The heir of Bayneham
—AND—
Lady Hutton's Ward.

CHAPTER VII.

Lord Bayneham went to his study. He took the picture from the drawer, and folding it in many papers, locked it safely away.

He was kinder than usual to Barbara that evening, as though he would make amends for some involuntary wrong.

The Countess of Bayneham changed her mind once more. She had decided upon dissuading her son from going to London for the season until after he was married; but she looked upon it in a different light now. His engagement to Barbara Earle was known publicly. Perhaps after all it would be better to make a brilliant appearance in London, and then at the end of the season have a brilliant marriage. She decided it was to be so, and early in May the young earl left Castle Bayneham for his town house, which was an almost palatial mansion in Grosvenor Square.

The season opened brilliantly. Miss Earle, the niece of the Countess of Bayneham, was much admired. But what puzzled both sides was that Claude took little or no interest in any of the gayeties that surrounded them.

Lord Bayneham was fortunate in one thing—he met in London his oldest and dearest college friend, Bertie Carlyon, the second son of Sir Hubert Carlyon, of Durham Park, one of the kindest and noblest of men, unfortunately, as he himself declared, in everything—love and finance above all other things; but so kind, so genial, so true, no one could help loving him.

Bertie had his secret too; for the first moment he saw Barbara Earle he loved her. He seemed almost by instinct to understand the woman's grand, noble soul. He never mentioned his love; of what avail could it have been, when the girl who had so unconsciously won his heart was the affianced wife of his best friend?

So Bertie Carlyon, as many another man before him had done, shut up his love in the silence and secrecy of his own heart. He avoided seeing Barbara as much as possible; but he was a great favorite with the stately countess. She admired him, and encouraged his visits to the house. So it happened that not one day passed without bringing Bertie Carlyon to Grosvenor Square.

"I hear wonders of a young lady who is to be presented at the next Drawing-room," said Bertie Carlyon one day to the countess.

"Who is it?" asked Lady Bayneham.

"I can give your ladyship every information," replied Mr. Carlyon. "We younger sons are in a state of fervent rejoicing. She is to be presented by Lady Hutton, the daughter and heiress of the late Sir Ralph Erskine, of Brynmar. The young lady is very beautiful, and if rumor speaks truly, her adopted child. She is called Lady Hutton's ward."

CHAPTER VIII.

The Drawing-room was a brilliant one. Lady Hutton's ward was greatly admired. No such beautiful girl had been seen for some time; it was a new style, every one declared; there was something so fresh and fair, so innocent and graceful about her. Even the brilliant Countess of Bayneham was pleased.

"She is perfect in her way," said that lady to her niece, "but her face is not developed; and unless I am greatly mistaken, it will attain much rarer beauty yet."

Lady Morton, the wife of one of the leading ministers, gave a grand ball on the evening of the day on which the Drawing-room was held. Lord Bayneham, with his mother and cousin, was to be present. It was arranged for Bertie Carlyon to dine at Grosvenor Square and accompany them to Lady Morton's.

They were late, the rooms were full, and every one seemed to be talking about the same thing—the delicate beauty and rare grace of Lady Hutton's ward.

"Claude," said Bertie to Lord Bayneham, "you must procure an introduction to Miss Hutton, the new beauty. Let us go into the ball-room; she is dancing, I think, with Sir Harry Poyntz; I want you to see her."

The young girl had not paid much attention to what his friend was saying; all beauties were indifferent alike to him. They went thru the long suite of brilliantly lighted rooms. At the further end of one stood a young girl in earnest conversation with an elderly gentleman, the celebrated painter whose pictures had taken the world by storm. His eyes, expressive of deep admiration, were bent upon her. She was well worthy of the artist's praise. It is seldom that in a London ball-room a face so pure and lovely can be seen, a face on which the world did not seem to have breathed, calm and untrifled in its sweet innocence and childlike grace; violet eyes, so clear and pure and full of truth; bright shining golden hair, that fell in rich waves over shoulders white and shapely; a slender, graceful figure, full of dignity; round white arms, perfect in color and contour. She wore a dress of costly white lace, and a suite of pearls that a princess might envy.

"See," said Bertie Carlyon quietly, "that is Miss Hutton. What do you think of her, Claude?"

Lord Bayneham made no reply. His face became white, and his dark eyes grew darker still. The beautiful girl before him was the one who had haunted him day and night since he had met her on that May morning in the woods at Brynmar.

"What do you think of her?" asked Bertie impatiently.

"I have seen her before," replied Lord Bayneham, in a low, constrained voice; "she is very beautiful."

Bertie Carlyon looked wonderingly at his friend's face.

"I must have an introduction to her," said Claude.

Just at that moment they saw the Countess of Bayneham conversing with Lady Hutton. The young earl hastened toward them. His mother introduced him to Lady Hutton, who was more gracious than usual to the handsome young man who saluted her so reverentially.

What he had longed for came at last. While he was talking to Lady Hutton, Mr. Seton, the artist, returned with the fair young girl, and Lady Hutton introduced Claude to her.

He had no need to ask if she were forgotten, for a deep, burning flush covered the beautiful face, and the sweet eyes dropped, lest he should see the love light in them. Lady Hutton turned away with Mr. Seton, and they were left together.

"I never dream of seeing you again," said Lord Bayneham; "I am bewildered."

"You had not forgotten me?" she asked; and a new light came upon the lovely face.

Claude dared not trust himself to speak. A whole torrent of burning words rose to his lips, but he would not utter them. After some minutes he said quietly: "I do not think it very possible for any one to forget you, Miss Hutton. Tell me how Brynmar woods are looking. Are they bonny as ever?"

"I was sorry to leave them," she replied. "I would rather be there than in London; here it seems to me all gas-light."

"Did you never find it dull at Brynmar?" he asked, smiling at her naive simplicity.

"No," she replied, looking at him in sheer wonder, "never; sometimes I feel dull in London. It is like a new world to me."

It was also like a new world to Lord Bayneham; he forgot everything except that he had found her again; that he was looking at her radiant face, listening to her voice, watching the blushes that came and went with almost every word. He offered her his arm almost mechanically, she took it, and they wandered through the rooms, forgetting of everything in the wide world except each other.

Miss Hutton had promised Captain Massey the next dance, but she never remembered it until it was ended, and the gallant Captain, looking very much hurt and annoyed, stood before her. Then a sense of her broken promise came over her.

"I have been looking everywhere for you, Miss Hutton," said the captain. "You had promised me this dance."

She apologized so sweetly and gracefully that Captain Massey could not be angry, and Lord Bayneham felt something like a thrill of guilty satisfaction that she had forgotten some one else to talk to him.

Dye Stockings or Sweater in Diamond Dyes

"Diamond Dyes" add years of wear to worn, faded skirts, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, hangings, draperies, everything. Every package contains directions so simple any woman can put new, rich, fadeless colors into her worn garments, or draperies even if she had never dyed before. Just buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—then your material will come out right, because Diamond Dyes are guaranteed not to streak, spot, fade, or run. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.

WORLD WEARY.

At times my jaded spirit pants for solitudes afar; I fain would flee from all my aunts, in my tin motor car. A cave in some sequestered clime is what I've long desired; my aunts are talking all the time of things that make me tired. They talk of pink and purple teas and games I most despise, of Mrs. Johnson's cottage cheese and Mrs. Twitter's pies. Sometimes I'd talk of vital things, of climbing hills on high, of Dempsey's scraps in many rings, of brands of whiskies, dye; and then my aunts begin to yawn and show that they are bored; they have no use for tales of brown, of sandbag, gun or sword. My conversation makes them sad, and theirs upsets my mind, and I would like to jump the grade and leave the dunes behind. I often vow when I retire that in the morn I'll flee, and henceforth twang my noble lyre in some large hollow tree. But when I wake I have a pang, all kinds of pain that come my aunts, a stately gang, with yards that soothe and heal. They put a poultice on my dome bind splits upon my arm, and make my poor old mortgaged home a place of light and charm. It is when dire affliction daunts the stricken mortal hulk that one appreciates his aunts, and blesses them in bulk.

LIFE WAS MISERY!

"I was reading the other day about Neurasthenia, about the large number of people who were troubled with this disease. It is just what my wife had. She felt miserable all the time and was constantly depressed. She would waken in the morning and tell me that something dreadful was going to happen that day. Life was nothing short of misery for her. She was so depressed that I expected she would lose her mind and have to go to a sanitarium and I kept wondering how I would get the money to pay for her. She could not eat and had no appetite for food. She was irritable and cranky most of the time. If she was crossed in any way, she would immediately work herself up into a violent temper. This worried me because she had always had a kind and gentle disposition and nothing which was said or done seemed to irritate her. I spoke to our family doctor about her and he said that her trouble was 'imaginary' and that if she would try and forget about her depression and look on the bright side of life she would be all right. Of course I didn't dare tell her this because I knew she would get into one of her tempers. When she got over these fits of temper, she was always weak and ill and more depressed than ever. The doctor said a tonic might help her and gave me a prescription but this did not do her any good. She tried all kinds of other tonics with the same result. Carol was recommended to me and I wish to state that it is the leader of all tonics. Since taking it my wife has changed completely. Now she is always ready for her meals and work is no burden. It is a pleasure for me to recommend Carol to anyone who is in need of a tonic or a body builder. Excuse me for writing this letter but I want you to accept my thanks for that wonderful tonic known as Carol." — Mr. J. M., Toronto.

Prince Waited His Turn.

The British House of Lords was treated to an interesting spectacle November 22 when the Prince of Wales, who outranks all of the Lords, smilingly disregarded precedence by waiting the rights to which he is entitled as heir to the Throne. When the Prince arrived to take the oath as member of the new Parliament, he found a queue of some 50 noble Lords lined up waiting to perform the ceremony. The Clerk of the House immediately hurried to the Prince to conduct him to the head of the line, but the scion of Royalty shook his head and retained his place at the end. There was near-contestation on the faces of some of the Lords and several offered the Prince their places in the line, but he staidly declined them all and waited his turn, which was long in coming.

Power of Flattery.

It was a soft and balmy spring night. The moon was at its zenith, casting a mellow radiance upon the greensward, as the ardent swain passionately declared his love. "Darling," he cried in tones of vibrant adoration, "I will lay my fortune beside your feet!" "Oh, but your fortune is not a very large one!" cooed the damsel. "No," he replied, slipping his arm round her waist, "but it will look large beside your tiny feet!" He won her.—London Tit-Bits.

Explosion Reveals a Smugglers' Cave.

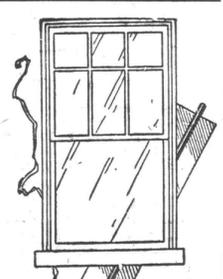

While two labourers were digging a piece of ground near the edge of the cliffs, at Penance, in Cornwall, on December 5, 1888, a terrific explosion suddenly rent the air, and the two men were precipitated into the sea. Both, however, were unhurt, and succeeded in reaching the shore. A number of persons soon collected, and investigations which were made to find out the cause of the explosion revealed a small hole, about a foot square, in the face of the cliff, which seemed to lead to a huge cavern within. The hole, however, was not large enough to admit of anyone crawling through, so it was widened, and several persons entered with a lighted torch, when an immense cave, nearly 50ft. long and 20ft. wide was discovered; large gaping holes appeared in the floor, and it was only with great caution that the cave was explored. Arranged along the sides of the cave were a large number of barrels, numbering in all thirty-two, many of which contained gun-powder, and it was one of these casks that had become ignited and caused the explosion. Several were found to contain rum and other spirits, and three large bales of silk were also revealed; but, owing to the damp, they had become rotten and worthless. In one of the corners lay two human skeletons, their bones gleaming ghastly white by the light of the torch. The bony fingers of one of the skeletons grasped an ancient blunderbuss, which suggested that he may have taken his own life, and perhaps that of his companion. The authorities, had the bones removed and interred in a cemetery close by. The casks of spirits were claimed by the authorities, but were afterwards sold by auction and fetched a good sum of money, which was given to a local charity fund. It was surmised, and no doubt correctly, to have been one of the many secret caves which about a century ago existed along the coast of Cornwall and were used by smugglers to store their goods preparatory to their disposal.

Peace With Ireland.

Seven Centuries of Conflict Ended --- New Settlement Passes Parliament Unanimously --- De Valera Being Sued For Estate Money --- Canadian Bye Elections Produce No Changes.

THE STRUGGLE ENDED.

LONDON, Dec. 4. Seven centuries old struggle between Great Britain and Ireland ended on Monday when the Legislature, giving effect to the new settlement, passed the final bill in the House of Lords, which gave effect to the settlement. The settlement bill has gone through the House without amendment and without division. Lord Carson, whose influence was mainly responsible for failure to pass the bill in 1914, has throughout his political career been the bitterest opponent of the settlement. He has even been called a "last ditcher" even by the traditional anti-Home Rule supporters. He has graciously accepted the Government view and has given Ireland a chance to show her sincerity under new conditions. The Duke of Devonshire, who has been dealing with Irish affairs in the Government has entirely convinced him to the view that Ireland should "really deliver the goods," and he has approached Lord Carson for his many speeches which could condemn the settlement and do harm. He now remains only the nominal opponent of the settlement which is a pure formality.

CONSERVATIVES CARRY LANARK.

PERTH, Ont., Dec. 4. In the Lanark Federal bye-election Monday, by a majority of over fourteen hundred, R. F. Preston, Conservative, formerly Minister without portfolio in the Ontario Government, was returned victor over David Finlay, Liberal. The majority cuts in half that of the Conservatives in 1921. (Yesterday's Federal bye-election in Lanark was the first spirited contest in the Dominion of Canada since the King Government was returned to power in December of last year. Mr. King, the Prime Minister, Mr. Meighen, the leader of the Opposition, and many big guns took part in the campaign. The Government hoped to carry the Constituency in order to demonstrate that they had gained in strength since they obtained power a year ago, and incidentally to secure a majority apart from the Speaker in the House of Commons. In the last House the Government held 117 out of 325 seats, and a win in Lanark would have given them 188, or a majority of one, which in a tight corner would have made them the victors of the Progressive. Lanark is a traditionally Conservative riding, although it returned a Progressive candidate in the Provincial election of two years ago. In the general election of last year, Hon. J. A. Stewart, Capt. Strout, found-came vacant, carried the constituency by 2,635 votes, in a three-cornered fight.)

FINN ELECTED.

HALIFAX, Dec. 4. Hon. Robert E. Finn, Liberal, is conceded elected by a large majority, as Federal representative from Halifax in the bye-election to-day to fill a Liberal vacancy.

LIBERALS WIN HALIFAX.

HALIFAX, Dec. 4. The Halifax Federal bye-election on Monday gave Hon. Robert E. Finn, until recently, member without portfolio of the Nova Scotia Government, a majority of about four thousand

Mae Edwards' Company

PRESENT "THE ARM OF THE LAW."
It would be invidious to make any distinctions in the performance of the characters making the cast in "The Arm of the Law" as presented at the Casino Theatre last night by the members of the Mae Edwards Company. Yet one special mention must be made of Miss Marie Fischer, who played lead remarkably well, as Blanche Grayson in the prologue, and as Mrs. Manning, wife of the Mayor of Shorepoint—10 years later—in the play proper. Miss Fischer is endowed with brilliant histrionic talent, and her rendition in dual character was admirably expressed, in the diverse phases of the performance. All the other favorites were equally at home in their respective roles. The play is based on graft in municipal politics, and the methods employed by the ward bosses and exploiters to gain their ends. In this case the plot was frustrated, and once more virtue was triumphant and vice vanquished. As the performance will be repeated to-night, it would not do to give away the motif of the play. There are no disappointments in the measured swing of "The Arm of the Law." Inexorable as Fate it reaches out and gathers in the criminals. The moral too is a good one. Between the acts Gallagher and Shean delighted the audience with local hits composed by local writers. Some of them were real gems. Others were a little too much tinged with political personalism to make a big killing, but all were thoroughly enjoyed. Miss Gertrude Riggs with her "beautiful eggs" brought down the house. Mr. Walker's violin solos added much to the musical programme, and were rapturously applauded. Bart Crawford the inimitable was there with some songs and some fun—and then some. See him again to-night. To-morrow (Wednesday) and Thursday evenings the bill will be "The Unloved Wife," which tells a tale of real suffering and finds a woman's heart which has been broken.

"Humoresque," a Story of New York's Ghetto.

Impressive Story Well Screened At The Nickel.

"Humoresque" is one of the year's big productions. It went over like an avalanche at the popular Nickel Theatre last night. Alma Reubens is the featured member of the cast, but so interesting is the characterization so carefully outlined in each individual role, so genuine is the background against which the story has been set that the spectator is not conscious that the picture has a star. In other words, "humoresque" is not built around any one personality; the characters are woven into the story. The production as a whole stands as one of the high marks of the art. The human interest element is particularly strong, and there is a wealth of natural comedy to relieve the pathos. It is rarely that a picture is seen in which so much time has been spent on preserving the flow of incident which goes to make up the daily life of the characters, where also dramatic situations are sharply outlined. Besides this big feature there is also a wonderful Fontaine Fox comedy entitled "Toonerville Follies," and featuring in it is the world-famous rube comedian Dan Mason. It's as good as a tonic to see Dan. Watch for "Heliotope" on Thursday. It's another big one. And that's saying something.

Chief Henry Red Eagle. Had Sails Carried Away.

The only original Indian in New England, and perhaps the only Indian chief in America who is winning success as an author of fiction, is the distinction borne by Chief Henry Red Eagle (Henry Perley) of Greenville, Me., a full-blooded Indian and chief in the Maliseet tribe of New Brunswick. Not only is Chief Henry Red Eagle a successful author of fiction, but he is a lecturer, a motion picture actor, and for a long time, was a "barker" at a Coney Island side show. The chief, using a young Indian as a hero, specializes in adventure stories. He has sold many of them, and is fast reaching that point in an author's career where he is assured of a ready market for everything that he writes. The chief is a graduate of the Greenville High School, where he was a leader in his class. His father, Gabriel Perley, is an excellent spowhose maker of Greenville and is known to thousands of native woodsmen and visiting hunters.

Curlers Annual Meeting.

RESOLUTIONS OF CONDOLENCE PASSED.

There was a large attendance at the annual meeting of the St. John's curling Association held last night. President W. H. Duder occupied the chair, and presented his report for the year. Secretary Salter also presented his accounts, following which resolutions of condolence were passed to the families of the late Hon. President Chas. R. Duder and late Past President H. D. Carter, the former on motion of Mr. H. W. LeMesurier, C.M.G., seconded by W. J. Higgins, K.C., and the latter on motion of Mr. J. C. Jardine, seconded by Mr. J. R. Bennett. The Resolutions were endorsed by an unanimous standing silent vote. The election of officers resulted as follows:— President.—Capt. Gerald Harvey. 1st Vice President.—W. A. Reid. 2nd Vice President.—Dr. J. St. P. Knight. Secretary.—W. H. Duder, P. President. Committee of Management.—W. J. Higgins, Jas. R. Chalker, Stanley Rodger, John Angel (Capt. Red Div.), J. J. Maher, (Capt. White Div.), C. J. Cox, (Capt. Blue Div.), J. Baxter, (Capt. Green Div.) On motion of Mr. Joseph Peters, Mr. Thomas Winter, one of the oldest Curlers was appointed Hon. President in place of the lamented C. R. Duder. Mr. A. H. Salter, who has been Secretary Treasurer for so many years past, retired in favour of Mr. W. H. Duder, who becomes the new Secretary-Treasurer. In consideration of Mr. Salter's services to the Association on motion of Sir John Crosbie seconded by Hon. Tasker Cook, Mr. Salter was elected an Honorary member for life. Mr. J. R. Bennett presided over the meeting.

SCHOONER A. B. BARTEAUX PUT INTO HALIFAX.

A message to Messrs A. S. Rendell & Co., received yesterday stated that the schooner A. B. Bartheaux had put into Halifax with her sails carried away and otherwise damaged. The Bartheaux left Horwood Nov. 25th, for New York with a cargo of lumber and laths, and was out in the recent gales. The ship will have repairs effected at the Nova Scotia port before resuming her voyage.

First R.R. Car Cost $50.

It's a far cry from the first railroad passenger car to the Pennsylvania's luxurious dining or sleeping car of to-day. The first railway passenger car of which there is any record was built in England. It was for the Stockton and Darlington railway. "Experiment" was the name given to it, and it cost $50, or ten pounds. That was in 1825. A row of seats ran along the sides. There was but one door, and it was in the rear. With all that the car was a success. It became so popular that an effort was made to improve upon it. The second step was the adoption of a standard car. It resembled three coach bodies placed on a four-wheeled truck or frame. Each compartment had two seats crosswise and facing each other, and capacity for six persons. The doors were at the sides. It is the same style of car, with modifications, now used in England. —Philadelphia Evening Ledger.

Great Monument to Confederacy.

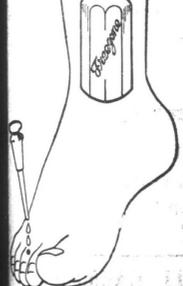

It will take eight years before the mountain in Georgia, the state monument to the southern confederacy, can be unveiled. All of the work will be consumed in completing the elaborate details, according to the plans of the sculptor, who believes that he will achieve in the coming work that for which the Greeks and the Egyptians strove for, but which he has accomplished.

The mountain of pure granite, a mile from base to summit and the solid rock in the world, has been dedicated to the people of the United States for the purpose of perpetuating the memory of the confederacy. Every State has contributed to a fund of $2,000,000 which is used in converting the mountain into a memorial that will make the States of the Confederacy, the Hanging Gardens of Babylon and every other work of man look small in comparison.

Figures 50 Feet High.

The army of nearly a thousand men will be carried into the mountainside, and the figures will be more than 50 feet in height.

CORNS
Lift Off with Fingers

Don't hurt a bit! Drop a little medicine on an aching corn, lift it off and it's gone. The corn stops hurting, then you lift it right off with your fingers. The medicine is a little bottle of corn medicine, for a few cents, sufficient to cure every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes, and the corn without soreness or irritation.

50 feet in height, in full relief, and the features of Lee, Jackson, Johnson and others of the confederate leaders will be recognizable from two to three miles from the foot of the mountain. The appearance of the work when completed will be that of the natural mountain, across the surface of it the gray army is silently marching.

The cutting of the memorial will begin early in September, and will be completed probably by 1930. The first section is to be finished and unveiled in about three years, and the second probably in five years.

At the base of the mountain a monster hall will be cut, as a memorial to the women of the confederacy, the wives, mothers and sisters of the men whose figures are carved in the mountain above, who remained at home and kept their families together.

Hall For Meeting Place.
The Hall, 200 feet in length, will reach back into the granite of the mountain's base for a distance of 60 feet. The roof will be 50 feet in height. The hall will be turned over to the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and will be used for their meeting place and for keeping the priceless documents and mementoes of the confederacy.

A colonnade of 13 states, representing the 13 states of the confederacy. These will extend the full length of the hall, and each will be fifty feet in height. A huge stone stairway will lead up to the hall.

The hall, with its colonial facade, typifies the southern home of the 60's. The sculptural work of its massive bronze doors will perpetuate the many beautiful stories of heroism and sacrifice of southern womanhood.

The cutting of the figures is all being done by pneumatic chisels. An idea of the magnitude of the work may be gained from the statement that the 1000 figures will reach along the perpendicular granite cliff for a distance of 2000 feet, and that some of the figures will be more than fifty feet in height and cut to a depth of eight feet. An air compressor on the top of the mountain furnishes air for the operation of the tools.

An Astounding Disaster.

An accident almost without parallel occurred at Charing Cross Railway Station in the afternoon of December 5, 1905, when the two south bays of the heavy iron and glass roof suddenly collapsed, carrying with them thirty feet of the west wall of the station, and burying in the debris below many workmen who had been engaged in repair work at the time. The wall sheer precipice to within 400 feet of the ground.

The height of the cliff from which the memorial is being carved is 787 feet. This is a greater height than that of any work of man, except the Eiffel Tower of France, which is 985 feet high, but in comparison with Stone Mountain, the latter looks like a mere needle, lacking both beauty and permanency. The largest of the Pyramids is, but 461 feet, and the Sphinx only 65 feet high.

toppled over on to the "Playhouse," formerly the "Avenue" Theatre, crashing through the roof, and injuring a number of workmen engaged in the place. Two cabs on the stand were smashed and the horses killed. The station was thrown into a panic, many people rushing towards the Strand entrance shouting in terror. The Station officials with admirable presence of mind closed the building to the public. Many persons had narrow escapes, but five were killed and twenty-seven injured seriously, while many were slightly hurt. The debris fell across the rails, and completely blocked the access to the station, which had to be closed until it was removed and the adjoining portions of the roof made more secure.

eliminating the need of the personal appeal now so much relied on for political debate.

But there is something still more wonderful ahead. The experts, Mr. Barnoff tells us, look forward to the possibility of contriving "a wrist-watch wireless set, or radiolet." It will be small enough to be carried in the pocket, and to be used for receiving signals from stations at a distance of from twelve to fifteen miles. Market reports, weather reports, details of championship games and personal communication could thus be had instantaneously by simply pressing a tiny receiver to the ear. And if all these prove to be realized, who will say that the world is not one day to become a "whispering gallery," or that Unifying The World.

When will the wonders of radio culminate? Just now wireless seems to be surpassing itself—with new "record" achievements that flash in with the day's news only to be surpassed by something newer on the morrow. Hiram P. Maxim, president of the American Radio League, has just succeeded in sending a radiogram from Hartford, Conn., to Watauku in the Hawaiian Islands and receiving an answer in the brief period of four minutes and eighteen seconds—a total distance covered with only one relaying, of 10,400 miles. From the Engineering Societies' Building in New York city messages were sent out on Tuesday night to London, Paris, Berlin and Bergen, Norway. London answered the wireless question, telling of its weather, in 45 seconds. Ten seconds later came the answer from Norway. France next responded and in two minutes and forty seconds Germany acknowledged the query she had received.

According to David Barnoff of the American Radio Corporation, who sent off the transatlantic messages, radiograms are now being regularly received in Paris or Berlin after being handed in at Broad street, New York. He reminds the public that it is already possible with wireless to reach "any ship at any time and at any place in the world." Recalling that the applause of a crowd attending a Chicago football game can be heard by radio in Broadway, he predicts the time "when we will hear in our homes, offices or public places the protest of a multitude in some foreign land against the tyranny of their rulers, or the acclamation of the public for some great and beneficent leader." And he believes that this facility of intercourse will revive oratory by A Roland For An Oliver.

Some days ago our evening contemporary, which lives, moves and has its being on Duckworth Street, issued a challenge. The Advocate, by the way, is great on challenges. It struts around with a chip on its shoulder, and invites all and sundry to dare knock it off, or when that fails it requests some daring person to tread on the tail of its coat. Valorous! Well we should say so. Our esteemed contemporary is a regular glutton for fighting, and does not always live up to the rules usually observed in the journalistic ring. Any method which will win it adopts. The challenge referred to was issued to a prominent member of the Opposition in the House of Assembly, the subject of the same being a question as to whether this same gentleman did, or did not, make a demand for and receive the sum of One thousand dollars, sessional pay, without attending the last sitting of the House. That challenge, according to the challenger, has not been taken up. The question has not been answered. The member referred to was Sir John C. Crosbie, representing the district of Port de Grave. "Crosbie," asserts the Advocate, "has been denouncing the Government, and Sir Richard Squires and (last but not least) Hon. W. F. Coaker, but are his hands clean? He (Crosbie) takes One thousand dollars for not a second's work." So much for that charge. The next one is personal, and in villification of this kind the Advocate is facile princeps. "What must be," it raves, "the political character of a man who denounces Government extravagance in one breath, and with hand outstretched behind him" (mark the vile innuendo) "grabs One thousand dollars of the people's money for no service. What do you think of him people of Newfoundland?" Thus the hypocritical scribe of the Advocate. Lying in a glass house, he forgets the admonition that charges him not to throw stones. What of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, that wonderful and immaculate personage, whose baptismal appellation is William Ford Coaker? Is not he also one of the grabbers on the Government side of the House? As Minister and head of one of the principal departments in the Government, has he so virtuously performed his official duties during the last two years that he should also be entitled to grab his salary? And his little stipend, in addition to sessional pay, is the paltry sum of Four thousand dollars per annum, for doing duties and giving services which surely should be expected from such an admirable Crichton in politics, admiral without remuneration. But has he been instant in season and out of season at the post of duty? Accusations have been levelled against him, which he has not denied, and which it is doubtful if he can deny, that he has neglected the work of the department of which he holds the portfolio and drawn the voted salary. It is well known to all that most of his time is spent at Port

Union, where apparently his business interests are greater in importance than those of the colony. Will he answer the challenge and say that he has not drawn any departmental pay during the past two years? If Crosbie can be challenged, surely Coaker can be arraigned. This is a fair proposition. Crosbie takes One thousand dollars, according to the Advocate, for services unperformed. Coaker draws Five thousand dollars and his department does not see him for months. Is that honest? Is it just? So far as Sir Richard Squires is concerned the sums that he will receive for services rendered will be staggering, but at least he gives some kind of return, even if it is only picnicking in England, and living in a state of high degree at the expense of the Colony. With the Advocate it is always a question of whose ox is gored. It is now up to that journalistic genius to say yea or nay to the question of whether or not Coaker cashes his monthly cheque as Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in addition to pulling down his sessional pay of One thousand dollars as senior member for Bonavista? Is not this a fair tu quoque?

TO AND FROM THE IMMORTAL 29th.

Accident on Canadian Gunner.

FIREFMAN KAVANAGH FALLS INTO BUNKER.

Last night whilst engaged fighting the fire on S.S. Canadian Gunner, Mr. Con Kavanagh of the Western Fire Station fell into a bunker, and received severe injuries, being badly bruised about the head. He was given medical aid on the pier and afterwards driven to hospital for further treatment. Fortunately no bones were broken, and the gallant fireman will recover in a few days.

"My Irish Rose."

NEW TROUPE WILL APPEAR TONIGHT.

Under the distinguished patronage of his Grace the Archbishop, and in aid of St. Patrick's Memorial School, the West End Dramatic Company will present that charming three act comedy-drama, "My Irish Rose," commencing to-night in the old Convent School, which has recently been transformed into a social hall. Particular attention has been given to the scenic effects, and the drop curtain painted specially for the occasion by Mr. Dan Carroll, is a masterpiece of art. A full orchestra under the direction of Miss Teresa Power will render appropriate selections. With such an excellent cast, and for so worthy an object, a crowded house is predicted.

HOLD ANNUAL MEETING.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Methodist Guards Old Comrades Association held their annual meeting in the club rooms last night, a large attendance of the members being present. The reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were read, the contents being indeed gratifying to all concerned. The election of officers for the ensuing year took place and resulted as follows:—

Hon. Pres.—Mrs. Eric Ayre.
President—Mrs. Dove.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. (Dr.) Cowperthwaite.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. H. J. Russell.
Secretary—Mrs. H. Wyatt.
Treasurer—Miss N. Russell.

Miriam H. Leaking Badly.

ATTEMPTS TO REFLOAT VESSEL UNSUCCESSFUL.

According to news received from Bell Island, the tug Hugh D. and S. S. Cabot made an unsuccessful effort last night to pull the stranded schooner Miriam H. into deep water. The vessel has become embedded in the beach gravel and fears are now entertained of refloating her. A very heavy sea is heaving in the Tickle today and the vessel, pounding heavily, is making much water. Should the sea continue to heave in for any length of time, it is likely she will become a total wreck.

Portia to Make Special Trip.

WILL BRING FISHERMEN'S SUPPLIES TO WESLEYVILLE.

It has been decided to send S. S. Portia direct to Wesleyville on her arrival in port. The ship is now at Argentinia and should the weather moderate she will reach here to-morrow. It is understood that the ship is making the special trip in order that the fishermen who were delayed in port on account of the recent deadlock over prices of fish may be able to get home their supplies. Cargoes from some twenty vessels now in port will be transferred to the ship, and the vessels will lay up here for the winter.

Fire on Ship Subdued.

CANADIAN GUNNER'S CARGO BADLY DAMAGED.

The fires in No. 1 and 2 hatches of S.S. Canadian Gunner were subdued last night about 9 o'clock after some 53 hours hard fight by the city firemen and longshoremen. Both firemen and stevedores deserve special praise for their excellent work under the most trying conditions, and although the smoke was suffocating they stood to their posts both day and night since the outbreak on Saturday afternoon. Captain Seaman of the Gunner speaks in very complimentary terms of the splendid work of all concerned, and says St. John's should feel proud of her firemen. The work of discharging the cargo is being continued to-day and it is expected that all the freight in No. 1 and 2 holds will be landed to-night. A survey of the ship will likely be held on Thursday. At present it is impossible to estimate the damage, but it is thought to be in the vicinity of $100,000. Only the cargo in the after part of the ship remains undamaged. Included in the 3,000 tons of cargo are, Flour to the value of $96,000, Oats, $25,000, Bran and Hay, $10,000.

Jackson Defeats Bell.

LOCAL RECORD SMASHED BY 11 SECONDS.

Laurie Jackson Winner of Last Night's Race.

Upwards of 2500 people witnessed our local runner, Jack Bell, go down to defeat last night in the Prince's Rink, before the feet footed Hallgongian, Laurie Jackson, who carried off the laurels, after an exhibition of running seldom witnessed in this country. He established a Newfoundland record, having covered the course in the fast time of 56 min., 22seconds, beating Bell's record by 11 seconds. The spectators were beginning to get seated comfortably away after four miles of the route had been covered, when everyone was more or less of the opinion that the race would not be won until the dying stages of the journey had been completed, judging by the closeness together of the runners, which had not improved from the very start. Another 12 laps of the course had hardly been covered when Bell was suddenly taken with a cramp in the stomach. It happened when 4 1/2 miles of the course had been finished, with Jackson in the lead, and Bell right at his heels. He was attended by his trainer, Mr. Eric Robertson, Dr. Fox, who was close by, and Stan Jackson, brother Laurie's trainer. From the time the attack overtook Bell until he gamely got up and continued on his way, Jackson had gained some eight laps, while in the remaining five miles he out lapped Bell three times, and at the completion of the 10 miles had 11 laps to the good.

TOPIC OF DISCUSSION.

The big racing event was the topic of discussion in sporting circles for over a week, and it was felt that the contest would be an exciting one from start to finish. Jackson, upon entering the arena, was accorded a tremendous ovation, and was followed a minute later by Bell who also received a similar reception. After a few words of instructions had been given by W. J. Higgins, and the announcement made that 160 laps of the course had to be covered, the crack of the pistol sent the runners away at 8.48 o'clock.

THE RACE.

From the outset Jackson took the lead, with Bell close at his heels. The pace was a trifle slow from the start, but after a few laps of the course had been covered the stride was quickened by both runners. Jackson was the cause of much comment, his running action and style being indeed pretty to watch, while Bell who was using his long stride to advantage, appeared to be taking things easy, two feet in the rear. The audience was in the best of humor and brimming over with excitement as the runners kept together. At the first mile mark, Jackson crossed over in 5.28 1/2, with both running well together. In the second and third miles there was still no change in their positions. Jackson crossed the lead over in 5.36 in the second, and 5.34 1/2 in the third. Entering into the third mile, indications were that it was going to be a close race, and a grueling contest to the finish was anticipated. Jackson increased his speed slightly and before twelve laps had been registered, Bell was seized with a cramp and was obliged to leave the course. His untoward and unexpected circum stance cast a gloom on the big proceedings. Many could hardly understand what had happened.

BELL GAMELY RESUMES.

Jackson in the meantime was making great gains and had eight laps to the good when Bell, to the surprise of all, gamely resumed the race and made hot pursuit after his man. He overhauled him quite easily and took the lead for a few laps, when Jackson went in front again. Over five miles of the course had now been covered, and it was a foregone conclusion that Jackson would win as a lead of eight laps for a runner to cut down was altogether out of the question. Bell who still appeared to suffer from the violent attack of illness which affected him was not running to his usual form, and when Jackson finished his sixth mile he had a half lap to the good, and in running his own race for time he completed the full lap after 7 1/2 miles of the course had been covered. Bell ran close to him for several rounds, but it could be seen that he appeared to be in no fit condition, and at the end of the eighth mile, the visitor lapped the local boy a second time, having now 10 laps to the good. Jackson continued steadily along, and seemed to improve as the final stage drew near, and his occasional outbursts of speed showed that he was a runner of no mean ability, and he received hearty applause from the gathering on numerous occasions. Running into the last mile he increased his lead, and gained another lap. At the final he sprinted a full circle of the rink and crossed the finishing line with a terrific burst of speed in the excellent time of 56 minutes and 22 seconds. Jackson received rousing cheers for his good clear win and splendid performance.

BELL GIVEN AN OVATION.

Bell who was eleven laps behind the Nova Scotian continued on and finished the last lap with a fine burst of speed, his time was clocked at 69.42 1/2. Bell received a fine ovation. He was loudly cheered and many a friend in sympathy with him regretted the cause which prevented him making a better showing. After the race had concluded, Mr. W. J. Higgins presented the beautiful silver cup to the winner, which was specially imported from Toronto for the occasion. Jackson stated after the race that only one out of a hundred would continue the race as Bell did. He hoped that the five mile race would be as closely contested on Thursday night.

EXCELLENT ARRANGEMENTS.

The management are deserving of congratulations for the manner in which the arrangements at the rink were carried out especially in the handling of the large gathering who attended. The smoking regulations were enforced to the letter, and all appeared desirous of showing the athletes every consideration. The Mt. Cashel Band, under Capt. Bulley, was present during the race, and rendered a very excellent musical programme. Laurie Jackson has decided to compete in the five mile race at the A.A.A. Sports on Thursday night, entries for which are closing this evening at 6 o'clock. Bell and O'Toole will also enter, and the contests should prove extremely interesting judging by last night's exhibition. Bell suffered much pain after the race had concluded, but felt better after receiving a good brisk rub down.

His Excellency the Governor will hold a Levee at Government House on Wednesday, 6th inst., at 12 o'clock noon.

Each person attending is requested to hand a visiting card to the A.D.C. Uniform, with decorations, or morning dress.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

AFRAID OF CHANGE. TIENTSIN, China, Dec. 5. Reports received here say Chinese bandits have taken control of Tientsin, Shantung, the Kiaochow port, whose stormy career in war and diplomacy was to culminate to-day, in its return to China, after twenty-four years of Alien rule, the first sixteen under German, and the last eight under Japanese rule. The population is fleeing from the city.

NEAR THE TOMB OF THE PROPHET. LONDON, Dec. 5. The Morning Post's correspondent says Mohammed VI, former Turkish Sultan, is reported to have accepted the invitation of King Hussein, Sovereign of the Hedjaz, to reside in Mecca.

RECURRENT OF QUAKE. MEXICO CITY, Dec. 5. An earthquake, lasting twelve seconds, was felt at Oaxaca City yesterday morning, moving north to south, without damage.

GENERALS RELEASED. ATHENS, Dec. 5. General Pallis, former Chief of Staff in Asia Minor; General Exadaktylos, former Chief of General Staff, and General Valetta, former Assistant Chief of Staff in Asia Minor, were liberated from prison yesterday, having been arrested in connection with the disaster to the Greek Army against the Turks.

ICE PATROL FOR ATLANTIC. BOSTON, Dec. 5. The coastguard cutter Tampa left yesterday for Halifax to take up the annual ice patrol on the transatlantic lanes and Grand Banks.

WHEAT RAISING CHAMPIONSHIP. CHICAGO, Dec. 5. Canada won the oats growing championship at the International Grain and Hay Show last night, when the entry of J. W. Biglands, of Lacombe, Alberta, won the sweepstakes over a large field. His samples weighed forty-six and a half pounds to the bushel.

FREE STATERS TAKE OATH. DUBLIN, Dec. 5. The stormy career of the Provisional Parliament came to an unceremonious end when it adjourned at five yesterday and took the oath under the treaty, thereby becoming the Chamber of Deputies of the Irish Free State. Members maintained their usual placid appearance, in spite of numerous warnings from the rebels. Every precaution is being taken to guard against an attack on the Deputies.

First Fire Brigade Formed in London.

Though many people are interested in fire—though it is almost a universal custom to suspend all business or other pursuits to watch the big engine and hook-and-ladder, as they rush around the corner or down the street, few people really know when organized fire-fighting first came into being.

The origin has been traced only recently and the story is an interesting one to the man who still cherishes his little boy love for fires and seeing the fire-engines go by.

Research shows Pudding lane in the heart of London, and Sept. 2, 1666, as the date and place of birth of organized fire fighting.

GREAT FIRE OF LONDON. In a wooden house fronting on that the by-street, broke out the fire which burned steadily for four days, burning out 436 closely settled acres, and which is spoken of to this day as the great fire of London. Modern fire insurance may also be said to date from this conflagration. It was no longer over than men put their heads together to see what could be done to prevent the recurrence of such a disaster and to mitigate in the future sufferings such as they had just witnessed. To one Nicholas Barbon is credited the idea of applying insurance to real property—what we now call fire insurance.

Twelve months had not elapsed after the fire when the first company had been formed to insure such property, followed by others. These companies, in order to protect their interests, were active in devising the most efficient fire-fighting arrangements then possible.

Fire brigades the establishments were called. While they were poor, ineffectual organizations as compared with the fire organizations of to-day, with their powerful gasoline engines, water towers, aerials and chemicals, which may all be brought into play by pulling a hook in a corner fire alarm box, they were the best fire defenses then existing.

ROME AND FIREMEN. Pliny testifies to the fact that organized fire fighting of a kind existed

Burin Lights The Torch.

GREAT DEMONSTRATION LAST NIGHT. BURIN, To-day. Special to Evening Telegram. Splendid meeting held here last night amidst great enthusiasm. Court House crowded with people, all in sympathy with Resolutions dealing with reduction of public expenditures, reduction of taxation and early summoning of the Legislature.

THOS. LEFEUVRE.

In Rome during the first century, of the Christian era, and in certain European cities down through the middle ages the schooled fire fighter was not unknown. In London, before the great fire, there had been firemen of a sort. But following the conflagration of the town made of fire fighting and it became a regular separate vocation. The London fire brigades, established by the insurance companies, remained through all the 18th century and the first quarter of the 19th the only organized system of fire defence in the city of London.

Five important insurance companies maintained these private fire brigades, the members of which were called watermen. Each of these restricted its services to fires originating in or spreading to property insured by the company employing them. The fire insurance companies had hung over the doorways of buildings which they were interested in protecting "fire-marks" or house plates. The brigade responding to the alarm of the watermen were able to identify "company property" by these house plates and to set about the task of extinguishing the flames.

According to the national board of fire underwriters their policy became so fixed that finally men of brigades not interested, if they happened to arrive first upon the scene, would step back to await the coming of the "proper" brigade, meanwhile allowing the property to burn.

BECAME SKILFUL. Considering their limited equipment and facilities, these brigades became very skilful in extinguishing fires. At first this equipment consisted of little more than a few lengths of stout hempen rope, a varied assortment of iron hooks and some leather bags and axes. Rude hand pumps and huge, awkward syringes for spraying the flames soon made their appearance, the prototypes of our modern pumping engines and connected hose. The flexible hose made of leather, invented by the Van de Heyde brothers of Amsterdam, came into use after 1750.

Each brigade possessed a distinctive company livery for "dress" as well as service wear. The former was resplendent, and ran to flaming blue or scarlet jacket with ample plush breeches.

In the interests of economy and efficiency it was suggested from time to time that the different brigades be merged into one organization under one head, but the fact that each brigade was jealous of its reputation and of the distinction which its members had earned made them loath to accept the suggested arrangement.

In the year 1825, however, the Sun, the Union and the Royal companies united their brigades, placing them under a single superintendent. The Atlas and the Phoenix shortly afterwards entered the combination. Within seven years almost all of the fire brigades in London had united, forming the London Fire Engine Establishment, which continued to function until 1865.

CITY TOOK OVER STATIONS. The municipal authorities took hold in 1865, and, with the passage of the Metropolitan fire brigade act, stations and equipment were all taken over. The burning of the House of Parliament in 1834 is cited as having constituted a strong contribution factor in promoting the change of authority which was followed by the decision for municipal control of fire fighting.

Early American fire-fighting records show that house-plates to identify property were in use to a certain extent here also, with fire insurance companies something like their British prototypes, but that the men who attended fires salvaged property, leaving the fire extinguishing work to volunteer firemen.

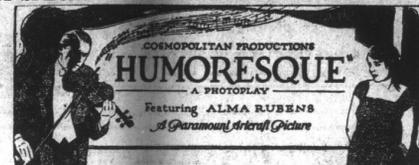

It is recorded that in 1659 Peter Stuyvesant, as governor of New Amsterdam, purchased and distributed 250 leather buckets and a supply of ladders and hooks. A tax of one guilden was imposed on every chimney in town to provide for the maintenance of this fire-fighting equipment. Watchmen, who made their rounds nightly in groups of three or four to guard against any disturbance of the peace, were on the lookout for incipient fires.

EVERYBODY OUT.

The maid was instructed to say "not at home" to any visitor. So when the caller came she told the visitor that the visitor that the master had gone out. "Oh, it would be just as well if I saw Mrs.," "She's gone out as well, sir," replied she. "In that case, I'm sure they won't mind if I come in and sit by the fire." "I'm very sorry, sir, pursued the girl, "but the fire's gone out, too."

Writings of Lenine to be Published.

IRIGA.—A complete edition of the works of Nikolai Lenine is about to appear in Russia. It is to include everything he has written and will, in all probability, consist of 19 large volumes of over 400 pages each. The material is arranged in chronological order. The first volume will be called "The early development of the Socialistic Labor Movement during the period of 1894-1899." The essays written by Lenine when in exile fill several volumes. The eighth volume is entitled "The First Russian Revolution, 1905-1907." Volume 9 deals with the agrarian question; volume 10 is on the world war; volumes 15-18 describe the "Reign of the Proletariat," and the last volume deals with the "Question of Nationalities." The books are to be brought out by the state.

Entertained by Archbishop of Canterbury.

LONDON.—Dr. R. R. Moton, successor of the late Brookier T. Washington as head of Tuskegee Institute, was the guest of the Archbishop of Canterbury in London recently, after a visit to Scotland where he attended the Scottish National Missionaries Conference. Dr. Moton is also head of the National Negro Business League. He was entertained by the Archbishop at luncheon, after which he visited the British Institute of International Affairs. Dr. Moton said that the Archbishop of Canterbury showed a deep interest in the welfare of the black races, and that he was anxious to find a means of making proper adjustments between the white and the black races.

Graft Punishable by Death in Russia.

MOSCOW.—A strenuous campaign against graft among state employees, inaugurated some time ago by the Soviet government, has brought to trial in various parts of the country hundreds of individuals, some of whom already have been convicted and put to death for their trickery. At Nizhni Novgorod eight men accused of swindling the government in connection with the installation of an electrical plant along the Volga, were sentenced to be shot, while 21 others tried simultaneously were sent to prison for various terms of years. In connection with the collecting of the grain tax imposed by the state, three men in the Moscow district, charged with making false entries by which the government was cheated of great quantities of grain, were sentenced to pay the sum while in London recently, after a visit to Scotland where he attended the Scottish National Missionaries Conference. Dr. Moton is also head of the National Negro Business League. He was entertained by the Archbishop at luncheon, after which he visited the British Institute of International Affairs. Dr. Moton said that the Archbishop of Canterbury showed a deep interest in the welfare of the black races, and that he was anxious to find a means of making proper adjustments between the white and the black races.

Scotch Fishermen in Want.

LONDON.—The failure of the herring industry in the North Sea, during the last two years, has been due to the fact that the currents in the North Sea have changed their course, says the chairman of the Scottish Fishery Board. The huge shoals of herring which once inhabited the North Sea near the Scottish coast, have almost entirely disappeared, and with them the living of scores of fishermen. Scientists are preparing a report and a chart which will explain and illustrate the changes of the currents. Bottles which usually travelled south are now picked up in the Shetlands.

Strawberry Plant Bought for Fifty Thousand Dollars.

THREE RIVERS, Mich., Nov. 22.—Fifty thousand dollars was paid for a single strawberry plant yesterday by Frank B. Beatty, president of the R. M. Kellogg Company, fruit growers. The plant is to be known as "Rock Hill" in honor of its breeder, Hixlow Rockhill, of Conrad, Iowa. The price is believed here to be the highest ever paid for a single strawberry plant. The plant bears in early summer and begins again in the late summer, bearing continuously till frost comes. The purchaser said yesterday he believed the plant he had purchased would revolutionize the strawberry industry.

Bonar Law Will Not Receive Deputation of Women.

LONDON, Nov. 29. — (Canadian Press Cable)—Premier Bonar Law treats women's deputations as he has the unemployed. The women want to interview him regarding extension of the female franchise but the Premier says he has already indicated all his present views on that matter. While declining to receive the unemployed, the Premier is soon to meet a deputation of miners. His explanation is that the miners approached the proper department first, but as negotiations have broken down he is at liberty himself to attempt a settlement, whereas the unemployed have not conducted even preliminary negotiations with the department primarily concerned.

DRIFTING APART.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 5. Turkey and Europe apparently have drifted so far apart on great issues in the Near East Conference that pessimists have a fruitful field for unhappy prognostications on the resumption of war in southeastern Europe. So long as no actual break occurs there is hope that time will bring conciliatory views, but that the worst is feared is evidenced by the appearance here of the suggestion that a general war could be launched against Turkey by the League of Nations. Although entente nations and United States have not publicly stated their views on

FOUND DESERTED AT SEA
IN 1872; MESSING.

Forty years ago, on Nov. 7, 1872, the Mary Celeste sailed from New York on a voyage that was destined to furnish the deepest of all mysteries to the literature of the sea. She was bound for Genoa with a cargo of case oil, much of it Spanish, and a comparatively new vessel, well provisioned and equipped and well manned, with state of Maine officers, but she never got to Genoa.

A few weeks after passing out by Hook the brig was sighted off Cape Cod, all plates set and her address, all papers in every small aback, shipshape in every respect.

But abandoned. The Portuguese brig Del Grata, on the Mary Celeste and, getting no response to signals, sent a boat to search for her. The boat's crew were puzzled at first, but they found a vessel in perfect shape, but all crew and cargo were missing.

There was no sign of mutiny; stores were abundant; the weather had been good and the brig had not lost so much as a rope-horn. Why, then, had she been abandoned?

Specimens who have used the mystery as the basis of stories have advanced all sorts of theories, but most of them are had guesses of sea men.

Practical seafarers suggest that the brig's cargo began to "grumble" and that gas had formed in the upper spaces of the naphtha cans, causing a terrifying rumbling noise, which caused the crew to believe that the ship was sinking, and they decided to leave her in a hurry.

The weather was fine, and so were the boats never seen or heard from? To this the answer may be that they tried to make a landing at St. Mary's, where the surf is treacherous, and all were capsized and the occupants drowned. The great mystery remains unsolved.

How Many Books in the World? Discussed.

Estimates have been made of the total number of books issued since the invention of a movable type, about 1454. They range from as high as twenty millions to as low as ten millions.

The authority says that the approximate total in the 18th century was 200,000; in the 17th, 57,000; in the 16th, 1,250,000; in the 15th, 4,000,000; and in the 14th, 8,250,000, which brings the total at the beginning of the present century to 12,000,000 separate books.

The experts differ again as to the present annual output, but a minimum figure gives 250,000 volumes. For the last 22 years the average works market of approximately 300,000 volumes per year, or a total of 4,400,000 since 1900.

This raises the grand total of the world to-day (exclusive of the local and official and ephemeral output), to over 16,500,000.

It may be said that this enormous number it can be said that not more than 50,000 are worth preserving permanently. Indeed, 30,000 would be nearer the mark for there are not more than that number of real living works of permanent value in the English language.

The reader who doubts this should consult a list of even 5000 "Best Books" in order to find out what a Herculean task he has undertaken.

Then the present annual output of books in this country alone is considered it will be found that the figure printed is about 7500. Excluding reissues, and the like, the number of new books may be reckoned as follows:

will the taste of the average general reader, in technical, legal and commercial literature, sermons, Bibles and prayer books, be omitted from this total. Even the reduced figure reaches 2000.

By Ruth Cameron.

STYLES IN WORDS.

"My daughter is very much upset," a comfortable middle aged woman told me recently, "because I keep forgetting and call the woman who works for us 'the maid' and I do try to. But in my younger days she was always 'the girl' or perhaps 'the hired girl' and I can't get out of the habit of thinking of her that way. I can't see what difference it makes but Julia says that styles in words change just as much as styles in clothes and that it stamps you as passe to be out of date in one just as much as the other. I don't know as I care if I am stamped as passe, but Julia seems to feel so strongly about it that I try to remember."

She smiled as she spoke in a way that showed her sense of humor wasn't passe, but as active as her daughter's—rather more so, I think from what I know of the two.

Bad As a Gold Wedding Ring.

But the daughter is right about styles in words. To use certain words is to advertise the fact that you are of the older generation and not keeping up with the times as surely as well, as to wear a gold wedding ring instead of having it covered with platinum so that one will appear to have been married in the platinum age. Here are some of the words you want to be adjudged hopelessly provincial and passe. Once upon a time we wore night-dresses. That was when we, you and I, were very small children, of course. Then we graduated into nightgowns and wore them up to a year or two ago. Now only the hot poll' wear nightgowns, people who are 'in the know' wear night robes.

Face Cloths.

Again there was a time when ordinary people washed their faces with wash rags. I am not quite sure whether the super-folks used them, too. But now even the most ordinary people use face cloths.

When I used to play paper dolls each grownup paper doll had one grand best dress which I referred to as her ball dress. But even then the style was beginning to change—it was some years after the popularity of "After the Ball," Reader Friend, if you care to use that as a clue—and my older sister used to reprove me for that phrase and urge me to substitute evening dress. And now evening dresses are in their turn laid away in lavender and old lace and the up-to-date miss wears either a dinner frock or a dance frock.

Sometimes antique words, like unique furniture come back into style and are more chic than the modern word. Witness the recent eclipsing of the modern word corset by that quaint old word, stays.

Women's Words.

In those old days when "After the Ball" was still faintly echoing, and my paper dolls wore ball dresses, my big sister used to entertain guests of a summer evening on the piazza. But when her own daughter reaches the age for entertaining guests of a summer evening, she will entertain them on the verandah. A great improvement, I think, for piazza is such an ugly word.

You will note that most of these changes are in words that belong particularly to woman's domain. I wonder if there are as many changes in masculine words and that I am not conscious of them simply because I do not have so much traffic with them, or whether there really have not been as many changes. I am inclined to think the latter.

To Visit Bermuda.

Commandant H. A. Hurd, Financial representative of the Salvation Army in Canada East and Newfoundland, who has been here for some weeks on business in connection with the new Maternity Hospital, has received word from Commissioner Sowton that he is appointed to conduct a campaign in the interests of the Army's financial work at the Bermuda, during the months of January and February next. Commandant Hurd's territory, formerly extended only from North Ontario to Cap's Breton, Newfoundland being included last summer. The fact then, of his being sent (we understand by special request) to the Bermudas is a proof of his abilities as a Financier. The officer at present in charge of the Army's various activities in Bermuda, in conjunction with whom the Commandant will conduct this campaign, is Commandant E. Hiscock, a native of Newfoundland, who spent nearly twenty years as a successful officer in this country. Then he moved to Canada where he made good and whence he was appointed to his present command where he is having great success and doing credit to himself and the land of his birth. The Army has four corps in the Bermudas, namely, St. George's, Hamilton, Southampton, and Somerset. Commandant Hurd has been very busy since coming here, and, as a result of his efforts, a large portion of the funds necessary for the completing and furnishing of the Maternity Hospital, is now in sight. He will address a public meeting, to be held in the interests of the Maternity Hospital, in the Presbyterian Hall tonight, and those interested in this great work will do well to attend. COM.

Peru Still Store of Precious Metals.

The principal problem of the engineer or prospector searching for precious metal outcrops in Peru is not to find a good one, as it is in the United States to-day, but to select the best of thousands that are available, having due regard to the many other factors necessary to insure development into a successful mine. Remember, says a correspondent in the Engineering and Mining Journal-Press of New York, that prospecting on the high Andes is much easier than in the lowlands, as there is no vegetation, the rocks are barren and clean, and the outcrops are perfectly visible for long distances and in great depths, for nowhere else on earth is the crust cut into so deeply as here.

Picking the proper mining prospect in Peru resembles making the right selection of a piece of jewelry in a big store. In Peru, along certain lines of the Andes, you fall over outcrops every few miles all along your course, and here comes in the question of what to choose—it is a question of cash, experience, tact, taste, and situation as regards transport facilities.

I fancy I can hear your mining readers exclaim: "Yes, we know all about Peru and also about the enormous altitudes above sea level, the cold, desolate and bleak uplands; the absence of roads, and transportation difficulties; the political struggles," and so forth. No doubt many, very many, objections; but mines are where we find them, and are not made or placed to order. Do we find such mighty veins or deposits as are to be found scattered in such profusion all over the Peruvian Cordillera garden of Eden on Broadway Madison Square? Were the Western U.S.A. found entirely placed alongside a mine were railways built to the Nowhere else on earth does the investigator find high-grade deposits in such abundance as that. That the country is new and unexplored and that there are many outcrops to-day is true; but it is improving, and the day is not when there will be a large area for mining properties here.

By study and selection of competent and conscientious engineering and geologists could all be brought into use and remunerative exploitation.

Russian Bandits Respect A.R.A. Supply

SAMARA—One of the largest gangs in Russia—1700 strong—neither the Red Army nor the Whites as yet stamped out, continue to operate in the Pugachof district. No way have the robbers ever attempted to interfere with A.R.A. workers. It has been estimated about 1200 of the men have been deserters who operate in units of 20 men. According to reports, the bandits always make it a point to avoid anything belonging to American Relief Administration. Balakova the government was robbed while the A.R.A. house, next door, bulging with sugar, canned milk and other things to eat, was not even touched. As an illustration of further cooperation by the bandits of the sufferers, it is related that the gangs last summer robbed one of the A.R.A. village kitchens, tasted the food being prepared for children; pronounced it excellent, chucked a few youngsters and, wishing them good night, wished them their way to the village treasurer, who had looted.

"Could you fix me up a dose of oil so it won't taste?" asked the druggist. "Certainly, Madam. Wait a glass of soda while you are waiting." "Oh, thank you," the girl said after drinking the soda. "Is there anything else?" "No, just the oil." "But you have just drugged me with soda water," she said. "Oh, dear! It was for nothing." Cub Cigarettes are popular not only by the smokers but by those in his company.

Show Them

What this new way does

No mother wants children to suffer what she may have suffered from her teeth.

Then teach them the new way of teeth cleaning. Show the prettier teeth it brings, the whiter, safer teeth. Or let them make this test, and see and feel the benefits themselves.

Must fight film

Dingy teeth and most tooth troubles are now traced to film. One must fight to avoid them.

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Stains discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions on it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So, under old methods, very few escaped tooth troubles. Beautiful teeth were less often seen than today.

Two ways found

Then dental science, after long research, found two ways to fight film. One acts to curdle it, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then dentists the world over began to advise their use.

A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. These two great film combats are embodied in it for daily application.

Its new effects

Pepsodent brings other effects which research proved essential. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to constantly neutralize the acids which cause decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Those are Nature's great tooth-protecting agents. Each use of Pepsodent gives them manifold effect.

For dainty people

Pepsodent is now used by millions the world over. Careful people of some fifty nations have adopted it, largely by dental advice. Dainty people—those who care for whiter, cleaner teeth—will never go without it.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

One week will give you a new conception of what clean teeth mean. It will point the way to a new dental era, both for you and yours. Cut out the coupon now.

Leghorn Lays 335 Eggs in One Year.

"Lady Jewell," said to be the champion egg-layer of the nation, laid another egg recently at the western Washington experiment station at Puyallup, Wash., and closed her year's lay with a total of 335 eggs. The record, according to Supt. W. A. Linklater of the station, beats the former record of 324 eggs in a year, made by a California hen. "Lady Jewell," is a white leghorn, owned by H. M. New Fish Curing Process

"SALUNOL" AND "SALUNOL" ICE.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—The enclosed letter has been forwarded by Dr. Grenfell which he thought would be of interest to the St. John's merchants. Would you kindly have same published in your paper?

Yours truly,
CHARLES F. WATSON,
General Secretary.

Dec. 5, 1922.

NR. RUNCORN,
1st Nov., 1922.

Dr. Grenfell.
Dear Sir—Our Managing Director, Mr. G. W. Malcolm, was greatly interested to hear you lecture the other evening at Winington. He was telling me something about the difficulties that confront the fishing industry in Labrador. He had gathered from your letters that one of the most important difficulties was that of keeping the fish in fresh condition long enough to reach the American or European markets.

We think you would be interested to know of a process we have recently introduced into the trawling industry in this country, with very successful results. Briefly, this process consists in freezing a minute quantity of an otherwise harmless germicide into ice. When the fish on board the trawler, after being gutted, are packed in this ice in the usual way, the low temperature maintained by the ice not only delays the ordinary process of decay but, as the ice slowly melts in contact with the fish, the weak solution of germicide that is constantly being set free bathes the fish of the fish and effectively destroys all bacteria, mould spores, etc., that normally cause decay. Fish can be kept for three or four weeks after catching, when packed in this ice, and at the end of that time, are in good, fresh condition.

The germicide we supply for this purpose is sodium hypochlorite. This is dissolved in the water before it is frozen into ice, to the extent of one part of hypochlorite in five thousand parts of water. When this water is frozen in the ordinary way in cans, the hypochlorite is found to be uniformly distributed throughout the block. It is impossible for this germicidal ice to effect the fish in any deleterious manner, either by imparting flavour, smell or discoloration to the fish. We call our hypochlorite solution "Salunol," and speak of the ice made with it as "Salunol" ice.

The amount of "Salunol" used per ton of ice costs about 1/6d. In addition to the improved condition of the fish, the process results in remarkable improvement in the condition of the fishroom, the drainage from the fishroom being perfectly sweet and free from any decaying organic matter.

Salunol Ice is already being used extensively in the British trawling industry; over seventy boats are using it consistently at Fleetwood, and others at other places.

It occurs to us that possibly this process might be of interest to you, and if you think it would, and you would like further information about it, I should be very happy to answer any questions you might like to ask, or, if you wish it, could come and see you.

Yours faithfully,

A 5-month-old calf, "Spicy Baron," has been sold by Representative John G. Winant of Concord, N.H., to the Japanese government for $1500 and will be added to the herd of the government agricultural college in Japan, it is announced.

The calf was raised at the Winant farm, Edgerstoune, at Princeton, N.J. It is from stock noted for great milk production and is the son of an imported bull that won the blue ribbon at the national dairy show in St. Paul, Minn., last month. The mother, "Luxury," has given 1000 quarts of milk in four months.

St. Joseph's Parish Convent School.
FORMAL OPENING BY HIS GRACE THE ARCHBISHOP.

On Sunday, December 3rd, a new Convent under the direction of the Sisters of Mercy was opened in St. Joseph's Parish, Holytown. The Convent was formally opened on Sunday morning, when His Grace the Archbishop, who was attended by his Secretary, Rev. P. J. Kennedy, celebrated the first Mass in the Convent Choir, at which were present the Mother General and representatives from the different Houses of the Order.

At the parochial Mass in the Parish Church which was a Missa Cantata, the Archbishop occupied the Throne in the Sanctuary, assisted by the Pastor, Father Pippy, and Father Kennedy. After the Communion of the Mass, His Grace addressed the congregation. Having read the Epistle and Gospel of the day, he said that the first Sunday of Advent, the beginning of the Church's ecclesiastical year, was an auspicious day on which to begin the work which they were inaugurating this morning. The Parish of St. Joseph's had grown and developed very rapidly within the past five or six years, and the opening of a Convent completed the parochial organization and was, therefore, an event of the greatest importance in the history of the Parish. Although the Sisters of Mercy had been working amongst the people of that section for many generations past—their association with the East End of the city going back more than half a century—it was only now that they were taking up their permanent residence in the Parish. His Grace took occasion to give a brief outline of the splendid educational record of the Sisters of Mercy in Newfoundland. He referred to their introduction into the country by Bishop Fleming in the year 1842, to the persevering efforts of that great Prelate to secure a foundation of the Order, which was the first foundation on this side of the Atlantic; to the many difficulties the Sisters had to contend with in the early years of their mission, to the gradual spread of the Order throughout the various sections of the Island, and to the great work which the Order was doing in the cause of Catholic education at the present time. He made special reference to the Academy of Our Lady of Mercy, the Mother House of the Order, in whose magnificent equipped new schools more than five hundred pupils were receiving the benefits of education; to the venerable institution of Belvedere where one hundred and fifty orphans were being cared for by the Sisters; to St. Bride's College, Littledale, recently extended and enlarged, the centre of education for pupils from all over the country, and to the opening of St. Clare's Hospital during the past year, a work which, he said, was eminently in harmony with the spirit and traditions of the Order of Mercy. Referring to the work of the Sisters of Mercy in the East End of the city he pointed out that one of the first schools opened by them was the old school of St. Bridget's which dated back to the year 1853. From that time, until the present, nearly sixty years, with a few brief interruptions the Sisters had been doing their noble work continuously amongst them. During all these years they had been working in the face of tremendous difficulties, teaching at a tremendous distance from their Convent, and in school surroundings of the most depressing and unfavorable kind. Among the many great works that stood to the credit of the Mercy Order none were more self-sacrificing or meritorious than their educational work in the East End of St. John's. The opening of their new Convent was a well merited recompense for their self-sacrifice and service of years. To the people it would be a priceless boon, as every new Convent was always a source and centre of spiritual and educational blessings to those amongst whom it was located. His Grace bespoke for the Sisters a warm and enthusiastic welcome by the parishioners, and in wishing the work every blessing and success he felt assured that its beneficent result would become more and more evident as the years went on, and that before long St. Joseph's School would rank amongst the finest institutions of the Mercy Order.

which for some years past has been used as a Presbytery is being handed over to the Sisters for the purposes of a Convent. The first Superior of the new foundation is Mother M. Benedict, who was for years attached to the Mercy Convent, and who is held in the highest esteem by many generations of the pupils of that school. In the afternoon a very pleasing programme under the direction of the Sisters, was presented by the pupils of St. Joseph's School in the Parish Hall at which the Archbishop and the Clergy were present.

Commandant Hurd, S.A., at Bell Island.

Commandant Hurd, S.A. spent the past week end at Bell Island where he was warmly welcomed and had a very successful stay. On Saturday night he gave a lecture entitled, "Many Years Through Smiles and Tears," being a racy sketch of his own experiences, both before and after his conversion. The Hall was well filled for this meeting and much interest was manifested. On Sunday morning the Commandant spoke on the word "Servant," showing clearly the qualifications necessary in order to be a good servant of Christ.

Three p.m. found the Commandant again to the fore. This time he gave what may perhaps be termed his famous lecture on the "Salvation Army Underworld." Almost all the Army's social activities were referred to briefly and the address was listened to most attentively by the large audience present. The references to the new Maternity Hospital caused intense interest with the result that Commandant Stickleland, on behalf of the Command and friends of Bell Island Corps, undertook to provide two hundred dollars for the furnishing of one private room, one hundred dollars of which was handed over on the spot.

A lady resident of the Iron Isle, to whom the Commandant explained the nature of the work, was so interested that she also donated two hundred dollars for the furnishing of a room making the financial results of his visit total the nice sum of four hundred dollars. Well done Wabana.

Sunday night the Commandant spoke on "Heroes who have Fought and Won," taking for his text Rev. 11. 40. He referred to several great men of the Old Testament and how these fought their way through numerous difficulties and conquered because God was with them. Coming to the latter days he spoke of Luther, Knox, Wesley, General Booth and others all of whom stood ready to sacrifice everything for the interests of God's Kingdom and God honoured them with great success. The address was listened to with the closest attention. At the close several persons came forward to the Mercy seat to receive divine strength for the good fight. Commandant Hurd returned to town this morning.—COM.

British Fish Monger
Died a Millionaire.

LONDON—America furnishes many instances of millionaires who rose from the ranks, but it is doubtful if even in America a millionaire ever made such a humble start in life as did Sir George Frederick Sleight, first baronet of Wetherby Hall, Great Grimby, who has just died leaving a fortune of nearly $5,000,000. Sir George began earning his living as a boy by gathering cockles on Clithropes Beach and hawking them through the town. He rose finally to be the largest individual owner of steam trawlers in the country. The greater part of his fleet was used during the war for mine-sweeping and submarine patrolling. For the services he rendered the country in this way he was made a Baronet, and the conferment of the title provoked no such scandal as has grown out of the award of many honors in recent years.

A PRETTY FROCK FOR AFTERNOON AND EVENING.

4166-4175 Brocaded canton crepe is here shown, with vest and facings of white georgette. This model is pretty for satin, crepe de chine or chiffon velvet.

The Waist Pattern 4166, may be developed without the sleeves or the bretelles. It is cut in 6 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. The Skirt 4175 is cut in 7 Sizes: 25, 27, 29, 31, 33, 35, and 37 inches waist measure. The width at the foot is 2 1/2 yards. To make the dress with sleeves for a 38 inch size requires 6 1/2 yards of 40 inch material. For vest, girdle and panel facing of contrasting material, 1 1/2 yard will be required. The dress requires 1/2 yard less without sleeves.

A NEW STRAIGHT LINE FROCK.

3812. Charming simplicity is featured in this pleasing style. The panels add length and becoming fullness. The closing is invisible at the left side of the front panel. This is a good design for remodeling. Satin and serge, plain and figured silk could be here combined. As illustrated Canton crepe, in a new shade of brown, was used, with a decoration of novelty braid.

The Pattern is cut in 3 Sizes: 16, 18, and 20 years. An 18 years size requires 4 1/2 yards of 27 inch material. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

A CHARMING STYLE.

3973. Loose panels, long shoulders, a pretty sleeve effect, and straight lines, these are outstanding features of this attractive model. It will develop well in the new crepe weaves or in linen, or combining tissues. For remodeling or combining two different materials it is also desirable.

The Pattern is cut in 6 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. To make as illustrated requires 3 1/2 yards of figured material, 38 inches wide and 2 1/2 yards of plain material 40 inches wide. The width at the foot is about 2 yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

A BOYS PLAY SUIT.

4142. This is a good model for galatea, drill, seersucker, gabardine and serge. The back is made with drop portions. The sleeve may be finished with the cuff or only the sleeveband.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. A 2 year size requires 1 1/2 yard of 40 inch material. To trim as illustrated requires 1/2 yards of contrasting material 32 inches wide.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

BOYS' BLOUSE AND KNICKER-BOCKER TROUSERS.

Pattern 3438 furnishes these two practical styles. It is cut in 6 Sizes: 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 10 year size will require 1 1/2 yard of 36 inch material for the Blouse and 1 1/2 yard for the Knickerbockers. Serge, chevrot, corduroy and khaki are good for the Knickerbockers and cambric, madras, linen, chambray and flannel for the Blouse.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

A NATTY SUIT FOR THE LITTLE MAN.

4170. This is a comfortable style, with new and pleasing features. The inserted pockets in the smock will please the "little fellow." The "knickers" too boast of pockets that are large enough to hold the many things boys like to keep with them.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: 2, 3, 4, and 6 years. To make the suit for a 3 year size, will require 3 1/2 yards of 32 inch material. For knickers alone 1 1/2 yard is required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

Appropos of the light thrown upon the character of the ex-kaiser, by the publication of his memoirs, this story is going the rounds of European diplomatic circles. Shortly before the beginning of the world war, Emperor Bill took his usual early morning walk alone toward a lake on one of his imperial grounds. He returned in a towering rage with his clothing soaking wet and covered with mud.

"He never did it! He never did it! he kept exclaiming. "What was it, sire, that he never did?" ventured his favorite valet. Looking down at his wet and bedraggled uniform, he roared: "He never walked on the water."
