The suggestion of preserving the scenery at Niagara falls came from Lord Dufferin

while governor general of Canada, and the people of Ontario will expect their representatives not to embarrass the project of forming a park at Niagara by granting privileges which are sought for the mere purpose of money making. The formation purpose of money making. The formation of a park at Niagara is a matter of more than provincial or even national importance. Niagara belongs to the world, and the Ontario legislature should consider their power over the territory as a sacred trust. If the government of Ontario, or of the dominion for that matter, would, themselves, take the matter in hand and carry out Lord Dufferin's idea of an international park, we believe that this would meet with the approbation of the country. We have before called attention to the application made by a number both sides of pullides, asking for an act empowering them to establish a park at Niagara falls. In the absence of action by the government this company should be encouraged, and certainly no privilege should be granted to any other parties, which might embarrass the carrying out of the undertaking. The commercial difficulties of raising money to pay for the land would necessarily be great, as the company propose to make the park free to the world, and they should be permitted to reap the benefit, or advantage to be derived from any incidental sources of revenue. The legislature of the state of New York has before it a bill to provide the money for a park on the American side. Ontario should not be behind hand; and if the legislature do not see their way to granting the requisite aid to create a park on the Canadian side they should strengthen the hands of a respectable body of men who have expressed their willingness to undertake the work, provided of course that the interests of the public are thoroughly guarded.

Ford of 463 Seaton street against the city for damages resulting from two falls received on Seaton street and Wilton avenue on Easter Sunday last, was commenced before Chief Justice Cameron and a jury at the assizes yesterday. Mrs. Ford testified that the first fall occurred through a projecting plank on Wilton avenue, and the second while returning from church in the evening, by the cap being left off a waterworks trap hole in the sidewalk opposite 76 Seaton street. The last fall was the most severe, and resulted in such serious injuries that plaintiff was compelled to give up keeping boarders, which was her sole means of livelihood. She said the first tall wounded her pride more than her person.

In the Ranks should do a big business at the Grand this week. It opened well last night. The drama is good in itself and the elaborate scale on which it is produced by elaborate scale on which it is produced by this company (Barney & Buckley's) tends to make it doubly attractive. As will be remembered by theatre-goers the first three acts deals with English rural life, and is the remaining three the military element figures in a strongly dramatic form. It is well presented by a large company, and the wonderful resources of stage mechanism are seen in the vast amount of scenery and settings that are so finely displayed and transformed. Whatever may be the opinion of oppos ing parties as to the merits or demerits of the Ontario government, on one poins everybody seems agreed, namely, that the movement that they have inaugurated with respect to forestry is likely to be a valuable one. Mr. Phipps, to whose care issued his report for this year, which is, like the last, intended for gratuitous circulation among the farming community. This method of sending out information by pamphlets and lectures on the evils of deresting, is the only one which has met with success in the United States, and indeed is the only one possible of success large number of proprietors, owning in fee or greenbacks to the amount of say ten she strictly prohibited the export of the in communities like our own, where a simple their respective properties, are the ones it is sought to influence. The work gives, in the small compass of 120 pages, (to which, by the way, it was well to limit it, as a small book will be read when a larger will not) hundreds of instances from Ontario farmers proving the absolute necessity, if we wish our farms to continue the necessity, if we wish our farms to continue the fertile, of preserving or replanting some forest near them. It gives also letters from the wood working factories of the province, such as furniture makers, car builders, agricultural implement men, and many others, giving the values and uses of various woods grown here, advising that they are becoming soarce, and suggesting remedies. There are also full instructions from leading specialists in the tree planting business, treating exhaustively of soils, methods of growing, care of plantations, etc. There is undoubtedly much valuable information; but that is not the chief merit of the work. This is found in the style of its writing, which is emistance of the work. The report is equally captivating with Mr. Phipps' last year's report on forestry for charm of style and illustration, while it has still greater interest to dwellers in this province, as its subject matter consists chiefly of the trees and forests of Ontario The duty so seldom performed by govern-ments in Canada of choosing competent talent for literary work has been in this instance well fulfilled by Mr. Mowat, who has chosen a thoroughly competent writer

And here, let us point out, is the great merit of the work. It is not as if the mass but that was during the panic and of farmers were interested in tree-planting. In that case a work written by anybody in any style, so that it contains valuable the subject, would be read by them. This is not the case. Our farmers, as a body, have been greatly injuring the country by over-clearing. But few are planting. A Neva Scotia "Bugabee."

The Globe gives prominence to a question asked in the Nova Saotia house of assembly on Saturday last by Mr. Fraser, one of the members. He asked the government what day they would fix for the discussion of a resolution affirming that Nova Scotia had been all but ruined by confederation and the N. P., and that it was advisable for her to "shake" the dominion, and then either set for herself again or join a union of the three maritime tion to lie on the table of the house for a resolutions would be understood to have re lation to the claim for better terms, in reference to which a unanimous resolution was passed last year, and it might be that the information which the government hoped to be able to lay before the house at no distant day would be useful to the honerable member and others in considering the resolution. The government were in hopes that an answer would very shortly be received to the address passed last year, and he would therefore suggest, if it would not interfere with the purpose of the hon. member, that he should allow the resolution to remain on the table of the house until the members were in a position to understand what answer they were to receive. Mr. Fraser expressed himself as satisfied with this explanation.

The Montreal Herald answered Mr. him up, and that he is not likely to live longer than a few months from now. We should say, besides, that it is something particularly to be regretted by the American not a likely man to let his own province be left out, whatever kind of a "deal" was going on. Also that Sir Hector Langevin, the minister of public works, has been most liberal and even lavish in his works.

The Herald says, further : Under Canadian legislation, too, she has branched out as a manufacturing country, the advance in manufactures in Nova Scotia—in proportion to the capital and population of the province—being greater than in almost any other portion of the dominion. Her inland and shore fisheries have been properly regulated and protected, and her catch of fish has been steadily augmenting, whilst her ship-building interests have been properly safeguarded. But would not this additional issue of evernment notes disturb values and disarrange matters generally: and would not the notes themselves be at a discount soon, as American greenbacks were during the war? We reply that no issue of ten millions, or yet of twenty millions, would suffice to do anything of the sort. The national greenbacks did depreciate in the United States, terror incident to a gigantic war, and after thousands of millions had been issued. Ten millions more would be less than one-third added to the present bank note circulation alone; or counting also the dominion ones and twos now affoat, it might perhaps be one-fourth added to the whole present circulation of bank and dominion notes together. But observe that it is not a stationary country, but a rapidly growing country, that is to be provided for. It is quite as reasonable to say that the Northwest territories and the Lake Superior require for their development ten millions more of note circus. That they are is by no means apparent to a large number of the electors. A great bors was all spent in the waste of war; it all went up in fire and smoke, as we may say. But our proposed very moderate issue would be spent in perfecting a great national work — a work for the furtherance of peaceful trade and traffic, the length of time a man has been engaged in the business, the amount of capital invested, and the actual depreciation in the control of the length of time a man has been engaged in the business, the amount of capital invested, and the actual depreciation in ought not to interfere with the purpose of the hon, member if he allowed the resolulittle while. for the country's good. These ought to be sufficient reasons for taking a bold step towards rendering this dominion as independent and self-sustaining as possible in her railway enterprises. But if for no other reason, it ought to be welcomed as an important advance towards what every patriotic Canadian should wish to see achieved—the establishment of a national currency for Canada. Opportunity and occasion suit well just now; let the powers that be strike the fron while it

A Departing Hero. It will be a grief to many people, in the old continent as well as in the new, to hear that General Grant's physicians have given adations for public works in that sick lion kicked by a jackass; and the cen sure will now strike home with redoubled force, we should say. The chief offender was General Rosecrans, Grant's forme companion in arms. After Rosecrans had been beaten at Chickamauga and had galloped to the rear, Grant took command of the army and a little later won a glorious victory at Chattanooga. For this interference Rosecrans never forgave him; and, being a member of congress from Califor nia, he recently made a set speech in the house against a bill for placing General Grant on the retired list.

The news will be sadly received in England, and probably by none more so than by the queen herself, who manifested a high regard for the great American general on the occasion of his visit to Europe. The masses of the English people, too, have always had an admiration for General Grant, and have believed him to be friendly to the old land; and in this they have not been mistaken, either. It may be remem-

Briefly and plainly—the growth of the country is the justification of the ladditional note issue suggested—the solid ground upon which the case for it must rest.

The national money issued by our neighbors was all spent in the waste of war;

That they are is by no means apparent to a large number of the electors. A great many think that they have already received all the returns they are entitled to from their business, and the country has already paid them in full. However this may be, it would be well to discuss the matter as calmly and dispassionately as possible. And I would suggest that the liquor men had better not call the temperance people all fanatics, for that has a tendency to make them mad, and to get them into a condition when they will not weigh carefully arguments.

the business, the amount of capital invested, and the actual depreciation in value of property resulting from the operation of a prohibitory law, would, among other matters, be taken into account.

I would suggest that if parliament decide to give compensation one of the conditions be, that the person applying for it shall not have broken the law while engaged in the business, and that he be required to establish his innocence before a judge and jury. If he be a hotelkeeper that he shall show that he has not violated the provisions of the Crooks act, which require him to close at a certain hour on Saturday evening, and require him to keep his bar closed until a certain hour on Monday morning, and that he has not sold liquor to minors, or to Indians. If he could not show that he had kept the law, it would be presumed that by selling unlawfully he had compensated himself in advance—by anticipation, so to speak, and was therefore entitled to no further consideration by the country.

And a second condition might be, that if the person receiving compensation should continue in the hotel business. and violate the person receiving compensation should continue in the hotel business, and violate the prohibitory law by selling liquor, he should be compelled to return all amounts

THE GRAND LODGE OF QUEBEC. What They Think in England of the Buil of Excommunication.

From the Freemason, London, Eng., Feb. 14,
The Toronto World tells us, as will be seen elsewhere, that a number of the American grand masters have already telegraphed their approval of the Quebec "Bull 1182, Imperial 124, 122; Federal 46, 452, of Excommunication." We are very sorry for the American grand masters who have pursued so hasty and undignified a course, if they have done so. But we do not believe all that we hear. The more we think over the "Quebec muddle," the worse and more hopeless it seems to us, a discredit to all professions of brotherhood, a very melancholy commentary on the outcome of contemporary freemasonry. The Toronto World admits, as our readers will notice elsewhere, as indeed it could not help doing, that the English lodges now working in Montreal are perfectly legal, and exist by virtue of a concordat made by Lord Zetland, representing the grand lodge of England, and Grand Master Wil-

It is said that the British government finds the question of ways and means so perplexing that the dominion, and therefore that it can be hurt in its dignity, or menaced in its jurisdiction by the existence of admittedly good legal lodges, seems something too absurd to contemplate or realize. We deerly regret the bad animus developed and the un-masonic temper evinced; but we are thankful to remember that the course of our English grand lodge has been from the very first up to this hour tempered by dignity, animated by honesty, marked signally by true masonic principles, and dominated by common sense.

VITH A MORAL-BY W. J. LITTLEJOHN. The capitalist was sitting in his library after dinner, having retired to that com fortable apartment to enjoy a cigar with which he would not profane the drawingroom atmosphere. To him presently his wife, a pleasant, matronly woman, not far from his own age, and handsomely dressed, as became the wife of a millionaire. There was nothing extraordinary about this couple. They were simply rich Americans, quiet, unpretentious people, who lived handsomely, went to church on Sunday and endeavored to bring up their children in a common-sens

They were on excellent terms with each other, being of domestic tastes, and neither had ever contemplated proceedings for divorce. In short, they were, with the sole exception of being somewhat richer than

"Well—yes, I think there is," and then he proceeded to detail a plan which so thoroughly coincided with his wife's views that she actually—45 as she was—went over to him and kissed him.

"That's a good boy," she said. "Margaret's 'man' must soon be here for his usual evening visit. I'll give orders to have him brought up, and you can talk to

After giving the necessary directions she went back to the sitting room. Presently a heavy tread was heard in the passageway, and a big, sturdy man was ushered into the library by an exceptionally neat and trusty looking maid.

The capitalist rose and shook hands with his somewhat abashed visitor.

"Thank you, Margaret," he said to the woman. "I'll ring presently. I want to woman, "I'll ring presently. I want to talk a little business with Mr. Brown. You may shut the door so that we shall net be interrupted."

Margaret blushingly retired, wondering greatly in her honest heart what the "business" might be, and resolving that she would make Tom tell her directly the in-

"Well, Brown," began the capitalist, after giving his visitor a chair, on which after giving his visitor a chair, on which he sat as if it were the most uncomfortable piece of furniture in existence. "Well, Brown, you know Margaret has been with us now going on fifteen years, and though we are very sorry to part with her, we are glad to see she is going to marry a man who will make her a good husband. I don't doubt you are that kind of a man, but being a good husband isn't everything. You want to get on in the world and make a good home for you both to pass a comfortable old age in. Now, you're a bricklayer, I believe. I don't suppose you get more than three dollars a day, and that only in busy times. Margaret says you fortable old age in. Now, you're a bricklayer, I believe. I don't suppose you get more than three dollars a day, and that only in busy times. Margaret says you have rented rooms in a tenement house in Avenue A.

"That's all right, and I don't doubt you will be very happy there for awhile, but three or four children, and you will stime and nothing at all the rest. You will, in all human probability, be a poor laboring man all your days. Her life and your life will be spent in a crowded tenement; your children will at best have but a poor chance te rise in the world, and they will have no end of chances to fail—no matter whether they are boys or girls.

"Now, I propose to give you a show to work the suppose that dyspepsia can't be cured, but must be endured, and life made gloomy and miser able thereby. Alexander Burns of Cobourg was cured after suffering fifteen years. Burdock Blood Bitters cured him.

A Cincinnati man claims to have a wife so hot-tempered that he can light his cigar from the flash of her eyes. He had made a good match when he married her.

no matter whether they are boys or girls.

"Now, I propose to give you a show to do better—to become a leading man in the town, to have a good home of your own, instead of paying rent in a tenement; to have fresh air to breathe and opportunities, if you are industrious and enterprising, to make a fortune. I will give you and Mar garet one thousand dollars if"—the capitalist paused and Brown looked up amazed; he had never thought of owning so much money at once, and the idea dazzled him—"if you will go out west to a place that I know of and build yourself a house and get a quarter-section of land.

"There is plenty of work for good mechanics there, at higher wages than you can get here, and you will see a hundred ways in which you can save and make in-ways in which you can save and make investments which will be sure to yield you a good return.

"Just think of it. Here, a crowded, unhealthful tenement. There, a house of your own under the blue sky. Here, no chance to do better. There, almost a certainty, with your habits and character, of laying by a comfortable fortune. Margaret will be the wife of one of the best men in town instead of perhaps taking in in town, instead of perhaps taking in washing to help along when you are out of work here.

"What do you say, Brown-will you Brown's eyes had lighted up, and he had straightened his shoulders instinctively as the capitalist had briefly set forth the pos-sible contrasts in these two lines of life. But when the question was put direct he hesitated, shuffled with his feet uneasily, and at length managed to say:

"Well, it's kind o' suddin, like. I'd like to talk it over with Margaret before giving an answer. It's very good of you, all the same."

"That's all right, Brown. Talk it over as much as you like till the wedding day, and then let me know your decision. The thousand dollars shall be ready for you the day you start for the West."

The wedding day came and Margaret and her beau waited on their would-be benefactor and, with some shamefacedness, made known their determination to stay in the city.

The wedding day came and Margaret and her beau waited on their would be benefactor and, with some shamefacedness, made known their determination to stay in the city.

The conversation, substantially as reported, actually took place some six years ago. Since then Mr. and Mrs. Brown have moved often from one tenement to another. They have three children, and Mrs. B., the neat nursemaid that was, is earning the major part of the household revenues by taking in washing, for Brown, when the cares of married life began to weigh upon him, took to ward politics, weigh upon him, took to ward politics, and the kids are in a fair way to bring up in the workhouse, unless some most nn-foreseen interposition of providence keeps them out of it. An Important Arrest. The arrest of a suspicious character upon his general appearance, movements or companionship, without waiting until he has robbed a traveler, fired a house, or me has roobed a traveler, fired a house, or murdered a fellow-man, is an important function of a shrewd detective. Even more important is the arrest of a disease which, if not checked, will blight and destroy a human life. The frequent cough, destroy a human life. The frequent cough, loss of appetite, general languor or debility, pallid skin, and bodily aches and pains, announce the approach of pulmonary consumption, which is promptly arrested and permanently cured by Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." QUEER KANKAKEE.

A Patient Commits Suicide and Another KANKAKEE, Feb. 28 .- George Morgan, patient in the asylum here, aged 28 years, committed suicide early this morning by tying the ends of two sheets to the side rail of his bed, one at the head and the other at the foot, making a noose in each. He then placed his feet in one noose and his neck in the other and threw himself over to the opposite side of the bed, where he strangled without making a struggle. Some time ago Morgan tried to starve himself to death, but was fed by a mechanical pump. When the attendant went into one of the female wards this morning she discovered that a patient named Mrs. Plumb, who was admitted from Vermillion county less than four months ago, had given birth to twin girls without even the knowledge of her roommate. lady entered. Really, to judge from his eyes, one would have said he was rather glad to see her. As for her, she evidently had "something on her mind," and her husband for the time being was of secondary importance.

Sitting down, she shaded her eyes from the fire.

"John," she said, "I am troubled about Margaret, the nurse."

"So am I," said John. "Was thinking about her to-day."

"Is there anything that can be done to make her life pleasanter than it promises to be after the is married?"

"Well—yes, I think there is," and then he proceeded to detail a plan which so thoroughly coincided with his wife's views that she actually—45 as she was—went over to him and kissed him.

Profitable Authorship.

A good deal has recently been said and written about the large sums which British authors have made by the sale of their works. Scott obtained £110,000 for eleven novels and nine volumes of tales. Lord Beaconsfield was offered £10,000 for "Endymion," George Eliot received £7000 for "Romela," and it is reported that her "Life" has already put £8000 into the pockets of her publishers. The profits of several continental authors have, however, been equally substantial. Lamartine resived £20,000 for his History and £4000 crillia, Barrie and intermediate points.

Judged from the pscuniary point of view, M. Emile Zola is probably the most suo-cessful of living authors. Local, Bealth Board-Assistant Police Court Clerk Appointed-The Mayor

After rountine in the council last nigh Ald Baxter rose to hurl back Ald. Hall's legation at the last meeting that he had crossed the ocean on a free pass. There is really bad blood existing between two representatives and they merriment by their frequent flare ups and recriminations. Last night Ald. Baxter opened fire by insinuating that his St. Andrew's ward rival was not a man of integrity, for which he was promptly called to order by the mayor. The weighty Ste Patrick's warder then dwelt upon his blameless record as an alderman and challenged anybody to prove that he worked for the interest of any company in the council. After some further remarks in this strain his worship thought the speaker had gone far enough, but Ald. laxter appealed to his colleagues for permission to proceed, which was voted by a meagre majority. Proud of this privilege, Mr. Baxter flaunted at his foe a letter he had received from the agents of the Dominion steamship company to the effect that in July last he had purchased from them a first class return ticket to Liverpool, paying for the same in cash. Ald. Hall was ready with a reply and boldly stated that the letter was not genu-ine, but he was ordered down by the mayor, and the scene was suppressed.

James Thomson requested, by letter, the council to hand over to him $90 in payment of his expenses for prosecuting the Industrial exhibition association for violation of the Crooks act, the amount to come out of the separate fund account which by direction of the act is "set apart to secure prosecutions of infractions of this act." The city treasurer has $200 of this account with a view of preventing deficits like the one that occurred in the waterworks department last year, which amounted to $30,000, two thirds being for coal alone. Heurged that no purchases be hereafter made unless it wasknown to a certainty that the approprtations therefor would pay for the goods. He thought that a permanent plumber should be employed for the city buildings, and, with an eye on the public health, he suggested that the health committee should at once arrange for the sanitary cleaning of all the water closets in the tary cleaning of all the water closets in the

A special committee was appointed to revise and consolidate the bylaws governing the engineer and commissioner. On motion of Ald. Defoe the works committee was asked to report on the advisability of repairing all macadamized streets on the local improvement principle.

A couple of hours were spent on the executive and other reports. Ald, Defoe moved to reduce the recommended pur-chase of 1000 toise of stone to half that quantity, but this was voted down. Regarding the personnel of the local board of health, the majority of the council con sidered it should be confined to aldermen, and accordingly appointed the following: Ald Irwin. Baxter, Allan, Jones, James, Johnston Verrall and Carlyle

There was a kick in committee against the proposal to employ A. R. Boswell to aid the city solictor before the arbitrators appointed to fix the prices of lots on the Bay street site. The opposition was, however, squelched, when the council divided and the report stood without

On motion of Ald. Frankland it was unanimously determined to send a deputa-tion to Ottawa to press the minister of agriculture for the $5000 grant to the agriculture for the $5000 grant to the Dominion exhibition for Toronto next fall. The council suspended the rules so as to allow an assistant police coutt clerk to be appointed. Curran Morrison, Francis Brown and W. J. Woods were entered. On the first ballot Mr. Morrison had such a majority that it was decided to make the arranged with the rector to sing in the don villa, yesterday at 2 o'clock. It was chancel Sunday morning but the seats largely attended by the prominent there being occupied by the children of the Orphans' home, the proposed arrangement was not carried out. On Sunday next; was not carried out. On Sunday next, however, the cathedral musical committee will arrange to have the singing there. As an experiment an organ has been temporarily placed in the chancel and for the past two Sunday evenings the choir has sat there. The question of vemoving the organ and the shoir to the chancel has been talked of, but it is believed that for the present at least, the expense would be too great, and it is thought by many that a new organ would also have to be purchased.

Ollerings were exceptionally beautiful, amongst which were particularly notice—able a pillow from the relatives with the word Rest, one lettered Police from the force of the city, and a wreath from the board of directors of the National club, of which Col. Denison is president. The remains were placed in the vault of St. James' cemetery until the spring, when they will be removed to the family burial ground.

James Bonner and Charles D. Warren were fined $1 and costs or 10 days The Sanitary Association.

At the monthly meeting of the sanitary association in the Canadian institute last night, President Langley occupied the phair. An exhaustive and interesting paper on ventilation was read by David B. ick, architect, after which a number of important amendments to the plumbing by-law were adopted by the meeting.

There was a large attendance of plumbers and citizens generally, and the public are evidently becoming deeply interested in the question of having the plumbing and ventilation of their homes and places of business carried out on sanitary prin ciples. At the Roller Rink.

BROWN'S BIG FIND.

the Industrial Exhibition Directors Sit on the Man who Said he Found $2000. The directors of the Industrial exhibition met yesterday afternoon, president Withrow in the chair, to enquire further into the reward asked for by James Brown, who alleges that he found the sum of $2000 during the continuance of the exhibition last year, which he handed to one of the manager's clerks for safe keeping. Brown was called before the directors, and after informing them that he would not tell a lie for a fortune, proceeded to relate how on the morning of Sept. 18 last while engaged in sweeping out the president's and manager's offices on the grounds he had found a package containing a large sum of money, more than ever he had owned before, yet he had not counted it, but placed it in the drawer of a deak where there was clarificated in the drawer of a deak where there was a large box full of silver. He then sent a policeman for one of Mr. McGee's clerks to inform him of the finding of the money. The bills were tied around with a thick cord, and neither the policeman nor he could epan it with one hand. They both could span it with one hand. They both judged the roll contained $2000.

Then the directors got out their rolls of money and a hot discussion ensued as to how much money a roll of bills would contain that a person could span, adding a finger length, which Brown stated he had to add in order to encompass the roll. It was astutely decided that the denomination of the bills would have to be ascertained first of all. Brown having declared that he did not want his "vireasity" that he did not want his "vireasit assailed was allowed to retire.

Constable Robert Thompson was the constable Robert Inompson was then heard. He was called by Brown to the secretary's office and saw a roll of bills in a drawer in the office, the outside one being a five. He mentioned to one of Mr. McGee's clerks that he thought the roll contains about $1200 or $1300. He saw some silve in a box in the drawer besides. Brown had never told him that he found the money on the floor, and he (Thompson) had never said to anyone that there were $2000 in the roll. He believed there was more than $12 in the roll.

Gharles R. Cuthbertson, one of the secretary's clerks, remembered the morning when Brown claimed to have found the money. He had left a roll of bills, inside of which was a couple of packages of silver, and some valuable papers in the drawer in the desk. There was about $40 in the roll and there was a public beautiful and the second in the roll and there was a rubber band in the roll and there was a rubber band round it. The drawer was accidentally left open while he went to breakfast, and when he returned he found the money as he had left it. This was the roll which Brown claimed contained $2000.

After hearing the evidence of Mr. Mc-Kay, another clerk, the unanimous opinion of the directors was that Brown had found the money in the drawer, that the key.

was left in the drawer; that the key was left in the drawer accidentally by Mr. Cuthbertson; that Brown had no business looking into the drawer; that Brown never found $2000 or any other money on the floor and that Brown's claim

POINTERS FOR TIPSTAFFS.

The Sheriff Issues Printed Instructions to His Minions. Printed instructions were yesterday handed to the tipstaffs employed in the different courts that hold forth in the Adelaide street tombs. The constables are therein told their duty and how to discharge it. They are instructed in the art of managing and watching prisoners and are to be armed with a baton and revolver, and when in court with a long staff, as a mark of indentity and authority. Among the instructions are these:

On May 20 last Moses was charged before the police magistrate with non-pay ment of wages to a servant, and the defend ment of wages to a servant, and the detend-ant's paper in its report of the case alluded to plaintiff as a "blind vagrant." The Telegram in July published an alleged apology which was not satisfac-tory to the plaintiff, but again in September published a further apology which would have been deemed satisfac-tory had it appeared earlier. Moses' coun-sel contended, that hetween the time the sel contended that between the time the alleged libel was published and the date of the apology much harm had been done to the plaintiff in his business for which he was entitled to pecuniary compensation.
The defendant after being served with writ in the case had paid $5 into court, and the jury decided that sum was all that Moses was entitled to. The chief justice ccordingly entered a verdict for defend ant, who, however, will have to pay his own costs. Mr. Lount, Q.C., and Mr. Meyer for plaintiff; B. B.
