To wrong action of the stomach and impaired digestion a host of diseases owe their origin. When the food is imperfectly digested the fullness is not derived from it by the body, and then stomach troubles start to appear.

FINANCIAL and COMMERCIAL

GOLD EXPORTS FROM NEW YORK

The Stock Market Remains "Stale, Flat and Unprofitable."

As the supply and prices have not changed. There has been considerable activity in the bill market in Chicago. Effective July 1, many railroads will advance the minimum amount for a carload from 15 to 18 tons, and for this reason many buyers are increasing their orders in order to obtain the benefit of the lower rates and lower prices of carload lots.

COPPER MARKET REMAINS STEADY

In copper metal circles a popular word nowadays is readjustment. It is a sad word, a word of harmony, of compromise, a word remote from the thought of disturbance. For some weeks the metal situation, as far as copper is concerned, has been quite devoid of significance. Dealers have divided almost to trivialities. Traders have forgotten how they used to feel when a thumping big transaction went through. But there has been one advantage in the lethargy of the market: consumers and producers have been able to get nearer another and to grasp each other's ideas more firmly. Out of this may come "readjustment." But the best opinion in the copper industry is that no striking changes in price will occur this summer.

NOTHING DOING IN WALL STREET
 (New York Herald, Thursday)

Although many of the developments of the day were of an unfavorable character, there was no fresh liquidation or active short selling started by reason of the adverse news. It seems clear that the bulk of the speculative liquidation has been completed and that the present time there are indications of slow and timid investment purchases from those institutions or concerns which are fortunate enough to have the funds at hand with which to buy. The prevalence of low rates of call money by no means indicates that there is an abundance of funds, but results simply because there is no demand for such funds. It is the practice of the great loaning institutions of Wall Street to maintain a certain percentage of their funds ready for any emergency and available in the call market. There is a scarcity, however, of time funds which would become all the more marked if there was any increase in the demand.

THE IRON MILLS TO BE KEPT BUSY

The Market is Dull, But the Plants are Well Supplied With Orders.

THIS PIE CRUST CAUSED A STRIKE

DETROIT, June 22—A heater boy playfully threw a piece of apple pie crust and hit an Italian laborer in the face. A free-for-all fight ensued.

Mrs. A. Y. Fenerty
 FREDERICTON, June 22 (Special)—Mrs. A. Y. Fenerty, a half sister of the late Hon. A. G. Blair, died this morning at the residence of Mrs. George N. Segoe, in this city, where she had made her home for several years. She was 83 years of age.

OTTAWA NEWS
 OTTAWA, June 22 (Special)—Engineer Riddick, whose train came in collision at Lacoste with another, Thursday night, died at the Protestant hospital last night. He was 27 years of age and leaves a widow and two children.

CLEVELAND, June 20—The Iron Trade Review says: "With the coming of hot weather, mid-summer dullness has set upon the iron market so far as new business is concerned. With the exception of the usual shutdown of mills July 1 for repairs, activity of the plants will continue as orders on hand are ample to keep all the plants busy. The pig iron market is somewhat easier, prices for prompt shipment being lower, and in some cases concessions of from 25 to 50 cents have been made for iron for future delivery. No important transactions are reported and the injury is light, but users are urging shipments on contracts. The selling of billets by several large interests, which usually convert crude steel into finished products, has relieved the strain, but the demand is only as great

CALIFORNIA FRUIT
 LOS ANGELES, June 22—There were 83 carloads of oranges and six carloads of lemons. Total shipments of citrus fruits to date this season are 23,894 carloads.

FIFTY MEN IN FIERCE BATTLE UNDER GROUND

Italians Led by an Irishman, Attack Austrian Workmen in Pennsylvania Tunnel Excavation.

NEW YORK, June 21—Three persons were injured and three arrested yesterday in a fight between a band of Italian excavators and a party of Austrian workmen, some fifty in all. The riot occurred in the Pennsylvania tunnel excavation West Thirty-third street at Eleventh Avenue, shortly after noon yesterday. The battle ground was far beneath the surface and stones and other missiles flew thick and fast for a time. Curiously enough the Italians were led by their Irish leader, who is accused of starting the riot.

THE WORK ON THE WALL STREET BRIDGE

Adverse Comment Heard as to Way it is Being Carried on.

Considerable adverse comment is heard as to the manner in which the work of renewing the Wall Street bridge over the I. C. R. tracks is being carried out. If a fire occurred in the valley it would be necessary for teams to go via the Stanley street bridge, and great delay would be caused.

FUSHIMI IN THE WEST

JAPANESE IMPERIAL TRAIN, Glacier, B. C. June 21—The Japanese Imperial train left Field sharp on time at ten o'clock this morning. Last night they received the hospitality of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at the Mount Stephen House, where an excellent dinner was served. The quiet night rest in the charming little hotel which takes its name from the magnificent mountain at whose base it rests, so picturesque, was much appreciated. The Japanese trainmen many of whom are employed in this district had taken a half holiday to accompany the train and approach to the hotel in honor of their illustrious countryman and had made the place resplendent with arches, transparencies, flags and colored electric lights. The prince was such an excellent reputation. Short stops were made at the natural bridge and Stoney Creek bridge and the wondrous scenery between Field and Glacier excited the enthusiasm of the whole party. The train is now stopped at Glacier, some of the suite having ridden off on ponies to get a nearer view of the majestic snow-capped peaks which give name to the station while the prince contented himself with a stroll about the pretty grounds.

A MONTREAL MAN KILLED IN BUFFALO

MONTREAL, June 22 (Special)—Wm. He was for upwards of twenty years a member of the city council, and he also represented St. Lawrence division in the provincial legislature. He was the head of the Cleminching foundry, one of the largest manufacturing industries of its kind at the time in Canada.

THE GREATEST NEED

The Times yesterday gave a brief report of some remarks made by Cardinal Gibbons at Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass., this week. A fuller report shows that the cardinal endorses with great emphasis the statement that the greatest need of the age is good men, who have the courage of their convictions.

"I will now tell you what is the greatest need. What the times call for is men, sturdy men, endowed with the courage of their convictions. We need men who are controlled by conscience rather than by expediency, who are guided by principle rather than by popularity, who are influenced by a spirit of pure patriotism rather than a desire for political preferment.

A NOBLE WORK

Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, head of the Arbutus Institute, gives the following interesting account of the beginning of the work of the institute and education of boys in Chicago.

"Our work in this regard began with the Glenwood farm. There were, as you know, in Chicago, hundreds of boys on the streets, whom their fathers could not own, and whom their mothers could not feed.

After we had been at work for a number of years in Glenwood, it happened that the subject of what would follow Chicago, came to us and offered to deed to us as a home for Chicago boys, a farm of 340 acres in Glenwood, admirably suited to the purpose.

AUSTRALIA'S LATEST

Australia is to take another long step in the direction of Socialism of a paternal sort. A cable of Thursday's date from Sydney says:—

A RIVER TRAGEDY

That a small steamer lying at her berth should take fire in the night and be utterly destroyed, with the loss of the lives of four persons and the injury of others on board, seems almost unbelievable.

This terrible event, which has shocked the province and brought sorrow to so many persons, ought not to have occurred. No doubt there will be a thorough investigation.

GEN. BOTHA AND MARSHAL OYAMA

When Gen. Botha was in Tokio recently Field-Marshal Oyama was on the platform at the nobles' reception of the Salvation Army leader.

Both political parties have received a shock from brethren in attendance at the Orange Supreme Lodge in Vancouver.

The remarkable premonition of one of the ladies on board the Crystal Stream that a fire was likely to break out Thursday night may have been due to the fact that there has been much talk about the danger from fire when there is hay on board such a vessel.

DON'T BE TOO SERIOUS

Takin' things too serious, it really 'pears to me, is causin' very nearly all the trouble that we see. Worry 'bout the weather, when experience will show that the sunniest bound to follow every case of rain or snow—gettin' the impression that your own particular brand of sorrow is the biggest that is raised in Thinkin' 'bout yourself until you find you're 'bout as miserable as the rest of 'em.

SURVIVORS OF THE STEAMER CRYSTAL STREAM HAVE SOME THRILLING STORIES TO TELL

Additional details of the awful tragedy at Cole's Island in the early hours of Friday morning, were received yesterday afternoon when the steamer Aberdeen arrived at Indiantown with four of the survivors of the terrible catastrophe. Reports in yesterday's papers were confirmed in all their grim details, four men had lost their lives and the others with the exception of Captain Mabee who escaped injury were more or less burned. Mate McCleery had burns on his face, head and hands, Mrs. Chase and A. Belyea were painfully burned, especially about the head, and Mrs. Coleman had slight burns on the head. A large crowd had gathered at the wharf when the Aberdeen reached her wharf about 3:45 o'clock. The injured were conveyed home in a coach, with the exception of Mate McCleery who was taken in the ambulance to the hospital where he is resting comfortably.

The thrilling and miraculous escapes of the various members of the crew are here told in their own words.

Mrs. Amelia Chase, the stewardess who is 71 years of age and who was on the steamer Star when it burned five years ago, had a very trying experience. She was seen at the home of her son-in-law, Thomas Morrill, 240 Bridge street.

"I had a premonition that the fire was going to take place," said Mrs. Chase, "and said to myself 'This is just the time for the fire.' I thought of asking the cook to get up the stairs, but I didn't like to, as she would have thought it foolish. I decided, however, not to go to sleep and about 11:30 o'clock I got up and dressed. This was only about half an hour before the outbreak."

Mrs. Chase, continuing, said that she lay down again but was awakened by someone screaming, and recognized it as the voice of the cook, who was calling out: "Get up, get up, the fire is here!"

"I jumped up," added Mrs. Chase, "and could see a bright light everywhere. It was about 11:30 o'clock I got up and dressed, as she had only just taken time to throw a macintosh over her. On second thought, however, she made for the door, and as she stepped out she was on fire and calling for help.

Half sufficed, she tried to get to the door of the saloon and out in the passageway into the pure air. But even there her position was very precarious, the whole top of the vessel was shrouded in smoke and flame. The smoke issuing from every crack and crevice was overwhelming.

"I made for the railing," said Mrs. Chase, "and saw a boat coming out from above, and I saw the light, and how I did it, but I climbed up and dropped into the boat below." Mrs. Chase does not know the names of the rescuers, but she thinks they were residents of Cole's Island, who had been awakened by the screams and, seeing Mrs. Chase, put out to render what assistance they could.

Mrs. Chase lost everything, including her bedding, a trunk full of wearing apparel, some money and her watch, but she has no idea as to how the fire could have started. She says there was some talk of inspecting the boiler, but it was at a loss to advance any plausible theory.

Engineer Wentworth Roberts had an experience that a man is never likely to forget.

Probably none of the many experiences were so thrilling as that of Mrs. Chase and the other five men in the cabin. "When I awoke I found myself lying on a mat, and I was burning all over," said Mr. Roberts. "I never want to go through such an experience again," remarked the mate, as he lay on the cot in the hospital, his head bandaged, his nose swathed in lint and oil, and both hands bound up. "It was terrible. I thought of the other men who were right behind me and did not know until some time afterward that they did not get out."

Asked as to how he felt, he said he was feeling fine outside of his burns, but he was rather tired and played out. "I did not know my head was burned until I got here," he said.

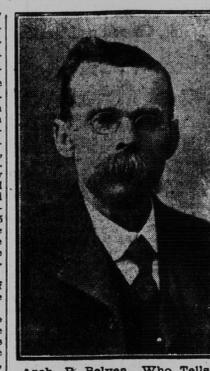

"It was an awful experience trying to get out of the boat," he said. "When I awoke all escape by the stairway was cut off and, with the other men coming behind me, I made for the door, but I finally managed to get out, and I looked for anything. When I crawled through, the flames enveloped me and I thought I was done for, but I must have managed to get ashore some way, for I finally found myself lying on the ground, safe but painfully burned and cut. The doctor dressed my injuries and everybody was very kind and did everything possible and that's about all there is to it. I am awfully sorry, though, about the other boys."

Mr. McCleery is spoken of by all who know him in the highest terms. Probably no one yesterday was more anxious about his condition than Miss Annie Nuttall, a lady clerk in the York Bakery. Miss Nuttall was the wharf at Indiantown when the Aberdeen arrived and accompanied him in the ambulance on his way to the hospital.

"I was sitting talking to Mrs. Chase and Mrs. Coleman a while before going to bed," he said, "and the talk turned on the possibility of the boat taking fire. It was suggested that someone might set fire to the boat, and naturally it made us feel rather nervous about going to bed. Before I turned in, I made a round of the boat, as I usually do to see that everything was all right. It was then about 10 o'clock. A lantern was left burning on the main deck, but it was quite a distance from where the hay was.

"Seeing that all was well, I went to my stateroom. Arriving there, the feeling of nervousness returned, and I commenced to wonder if I had not better stay up or sleep in my clothes, but I dismissed the idea finally and went to bed.

"I was awakened by the screams of fire, and half awake, jumped out of bed and opened my stateroom door. The flames drove me back and I shut it as quickly as possible. I then went to the window, but the flames were pouring past so that I thought I was doomed, and I lay down on the bed nearest to the door.

Aroh. P. Belyea, who tells a thrilling tale.

"I commenced to think then of my wife and family, and on the instant I got up and tried to get out if possible. I pulled on my overalls and, picking up a boot, smashed the window and crawled through, tumbling to the deck outside. Owing to the dense smoke and flames, I had to crawl along on my hands and knees until I reached one of the ports in the after part of the boat, and climbed down to the water's edge. I caught hold of a line leading to the wharf and started to haul myself ashore, hand over hand. I was waist deep in the water, and I can tell you it was no easy task to make my way to the wharf, as the waves were so high and the flames were so close.

"I finally reached the wharf and then I heard Mrs. Chase calling for help from the after part of the boat. I ran to a row-boat tied up nearby and, just as I got the painter unhooked, a couple of millhands came up and jumped in and they got off and rescued her. Some of the neighbors kindly provided me with gold clothes, and I spent the night there. We could do nothing to rescue the poor fellows down below in the burning steamer owing to the fierce heat of the fire had burned."

"After the flames had died down a bit, we rowed as near as we could get to the cabin where the ladies' cabin, where the men had evidently been trying to get out by the same way as the mate. We had to feel for the bodies with poles, and they were so charred and burned as to be scarcely recognizable. I was able to identify with certainty, by bits of clothing."

"Later in the morning the coroner, Dr. Earle, of Grand Lake, empaneled a jury and had a post-mortem examination. At the request of Captain Mabee and I gave our evidence and the inquiry was adjourned until Tuesday, when Mrs. Coleman and Mr. Roberts, if he is able, will be examined. The bodies were all sent to their respective destinations before we left."

"The bodies were taken to Charlottetown, Smith to Shannon, and Baxter to Wickham, from which place the Elaine will take the body today to Westfield. I cannot express sorrow I feel," said Mr. Roberts, "over the loss of those young men."

When seen by the reporter, Mr. Roberts was on his way to the office of his brother, Dr. W. F. Roberts, to have his hand dressed. He does not know just how or where the fire was started, but this is what has been when he was climbing down from the post from the upper deck, as he had to pass through the flames. Needless to say, Mr. Roberts, who was accompanying his husband, was overjoyed at seeing him after his terrible experience, but she, too, was filled with sorrow for the bereaved ones.

Purser A. P. Belyea had an escape which most men would consider miraculous. Lying in his berth at the time, he was wakened by the shrill screams of the women. He found his room full of smoke and the flames eating in on every side. Mr. Belyea was sleeping in his underclothes.

"I jumped out of bed," he stated, "and shoved my feet into the first pair of boots at hand, which happened to be an old pair. I grabbed my coat, which had 700 belonging to the company in an inside pocket, also my vest and trousers and made for the door, holding them in my hands."

Mr. Belyea then went on to state how, by turning about from the spot whence the smoke seemed to come he could in a few seconds have reached a door leading out into the deck. His reason for not doing this, he stated, was because he was dazed and confused. He lost his presence of mind and made a rush forward, directly in the path of the advancing destruction.

"The fire," he added, "was around the smoke-stack, situated near my room. The heavy smoke choked, while the glare of the fire blinded me. I staggered forward and got up to where the tables are. There I fell from exhaustion but the fall seems to have benefited me, for near the floor the smoke was less thick. I dropped my bundle and crawled forward along the floor, reaching a door at the head of the saloon and out onto the deck. From there I climbed ashore."

He lost everything, including all his clothing, but a pair of shoes and his underclothes, also his gold watch and $100 in money belonging to the boat as well as some of his own cash. Of the boat's money $70 was in the coat which he was forced to abandon, and the rest in his office downstairs. "I tried to save the coat on account of the money being in it," he explained.

May Coleman, cook, was seen at her home, 5 Harris street. She escaped almost unharmed, having her forehead and hair slightly singed. She said:

"The fire apparently started in the bow of the boat as the flames seemed to be the worst there. The galley fire was out before I retired. I don't know what awoke me, but I suppose it was the smoke. I was nervous that night anyway."

There was a large quantity of hay, hoop poles, potatoes, butter and other stuff on board. It had been loaded that night so as to be ready for the morning. As soon as I awakened I smelled smoke and rushed right out of the stateroom and through the dining saloon and from there through the doors opening on to the bow.

My stateroom was on the main deck and Mrs. Chase, the stewardess, was just across from me on the other side of the boat. When I rushed out I could see the windows of the cabin but in a moment the smoke was so thick that I had to grope my way through it. I suppose I yelled first, but I hardly know what did happen, as I made my way to the door as quickly as possible. On my way I met Mr. Belyea, the purser, carrying his door open to the deck forward. Mr. Belyea dropped some of his clothes and as he stooped to pick them up the flames boiled forth and it was then that Mr. Belyea's face was so badly burned. My hair was also burned and hair burned. Mrs. Chase was on the deck when I met Captain Mabee who was hurrying down from his cabin on the upper deck. He jumped down on the wharf and then Mr. Belyea and me down.

Asked regarding Mrs. Phoebe McCutcheon, the waitress on the steamer, she said: "Mrs. McCutcheon got off the boat on our way up river at Perry's Point, where she was going to stay all night, intending to return in the morning when the boat came down."

"I think there should be a watchman on all the boats at night," Mrs. Chase said, "as I was very uneasy before going to bed and had a notion that we would not go. I don't know why I should feel so, unless it was because we had all that hay on board."

"After we got on shore Mrs. Chase and I went to the home of Mrs. Moss, wife of one of the mill hands, living nearby, and they were very kind to us."

In reply to the reporter, Mrs. Coleman said she was on the steamer Star when it was burned a few years ago at the wharf in Indiantown. On that occasion she had her feet and hair burned. Her husband was also on the Star at that time but escaped injury. He is now employed at the steamer Marquette. Mrs. Chase also had a narrow escape on the Star, as she was taken off the burning boat by the tug Flushing.

Frederick Mabee, captain of the burned steamer, was the only one on board who escaped absolutely free of injuries. His cabin was the hurricane deck, which was farthest from the flames. On hearing the alarm and the cries of fire from Mrs. Coleman he hurried to the deck below and found the fire in the ladies' cabin. He was unable to get to the wharf as the bow of the steamer was swung off somewhat. He sprang the wharf himself, but he was assisted Mrs. Colman and afterwards Purser Belyea to a place of safety. He then made an attempt to get to the wharf, but he was imprisoned in the hold but the fire had gained such headway that nothing could be done.

"The fire," said the captain, "seemed to be fiercest on the starboard side, which was the side opposite to that on which the lantern hung. I am at a loss to account for its origin. I know the engineer is very careful about everything and always takes a look around. The mate also is very particular about seeing that things are right and I cannot understand how a fire could start at that time."

"As nearly as I can judge I should say the fire had been burning about half an hour when I saw it first, as it had been on for some minutes to 1 o'clock when the alarm was given. It is the way of things of its kind I ever know of on the river."

Asked regarding the report that the fire might have been of an incendiary origin he replied that he was at a loss to know what to think. Everyone was in bed at 10:30 o'clock and no one was seen around the boat. It was a mystery, he thought, that would never be cleared up.

He referred to the finding of the bodies and their identification and to the inquiry that followed. The coroner, he thought, inclined to the incendiary view.

"Before I left for Cody's to take the train home," he said, "the bodies had all been sent to their destinations. The remains of Allan and Willard Logan were sent by team to Charlottetown. The remains of Arthur and Edward Baxter's corpse was sent to Wickham where it will be taken on board the steamer Elaine in the morning to Westfield."

Captain Mabee felt very much depressed over the sad affair.

William Logan, more generally known as Willard Logan, and his brother, Allan, who lost their lives on the ill-fated steamer, were sons of the late Isaac Logan of Land's End. Allan was about twenty years old and made his home at Clark's Settlement, where he leaves his wife and one child. William was about twenty-four years old and single. He boarded with Frank Lyons in Brook street. He was a member of Court North End, C. O. F. He is survived by his brothers, Arthur and Robert of Millidgeville, and Isaac, in Maine; also two sisters, one of whom is Mrs. Josie Little, of the Narrows.

Frederick Smith was a son of the late Alvin Smith, of Shannon Settlement, Queens county. He was twenty-two years old and is survived by his mother, three brothers and four sisters. The brothers are George, of Cambridge and Ira and Harry, at home. The sisters are Mrs. Frank McDonald, of McDonald's Point, one sister at home and two in the States. The unfortunate young man's mother and the two sisters, who live in this province, were passengers on the steamer Aberdeen from St. John to Webster's on Thursday last.

Edward P. Baxter, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Baxter, of Westfield, and nephew of William Baxter, grocer of Queens county. He was twenty-two years old and previous to his engagement was a deck hand on the Crystal steamer, but was employed as a crewman by the McRobbie Shoe Company. Besides his parents he is survived by his brothers, Arthur, Samuel and John, at home, and five sisters—the Misses Eliza, Ada, Amy, Helen and Olivia, also at home.

His father and some other relatives were at Indiantown when the steamer Aberdeen arrived. They bore up well under the distressing circumstances.

Mrs. J. W. deB. Farris came in from Vancouver yesterday.

T. S. Simms has returned after his voyage around the world.

A LATE REPENTANCE
(Montreal Witness.)
There must have been a good deal wrong with the past of an association which finds it necessary to amend its constitution to the effect that its members shall be under no obligations which shall be contrary to any member's duty to his God, his country or his fellowmen. Such a declaration is directly contradictory of the accusation in the Haywood-Moyer case, that in the past the Federation of Miners stood for what was unlawful and could use any means to justify its ends. The notoriety of the present trial and the declaration of President Roosevelt, very generally applauded, that Haywood and his kind are undesirable citizens, have not been without salutary effect. The murders by Orchard, too, even if they should not believe them to be directly inspired by the executive of the Federation, must have appalled even extreme elements in the organization. "The deep damnation" of the taking-off of Governor Steiensenberg alone must have tortured the souls of all but the most utterly abandoned.

VALUABLE SWORDS
(Philadelphia Bulletin.)
The veterans riding in their flag-hung carriage toward the cemetery talked of warlike things—cannon, guns, swords. "The most valuable sword in the world," said the colonel, "belongs to the Gaskwar of Baroda. It is worth $1,250,000. It has been handed down from father to son for 700 years. The hilt and scabbard of this sword are encrusted with diamonds and rubies and emeralds so thickly that you can't see the gold work underneath. All those jewels are miracles of bigness and purity. The shah of Persia owns a sword worth $50,000. Its ornaments are Orient pearls. The czar of Russia has a diamond-encrusted sword valued at $75,000, and the sultan of Turkey wears on state occasions a scimitar whose hilt alone was valued by Polak of Paris at $118,000. In this country I regret to say, we have not a sword worth more than $100,000."

AMAZING FIGURES

Capital Invested in United States, Canada and Mexico. (New York Paper.)

Some amazing figures are given in the 1907 edition of Moody's Manual, just issued. The comprehensive publication reports more than $38,000,000,000 of invested corporate capital in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

The figures which are of most striking interest to the public are the totals showing the amount of capital invested in the various public utility corporations of the United States. No less than $8,129,838,000 is represented in this particular field. In the electric traction the total reaches no less than $2,744,000, which is nearly one-third the par value of steam railroad capitalization.

An Old Time Base Ball Game.

The following game was played June 20, 1907.

THE SHAMROCKS ACHIEVE A VICTORY OVER THE INVINCIBLES

Our report of Friday's game between the Shamrocks and Invincibles, crowded out of Saturday's issue, we present today. It has been all the talk since it was played, and resulted in a victory for the Shamrock team, by a score of 17 to 12. Over $400 changed hands on the result.

The weather was all that could be desired. At ten minutes to three the Shamrocks took the field, their opponents going to the bat. It was a prettily played game throughout, three whitesashes being given to the Invincibles, one to the Shamrocks.

There was some excellent fielding on both sides, though two scores by the Invincibles in the sixth inning, by which the Shamrocks in the sixth inning, were hardly excusable. Mitchell, Spencer, Costigan and the McCarthys played their positions well, the former putting out nine players. Larkin, Collins, Tierney and Allingham excelled in fielding for the Invincibles. The batting of both clubs was fair. Further details of the game can be had in the following account:—

Shamrocks 111243104-17
Invincibles 111205200-12

BASE BALL

Victorias Jump to Lead.

A very exciting game took place last night on the Y. M. C. A. grounds, when the Victorias defeated the Every Day Club team by the score of 8 to 6, thus taking the lead in the South End league. The game was exciting especially in the last inning when the Victorias went to the bat with the score 5 to 5. McIntyre of the E. D. C. was the star of the game, making some very fine catches in right field. The batteries were McNeil and Murphy for the Victorias, and Garrett and Logan for the E. D. C.

The league standing is:

Team	Won	Lost	P.C.
Victorias	2	0	.667
All Stars	2	0	.667
Bertha	2	0	.667
Every Day's	2	0	.667

Marathons Defeat Portland Y. M. C. A.

The baseball fans who attended the game on the Victoria grounds last evening were well pleased with the five inning game played by the Marathons and Portland. Both teams were out to win, as both want first place in the league. The Marathons proved too much for the North Enders last night, and won by the score of 3 to 1. Timely hits and two errors did the damage. The score was:

Team	W	L	P.C.
Marathons	1	3	.250
Portland	0	0	0-1

Darwin P. Kingsley New President of New York Life.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Darwin P. Kingsley was elected president of the New York Life Insurance Company to succeed Alexander E. Orr at the annual meeting. In accepting the office he took occasion to say some pertinent things about the business and vicissitudes it has undergone of recent years.

"The law must be observed in spirit as well as in letter," he said, "and that keen sense of justice and love of fair play which in the end always marks the judgment of the American people may be trusted to remedy excesses and correct evils by process of law.

"The law of this state have, in effect declared that the activities of this and other companies must diminish. Under existing statutes it will not be possible to do so."

DANIEL RYAN IN THE BELLS

Splendid Production of Sir Henry Irving's Great Play in the Opera House.

A performance which should tax the capacity of the Opera House to its utmost limits was witnessed last night when Daniel Ryan and his excellent company presented The Bells, made famous by the master-hand, Sir Henry Irving. After last night's work there cannot be a doubt in the mind of any one that Mr. Ryan is the most finished actor who has graced the boards in the Opera House for a long time. Some of the finest stage effects exhibited in St. John are brought into requisition in Mr. Ryan's production, and The Bells probably give the best idea one can form of the extent and quality of the scenery carried by this company.

Interposed through the play are visions visible in the play only in the first vision, the first is a very realistic snow storm; the second the detailed action of the murderer; again in the third act the first vision re-presents the trial of the burglar for murder and his conviction through the efforts of a hypnotist; and the second vision shows the scaffold with the murderer about to be executed.

Too much praise cannot be given Mr. Ryan for his able and artistic interpretation of the proper and respected burglar in his struggle with his conscience for his crime of fifteen years before. He sustains the character of a man beginning to show the effects of old age and his manner of acting in the latter part of the play is very convincing.

At II, the signing of the marriage contract, affords an opportunity for some good character acting on the part of the other members of the company, and was well done. This part of the play is in pleasant relief to his general tone. This act closes with a very fine folk dance on the part of the company, which was much enjoyed. The audience showed their appreciation by several curtain calls.

Miss Ette Gillette, as the burglar's daughter, gave her usual finished performance. She sang a pretty song at the close of act II.

The Bells has a far-famed reputation, and at the hands of Mr. Ryan all that can be desired. There was a good sized audience at last night's performance, but this afternoon and tonight should test the capacity of the house. Monday night the Merchant of Venice will be played.

THE RING GOSSIP OF THE BOXERS.

"Tex" Rickard, a Western promoter of prize fights, offers $20,000 for a twenty-five round bout between "Mike" Squires and "Tommy" Burns about July 4. Rickard wants the proposed match to take place at New York.

Charley Harvey, manager of Johnny Summers, offers to allow the English featherweight to meet Rouse O'Brien in a limited round bout in the latter part of this month. The battle will probably be fought in the arena of the Long Acres Athletic Club on June 21.

"Sam" Langford, a negro middleweight, who met with considerable success in England in his fight with "Joe" Jeannette ten rounds before the National Sporting Club of New York on July 1.

Harry Harris and "Kid" Singer have agreed to box six rounds before the Sharkey Athletic Club in New York on June 28.

Joe Wolcott, the once invincible negro waterweight, has decided to re-enter the ring. He has agreed to box "Mike" Donovan of Rochester fifteen rounds before the Terrence House Athletic Club on June 28.

"Joe" Grim, the "Human Punching Bag" will leave for England next Saturday. His purpose in going abroad is to arrange a bout with "Gunner" Moir, the English heavyweight champion Fitzsimmons. "Jack" Thorne and other prominent heavyweights have rallied to knock out Grim.

"Battling" Nelson has been training at a road house in San Francisco for his twenty round bout with "Jimmy" Britt to take place before the Occidental Athletic Club on July 1.

Efforts being made to arrange a ten round bout between "Willie" Lewis and "Goliath" Burke to take place before the Bridgport, Conn. Athletic Club.

QUOITS

On the Algerines' grounds, West End, last evening the Newmarket Quoit team defeated the Algerines three games. The first was won by a score of 21 to 11, the second 21 to 10, and the third 21 to 10.

After the matches a musical program was carried out, and Chas. Tilly of the Algerines, and John Thornton of the Newmarket team, made speeches. Refreshments were served.

Invest Your Savings--The Government Bond

"Though the phrase 'as safe as a government bond' is a true one, inasmuch as this type of bond assures absolute security to the investor, it has long been the subject of common remark that these bonds are not held to any great extent by the people. At the first glance this condition is remarkable, for abroad you will find one or more British 'consols' 2 1/2 per cent, and there their possessors take a certain pride in them as they feel that they are taking an integral part in the finances of their government. Among the thrifty French people of even humbler circumstances, hidden away in the peasant's hut or the laborer's tenement, will be found the government 'rentes.' This government bond is issued in small denominations and pays three per cent. interest annually.

After scanning the foregoing--apparently an indictment of patriotism of the people--the query naturally arises: Inasmuch as the government is by the people and for their benefit, why should not its bonds be held by them? There are very good reasons why our government bonds are not held by the average investor who wants an adequate return for his investment, with absolute safety. The price is too high, the yield too small. Industrial opportunities are so great and so well safeguarded that the investor would be paying too high a price for absolute safety. A government bond that only pays two per cent. sells at more than its face value. There is, of course, a reason why the government can afford to place these securities outside the realm of the individual, and that is historical, though it remains in vogue, slightly modified, in the present day. The United States, right after the drain of the Civil War, found itself with much debt and little credit. Of itself with much debt and little credit. Of itself with much debt and little credit. Of itself with much debt and little credit.

Bonds are exactly like any article in great demand, they rise in price. Accordingly, another government bond, rendered vitally necessary after the Civil War, made government bonds even more in demand by banks. Under Sam has always a lot of surplus cash in the treasury, which is available for deposits in the national banks of the country. When a bank wants to bear the credit of the United States depository--which indi-icates a certain importance and prestige to the general public--it must deposit in the treasury enough government bonds or other gilt-edged security to cover the deposit of government money, dollar for dollar. If the bank fails, the government loses no money.

This little talk on government bonds is of up-to-date interest, because on July 1st, a government issue of $88,000,000 will mature. These bonds pay four per cent, because they were issued in 1870, when the government had to pay a high rate of interest and also because they were used to refund war-time bonds that paid even a higher rate. This issue is probably better distributed among individual investors than any other--and it means that the government is getting ready to distribute $88,000,000 in cash to its financial friends of the '70's, or to refund the old bonds for new ones that only pay two per cent., maturing in 1930. The national banks who hold these maturing bonds will gladly re-mint them on any basis to protect their bank note circulation; it is believed that the individual investor will take cash and reinvest elsewhere.

WORKERS OF THE WORLD.

Most of the leading comic artists and cartoonists on newspapers are young men still in their twenties. Few have much art training, most haven't any. The salaries they receive range all the way from $2,000 to $10,000 a year.

When someone asked Edison how he could stand the strain of from 15 to 18 hours' work daily, the wizard replied: "My work is my pleasure. If I don't work I get tired--but hungry."

Hang over the desk of one of the greatest advertising experts in these United States is a card that bears the following quotation from Bulwer Lytton:

"Nothing is as contagious as enthusiasm. It is the real ally of the lute of Orpheus. It moves stones. It charms brutes. Enthusiasm is the genius of sincerity, and truth accomplishes no victory without it."

Boston is not a bit too literary and esthetic to have an eye open to the main chance. We are getting technical schools galore, but that city has added a course of scientific salesmanship to the curriculum of its high schools. Why not? This would be divided into those who manufacture and those who sell.

Nothing more pungent was ever written than the definition of luck given by Max O'Reil in the famous French essayist who wrote books about the United States and England, which indicated that he knew more about our troubles than our national writers. Here it is:

"Luck means rising at 6 o'clock in the morning, living on a dollar a day if you earn two, minding your own business and not meddling with other people's. Luck means appointments you have never failed to keep. Luck means trusting in God and your own resources."

A Swiss Cottage in Cement Blocks and Half-Timber

By Chas. S. Sedgwick, Architect, Minneapolis, Costing $3,000.00, Exclusive of Heating and Plumbing.

For the benefit of those who desire to use cement in the construction of their homes we are illustrating in this week's issue a small cottage house, constructed of hollow cement blocks in the first story, with half-timbers and cement above the first story. The wide projection of the eaves and gables and the timbered treatment of the front piazza, and the projected portion of the front story, are in harmony with the material that is used and the Swiss style of architecture, so little of which is seen in this country.

The house is small, being only 23 feet in width by 28 feet in depth, exclusive of piazza, and a considerable portion of design is specially well adapted for the rural home. There is a basement under the rear part of the first story, which is extended out around the piazza, the cement blocks being carried up from the grade line to the top of the first story. These blocks should be of hard, durable material and hollow, and in order that the walls on the inside may be perfectly dry they should be furred with 2x2 inch strips of wood, making a 2-inch hollow space between the walls and the plaster.

Above the cement blocks the frame is carried up with 2x4-inch studs, sheathed on the outside with 1 1/2 inch wood strips, nailed to the sheathing, lathed with expanded metal lathing and covered with a good coat of Portland cement mortar, that may be troweled smooth, or may be left with a rough sand finish surface, or it may be left with a pebble dash finish, the pebbles being thrown in as the walls are being cemented.

The central, triple, dormer gable is projected beyond the face of the main wall 2 feet, carried on timber brackets, and the cement showing in the panels and between the timbers. The hollow blocks being carried around the piazza, are extended up at the outer angles forming piers, with columns of blocks carrying up on the corners of the piazza roof, supplemented by wooden columns on each side. This combination of treatment makes a jaunty and pretty home for the country or suburbs. The outside wood trimmings, cornices, beams, etc., should be painted white, the roofs dark green, shingles, slate or red. The pointing between the cement blocks would best be in white mortar, although black is frequently used; in the judgment of the writer it is too somber in connection with the gray tone of the cement.

As indicated somewhat by the treatment of the design, climbing vines and foliage groups about this house will give a very picturesque effect. There are three rooms on the ground floor and two chambers, with bath-room, on the second floor. The front of the house is symmetrical, with a central vestibule opening into a liberal living room across the front 14x22 feet in size. Opposite the entrance is a broad, open fireplace, to the right of which is a wide opening into the dining-room. To the left of the fireplace is an open combination stairway leading to the second story, with the basement grade entrance and seasonal stairs up to the platform from the kitchen. The dining-room connects with the kitchen through the pantry, there is a recessed sideboard and china closet in the dining-room, and a commodious rear porch.

This house could be nicely finished in Washington fir, stained dark Flemish in the front room and golden oak in the dining-room, and all other interior wood work in the natural color, varnished. The floors to be of red brick, filled and varnished. If the entire house were to be covered full stories in height it would increase the cost $500 and afford two additional rooms in the second story.

The little needlebook shown is made of six rings, neatly buttonholed with green tapestried silk. Each ring has a spider's web worked in the middle with green silk. Three pieces of white flannel are cut out in the form of a clover leaf, a trifle larger than the covers, and are buttonholed around the edges with green silk, as shown in the illustration.

Trade Talks--The Newspaper Man

There is probably no other occupation in life, excepting, perhaps, the stage, so much sought after by ambitious and romantic young men than that of the newspaper man, or, as the tyro likes to say, the "journalist." The similitude between the stage and the press does not end there, however, for just as the eminent theatrical star always advises beginners from the stage, so the average newspaper man is never known to hold out bright hopes to the beginner. In his moments of leisure he grates bitterly about being a mere cog in the machine; in his moments of work he is a being of enthusiasm, acuteness and high ethics, with a devotion to duty that is usually made a depository of damaging confidences, and rarely does he and taste of excitement that clings to the work even in this practical age.

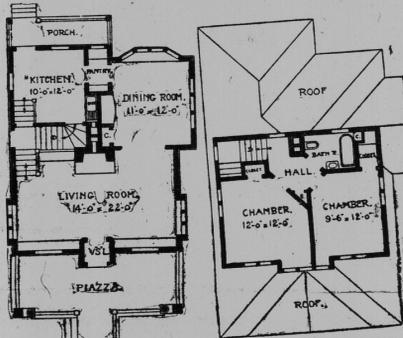

The "cub" reporter in the smaller towns usually starts at $12 a week; his only equipment being a well-grounded education, an ability to see through sham and state facts without prejudice, doggedness of purpose and a personality to inspire confidence among men of authority, from First, last and always that "sixth sense" of the "fourth estate" (as the profession is called)--i. e., "a nose for news."

The clean-cut young man who is wanted, not the poetic personage or the long-haired dreamer. To be able to "hammer" a typewriter is a great virtue, but not an absolute necessity. A knowledge of shorthand is not at all essential, fully 90 per cent. of newspaper men not knowing a stroke of it. In all cases, however, it will prove useful, and in many cases be the feather that turns the tide to success.

From the "cub" to the full-fledged reporter is a gap that may be bridged by the beginner in a few days or a few months, according to aptitude, or more especially "circumstances," which may be divided into two classes--emergencies and "shake-ups." It is these emergencies, always recurring, that make the beginner bloom like an exotic in a night. It is the fascinating land of Immediate Opportunity. The "shake-up" is a polite euphemism for wholesale "firing." The pay of the average reporter is from $18 to $30 a week, but he enjoys a prestige greatly in excess of that figure. "Desk" men--that is, men of literary or executive ability--center around the $30 mark, together with editorial writers, humorists, cartoonists and specialists of all kinds. The wage of Editor is only limited by the personality and ability of the man. These figures are not of much value, as in every case they are the accurate reflex of the newspaper man himself, and they are increased with a rapidity that would be astounding in any other trade or profession.

Inasmuch as most reporters eventually become specialists, doing "markets," "financial," "political," "courts," they are in daily contact with leaders in business and professional life. The clean-cut man, finds it comparatively easy to secure business and political berths with great freedom. The college man is particularly at home in the field, but the present generation of newspaper men were bred by hard work, in an atmosphere of printer's ink.

Every well-planned summer outfit should contain at least two or three linen costumes of different kinds, and so attractive are the new weaves and colorings of the season's linens that a selection is often bewildering to make.

The new linens come in various designs in stripes, checks and embroidered dots, as well as in plain browns, and the colors are unusually beautiful. Delightful pinks add coral tones are used both for tailored suits and elaborately trimmed frocks, as are the various other colorings in greens, violets, and blues. The string color and biscuit tones are particularly popular for tailored coats and skirts, and are also used for very smart looking frocks elaborately braided with white soutache, with added touches of hand embroidery. Soutache braiding is much used in trimming linen costumes, in many cases braid matching the color of the material being used in preference to white, English eye-let work and heavy padded embroidery are also effective, medallions or insertion pieces are also used, and also being much in evidence on the more elaborate linen suits and frocks. Embroidered buttons of linen to match the frock are also used very effectively, and ball fringe is seen on a great many of the little coats and fancy wraps.

The bodice of the linen frock sketched on this page shows to excellent advantage the heavy hand embroidery used as ornamentation.

The yoke and sleeves were of valenciennes combined with heavy venise lace, the belt and sleeve bands being crisscrossed with fine white cord. The model was in violet linen embroidered in white, with the fine white cord couched on about the edges of the bands used in trimming the bodice.

The second drawing was sketched for a young girl's costume, the outside being trimmed with bands of pale blue and white embroidery to match. The waist and skirt were joined by a girde of the embroidery which was also used to trim the skirt, as shown in the sketch. This design would also be very practical for almost any thing made of hand embroidery, lace being used instead of the embroidery.

Many Uses of the New Cretonnes

The charming effects that can be gained by the use of cretzone in house-furnishings have been realized by clever house-keepers for some time; but the new cretonnes are especially interesting when considering furnishings for summer homes. For the city house cretzone curtains and other draperies are generally considered more appropriate for bedrooms; but in the summer cottage, where furnishings are always of a more informal character, the use of artificially designed cretzone is almost as much in evidence in the downstairs rooms.

What could be more charming than a dainty little reception room or living room in a summer cottage furnished in cool tones, preferably green and white, with hangings and chair covers, cushions, etc., of flowered cretzone in gay, softly blended colorings? Wicker or grass furniture is particularly attractive for such use, the seats and backs of the chairs, divans and so on, being cushioned with the cretzone.

Then, sometimes in a rented cottage, when the furniture of the "parlor" or living-room is of the hideous, stuffy upholstered kind, slip covers of pretty cretzone can be made at small expense to complete the disguise of the offending furniture and save the room from being quite impossible artistically.

Various smaller articles can also be made of cretzone, such as desk and bureau fittings, boxes, trays, photograph frames and numerous other novelties; but especially attractive are the lamp shades on a wire framework covered with cretzone. These are for sale in the fine housefurnishings shops and are very expensive in price; but the majority of those seen to present few difficulties to the home-maker, and could be copied with very small expenditure.

One of the newest and most attractive of these lamp shades is also one of the simplest, round shades, and costs about 35 cents. The wires of this shade should first be covered neatly, and to this silk seam binding, which comes at ten cents a bolt, can be used very conveniently. The cretzone used for the cover should be of rather heavy quality, and should have a very well-covered design over a cream-colored or tinted ground.

The imported cretonnes showing rich fruit and flower patterns are generally used for this purpose, but will repay the expenditure. The lamp shade referred to is made by cutting a circle of the cretzone about six inches larger than the outside of the wire frame. An opening, or hole, is then cut in the middle to fit about the top, or collar, of the shade. Gilt tapestry braid or cretzone fringe is used as a finish, the braid being especially liked, as it has the advantage of being a novelty.

Especially in favor are those cretonnes 30 inches wide and of Elizabethan pattern, the individual design of which is a carnation about three and a half inches across, combined with a conventional flower and an irregular ribbonlike close vine effect on a plain background. Some of the color schemes are lavender and soft old yellow, pale yellow, and delft blue, a deep red, a rosea green.

A certain establishment renowned in this kind of work displays bedroom suits upholstered in 35-cent-a-yard cretonnes, and they represent the very latest novelty in the combining of cretzone and wood. In these sets the bed, dresser, chiffonier and tables, as well as the chairs, sofa and screen, are upholstered in almost entirely covered in cretzone. It has a square mirror and two shallow drawers at either side. The front is hollowed out so that the user may approach nearer the mirror, which is not beveled at the edge. Its only border is a turquois strip of wood covered with a gathered puff of cretzone. The bedroom in a country house was upholstered in mauve cretzone, showing a white ground well covered with a design of mauve orchids and tiny yellow primroses tied with narrow mauve ribbons which followed a continuous wavy line all over the cretzone, and the window and door hangings were of plain cretzone finished with an applied border of mauve and yellow flowers.

A white enameled bedroom suit was upholstered in a cretzone which retails at 35 cents a yard and which is known as the rose block pattern. On a white background there shown an oblong block pattern, each block being about eight by seven inches, and is outlined by a one-inch-wide vine of green leaves shading from a palest rose green to a bronze.

More leaves and one or two roses decorate each block, the colorings varying from a purplish crimson to a firecracker red. This prevents monotonous uniformity of pattern, the hue of one block being different from that of the next, but all blending in a harmonious whole.

In the fashionable country house the majority of the rooms are upholstered in cretzone. The leaning this season is toward very gay colorings, the walls corresponding in this respect to the furniture.

The Cleaning of Antique Rugs

The cleaning of antique rugs can be done at home if care be used in the operation. If it is done twice a year the rugs will never look dull and full of dirt. Semianually they should get a good scrubbing to freshen the colors and to clean out the dirt, which settles in so that the ordinary cleaning does not dislodge it.

First, brush the rug--never beat it--taking care to keep in the same direction as the nap lies. Then dump the rug into a bathtub filled with lukewarm water using a castile or pure white soap. Soak for a number of hours in the tub, then scrub with a soft brush and soap until it looks clean. Rinse well in cold water, and then lay a dull, flat stick over the rug and press every drop of water out. Then, when thoroughly rinsed, tack firmly to a frame such as is used for stretching lace curtains, and then place in the air to dry.

If the rug happens to be a very large one it will, after first being soaked, have to be scrubbed on the floor; but this is rather too much of an undertaking. It had better be sent direct to an expert for the operation. Dry cleaning is preferable to washing for rugs of certain weaves, but that also had best be done by one who thoroughly understands the process.

PLAYGROUNDS FOR CHILDREN

Charities Conference at Minneapolis Addressed by Henry S. Curtis on World-Wide Movement.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 18.—At today's session of the National Conference of Charities and Correction, Henry S. Curtis of Washington, secretary of the Playground Association of America, read a paper on "The World-Wide Playground Movement," in which, after speaking of the spread of the movement from its beginnings twenty-two years ago in Germany, he said:

The playground movement has arisen from the new comprehension of the nature of childhood and the new civic spirit which means a new sense of accountability of the strong for the weak and defenseless. Every investigator who has sought to study the child, whether he has studied his physical nature, his habits, his interests, his intellectual aptitude, or his moral nature, has come upon play as the fundamental form of his activity out of which all sides of his nature are largely developed. A few of the fundamental reasons at the bottom of the playground movement are the following:

(1) Physical health is a prime consideration in any educational system. The only way to give a child robust health is to give him plenty of exercise in the open air. (2) The work of children has disappeared; play is practically the only method left for their physical development. (3) In the summer time the city child has nothing to do. He passes his time, if not given a playground, largely in the street or alley. These streets and alleys are dusty and hot, the games which the child plays in them are a constant annoyance to all passersby and adjoining business, and are generally against the law. (4) Almost all the social culture, the good character which make the person pleasant to know, and give him the ability to get on and cooperate with others, come from the companionship of play. (5) Play is the natural activity of childhood, it is the activity to which his nature is adjusted, it is the greatest mental stimulus, and in it he is able to generate a larger amount of energy than in anything else that he does. (6) The child forms practically all of his habits in play, and in it he learns to be truthful, honest, and courteous, or the opposite. The easiest initiation into a life of unwholesomeness is to get him to work for the team instead of for himself. (7) The spirit of optimism and joyousness which makes life worth living is the very essence of the spirit of play and childhood, it is he who gets spirit of it in childhood to carry him through to four score.

METHODIST CONFERENCE

ST. STEPHEN, N. B., June 21 (Special).—The conference met at 9 this morning. President, James Craig, presiding. After the opening exercises the order of the day was taken and Rev. Dr. Allen, general secretary of the home department, was called to the platform and conducted a round table on missions. Many questions were asked and answers given. It was clearly shown that changes made by the general conference board were all in the way of increased efficiency.

A WOMAN'S BACK WAS NOT MADE TO ACHE

Thousands of Women suffer Untold Misery Every Day with Aching Backs That Really have no Business to Ache.

Under ordinary conditions it ought to be strong and ready to bear the burden of life. It is hard to do housework with an aching back. Backache comes from sick kidneys, and was a lot of trouble sick kidneys cause. But they can't help it. If more work is put on them than they can stand it is not to be wondered that they get out of order. Backache is simply a warning from the kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of terrible suffering from kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you in the same way as they have cured thousands of others. Mrs. Theo. Craig, Alton, Ont., writes: "I was doctoring for six months for kidney trouble and my back was so lame I had to lie in bed. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills. It did so and in one week I was able to walk with very little pain, and in five months my back was as strong as ever."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

MR. R. L. BORDEN IS HOPEFUL

Says His Party's Outlook All Over the Country is Encouraging.

TORONTO, Ont., June 21 (Special).—Conservative members of the house of commons, yesterday, gathered in force in Toronto from all parts of the province of Ontario to confer with their leader, R. L. Borden, K. C. M. P. Mr. Borden, in an interview last night, talked of the prospects throughout the Dominion in a most optimistic vein. "I came here to meet the Conservative members in Ontario," he said, "and the meeting was very useful and very encouraging. Undoubtedly Ontario is strong for the Conservative interests yet. "Prospects are bright," he said. "From reports which reach us daily, or rather continuously, we are satisfied that the present administration is becoming more and more discredited."

IMPROVE YOUR COMPLEXION

Give Up Cosmetics and Seek the Cause of Your Bad Color.

When it's so easy to bring back the bloom of youth, to remove the blemishes and fill the hollows, isn't it foolish to plaster on cosmetics? Sallow skin and fallen cheeks are produced by disorders of the alimentary canal. Remove the cause—correct the condition that keeps you from looking as you ought. Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and very soon you'll have a complexion to be proud of. Just imagine how much happier you will feel when those pimples and murky look have gone. Dainty looks came to Miss Vrooman, a well-known resident of Belfast, from using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Read what she says: "My friends all admit that I have a very delightful complexion. This I owe positively to Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I used to look so yellow I thought it might be jaundice. There was simply no color in my cheeks at all. Today my skin is clear and never gets that murky dull appearance it had before. Dr. Hamilton's Pills have also given me a good appetite and improved my general health also."

Not only the complexion, but every organ of the body is strengthened, cleansed and made healthy by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Buy one, via and a feeling of vigor will invariably follow their use. Sold in yellow boxes by all dealers; 25c per box or five boxes for $1.00, or by mail from N. C. Peters & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

THE TWO CENT RAILROAD RATE

Governor Hughes' veto of the 2-cent fare law in New York was utilized as an argument in the Wisconsin Senate, where a bill requiring railroad companies to accept a 2-cent passenger fare was introduced on Thursday by a considerable majority. This is a state in which, as already recorded, the Railroad Commission in February reduced the maximum passenger rate from 3 to 2 1/2 cents per mile. It will not escape attention that in a number of states in the west the railroads are considering the advisability of attacking the 2-cent fare laws in the courts. Proceedings with that object in view have already been begun in Minnesota. In Iowa, Nebraska and Arkansas tentative plans looking to the same end have been adopted. In Illinois the matter is being closely considered by the railroad attorneys. In Missouri a temporary injunction against the enforcement of the 2-cent fare law has been granted by Judge McPherson of the Federal Court at Kansas City, while counter proceedings have been begun by Attorney General Hadley in the state courts.

LIFE INSURANCE

Canada life insurance business does not show for the past year the expansion which has been so noticeable a feature of previous reports. The total net premiums received were $14,712,000, as against $14,253,071 in 1905, being only a slight increase. On the other hand the amount written has grown from $1,141,000,372 to $1,207,045,338. The fact that the amount written shows so considerable an increase, while the increase in net premiums is less marked, is accounted for by the fact that while in 1904 and 1905 the average rate was 1.60, it was last year only 1.53 per cent.

WHEN FRANK WAS HELPED BY FAIRIES

By WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

Once upon a time, in the Age of Fairies, there dwelt in the mountains of a beautiful land a Good Man with his Good Wife and Little Son. As their names were too difficult for the children of the Twentieth Century to pronounce I shall give them modern names. The Good Man's name shall be Thomas Higgins, his Good Wife's name Nancy Higgins, and their Little Son's name Frank Higgins.

One day while Thomas Higgins was away from home gathering fagots with which to build a fire for the purpose of cooking, there approached him three stalwart men riding great white horses. They drew rein at the spot where Thomas was cutting brushwood and asked: "Why do you toil so, Good Man? Are you too poor to hire others to do your work?" "Aye, I'm a poor man, a husband and a father. But I am a happy man, for my wife and my child are well and my work is not too heavy for me. I have a garden and fields of growing grain. We have a flock of sheep that affords us meat and goats that give us milk. We do not mind doing our own work and ask for nothing more than we now possess." "Good Sir," thus spoke Thomas Higgins to the "three stalwart men who questioned him.

"But for your son's sake you should do better than you are doing," said the first of the three. "Come, follow us and we'll put you in the way of finding a fortune whereby your son shall become a man of his own country. It is meet that parents should help their sons to exalted positions."

"But I prefer that my son should live the simple life that has sufficed for his fathers before him," argued Thomas Higgins. "He is strong and good. That is better than being Great, Sirs."

"Nay, nay," spake a second of the three. "You must know, Poor Man, that the world is ever developing and our children must keep pace with its growth. It behooves us to see that they are educated and prepared to occupy places a step higher than their fathers held."

through a deep canyon. After some minutes of silence the leader drew his horse to a stop and said to Thomas: "Come get thee on the horse in front of me. It is a weary walk and a slow one on foot. We'll make better haste if you ride."

Thomas did as asked, and was soon seated on the mighty horse's back in front of the rider. But scarcely had he taken his place there when he felt a very heavy cloth suddenly wrapped over his face, shutting off his sight. Then before he could move a muscle his hands were pinioned behind him and he found himself a prisoner and blindfolded. In vain he tried to call out: the bandage about his face held his mouth shut, and almost strangled him. "Make no noise, nor do you struggle," said his captor behind him. Then the horse started into a quick trot and soon Thomas knew that he was miles away from home. Nor did they pause till late at night. Then they drew rein and Thomas—to his relief—was unbound and assisted to the ground. His face was freed from the cloth bandage and to his astonishment he saw himself in the midst of a forest of at least a hundred men, some warriors, but for the most part they were common tillers of the soil and tenders of flocks like himself.

"What means this treatment of me—a free-born man?" asked Thomas of one of the three men who had brought him thither. "It means common man that you are now our slave. We are picking the strongest men of the country for our army. We the Stalwart Three, mean to invade the adjoining country and take them as our possessions. You lie to fight for us when the time comes. And in the meantime do not dare to try to escape. Such a rash act would mean your instant death. We are the mightiest of our stronghold that is protected by an armed guard. Now, you know why you are here, slave."

Frank went to the wooded places on the mountain side where his father usually went for fagots, but no father did he find. There, it is true, he saw many fagots piled and the cutting knife beside them. In vain he called "Father, father!" but the echo of his voice answered him. He was about to return home when a voice spoke to him from an adjoining crag: "Boy wouldn't know the fate of thy father?" Frank looked in the direction from which the voice came and saw there a slender youth with golden hair and carrying a bow and arrow.

"Yes, my father is lost and I am seeking him," answered Frank. "Can you tell me aught of him, Grand Sir?" "I'm the Fairy Prince Don, out on a lark in disguise. I saw three men whose talk your father away up the canyon with them. I then feared foul-play, but since I had no way of knowing but what he wanted to go of his own will I did not interfere. But think you he was carried away by stratagem? If so, I'll arrange for you to bring him home this night—and him unhurt, as well."

"If my father went away with men a-horse, it was not of his own will. I can swear to that," declared Frank. "He was induced to go on some false evidence furnished by those men. What they want with my father I do not know. But I know that my father must be his prisoner, or he would not have remained away so long. He is very considerable, of my mother and me, Prince Don."

"Well, you run to your cot and tell your mother of my errand that she may not be anxious about you. Then return at once and we'll follow the trail taken by the horsemen who carried away your father."

Frank lost no time in returning to his mother, whom he told about the fairy prince's promise. Nancy knew the fairies were not only trustworthy, but could perform miracles, she made no objection to Frank's accompanying Prince Don, and she sent him forth in haste with her blessing.

Prince Don led Frank through the canyon to the very outpost of the stronghold of the Stalwart Three. There they paused and Prince Don waved his wand—which was hidden in one of his arrows—and immediately the armed guard about the entrance fell into a deep sleep. Again Prince Don waved his wand, and every stone and bush within a radius of a hundred feet rose and took on the form of knights armed to the teeth. "Now, we're ready to rescue your father," he said to Frank. "Come, let the army enter the stronghold!"

The army with Prince Don and Frank at its head, entered the stronghold of the Stalwart Three and fell upon the warriors, unarming and binding them. Then they set at liberty those who were held in captivity. When Thomas saw his Little Son he gave a cry of joy, saying: "I knew my boy would find some way of rescuing me. I prayed it might be so." Then, with Frank and the young fairy prince, Thomas went down the mountain homeward. But Don waved his wand over the cruel band of usurers and warriors, as well as their leaders. The Stalwart Three, and turned them all into owls. And even to this day it is said that the owls of that part of the mountain are more numerous than elsewhere, hooting all night long as they sit in the trees and high places on the rugged mountain crags.

INTENSIFIED FRUIT JUICES AN IMPROVEMENT ON NATURE

A Discovery that is Revolutionizing Medicine.

Remarkable Success Attends the Finding of a New Medicinal Compound by Combining the Juices of Apples, Oranges, Figs and Prunes.

Fruit helps to keep one healthy. Fruit, in itself, will not cure disease. The medicinal principle—or that part of fruit which has a curative effect—is in such infinitesimal quantities, that it is unable to overcome a diseased condition of the stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys or skin. Just here is where science stepped in. An Ottawa physician did what nature could not do. He first found that some fruits were stronger medicinally than others—and that apples, oranges, figs and prunes contained all the healing properties of other fruits. There are two principles in fruit juices—bitter and sweet. After extracting the juices of the four fruits mentioned, this physician succeeded in replacing one atom of the sweet principle by one of the bitter. This resulted in an entirely new combination being formed. This new compound was many times more active medicinally than the fruit juices. Where eating fruit only helped to keep one well, this compound actually cured disease. To make it more valuable still, this physician added the finest tonics and antiseptics, and then, by evaporating the entire compound to a powder, made it into tablets. This, in short, is the method of making "Fruit-a-tives"—these wonderful tablets—the most reliable cure for Constipation, Biliousness, Stomach Troubles, Kidney and Bladder Disease and Sick Affections. Being made from fruit, "Fruit-a-tives" may be taken by women and children without fear of ill-effect. Don't take a substitute. If your druggist does not handle them, send 50c for a box to Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

McCauley Dunlap, who has pitched good ball for St. Joseph's College will be on the slab for St. Peter's team, and with Howe in the box for the north end boys, a pitchers' battle is expected.

NEW PLAY IS GIVEN FIRST REHEARSAL

Production of Caprice by Local Amateurs is Now in Preparation

The first rehearsal of Caprice, the four-act play to be produced in the Opera House on July 5, for the benefit of the School for the Deaf, Lancaster, was held last evening in the Church of England Institute rooms and, judging from it, the production should be a pronounced success.

Theodore H. Bird, who is directing the production, expressed himself as greatly pleased with the adaptability of the members of the cast for their parts.

Several of the chapters who witnessed the rehearsal were also delighted. The next rehearsal will be Monday evening at 8 o'clock, in the C. of E. Institute rooms.

SHOULD TERRACE HOSPITAL HILL

Dr. Geo. A. B. Addy Makes a Suggestion to the Powers That Be.

Dr. George A. B. Addy believes that at a reasonable outlay, the ungrainy looking hill back of the hospital facing on City Road, which is now ornamented with timbers, ashlar and debris, could be terraced and beautified so as to be an ornament to the city.

The doctor also expresses the opinion that there would be no necessity of erecting a new building on the hill, but that the existing building could be enlarged and improved.

Dr. Addy comes forward with this suggestion, which he regards as quite capable of engineering the work above referred to.

Dr. Addy points out that the hospital hill, as it is sometimes called, is a very unsightly feature of the city, and that it is a disgrace to a city that pretends to be so advanced as the times.

Dr. Addy is not the only one who thinks that the sooner St. John people awake to the untidy condition of the ugly plot of ground and take measures for its improvement the better.

In support of this statement Dr. Addy refers to the wonderful work that Mr. Fisher has accomplished in Rockwood Park, which must be seen in order to be really appreciated.

It is without saying that the "hospital hill" as it is at present is really and honestly a disgrace to a city that pretends to be so advanced as the times.

Dr. Addy is not the only one who thinks that the sooner St. John people awake to the untidy condition of the ugly plot of ground and take measures for its improvement the better.

NERVY ACTOR JOLLIES FRIGHTENED AUDIENCE

Ned Nye's Presence of Mind Prevents Serious Panic in New York Theatre.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Prompt action by Ned Nye, monologist, prevented a panic in Keith & Proctor's Fifty-eighth street Theatre Thursday night, when fire engines were heard outside the building.

When the engine arrive several persons started for the exits, while many others rose in their places or moved toward the exits. Nye saw the danger, learned from some one in the wings where the fire actually was, and announced from the stage that there was a rival attraction just across the street in the shape of a small blaze if any one wanted to see it. There was a laugh and the timid ones quietly sat down.
