Mount Brydges, Oct. 15.-Some of the Mount Brydges Football Club are blaming the Oddfellows' picnic com-mittee for awarding us the prize in the late football match, but when the facts are known it will be easy to see who is to blame. The two teams met, as arranged, to play off the tie; but at the last moment the Mount Brydges players refused to play. Even after this they were given a week to de-cide whether they would play or not. As they still refused, the money was given to us. How discourteous and un-manly it is for them to turn around and blame the committee, who all brough treated them with the utmost fairness! How inconsistent it is for them to say they can beat us now, when they avoided in every possible way meeting us when they had the chance. But we will take them at their word. We will offer them still another opportunity to redeem their We are quite willing to refund the money, to be again played for, or we will play for a supper or enything else our opponents desire, end will pay half the expense of an experienced referee, the game to be played on Delaware commons on any date that can be mutually agreed upon. Haight appeared in better form, and was more at home playing on a familiar table, but he could not cope with Horgan, although the latter only beat him out by 16 balls. This gives Horgan a lead of 137 balls, with only one more night to play—a po-sition which Haight could not possibly overcome, except by forfeit on Horgan's part. Petrolea

Citizens Feel Justly Proud of Their Fire Department.

How the Brigade Started, Its Progress and Its Effective Work.

Every city or town that possesses a fire department thinks theirs is the best; so Petrolea people think of theirs, and have every reason to think so. It has never had a bad mark placed to its credit. When speaking to people from other cities concerning fire matters, the remark is generally made, how can you possibly stop a fire that occurs among so much inflammable matter? It is always handied in a way that would do credit to any department in America. Fires among the many refineries are always, with few exceptions, confined to the place where they start, and in the business and residential part fire cannot possibly live.

The Petrolea fire department was first organized in the East End of Petrolea, which was then the main part, some 28 or 30 years ago. This was brought about owing to fire starting among some frame buildings, when a large cable was procured and made fast to the burning building, which was dragged away to prevent the fire from speading. Soon after a hook-and-ladder truck was purchased, and a company formed, with Mr. Hugh Smiley as captain and Joseph Ward first lieutenant. This truck was fairly well equipped, and among the equip-ments were 75 pails. Then a few years later a brake engine was purchased, and the company became known as the "Union Relible." Later a steamer was bought and placed at the West End, and a company formed, known as the "Andes Fire Company." Then another steamer was bought and placed at the West End station—an old frame building on Front street, occupied at present by John Marks, tailor—that just held the apparatus and no more, the hose carts being kept in a tower where the town bell

But now it is different. A new fire station has been built at the East End, with a nicely-furnished meetingroom upstairs, where many a pleasant waiting on the coast of Africa for a hour is spent by the Reliable Fire homebound steamer, having completed Company, and where the brake engine and hook-and-ladder truck, and also the hose carts, are kept.

At the West End a new station has been built, and the two steamers are for the purpose of writing a series of articles for the Century Magazine, and these notes are published in the Century Magazine, and the control of these steamers was manufactured by Shand, Mason & Co., of London, England; the other was made by the Manchester Locomotive Works, of Manchester, N. H., and called an "Amoskeag." There are also three hose carts, with about 3,000 feet of hose; two chemical fire extinguishers, and a hook-and-ladder truck will be shortly added, as it has been ordered to be purchased by the coun-San Francisco, Oct. 16.—The Australian cricketers sailed for home on the Mariposa last evening, after winning the game from the Californians with men who have been chosen as fire chief. First on the list are M. O. W. Chamberlain, W. Oliver, J. H. Fairbank, ex-M.P., W. G. Fraser, J. W. McCutcheon; then comes the young man who serves today, who is liked by all, and who takes as much interest in fire matters as anyone possible could—Mr. Ernest Preston. He w' elected by the council in April, 1866, to succeed J. W. McCutcheon, resign-ed. Mr. Preston became a member eleven years ago of Andes Fire Company, and has always been a hard worker, and although joining the department at 15 years of age, has worked as hard as any of the older members. The other officers, after Chief Preston, are: Frank Esson, assistant chief; Charles Esson, captain Reliable Fire Company; John Gleason, cap-tain Central fire station; William Pringle, secretary. Each company meets once a month, when necessary business is gone through with and a pleasant time spent.

Petrolea owes a tribute of praise to her firemen present and past. Many brave fellows who have served in the past have passed away, while others from different causes have dropped out, among whom might be mentioned Hugh Smiley, Joseph Ward, O. W. Chamberlain, J. W. McCutcheon, John Scott, Ed. Marshall, J. H. Fairbank, G. S. Pitkin, Harry Branston, Samuel Stokes, Geo. Bruce, H. Can-neff, W. Covert, W. G. Fraser, W. Oliver, and many others who have rendered valuable services to the department, and do now when opportunity offers. A system of waterworks is being put in at an estimated cost of $172,000, which when completed will be one of the finest in America. THE FIRE ALARM BOXES. A communication was received from Alex. Anderson, of Toronto, re the converting of the fire alarm into non-interfering ones. He offered to put in ten boxes for $350-$35 each, giving six months' trial, and if not satisfactory they could remove them. Ald. Skinner asked if there were any other things needed. Chief Roe said they would require some new gongs, repeaters, galvan-

Engineer Graydon recommended that the electric lights in Queen's Park be removed from the present location to Simcoe street, between Adelaide and Rectory streets. This will be done.

INSPECTOR HOWE'S REPORT. Inspector Howe, of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association, submitted his report. It bore date of July 4, 1896. The inspector dealt with the source of the water supply. He said the source was a number of springs, which at the time were barely yielding sufficient for recommendate. ly yielding sufficient for normal requirements. That the reservoir was nearly empty, but that more springs were being taken in, and that the water supply was being augmented. It did not appear to him that the entire available supply from the springs could safely be relied upon as adequate for the suppression of fires, and stating that in his opinion it was essential that an inexhaustible supply should be immediately made secure from the River Thames through pipes of sufficient capacity, in connection with the pumps, under easy control, by instantly accessible valves, which view he explained to the mayor, who classes from a visiting card to figure is a stamp of rank and birth a three sheet poster. We are the many the Maoris. It is forbidden to ever, would not secure a constant supgave instruction for it to be carried ever, would not secure a constant supslaves and women. Tawhiao is the greatest of chiefs, and that is why he ply in the city without the addition of a duplicate main from the pumps and reservoir, or the substitution of some equally effective scheme. One or the other he considered imperative for adequate fire protection. Regarding the fire alarms, the total member was 50. The boxes were three in kind-some slow in action, and the system was capable of considerable improvement. He had been told by the mayor that provision had been made for ten non-interfering Gamewell boxes, to be placed on a separate circuit over the mercantile portion of the city, and that others were contemplated to further improve the system. In his opinion the boxes over the mercantile center, at least, should be keyless, and others with keys under glass alongside. The present plan of relying upon keys kept at houses near or carried by certain persons, tended to delay, especially at night.

The fire stations were very far art, about 7,000 feet from No. 1 to 3, and 6,000 feet from No. 1 to 2. There were at the present 5,650 t of hose available for service, and 393 hydrants were in use, also one aerial turntable truck, a hook and ladder truck, six chemical fire extinguishers, electric fire alarms, with 50 boxes, 37 policemen, 18 of whom were on duty at night, 9 horses and 19 firemen. The deficiencies were these: The sources of water supply were inadequate: a standard chemical engine on wheels, or an adequate salvage equipment was required; horses and men were required to operate the aerial truck, which did not appear to respond to alarms according to their original intention; the quantity of reliable hose was much less than at previous inspections, and 500 feet should at once be procured; the system of fire alarm was not satisfactory, and needed improvement; the stations were too far apart. The report was laid over. Chief Roe reported that the cost of putting down thirteen new hydrants would be $650, and the committee decided to discuss this at another meet-

Mark's Daughter Wears Clothes Like a Man

And Gallops Around Astride on Her Horse.

Mark A. Hanna has a daughter who is a fine horsewoman, and she has so far rebelled against old prejudices that she refuses to wear skirts on horseback and rides astride, dressed in a suit of clothes that might have been made for a man. Mr. Hanna lives in the village of Lakewood, west of Cleveland, on the lake shore. The grounds surrounding his house front on Lake avenue, a broad parkway, lined by the beautiful summer houses of some of Cleveland's wealthiest and most fashionable people. It is on this avenue and the roads leading to it that Miss Ruth Hanna can most often be seen.

She wears her hair brushed up tight to the top of her head, and on it has a Derby hat of the same color as her suit. So close is her resemblance to a boy that if one does not look closely he will not discover his mistake.

Miss Hanna is 16 years old, of medium height, slight in build, an blonde in complexion. She has ridden astride since she was a little girl. As was said, she is a very good horsewoman, and often rides about the country unaccompanied. More often, however, he is accompanied groom or by her mother who folk behind in a carriage.-New York Sun.

Our Oil Regions. The annual report of Mr. A. Blue. Director of Mines for Ontario, conindustry of the Province which ought to be of interest to Advertiser readers. The returns received by the Bureau all the refineries show that the quantity of crude distilled last year was 25,223,785 imperial gallons, and used for fuel 2,213,639 gallons, making a total of 27,437,424 gallons; and that the quantity of illuminating oil produced was 10,924,826 gallons. The products of the refineries in illuminating and lubricating oils for the year were as follows: Illuminating, 10,924,-826 gallons, valued at $1,237,328; lubricating, 2,400,404 gallons, valued at $205,591. It is satisfactory to note that, through improved processes, the refiners have in the last few years received an augmented supply of illuminating oil from the crude. The proportion of illuminating oils extracted from the crude increased 4.64 per cent in the period between 1892 and 1895. The proportion of lubricating oil has decreased 2.84 per cent, and that of all other oils has remained very nearly the same; but the average of all oils extracted from the crude has been raised by 2.53 per cent. At the same time, the director of mines truthfully informs us that the quality of the illuminating oils has been so much imall inferior to the best American. The quality of the crude remains as formerly, with its high percentage of sulphur. But for this drawback, the Canadian oil business could be conducted much more advantageously to well owners and to the consuming public than is now possible. The petroleum of the Oil Springs field is of a better quality than that of the Petrolea field, and is quoted usually at 2 cents per barrel higher. The yield, however, is so much less that in computing total values the average quotations of Petrolea crude are taken. On this basis, the price of crude last year was 4.209 cents per gallon for the entire yield of 33,351,997 gallons. The lowest price received for crude in the last five years was 92 cents per barrel, paid in January, 1894; the highest was $1 70, paid in December last; the

in the Petrolea district was 6,787, and in the Oil Springs field 3,176, making a total of 9,963. There has been vigorous developments in various fields since Mr. Blue's report was compiled. Wells have been put down in Plympton township, in Bothwell, and on Pelee Island, and many new wells have been drilled in the original oil field. so that today there are considerably over 10,000 wells in this oil field. The contract price for drilling a well in the Petrolea field is about $110, the oil being usually reached at 460 to 465 feet. Forty sets of tools were running last year in the territory, much greater activity being shown since the price of crude went up. One rig, working in day time only, will complete a well in two weeks, and the average number of wells drilled is about 80 per month. About 100 wells are abandoned every year, but this is owing to local obstructions and not to failure of oil, it being found cheaper to drill a new well than to clean out an old one. In the early days of the industry many wells were abandoned which now would be regarded as first-class yielders; and as none of these wells were plugged the gas was allowed to escape freely, the result of which has been, in the opinion of some careful observers, a reduction of pressure upon the oil held in the rock and a consequent falling off in the daily production. New wells will average one to one and a half barrels per day for a month or sia weeks, when they gradually fall off to the rate of eight or ten barrels per month. But there are, Mr. Blue points out, exceptions. In July, 1873, Mr. W. K. Gibson drilled a well upon a fiveacre lot on Durham Creek, lot 14, con. 10, Enniskillen, which for a long time pumped 40 to 50 barrels per day, and after a period of two years he was shipping from it 900 barrels per month. In 1890, when Mr. Gibson sold the property, this well was producing 105 barrels per month, and he states that the present yield is 75 barrels per month. The Barnes wells, which ockillen, were bored in June, 1893, and began with a yield of 75 barrels per day. In May, 1895, the property was purchased by Mr. John Fraser, and of Indian summer yet to come, in the he informed the director of mines that | State of Vermont snow already lies the yield of the two wells is now 550 on the hills to a depth of five inches. barrels per month. down to reach the Trenton formation oil would be struck to rival that of the Ohio fields. In 1881 his company sunk one well to a depth of 1,505 feet, but abandoned the work before reaching the Trenton. Salt was struck at 1,087 feet, and the drill went through three or four beds until at 1,380 or 1,390 feet it reached one of pure solid salt, continuous to 1,505 feet, without getting through it. Ten years ago it was the custom to hold in stock about 500,000 barrels of crude, for which purpose underground tanks were constructed 60 feet deep and 300 feet in diameter, sunk in an impervious blue clay and lined with a wooden curb. Now the stocks are very light, not exceeding 50,000 barrels.

Improvements have recently been made in lubricants. It has been demonstrated by tests at the Imperial oil works that Canadian oils thoroughly desulphurized give better light and burn longer than the best American. Mr. Jenkins. a leading Petrolea oil man, indeed, claims that one gallon of Canadian oil will last as long as one and a third gallons of American. What is needed to produce the best result in lighting with our oil is a lamp which gives a good supply of oxygen, and thus increases combustion. The class of lamps that suits United States oil will not prove effective with Canadian oil. The Imperial works now use from 50,000 to 60,000 barrels a year. Formerly these were made chiefly of oak. but as this timber is now growing scarce, elm is used in its stead and is made oil-tight by giving it a double coating of glue. A smaller percentage of empties comes back now than was the case in past years, as many are being used as packing cases for the nickel and copper matte shipped from he smelting works at Sudbury. The National Company is adopting steel barrels for shipping its products. It produces oil for use in the manufacture of binder twine, which must be free from all acids, must not evaporate under 250 degrees Fahrenheit, and is required to contain 50 per cent pure paraffine wax. Mr. Fairbank, M.P., a leading refiner, owns the greatest number of wells of any one producer. He controls 300, but there are hundreds of individual owners of wells, all interested in finding a market for their products.

The Canadian Magazine is now one of the best conducted monthlies printed in any part of the world. Take the number for October, and note the choice contributions. Here are only a few: "Did Lord Durham Write His Own Report?" by Mr. J. Griffin, Parliamentary librarian, Ottawa; "The Canadian Girl," by Reginald Gourlay; "A Reply to Principal Grant," by Prof. Goldwin Smith, already referred to in these columns; "Through the Sub-Arctics of Canada," by J. W. Tyrrell; "Eva Brodlique," a London girl who has made a name for herself as a writer in the United States; "Who Did Sin? This Man or His Parents?" and many other articles, several splendidly illustrated. We congratulate Mr. John A. Cooper, M.A., the talented author, on his successful management of this now most meritorious magazine. Ontario Publishing Company.

What Retards Settlement. Rev. Dr. Robertson, superintendent of Presbyterian Home Missions in the Northwest, complains that past methods of settlement have been very objectionable. He says, "If the Govermment could only get back the lands allotted to railway companies, and think a great impetus would be given to settlement, otherwise, settlement is likely to proceed slowly." No doubt, it would be much easier to settle the Northwest if the vacant lands were still in the hands of the Government, instead of in the possession of railway companies and speculators. Near-by settlement would make it much easier for farmers to provide schools and churches, and greatly add to the comforts of the settlers. But it would take a pretty penny from the taxpayers of Canada to undo cupy 48 acres of lot 9, con. 14, Ennis- the mistakes of the late Government.

The Rinderpest,

Terrible has been the effects of the cattle plague which has devastated South Africa during the past year. The Rinderpest Conference in Cape Town reports that 40,000 to 50,000 carcasses have been destroyed in Bechaunaland alone. The conference resolved to urge upon the governments concerned the necessity of building a double fence. with a space of 500 yards between the lines, all along the frontier, also that hides and sheep skins, wool and mohair, and natives traveling by road or rail, should be disinfected. THE MINISTER OF EDUCATION.

Toronto Globe. The London Advertiser says: "A personal friend who has recently seen Hon. Geo. W. Ross says that the Minister of Education is in better health than he has been for ten years. His rheumatism does not bother him much now." Liberals all over Canada will be glad to know that this is the fact. The eloquent Minister of Education promises to regain his old physical form of fifteen or twenty years ago. It is the fact, however, that his unsatisfactory health of recent years has never affected his uefulness in the Legislature, his power or his ability as an administrator.

THE HORRIBLE "JIGGERS" OF

The village of Mayilo is surrounded by a boma of stakes, clayed four feet up; the three gates are firmly closed at night. The natives do not venture outside at night for any purpose, and this side at hight for any purpose, and this gives the village a very pretty aspect. The place is horribly intested with the burrowing flea, "the jigger," the pest of men, women and children, who are a mass of horrid sores. Through lack of washing and removing the jigger when he first enters, big sores are found all over the feet. I felt very sorry for the children, who were all more or less lame, and many stumping about on their heels, unable to put foot to ground, owing to swollen toes. oaning of women at night, and the bellowing of youngsters were most disressing to hear. I tried to impress on them that constant washing and at-tention to their feet and occasional flooding of the low, clayey ground in hut and street would cure the evil; but it was too much like hard work to be adopted. The flooding could be done without the slightest injury to property, as the streets are quite level, and the clay floorings of grass brick are raised about a foot above the and even the babies are permitted to and even the bables are permitted to squat on the bare ground as though the jigger does not exist.—"Glave's Journey to the Livingstone Tree," by the late E. Charles McQueen Sentenced for the Theft of Clothing

Mrs. and Mr. Reid an Aged Couple, Who Can Not Agree-Mrs. Fahey to Go to the Asylum.

At today's Police Court Charles Mc-Queen, who has been in jail on remand for a week, came up for sentence for ence and realized the physical Romeo, stealing clothing from Mr. George while his reading was luminous and Chittick's home on King street. The prisoner is a well-dressed, intelligent- passion to tatters or descend to melolooking young fellow, whom few but drama. His voice was rich and deep the experts would suspect of being a crook. Assistant Crown Attorney Mc-Killop said the records of the Central Prison showed that McQueen had served three terms there of six months each for theft, and a letter from Galt stated that the prisoner was a native of that place, and that he had served a term at Lockport for attempted abduction at Niagara Falls.

McQueen then spoke. He said he was drunk when he took the goods, and if it had not been for liquor he would not have been there. "I in-tended to reform," he continued; "I crowded house, if all that is best in don't intend to always lead this kind of life. I am the only one of a respectable family that was ever in a place of this kind. I am willing to reform if you give me half a chance. I

The Bennet Furnishing Company, of East London, under the management of Ald. Bennet, have found it necessary, on account of increased business, to build a large addition to their factory on Rectory street. It is almost completed now, and is 65 feet square, and two stories high. Quite a number of new machines, being specially manufactured for this firm by Jackson & Cochran, Berlin, Ont., will shortly be placed in posi-tion, and from 20 to 30 extra hands will be engaged. This will make the total number of employes of the Ben-net Company here about a hundred. The firm manufactures school, church and hall furnishings, and do a large export trade. The parts of the articles made by them for other countries are machined here, and fitted and finished in Glasgow, Scotland, where Messrs. "Romeo and Juliet" at the Grand Opera House.

A Satisfying Production—Melodrams at Music Hall Coming-The Jubilee Singers.

SHAKESPEARE AT THE GRAND. The performance at the Grand last night proves that Shakespeare and cheap prices are not incompatible. Mr. Owen deserves much praise for essaying the classic drama on such a scale at popular prices. It is an attempt to elevate the public taste, which, though it may not be abundantly profitable at first, must be far more soul-satisfying to the true artist than any ephemeral success attained in the lower order of plays, aimed only at the box office. The production of "Romeo and Juliet" last night was gratifying to the lovers of Shakes-peare. It was enough for them to hear the poetic lines well spoken; to feast the ear even if the eye was not dazzled by the extrinsic splendor of stage effects. Mr. Owen's Romeo was expressionate. He infused plenty of fire into the part, but did not tear his sprightliness, vivacity and ringing voice fitting the role admirably. Mr. McConnell's Peter was a clever bit of comedy. As the nurse, Miss Meredith had a difficult task for a young and slender woman. The stage nurse is usually stout and of maturer years.

Several of the settings, notably the balcony and the tomb scenes, were very handsome. the drama is to be encouraged. HOYT COMEDY COMPANY AT THE

> THE JUBILEE SINGERS. The Tennesseean Jubilee Singers made their appearance before a small but appreciative audience at Music Hall. They have lost none of the rich melody which made them famous. The old plantation songs are being super-seded by those of a later day, but they are just as sweet as ever. The quartette's rendition of Barnum's steam calliope received a double encore, and several of the individual singers were

Decide to Vote Down a Free Silver Resolution.

W. P. Prescott, of Toronto, Re-elected President-Proposition to Pass the Eight-Hour Law Defeated.

Colorado Springs, Oct. 16.—The international Typographical Union, after a warm discussion, voted to strike from the minutes, the following reso-

"Resolved, by the I. T. U., in convention assembled, on the summit of Pike's Peak, on this 14th day of October, 1896, that we believe in the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ration of 16 to 1, and the adoption of laws restoring silver to its right-ful place, as the same existed prior to 1873, and this without waiting for consent from any other nation." The supporters of Bryan and free silver were largely in the majority, but they thought the adoption of such a esolution would injure the union. Yesterday's session was the most important that has been held since the convention opened, four days ago. The business of the election of officers and the consideration of the adoption session late into the night. The election of the officers of president, vicepresident, and secretary and treasurer were all hotly contested.

The following officers were chose for the ensuing term: President-W. P. Prescott, of Toronto, Ont., re-elected; secretary and treasurer, John W. Bramwood, of Denver; first vice-prerenny sident, Theodore Perry, Nashville, Tenn; second vice-president, George W. Williams, Boston; third vice-president, Hugo Miller, of Indianapolis, re-elected.

An effort to pass an eight-hour law was defeated. The nine-hour law has now to be voted on by every typo-graphical union in the country before ts final adoption. In 1886 such a law passed the international convention, but was defeated when presented to the various typographical unions.
Syracuse, N. Y., was chosen as the place of meeting in 1898.

PRESBYTERIAN PROGRESS Important Statement by the Rev. Dr. Warden.

Toronto, Oct. 16 .- Rev. Dr. Warden, general agent of the Presbyterian Church, says that the Presbyterian Church has three urgent needs, namely: Money, men and a greater missionary spirit, but that notwithstand-ing the financial problems, the progress is most remarkable. While in 1871 there were only 470 Presbyterian ministers and missionaries in the Dominion, there are now 1,270. The number of congregations has increased from 830 to 2,800, and the total membership has risen from 68,000 a quarter of a century ago, to 169,000. The annual contributions have risen cor-respondingly, from $50,000 them to $360,000 now. Indeed, while the membership has only increased three-fold, the contributions have increased sevenfold. The Presbyterian Church, Dr. Warden points out, spends as much in sending the Gospel to the heathen, as upon home missions. The home mission work now engages the efforts of 419 missionaries, and last year $98,000 was given to this fund.

How It Was Done.

The Bank Robbery in Colorado-Was the Most Daring Ever Perpetrated in the West.

Occurred in Broad Daylight With Many People in Sight.

Denver, Col., Oct. 16 .- According to the latest advices from Meeker, Col. the three men who were killed there after robbing the bank have not been identified. The one who lived two hours after being shot gave names which are believed to be fictitious. It is believed that one of the robbers is Thomas McCarthy, who aided in rob-bing banks at Teluride and Delta. Those killed in the battle between the citizens and the robbers are: Charles Jones, leader of the bandits, aged 45, shot through the lungs and chest. William Smith, robber, aged 21, rid dled through the lungs and chest, shot through the heart, and a number of other wounds, any of which would have been mortal. George Harris, robber, aged 35, shot through lungs and chest.

The wounded: Game Warden W. H Clark, bullet in right breast, not fatal; Victor Dikeman, shot through the arm; C. A. Booth, scalp wound; W. P.

Herrick, finger shot off.

The robbery was one of the most daring ever perpetrated in the west, occurring in broad daylight and at a occurring in broad daylight and at a time when there were twenty or more people in plain sight. George Rooney, clerk of the Meeker Hotel, had stepped into the bank to make a deposit, and stood talking to Assistant Cashier David Smith. As he turned to leave he felt a heavy hand on his shoulder, and glancing up was looking into the muggle of a revolver. The into the muzzle of a revolver. The man with the revolver commanded "Hands up." At the same instant two shots rang out, and two bullets whizzed by the head of the assistant cashier, David Smith, who threw up his hands. Meantime the two other robbers had covered the crowd in the store, compelling them to assemble in the center of the room and guard-ing both doorways. Then Cashier Moulton was called ,and one of the men said to him: "Open the safe, and be quick about it." At the point of the gun he was conducted to the safe, which he opened, and the contents of the drawer, $700, were emptied into a sack the robber had brought with him. Not a word was spoken, the robbers going about their business with a deliberation that was astounding.

After getting the money in the till they quietly gathered in all the firearms in the place, helped themselves to the cartridges, and then the leader addressed the crowd, bank officials, employes of the store and customers who happened to be in the place, saying their horses were standing posed of the south half of lot 4, in hitched outside the rear door, which the second range north of Mosa, to Mr. Glasgow. Price, $4,000; 100 acres, their own sake they would request all to go outside with them. The crowd filed through the doorway, followed they had driven from the stone broke and ran for cover. The citizens of the town had been warned by the ing themselves to the teeth, surroun ed the bank and quietly awaited the appearance of the robbers. Deputy Game Warden W. H. Clark noticed that three horses were fastened at the rear door, and surmising that the robbers would leave by that route, took up his station a short distance from the back door, and centered more men lections amounted to $75, and no tea at this place than any other, not neglecting, however, to keep the front door just as well watched. When the robbers saw that they were cornered Charles Jones raised a rifle and fired at Clark. The bandits were commanded to hold up their hands, but answered with a fusillade of shots from a dozen different directions. Jones and Smith fell to the ground, literally riddled with bullets. They had been killed in the act of firing. Harris, mortally wounded, held his revolver, and still staggering, continued the battle until he fell. The dead men were removed to an undertaking establishment, where an inquest was held, rendering a verdict

England's Lamented Prelate.

The Archbishop of Canterbury's

Beneath the Old Historic Cathedral -General Mourning Throughout

Great Britain.

Remains Interred

Canterbury, England, Oct. 16 .-- There is general mourning throughout Great Britain today. Bells have been tolling almost everywhere, and memorial services in honor of the memory of the late Archbishop of Canterbury, and Primate of All England, the Most Rev. Edward White Benson, D.D., who died suddenly in Hawarden Church on Sunday last, while attendhundreds of churches, while, lying in state, the remains of the deceased prelate were watched throughout by toonist and humorist; Albert E. Smith, polyphonist and shadowgraphist, and Miss Grace A. Green, New York's Augustine school; and it was the occasion for the wending around the aisles of the vast edifice a continuous range-stream of clergy, notabilities and members of all classes of society, Cin-rich and poor, all bent upon taking a last farewell glance at the casket closed containing the body of the venerable and well-loved priest, whose tragic death, while the guest of the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, caused such a sensation on Monday. AN HISTORIC SPOT. The old cathedral, in which Thomas Becket was slain at the altar, and which contains the tomb of the Black Prince, and the monuments of Henry IV. and Queen Joan, and Archbishops Kemp, Stratford, Sudbury, Chicheley, Mourchier, and others, the cloisters in which Henry II. did penance in sackcloth two years after Becket's death. and many other relies of English history, looked cold, dismal and forbidding. Rain was falling outside, the atmosphere within the huge edifice was heavy and charged with moisture. Primate's throne was heavily draped with violet velvet, on which was richly embroided the arms of the See of Canterbury, on a silver ground. The floor about the grave was covered with scarlet cloth, and the grave itself was lined with violet velvet. The doors of the cathedral were besieged at the earliest hours, in spite of the rainy weather, and the strong police force was reinforced by a squadron of the Sixteenth Lancers, who did sentry duty around the old building, while the ceremonies lasted. THE SERVICES. The religious services began o'clock in the morning, when the Dean of Canterbury, the Ven. The funeral procession, which was rendered more imposing in appearance by the presence of a guard of honor from the Sixteenth Lancers, one of the most attractively uniformed regiments of the British army, formed in the cloisters. It was composed of the clergy of the Diocess of Canter-bury, in full robes; the rural deans, delegations from the Diocese of Truro, the House of Lords and the House of Commons, large numbers of church dignitaries and representatives of Cambridge University, the Lord Lieutenant of Kent, 20 bishops, 50 canons, the Archbishop of Dublin, Dean Farrar, the Archbishop of York, the Rev. She found, then, that the delay had been caused by the necessary charge and care of the ceremonies which Lady Capel's death had forced sentiment of gratitude to her, although she was yet ignorant of her bequest of £8,000. For Hyde had resolved to wait until the reading of the will made it certain, and then to resign his commission and carry the double good this hour so many things appealed to forward, they were to be together. He would buy more land, and improve his all others was that her husband had estate, and live happily away from the fought and fallen for Lady Suffolk. turmoil of the town and the disagreeable duties of active service in a detestable quarrel. Never, perhaps, are we so happy as when we have just escaped some fear-ed calamity. That letter lifted the last fear from Katherine's heart, and it gave her also the expectation of an early visit. "I am very impatient to see you, my Kate." he wrote, "and as early as possible after the funeral you may expect me." The words rang like music in her heart. She read them aloud to little Joris, and then the whole household warmed to the intelligence. For there was always now food for her suspicions. Was she much pleasant preparation for Hyde's dead, or was the assertion only a part visits; clean rooms to make still cleaner, silver to polish, dainties to cook, dead, Sir Thomas Swaffham would every weed to take from the garden, have heard of the death; yet she had er, silver to polish, dainties to cook, every unnecessary straw from the thing must be beautiful. Alas! these are the unguarded hours which sorrow surprises. But no thought of trouble, and no fear of it, had Katherine, as she stood before her mirror one afternoon. When I was a young wench at school—" and then as she folded up the loose ribbons, Letty told a gruesome story of a farmer robbed and murdered; but as she came to the part the gray horse had played in it, Katherine slowly walked nto the room, with a letter in her hand. She was white, even to the lips, and with a mournful shake of her head she motioned to the girls to leave her alone. She put the paper out of her hand and stood regarding it. Fully ten minutes elapsed ere she gathered strength to break its well-known seal and take in the full meaning of words so full of agony to her.

"It is midnight, beloved Katherine, and in six hours I may be dead. Lord Paget spoke of my cousin to me in terms as leaves but one way out of the affront. I pray you, if you can, to pardon me. The world will condemn me, and yet I vow that you, and you fears slipped away from her only, have ever had my love. You I "I will not believe what a bad shall adore with my last breath. Kate, my Kate, forgive me! If this comes to you by strange hands I shall be dead or dying. My will and papers of importance are in the drawer marked

B in my escritoire. Kiss my son for me, and take my last hope and These words she read, then wrung her hands and mounted like a creature that had been wounded to death. Oh, the shame! Oh, the wrong and sorrow! How could she bear it? What should she do? Capt. Lennox, who had brought the letter, was waiting for her decision. If she would go to her husband, then he could rest and return to London at his leisure. If not, Hyde wanted his will, to add a codicil regarding the £8,000 left him by Lady Capel. For he had been wounded in his side, and, a dangerous inflammation having set in, he had been warned of a possible fatal result. Katherine was not a rapid thinker She had little, either, of that instinct which serves some women instead of all other prudences. Her actions genown mind and of whose wisdom or

The one thought that dominated He had risked her happiness and welfare, he had forgotten her and his child, for this woman. It was the sequel to the impertinence of the peddler's visit. She believed, at that moslighted and deceived woman.

This idea once admitted, jealousy of the cruellest and most unreasonable kind assailed her. Incidents, words, looks long forgotten, rushed back upon her memory and fed the flame. Very likely, if she left ner child and went to London, she might find Lady Suffolk in attendance upon her husband; or at least be compelled for his life's sake to submit to her visits. She pondered this supposition until it brought forth one still more shameful Perhaps the whole story was a scheme to get her up to London. Perhaps she might disappear there. What, then, would be done to her child? If Richard Hyde were so infatuated with Lady Suffolk, what might he not do to win her and her large fortune? Ev the news of Lady Capel's death was of the conspiracy? If she had been seen him that morning and he had yards. For the master's eye every made no mention of the circumstance. "To London I will not go," she de-cided.
