London, May 5 .- There are signs of a renewal of expressions of discontent at the war office's methods and the new regulations for volunteers. The latter have caused considerable dissatisimpossible for many volunteers to re-

It was urged that the volunteers nust be made a thoroughly efficient body, and must be thoroughly trained in field tactics in open order, and not urday merely in drill halls and on paradegrounds. Lord Stanley, when asked in parliament whether the war office was taking steps to secure open spaces for the London volunteers, who are a large BOERS BELIEVED TO HAVE DEand fine body of men, replied that the cost of securing such places in the immediate vicinity was prohibitive.

It is generally demanded that the volunteers shall have the use of Richmond Park, which is kept up at public expense, and is admirably adapted for hese purposes. The members of the cabinet, however, are making the excuse in parliament of the fear of "in-juring wild birds, especially herons." Other people, who are less charitable, suggest that the government is sacrificing the volunteers to the pheasant

ABUSE OF ROBERTS. The press is protesting vigorously against this example of refusing the means which it professes to advocate of securing efficiency. The Saturday Review in a savage article under the head, "The Roberts Ring" declares that things in the army are worse than ever, and influence is now more than ever the only sure road to success. The Review accuses Lord Roberts pointblank of countenancing, if not actively patronizing abuses. It says:

KRUGER TALKING. A telegram from The Hague to Neue Wiener Tageblatt is quoted by the Vienna correspondent of the London Times. It says Paul Kruger, in addressing the Belgian pro-Boer deputation, declared peace would not be concluded without his approval. Kruger added that the English reports representing peace prospects as favorable were mere maneuvers to hoodwink the British people in view of the coronation of King Edward. A Brussels dispatch to Vienna Neue Freie Presse states that the chairman of the committee of the league of peace has drawn up a project for reconciliation between Great Britain and Boers which will be submitted to the council of international union at Berne early this month. The correspondent says these faction, especially as they rendered it on the part of Boer press agencies in Holland and Belgium, as well as other attempts to revive anglophobia, fruitless. The great powers are sufficrisis and their own profound dissensions and mutual suspicions. Dr. Leyds, the Boer representative in Europe, arrived at The Hague Satevening and proceeded to Utrecht for a conference with Mr.

CIDED.

There is authority for saying that main factor which has determined the Boer leaders to decide for peace, for there is no doubt that they made that decision, was the concession concerning Cape rebels. These men were liable to death or imprisonment, confiscation of their property and deprivation of their constitutional rights. The extreme pun-ishment that can be meted to them now, according to the promise form-erly made by Lord Milner, is confiscation and disenfranchisement, which, after all, is not a very serious matter, inasmuch as nine-tenths of them are younger sons of old farmers, who remained at home in order to save their property, while the boys, with full parental approval, went into the commando. In addition to this concession, informal promises have been given that the banishment proclamation issued by Lord Kitchener will not be rigidly enforced, and that general amnesty will not be unduly delayed.

There has never been any difficulty in regard to rebuilding the farmsteads that have been destroyed and restock-ing the farms. The general confidence that is felt here in the issue is shown by the fact that the bishops are coning service for the restoration of

The London season has started in earnest. People came flocking back to town last week to be welcomed by a piercing east wind which penetrated and chilled, and necessitated the unpacking permanently of laid away furs and heavy garments. Hyde Park was almost deserted for several days on account of the unseasonable weather. The attendance at Newmarket, which was the fashionable feature of the week, was greatly affected by the same cause. The spring toilets, which had been prepared for the meeting, had to be abandoned for the heaviest wraps in my lady's wardrobe. As is usual at the Newmarket spring race meeting, society was out in force. The King, during the entire meeting, was faithful to the brown bowler. It was suggested to Mr. Mitchell that it looked very much as if a strike was imminent. "Well," he replied, "it looked very threatening."

In the miners' organization are about 147,000 anthracite coal miners who will be affected if a strike is declared. There are also about 300,000 of the coal miners, many of whom belong to the union, and who could be induced to join the anthracite miners should there be a strike. Whether that will be done, and the bituminous as well as anthracite coal trade will be tied up, Mr. Mitchell said he could not say. Mr. Mitchell said he could not say. His back and one leg were terribly burned, but the unfortunate man was not rendered unconscious. The doctors say he cannot live. Strangely enough, Latin's house was not damaged in the least, nor were any other members of the family injured.

Reputation of the Articles They Imitate Thieves?

In Spite of at Least Half-a-Dozen Imi have given their employers another tators, Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine Has More Than Three commended For Throat and Lung

Have you been imposed upon when asking for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and turpentine by being offered an imitation? Many have been, and we know of some who have changed their druggist as a result. It is not safe to deal with a druggist who offers imitations and substitutes. An honest druggist will not offend his customers erty caused him to fire the house and by such questionable methods.

The use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has become so universal that on all sides are springing up preparations of turpentine and put up in packages similar to Dr. Chase's, with the object of making sales on the reputation of this famous remedy. Is not this dishonest? Is it not stealing, or even worse? For besides the injury done to the proprietors of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, the people are being deceived. In some cases, no doubt, even life is lost as a result.

Are you being deceived? Have you asked for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and been given an imitation or substitute? There is no doubt about the virtue of this great throat and lung remedy. It is too well known as a thorough cure for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, asthma, coughs and colds to need further words of commendation. What we want to do is to warn you against these imitations. To be certain that you are getting the genuine, be sure that Dr. Chase's portrait and signature are on the wrapper.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has reached phenomenal sales, because it cures when other remedies fail. It is far-reaching in effect, curing the cold as well as the cough, and uprooting the most serious forms of bronchitis, asthma and similar throat and lung diseases. Twentyfive cents a bottle. The insole of the RESILIA shoe expands from the outsole each time the foot is lifted.

In doing this it draws in fresh air through a hidden valve in the heel, which locks it in.

When the foot bears down upon the insole, this air, contained in the cross channels, is then forced up into the shoe by the wearer's weight, through insole perforations under the foot.

As the air cannot go out where it came in, it is then compelled to circulate up around the stocking and out at the boot top, keeping the foot dry, clean, hardy, and healthy.

And the dry shoe in winter is the warm shoe, the safe shoe.

The damp shoe, from causes within or without, is the winter death-dealer.

THE BUMP OF LOCALITY. Why is it that a woman's bump of locality is so much more feebly developed than man's? Put a man down on a country road and the probabilities are that he will find his way wherever he wishes to go without having to ask at nearby farm houses for directions. Instinct seems to guide him. Put a woman in the same position, and she will irretrievably lose herself in ten minutes, and have to be sought for by resolute men for hours before she is finally brought back to civilization. Perhaps it is that the weaker sex is unobservant. Even in cities many of its members do not notice buildings closely enough to permit them to find their way about, and certainly they would not notice in the country the big gum tree that they pass here nor the haw bush that marks the intersection of two roads there. When it comes to noting the details of a costume few feminines fail to observe even the tiniest bit of braid or the smallest bow, but trees and houses are different and less interesting things, and so in a strange town or in the woods the fair travelers lose themselves in no time, and have to be rescued and set again upon the path by someone with a better sense of location than they can boast.

A Business Campaign.

The Provincial elections are only a little more than three weeks distant, but there are no surface indications of any great excitement on the part of the public, despite Mr. Whitney's frantic beating of tom-toms. The upheaval of opinion which he predicted would confront the Government when it went to the country must be nonexistent, or working so quietly that even politicians with their ears on the ground cannot hear it. His attempt to create a moral issue is regarded as mere political melodruma, and his perfervid appeals to "clergymen and all good people" excite a mild hilarity, as he is so plainly stultified by the record

There's many an earnest protest answered by
The big red-whiskered mover's insolof his party. If Mr. Whitney were less violent in his language he would be taken more seriously, even by his own followers. The people of this Province refuse to believe they have been gova set of scoundrels, or that public virtue is entirely bound up with

The absence of excitement in this campaign is explained by the simple cited about. In other elections attempts have been made to inflame sectarian passions, and a good deal of heat was engendered, but happily apdropped by the Opposition, for the mains a purely business one, which is emotion in the human breast, though up a strong feeling of some kind. The electorate is ridiculous. The staunchest selves that Ontario has been well govthe present juncture? On the one side is a party with experienced men at the head, who have performed and are performing the work satisfactorily. On the other hand is a party without experience, and to be candid, without any considerable talent in its parliamentary ranks. Apart from Mr. Whitney, Mr. Foy, and in a pinch, Mr. Miscampbell can anyone point to a single member of the Opposition qualified for a portfolio in even a Conservative administration? The Ross Government has been making a special effort to colonize New Ontario and attract industry to its natural resources. Now that the development plans for both the older and newer portions of Ontario are becoming matured, and are yielding splendid results, the people of this Province will hardly choose this as a time for making an experiment in government at the risk of unsettling present conditions through the unskilled and uninformed direction of new men at the head of affairs. As we said before the issue is a business one, and the electors will take a business view

[London Chronicle.] Dr. Talmage, during his visit to England in 1879 had been engaged to preach in a church in one of the large towns of England. On arriving at the building he found it besieged by a throng of from 15,000 to 20,000 people. Naturally, he expected the place would be crowded inside; instead of this he was surprised to find it only moderately full. "Why," he demanded of the pastor, "don't you let this crowd of people come in?" "Oh, said he, "each person inside has paid four shillings to get in." Dr. Talmage had intended to preach from the text, "Without money and without price." He changed

BARBARITY IN PHILIPPINES

Atrocious Beeds of Natives and U S. Troops.

Further Testimony Regarding Application of the "Water Cure" and the Destruction of Villages.

Washington, May 5. - L. E. Hallock, of Boston, Mass., formerly a sergeant and then a private in Company I, 26th Volunteer Infantry, testified on Saturday before the senate committee on the Philippines, concerning the practice of the "water cure" in the Philippines Hallock told of the infliction of the cure upon a dozen natives at the town of Leon, Province of Panay. He said they were captured and torture in order to secure information of the murder of Pte. O'Herne, of Company I, who had been not only killed but roasted and otherwise tortured before death ensued. Capt. Glenn, in charge of a scouting party, had first secured a confession of participation in this crime from one native, who implicated twelve others. These were taken to Leon, the witness said, where his company was stationed under he said, were ordered to do this by a Third Regiment - In command, sergeant named Manning, who is now Lieut.-Col. V. The effort was successful on the part of some of them, but five or six fleeing prisoners were shot and "Were all the prisoners who did not escape, killed?" "I think so, with one exception; think one was given his freedom." Mr. Hallock stated that he had also been present when a village of 3,000 or 4,000 had been burned, and that the

JUST THE THING THAT'S WANTED.—A pill that acts upon the stomach and yet is so compounded that certain ingredients of it preserves their power to act upon the intestinal canals, so as to clear them of excreta, the retention of which cannot but be hurtful, was long looked for by the medical profession. It was found in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, which are the result of much expert study, and are scientifically prepared as a laxative and an alterative in one.

A Physicians Testimony For Labatt's Stout.

ALEXANDRIA, DEC., 20th. 1901. Speaking from personal experience I can state that your Stout is excellent in building up the system-I was very much run down and was dvised to use Labatt's Porter—this I have done for some time and I large. ly attribute to its effects my steady improvement in strength and weight. I deem it but justice to you, and it certainly is a pleasure to me, to add my testimony to its sterling qualities, and I gladly recommend your Stout as an excellent tonic and food in cases where such is required. HOW CITY'S THOROUGHFARES MIGHT BE MADE BEAUTIFUL

Some Valuable Suggestions From the London Horticultural for the growth of young trees and shrubs for park and street planting. This would enable the citizens to procure a good tree at nominal cost, and Society.

The directors of the London Horticultural Society are maintaining a keen interest in the improvement and beautifying of the city's streets and parks. At a recent meeting of the society they drew up a list of suggestions, which, if acted upon, would aid materially in adding to the natural beauty of London's thoroughfares and parks. These suggestions are as fol-

PARKS AND PUBLIC GROUNDS. 1. All the parks and public grounds belonging to the city, including the market square, streets and boulevards, as far as trees and turf are concerned, should be combined into one system, and be placed under one superintendent, who should have the supervision of the whole. An advisory committee might be appointed to assist him when necessary. This would provide for a uniform control, an economy of maintenance, an intelligent planting out, thinning and careful pruning of park and street trees, which is so sadly lacking at present; the beautifying of the parks and other public grounds with ornamental shrubs and flowers, and some care of the boulevards to prevent their being cut up and spoiled by foot-have it planted by a competent per-son. New streets and all not already planted could be provided with suitable trees at a very small expense, and be laid out in a systematic and uniform manner. Nursery-grown trees are far superior for this purpose to those taken from the woods, and bear transplanting much better. It would be of very great advantage that the be of very great advantage that the city should do all street and park planting from the material grown in this nursery.

IMPROVE RIVER FRONT. 3. The improvement of the river front is a matter deserving of much consideration. Before many years have passed by there will, no doubt, be a drive-way established along the river bank. In the meantime this object should be kept in view, and much might be done now, with little expense, for the improvement of the city property, by planting suitable trees, protecting the banks from damage by freshets, and laying out the portion which might be formed hereafter into a grand avenue for driving and recreation PUBLIC PLAYGROUNDS.

4. The provision of public play-grounds for the children is an imperative necessity, as may be seen from the manner in which vacant lots are made use of and in many cases the streets themselves. This is an important and somewhat difficult subject,

POLICE RAIDED GRAVE CHARGES O'NEIL'S "PLACE

East Middlesex License Inspector Ten Putative Gamblers Were Bailey the Accused.

Bailey Warned Law-Breakers of His Approach.

Rev. J. D. Moyer, pastor of the Methodist Church at Belmont, laid very faced Police Magistrate Love at police serious charges against License In- court this morning. Mr. O'Neil was spector Alfred Bailey, at Saturday's charged with keeping a gamblingmeeting of the East Middlesex license | room at 344 Richmond street, while the commissioners. He alleged that Inspector Bailey was negligent in the discharge of his duties, and that he had informed, either directly or indirectly, hotelkeepers under his supervision as to what route he would take, and had caused messengers to be sent ahead to warn hotelkeepers of his approach.Mr. Moyer suggested that "spotters" should be employed to watch the hotels more

"We'll hire you," suggested Mr. Dan McIntyre, chairman of the board. "No; I am a Methodist parson, and have no time for such work," answered Mr. Moyer.

"Then we'll hire the man who gave the information which you bring against our inspector," returned the chairman. Mr. Bailey, in defending himself, aid that if Mr. Moyer could prove one of the assertions made against him he would immediately step down and out of office. He denied every charge made and his word was accepted by the commissioners.

The commissioners are of the belief that Mr. Moyer's informant is some evil-disposed person who bears Inspector Bailey ill-will.

CONSERVATIVES WILL CHOOSE A CANDIDATE.

Several Names Mentioned in Connection With Convention.

The Conservatives of London will hold a convention early this week to select a candidate for the approaching provincial election. It is probable there will be a keen contest for the theft was committed Saturday night, choice of the convention. Among the and the boy was arrested this morning names mentioned are Mr. Adam Mc- by Detective Rider, who recovered $7 Mahen, chairman of the court of revision; Major Beattie, ex-M.P.; Mr. William Gray, president of the Conservative Club; Ald. Beattie, chairman of the finance committee, and ex-Ald. Judd, chairman of the Public Library board. Mayor Beck will not be a candidate.

THERE IS danger in neglecting a cold.
Many who have died of consumption dated their troubles from exposure, followed by a cold which settled on their lungs, and in a short time they were beyond the skill of the best physician. Had they used Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, before it was too late, their lives would have been spared. This medicine has no equal for curing coughs, colds and all affections of the throat and lungs. that he was in the Custer massacre, and was shot in the arm by a poison-

He refused to elect till he knew whether the crown was prepared to go on at once. Mr. Mc-Kiuuop, for the crown, said he must first know whether the prisoner was going to elect summary trial or not, because if the hearing was to be only a preliminary examination, he would not put in ful levidence as he would later do before a jury. Police Magistrate Love said the crown should get its case ready first and let the prisoner elect as he saw fit.

The nine prisoners charged with gambling in O'Neil's house also pleaded not guilty. Mr. McKillop contend-ed that their offense was one calling for summary trial. The police magis trate adjourned the case till Wednesday, all the accused being placed on their own recognizances, O'Neil has been in trouble before on a similar charge. The crowd bought it so quickly that the clerks had difficulty in keeping track of their sales, and several amusing incidents occurred, where two pur-chasers thought they had prior rights to the same articles. The demand for the most part was for the silks, which sold very rapidly. None of the goods are damaged to any extent, and all are excellent bargains at the prices asked. The sale will continue tomorrow, and on Wednesday. The goods will be rearranged in different lots, and sold at prices ranging from 25 to 50 cents

Abstinence a Duty That Should Be Voluntarily Assumed—A Minister's Views.

Rev. D. R. Drummond, M. A., B. The advance of the past justified hopeful confidence that the world would yet be delivered from the curse of the drink traffic.

CURIOUS ENGLISH TRADITION.

[The Tattler.] On his way from Clifton Down to Avonmouth, the Prince of Wales pass-ed in the Avon gorge a curious structure to which a singular tradition is attached. The story is that a person named Cook about a century ago was told by a gypsy in the Leigh Woods that his only son would be killed by a serpent before he reached the age of 21. To avert this he built a high tower and shut his son in the topmost room, with the intention of secluding him there until the fatal age was past. However, by accident a viper was taken up in a faggot to the room to light the fire, and it crept from the faggot and bit the boy so that he died. Therefore the tower was called Cook's whatever is the true explanation.

WHEN THE MUSTACHE WAS UN-

POPULAR. The mustache was not viewed with favor in England in the middle of the last century. An anecdote is told of the late Thomas Cooper, the English artist, to illustrate it. He was brought before a magistrate in 1846 on some minor charge, and was described in the police report as being "fashion-ably dressed with large mustaches." The Art Journal of the date, commenting on it, said that "no member of the Royal Academy perpetrates the atrocity of mustaches, a most un-English affectation." Mr.Cooper became a member of the academy a few years later.

It is not, of course, the whole increase of the Italian race. In these twenty years, more than 2,000,000 Italians have emigated to other lands. Mr. Archibald sgulped down two or three swallows of water; then, removing his hat, he took his bandana from it and wiped away the cold drops that had gathered upon his forehead, and tried to obey Max's command, though his nervous excitement was pitlable.

Max would not keep him long in suspense, and, sitting down beside him, related the whole story of Agnes' mysterious disappearance, as far as he knew it.

He was amused and touched, by turns, at the excessive wrath which Mr. Archibald manifested over the villainy of Agnes' unknown abductor, and the affectionate emotion that he could not control when he learned how near death's door she had been. It was almost comical, too, to see how

It was almost comical, too, to see how he gradually began to come to himself and recover his eccentricities of manner, now that his mind was relieved of the burden that had oppressed it.

Since Agnes' strange disappearance, he had not seemed the same man; not only was he anxious, worn and haggard, but his habitual brusqueness and satire had vanished or rather given place to an wanished, or rather, given place to an appealing helplessness of manner that was really pathetic, and betrayed what a strong hold Agnes had upon his affections. But now "Richard was himself again."

The aged look vanished from his face as if by magic; his little blue-gray eyes began to glisten with the fire of vengeance, and his whole manner bristled with antagonism.

He smoothed his scant but unkempt

He smoothed his scant but unkempt locks, pulled up his wilted collar, arranged his disordered clothing, grasped his ever present umbrella, and was "crusty Joe Archibald" once more and ready for battle.

CHAPTER XXXI.

The next morning Mr. Archibald arrayed in his best suit and a new hat, for the one he had been wearing had seen hard usage of late, called upon Mrs. Remington at the — Hotel, to inquire personally regarding Agnes.

He appeared like a different man from the one Max had found in his office the previous day. His eyes were keen and bright, his dejected air had all disappeared, his linen was clean and fresh, and he looked quite spruce and chipper.

Mrs. Remington smiled, and yet she was touched to see how thoroughly happy he was over the recovery of the lost girl

There isn't another girl like her in Chicago!" he said, while enumerating some of Agnes' merits. "I wouldn't have some of Agnes' merits. "I wouldn't have believed a year ago, if any one had told me so, that I could have grown so fond of any one, let alone a woman; but I'm free to confess that she has captured me. Between you and me, madam," he continued, confidently. "I'm going to make her my heir. I've been thinking of it for some time, and now I am going, tomorrow morning, to make my will in her favor. You needn't tell her so, though—nor any one else, if you please." though—nor any one else, if you please."

"I will not speak of it," his companion returned, amused by the old gentleman's earnest manner, but really very much delighted that Agnes would be so Well provided for in the future.

Mrs. Remington felt that this was very thoughtful, and that it would give him great pleasure to contribute in some way to Agnes' comfort; so she replied: "Yes, there are a number of things that

"Yes, there are a number of things that she needs. Of course she has none of her own clothing here, except what she wore when she came, and she has been dependent upon the kindness of Nellie Ames, a chambermaid in the house. I think it would be well for me to go over to your house and get a supply for her. Besides this, she ought to have a warm flannel wrapper, for she will soon begin to sit up and then we shall need to be very careful of her."

Mr. Archibald's little round face shone all over as he drew forth his wallet, took a crisp hundred-dollar bill from it, and passed it to Mrs. Remington.

"There, take that, and get her the best and prettiest thing you can find: I feel as if nothing could be too good for her." her said, "and if there's anything else don't spare the cash, for there'll be more coming when that's gone." don't spare the cash, for there is coming when that's gone."

"What is in it, Max?" Mrs. Remington "Some pink rosebuds, such as I bought for her to wear the night of your recep-tion together with a copy of the note that she should have received."

Mrs. Remington thought a moment.

Mrs. Remington thought a moment. She knew that the sick girl must not be excited; her continued improvement depended upon absolute quiet, unwearied care, and the absence of everything of an agitating nature.

On the other hand, she had noticed that Agnes was often said and depressed. an agitating nature.
On the other hand, she had noticed that Agnes was often sad and depressed; two or three times, during the last two days, she had detected tears rolling down her wan cheeks, and she had surmised that she was grieving over this imaginary trouble connected with Max.

Perhaps his flowers and note would be just what she needed to cheer her heart and make her more hopeful for the future.

"You can explain to her, mother," Max pleaded, "that they should have been sent that evening, but, through the mistake of that new girl, they were taken to Laura instead."

"I think I will venture to give them to her" his mother replied

His face brightened; he bent and kissed her fondly, then turned and left the room without a word, for his heart was full.

Mrs. Remington went slowly and Mrs. Remington went slowly and thoughtfully up stairs. She was not sure that it would be wise to give the box to Agnes, and yet she was very strongly impelled to do so.

She did not feel like saying anything to the nurse about it, for it was Max's secret, and she wished to guard it as sacredly as possible

The fair girl had been propped up with a half-dozen pillows during her absence; "she was so tired with lying upon her back," she said, and the nurse had promised, if it did not tire her too much to rest thus, that she should be lifted into a reclining chair tomorrow.

"Here is something," she began, "that you ought to have had long ago, only through the mistake of a servant it missed reaching you, and Max has been very unhappy ever the blunder."

She laid it upon the bed beside Agnes, then slipped quietly to the other side of the room, so that she might open it by herself.

The rich color surged over Agnes' face at the sound of Max's name, and for a moment she did not offer to touch the box.
A sudden hope shot into her heart, yet it was so vague that she could not have told what it was; but Mrs. Remington's words about Max being very unhappy over some blunder had somehow cheered and encouraged her.

> Louisville, May 5 .- After eight and a half rounds of terrific fighting, Marvin Hart, of Louisville, knocked out Eddie Carter, of Brooklyn, before the Southern Athletic club Saturday night. The bout was a slugging match up to the sixth round, but the pace had been so swift that during the last rounds both men were staggering around the ring, hardly able to stand and neither seemed able to land an effective blow. It was merely a contest of endurance, and the knockout blow, a left to the jaw, was delivered when Hart himself seemed almost ready to fall. Both men were severely punished. Carter's right eye was closed, his lip cut and his face was bloody, while Hart's right eye was badly swollen and the blood was flowing freely from his nose and mouth when the bout ended. Until the decisive blow was struck, it seemed either man's fight, though Hart appeared to be a little faster and stronger than his opponent.

R., between Fort William and Winnipeg, being the shipping point of the surrounding great grain-producing district, and hence devolving a great responsibility on Mr. Stewart, who, as agent, has necessarily the supervision of the entire traffic. Ernest reports himself exceedingly well pleased, both with his work and location. Ernest cer-Liberals should call at Col. The Subject Presented at St. Anto end and nothing but fun.

"ALL ON ACCOUNT OF ELIZA." "All on Account of Eliza," as presented by Louis Mann and Clara Lipman, seems to have made one of the most remarkable laughing hits of recent years. Playgoers will have an opportunity to see this fresh combination of fun at the New Grand tomorrow evening. They will not, however, see anything like "The Girl from Paris" or "The Telephone Girl," those French concoctions in which Mr. Mann and Mrs. Cowan, of Toronto, will speak and Miss Lipman won signal honors. Instead, they will find a comedy, clean and wholesome, and with two clever players at their best, and supplying pared and well-delivered sermons entertainment so delightful and refreshing in quality that there will be Children.

Children's taste is oftimes more accurate in selecting the right kind of food to fit the body than that of adults. Nature works more accurately through the children.

A Brooklyn lady says: "Our little boy has long been troubled with weak digestion. We could never persuade him to take more than one taste of any kind of cereal food. He was a weak little chap and we were puzzled to know what to feed him on. One lucky day we tried Grape-Nuts. Well you never saw a child eat with such relish, and it did me good to see him. From that day on it seemed as though we could almost see him grow. He would eat Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper and I think he would have liked the food for dinner. The difference in his appearance is something wonderful.

My husband has never been known to fancy cereal foods of any kind, but he became very fond of Grape-Nuts and has been much improved in health since using it.

A friend has two children who were formerly afflicted with the rickets. I was satisfied that the disease was caused by lack of proper nourishment. They showed it. So I urged her to use Grape-Nuts as an experiment and the tinued the food and today both children are well and strong as any children in this city, and, of course, my friend is a firm believer in the right kind of food, for she has the evidence before her eyes every day. When I have some task to perform about the house and don't feel very strong, a saucer of Grape-Nuts and cream stimulates me and I am able to do the task at hand with ease. We are now a healthy family and

In way of recreation Walt used to ride back and forth with Pete on the bob-tail car. The line ran then just from the White House to the capitol and no further. Walt would stand out in front and brace himself with his foot on the dash and watch the motor power, which was a mule, and the procession; and sometimes Pete would give Walt his stool to sit on. One fine day as Walt was riding out there in front, Pete said to Walt (who rode on an annual—and bob-tail—issued by Pete), "Walt, I've just got my month's pay, a hundred dollars. You better take care of the money; I don't get off until 'leven, and there is a bad crowd around the barns." Walt took the roll, promising to take

Then John arrived, and listened to the story. John took the bull boldly by the horns, and proposed that they all chip in, making good the loss, and never let Pete know. They emptied their pockets on the table. The total sum realized was nine dollars and twenty cents. Maurice and Walt had no income, and John would not get his pay for three weeks. In the meantime Pete might demand his money, or part of it. They all had goose-flesh. For four days there were spasms of alarm, fol-lowed by chills and fever. They watched Pete with stealthy gaze; they sought to divert him, to amuse him; they told jokes in a way that bordered on hysteria, and related pathetic things that happened in the hospitals. But one day they all decided that Pete was about to ask for fifty dollars. All signs pointed that way. The issue must be met.

Maurice volunteered to tell Pete frankly the plain and simple truth. When Pete came in, Maurice coughed -and his heart failed him. "You tell him," said Maurice to John. "What's the matter with you three fools?" demanded Pete. "Here you have all been acting for a week like a mule that was locoed-out with it!" "We lost your money!" yelled the three men in one voice. "Oh," said Pete. "I thought something had happened!" "But the money-"

SISTERS REUNITED AFTER FORTY YEARS

city on Saturday. In the year 1862 three little girls were left orphans and found a tem-porary asylum in the Protestant Orphan Home at Detroit. The family name was Blankerts, but the sisters were in the home only a short time when they were adopted, family named Atkins, another by a family named Poole, and a third by a family named Ferris. Mrs. George Hughes, of the south side, was the child adopted by the Atkins family, and in some manner remembered her name of Blankerts when it was re-

The Springfield Gazette in commenting upon this exhibit, says: "It is one of the finest exhibits of art ever given in this city." While all the newspapers in the other cities visited are profuse
