A MODERN RESIDENCE.

A FEW OF THE IMPROVEMENTS IN A NEW HOUSE.

Ready for the Incandescent Light—Speaking Tubes and Electric Buttons—The Yard Gate Worked from the Kitchen—The Elevator and Ash Shoots in the Grates.

Progress mentioned last week that Mr. McGaffigan's new house was wired and ready for incandescent lighting when it comes. There was not time or space then to speak of some other things that will interest every man and woman who live in houses. It would almost seem as if the owner of this house had been thinking for years of building and matched every economic improvement he came across for his own use.

To enter the rear gate, instead of the front entrance, you can't get in until you whisper through the speaking tube to the bright eyed Phyllis in the kitchen to come and open the gate. She doesn't come, but the gate opens, and, rather surprised to see no one about, in you walk, to find to your amazement that with an equally noiseless motion the gate swings to after you. What the mischief ails that thing? But if you are a small boy with a parcel you haven't time to ask questions. You enter the rear door and see a strange sight—a contented burrow lussie pushing a box on wheels upon an elevator! actually, an elevator, a small one surely, but an elevator in a private house. Down it goes, the box upon it; and when it reaches the bottom the girl lifts her hand, pulls a strap, and rattle, rattle, something very like coal falls into the box. This continues for a minute until the box is filled, when the girl pulls the strap the other way. The trap of the coal bin shuts and with another simple movement of the arm the elevator rises with the box now full of coal, which is rolled to one side for use. The servant says that the family up stairs use the same elevator and anything and everything rises on it from a barrel of flour to the daily market basket.

With a pardonable curiosity the boy wants to know how the gate is worked. He is shown that by pulling a strap in the kitchen, similar to a bell pull, the gate is opened and that by pulling another strap alongside the gate is closed. Two other speaking tubes are alongside that leading to the gate and these, the girl explains, lead to the second and third flats. This kitchen appears to be a wonderful place. It is large and has three closets off it, one for a pantry, one for pots, pans, etc., and one for the cook and her flour barrel—a pastry closet in fact.

The dining room does not strike you at first as being much different from that of an ordinary house, but when you see the handsome walnut sideboard built in the niche you conclude it is rather nice. Something else will puzzle you if you remain to luncheon or dinner; how is it that the servant always arrives at the right time and without any bell being tinkled. The riddle is solved by a question and an electric button in the floor is shown you, which, when pressed by the foot of the hostess, rings a bell in the kitchen and summons the servant.

Any description would be incomplete without some idea of the plumbing and its protection. The ventilation is perfect by means of pipes leading to the roof and the patent air fan that revolves at the top of them, making a suction that draws not only foul air from the house but is even powerful enough to carry out pieces of paper, though this is unnecessary. The water pipes that run under the floors are laid in zinc troughs, which incline toward the front of the house and if at any time there is a break in them there will be no danger of flooded floors and ruined carpets, for the zinc channels will carry off the escaping water. The slate washbasins with hot and cold water leading into them are not found everywhere, and the wet cloak and umbrella closet off the front hall, the separate drawers for ladies and gentlemen's boots in the closets off the bedrooms, the huge linen closet off the upper hall and the ventilators in the sides of the stone front steps that connect with the vegetable departments in the cellar, all contribute to this "modern residence."

Not the least among the improvements doted on by the domestics, are the shoots in the fireplaces for ashes. Before the fires are rekindled all the servant has to do is to pull a slide and the ashes descend through this passage in the brick work to the ash box in the cellar. These are but a few of the improvements the tenant of this new house will enjoy. Progress is glad such a class of houses is being erected in St. John. Owners think of something else beside a mere shelter, for they are making their houses comfortable in every respect.

Well and Cheaply Done. Merchants who want engraving done should not fail to get it well done. The engravings in Progress are done by an established concern and its work is above criticism. Progress is its agent for the maritime provinces, and all orders sent to this office will be executed promptly and satisfactorily, eight days being all the time that is required for the filling of any order.

TALK OF THE THEATRE.

What on earth will I write about? Ah, that's the question. You see, after all the rush and bustle of the last nine weeks there has come a calm, and—I'm beguiled. The truth of the matter is, I have been devoting my attention and my evenings to the Martyr College of Elocution and Oratory and, though it does not strictly come within the scope of this column, yet many of my readers may find it of interest. I will next week give you a summary of the rules to be followed, according to the professor, if you desire to become another Bright or Gladstone.

Just now I can only speak of the dramatic recital with which Edmund Shaftesbury and Miss Cora Shaftesbury opened the course, and a most enjoyable one it was. Cultured, refined and artistic, it appealed to the intelligence and won the admiration of the small but critical audience present.

Although the programme styled everything impersonations, yet, to my mind, it was divided into three parts: the recitations and impersonations by Mr. Shaftesbury, and the contributions by Miss Shaftesbury.

That Mr. Shaftesbury is an elocutionist of the highest order is beyond dispute, but that he is a versatile one, as Recorder Jack said in his address, is open to some question. In The Pathway of Gold, The Roman Tragedy, The Congressman and The New Jersey Orator, his voice, gesture, action and style were all that could be desired; but The Lean Man's Apology was only fair; The Yagobons was not as finished or so sense made as apparent to one who might not know the piece as I have heretofore heard it done, and The Frenchman in Macbeth, while excellent in make-up, was weak in dialect.

Of his work that comes strictly within the line of impersonation it is sometimes very difficult to form a decided opinion. Having never seen Joseph Jefferson but in Rip Van Winkle I suppose I must accept the Song of Songs as being a correct copy, though the audience would have much preferred it if he had given us a touch of the Sleeper of the Catskills. Shylock may not have been in the least like Edwin Booth's Jew, but it was a great piece of work—fine, delicate, impassioned, and out of the whole programme worthy of first mention.

The Uncle, under the name of An English Tragedy, was recited like—that is, it was alleged to be like Henry Irving, "this mannerisms avoided." What nonsense! Henry Irving without mannerisms wouldn't be Henry Irving at all, and consequently the imitation deceived no one, but bore upon its face the evidence of its own uncertainty. Otherwise the piece was well delivered, though at times it appeared to be a little overdone, caused by the want of orchestra music which accompanies its recitation by Mr. Irving.

Play actors call Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage the acrobat of the stage, and I suppose, but from what I saw of him from Mr. Shaftesbury it was impossible to judge how far the term was applicable.

As I sat and listened to his impersonation of O'Connell, I thought that when Lord Beaconsfield and Jeffery, Mr. Roebuck and Charles Dickens voted the Irish Tribune the greatest orator of his day in the commons, they must have been either mad or drunk, for the character the reader gave me was more like a western rafter spouter on a stump than one whom history says could move to tears and laughter at will. Of course, remembering that Mr. Shaftesbury could never have heard O'Connell, and must have gleaned his knowledge of him from books, the feat was too difficult to expect any degree of success. And then, why, if he had been O'Connell, whose style was entirely different from his chief's, when he could get scores of O'Connell's.

Miss Shaftesbury read Aunt Jimina Before and After Marriage exquisitely, but her singing was weak.

From the very choice and readable "Recollections" Dion Boucault is contributing to the North American Review, I clip the following repeated in the Dramatic Mirror:

In 1874, in pursuance of a contract made with Mr. Lester Wallace, Boucault had undertaken to compose a new Irish drama, in which he was to appear in the principal character, to be produced in November of that year. The play, entitled Boyne Water, was in a forward state in September, when Wallace strolled into the author's room in Fifteenth street to ascertain what scenery would be required. Then for the first time Boucault laid before him the plot of the new play, and read some of the scenes. As he proceeded, the countenance of the manager fell so miserably that the author paused.

"You don't seem to like the piece?" said Boucault, throwing aside the manuscript.

"Oh, yes, that is the difficulty," replied Wallace. "I have just bought the last London success, Clancarty. The part suits me, and it entered into my plans this season to make my appearance in this play, at the conclusion of your engagement next January. This drama of yours involves the same historical characters, especially that of William the Third, and the same costumes. You will blanket my piece. You will take the wind out of my sails. What can be done?"

"Nothing that I can see," replied Boucault, "but to change the period of my play, say to the present day."

"But you cannot change Boyne Water to another period."

"No," replied Boucault. "No matter, John; leave it to me." And he did. In a few days an entirely new play was shaped, in which some of the reader gave me were used. This was The Shaughraun. The first performance of this drama was a complete success. When Boucault arrived at the theatre, two hours before the curtain went up, he was met by his dresser, who asked him what he was going to wear for the part of Con. The question suddenly reminded him that he had been so busy with other people that he had forgotten to provide for himself. They mounted into the wardrobe of the theatre.

"Have you got an old red hunting-coat? Where is your Tony Lumpkin dress? Surely you have a Goldfinch coat?"

"But, sir, they will not fit." "That is just what I want. Tear the arms to make them shorter; slit up the back—so. What have you there? Tony Lumpkin's hunting-cap—black velvet—the very thing! Tear the lining out. I see a splendid pair of old boots render." "These are not a pair, sir." "So much the better."

And this in half an hour the costume of Con was patched together. What an escape! At the end of the second act we had a very fine scene by Matt Morgan—the ruin of St. Bridget's Abbey moonlight. A bright full moon appeared over the sea and the silver ripple on the water, admirably contrived by a new process, was depended on to produce a great effect. Just before the scene was discovered, there was a "wait"—something had gone wrong. The gas-man appeared before the author, breathless, perspiring with despair. "Oh, sir, if you please, the moon has burst"—that is, the glass of the apparatus by which the moon was imitated had broken. There was no help for it. The scene must be discovered; and when it was, it exhibited a total eclipse of the big round hole in the scene represented the luminary; but they had forgotten to shut off the ripple in the water, which continued to sparkle bravely, to the great amusement of the audience, in which Con. joined heartily. Surely here were accidents enough, but the worst was to come. In the last scene the villain, Kinchella, is shot, and the English officer, examining the body, finds the bullet, entering his heart, has been stopped by a pocket-book he carried in his breast.

"Ah!" cries the captain, "the bullet has entered here; this pocket-book has saved his life." When Montague approached Arnold and felt for the pocket-book, he could not find it. "Good heavens! Arnold," he exclaimed, "you have forgotten the book."

"No," whispered Arnold, "it is in my tall pocket." Montague rolled him over and, searching in that region, exclaimed: "Ah! the bullet has entered here; this pocket-book has saved his life." Not another word of the rest of the play could be heard. Boucault was so convulsed with laughter that he broke down in the last speech. But good humor never spoiled anything.

the reality of the fluid. Why, bless you, Miss Haswell didn't take the bath at all; it was Miss Bainbridge, a substitute, who took the wetting while the other lady received the call and the honor.

And in the same connection, this was not Mr. Frawley's first appearance in St. John. He was here five years ago, with the John H. Murray company.

Arthur Rhean proposes to have a great company this season. Besides Mrs. Jamieson, there will be J. H. Ryley and Madeline Lucette—his wife, the celebrated comic opera people, Adele Waters, Henry Hoto and Burr McIntosh. The Lottery of Love, under the name of The Surprise of a Divorce, will be the attraction. They intend to come this way.

Fritz Williams has been re-engaged for the Madison Square company. Tyrone Power is with The Lion and the Lamb. J. M. Franconer supports Miss Rhea. By the way, wasn't she here three years ago on her farewell tour? Yes; now I remember well; they advertised her wardrobe and not her ability and that is the reason I did not see her. Melbourne McDowell, the present husband of Fanny Davenport, is said to be a brother of our own Eugene. Bassett Willard and Edith Stannore have been captured by George Fawcett Rowe. J. M. Hill is preparing to star M. A. Kennedy in A Possible Case.

Robert Grae is resting; address, Ludlow street jail—Dramatic Years. He will be remembered as the gentleman who stranded the large opera company in Montreal early last year and made many of the citizens of that city regret their confidence in him.

And now it turns out that the story of amputating Duncan Harrison's leg was only an advertising dodge after all. OWEN T. CARROLL.

MR. DOUGLAS SLADEN'S TOUR.

Where He Has Been and Intends to Go Before He Returns.

Mr. Douglas Sladen has been at Quebec. He left Windsor by the Windsor and Annapolis line for Annapolis, N. S., and is enthusiastic over the beauties of the Annapolis valley and the picturesqueness of historic Annapolis. Thence he went to St. John by the sound steamer City of Monticello. At St. John he was met by Mr. Carter, editor of Progress, and called upon by Mayor Jack and Mr. Hannay, the historian, directly after his arrival. Mr. Carter then drove him around the city, and on the following day Mr. Hannay took him over the historical parts. After a couple of days in St. John to collect materials for his loyalist poem, he went up the St. John river to Fredericton, and is loud in its praises. He thinks it one of the most charming river trips he has made.

TO MY WIFE.

Sweet lady, queen-star of my life and thought, Whose heart and soul are one with mine...

A DOOMED SHIP.

Out on the broad blue ocean, not far from the equator, thousands of miles from any land, flying motionless on a calm sea...

The day passed slowly, as many days had passed; the sun began to sink lower and lower in the western sky...

Suddenly there came from the cuddy window a stream of light, and a man, gaunt and emaciated, peered out on to the deserted deck...

This was the state of affairs three days previous to the opening of this story. The captain was sitting with his eyes apparently closed...

No succor could reach them he knew while the calm lasted; but this was not the thought that was haunting his mind.

He sat there eying the captain with a diabolical leer. He was no longer a man, he was a demon. Suddenly he started up...

The mate after this grew more furious, and after vainly attempting to enter the cabin, withdrew to the forecastle and took up his abode there...

How long—how long can this last? thought Capt. Dunnett, as he sat and gazed out into the night. A painful sort of pathos was stealing over him.

Let us, Washington's Ice Cream Parlors are elegant and his ice cream par excellence.

deserted deck, and the two watchers still watched on. Meanwhile, nature had not long been idle. As yet, in the distant horizon, great masses of fleecy clouds began to pile themselves up one above another...

The silent watcher in the cuddy saw nothing, and heard nothing of all this. His head had sunk heavily on his bosom, he slept. Suddenly there was a noise beneath the deck like the scratching of a rat...

All unconscious of his peril, Capt. Dunnett slept on. He had no idea of danger from such a quarter, no idea that the mate had for two days past been laboring with maniacal pangs and tenacity to clear an opening through the cargo...

Jarvis stood over his intended victim, his eyes glittering with a diabolic light; the blow was in the act of descending when his arm was arrested. The cabin was suddenly illuminated with a blue, electric light, and a peal of thunder, loud as the crack of doom, broke over the ship.

"You are mad, Jarvis!" exclaimed the captain. "Yes, I am; but strike, man—strike! Put an end to this torture; I can stand no more of it!"

"No!" cried the captain, throwing him from him. Then he turned and left the cabin, locking the door behind him.

On the deck a grand and startling sight met his view. The whole of the northern part of the heavens was enveloped in the blackest darkness while the southern half was clear and bright.

"There! there!" See what a marvellous Heaven has sent us! A second or two all flash of lightning moved over the mizzen-mast; it ran down the mast, which tottered, and with a crash, fell over the side.

"The lightning flashed almost incessantly. The wind came in hot puffs. The brig still held on her course. By this time she was within half a mile of them. But suddenly the hot puffs ceased, and she lay motionless on the water.

"The lightning, which had shivered the mizen-mast, had descended into the hold and set fire to the cargo, and the conflagration was spreading rapidly.

"The two men, when they made this discovery, stood appalled with horror. They knew they were standing, as it were, on a volcano, for, in the magazine below, they stored a quantity of gunpowder, which might explode at any moment and blow the ship to atoms.

The smoke belched forth in large volumes, and now and again a bright, flickering flame shot up from the hatchway.

"Used Up,"

"Tired Out," "No Energy," and similar expressions, whenever heard, indicate a lack of vital force, which, if not remedied in time, may lead to complete physical and nervous prostration.

"I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an admirable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it to all my patients who work every time."—E. L. Pater, M. D., Manhattan, Kansas.

And now another danger was threatening them. Away in the distance there was dull, sobbing noise, which each minute became more distinct—the tornado was fast approaching.

The last time they had looked at the brig she was lying becalmed; and they had imagined that at the rate the conflagration was extending, there was little chance of success arriving in time to save them, for now the deck was getting hot under their feet, and the fire had extended to the forecastle-deck-house; but at that moment they were startled by a sharp cry of "Ship ahoy! Ship ahoy!" and looking in the direction from whence the sound came, they saw a boat, manned with four men, pulling rapidly towards them.

While the second mate was rescuing the two men from the burning ship the captain and mate of the brig were making preparations for the coming gale; and, before the boat had got alongside, the sails had been furled and everything made snug.

They were the only ones that were kept up by the excitement of the situation; but the moment they were on board the brig they fainted dead off, and were taken below in a state of unconsciousness.

It was a scene of grandeur and horror, which it would be difficult to equal, and excited awe in every heart. The force of the wind was tremendous, and the two vessels drove on madly before it.

All that night the gale continued, and shortly after daylight moderated, but by noon it had blown itself out, the clouds rose, and the weather cleared up.

"I was not myself, Capt. Dunnett," he said apologetically. "I was mad with hunger and despair. The devil seemed to have got into my heart; and when I reflect on the thoughts that passed through my mind, and the things I planned during that time, my mind is filled with horror, and I blush with shame when I think of them."

"Forget it, Capt. Dunnett!" cried the mate plaintively; "I shall never forget it! The misery and torment of that dreadful time will haunt me to my dying day."

"A dreadful time, truly," replied the captain solemnly; "and I can only pray heaven that no other two men may ever be called on to pass through such a dreadful ordeal as we did."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

And the Happenings in Social Circles of Fredericton, Moncton, Woodstock, Dorchester, St. Stephen, Sussex, and other places in the Valley.

The death of Miss Mary Sturdee, which occurred at Halifax on Monday last, has cast a gloom not only over her immediate friends, but over society circles generally, with whom she was a great favorite; consequently entertainments of all kinds have given place to mourning this week, not only in St-John, but in Halifax. The event is more than usually sad, from the fact that Miss Sturdee died away from home, and while on a pleasure excursion. Although the daily papers of this week have given full particulars, I feel that Progress should also contain an account for the benefit of those who do not see the daily papers, and who largely depend on Progress for the events of the week. Two short weeks ago Miss Mary Sturdee, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. E. T. Sturdee, and Miss Zilma Hazen, left for Halifax to attend the carnival, and after a few days there, in the midst of enjoyments, contracted a severe cold, which developed into peritonitis, under which she sank rapidly, although everything which medical skill and careful nursing could do was done for her. Her two sisters and one brother were with her when she passed away, as well as several St. John friends, who happened to be boarding in the same house. The deceased was a bright young girl, full of life and spirits, and will be much missed by her friends. The funeral, which took place from her late residence, Carnarvon street, on Tuesday last, was attended by a great number of sorrowing friends, and if anything was wanting to testify the esteem in which she was held, the numerous floral offerings, with which the casket was cuttily covered, speak for themselves. From the rector, church wardens and vestry of Trinity church a large star of flowers; from the choir of Trinity church (of which Miss Sturdee was a prominent member) a large cross; from C. B. Blaine and others at the St. John Fusilliers, a cross; from Canon Brigot, a wreath; from the members of Miss Sturdee's dancing class, a very large wreath. These together with numbers of other floral emblems from relatives and friends in St. John and Halifax not only covered the casket, but filled the church steps.

The wet weather on Thursday last prevented the annual picnic of St. James church Sunday school taking place, although numbers of both teachers and scholars went as far as the station, hoping it might clear, but were obliged to return home by half past five.

Mr. George Y. Crookshank returned to Ottawa on Friday.

Miss Tina and Miss Bertie McLaren are visiting Chatham, the guests of Mrs. Snowball.

I regret to hear that Dr. Holden is confined to the house with a sprained ankle. His many friends hope he will soon be about again.

Mrs. Blair (Ottawa), daughter of Mr. R. W. Crookshank, who has been spending the summer in St. John, has been prevented through illness from returning home, as she intended last week.

Mrs. J. Taylor has returned from Halifax. The two sons of Mr. Howard Campbell, of the Beaver Line S. S. company, are spending a few weeks with their uncle, Mr. Charles Campbell, Duke street.

Mrs. Sydney Kaye returned from Shelburne last week, where she has been spending the last few weeks.

Rev. Canon Brigot left on Thursday, for Halifax to meet Mrs. Brigot and son, who were expected to arrive there by the Ulanda on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lee returned home from their wedding tour last week, and immediately after their arrival Mr. Lee was confined to Lunenburg, N. S., to take a position there in the Halifax Banking company.

Miss Ada Tabor and Miss Emma Crookshank (Fredericton), are the guests of Mrs. Earle, Union street.

Miss Lucy MacLachlan, who has spent the last two weeks with friends in Fredericton, returned home on Friday.

Mrs. City Crookshank (Fredericton) is the guest of Mr. E. W. Crookshank, Sydney street.

Miss Nellie Trepp, who has returned from New York on Friday last, having remained there for several weeks after her arrival from England.

I am glad to hear Miss P. Robinson, who has been confined to the house through illness for the past few weeks, is able to be out again.

Among those who went to Prince Edward Island last week to attend the tennis tournament were Mrs. George McLeod, Mr. Gordon McLeod, Miss Ada Bayard, the Misses Adams, Miss Edith Burpee and Miss Isabel Smith.

Miss Katie Jones has been confined to the house through illness for the last few weeks.

Miss Jennie Winslow (Fredericton) is the guest of Mrs. Wm. Beverly Robinson, Main street.

Mrs. Geo. U. Hay, Miss Edith Clarke and Miss Bartlett were passengers in the Ulanda, on the 19th inst. of Fredericton, arrived in the city Tuesday, and will remain for two or three weeks. They are at Mrs. Macnamara's, Sydney street.

Mrs. Osborne Troop is the guest of Mrs. Ludlow Robinson. Mr. Troop visited Nova Scotia this week, but will not return to St. John before Sunday.

He occupied the pulpit at St. James' church last Sunday, at three services, when the church was filled to overflowing.

Miss Katie Jones, accompanied by her brother, Mr. George Jones, left last week to join some friends on a camping expedition among the Canadian lakes.

Rev. Edwin Daniel has been appointed rector of Trinity church, Fort Hope, Ont.

Mr. William Hope, of Montreal, is in the city.

I am glad to hear that Mr. Allison, of Messrs. Manchester, Robertson & Allison, has returned home from a trip to Nova Scotia, much improved in health.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Berton are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Carman, at Halifax.

MONCTON.

[Progress is for sale in Moncton at the book-stores of W. W. Black and W. H. Murray, Main street.]

Aug. 21.—Our society people are beginning to return by degrees from the seaside resorts. It seems unusually early, for August is still in her prime, and even September may bring us many warm days; but I believe it is the seaside that has gone back on the society people, not vice versa, the closing of two of our most famous summer hotels having made a general fitting compulsory. I fear neither the "Beaches" nor "Inch Arran" have been an unequalled financial success this year, though I can scarcely understand why, for, from all accounts, there is no earthly fault to be found with the management. But I am afraid our Canadian summer, beautiful as it is, is too short to make purely summer hotels a success.

Mrs. F. S. Archibald returned to town on Friday last, and Mrs. E. M. Eddy has also returned to gladden the hearts of her many friends; and I hear of others who are expected to return this week. So we shall soon settle down to a peaceful contemplation of our many blessings, and an eager anticipation of the delights of exhibition week.

The many friends of Mrs. Charles Spence, who has been so seriously ill during the greater part of the summer, will be glad to hear that she is finally recovered and is able to leave Moncton for a change of air and scene. She left by yesterday's train.

THE WORLD OF BOOKS.

F. McCready Harris' charming little work, Plain Talks with Young Home-Makers, is striking on account of its good common sense and practicality, as well as for its neat binding of pale blue and gold, and its rich paper and good type. It is no mere unwinding of ideal theories—no deceiving treatise which takes for granted a Queen Anne cottage and a front garden ready waiting for the young couple to settle down in. We have seen such, and are, consequently, all the better able to appreciate this little book, written for use in this busy, hurrying world we live in. It takes nothing for granted, save two or three rooms for the home, and a certain amount of earnings to keep the home happy. Then it shows plainly and pleasantly the easiest and best way of getting the most health and comfort out of the smallest amount of money. And besides this, it deals with nearly all the other questions that are of prime importance to the young couple. But the headings of the chapters can give one an idea of the contents, and can best show whether or no we have any use for the book. Here are some of them: Choosing a Home; Furnishing the Home; The Bedroom; Breakfast, Dinner and Tea; The First-Born; Baby's Education; Habits and Ailments; Holy Secrets; Hints to Mothers; First Lessons in Reading; Mending and Making; Sickness; Obedience and Punishments; Giving Children Pleasure; Fresh Air in Winter; A Mother's Receipt Book; Neighbors; Mistress and Maid; A Mother's Wages; A Last Word. In short it is a book that should be eagerly welcomed into every household.

Mr. Marshall P. Wilder, the humorist, is now the pet of the American public, and, perhaps, the public could hardly have bestowed its affection more suitably, for he has been kind in giving it a charming holiday book, The People I've Smiled With. He has smiled a great deal in his "merry little life," and everybody who has known him has smiled with him. His pen is as funny as his face, and the whole book is full of an irresistible humor. It will always be pleasant to meet any work bearing the name of Robert Louis Stevenson, even though little more than the plot may have come from his brain. Now comes The Wrong Box, to amuse us and interest us, and make us wish for more. Lloyd Osbourne is Mr. Stevenson's partner in the work, and he handles the various characters in their various ludicrous and distressing positions admirably. There is in this book one of that beautiful pose which so captivates us in The Merry Men or New Arabian Nights, but there is the same style of mad impossible probabilities served out to us in that most pleasing of dressings, good prose. The preface gives the keynote and is a fair sample of the whole book. "Nothing like a little judicious levity," says Michael Finsbury in the text; nor can any better excuse be found for the volume in the reader's hand. The authors can but add that one of them is old enough to be ashamed of himself, and the other is young enough to learn better." This is all of the preface, and surely men who have good sense and humanity enough to inflict no more preface than that on a simple-hearted, plain, mild public, must have common sense enough to know whether they can write an amusing book or not, and, if not, to refrain from writing. They have, and they have written, so it follows without my having to insinuate it that the book is just what one wants for a quiet afternoon's rest.

Notes and Announcements.

Bret Harte has taken up his abode in Paris. Oscar Wilde will give up the editorship of the Woman's World after September next. Grant Allan's The Tents of Shem, is issued now in Rand McNally & Co.'s Globe Library. Max O'Rell's Jonathan and His Continents has just appeared in German, and is about to appear also in Danish. George Ticknor Curtis is the author of the novel, John Charaxes, lately published under the signature of "Peter Boylston." Rev. Matthew Richey Knight, author of Poems of Ten Years, who was formerly of P. E. I., is now at Benton, Carleton Co. N. B. Mrs. Ednah D. Cheney has edited the Life, Letters and Journals of Louisa May Alcott, and the book will be published about the end of September, by Roberts Brothers, Boston. The Coast of Maine, to be published by G. Peabody, Boston, is something to look forward to. It will be a compilation of articles by Arlo Bates and Susan Coolidge and others, and will be illustrated by numerous photogravures of Maine scenery. Houghton, Mifflin & Co. will soon publish The Life of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, by her son, the Rev. Charles Stowe. The book will contain several letters from Browning, Charles Kingsley, John Ruskin, Archbishop Whately, Miss Martineau, Plain Talks with Young Home-Makers, by F. McCready Harris: New York; Cassell & Company, Limited. Price 40 cents. The People I've Smiled With. New York: Cassell & Company, Limited. Price $1.50. The Wrong Box, by Robert Louis Stevenson and Lloyd Osbourne: New York; Charles Scribner's Sons. St. John, J. & A. McMillan. Cloth price $1.00.

James Russell Lowell, Lady Byron and John Bright. Our Canadian poets find it difficult to obtain positions in which their work may be of a literary nature. Mr. Lampman is in the post office department of the civil service, and yet he has written Among the Hills. The truth manifested by this instance is one of the facts on which we must rely for something durable in our poetry, for the highest poetry is a growth, and it must be a healthy growth and it so flourishes, notwithstanding the adverse circumstances.

H. S. Goodspeed & Co., New York, announce a history of the Johnstown disaster. The book also contains an account of the floods in Williamsport, Lock Haven, Sunbury, and all the flooded districts of Pennsylvania, Washington D. C., New York, Maryland and Virginia. Great pains have been taken with the typography, press work, binding and illustrations, and the material has been gathered with much research by the author in Johnstown. The work is a complete account of the Johnstown flood, particularly, and will probably be a valuable addition to the records of this age. The important scenes in connection with the flood are represented by forty-eight full-page illustrations.

CHOICE BITS FROM MONCTON.

Things That Are Talked About by the Railway Town. I regret to say that we have not succeeded in getting the additional grant of two thousand dollars from the government, for which we were looking with longing eyes, but we are going to do the best we can with our half loaf, and by spreading it thickly with butter, render it as attractive as possible so that something worth while may stick to it. Things are already beginning to assume a very business-like shape, on the exhibition grounds the fence is finished and the buildings are begun, and for rapidity of growth they bid fair to rival Jack's beanstalk.

We have been having a very large gathering of the "Good young men" who have been so lost to all sense of what was expected of them as to live instead of shuffling off this mortal coil, like their prototype in the song. The man who said that the good die early would have felt he had lived in vain could he have taken a stroll through our streets last week, and marked the number of truly good young men who literally overflowed our thoroughfares, proving conclusively that Darwin's pet theory of the survival of the fittest had taken a long step towards fulfillment. Indeed one of our most clever editors became so elated at the sight of so much goodness that he gave vent to a song of triumph on his own account, and jubilantly announced that there were two editors among the young chistians, pointing out the fact as a triumphant proof that the journalistic profession was not half so bad as it was painted. Those outside of the profession didn't know that any such proof was needed, so our brother has rather given us away. Nevertheless, all honor to the Young Mens Christian association, and long may its members live and flourish.

Moncton is getting to be rather an awkward spot for those who do much letter writing of a private nature. I don't know whether we are taking a step back towards apostolic days when men had all things in common or not, but certainly we are establishing a sort of commonwealth as far as letters are concerned, and if we keep on much longer we shall be leading a sort of utopian existence in which we shall have no secrets from each other; for our letter boxes are becoming common property. The public have long viewed the deceitful convenient little boxes as literally white-spiced suet, true they are painted a fashionable shade of old rose, but they are sepulchres in the saddest sense of the word. Still, as long as they buried our secrets, we murmured not, but lately alien hands have resurrected the same. Last week a citizen complained of seeing a small boy extract a letter from one of the boxes, which was unlocked, and now comes another wail from some one who discovered a number of little girls amusing themselves with letters, postal cards and papers, to which they had helped themselves from an open box. Picture the feelings of the lover who finds that his melting effusion never reached his loved one's hands, but was read—and laughed over—by some sacrilegious heathen, who had no poetry in his soul, and perhaps no soul to put poetry in. Why, it's monstrous! It is too much commonwealth altogether to suit modern ideas, and should be put down "by the strong hand of municipal authority."

"W" has been calling names and says that "Geoffrey Cuthbert Strange" has been making a fool of himself. This is a truly lamentable state of affairs, but of one consolation still remains to the suffering Geoffrey, under these trying circumstances, and that is the fact that he had some option in the matter himself, whereas in "W's" case nature seems to have taken the law into her own hands without consulting his wishes in any way. Now, I beg to say that although I write interesting scraps of local gossip for PROGRESS, I never write for anything smaller; neither do I ever engage in newspaper controversies. If "W's" letter in the Times afforded a passing amusement to the readers of PROGRESS that was all I desired, and having fulfilled my mission I prefer to pass on to some interesting topic; So—fare thee well, oh, friend pugnacon! Till thy wrath has time to cool. No one truly great or gracious, Calls another man a fool. GEOFFREY CUTHBERT STRANGE.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

At the Myrtle House I notice among the guests: Mr. and Mrs. Lonsdale and wife, New York; Mr. Dutton, London, G. B.; Mr. Desnoy and family, Hamilton, Ont.; Mr. Ellenwood and family, Mr. Simmons, New York; Mr. (Griswold), Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Seal; and Fred. Morley, St. John, and many others. At Mrs. De-Balmwood's: Mr. and Mrs. Van Mr. Collins and family, New York; Mr. Haggart, Providence; Dr. Livermore, Lowell. At the Royal: Rev. Dr. Nash and family, Halifax; Mr. and Mrs. Stan, Boston. The Misses Black, of Halifax, are enjoying a few weeks of their summer.

There are a number of American ladies here, most of them artists. Mr. and Mrs. Bonnell and family, of New York, are enjoying themselves at the Digby House. Mrs. Short's house and annex have been full throughout the season, and at present I find the following guests there: Mrs. Vernon and Miss Emma Taylor, St. John; S. Comstock, wife and daughter, Andover, Mass.; D. W. Comstock, New York; Dr. and Mrs. Dettliff, Baltimore; Mr. Merriam, H. W. Merriam, H. S. Merriam and H. Hammond, Worcester, Mass.; Miss James, Halifax; H. H. Raymond, Jacksonville; Mrs. J. E. Irving and family, St. John; Mrs. Burton and family, Boston; Miss Swain, Yarmouth, are at Mrs. Burnham's.

Mr. and Mrs. Vavasour and E. W. Vavasour, Fredericton; Rev. J. O. Crisp and the Misses Crisp, Halifax; Mr. and Mrs. B. Haines, Washington, are at Mrs. Fenwick's. Mr. Russell and family, of Boston, have rented Capt. H. H. H. cottage and intend remaining with us until October. They are delighted with Digby and its surroundings. Their grounds were made very attractive for lookers on, on Sunday evening, the whole place being beautifully decorated with Chinese lanterns and flags, and a brilliant display of fireworks was given, which afforded much enjoyment to the many spectators who were present.

On Saturday the guests from Mrs. Short's, with their friends, started on a trolley drive to Clementport. They had lunch on the grounds, and after a most enjoyable drive home were all invited to a high tea at the Short House. Judging from the cheering notes of horns and the hilarious spirits the party returned in, I should say this was by far the jolliest drive of the season. The same party enjoyed another drive to St. Mary's Bay on Monday equally as well.

What is most needed in Digby is a large summer hotel, as we cannot at present accommodate the large numbers of tourists that would like to come here.

At the Myrtle House I notice among the guests: Mr. and Mrs. Lonsdale and wife, New York; Mr. Dutton, London, G. B.; Mr. Desnoy and family, Hamilton, Ont.; Mr. Ellenwood and family, Mr. Simmons, New York; Mr. (Griswold), Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Seal; and Fred. Morley, St. John, and many others. At Mrs. De-Balmwood's: Mr. and Mrs. Van Mr. Collins and family, New York; Mr. Haggart, Providence; Dr. Livermore, Lowell. At the Royal: Rev. Dr. Nash and family, Halifax; Mr. and Mrs. Stan, Boston. The Misses Black, of Halifax, are enjoying a few weeks of their summer.

There is a number of weddings in the air, of which I will be able to tell you more anon. One in particular, in which one of Digby's most charming young ladies is closely interested, is set for early in September, and is causing lots of interest among the fair sex.

Boating is indulged in to a larger extent than usual this year, owing principally to the fine fleet of boats to be obtained from Mr. Main, at such reasonable figures. Some of our ladies pull an excellent oar, and never show to better advantage than when so engaged.

The Rev. David Neish and family, of Halifax, are at the Royal for the summer. Mr. Neish, according to the pulpit of Trinity church on Sunday morning last in the absence of Rev. Dr. Ambrose, and the Rev. Mr. Salter, of Boston, is the evening.

Mr. Traubel, a Chicago gentleman, has taken the cottage owned by Capt. Watt, at the south end, for the summer. He is the hero of the small boys at present, owing to the display of fireworks, which he has set off in the neighborhood brilliant on the two last Saturday evenings.

MILLTOWN.

[Progress is for sale in Milltown at the post office.] Aug. 20.—Miss Mame Spring, of Machias, Me., is visiting Miss Maud McAllister. Master Fred Eaton has been confined to the house by sickness since his return from St. Andrews, but I am pleased to say has so far recovered as to be out again.

Miss Alice M. Waite has gone to Machias to visit her mother. Miss Fannie Haley had a narrow escape from being seriously injured Saturday afternoon, while horse-back riding. When returning from Calais the horse became unmanageable, and in trying to stop him the stirrup gave way, throwing her violently to the ground. She escaped, however, with a few bruises and considerable pain.

Miss Carrie McKewen, of Boston, is home for her annual vacation. She is staying at Mrs. John Monaghan's. The Congregational church will hold their Sunday-school picnic at Buck's grove, Robbinston, next Friday. All are invited, and it will no doubt be a good time. Miss Peck, of Houlton, is the guest of Miss Edna Armstrong. Mr. Henry Hitchings, of this town, has received an appointment as preventive officer, port of St. Stephen. His duties will keep him in Milltown most of the time. Mr. Hitchings is a very popular young man, and should make a good officer.

DORCHESTER.

[Progress is for sale in Dorchester at George M. Fairweather's store.]

Aug. 21.—Our boom still booms, though it has been enjoying a small rest of late. On Wednesday evening Mrs. Chandler gave a small but very enjoyable dance at Rocklyn, in honor of Miss Howard, who has been visiting Miss Phoebe Chandler here, and of course every one had an extremely nice time, as every one always does at Rocklyn. Dancing, needless to say, was the order of the evening, and it was kept up with zest until a late hour, interspersed with refreshments about midnight. The music, consisting of a piano and Milligan's string orchestra, was more than good, and the combination of good music, good food and good company served to make a delightful evening.

Hon. P. A. Landry spent a few days in Richibucto last week, and was there on Tuesday evening, the night of the great ball at the "Benchmen." Numerous Dorchester people were invited to the ball, but, whether on account of the two carnivals or for some other reason, I cannot hear of any that were present at it. Dorchester people seem to have lost all their "go" of late years. I am sure that five years ago a large party would have been made up to attend a ball at Richibucto, or at any of the neighboring towns, where now probably half of those invited would not take the trouble to answer their invitations. "The true, and pity 'tis true."

Mr. A. W. Chapman is expected home this week from a visit of three weeks to Boston, where he is attending to some mining business.

Dr. J. F. Teed returned on Tuesday from a short business visit to Point du Chene.

Miss Annie Cooke, of Moncton, has been spending a week with her aunt, Mrs. J. B. Forster, at the penitentiary. She returned to her home on Saturday.

Miss Gilbert, of Willow Farm, is visiting relatives to St. John, where she has been for some time.

Miss Tracy, of Woodstock, is making a visit to Mrs. J. F. Teed, whom she accompanied to Dorchester last week.

Mr. Percy Chandler made a short visit to Moncton last Friday, on business of course.

Miss Grierson, teacher of the intermediate department of the town school, has returned to Dorchester to resume her work and is boarding with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Barnes.

Dorchester people are dismayed to hear that we are very soon to lose Mr. G. N. C. Hawkins, agent of the Merchants' bank here, and who is about to assume the management of the Lunenburg, N. S., branch of the Peoples' Bank of Halifax. Mr. Hawkins' many, many friends here will miss him sadly. Rev. J. R. Campbell and Mrs. Campbell gave a most successful At Home at the rectory last evening. About 70 guests were present, among them being Miss Gilbert, Mrs. Outhouse, Miss Forster, Miss Belle Forster, Miss Sadie Forster, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Forster, Mrs. Cooke, Mrs. McGrath, Mr. J. A. Gray, Mr. Percy Forster, Dr. J. F. Teed, the Misses Chapman, Mr. A. J. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Robb, Miss Phoebe Chandler, Mr. Percy Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Teed, Miss Nellie

HUNTER, HAMILTON & MCKAY AT THEIR OLD TRICKS.

They have sold more dress goods—both Stuffs and Cambrics the past week—when nobody was thinking of dress goods—than ever when everybody was thinking of dress goods. Only one reason for that.

In Paris they have a custom which might seem a trifle odd to the average American store-keeper, but which could hardly fail to have a good effect on trade in general.

Whenever a Paris shop-keeper advertises goods at "cost," a government official, detailed for the purpose, promptly swoops down upon him, and makes a careful inspection, in order to satisfy himself that the merchant is carrying out what he advertises. If the latter is detected in fraud, an adequate punishment is promptly meted out to him. They don't deny a man's right to sell his own property at less than cost if he chooses, but he must not publish lying advertisements. Some of our Canadian store-keepers would doubtless find this rule a little severe; but what a wholesome effect it would have in cutting down the number of so called bargain sales!—Ex.

We would still have our "bargain sale" and shouldn't be a bit afraid of one government official. As it is we submit to the inspection of hundreds of ladies every day whose judgement in this line no one will question, and we have yet to hear of one case where they were not more than satisfied that we were carrying out what we advertised.

HUNTER, HAMILTON & MCKAY

Chandler, Mr. F. G. Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. ...

Several instrumental selections were finely given by a string orchestra composed of Mrs. Robb, Mrs. ...

Mr. Forsyth, of Toronto, and brother of Miss Forsyth who is spending the summer here with Mrs. Joshua Chandler, is in Dorchester on a short visit, also staying with Mrs. Chandler.

Mr. B. V. Barker, of St. John, spent a day or two in Dorchester this week, at the Dorchester Hotel.

Miss Phoebe Chandler, Miss Forsyth, Mr. Forsyth and Mr. P. B. Chandler drove to Amherst on Monday, spending part of the day there, and returning to Dorchester the same evening. The same party drove to Sackville and back again yesterday, on a visit to the falls.

Mr. R. W. Hamilton spent Sunday in Shediac, returning to Dorchester on Monday.

Miss Crosskill, of Moncton, is in Dorchester, visiting her friend Miss Edith Wilbur.

Mr. John Black, barrister, of Fredericton, arrived in Dorchester on Saturday and is visiting Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Hamilton, whom Mrs. Black has been staying with for the past fortnight.

Mr. George H. Turner, who left Dorchester in the past winter for Omaha, where he intended to settle, has returned again to his old home, where he is arriving on Friday. He reports the great west a fine country, but thinks there are more ways to begin than Dorchester after all, and now intends to place the practice of his profession here, and add one more to the legal corps of Dorchester. It is needless to say that he was warmly welcomed back by his many friends here.

The inmates of the penitentiary enjoyed an unusual treat on Sunday last, when Mrs. John Black took part in the service in the afternoon—in the musical part of it. It was a grand affair, and sacred solo, as well as joining in the regular music of the choir, and it was a strange sight to see many of the men weeping under their eyes tears that not even long years of prison life had utterly dried up.

On Monday morning, by special request, Mrs. Black repeated her visit to the prison, and again sang to the men assembled in the great dining hall, one of whom, with the consent of Warden Foster, rose and thanked her, on behalf of the others, in a speech of some little length, and abounding with wit and good sense.

Mr. G. N. C. Hawkins spent Sunday in Moncton. (This is probably the last time that I will have occasion to insert this item.)

Miss Julia Creamer, of Sackville, is staying in Dorchester, where she is forming a kindergarten school. We have long needed such a school, and no doubt Miss Creamer's classes will be very popular, as they certainly should be.

Mr. J. W. Y. Smith returned today from another visit to St. John. He was accompanied by his friend Mr. Pat Ritchie, of Ottawa, who has been spending the summer at Rothesay, and is now going to make a visit to Dorchester. Mr. Ritchie graduated this year from the Royal Military college, at Kingston.

Mr. J. B. Forster is the happy possessor of a fine specimen of the night-blooming cereus, which is covered with buds, two of which have already expanded into full bloom. The plant was a chief attraction at Mr. and Mrs. Campbell's At Home last evening. Mrs. Forster having kindly sent it to the rectory in order that the company might witness the unfolding of the blossom. One bud began to expand quite early in the evening, and continued to do so throughout until about 12 o'clock, when it had developed into a most beautiful blossom, measuring about six inches in diameter, with a deliciously sweet perfume. The plant was surrounded by a group of admiring ladies through the entire evening.

Mr. J. W. Y. Smith returned today from another visit to St. John. He was accompanied by his friend Mr. Pat Ritchie, of Ottawa, who has been spending the summer at Rothesay, and is now going to make a visit to Dorchester. Mr. Ritchie graduated this year from the Royal Military college, at Kingston.

Mr. N. A. Cliff, of Fredericton, is in town for a brief visit.

Rev. H. W. Winkley, of Saco, Maine, will preach in Christ church next Sunday. Mr. Winkley was formerly rector of Trinity church of this place.

Miss Yates, of St. John, is visiting at Mrs. Main's.

Mrs. Charles King (Calais) entertained a number of her lady friends at dinner at the Border City hotel, on Tuesday.

Miss Alice Robinson, who has been visiting the Paris exhibition, is expected home the first of next week, having taken home a prize in the steamship "Tunda."

A large party of young people enjoyed a hay-cart drive and picnic at Oak Bay on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Hunt, of Amherst, N. S., is fulfilling Mr. Huestis' duties in the bank of Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Mowson, of St. John, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Frank Rankin (Grandon).

Quite a number of the Woodstock ladies and gentlemen were at the station to greet Mr. John A. and Lady Macdonald on their return from St. Andrews. The car stopped but very few minutes, and then proceeded on its way to Edmundston.

A very pleasant party was given at the residence of Rev. Canon Neale last Wednesday evening.

Dr. and Mrs. Sprague entertained quite a large number of their friends to dancing and cards, last Friday evening, at their residence, corner of Main and Albert streets. Dancing was kept up until a very early hour, and all who were there enjoyed themselves. A number of the guests and costumes will be found below:

Mrs. Dr. Sprague wore old rose and blue China silk, with gold ornaments and lace.

Mrs. Dr. Smith, mauve satin, with black lace over dress, yellow roses and diamond ornaments.

Mrs. Williamson Fisher, black silk and lace, cardinal green, yellow roses and diamond ornaments.

Mrs. Dr. Connell, black silk and lace, with gold ornaments.

Miss Brayley wore a dress of elegant cream silk and lace, trimmed with ostrich tips; ornaments, gold.

Miss Florrie Smith, pink satin and white lace, with pearl ornaments.

Miss Minnie Winslow, black satin and lace, with jet ornaments and gold ornaments.

Mrs. Wendell Jones, an elegant costume of cream satin with yellow roses and gold ornaments.

Miss Josie Munro, white muslin and lace, pink flowers and silver ornaments.

Miss Josie Munro, white muslin and lace, with crimson sashes and gold ornaments.

Miss Cabot, cream India muslin, with pink flowers and silver ornaments.
