Poetry. A Girl's a Girl for A' That.

Is there a lady in the land That boasts her rank and a' that? With scornful eye we pass her by, And little care for a' that ; For nature's charm shall bear the palm-A girl's a girl for a'that.

What though her neck with gems she deck, With folly's gear and a'that, We can dispense with a' that. An honest heart acts no such part-

A girl's a girl for a' that. The nobly born may proudly scorn A lowly lass and a' that, A pretty face has far more grace

Than haughty looks and a' that;

nie maid needs no such aid-A girl's a girl for a' that. Then let us trust that come it must, And sure it will for a' that, When faith and love, all arts above,

Shall reign supreme and a' that, And every youth confess the truth-A girl's a girl for a' that

TIMEVERSUS MONEY.

A Sketch for Tardy People

BY SYLVNUS CODB, JR.

Well Susan, I'm in tuck at last ! cried Abner Lapham, entering the kitchen where his wife was at work. He threw his hat upon the floor, then sat down by the stove and pulled out his pipe. I'm a made man after all this time. Richard Groom las bought the Thorley farm, and will sell to me the land this side of the road. What d'ye think of

Mrs. Lapham's eyes grew bright, and a pleased expression her face. The land of which her husband had spoken was a beautiful piece of dry, rich meadow, lying along the southerly line of his farm, and geographically belonging thereto. Not only was this land necessary to make up such a farm as Lapham wanted, but it lay directly between him and "Yang" is the title of a humorous poem dedicat-ed to Mr. Barlingame, just published in New York, offered far more than the land was worth to any one else,—or more than it was worth in the market,—but the former owner would not

O, I'm glad, Abner, you are to have that land. It should never have been sold from this farm. You are sure of it? I am if Mr. Groom is a man of truth.

You can depend upon that, I am positive

And what do you know about him, Susan? Why,-I heard him speak at our Confernce, last Sunday evening; and I know he ceive you—bad, men who can appear to be good;—but I never knew a really good man to appear bad If you have Mr. Groom's word you may depend upon it.

I have it, said Abn r, whose pipe was now

In taking this view of the matter we look deliar, I should conclude that he would, under tike circumstances, take all he could get. And so with time. When a man robbed me of an hour, I can only judge that he is full as likely to rob me of a whole day if I place the time at his disposal. Mr. Hamilton has purchased the whole estate.
