JOHN LABATT'S
INDIA PALE ALE AND XXX BROWN STOUT
Highest Awards and Medals for Purity and Excellence at Continental Exhibition, Philadelphia, 1876; Canada, 1879; Australia, 1877; and Paris, France, 1878.
TESTIMONIALS SELECTED.
Prof. H. H. Croft, Public Analyst, Toronto, says: "I find it to be perfectly sound containing no impurities of additional value, and strongly recommend it as a perfectly pure and a very superior malt liquor."
John R. Edwards, Professor of Chemistry, Montreal, says: "I find them to be remarkably sound also, brewed from pure malt and hops."
Rev. P. J. E. D'Arcy, Professor of Chemistry, Laval University, Quebec, says: "I have analyzed the India Pale Ale manufactured by John Labatt, London, Ontario, and I have found it a light ale, containing but little alcohol, of a delicious flavor, and of a very agreeable taste and superior quality, and commends with the best imported ones. I have also analyzed the XXX Stout, of the same brewery, which is of excellent quality; the flavor is very agreeable; it is a London brewer's exactly the same as for it, less bitter and alcohol, and can be compared advantageously with any imported article."

Caprice at Home.
No, I will not say good-by—
Not good-by, nor any thing
He is gone. . . . I wonder why
I laces are not sweet this spring?
How that crescent moon will smile!
I might follow him and say
Just that he forgot to kiss
Lily, when he went away.
Everything I want I miss,
Oh, a precious world is this!
What if night came and not he?
Something might mislead his feet.
Once the moon rise (oh! Ah, me!)
There are things that he might meet.
Now the rain begins to beat:
So it will be dark. The bell?
Some one some one loves is dead:
Were it he— I cannot tell
I'll tell him, oh, he's dead!
Half the fretful tears I shed,
Half the fretful tears I shed,
Half—! And but to think of death,
How might bring him through the gate:
Lips that have not any breath,
Eyes that stare— And I must wait!
Is it time, or is it late?
I was wrong, and wrong, and wrong:
I will tell him, oh, he's dead!
If the heavens no builded strong,
Love shall therein be secure:
Love like mine shall there endure.
Ligon, lison—that is he?
I'll not speak to him, I say.
If he calls to me to go,
"I was all to blame today:
Sweet, forgive me," why—I must!
—Mrs. S. M. B. Platt.

A New European Sporting Resort.
For the sportsmen in search of "new worlds to conquer" some interesting and trustworthy statistics are to hand from a country hitherto little visited,
and yet not difficult of access—to wit, Bosnia. The name of this province has long been associated with the maze of political problems included in the eastern question, but from official reports published by the local authorities of Bosnia and Herzegovina, we gather that these territories have some special claims to the attention, not only of statesmen, but of those who love the pursuit of big game.

It appears that the abundance of bears in the highlands and of wolves in the lowlands of Bosnia is such that the government offers capitulation grants for their destruction, and it is reported that in consequence of these offers during the ten years ending in 1889 884 bears and 8,100 wolves were destroyed. In the one year—1885—as many as 129 bears and 1,037 wolves were killed, and about the same number in 1887. The central highlands of Bosnia are said to be the principal haunt of the bears, especially to the south and west of Travnik and Serajevo, while northern Bosnia is overrun by wolves and harbors few bears.
There must be many sportsmen to whom it would be worth while to try their luck in a country so well stocked with bears.—Land and Water.

True worth is in being, not seeming—
In doing, each day that goes by,
Some little good, not in dreaming,
Of great things to do by and by;
For whatever man say in their littleness,
And spite of the fancies of youth,
There is nothing so kingly as kindness,
And nothing so royal as truth.

The old gray coat once worn by Napoleon I, which had been stolen from a Paris museum, has been recovered. It had got into the hands of an old clothes dealer, who had given seventy cents for it. The latest canal project is one to connect the Black sea with the Sea of Azov. The total length will be seventy-five miles, the length about seventy-three feet and the depth from thirteen to sixteen feet. An old Spanish captain named Lucas Negreiros Perez, who is ninety years of age, returned to Spain recently in his own ship, the crew and passengers of which consisted of his own family, numbering no fewer than 279 persons.

The Verral Cab, Omnibus and Baggage Transfer Company.

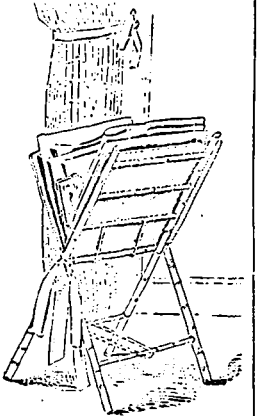

With a view of furnishing the travelling public with a reliable system of conveyance from the different Railway Stations and Steamboat Landings to and from the City, The Verral Cab, Omnibus and Baggage Transfer Company, of Toronto, has been organized, and was incorporated by the Ontario Government on 1st June, 1887, with a capital of $75,000.

The Company has made arrangements with the different Railway and Steamboat lines whereby its agents will canvass all trains and steamboats entering the City, issue omnibus tickets and give receipts for baggage, which will be promptly forwarded to the proper address, and generally give strangers and others visiting the City such information with respect to Hotels, Trains, Steamboats, etc., etc., as will enable them to reach their destination with promptness, expedition, and economy. Agent will pass through this train and exchange your baggage checks, giving you a receipt for the same.

TRUNKS DELIVERED TO ANY PART OF THE CITY FOR 25 CENTS. Each additional piece 10 cents.

Carriages may be ordered from the agent, or at the Company's office in the north-east end of the station, as shown above, at city tariff rates.

A PRETTY FANCY. Florence E. Tyng describes a Tasteful Holder for Perforated and Papers. Excellent provision may be made for loose papers and magazines in this way: Invest a dollar in a simple bamboo rack, and in the popular fashion of the day paint it with brilliant scarlet or deep yellow Japan paint. Only rich, full colors are well adapted to the black and white of ordinary literature gotten up in haste, and too apt to deposit a slight black dust on white or delicate tints. The joints of the bamboo may be touched with gilding or with colored bronze, yielding an effect worthy extra NEWSPAPER AND MAGAZINE RACK. pains and aching. A rich bow of scarlet or yellow ribbon to match the paint, tied at one side or both of the little rack, adds greatly to its appearance. A unique idea is to purchase several dozen tiny bells in various colors, to be bought for a few cents a dozen at any fancy goods shop, string these on a small silk cord to match the ribbon, and twist the cord about the several rods which form the rack; or it may be put about the lower rod only, making a row of jingling, bright bells like fringe at the bottom. What if they suggest "The fair Ophelia," "Sweet bells jingled out of tune" or a gushing brooklet, babbling as perhaps may some of the loose sheets among the well kept contents of the little rack? FLORENCE E. TYNG.

HONO. WEDDINGS. The first wedding to occur in the White House was that of Miss Todd, a relative by marriage of President Madison. Then in their order came the weddings of Elizabeth Tyler, a daughter of President Tyler; John Quincy Adams, Jr.; Miss Estlin and Miss Lewis, both during Gen. Jackson's administration; Martha Monroe, Nellie Grant, Emily Platt, a niece of President Hayes, and last President Cleveland.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP. The Alhambra, That Famous Citadel to the City of Granada. Alhambra is the name given to the fortress which forms a sort of acropolis or citadel to the city of Granada, in which stood the palace of the ancient Moorish kings of Granada. The name is a corruption of the Arabic Kull-al-Amra, "the red castle." It is surrounded by a strong wall more than a mile in circuit and studded with towers. The towers on the north wall, which is defended by nature, were used as residences connected with the palace. One of them contains the famous "Hall of Ambassadors." The remains of the Moorish palace are called by the Spaniards the Casa Real. It was begun by Ibn-ul-Ahmar and completed by his successors 1348-1348. The portions still standing are ranged around two oblong courts, one called the "Court of the Fish Pond" and the other the "Court of the Lions."

The Moorish palace, though severely plain upon the exterior, is exquisitely beautiful within. In the lower of the choicest marbles, "gilded ceilings, portions colored and fretted and filigree stuccoes of yall like transparency." Slender columns support the galleries, and gracefully bending palm leaves of marble form the arches, while beautiful fountains are scattered here and there. Besides the halls, courts, reception rooms and sleeping apartments the building contains a whispering gallery, a labyrinth and vaulted apsechairs. After the expulsion of the Moors from Spain their conquerors took pleasure in defacing and destroying their works of art, and the Alhambra was remodelled and partly blocked up. In 1819 the French took it, and in 1821 it was shaken by an earthquake.

SNAP SHOTS. The latest craze in amateur photography is to go abroad. A camera with a traveling front is the best for field work. Photo prints can be carried in the pocket without danger of cracking if mounted on muslin. All amateurs would do well to get a collection of cloud negatives, and now until August will be the best time. The recent fair held by the Hoboken (N. J.) Camera club to raise funds for the society, which has recently moved into a new club building, and is starting a fund to provide in the future for a new building of its own, was successful, and added a neat little sum to the treasury of the club. Among the survivors of the Utopia disaster was William T. Colburn, a member of the New York Camera club. He had been on a health seeking trip along the shores of the Mediterranean, and had taken over a hundred views, all of which were left undeveloped when the wreck occurred. They were all lost.

The new developer, cristallo, does not seem to be meeting with very much success. The basis of this developer is cocaine, and it is said to be very rapid in its working. The Brooklyn (N. Y.) Academy of Photography recently gave their thirteenth exhibition of lantern slides for the season at their rooms. Many local as well as miscellaneous views were exhibited. Mr. A. Peckles Smith, recently demonstrated a new paper called the gravauro type, which is coated with a combination of platinum and iron and salt and developed in a silver solution. The tone closely resembles the phototype. An exposure of one minute in sunlight is all that is required. The salmon fisheries of Alaska have yielded since 1881 more than the original cost of the territory. Venetia has 140,000 inhabitants. Of these no less than 40,000 are enrolled as recipients of relief; that is to say, nearly one-fourth of the population are paupers. The Diamond plate glass works of Kokomo, Ind., turned out a plate of glass measuring 164 by 216 inches, said to be the largest ever made in this country. A late telephone invention has a glass diaphragm resting on glass rods and communicating with the ordinary wire. A whispered conversation has been carried on audibly over a distance of three miles. Catcher Charles A. Farrell. One of the talented catchers of the Boston (American association) club is Charles A. Farrell. Catholic, Mass., is responsible for Farrell's six feet of unusual height, as he was born at that place twenty-five years ago. He first played ball with the Marlboro club, and in 1887 joined the Salem club of the New England league. The National league secured his services the following year, and as catcher for the Chicago club he captured no end of glory. Captain Anson retained his services during 1888 and 1889, but when the late unpleasantness between the Players and the magnates broke out, Farrell cast his fortune with the Chicago (Players) league club. He caught in ninety games last year, and had a batting average of .256 in 117 games. He stood fourth in slugging among the Players' league catchers, and had nineteen two-base hits, twelve three-buggers and only twenty-six strikeouts. Farrell is a remarkable printer, and watches second with a success only exceeded by "Eling" Kelly himself.

"SINCEY,"—By Margaret Dohnd.
 Published by William Bryce, Toronto.
 The author of this book will be remembered as giving us "John Ward, Preacher," a couple of years ago. She is a strong moralist, and in the present book she opposes agnosticism. The peculiar views held by Major Loo, and which have been instilled into his daughter Sidney, the hero of the book, are to the effect that love is a terrible thing, and that those who indulge in it are courting their own ruin, sooner or later. The Major succeeded in keeping his daughter free from all danger from this source till she met Allan Crossan, a young doctor, who succeeded in breaking down the teachings of the father, and through love both find the religious solace that the great multitude of this world pin their faith to. Firmly does the hero of this book, for it is not romance, and is worthy of more than the name of novel, come to the belief that "It were better to have loved and lost Than never to have loved at all."
 There is no doubt but that the book will get the large sale it merits.

FAMOUS IN OLD AGE.

Von Moltke Gained His First Laurels When Nearly Seventy.
 Count von Moltke, field-marshal of the German army, who died recently of heart failure in Berlin, was in his ninety-first year, having been born at Parchim, Mecklenburg, Oct. 26, 1800. His career was a remarkable one. Although trained for a military life from the age of thirteen, he was sixty-six years old when he achieved distinction as a general. This was in the war against Austria, a campaign which was decisive for the future of Prussia and Germany. Von Moltke's life also disproved the theory, often ac-

HELMUTH KARL HERNHARD VON MOLTKE, eminent in military circles, that great generals do not go through the revolutions of army experience. He began as a "land cook" in the Danish army, after a season at a military academy, and his promotion was gradual to the rank of general.
 Count von Moltke was not brilliant and dashing like Napoleon I. His great campaigns were carefully thought out. He eliminated the element of chance from war, and strove to make the army as perfect and methodical in its operations as a machine. Almost every detail of the war against France was carefully planned years before Napoleon the Little, as Victor Hugo called him, issued his final declaration. His prosecution of the great genius of Von Moltke as a mechanic and strategist. His termination with the fall of Paris ended the house of Hohenzollern to realize his long dream of a united Germany. To Von Moltke as much as to Bismarck belongs the high honor of founding the new German empire.

Notwithstanding his sternness and reticence, the old Count von Moltke personally was an amiable Christian gentleman. Like the old Emperor William, he traveled the length of the bloodiest battles. After the Bohemian campaign, which he regarded as a chastisement in the world's history, he wrote, "God's omnipotence led on our banners to victory," and adds, "How beautiful it is that God should thus have lit the evening of a man's life as he has done that of our king and his general!"

PRESIDENT HARRISON'S JOURNEY.
 His Special Car Equipped with All Modern Conveniences and Luxuries.
 No monarch or potentate ever traveled in more magnificent style than President Harrison and party on their tour of the south and west. The train consisted of five coaches, richly upholstered and containing all the luxuries and conveniences of a palatial hotel. There is a barber-shop and bath rooms, smoking compartments and library, and a well appointed kitchen and dining car. The coach of the president and Mrs. Harrison is a paragon of wheels. The apartments are en suite, and models of art-

A GLIMSE OF THE PRESIDENT'S CAR. The taste. All the woodwork is encased in white and decorated in floral designs in gilt moldings, and the seats and sofas are covered with a rich shade of terra cotta plush. President Harrison made his speeches from the rear end of the last car, leaning over a brass topped bronze fence. The party was enthusiastically received at every stopping place.

When near the Mexican frontier President Diaz and staff paid a complimentary visit, and the executives of the two great republics cemented their friendship by a cordial interchange of courtesies. Only one exciting incident occurred to temporarily mar the pleasures of the trip. In California the horses attached to the carriage in which were Mrs. Harrison and two other ladies of the party ran away. Secretary Rusk made himself the hero of the hour by gallantly stopping the frightened steeds and averting an accident.

A CELEBRATED COLORADO CASE. Acquittal of the Millingtons After a Long Legal Battle. Ringing cheers went up in the Denver Chamber of Commerce recently when the jury in the celebrated Millington murder case brought in a verdict of not guilty. The defendants were overwhelmed with congratulations, and a scene of the wildest excitement prevailed in the temporary court house.

FRANK and HILDE MILLINGTON. This demonstration was a marked contrast to that which took place when Frank Millington, Mary Millington, his wife, and Sarah Millington, his sister, a pretty young girl of eighteen, were accused of poisoning William H. Avery, the former husband of Mrs. Millington, and one of the wealthiest citizens of Fort Collins, Colo. Then a howling mob assaulted and threatened to lynch them. The case was a remarkable one. In 1884 Frank Millington, then fresh from college, entered into partnership with W. H. Avery. Mrs. Avery was the organist in one of the churches and a leader in Fort Collins social circles. Avery was a grim, taciturn man, absorbed in business and much away from home, and Millington was through a great deal in the society of his wife. In May, 1890, Avery was taken suddenly ill, and died a few weeks afterward. Just before his sickness Millington left the state, but he returned to Denver shortly after Avery's death, and had Mrs. Avery were married secretly at Hastings, Neb. When the gossip of Fort Collins heard of the wedding they were wild. It was learned that during Millington's absence Mrs. Avery had corresponded with him through his sister Sarah, or "Billie," as she was called. Avery's body was exhumed, but no trace of poison could be found. But Fort Collins was not satisfied. The viscera were again dug up, and the presence of a small quantity of arsenic discovered. Then Millington and his wife and sister were accused of poisoning Avery, and they were arrested and almost mobbed by the populace.

Disgrace of a British Lawyer. Captain Edmund Hope Verney, member of parliament for North Buckinghamshire, was sentenced to a year's imprisonment for the other day for procuring a young girl under the age of twenty-one for immoral purposes. The evidence showed that Verney had great experience in this vicious business, and worked in conjunction with a notorious woman in Paris. Strange Stories About Birds and Beasts. Here is a collection of some of the latest and possibly true yarns about the birds of the air, the beasts of the field, and snakes also. The original publishers of the various items here condensed verbatim for their accuracy, and so, if there are any signs of exaggeration, they must rest on their shoulders. Guilford, Me., is the home of a natural curiosity, a duck with four feet. It swims like a duck and uses the other for a rudder. William Williams, who resides near Mud Turtle lake, Ga., has a pointer dog and a large brown cat. They go out hunting together. The dog points the birds and the cat stalks the mouse. The cat, with a flank movement in the rear, never fails to secure a bird. They never banquet until they have secured four birds, when each of them dines on two birds apiece. A pair of "curious" Samosa cuttle were exhibited at Kansas City, Mo., a few days ago. They are exceedingly small, the male weighing only about 150 pounds, while the female weighed about 250 pounds. Both are fully developed and have very large heads and long horns. These little cuttle are only about two and a half feet in height and are of a reddish brown color marked with white. Near Hazueli, in Miller county, Mo., a

CHILDREN OF THE CAR. The children of the car are obliged to study painting assiduously by their father, who is a great lover of art. Ex-King Milan has accepted the offer of $200,000 a year to keep out of Serbia, and Queen Natalie agrees to suppress her memoirs. The king of Dahomey is the proud possessor of a brass helmet with a flowing green plume, which he considers of more consequence to his dignity than troops of guards or a park of artillery. The empress of Austria, during her recent "surprise" visit to Athens and Corinth, astonished King George by addressing him persistently in modern Greek, and insisting on conversing only in that language. Queen Amelia of Portugal has taken under her protection the wife and children of Captain Lelito, the leader of the revolt at Oporto, who have been left without resources, and has offered similar help to other families who are in the same circumstances in consequence of the rebellion. The Princess of Wales, who is an experienced photographer, has sent a large selection of her best productions to the great international exhibition to be opened in Vienna under the patronage of a fashionable club of amateur photographers, presided over by the Archduchess Maria Theresa. The German princess is to reside this year with her children at the Schloss of Wilhelmshöhe, near Cassel, where Napoleon III lived during the autumn of 1870. Wilhelmshöhe, which was erected by the electors of Hesse, has long been known as the German Versailles, and the grounds are famous for their fountains.

How does a woman love? Once for all. Though life forever its love is deep. Deep in sorrow or deep in joy. One kind enough her heart within. One alone by night and day. Moves her spirit to our joy. One who only can call her out. Back from the great god death's control. Though lives best her, or friends deride. Yes, when she smooches another's breast. Still for her master her life makes mean. Once is forever, and once alone.

How does a man love? Once for all. The sweetest vision of the way call. Sorrow and love, or death it may. Joy's red robe he looks his way. For one mile or just, or less. Through road or field, or down the road. Less betray him, or love's light. Through storm or sunshine, by day or night. Wandering, falling, asleep, awake. Though souls may medicine or weak hearts break. Better than wife, or child, or pet. Once and forever, he loves - him self. - "The Merry Gleaner."

Mrs. Clend of Asterville, Kan., paid $250 for a 2-year-old trotting stallion, and on going to his stable one morning found him dead. He was apparently in perfect health the evening before, and no cause could be assigned for his death.

Jockey Tarral contradicts the assertion attributed to him that he is forming a "jockey's trust" to cause the races. He is not behind anything of the sort, but on the contrary believes the jockeys as a rule are well paid now under the present prices of twenty-five dollars for a winning and ten dollars for a losing mount.

J. Porter, the little colored boy who has made a name for himself as a successful light weight jockey in the west, is a son of John Porter, the humpbacked dandy, who himself rode races long before the war. He also rode during the seventies with some success, once or twice having the mount on the great Ten Hrook.

A physician has his life upon an excellent way of utilizing rubber in the treatment of wounds. He places one end of the strip of rubber upon one lip of the wound, and then stretches the rubber to fasten the other end to the opposite lip. In this way he draws the several parts closely together, and the elastic rubber continuously holds them there.

I have never come across another Toilet Soap which so closely realises my ideal of perfection.

The longest bridge in the world is the Lion bridge, near Saungau, in China. It extends 3 1/2 miles over an area of the Yellow sea, and is supported by 200 huge stone arches. The roadway is 70 feet above the water and is inclosed in an iron network.

Castoria.
"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. OSBORN, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other harmful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.
"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARNER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

The New Brigadier General.
Several promotions have been caused in the line of the army by the appointment of Colonel A. V. Kautz, of the Eighth infantry, to be brigadier general. Lieutenant Colonel Van Horn, of the Twenty-fifth infantry, takes the place vacated by Colonel Kautz. Major Andrews, of the Twenty-first infantry, will be lieutenant colonel of the Twenty-fifth, and Captain Wherry, Sixth infantry, will become major of the Twenty-first. First Lieutenant Thomas G. Townsend, of the Sixth, becomes captain.

GENERAL A. V. KAUTZ.
The vacancy thus created would be filled by Lieutenant Minnison M. Roach, for the fact that he was tried by court martial and sentenced to dismissal for duplicating his pay accounts. The case awaits the action of the president. General Kautz has not yet received command of a department. He graduated from West Point in 1852, and in the volunteer service during the civil war attained the rank of brevet major general.

AN ANGEL OF THE SLUMS.

The Charitable Work Undertaken by a Bedridden Invalid.
In a small house on the east side of New York there dwells an invalid woman whose entire life is devoted to charitable deeds. She is Mrs. Bella Cooke, who has been unable to rise from her bed for many weary years. The couch upon which she lies has iron cogs and cranks for moving her. It is dressed with snowy, scented linen. Mrs. Cooke never denies herself to visitors, and the poor of the district have learned to regard her as their warmest friend and benefactress.

Five hundred garments are yearly given from Mrs. Cooke's wardrobe, and an average of ten babies a year receive their first outfit from her hands, while in money she often disburses as much as $2,000 per annum to the poor and distressed. On Thanksgiving days she provides turkey dinners for 150 poor families, selecting the fowls herself as they are placed before her, and tying round the neck of each a paper containing a verse from Scripture. Many people have told her that the first impulse toward a better life was given by the holy words on a turkey necklabel.

Mrs. Cooke is not wealthy herself, but has been made the sponser of a number of rich friends. At Christmas eighty old women and widows with young children are provided with suitable cheer for the season. She has been engaged in this work twenty-five years, and, notwithstanding her afflictions, is as sweet and cheerful as though she were blessed with the most perfect health.

Story of a Dream.
It was some time in the spring of 1808 that Jethro Jackson went to Resaca to look for the grave of his son, who was killed in battle. Like many others, he wished to find the remains and inter them in the family burying ground. The comrades who had young Jackson to rest gave the father a description of the spot where they had buried him, telling him about the ridge pine coffin and the hearse taken from the bridge. After many days of tireless search Mr. Jackson failed to locate his son's grave, and returned to his home in Griffin. A few nights after his return he dreamed that his son came to him and pointed out the spot where he was buried. The dream was like a vision. He saw his son standing beside his bed, and heard him say: "Father, I am buried under a mound which was thrown up by the Yankees after I was killed. You will know the mound when you see it by the pokeberry bushes growing upon it. Go and take me up and carry me home to mother."

So strong an impression did this dream make upon Mr. Jackson that he returned at once to Resaca, taking with him one of the comrades who had buried his son. The mound was found just as described in the dream and the pokeberries were growing upon it. An excavation was made and a few feet below the earth the rough pine coffin was found, and in it were the remains of young Jackson. He was fully identified, not only by the coffin and the shroud, which were a present from the father, but by the name which was on the clothing.—Atlanta Journal.

For dresses for Evening Wear.
Evening wear complete dresses of gaulpore, princess form without seams, are being made. This gaulpore is open and worked on neck. It is made up over pink or any light colored silk, with a thick ruche at the lower edge. The bodice, draped with crossway folds, has a short polonaise rather resembling the old fashioned bodice. This is draped also, for plain bodices are no more seen; they are all flat trimmed and draped, while the skirt is flat and plain. Japanese crepes are very pretty for dresses, especially those with cream ground, studded with colored spots or waltors; they are trimmed with a band of velvet round the skirt, pea-green, moss-green, blue, red or vixen-rose, according to the color of spot. The ribbon sash goes twice round the waist, and is tied at the back; the neck is open, and no upright collar is added; in the evening a ruff to match is worn, plaited gauze, or unmounted flowers closely packed.

Every telegraph pole in the remote country districts of Norway has to be continually watched on account of the bears, which have a mania for climbing the poles and sitting on the cross beams, leaning backward and forward until the pole finally falls.

It is estimated officially that the gross expenses of the World's Fair will reach $1,000,000.
