Mr. Mills were present. Those who stood in the chamber while the oaths was administered were: Lord Aberdeen, 'sir George A. Kirkpatrick, Sir. Oliver Mowat, Hon. David Mills, Hon. A. S. Hardy, Hon. George W. Ross, J. J. McGee, Clerk of the Privy Council, Chief Justice Burton, Mr. Justice Osler, Mr. Justice Maclennan, Mr. Justice Moss, Hon. William Mulock, Commander Law, Capt. Kirkpatrick, Thomas Hodgins, Q.C., Capt. Wilberforce, A.D.C., H. M. Mowat, Dr. Hewitt, secretary to His Excellency, and three representatives of the press.

As the oaths were administered Lord Aberdeen, Sir Oliver Mowat, Hon. Mr. Mills and Mr. McGee stood in a group beside a round table in the middle of the room, the others present being ranged in a circle around the chamber.

Since Confederation the oaths of office have been administered to cight Lieutenant-Governors in Ontario. The first to fill this high place was Lieutenant-General Henry William Stisted, C.B., but his tenure only lasted one year, from July, 1867, until July 1868.

Following him were Hon. W. P. Howland, from July 1, 1880, to May 31, 1875; Hon. D. A. Macdonald, May 18, 1875, to June 30, 1880; Hon. John Beverley, Robinson, from July 1, 1880, to May 31, 1875; then. D. A. Macdonald, May 18, 1875, to June 30, 1880; Hon. John Beverley, Robinson, from July 1, 1880, to May 31, 1875; then. C. Ampbell, from June 1, 1887, to May 24, 1802; Sir George Kirkpatrick, and now Sir Oliver Mowat.

The Fram Will Have Company on Her Coming Voyage to the Arcties. Christiania, Nov. 19.—Hjalmar Johannessen, the Norwegian army officer who was with Doctor Fritdjof Nansen in the latter's recent Arctic expedition, referring to the plans for the doctor's next trip north, says arrangements have already been made for a sojourn hut on Franz Joseph land. The Fram, Nansen's ship, will be accompanied by a large vessel called the Starkodder. There will be many more dogs, more scientific men, and one of the ships will advance through the ice until ice bound. From there sledge expeditions will start north. The other ship will go along the ice border, making scientific researches in the ice, in the water and at the bottom off the sea.

Heavy Loss of Life in the Chilkoot Pass. San Francisco, Nov. 19.—George Pope of Chicago has written to a friend here from Sheep Camp, on the Chilkoot trail. The letter is dated Oct. 28, and gives the latest news of the condition of the men who are stranded on the way to the Klondike. "The other day a man told me that at least 20 men had perished on the trail within the last few weeks, I have not been able to verify this statement. At every town and every settlement where prospectors are compelled to stop, the men have stories to tell of the danger of the journey. Their advice is to avoid the trip now at any cost." eavy Loss of Life in the Chilkoot Par

A G.T.R. Yardm an Grushed to Death.

Stratford, Ont., Nov. 19.—While coupling cars about 3 o'clock yesterday David Dryden, a Grand Trunk yardsman, met with a fatal accident. An eastbound way freight was being made up, and Dryden, in the act of coupling a van on to a coach, was caught in the chest by the drawhead, which slipped past, and carried about three lengths. His cries attracted the attention of his mate, William Watting, and of Conductor Finlary, who was in the van. He died during the afternoon. He leaves a widow and one child 3 months old. Cairo, Nov. 19.—Parsons Pasha starts for Suakin on Tuesday next, from which place he will embark a battalion of infantry and detachments of artillery, ongineers and eamel corps, altogether about 1500 men, for Massowa, from which place this British force will go to Kassala, in order to take over that place from the Italians, according to the agreement on the subject arrived at between Great Britain and Italy, Weyler Exculpated.

Madrid, Nov. 20.—The Captain-General of Galicia has telegraphed to the Government here, saying that in the interview which he had yesterday with Gen. Weyler, the former Captain-General of Cuba, the latter completely exculpated himself from the statements attributed to him upon the occasion of bis leaving Havana, and affirmed his devotion and adhesion to the Government, THE THORN TRIAL.

New York, Nov. 23.—The trial of Martin horn for the murder of William Gulder appe was resumed yesterday with a great word in attendance. Judge Smith was was evident that they had not read or heard much about the Guldensuppe murder. This was regarded as favorable for getting a jury within a reasonable time.

One of the new witnesses is Mrs. Ids Ziegler, of 1671 West Farms road, New York. Since Mrs. Nack confessed that Thorn committed the murder Counsellor Howe has been directing his efforts to try and fasten the actual killing on Mrs. Nack. This is why he has called Mrs. Ziegler as a witness. She will testify that as early as March last Mrs. Nack tried to hire her cottage at West Farms, telling Mrs. Ziegler that Guldensuppe was to live with her in the cottage in the West Farms, telling Mrs. Nack was planning to murder Guldensuppe at that time.

When the court adjourned at 5 o'clook seven jurymen had been selected.

Dragged to His Death.

Frankville, Nov. 23.—Rainy Loucks, one of the most progressive farmers in this district, and a township councillor, was killed in a runaway accident Friday night. He was driving a team of spirited horses and had the lines fastened around his wrist. In pulling the horses the bit broke and the horses bolted. Mr. Loucks was pulled out of the wagon and dragged along the road about ten rods when his head struck a stake. He died two hours later.

Two Men Lost Their Lives.

Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 23.—A terrible accident occurred shortly before 8 p.m. yesterday by which two men lost their lives and a number more received slight injuries. Two 250 horse power boilers exploded in a one-storey brick building at the corner of Jones and Centre streets, from which power is furnished to operate three big commercial blocks. Robert Henry, a fireman, and Robert Starr, a boiler inspector, were killed.

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 33.—Passengers on the steamer Mascotte, which arrived in Tampa yesterday afternoon report that Angel Pac, who betrayed General Castillo to the Spaniards for $5000, was captured by the insurgents on his way to Clenfuegos, court martialled on a drum-head and Great Fire at Melbourne.

Melbourne, Nov. 21.—A great fire broke out here at 2 o'clock this morning and in a very short space of time did enormous damage. It started at the warehouse of Mr. Craig Williamson in Elizabeth street, in the very heart of the city. The burned section included many of the targest business houses in Melbourne. The buildings are completely gutted. It is estimated that the loss will reach £1,000,000, while the trade involved has received a serfoun set-back. Hundreds of employes of all sorts have been suddenly thrown eut of employment.

The commissioner's resolution and energy came to his rescue. He immediately declared that he could continue the packers, and set his Indians to work to take the stuff over. He was so confident and energetic that next day the strikers came to time, and the stuff was soog over, the Major crossing last, in such a storm that he asked Mr. Scott to guide him and even then the trail was lost several times, although Mr. Scott had been over it a score of times. This year at all events k goes on record that up to November Lakes Line, Major Walah reached Lake Bennett on October 30, and it will be some considerable time before he is heard from.

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—Reports are being received of the sales of butter which was forwarded to Great Britain from the creameries in the Northwest From the creameries in the Northwest Territories under the management of the Department of Agriculture. Messrs. George and John Hickson & Co., Limited, Liverpool, write under date Nov. 10, as follows:

"Enclosed herewith we have pleasure in handing you account sales for butter ex Labrador. We regret that your shipment to us should have met with such depressed market as ours has been for the last these worths, which is chiefly owing to the very open weather we have experienced during that time. We are pleased to be able to report the quality of your brands."

Sillar letters have been received with satisfactory, and with regular shipments we are creatin we could build up a demonstration of the satisfactory accounts from Messrs. Andrew Clements & Co., Limited, Manchester, and Messrs. Hodgson Bros., Liverpool. The depression in the butter market was made by the unusually large market was made by the unusually large market was made by the unusually large shipments from Denmark, Russia and the United States, at the time when restricting the property open and mild weather prevailed in Coat Britain. Georgian Bay Canal.

Montreal, Nov. 21.—It now looks as if the canalization of the Ottawa would soon be an accomplished fact. Some time since it was announced that leading British capitalists had interested themselves in the scheme, and this is confirmed by Mr. Stewart, who arrived to-day from London, where he had been promoting the scheme. He says that the great imperial scheme of the Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay-Canal has been successfully inaugurated. It appears that one of the most eminent farms of contractors in the United Kingdom has been successfully approached with regard to the construction of the canal, and that Sir Benjamin Baker, engineer to the Forth Brigade, will be consulting engineer to the Canadian enterprise, which is to cost $15,05,000. Other important matters have also been arranged, but what is of paramount importance to Canadians is the fact that the work of construction is to be vigorously entered upon as soon as the weather permits next spring, and will be completed within three years.

Britain's Parliament.

London, Nov. 22.—The British Parliament reassembles during the second week of February, three weeks later than originally intended. The principal tasks of the session will be the Irish Local Government Bill and the Reform of the London County Council referred to by the Marquis of Salisbury in his speech on-Tuesday last before the National Union of Conservative Associations, when the Premier asked his hearers if they wanted to be governed like New York city. The Parliament will be called upon to legislate for the army, the question of increasing its strength appending most urgently to the country generally, and there is a widespread demand that other questions be shelved and that the session be devoted to the army.

Uxbridge, Ont., Nov. 18.—About 1.15 this morning fire was discovered in The Times printing office, and the entire block was burned to the ground, very little of anything being saved. Loss of stock probably $4000 or $5000, on building probably $3000.

This convict, John F. Troy, stated that he had entered McLeod's house for the purpose of burglarizing it, and while he was at work McLeod awoke. He covered to stir, but the latter reached for a water to stir, but the latter reached for a water pitcher add he fired, severing an artery in his neck and killing him instantly. Troy was brought to trial on May 11th, when in giving evidence on his own behalf he changed his story materially. He swore that he was accompanied to McLeod's house by two companions, John Hughes and Penn; that they had found some cake and whisty in the house and recognidate to make Penn; that they had found some cake and whisky in the house and proceeded to make a meal of it. The meal made Hughes sick and he retched. Troy made a motion to strike him and knocked over the lamp. The noise woke McLood, who threatened to throw a water pitcher at them. He fired one shot at random and Penn also fired a shot. He believed it was Penn's shot that killed McLeod. Judge Robertson, who tried the case, was very doubtful as to Troy's sanity and he deferred sentence till the matter could be laid before the Attorner-General and the Minister of Justorney-General and the aminister of Jus-tice. Troy has not yet been sentenced. Hughes, who was serving a sentence in Kingston penitentiary, was arrested on the charge of complicity. The evidence of Troy in almost every respect corroborated with that given at the last trial; also his description of the house and places he was in prior to coming to Napanee.

torney-General and the Minister of Jus

In charging the jury the judge said: The Crown does not desire to convict anyone of the offence unless sufficient evidence has been produced to convict him beyond a doubt. Hughes should not have been presented as a person in jail. He should be supposed to be an innocent man. He may be guilty, he may be innocent. Troy says the cath has no obligation. Is that the kind of evidence to convict, from such a morally pollluted source? An accomplice, the law says, is not safe to believe unless materially corroborated. The defence say it is doubly unsafe with such an accomplice, who is so depraved as Troy was proved to be. I now leave the case in your hands. You must prove him guilty; he has not to prove his innocence. If you believe the story which Troy tells, then you have a right to pronounce him guilty. After being out for about 20 minutes the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty, thus making this one of the shortess murder trials on record.

Conboy's carriage fittings factory, King street west, and lives at 5 Matthias place, was burned to death on Saturday. Mrs. Brennan went out of the house for a few moments, leaving her syear-old son, Teddie, and little Myrtle alone. She told the boy to remain seated until she returned, but he disobeyed, and his mother had hardly left the house before he had procured a bit of stick, which he lit at the stove, and then see fire to some curtains. His little sister toddled to the burning mass, and her clothes caught fire. The child was rolling around the floor in dreadful agony when Archie Sneddan, a young brother of Mrs. Brennan's, came into the house. He called for help, and Mrs. Brennan, sr., who lives next door, came in each extinguished the flames, but the poor baby was burned from the waist to the neck, and only lived a few hours. Sometimes now, unawares,
I find myself half listening
To hear her on the stairs;
And when I chance upon her dell,
Or on her brownie men,
I almost think if I should call
She'd toddle back again.

And when through mists I look upon The little picture we Took of her that day on the lawn She seems once more with me; Once more as in those other days The sun gleams on her halr, And with her rubber doil she plays Beside her high-backed chair.

A BICYCLE ROMANCE.

A BICYCLE ROMANCE.

It was a wretched-looking old blke, and for antiquity would have taken first prize any where. My disappointment was intense, and tears of mortification sprang to my eyes, but I forced them back as I noticed the look of anxiety on the face of the old man beside me, who enquired, with some emotion: "Have you got a cold katie? Your eyes are wet." "Yes, Uncle Thomas," I replied, "and summer colds are so hard to get rid of; but never mind my cold. Hanhs you so much for buying me the bicycle." "Well, dearle," he replied, "it's not quite a new one, but I thought it would do for you to learn on." Oh, how I did wish he would go away and let me have a good cry; but as he hung about I had to mount and take a few turns round the garden, much to his delight, and he rubbed his hands, exclaiming: "Well done, little girl! You'lh be thee before any of them, you bet!" At last he went indoors, and, hiding myself in the summer house, I wept coptously. What should I do? Get my-prayer book and keep on repeating the collect for rain? Stay in bed the next day, and pretend my cold was worse? No, neither of these-pesources would do; and even If I rained all night, which was not in the least likely, I would have to put in an appear, ance on the morrow. Well, there was once spice of comfort left—the roads were inches deep with fine, white dust. I would start early and get a good covering of it over poor uncle's gift, and then perhaps some of its many deficiencies might be hid; and then, being adurt I did not allow our little mid to interfere with the proper tea, that being a duty I did not allow our little mid to interfere when I had a long hear and owner of a merchantman, but he had only been able to leave a very moderate independency for my mother, so we two had always lived very quietly, and it was quite an event in our lives when a letter came from Frisco telling that my mother's only relative was coming home after an absence of 40 years, there's only heldre was coming home after an absence of 40 years.

fairs. Still, I am pleased to think he is coming." Well, Unice Thomas followed closely on his letter; and, true enough, his affairs did not seem to have flourished, for his clothes were quite threadbare and his luggage of the scantiest. Like most girls of the present day, my great ambition was to own a bicycle, but, unfortunately, the buying of one was quite out of the question, although I could ride well enough, my companion, Florrie Floyd, the doctor's only daughter, having let me learned hers.

Schaffer once more discussing the matter over with mother, I had to reluctantly give up all idea of joining the plenic, and I had so longed to go; for one thing, it was the first time Sir Walter's demesse had ever been accessible, and that in itself made more anxious to see the beautiful grounds that had always been so jealously guarded from intrusion. Sir Walter had died six months before, and the heir that he had never seen had given permission for this special party to hold their meet in his demesse; and, by the way, he had not seen the place himself, but was expected to arrive at an early date. Perhaps I ought to have said that his agent had given the doctor's party leave to see the grounds, and not he. Well, after mother had succeeded in convincing me of her inability to get me even a second-hand mount, Uncle Thomas had unexpectedly chimed in by saying: "Well, Kathie, if you don't mind having a very first-class tike, I'fl get you one. I was both astonished and delighted, and kissed the old man gut I wished he had bought himself a new, coat instead. The collect for rain was unanswered; so was my desire for sudden sickness. I never felt better in my life, and the sky was cloudless, so there was nothing for it but to put a bold face on the inevitable, and at the time appointed sky was cloudless, so there was nothing for it but to out a bold race may be even a second-hand mount, Uncle Thomas had uncypetedly and went to be do when I joined the others, every one of whom owned a first-class mount? Unselfishness the Basis of Tact.

Tact has its basis in unselfishness. It grows out of thinking of another while you are talking or dealing with him. Even though a man may be exercising fact for selfish purposes, he must give the other person the first place in his thoughts and plan for the time being, in order to enable him to be tactful. Tact grows out of and indicates consideration for the rights and feelings of others; a lack of tact shows a lack of consideration for their feelings and their rights—S. S. when ladies wore their "topknots" ridientously high it occurred to Rowland Hill to admonish them from the pulpit, and he did it by means of the words, "Topknot, come down," which he evolved from Matthew xxiv., 17, "Let him which is on the housetop come down." Of course, nothing but the exceeding quaintness of the preacher could have excused such a liberty with the sense and sound of the sacred text.

It was almost as bad as Swift's uniquely brief discourse on the text, "He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth to the Lord." "My friends," said the Dean, as he closed the book, "if you approve of the security down with the dust." As a matter of fact, it is usually only the quaint preachers who do venture on such liberties. Rain Calms the Sea.

It is rather hard to understand how such tiny drops can flatten down the enormous swell of an ang-v ocean, but the observations of a well-known Euglish scientist explain it clearly. Each drop, he says, sends below the surface a certain quantity of water in the form of rings, which, with gradually decreasing volocity and increasing size, descend as much as 18 inches below the surface. Therefo.", when rain is falling on the sea, there is as much motion immediately beneath the surface as above, only the drops are larger and their motion slower. Thus, unseen by the human eye, the water at the surface is being made to continually charge places with that beneath, and in this way the wave motion is destroyed. Rain Calms the Sca.

Marriage in India.

The result of Mrs. F. A. Steel's personal observation is that marriages in India are singularly happy. There are fewer cases of unkindness and violence than in Great Britain. The dowry system, she avers, is a great protection to the wife. Every uride makes her husband a dowry, which is a kind of marrige settlement against unkindness. If she is badly treated and thus compelled to go back to her father's house, the bustand has to return her dowry; probably he has spent it, and, as it is not often convenient for him to refund the money, he takes care to treat his wife well. "It think that a similar system here would be a good thing," says the lady, frankly.

THE DOG THAT OWNS JORKINS

Try it yourself and see how you like it!!

Jorkins was crushed. He asked meekly where the rice was kept, and spent the rest of the day cooking it, while his wife retired with a bad headache. He filled every tub, pan, pail and basin in the flat with boiled rice, the proportions of which appalled him. Hiding as much of it as he could, he took in a steaming mass to give Piper, who had concealed himself under Mrs. Jorkins lounge.

"You can't give a dog red hot food," said his wife. "You must cool it for him. I always do."

Her husband looked at her with admiration. He was beginning to think her a martyr. He took the rice and the dog into the kitchen, whither Mrs. J. presently followed him. She found him on his knees, with his bicycle pump, hard at work. He was cooling the rice while Piper sat by and howled.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Science has not yet discovered whether the creature known as the practical joker belongs to the genus homo or to the genus simila. In appearance he resembles the former, while his actions are decidedly those of the latter.

In the case of Dobbs, so pronounced was his main for joking that his closest friends hardly knew what to make of him, but, since his experience with Jones, hopes are entertained that his is at last beginning to see the error of his way and may ultimately reach a point in his development where there will be no doubt of the fact that he belongs to the human family.

It appears that one of Dobbs' most cherished anties was to approach a friend on the street, from behind, and softly twitch his pocket as though feeling for a purse. Of course the friend would finally feel the twitching, clap his hands on the pocket and turn upon the supposed thief with kindling eye and excited demeanor. Then Dobs would laugh heartily and thoroughly enjoy him solf.

One day he tried this joke on his intimate friend, Jones. A near-by policeman, who was not acquainted with the nature of the case, rushed up just as Jones halted widdly and whirled about with blood in his eye. Dobbs' joyous laugh was cut short by the policeman who laid a hand on his shoulder and remarked to Jones:

"He was trying to rob you, sir; I saw the whole sfair."

"Nonsense!" returned Dobbs; "it's only a joke. This gentleman is a friend of mine."

But Jones never cracked a smile.

"Is that a fact?" asked the policeman, appealing td Jones.

"Why," returned Jones, by a happy impulse, "I never saw the secoundrel before! Run him in!"

"That's what I will, sir," returned the blue-coat, taking tighter grip on Dobbs and starting for the patrol-hox; "he's a pretty neat grafter—evidently am old hand at the business."

"Look here, Jones," cried Dobbs, "what do you mean? Why, this is an outrage! Let me gs, officer!"

"Not on your kife! If, you don't stop pullin' away I'll give you a taste of my club. Oh, you're a fine bird. You've got gallows written all over your faces!"

This was all Jones could stand and he broke away from the rapidly collecting crowd and had a quiet laugh around the corner.

As for Dobbs, he was carted off to the station and witimately bailed out. Before the matter proceeded farther, Jones called at the police headquarters, expla'ned the situation and the case was wiped off the calendar.

'It was some time before Dobbs could bring himself to speak to Jones; but at last they met on the street and Dobbs presented his cigar case, inviting Jones to help himself to a Perrecto. Then, together, they wiffed the smoke of peace, For a wonder, the cigar wasn't losaded!

receives the milk, once tugged long and hard at a crank, like a galley slave, to lift the heavy cans of milk. The amount of hard work thus entailed be-fore breakfast on a thousand cheesemakers has made many a good fellow crunky the rest of the day. Now he touches a lever and in instant that can f milk hongs in equipois at the brim of milk hogs in equipois at the brim of the weigh can, ready to be dumped. This is Strong's Steam Crane. The device is so simple that it is a sarcastic comment on the continued use of the old crank. Simple as it is, it cost the inventor hard thought, and is a valuable illustration of his inventive genius We omitted to say this milk was acreated and purified by an acreator, also Mr. Strong's invention, before it left the milk yard.

THE METRE a very ingenious device attached to the whey tank, designed to accurately measure out the whey due each patron It will be operated by the man at the Steam Crane and will greatly aid a dishonest patron to put a check on his rapacity when he is so unfortunate as to be unable to do that for himself. It will be a credit to Mr. Strong and a boon to the country. It will prevent ill feeling among neighbors. I am surill feeling among neighbors. I am sur-prised to see a men return unhappy because he didn't get more whey than was due him. I am equally surprised to see a man's countenance beam with delight when his cen slops out his neighbor's property. This device will help the weak-minded to do unto others as he would others should do unto him. It will contribute an item to help fit It will contribute an item to help fit men for the kingdom. Query: Will a gentleman (!) who takes the whey that belongs to his neighbor water his own milk? The law alone deters that man. Watch him. Is that man a professor of the christian religion? Does he re-member what our Lord says about the member what our Lord says about the principles violated? If not, inform him. Does that man know he is troubling the entire community of patrons and annoying the cheese maker that his mania for whey perplexes the proprietors, and that the word "Shame" is branded on his can in letters invisible to himself?

Another thought follows in order here. Is not the cheesemaker morally bound to return unadulterated whey as much so as the dairyman is to see that the milk delivered is pure? deas of exhilarating amusement have not hitherto soared much above switchback railways. If any among them had any mistivings as to the possible dangers attendant upon such forms of amusement their anxieties must have been dispelled by the series of practical tests yesterday.

The structure itself is absolutely safe, though it has nothing about it so ponderous as the base of a Wembley Tower. On a bed of concrete the central iron framework stands crowned by an octagonal pagoda, which at present lacks ocnamental finish. Within this framework are the engines and other appliances for giving motive power to a lift. From it iron struts extend round a great circular area, and serve as supports for the railway, which is fenced by stout railings on each side. The little cars, constructed to hold six passengers each, are not drawn up the spiral by locomotive engines, but hoisted to the highest gallery in the lift one or two at a time. From these they are set going down the incline by a slight exercise of manual or mechanical force, and then the only thing is to check their speed by the judicious application of brakes. These are of such power and so perfectly under control of the driver that two cars coupled together can be stopped instantly at any point no matter how fast they may be going. By an ingenious arrangement of levers actuating auxiliary wheels that run along a middle rail any tendency of the car to get off its track is effectually prevented, and short of a breakage, which seems impossible, no accident that might happen could lead to serious consequences. The mechanism by which these cars are lifted to the top is, according to an estimate made by the engineer, capable of bearing fifteen times the strain that is ever likely to be put upon it. Looked at from a distance the cars as they start and gather way swiftly seem to be going with a rush that nothing can control, but a touch of the brake reduces speed at once, and they wind gently round the lightening volutes at a rate that seldom exceeds fifteen miles an hou realize that profits on their venture were not a remote contingency. A sanguine member of that body quoted figures to show that with twelve cars at work money could be taken at the rate of 30 shillings a minute from passengers. That would amount to £90 an hour, but he omitted to say that you must first eatch your passengers, which will, perhaps, be more possible when the attractions of Southend's Marine Park have been fully developed and lite boundaries widened to the sea front. This scheme is glready in contemplation, and may be realized before next season—London Dally News.

As a requisite of the toilet pins were first used in Britain in the latter part of the fifteenth century, says The Boston Commercial Bulletin. They were first made of iron wire, but in 1540 brass ones were imported from France by Catherine Howard, Yill. ties. The natural thorn is still in use in some of the upper Egypt districts, where the Birmingham article is a prime curiosity and an ampopular innovation. In the ruins of Pompeli Roman pins of bone or ivory have been disinterred, while ancient Egypt has disclosed the indispensable article having heads of gold. Bronze pins were known to the lake dwellers of Europe, some being artistically ornamented and elaborated with exquisite soft the duplex type, having double stems, and others the same in form as the safety pins in use at the present time. At first pins were made by fitting a point to a proper length of wire, and then twisting a piece of fine wire around the other extremity or fastening it after twisting in order to form a knob or head. Ultimately these operations were so skillfully conducted that a completely round head was made of a very small size and scarcely showing the nature of its construction.

Previous to the introduction of machinery the pin was, of course, entirely hand made and required a passage through no less than fourteen different missipulations before finding its way as a finished product into market. The brass pin which we see to-day in its perfect form and almost needle pointed is turned out at almost incredible speed by special machinery, the daily product of Birmingham alone being placed at about 40,000,000.

The solid-headed pin, as differing from that just described, came into use in 1840. The domestic pin was of sufficient importance in 1543 to warrant an act providing that "no person shall but double-deaded and have the heads soldered fast to the pin, well smoothed, the shank well shapen, the point well rounded, filed, canted and sharpened. About 1700 the manufacture of pins became quite a business in Bristol and Birmingham, employing a large number of the provider of the Caree of the canted and sharpened.
