DOMINION PARLIAMENT

No Rest for the Member for Judge Elliot.

The Minister of Agriculture Plunged in Interminable Perplexity—A Lame Explanation of John Lowe's Letter.

[Special to the ADVERTISER.]
OTAWA, May 3.—These are troublous days in the House for Mr. Carling. If the metion by Mr. Lister with regard to Judge Ediot, which disturbs the member for Elliot, be not hanging over the House, he is plunged in the perplexities of getting his estimates through supply. This afternoon, when the House went into Committee of Supply, he was again put upon the rack. Sir Richard Cartwright asked Mr. Carling if he had any explanation of the letter which Mr. Somerville read, which had been written by Mr. John Lowe to Caspar Hett.

Mr. Carling replied that he had, and the [Special to the ADVERTISER.]

ling if he had any explanation of the letter which Mr. Somerville read, which had been written by Mr. John Lowe to Caspar Hett.

Mr. Carling replied that he had, and the deputy head of his department had furnished him with a written statement of explanation, which he (Mr. Carling) proceeded to read to the committee. In it Mr. Lowe acknowledged the authorship of the letter which Mr. Somerville had read to the House the other night. It was not, however, as Mr. Somerville had insinuated, written to Mr. Hett to enable him to obtain payment of an account not authorized by the Queen's printer; it was written only to enable Mr. Hett to obtain payment for the authorship of the pamphlet. The practice of the department had been to pay for copyright of pamphlets, but in this case the Queen's Printer in auditing the account sent in by Mr. Hett had applied the regular rates for printing and allowed nothing for authorship. Mr. Lowe had considered Mr. Hett was entitled to be paid for this, and that was the reason for his letter. Mr. Hett was an entire stranger to him, he said, and there had been no wish to favor him. His letter, Mr. Lowe said, was written under direction of the Minister of Agrienture (Mr. Carling.)

Sir Richard Cartwright remarked upon Mr. Lowe's statement that his peculiar mode for paying for the copyright had been approved of by the Minister.

Mr. Carling replied that he thought it right that Mr. Hett should be paid for the authorship of the pamphlet; that it had been the practice of the department to do so either by buying the copyright or allowing a royalty. He promised Sir Richard Cartwright to lay a copy of the pamphlet." It was a 32-page pamphlet and could be set up for $16, so that the electrotypes which Mr. Lowe suggested to Mr. Hett should be included would not be worth much, particularly when a second edition of the pamphlet was never issued. Mr. Lowe was allowing $316 for a 32-page pamphlet." It was a 32-page pamphlet, and it must be seen that that price was extravagant, and was to make a sum to w

Mr. Lister said that at the time the contract was given to Mr. Hett nothing was said about the copyright or electroplates. What right then had the Department Minister to make allowance for them? If Hett had been paid his bill; of $756 nothing would have been said about it. The department suggested in order that the bill might be justified that a claim be made for the copyright and electroplate. Mr. Lister said the explanation was not satisfactory.

fer said the explanation was not sausfactory.

Mr. Bowell said that he was quite prepared to justify his remarks upon the subject. The Queen's Printer audited the account and valued the composition and press work at something over $400. What he said the other night was that if this letter had been written by the Deputy Minister with the view of suggesting to Minister with the view of suggesting to Mr. Hett that he charge for a copyright which had previously been paid for, he would be censurable. But Mr. Lowe's expianation and the practice of the department justified him in the course he had taken.

The matter dropped after some further discussion.

The committee then turned to the consideration of the estimates for quarantine and the remainder of the day's sitting wa

WOMAN SUFFRACE IN BRITAIN.

Progress of the Movement in Favor o Equality in the Eyes of the Law.

The Question Debated and Advanced Stage in the Imperial Parliament.

One of the most important incidents connected with the movement for the emancipation of women was the vote last week in the British House of Commons on the Woman's Saffrage Bill, moved by Sir Albert Rollitt. The fact that this measure was defeated by only 23 votes; supprising was defeated by only 23 votes is surprising when we consider that it was unsatisfactory when we consider that it was unsatisfactory to many female advocates of the principle, and was opposed by Mr. Gladstone, not only in Parliament, but in a lately published pamphlet. The bill in question proposed to confer the Parliamentary franchise only on unmarried women. As there are no obvious reasons for supposing the intended beneficiaries of the measure to be better qualified to vote than their married sisters, while there are some reasons for assuming the contrary, the bill naturally sisters, while there are some reasons for assuming the contrary, the bill naturally provoked a great deal of criticism among the members of the sex interested. In several meetings held in London Sir Albert Rollitt was denounced in terms which showed that female politicians would be adepts in the use of vituperative rhetoric. The Primrose League, most of whose principal promoters are married ladies, was shocked at the notified that women who had never proved notion that women who had never proved notion that women who had never proved their capacity to control a household should be deemed particularly competent to deal with public affairs. Nevertheless, there was a bevealing willingness to accept the Rollitt bill as an installment of the reform demanded, and it does not appear that a single vote was lost on a division—unless it was that of Lord Randolph Churchill—by reason of the purposed exclusion of married women. The defeat of the woman suffragists is no doubt directly traceable to Mr. Gladstone, who must therefore expect Mr. Gladstone, who must therefore expect to have the female reformers against him to have the female reformers against him in the coming general election.

An analysis of the vote shows that the controversy did not turn on party lines. Such leading Tories as Sir Michael Hicks-Beach and Mr. Chaplin opposed the bill, but Mr. Balfour favored it and apparently carried with him a majority of the Conservatives. Sir William Harcourt, Mr. Labouchere and Mr. Chamberlain were arrayed with Mr. Gladstone against the measure, and so it seems were most of were arrayed with Mr. Gladstone against the measure, and so it seems were most of the Irish Nationalists. On the other hand, a strong Liberal minority supported the Rollitt proposal so strongly that the reformers look forward with confidence to attaining their object in the next House of Commons. Their belief is that Mr. Balfour will then carry with him a larger proportion of the Conservatives than he did last week, and that the number of their allies among the Liberals will be materially increased. The bill, however, which will then be brought forward, will be of wider scope, making no discrimination between the married and the unmarried, and bestowing the suffrage upon adult women on terms identical with those imposed in the case of adult males. ase of adult males.

It is an interesting coincidence that the English female suffragists should have re

It is an interesting coincidence that the English female suffragists should have recently lost the support of two influential men. Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Herbert Spencer, both of whom were formerly regarded as friendly to their cause. Mr. Spencer, indeed, at one time expressed in print opinions favorable to the political equality of women. Those opinions, however, he recanted in a lately published work, and set forth at length his reasons for believing that women should not be intrusted with the ballot in the existing conditions of society. He does not confine himself to the familiar argument that they who vote must in the last resort be prepared to fight. He contends that, even if female voters are placed in the same category as adult male voters who have passed the military age, there are special grounds on which their influence in legislation is to be deprecated. One of their most amiable weaknesses, their propensity to compassion, might, he thinks, have grevious consequences in Parliament and in the court room, that is to say, both in the framing and in the enforcing of statutes. The fact that with them teeling is relatively a more powerful instigator of action than is reason, constitutes, in Mr. Spencer's mind, a grave disability. In a word, he takes for granted that England would be flooded with what in this country we call crank legislation if women had the right to vote.

But while the female suffragists have lost Mr. Spencer and Mr. Gladstone, they have gained Mr. Balfour, and they evidently thick that the latter, being a young man with a long public career before him, will ultimately outweight the loss of the other transpared to the takes to the spend of Socialism

LONDON WEST AND THE CITY. It is sought to show that the addition of the village of London West to the constit-uency of London is due to something else than a desirs to equalize population, but the facts are dead against such an alle-gation. The two contiguous constituencies of London and East Middlesex have at present the following populations:

London. 22,281
East Middlesex . 25,569
Certainly the simplest and fairest course here is that taken by the Government, in withdrawing London West from East Middlesex and adding to it London, thus making London 24,196 and East Middlesex 23,654. It would not have been possible to withdraw London South from South Middlesex, which has aiready a small population, while if London East had been taken from East Middlesex instead of London West, that would have left East Middlesex with only 19,959, while London would then have mounted up to 27,899. It will be seen, therefore, that no better method could have been chosen than the one proposed in the bill.

The above choice explanation of the new

The above choice explanation of the new gerrymander, so far as it affects London and Middlesex, is from the Toronto Empire the subsidized organ of the Dominion Administration. It is just such misrepresentation of the facts as this apology for the jugglery of Sir John Thompson and his coadjutor, Mr. Carling, that makes intelligent men doubt whether the subsidized organ ever will tell the truth if a misrepresentation will suit better.

Mr. Carling and his associates may try to delude their friends in Parliament by the explanation that they "only desire to equalize populations" by leaving one-third of the people of London to vote in rural constituencies, while pitchforking a portion of East Middlesex into the city, but the facts are unassailable that the contrary effect is produced.

South Middlesex lies as near to London West as does the cty. That constituency has but 18,806 at the present time, and is not likely to increase. To have added London West, with 1,915 inhabitants, to South Middlesex would have brought the population of the constituency represented by the stalwart Mr. Armstrong up to 20,721, or 1,500 fewer than is now embraced withing the four wards known as "London." Instead of that arrangement, it is decreed that South Middlesex shall remain several thousands below the unit of representation, whereas London's four wards are raised these facts, and assert that it is "equalization of populations" that the political gamesters were after. Whatever else they had in view, they surely cannot make anyone outside of a lunatic asylum believe that. It is an inexcusable untruth. As to the Empire's other explanations regarding the voting of London's citizens all over Middlesex, it is sufficient at present to say that London's interests and prestige have been sacrificed to aid in the es of political self-seekers. When other cities with less than half the population of London and suburbs have a mem-ber, and such places as St. John, N. B., it should have been easily possible to rearrange the constituencies as to give London two members, and enable the citizens of London to vote as a unit, instead of all over the adjoining rural ridings. But it was not to advance London's prestige that

The whirligig of time brings round its revenges, remarks the Montreal Herald. When some years ago the Liberal party argued that it would be as well to have a Canadian representative in Washington as in London, the proposition was howled down as disloyal. Now the same thing is sed by that ultra Conservative, Mr. proposed by that there ochave heard no McCarthy, and, as yet, we have heard no mention of the word disloyalty.

KINDERGARTEN EXAMINATIONS. Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education, has promptly responded to the request of the London Board of Education in regard to the examination of kindergarten teachers. The examinations for London and the West will be held in this city, and Inspector Carson will preside. This will save the embryo teachers considerable expense, and will emphasize in a practical way the fact that London is well adapted to be an educational center. In some measure, the city already is an educational center, beo tuse it possesses a university, divinity and medical colleges, ladies' colleges, collegiate institute and model schools, as well as good primery schools. Let us hope that the holding of these teachers' examinations is but a precursor to that full equipment of the West in educational facilities which the new Normal School will, in a great measTO BE COMMISERATED.

Mr. Carling is the most troubled perplexed man in the House of Commons. He knows that he sits in a seat which was stolen for him, and he is conscious that even his own associates must despise his con duct in being a party to the rascality. The members have occasion to criticise the management of his department pretty frequently, too, and it has been made painfully evident that in regard to all matters upon which he has not been primed five minutes previously, he is utterly at sea.

POUNDED LOCUSTS OR STARVA-TION.

A dispatch from London says that the natives in a wide section of South Africa, including a part of the Orange Free State, are feasting on the locusts, which have destroyed the crops. The locusts are pounded into a sort of meal and cooked. To nearly all of us the eating of locusts, purveyed in any way, is repulsive; but in many Eastern lands a dish of locusts is a common meal, and it is not surprising, therefore, to find that the locusts, having devoured the crops of the Orange Free Staters, the Free Staters should turn round and eat the locusts.

natives carefully prepare them for food. The legs and wings are pulled off, the bodies are fried in oil, and are considered a delicacy. Sometimes they are dried in the sun, pounded up and used as a flour for making bread. In many towns of Arabia there are shops where locusts are sold by measure. Gordon Cumming described these insects in Africa as coming on like a snow storm, flying slowly and steadily about 100 yards from the ground. The air was darkened by their masses, and the plain upon which he stood became densely covered with them. As far as the eye could reach, they stretched in one unbroken cloud, and more than an hour elapsed before their devastating legions swept by. Cumming adds that they form food for man, cattle, carnivora and birds.

Reference is frequently made to the locust in the Old Testament, and the prophet Joel (chap. ii.) gives a graphic account of their appearance. The locusts were considered by the Hebrews and other Eastern nations, and still are by the Arabs, as the avenging armies of the Deity. The latter assert that a statement to this effect exists in good Arabic on the wings of the insect. There can be no doubt of their destructiveness; but their is some satisfaction in the fact that it is possible for the people whose crops they devour to consume them as food. When the grasshoppers (a species of locust) destroyed the crops of the settlers in Minnesota and Manitoba in 1874 no one ever thought of taking out their revenge by cooking and eating the destructive insects. But if such visitations were as common on this continent as they are in many Eastern lands a change in habits might be wrought. An Eastern man might find it just as difficult to relish some of our Western dishes as the average Canadian would find it hard to enjoy meal of pounded locust.

THE FUNNY CRITIC.

The Hamilton Spectator quotes figures as to Canadian foreign trade and professes to think that the lack of increase is a good sign. In 1873 we did $217,700, 000 business and in 1891 $218,385,000.

Britain increase of foreign trade is desirable, but to "a merely producing and consuming nation its foreign trade may be a measure of its adversity." What rubbish ! In 1890 their mineral product had reached $634,000,000 and is being increased $25,000,000 a year. Their product of manufactures is given at $7,000,000,000 by Mullhall as against $4,200,000,000 by Great Britain. In agriculture production they have nearly doubled in twenty years. In have nearly doubled in twenty years. In cotton production they have doubled since the war. With a development of internal trade unknown before, they have gone on also increasing their foreign trade. How is it with us? Confessedly our foreign trade is stagnant. Is it because we are so self-sustained "as a producing and consuming nation" that we have greater prosperity than our trade is stagnant. Is it because he professed prosperity that comes from a reign of restriction of trade and boodleism? The restrictionist organs are having a hard time dealing with the logic of events. "A condition, not a theory," has now to be faced. The people are insisting upon some relief. The Ingrams may get customs office appointments, but the Ingrams are not the people. The time has come for practical action, other than supplying places for party hacks and loud-mouthed abuse of the Grits. The policy of restriction has been tried for thirteen years. The materials for development have never been greater in any nation than in ours, but of what use are they if a profitable market cannot be had? It is childish to repeat over and over again, as the organs are doing, that the Americans are our competitors in the British market; that Great Britain is our common market and always will be for certain articles, everyone knows. But it is not, and never will be, the market for our minerals or sawn lumber. It can never be a market for our fresh fish (a very large item), or profitable market for our horses, hay, poultry, eggs, and much of our farm product. It is not a market in which our manufacturers could hope to compete save in a very few lines. With freedom of trade of America, 85 per cent. of our trade would be with the United States, because that would be the most profitable trade to us. Our commercial life is allied to and forms part of the "destiny" of the New World, and cannot be isolated from it without the inevitable result of fighting against nature. The lesson has been learned in the school of experience by many a man who is loth to admit it, and the future will only add further proofs of our national

We want free trade, not restriction; and we want free trade of America, because that is more "free trade" than any other can

The new residence of W. K. Vanderbilt at Newport, R. The plea for all this is equalization of population. And yet Western Ontario is deprived of two seats, when it is notoriously under-represented already as compared with Eastern Ontario. For 215 miles, in a straight line, from Ontario county to Grenville county, both inclusive, there is not a constituency which is up to the unit of representation—23,000. Here is a list of the constituencies there with their population:

Lennox...
Northumberland, West...
Ontario South...
Ontario, West...
Prince Edward...

Northumberland West is slightly under Northumberland West is slightly under the proportion also. And yet not one of the above constituencies is touched, be-cause almost without exception they are represented by Tories. Sir John Thomp-son will hear from the Liberal representa-tives in Parliament before that bill is passed. His reputation for justice is getting badly soiled.

MORTAR-SPOTTED SKIN

Covered with Scales. Awful Spectacle Cured in Dive Weeks by the Cuticura Remedies.

About the first of April last I noticed some red pimples like coming out all over my body, but thought nothing of it until some time later on, when it began to look like spepts of mortar spotted on, accompanied with itching. I would scratch every night until I was raw, then the next night the scales, being formed meanwhile, were scratched off again. In vain did I consult all the doctors in the county, but without aid. More Accommodation for City Pupils Needed.

Teachers State Their Grievances to the Educational Board.

Five New Schools Recommended To Be Built-A Motion to Alter the Salary Regulation-Pupils in Attendance,

Principal McQueen appeared before the Board of Education last evening on behalf of a number of city teachers and asked the board to make such increase of salary general for all teachers of acknowledged efficiency as could be aflorded, that in case the inspector should report any teacher as inefficient his report should be substantiated by strong reasons, that does notice the inspector should report any teacher as inefficient his report should be substantiated by strong reasons, that due notice should be given and a reasonable time allowed the teacher to improve, and in case a teacher be likely to be reported as inefficient a statement be handed to the teacher at the time of the inspector's visit, pointing out the specific defects. It was claimed that 22 teachers were receiving an increase of $12 50 more than 41 others who were also reported as thoroughly efficient, while a few received $12 50 less than they expected for 1892. To none of the teachers represented by Mr. McQueen had the grounds of this distinction been made clear, and they claimed that the underlying principle was wrong and injurious to the schools. It was one-man power, and placed the inspector and teacher in a false relation to each other. It was impossible for the inspector's report to be strictly just, as there were too many things to be considered, and the time allowed to prepare the inspector's report was two short. The matter was referred to No. I Committee.

Howell, who had repaired and the given and reasonable time allowed the teacher to improve, and in case a teacher to likely to be reasonable time allowed the teacher at the time of the hangeder visit, pointing out the specific district with the provided of the teacher at the time of the hangeder visit, pointing out the specific wars receiving an innead that 22 teachers where the time of the teacher as the country of the teacher at the time of the third wars receiving an innead of the teacher as the time of the teacher as the country of the teacher as the country of the teacher as the time as the time of the teacher as the time as the time of the teacher as the time as the time of the teacher as the time as the time of the teacher as the time as the time of the teacher as the time as the time of the teacher as the time as the time of the teacher as the time as the time of the teacher as the time as the time of the teacher as the time as the time of the teacher as the time as the time of the time as the time of the time as the time of the time as the time as the time of time of time of time of time of

An Accident that Resulted in the Destruction of a Monster Engine.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., May 3.—The destruction of the great Corliss engine in No. 4 mill of the Willimantic Linen Company was a most remarkable accident. The engine, which was a new one built in Newark was of 1,500-horse power, and said to be the most powerful engine in the country. It was brought here in sections, and an engine house had to be built expressly for it. Its driving wheel was 28 feet in diameter and revolved on a 15-inch thick shaft that was 20 feet long.

The accident was caused by a clean fracture of the great shaft while the wheel was running with only 400 horse-power.

The accident was caused by a clean fracture of the great shaft while the wheel was running with only 400 horse-power. The wheel sank into the wheel pit with a crash, carrying the roof of the eagine house and the east and west walls of the mill with it. Bricks were hurled 200 feet, entirely through the middle of the main factory. The wheel was broken into fragments and all its spokes were broken of at the hub. Over $40,000 damage was done in ten seconds. D. E. Potter, who was in the engine room, save his life by diving through a window in a door that was only eighteen inches square. Engineer Schenck and Alex. Dorsey also had narrow escapes. The loss falls on the Newark company, since the engine had not been accepted by the linen company, who never believed that the monstrous machine would work successfully. Rev. "Dr." John McLaurin.

An eye-witners says: "The cook seemed to lose her head. After coming on deck, instead of climbing on to the Russia with Miss Logan, she ran around on the promenade deck to the opposite side of the vessel and went into the cabin. The men on the Russia yelled for her to come on board. It is surmised that she went for some clothing or valuables, but before she came out the vessels had drifted apart and the Celtic was commencing to settle at the bow. The cook was not seen after the Celtic went down, though the boat stayed about on the lockout for her. It is supposed that she was struck with some of the pieces of the wreck and knocked senseless."

nineteen, who was suspected of having taken a fancy to Robin, who reciprocated the sentiment. Nothing, however, would noten the heart of the widow as regards a match, until at last the following event necurred and caused her to give way:
about the haymaking time a distant and remparatively rich relation was expected to call and take tea one evening on his way rom Linlithgow. It was not often that his superior relative honored her house with a visit, and Mis. Simpson determined hat nothing should be wanting to his enertainment, brought out the treasured nent, brought out the treasured arly in the forenoon, with many ons to Nancy touching the care she Injunctions to Anny touching the care she should take in brightening them up.

While this operation was being conducted in the kitchen, in the midst of one of those uncertain days which vary the northern June, a sudden darkening of the sky amounced the approach of heavy rain.
The hay was dry and ready for housing. Robin and two farm men were busy gatheragi tin, but the great drops began to fall Robin and two farm men were busy gathering it in; but the great drops began to fall while a consideralle portion yet remained in the field, and, with the instinct of crop preservation, forth rushed the widow, followed by Nancy, leaving the spoons half sourced on the kitchen table. In her rapid exit the girl had forgotten to latch the door. The weasel and the kitc were the condy depredators known about the moorland farm, but while they were all occupied in the hay field, who should come that way buy Geordy Wilson.

Well, the kitchen door was open, and

Well, the kitchen door was open, and the kitchen door was open, and deordy stepped in. He banged the settle with his staff, he coughed, he hemmed, he aluted the cat, which sat purring on the window seat, and at length discovered here was nobody within. Neither meal or penny was to be expected that day; he rain was growing heavier, some of the the rain was growing heavier, some of the hay must be wet, and Mrs. Simpson would return in bad humor. But two objects hay must be wet, and Mrs. Simpson would return in bad hunor. But two objects powerfully arrested Geordy's attention; one was the broth pot beiling on the fire and he other the silver spoons scattered on set the former Geordy took a considerable sniff, gave the ingredients a stir with a pot stick, and muttered "Very thin." His proceeding with regard to the latter must remain unmentioned; but half an hour after, when he was safely ensconed in a farmhcuse a mile off and the family had been driven within doors by the increasing storm, they found everything as it had been left—the broth on the fire, the cat on the window seat, the whiting and fiannel on the table; but not a spoon was there.

"Whar's the spoons?" cried Mrs. Simpson to the entire family, who stood by the dre drying their wet garments. Nobody could tell. Nancy had left them on the cable when she ran to the hay. No one had been in the house, they were certain, for nothing was disturbed. The drawer was pulled out, and the empty stocking exhibited. Every shelf, every corner, was searched, but to no purpose; the spoons had disppeared and the state of the farmhouse may be imagined. The widow ran through it like one distracted, questioning, sooiding and searching. Robin, Nancy and the farm men were dispatched in different directions as soon as the rain abated, to inform the neighbors, under the supposition that some strolling beggar or gypsy might have carried off the tresure, and would attempt to dispose of it in the parish. Nobody thought of Geordy Wilson. He had not been spied from the hay field; his circuits were wide; his visit to any house were not freenent; and if he avoised Widow Simpson's from the day of her loss, it was believed Geordy knew that neither her temper nor her liberality would be improved by that circumstance.

Lost the spoons were beyond a doubt, and the widow bade fair to lose her senses. The rich relation came at his appointed time, and had such a tea that he vowed never again to trust himself in the house of his entertainer. But the search went on; rabbits' holes were tooked into for the missing silver and active boys were bribed to turn out mappies' nests. Wells and barns in the neighborhood were explored. The criers of the three nearest parishes were employed to proclaim the loss; it was regularly advertised at kirk gate and market place, and Mrs. Simpson began to talk of getting a search warrant for the beggar's meal pouch. Bathgate was alarmed through all its borders concerning the spoons; but when almost a month had worn away sind nothing could, be heard of them, the widow's suspicions turned from beggars, barns and mappies to light on poor Nancy. She had been scouring the spoons, and had left the house last; silver could not leave the table without hands.

It was true that Nancy had always borne an unquestioned character, but such spoons were not to be met with every day, and Mrs. Simpson was determined to have them back in her stocking. After sundry hints of increasing breadth to Robin, who could not help thinking his mother was losing her judgment, she one day piumped the charge, to the utter astonishment and dismay of the poor girl, whose anxiety in the search had been inferior only to her own. Though poor and an orphan, Nancy had some honest pride; she immediately turned out the whole contents serious and exemplary girls in his congregation, and he could not believe that the charged preferred against her was true. Yet the pecularities of the case demanded investigation.

Yet the pecularities of the case demanded investigation.
With some difficulty the minister persuaded Nancy to return to her mistress, bearing a message to the effect that he and two of his elders who happened to reside in the neighborhood would come over the following evening, hear what could be said on both sides, and if possible clear up the mystery. The widow was well pleased to have the minister and his elders come to inquire after her spoons. She put on her mystery. The widow was well pleased to have the minister and his elders come to inquire after her spoons. She put on her best mutch—that is to say, cap—prepared her best speeches and enlisted some of the most serious and reliable of her neighbors to assist in the investigation.

Early in the evening of the following day—when the summer sun was wearing low and the field work was over—they were all assembled in the clean scoured kitchen, the ministers, elders and neighbors, soberly listening to Mrs. Simpson's testimony touching her lost silver, Nanev, Robin and the farm men sitting by until their turn came; when the door, which had been left half open to admit the breeze—for the evening was sultry—was quietly pushed aside. And in slid Geordy Wilson, with his usual accompaniments of staff and wallet.

"There's new room for we have Coarde."

"There's nae room for ye here, Geordy," said the widow; "we're on weighty busisaid the widow; "wo're on weighty business."

"Weel, mem," said Geordy, turning to depart, "it's of nac consequence. I only came to speak about your spoons."

"Hae ye heard o' them?" cried Mrs. Simpson, bouncing from her seat.

"I couldna miss beein blessed wi' the precious gift of hearin, and, what's better, I saw them, "said Geordy.

"Saw them, Geordy? Whar are they? and here's a whole shillin' for ye," and Mrs. Simpson's purse, or rather an old glove used for that purpose, was instantly produced.

used for that purpose, was instantly produced.

"Well," said Geordy, "I slipped in ae day, and seein the seller unguarded I thought some ill guided body might covet it, and jist laid it by, I may say, amang the leaves o' that Bible, thinkin you would be super to see the specific product. sure to see the spoons when you went to read."

Before Geordy had finished his revela-tion Nancy Campbell had brought down the proudly displayed but never opened Bible, and interspersed between its leaves lay the dozen of long sought spoons. The minister of Bathgate could scarcely command his gravity while admonishing Geordy on the trouble and vexation his trick had caused. The assembled neighbors

Geordy on the trouble and vexation his trick had caused. The assembled neighbors laughed outright when the daft man, pocketing the widow's shilling which he had clatched in the early part of his discourse, assured them all that he kenned Mrs. Simpson read her Bible so often the spoons would be certain to turn up. Geordy got many a basin of broth and many a luncheon of bread and cheese on account of that transaction, with which he amused all the firesides of the parish. Mrs. Simpson was struck dumb even from scolding. The discovery put an end to her ostentatious professions, and, it may be hoped, turned her attention more to practice. By way of making amends for her unjust imputations on Naucy Campbell, she consented to receive her as a daughter-in-law within the same year, and it is said there was peace ever after in the farm-house; but the good people of Bathgate, when discussing a character of more pretense than performance, still refer to Widow Simpson's spoons.

A STUDY FOR FARMERS.

Why is Property so Much More Valuable in City Than in Country?

The "Aneko Jana" case in New York has been duplicated in the Quager City, where suits involving property worth $35,000,000 will soon be begun on behalf of the heirs of Wm. Lefevre. The defendants will be the heirs of about a dozen people who were parties to certain leases made by Lefevre over a century ago. The suits will be based upon a bundle of musty documents just discovered in an old iron-bound trunk owned by Mrs. Cecelia Leslie, nee Kimball, who died intestate July 14, 1888, at Piedment, W. Va. These documents describe acres of land fronting on the River Delaware near "the ford" (Frankford Creek), Philadelphia, and certain strips of land which are located by landmarks wholly unfamiliar to realty experts of to-day. The land described covers an area of at least one square mile, and affects the site of the Frankford rasenal and many other, valuable properties in the neighborhood. If the heirs of Wm. Lefevre can establish their claims it is estimated that at least $35,000,000 will be divided among them.

Leander J. McCormick has purchased the Young Men's Christian Association property on Madison street, adjoining the southeast corner of LaSalle street, Chicago, for $190,000. The ground is 35x100 feet and is covered by a five-story building. The price shows a value of $5,428 per front foot, or $54 28 per square toot. Mr. McCormick will not take possession until April 30, 1894, the property remaining in he possession of the Young Men's Christian Association until this time. As Mr. McCormick owns the Major Block property, adjoining his new purchase on the west, he will have a site with 100 feet of frontage on Madison street and 135 feet of frontage on Madison street and 135 feet of frontage on LaSalle street, which will eventually be covered with a high-class building.

The contract stipulates that the lessees may cancel the lease at any time prior to May 1 next upon payment of $3,000 forfeit money, or prior to June 1 on the payment of $25,000 forfeit money, providing the property changes hands. WHAT IS LAND?

The Whole Material Universe Outside

Wealth consists of natural substances that have been modified by human exertion to fit them for the gratification of human wants. All human exertion by which these substances are modified is known within the circle as labor. Labor without natural substances to modify in accordance with the wants of mankind is powerless to produce wealth. Natural substances are found in abundance on all hands. Trees grow in the forests. Minerals are found in the earth. The soil offers itself to the labor of the husbandman, and the sea to the enterprise and courage of the sailor; while the winds, the lightning, and forces subtler yet, respond to the energy, knowledge and skill of labor. All these things are included in the term land, for, though some of them may not usually be so described, yet, since it is only by having access to land that labor can use any natural substance or command any natural force, the term land includes the whole material universe outside of man. Labor is an active factor in production and land is a passive factor. Labor duction and land is a passive factor. cludes the whole material universe outside of man. Labor is an active factor in production and land is a passive factor. Labor acts upon land, land is acted upon by labor. Without this mutual relation there could be no wealth. Land may be likened to a fountain of life-giving water, which offers everything to man but does nothing for him, and labor to the attendant who produces water from the fountain, the water produced being wealth and what remains being land.

Prof. Hennequin's conception of the modern husband is decidedly rich, and though his model may not be considered an ideal one, it is created more with the aim ideal one, it is created more with the air of producing laughter than of representing a conventional type of character. "The Modern Husband" has fully achieved the purpose of its writer. The company producing it is composed of well-known professionals.

Mr. Thomas Martin's piano recital given last night in Victoria Hall was attended by a large and enthusiastic audience. These recitals are of great benefit to all music students, especially to those studying piano. Mr. Martin's style is always elegant, his technique is faultless, and his tone is round and full whether in the softest pianissimo or in the greatest forte. He appeared last night in his best and carned the several encores he received. Among those numbers which pleased the most might be mentioned the "Fantasiestuck" by Sitt. The Chopin groupe was also really charming, after which, the audience demanding an encore, Mr. Martin kindly responded and played the "Romanza" in E flat by Rubenstein. "The Death of Isolde" (Wagner-Liszt), is a stupendous work and was rendered in a most masterly manner. One of the ever-popular Hungarian Rhapsodies, No. 14, by Liszt, brought this delightful concert to a close.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

There is nothing in the letter of my friend Mr. W. Lind that needs a reply except to point out to him that there is a world of difference between the words "sensuous" and "sensual." If he does not know the difference, which evidently he does not, I would advise him to consult his dictionary. In reference to the "Temple of Fame" entertainment, I said it was "sensuous" and did not state or imply in any way that it was "sensual." Yours, etc.,
