RURAL POSTAL CARRIERS SEEK HIGHER WAGES

Declare Bailiff Enters Homes of 125 Underpaid Mail Contractors.

NO BONUS RECEIVED

Association Secretary Will Present Claims of Members At Ottawa.

Abolition of the contract system under which rural mail carriers have been losing on an average of $325 per year, and the substitution thereof of a mileage rate of $70; consideration of claims for money lost on these rural routes since 1917, and a betterment of other conditions, are some of the things for which the Canadian Rural Mail Contractors and Postoffice-Railway Association are asking the Dominion government.

The Advertiser, Garfield McKinnon, secretary of this association, today outlined the case which is to be brought to the attention of the authorities at Ottawa next Monday.

"It has been the custom of the department," stated Mr. McKinnon, "to advertise for competitive tenders for 4-year periods. That in itself is bad enough, as new men who know nothing of the costs of keeping up their rigs and feeding their horses, are sure to put in low figures, but the action of the postoffice inspectors, after these tenders are in, makes the situation ten times worse.

Urges Price-Cutting.

"They arrive in the district where tendering has been going on, and proceed at once to set one tenderer up against the other, claiming that like the price that has been asked, and stating that if the figures are not cut down there will be no chance of the tenderer getting the route for which he has put in a bid. The result is, in nearly every case, they get some of those bidding for the work to come away down from the price they originally asked.

"It is a continuation of this practice that has made the lot of the rural mail carrier one of the poorest in the country, and has forced us to bring together an organization of these men in order that we might present our case at Ottawa in the hope of getting some redress.

"What do we ask for? Simply this, that the present contract system be abolished, and that the men who have been carrying on under this unfair method be given a decent living wage, which we consider would be $70 per mile, and permanent employment, so that they would not be thrown out at the end of every four years by some person who comes in at a cheaper figure and cuts the ground from under their feet."

Figures Presented.

Mr. McKinnon then went into details, giving some figures that have been carefully investigated, and proved, and on which the rural mail carriers base the case they are presenting to the government.

"There are 1,500 rural route carriers in Ontario, and 3,000 in the whole Dominion," he stated. "The average route is 20 miles, and the average cost of maintaining the outfit for this route is $1,058 per year. The average income is $732, resulting in an average loss of $326 per year. You may think these figures are strange, and so they are, but they are absolute facts, and we are prepared to prove them to the hilt. A man on a rural route has to keep two horses, and his expenses consist of hay, oats, straw, horse-shoeing and rig repair.

"As proof of the fact that the carriers cannot make a living on the rate they are paid now, we can cite the fact that in the last two or three years the mail has entered the homes of 125 of the carriers and sold out the effects in whole or in part to satisfy bills for hay and oats.

Occupies Most of Day.

"It is not possible for the route contractors to engage in other work to any extent, in fact the great majority of them do nothing else. I know of a couple of cases where some bread is carried, but such cases are in the great minority, and not worth mentioning.

"Take it this way—the most of the routes start out between 9:30 and 10 in the morning, and return around 5 o'clock in the afternoon, so you see the day is pretty well broken up at both ends, and there is no chance of engaging in any other remunerative work. These carriers are rated as traveling postmasters, and perform all duties that a postmaster could, were he out on that work.

"We are also asking consideration because we did not receive any recognition when the war bonus was being paid to every other branch of the civil service, from the janitors in the buildings, right up to the top man in the service. During all those years, when fear of horses went to prices never heard of before in this country, and when our own living expenses went up just as much as those of the other men who were receiving war bonuses, we received no consideration at all, and not one cent was ever paid to the rural mail carriers on that account. We consider it was unjust treatment, and our men lost heavily all through that time, and we consider that we are entitled to redress now.

Docked Day's Pay.

"To show how strict the department is in dealing with the rural mail men," continued Mr. McKinnon, "let me tell you of a case that happened right here in Western Ontario, near Sarnia, where a young lady drives a rural route. It was when the roads in the spring were almost impassable. She started out with her horse in the morning and went along as far as she possibly could.

"Finally her horse could go no further, and the buggy was right down on the axles in the mud. She had to get out and take her horse out and go to a farmer and get another one. He managed to get her buggy out of the mud, and it was no use trying to go any further with the route, so she had to turn around and drive home as best she could after doing part of her work. As a result she was docked a day's pay because she had not delivered the mail on that day."

The mail men also consider that the practice, which has been in force for a long time of holding back a month's pay, is unwarranted and unfair. "As it is now," explained the secretary, "when a man gets a contract from the department he has to put up two bonds of $400 each, $800 in all. When he starts in to work he gets no money at the end of the first month, as it is held back, and working on the route for two months, when he draws a month's salary. This goes right on all the time to the end of his four years, and then he has to wait until a month after he is through before he is paid in full.

Salary Held Back.

"In this way the government really has a month's salary of every rural mail carrier for 49 months, and we claim that there is nothing fair about it, and many of the men are in no position to carry on for two months before getting their first month's salary.

"These contracts are made binding to the last letter. If a man were to die it would be up to his bondsmen to see that the route was carried on at the same price at which he tendered, and no matter how much a man may wish to cancel his contract he cannot do so. We are going to ask for a change there, as we consider that 30 days or two months at the outside should be sufficient to terminate a contract."

The increase in automobile traffic in the country is also an added danger to the rural route carriers, and during the last two or three years there have been several fatal accidents, and a score or more cases where the carriers have been badly injured by being struck by cars when they were over on the wrong side of the road putting mail in boxes that were on that side of the thoroughfare.

Damage Claim Denied.

A test case was made in the courts some time ago to see if damages could be secured, and it was found that the driver of the car was not guilty, and the court held that the driver of the rural route had no business over on the wrong side of the road. In this connection we are going to ask that the boxes shall be all placed on the right hand of the driver of the routes. This is essential as the traffic by the use of cars is increasing all the time, and the danger of being struck by having to go from one side of the road to the other is increasing all the time.

Mr. McKinnon stated, in conclusion, that United States had done away with the contract system some time ago, and the rural mail carriers there were now being paid at the rate of $75 per mile, and a system of substitute men was also worked out so that the rural carriers could have their holidays as well as the city carriers. At the present time in Canada the rural men have to go out on their routes every day in the week except Sunday. They have not even the statutory holidays.

Mr. McKinnon expects to go to Ottawa at the end of the present week, and there is the possibility of him being accompanied by J. J. Morrison, of Toronto, who is deeply interested in the case.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, Ottawa.
May 17.—The use of oleomargarine undoubtedly has caused many a tilt in a happy household, but probably it never before wrought as much havoc as it did here in the house when it split each of the three parties asunder.

The battle, happily, was not fought along party lines, and so when the vote was taken it found Liberals opposing Liberals, and Conservatives opposing Conservatives. The Progressive party suffered the least of the three, for its stand was previously determined in caucus.

The leaders of the parties took no part in the debate. In fact, both Premier W. L. Mackenzie King and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen were absent from the house during the evening session, probably preparing speeches for the debate on the naval issue.

Members of the cabinet, however, took part in the debate. The Hon. W. S. Fielding presented a strange sight in attacking the stand taken by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, and when the count was taken Hon. James Munnick and Hon. Mr. Fielding were on a side opposite to Hon. G. P. Graham and Hon. Mr. Motherwell.

The vote showed 44 Liberals opposing the sale of oleo, with 22 favoring it, while the Conservatives counted 13 for it, and 6 opposed. Contrary to expectations, the Progressives almost solidly supported the sale of oleomargarine. The vote was 45 to 6.

Members from Western Ontario were divided on the issue. A. L. Hodgins, Middlesex East, Donald Sutherland, Oxford South, and W. L. Stansell, Elgin East, opposed the sale of the product, while W. D. Euler, Waterloo North, W. Forrester, Perth South, W. Black, Huron South, W. G. Good, Brant, D. J. Sinclair, Oxford North, W. Elliott, Waterloo North, J. D. F. Drummond, Middlesex West, B. W. Fansher, Lambton East, and H. McKillop, Elgin West, favored the marketing of oleo.

W. L. STANSELL and Donald Sutherland, both representing ridings where dairying is carried on extensively, spoke to some length opposing the sale of oleomargarine.

HON. HUGH GUTHRIE, Conservative member for South Waterloo, slipped into a pool of hot water during the naval debate, when he intimated that the government had proven inconsistent by "flopping" on the question of the navy. He was immediately greeted by mingled cries from the government side, accusing him of being an adept at the very same acrobatic stunt.

The accusation was put into plain words by William Duff of Lunenburg, and L. H. Martell of Hants, N. S., who stated that any accusation of "flopping" came with ill-grace from the lips of Mr. Guthrie, when the ex-minister's personal political record was considered.

WITH one exception, every member from Western Ontario who was in Ottawa at the time, attended the luncheon given by His Excellency the Governor-General at the Government House today. Altogether nearly 150 members of Parliament were the guests of Lord Byng. The one exception, Mr. Fansher of East Lambton, was entertained at a similar luncheon last week.

THURSDAY afternoon a reception will be given in the Parliament

Buildings to Lady Astor by Speaker Rodolphe Lemieux and Mrs. Lemieux. Every member of Parliament has been invited to pay his respects to the first lady member of the British House of Commons.

OTTAWA, May 17.—(By Canadian Press.)—The prime minister's resolution that the house adjourn on Tuesday night until Friday next week passed the house this afternoon.

PLANS NATIONAL MARKET

OTTAWA, May 17.—(By the Canadian Press.)—The passage of an act creating a national wheat marketing agency with powers similar to those of the Canada Wheat Board of 1919, and to become effective when two or more of the provinces have conferred upon this agency powers possessed by the late wheat board, was recommended to parliament today by the house committee on agriculture. This action was taken as a result of the resolution introduced by R. M. Johnson, Progressive, of Moose Jaw, and was approved on a vote of 32 to 28.

The Liberals voted almost solidly against the resolution, but the Progressives were supported by several of the Conservatives. An amendment to the resolution offered by A. R. McMaster, Liberal, aiming to strike out any compulsory features was previously voted down by 34 to 27.

MURPHY DENIES LABOR CHARGES

Attends Council Meeting, Declaring He Was Misquoted.

Believes Capital and Labor Should Get Into Closer Co-operation

Holding steadfastly to his contention that he had been misquoted when charged with having stated that "long hours and less wages" was the only solution for the nation's ills, Major T. J. Murphy, K.C., addressed the members of the Trades and Labor Council.

It was the heading of the article which had appeared in the press, and not the article itself, that had created such an impression, the major stated. Incidentally reading a portion of the minutes of the meeting of the London and Middlesex Historical Society, at which gathering it was claimed he made the statement credited to him. He had advocated, he said, not longer hours for less money, but "practical Christianity" and the application of the Golden Rule.

Made No Reference.

In his preliminary remarks Major Murphy stated that he would make no reference to the "unkind things that have been said about him at the previous gathering."

There is in progress, he said a continual struggle between capital and labor which would be of little avail in producing better conditions until the two go together in a friendly spirit of cooperation.

operation. If one party continued to hold out there could be no settlement of the present unrest. He explained that many thoughtful persons some of them not even Christians believed that the only solution was Christianity—the application of the Golden Rule.

the two main reasons, he claimed, for all the trouble. It was this idea that he had expounded, he said, at the meeting of the historical society, and the criticism of the members had arisen from their perusal of the head lines.

Taking up the work question again, he held that some workers merely "p in time," and failed to produce as the should. He expressed himself as favor of piece-work, and disapproval of the daily wage scheme. In pay-by the hour the good workman was under a handicap.

In rebuttal several of the labor delegates pointed out to Major Murphy that while it may have been true that did not actually advocate before the Historical Society "longer hours a less wages," in those exact words, had said that in effect in the course his address.

Equally interesting was an address by William Tite, delegate for the lo-

Major Murphy upon several points.

Rigidly Adhered To.

Replying to the latter's remarks concerning Germany, Delegate Tite declared that three days after the signing of the armistice Germany had played its last card in effect, and the eight-hour day was the same had been rigidly adhered to. He pointed out that Germany could produce cheaply for export, not because workers labored longer hours than elsewhere, but because of the depreciation of the mark. This made it possible for the latter to under-sell

The speaker cited the coal situation as a specific instance. Great Britain's export had been almost eliminated because of France's demand for the indemnity in coal every month. Britain's former customers were now being supplied by France and Belgium at prices far below Britain's.

Delegate Tite said that following war the workers had responded heartily to the call for increased production with the result, however, that once factories had become filled with goods they were laid off, had little money to spend and as a natural result tr

He took decided exception to Murphy's claim about piece-work, telling those who employed this method of payment as being nothing less than slave-drivers.

Correspondent Reports Reply Received Reserving Decision On Hague Meeting.

ADOPT NEW AGREEMENT

Non-Aggressive Pact Is Approved by Genoa Plenary Session.

BULLETIN. London, May 17.—The support of Prime Minister Lloyd George plan a big welcome for him, when he returns from Genoa. Members have issued a letter saying: "At Genoa the prime minister represented us and fought his critics with that courage, faith and optimism which were characteristic of his attitude in the war."

Genoa, May 18.—Reuters today states that a reply has been received from the United States with reference to participation in the projected commission at the Hague on Russian affairs, saying the United States reserves its decision pending a further investigation, and until the situation becomes clearer.

The foregoing does not make it clear to what communication on the subject of the proposed conference at the Hague the United States is replying. A Havana dispatch from Genoa Wednesday night said it was understood Premier Lloyd George had sent another message to the United States after receiving the United States note declining participation in the Hague commission, in which Mr. Lloyd George gave a fuller explanation of the plan for the meeting at the Hague. It was said at the state department at Washington early today, however, that no additional message had been received.

Adopt New Pact. Pact of non-aggression was adopted at the plenary session of the political sub-committee of the Genoa conference today. The pact was not signed, but was adopted in the form of a resolution, each state pledging itself to respect it.

The agreement contains six clauses summarized as follows:

Clause 1—Provides for the appointment of a commission by the powers to examine again the divergencies existing between the soviet government and other governments, and with a view to meeting a Russian commission having the same mandate.

Clause 2—Not later than June 20, the names of the powers represented on the non-Russian commission, and the names of the members of this commission will be transmitted to the soviet government and, reciprocally, the names of the members of the Russian commission will be communicated to the other governments.

Clause 3—The questions to be treated by these commissions will comprise debts, private properties and credits.

Clause 4—The members of the two commissions must be at The Hague on June 26.

Clause 5—The two commissions will strive to reach joint resolutions on the questions mentioned in Clause 3.

Re-Establish Confidence. Clause 6.—To permit the commission to work peacefully, and also to re-establish mutual confidence, the soviet governments, on the other hand, pledge themselves to abstain from any act of aggression and subversive propaganda. The pledge for abstaining from any act of aggression will be based upon the present status quo, and will remain in force for a period of four months after the conclusion of the work of the commissions. The pledge concerning propaganda will oblige the governments not to interfere in any way in the internal affairs of other states, and not to assist financially or by any other means political organizations in other countries, and will oblige them to suppress in their territory "any attempt to commit acts of violence in other states or aiming to disturb the territorial or political status."

20 DIE WHEN ROME HOSPITAL BURNS

bodies already have been recovered. Four other patients were badly burned, and one dangerously injured.

The Hospital of Santo Spirito is situated on the bank of the River Tiber, not far from the Vatican grounds. It was founded by Pope Innocent III. in the twelfth century, enlarged by Innocent IV. in the next century, and rebuilt under Sixtus IV. in the fifteenth century.

The altar in the hospital chapel was designed by Andrea Palladio, and is reputed to be the only work of this artist in Rome.

St. Thomas Topics.

THE ANNUAL meetings of the Methodist churches of St. Thomas district were held Wednesday forenoon and afternoon, and laymen's meetings will be held shortly. A mass meeting of Methodists was held Wednesday evening in Central Methodist Church, at which Rev. W. A. Walden presided.

MICHAEL MOWKREY, recently found guilty of running a still in Southwood, and who was required to pay a $200 fine or go to jail, has found it impossible to raise the money, and will spend the next six months behind the bars.

THE LARGE Grand Trunk bridge over the Welland Canal, which was damaged recently by a large freighter and was out of commission for the last week or so, is reported to be in working order again.

Kitchener Club Complains of Bad Roads.

Special to London Advertiser.

KITCHENER, May 17.—Local motorists are beginning to kick about the condition of roads leading into and out of the city. At the present time most of the roads are under construction, and the claim is being put up to the motor club here that proper information is not being circulated to direct motorists over the detours. As a result calls are being sent in daily to have cars hauled out that are hopelessly mired in sand and mud. The local motor club will take the matter up as one of the first steps since their reorganization, and it is expected that all roads to and from the city will be properly placarded with directions as to detours.

BUILDING BOOM HITS WOODSTOCK

Permits For Present Month Establish Record Since 1918.

Village of Milldale Excited Over Finding of Skeleton.

Special to London Advertiser.

WOODSTOCK, May 17.—Building activities have taken on a decided spurt in the city within the last few weeks. Among the contracts awarded have been several for additions to local manufacturing plants. Two large gasoline stations have been built, with two more to follow shortly. William Baird & Son are doubling the size of their plant, while A. L. Beauregard is adding a large addition to his carriage and auto painting establishment. Several business houses on Dundas street are also hustling along additions, while the Bell Telephone Company is asking for tenders for a fine central office to be erected on Graham street. It is expected that the building permits for the months of May and June will exceed any two months since the cessation of the war.

The dry spell which has been retarding the spring crops, was broken today when rain fell at intervals. While the ground was not soaked, thousands of dollars worth of good will result from the showers to the farmers and other gardeners of the county. The farm help, which was expected from the old country, has not yet materialized. The agricultural department states that the men expected from Glasgow have been held up in the old country, but expect to sail shortly.

Considerable interest has been aroused around the village of Milldale through the finding of a human skeleton on the farm of Robert Mash a few days ago. The latter was ploughing some land in preparation for corn when he unearthed the bones, which were only buried a few inches below the surface. Mr. Mash took his find to Norwich village and it is expected the authorities will be asked to investigate the find.

WANTS McCOIG TO GIVE EVIDENCE

Meighen Objects, But Lemieux Allows Motion To Stand.

OTTAWA, May 17.—(By Canadian Press.)—Fred Kay, Liberal member of Parliament for Mississquoi, and chairman of the special committee on agriculture, moved in the House of Commons this afternoon that a message be sent to the Senate asking that Hon. A. B. McCoig be given leave to appear before the committee and give evidence.

Hon. A. Meighen, opposition leader, asked if this motion was based on a report of the committee now before the house. If not, the motion was not in order.

Mr. Kay replied that the motion was for the purpose of obtaining Mr. McCoig as a witness before the agriculture committee.

Hon. T. A. Crerar thought the objection to the motion should be withdrawn. He understood that Mr. McCoig was required to give evidence in regard to the standardization of repair parts of agricultural machinery. He was willing to testify.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, rising to a point of order, claimed that the subject matter of the resolution had been discussed in committee, and that a report should have been presented before the motion was made.

Speaker Lemieux ruled that the point of order was well taken, and the motion stood over until a report can be presented.

REPORTS GRAIN SEEDING COMPLETED AT MITCHELL

States Land Was in Excellent Condition For Putting in the Seed.

Special to London Advertiser.

MITCHELL, May 17.—The sowing of spring grain in this section has been completed. The land on the whole was in excellent condition for putting in the seed, and grains are coming up nicely, although rain is badly needed. Fall wheat is looking well, and farmers are now busy preparing ground for planting potatoes and the sowing of sugar beets and mangel seed. According to the blossoming on pear, plum, cherry and apple trees, there will be bumper crops of these kinds of fruit.

BAND TO ATTEND KIWANIAN CAMP

Quebec Organization Has Accepted Invitation To Join Local Campers.

SENATOR TO SPEAK HERE

Sir George Foster Will Address Luncheon Friday On League of Nations.

The Kiwanis Club of this city has received word from the band of the Boys' Farm and Training School at Shawbridge, that their invitation to spend a week at the Kiwanian camp for the underprivileged boy, which the Kiwanians hold each summer on the Thames, five miles from the city, from July 18 to August 18, has been gratefully accepted.

About 150 boys attend the camp from London, Kitchener, Galt, West Toronto, Kingston, St. Thomas and Peterborough, the entire expense being borne by the Kiwanis Club, who organize classes in scouting, nature study, swimming, physical drill, etc. The Boys' Farm Band, which consists of about thirty boys under the direction of Bandmaster N. E. Pollard, and has been in existence about two years, will be the guests of the Kiwanians, who will pay all their expenses in connection with the trip. They will leave Shawbridge on July 27, and on arrival at London the following morning will be entertained to luncheon by the Kiwanis Club, and, after a brief band concert, will proceed in automobiles to the camp. It is hoped on the return journey the boys will spend a day in Toronto and give a band concert at the Ontario Industrial School at Mimico, near the city, while it is probable the Toronto Kiwanians will also entertain the boys during their visit.

Sir George Foster, one of the outstanding public speakers in the Dominion, will address the Kiwanians at their weekly luncheon at the Teacumseh House Friday noon. His subject will be "The League of Nations." The booster for this week is Kiwanian Charles B. Laur of the Edward Burns Company of Toronto. The new members for the week are Cy Edy of the Somerville Box Company and the proposed new members are J. Gordon Thompson, manager of the Canadian Vulcanizer and Equipment Company; Arthur A. Harrison, undertaker; Joseph Stone, sales manager of the McCormick Manufacturing Company; William Roome of the customs department; and Leslie March of the London and Port Stanley Railway.

The Mendelssohn Glee Club of St. Thomas, under the direction of George Carrie, will stage a concert in the Patricia Theatre this evening under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club.

BABE FALLS TWO STORIES, UNHURT

DETROIT, May 17.—A 2-story drop with a concrete walk as an alighting place means nothing to Edward Budd, 10 months old, milk-fed czar of 123 Duffield street.

Edward's mother, Mrs. Della Budd, left him in his cradle on the second floor Wednesday.

Edward went adventuring. He crawled from his cradle to his mother's bed, across that to the open window. Then Mrs. Budd heard a man-sized howl outside.

She found Edward sitting up on the walk bawling a badly-soiled nightshirt.

Half-dressed receiving hospital surgeons examined him minutely. They could not find not even a scratch.

Gardiner, minister of highways, will seek re-election in Rosthern, and Hon. J. H. Ulrich is seeking election in Qu'Appelle. Both were recently elevated to cabinet rank.

Losing Your Vitality

THIS CONDITION OFTEN FOLLOWS ACUTE DISEASES.

Debility is a loss of vitality not affecting any one part of the body, but the system generally. When debility follows acute diseases, convalescence is slow and one's strength does not return as it should. An attack of grip or influenza often persists for months. The same condition often follows an attack of pneumonia, fever or other acute diseases. Everybody recognizes that the remedy for debility is to build up the blood, because the blood goes to every part of the body and any improvement in its condition is quickly felt throughout the system.

In the cases of simple anaemia, or debility following acute diseases, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be found beneficial, because they enrich the blood and through the blood strengthen the nerves. This was proved in the case of Mrs. J. A. McNeil, Bass River, N. S., who says: "My daughter, Beatrice, was taken down with pneumonia, and following this did not seem to gain strength. She still continued taking the doctor's medicine, but I could not see that she was gaining, and I decided to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before she had finished a box there was some signs of improvement, and she continued the use of the pills until she was able to go around again the picture of good health. I now always advise mothers with growing girls to give them these pills."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.—Adv.

ASKS $50,000 IN ACTION FOR LIBEL

Florida Man Claims Damages From Toronto Jeweler For Arrest.

TORONTO, May 17.—Before Mr. Justice Lennox and an assize jury, Dewitt C. Ellwood of Dade County, opened suit this morning for $50,000 damages for libel from Abraham Rosenthal, the Toronto jeweler whose shop on King street west was sensationally robbed two years ago, and Edward Crowe, his clerk.

Abraham Rosenthal was beaten up and robbed, bound and gagged in his store on June 18, 1929, at supper time. The thieves stole about $50,000 worth of diamonds.

At 6:30 in the evening a man went into the store just as Rosenthal was about to lock up for the night. The prospective customer was dressed as a United States Salvation Army officer, and had called several times during the month to make small purchases.

He seized Rosenthal by the throat and threw him on the floor. Just then two confederates entered. Rosenthal was then bound, gagged and tied to a chair and thrown in the cellar. The safe, which was open, was then robbed of diamonds.

According to plaintiff's statement of claim, Edward Crowe appeared before E. J. Starling, acting chief of police in Miami, Fla., and Sergt. of Detectives John W. Bishop, and maliciously and falsely charged that Ellwood had robbed Rosenthal of $50,000 in jewelry, diamonds, etc., and being armed had assaulted Rosenthal, the result of this false charge being that he was arrested there and kept in confinement for three days.

Testifying today, Ellwood stated that he had attended a lawn social at Niagara Falls, Ont., on the night in question, and produced a witness in the afternoon to establish this alibi. He donned the Salvation Army cap and tunic, but they were too small for him. He had tried to sue Rosenthal, he stated, through the United States courts on two occasions, but the suit had not gone through.

A $150,000 deal in Cleveland, pending at the time of his arrest, had fallen through, said Ellwood, and besides the doubts as to his honesty expressed by some persons, a Miami newspaper had said some nasty things about him. His legal fees and expenses so far had also totalled some $6,000.

Brought back to Toronto, Ellwood had been present in police headquarters when Rosenthal came in and had failed to identify him. When Crowe had identified a police reporter as one of the robbers Ellwood was released. Much of the time this afternoon was taken up in reading evidence given at the hearing in Florida. The case is proceeding.

FOUR DIE IN NIGHT FIGHTS IN BELFAST

Police and Soldiers Battle With Gunmen Until Day Dawns.

Belfast, May 18.—A wild night of firing in the Marrowbone district of Belfast, with police and soldiers battling gunmen, was followed by further shooting this morning as the working people went on their way to the shops. At least four men are dead as a result of these disorders, and several others wounded, some seriously.

The most notable disturbance was that of the early morning when a concerted attack was made upon the Musgrave street police barracks. Seven men dressed in police uniforms knocked at the front gate at 3:45 o'clock. When the guard asked, "who's there?" the reply came, "police on duty." The gate was opened and the party entered. The invaders closed the door and ordered the guards to throw their hands up.

Two of the police showed fight and were wounded by members of the attacking party, who rushed upstairs to a room in which arms were stored, firing at the guard on duty. Help came at this juncture, however, from special constables outside the barracks, and the raiders fled over the walls at the rear of the building.

Constable Collins, who was injured in the fighting, died this morning. The condition of Constable McKeown, the other defender wounded, is not serious.

Two men sitting on the top deck of a tramcar were shot dead from behind by two others as the car was nearing the center of the city this morning. The assassins dashed down the stairs and escaped into a side street. The victims have not been identified.

William McNight was shot in the abdomen while on his way to work, and is in a critical condition. Robert Beattie was wounded in the arm.

WARNS AGAINST BOGUS STOCKS

Kenneth Barnard Urges Need of Better Business Commission in London.

Cites Case of Toledo, Where $750,000 Flotation Sold in 21 Days.

After listening to an address by Kenneth Barnard, secretary of the Better Business Commission of Toledo, Ohio, on the methods employed by salesmen and promoters in selling fake stocks, members of the London Chamber of Commerce and London Advertising and Sales Club approved of a motion by U. A. Buchner, and seconded by W. C. Benson, that the C. of C. and the Ad Club should take steps toward the formation of a Better Business Commission for London, to which citizens and others could write for opinions free of charge on stocks being peddled throughout the district.

James Gray, chairman of the joint meeting of C. of C. and Ad Club, at the gathering held in the Tecumseh Hotel Wednesday night, stated that members of the C. of C. and Ad Club were seriously concerned at the inroads being made in London by fake stock-selling concerns.

Mr. Barnard gave a short history of the better business commissions in the United States. He stated that it was practically impossible to do business these days without advertising, which he characterized as the greatest business-pulling force of the age.

Began in Minneapolis.
The business commission movement had started in Minneapolis, and at the present time there were 36 commissions in the States.

Confidence is Essential.
"Confidence is more precious than gold," stated Mr. Barnard. "It is the corner-stone and foundation of all business. Better business commissions are enhancing, protecting and promoting confidence."

The speaker dwelt on the prevailing instinct in people to get rich, which meant that when the silver-tongued and oily promoter came into the neighborhood he was building on the foundation of what every man wanted.

"In Toledo last year three million dollars were lost forever through fake stock promotion," said Mr. Barnard. "It doesn't mean that this would have all gone into the hands of a few speculators, but it means that each branch of business would have had its share of capital that went down the sewer of economic waste, never to return. When some promoters come into the community and bleed it of its capital, that community has lost some of its life chance to make money. All the stock

To Sift Claim That Orford Farmer Lived in Shack With Ambrose Small

CHATHAM, May 17.—In order to have an interview with the Orford Township farmer who, in a letter to the provincial police, claimed he had recently been living in a shack with the missing theatre magnate, Ambrose J. Small, High Constable George Peters left today for the home of Robert Black, the writer of the letter.

Black is known in Orford Township. It is a serious thing we have to consider.

Urges Investigation.

"Before you invest, investigate," is the slogan in many cities today. Mr. Barnard told of the "one-call system" where a salesman insists that the prospect make up his mind immediately as he won't have time to call again, etc., with the best thing on the market.

"I don't know how you are in London, but I have been told of money that has gone down the sewer here. Are you going to sit still and let those fellows cut into the life blood of your city?" demanded Mr. Barnard, who went on to tell of some concrete cases of fraud in the United States.

Mr. Barnard outlined some of the stock methods used by clever promoters. There was never a successful promoter who wasn't a good fellow, stopped at the best hotel, sympathetic, and a friend of the widows and orphans. They were all top-notchers, as far as outward appearance went.

"When he gets in town he hooks up with some one of undoubted integrity," said Mr. Barnard. "Sometimes a preacher, a politician, or even Y. M. C. A. workers, and in nine cases out of ten, this somebody is absolutely innocent and gets on the board of directors. In Toledo, after the war, $750,000 worth of stock was sold in 21 days and people lined up to buy it."

"After a time when people become suspicious, the promoter will point to a factory he has built or rented. These factories have been described as monuments of fraud," continued Mr. Barnard.

"Then there is the underwriting agreement and the export agreements made by firms never heard of who agree to take the entire output of the factory for a year. Some way or other these contracts become cancelled."

Overlooks Failures.
"The printed letter tells you of the outstanding success made by a few firms, but does not mention the thousands of failures," continued the speaker.

"When told that the investor's banker does not approve of the proposition, he will tell you that it is only natural. The banker wants your money at four per cent, and doesn't want to lose it."

"The fake promoter will tell you that his organization has not gone after the big men of the city because it wants to see little fellows get a ship, but Peters has not yet been able to locate his farm exactly. He has got in touch, however, with County Warden J. Ward, asking him to find out exactly where Black lives. When he reaches Orford he will sift the clue to the bottom.

Peters is acting on instructions from Toronto, which require him to make every inquiry and overlook nothing that might be of value in the search for Small.

could have been disposed of to the rich men, but the workman must have his chance, etc.

"I really believe that all of us are standing on the threshold of a new commercial era," declared Mr. Barnard. "Salesmanship is again the need of a re-awakened world, and no salesman will pay better than confidence."

Raps "Dream Castles."
"When commercial truth becomes a fact, and not an ideal, and when promoters sell real assets instead of dream castles, prosperity will become a real fact. Truth will have supplanted the lie in business," concluded Mr. Barnard.

In reply to a question Mr. Barnard stated that one of the quickest ways to knock down a fake promoter was to ask for a financial statement. Nine times out of ten he would not give one, and if he did, would crucify himself with it.

W. R. Vendall gave a short history of the vigilance movement in London, and advocated a better business commission as did Major T. J. Murphy, K.C.

President George Clark of the Ad Club promised hearty co-operation on behalf of the members of the club in helping out such a commission in London.

DEMANDS COST SHEETS OF FIRM

STELLARTON, N.S., May 17.—(By Canadian Press).—A written demand by J. B. McLachlan, secretary district No. 36, United Mine Workers of America, that the cost sheets of the British Empire Steel Corporation, be submitted to the board and made public and the presentation of figures by Alex. MacNeil, representing the British Empire Steel Corporation, showing that certain Cape Breton mine employees had earned from $1,200 to $2,500 in 1921, featured the opening session here today of the initial sitting of the Scott conciliation board on the mainland of Nova Scotia.

Mr. McLachlan in making his demand quotes Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King as saying in the House of Commons that a conciliation board appointed under the industrial disputes act had the power of a royal commission to make a full investigation of the matters under inquiry.

ANOTHER INDIAN ISSUE SETTLED

Land To Be Returned To Heirs of Original Owners.

Receives Word From Ottawa That Appeal Has Been Sustained.

Special to London Advertiser.
BRANTFORD, May 17.—Another Indian question has been settled, according to Alfred S. Jones, K.C., who is acting as counsel for S. E. Yardow, Joseph C. Isaacs, Wilson Butler, Mrs. Hannah Jacobs and Jacob General.

It appears that the Ontario government in 1833 erected a gristmill on the Six Nations Reserve for the benefit of the Indians. The water was dammed up, and as a result of this portions of the adjacent land were flooded and compensation was paid to the owners of the land for their loss. Later the mill was abandoned, the dam opened, the land dried, and the dam became dry again, and the Indian council ruled that the compensation paid to the owners of the flooded lands was really the purchase money for the lands, and that the lands now belonged to the Indian council.

The heirs of the original owners asserted that the compensation was paid for the damage done only, and that the titles of the said land still remained in the hands of the original owners, and their heirs.

In spite of the protests of the latter, the Indian council assumed to sell the lands to other parties. All these transactions are now set aside by the ruling just made, and the land is declared not to have passed from the hands of the original owners and those claiming under them. It is stated that the land is a very large tract, and the heirs of the owners were very wrathful with the Indian council over the action it took in the matter.

Mr. Jones states that he has received the official word from Ottawa this morning that the appeal of his clients has been sustained. As a result those who have purchased from the council will be obliged to vacate the land thus acquired, and will be entitled to receive back from the council the purchase money paid.

EXPECTS BILL TO BAR NEW RADIALS

TORONTO, May 17.—It simply makes it impossible for municipalities to go on with radials; there is no doubt about that," said Mayor Maguire, president of the Hydro Radial Association, when asked for his opinion of the radial legislation introduced in the house yesterday by Premier Drury.

"Municipalities can't build under that legislation. I don't know whether that is Mr. Drury's purpose or not, but that will be the result."

HISTORICAL BODY ELECTS OFFICERS

At the annual meeting of the London and Middlesex Historical Society, held in the public library building Tuesday night, officers were elected as follows: Honorary president, Mr. H. Macklin; president, Principal John Dearness; vice-presidents, Major T. J. Murphy and Miss S. Macklin; secretary, Miss Z. Fawkes; treasurer, Dr. J. D. Barnett; curator, Dr. S. Woolverton. Committees were appointed to provide a program for next year, and also to add to the membership of the society. The new president was appointed as a delegate to represent the society at the annual meeting of the Ontario Historical Society next month.

CREDITORS GET 7 CENTS ON DOLLAR

MONTREAL, May 17.—Creditors of the defunct brokerage house of E. H. Clarke & Co., which operated in Montreal, Toronto and New York, will receive scarcely 7 cents on the dollar, according to recent developments in the liquidation proceedings. Montreal liabilities aggregated about $15,000, as compared with assets of not more than $600 in securities and some office furniture. The sale of the latter yielded $800, but at least $500 will be required for the burial ceremonies.

PLAN FORESTRY ESSAY CONTEST

Directors of Canadian Association Offer Prizes For School Children.

Three Cash Awards To Be Made in Each of Nine Provinces.

The Canadian Forestry Association announces a prize essay competition for the school children of Canada whereby rewards of $25, $15 and $10 will be given in each of the nine provinces to those writing the most intelligent essays dealing with some phase of forestry or tree-planting based upon local conditions. The object of the competition is to stimulate study and inquiry as to the forest resources of Canada and their protection against the devastation of fire; the planting of trees on urban streets; the establishing and improving of farm woodlots, and the developing of tree-planting on the bare prairies.

tion will be sent to every school teacher in the Dominion, and replies should be in the hands of the Canadian Forestry Association, Ottawa, not later than Nov. 1.

The schoolboy or girl living in the village, town or city, far removed from forest, is asked to tell of the importance of shade trees along the streets and in the parks, the service they render in human betterment and what species have been found to thrive best in the particular community.

Children living in a community close to the forest or where wood-using industries such as lumber or pulp and paper mills are located, are asked to describe the value of the forest as a source of employment.

and the great importance of preventing forest fires.

The child living on a farm is asked to tell about the use of wood in the running of a Canadian farm with answers to a series of questions regarding the woodlots or bushlots in the district, whether they are better or poorer than twenty years ago, and how a thriving woodlot on a farm may be developed.

For the child living on the prairie, the task is given of describing any shelter belts of trees about local farms and their beneficial effect in stopping the drifting of the soil, saving the crops from being blown out by gales. In these prairie essays also some attention will be given to the value of trees in beautifying home surroundings.

Making or Losing.

A CONTEST that was practical in that it tried to reveal real conditions was carried on by the Junior Farmers last year, under the auspices of agricultural representatives. Costs and records were kept, the idea being to show how a profit could be made, or if it was not made, to find out why. In all 284 young men entered these contests, the number indicating that the scope of the contest would be quite general.

The season of 1921 was not a favorable one, but it is a good thing to have a young farmer keeping his records and getting a knowledge of actual costs in off seasons. There is a tendency when things are going well to take too much for granted, and to run business on the "let-it-slide" idea. When things are poor, then it is that we start to find out where the trouble lies and what can be done about it.

Certain definite standards were set up in the way of prices to be charged for work, material and time. The following list shows the most important of these:

Man labor to be reckoned at 30 cents per hour.

Horse labor to be reckoned at 15 cents per hour.

Barnyard manure applied to this crop at $1 per ton or two-horse load.

Barnyard manure applied to previous crop at 50 cents per ton or two-horse load.

Commercial fertilizer applied to this crop at one-half of cost price.

Rent of land 8 per cent of the selling value of the land, this to be figured by the representative and the Junior Farmers' Improvement Association.

Plowing, $4 per acre. This is figured on the basis of hiring a man and a team at the rate of $6 per ten-hour day.

Take the acre crops of oats, which for the purpose of a working basis, are placed at 45 cents per bushel, and some of the results show as follows, the numbers in the table indicating the names in the list:

1. CECIL LUTHER, Naprean.	2. HENRI DUPONT, Curran.	3. LLOYD HARPER, Paisley.	4. HAROLD E. KING, Canington.	5. L. A. BAKER, Lambeth.	6. MELVILLE F. FISHER, Dryden.	7. J. C. THOMPSON, Beamsville.	8. C. C. NESBITT, Mooretown.	9. "P" shows profit, and "L" loss.
---------------------------	--------------------------	---------------------------	-------------------------------	--------------------------	--------------------------------	--------------------------------	------------------------------	------------------------------------

Yield	Value	Cost	Profit or Loss
1. 61	$27.45	$26.92	$1.43P
2. 40	18.00	19.05	1.05L
3. 34.5	15.57	16.73	1.16L
4. 45.5	19.57	21.58	2.01L
5. 45.15	20.32	24.08	3.76L
6. 29	9.00	13.19	4.19L
7. 32	14.40	19.69	5.29L
8. 25.5	12.55	18.30	5.75L

Records show, then, that in every case but one the crops were produced at a loss. A wide range is shown in the cost of production, one going as low as $13.19, while the highest was $26.02. It is also worthy of note that the case in which production costs were highest the yield was also the most satisfactory.

Potatoes, for purposes of tabulating results, were placed at $1 per bushel, and in every case show a profit, although the profit varies, as well as the production, to such a degree that the value of one acre in Wilsonville is placed at $131, against $617 for the same size tract in New Liskeard.

Here again production costs show a wide range, but the peculiar thing is that the farmer with the lowest production, 131 bushels to the acre, shows a production cost of $73.60, while the New Liskeard man who had 617 bushels to the acre gives his cost of production at $80.20.

In computing profit a departure was made from ordinary business practice, in that no allowance was made for overhead expenses, such as interest on investment, or machinery, nor charge for depreciation of any kind. Just why these items were omitted is hard to state. If a man buys a farm for $6,000 and pays $2,000 cash he certainly has to pay interest on the $4,000 remaining, and earn interest on the $2,000 already paid in.

These tests, as they have been carried on, have a very practical value. They are teaching the value of keeping records by which the most profitable crops can be established as facts.

Tainted Money.

A GREAT deal of talk is going the rounds of the press about the Ontario government accepting tainted money by taking a 5 per cent rake-off from the winnings at race tracks.

Apart altogether from the right or wrong of the question, does one ever stop to think how much tainted money we do gather in from various sources?

A man finds out where he can secure liquor, and he starts in to be a bootlegger, a law breaker. So we drag him to court and assess him something like $200 as a starter. And do we say that this money must not be taken by the province because it is tainted? No. Rather do we brag about the amount of money that is being taken in by way of fines.

And on another occasion our officials raid a place where gambling or cock-fighting is going on. A number of men are rounded up and fined $20 each. As the exchequer counts up the roll afterwards, do we find any hands held up to say that this is tainted money and must not pass into the public coffers?

As a matter of positive fact, there is a lot of tainted money passing into the strong box of municipalities and governments, the only difference being that taking a rake-off on horse race money may seem to carry with it a little more of deliberation in advance.

Mind Your Business.

ADVERTISER readers have been for some days answering the question as to what is a gentleman. Now one writer comes along and tells us that a gentleman is a man who minds his own business.

Now, just at the start, it might appear that such is a pretty fair answer, but hold a bit. Is it possible for a man to mind his own business? In theory it is all very nice and reads well, although when one starts to look about a bit it is not so easy.

Take the newspaper business, for instance. Is it possible for a man to mind his own business and stay in that calling? The reporter has to go out and pry into all sorts of places and conditions; he has to go where he is not wanted; he has to write things that people do not want to see in print; he has to jimmy his way through doors that are marked "private" and "keep out." If he simply went about minding his own business he would be fired in a week.

A lawyer meddles with the business and affairs of other people. He writes letters telling us to pay up our accounts or go to jail. He cross-examines people and makes them "fess up" to things they would much rather keep hidden. In fact, a lawyer's success hangs more or less on his ability to meddle into other people's business rather than minding his own affairs.

The doctor is called into the house to see the head of the place who is laid up with a bad head and a broken leg. The old man would like to have it appear that he fell down the cellar stairs, but before the session is over it is established that he was out joy-riding the night before, and is due for a session in police court as soon as he is able to make his appearance. So it is a case again of where the old man would much prefer that every person would mind their own business.

Most people like to have others mind their own business when things are becoming embarrassing. When there is praise to be given or bouquets to be tossed then they do not care how far the departure is made from a strict adherence to the "own business" plea. Or, to give it a plainer meaning, mind your own business means "don't meddle with my affairs when I want them kept secret."

Rights of Pedestrians.

WITH LONDON rapidly nearing the status of a large city in the matter of automobiles, the time might not be inopportune to sit down and ponder a little over our traffic regulations.

In raising this question the point in mind is the controlling of traffic on the main corners and the method employed in doing so.

It may surprise some of the city officials to know that there are many ratepayers who believe that the traffic officers are on duty at the main corners just to keep autos from colliding and causing heavy loss to their owners. Such a belief prevails in at least some quarters.

A few days ago a woman visitor to the city remarked that if she stayed here long she would be killed by an auto owing to the traffic methods. That is another viewpoint.

The gist of the matter is that the traffic officers see only the autos and street cars—vehicles if you will. They pay little attention to pedestrian traffic. These poor unfortunate can dodge, jump and run, perish if need be, as they see fit.

Sometimes on standing on the corner one gets the idea that the officer on duty would like to see a little speed on the crossways, as this is the only explanation that can be thought of to justify signalling to a car 100 or 150 feet from the crossing.

In most centres traffic halts one way while the other is open. Thus, pedestrian traffic moves with the vehicular and has not to dodge and run. Here the officers keep them coming all ways at once. It was this fact that caused the woman visitor to express a fear that she would be killed.

The point to remember is that there are still a few unfortunate who must walk.

LITTLE 'TISERS

Waterloo and Kitchener are two or three miles apart, but now that Kitchener has adopted daylight time there is another hour between them.

Most people when they start to shove the old lawn mower over the hay lot find out that late fall they ran into a nail.

Brantford Expositor: "Everybody has a day but father." Not so fast. Father has a few days and a few nights, and perhaps he's not very anxious for people to be celebrating him, as he can attend to that famously for himself.

It is now possible to get 10,000 Austrian kronen for a dollar. This sounds like a joke, and it is—but it is a serious and a grave joke, and shows that the rest of the world is not going to get down to real business again before these financially sick countries of Europe get put on their feet again.

It was poor news that the Baptist denomination received in the announcement of the retirement of CHANCELLOR MCCRIMMON of McMaster University, on account of failing health. His services will not be lost entirely, as he will take up lesser work in this institution later on. He is probably the outstanding figure in the Baptist denomination today, and has proved, both at Woodstock and McMaster, a tower of strength and a safe counsellor in all times and under all conditions.

EARLY DAYS IN WILLIAMS

By J. B. McLACHLAN, 322 High Park Ave., Toronto.

THERE were several gristing mills driven by water power on the Sauble within the boundary of the township. One at Nairn (Miller McIntosh's) was among the first to be erected there. Further down the stream there was a mill owned by a Mr. Bartlett, and the other by a Mr. Henry Saul. They kept each other poor, contesting in the courts the right to the water power. Then lower down the river "Rules" ran another mill, near where the Sauble takes a turn to the north. There is a dam near the same place now, creating electric power for Arkona and vicinity.

Further down the stream there was a woolen mill owned by a Mr. Austin, in a line with the 10th concession westward. I remember two of my brothers and myself taking our wool there one season to get carded, carrying the same a distance of about ten miles. One of Mr. Norman Lamont's daughters spun the same into yarn, and old James Watson, a neighbor, wove it into cloth, which finally found its way to cover the fast-growing bodies of our youngsters. Let the boys of today look back at this picture and smile. A few years ago, being in Michigan, I met Mr. Austin, still hale and hearty, and living in Sanilac County, in that state. Later still a Mr. McLean built a flour mill on Glasgow street, but for some reason was not a success. I fancy the current of the Sauble was too sluggish at that part to develop power enough for the purpose of a mill. However, these and others of the same kind have gone with the past, making way for other motive powers.

In the early days of this country, cattle, young and old, as well as pigs, roamed the wood for food from early spring until late in autumn and strapped around the neck of the leader hung a bell, by the sound of which each settler knew his own, which generally kept together. Even in the rearing of cattle the pioneer had his losses and his troubles. Many were lost in the spring, venturing too near the margin of some boggy swamp or stream in quest of food, which generally grew most luxuriantly in such places, and, sinking in the quagmire, they would be unable to extricate themselves, and die in the struggle before they were found. Thus many valuable animals were lost by the too often struggling pioneer, as well as the prospective increase of his flock.

Another fact may not be known to some of your readers, namely, that the cattle followed the bushmen and ate the twigs of the trees, and in many cases this constituted their main food in winter, as the grass and wild vegetation died in summer, and they came through the season in fairly good condition.

Occasionally an animal was accidentally killed by getting in the way of the falling timber. One of our neighbors suffered the loss of a cow in that way, and being an odd and innocent person, my brothers and I contrived how we might have some sport out of this man's misfortune, so going into the house at intervals we each would ask John how it happened, and so we managed to get several rehearsals of the occurrence in this vivid picture.

"William and I were chopping down tree, and then Bessie Cow went under it and fell her on the head, knocked her down dead, never rise again."

Murray was a disease which attacked cattle in the days and when attacked, rarely survived. Various causes had been assigned to account for its prevalence, the consensus of opinion being that it was caused by eating some weed, and this appeared to have been the cause, as it abated the more cattle were confined in pasture fields. It was not an uncommon thing for cattle, but particularly pigs, to stay away and not having been seen for months, would in many cases have grown out of the knowledge even of their owner. Sometimes drovers would allow cattle, not their own, to mingle with the drove, and so lost sight of entirely.

SOMETIMES pigs would mix with others, and so one settler might have another settler's pigs, and would report the fact. Sometimes they would not report, and in process of time claim them as their own.

READ YOUR CHARACTER

By Digby Phillips.

NO. 217—PERSUADING LONG-HEADS.

The value of character in business is inestimable. Its measure is only the measure of the accuracy of your own eyes and mental observations. But it is particularly valuable to the salesman, because so much of his work lies in meeting and establishing business relations with new customers and prospects. His time for study and observation of the individual is limited, and it is just in the speed with which fairly accurate judgment can be formed that character is valuable to him.

Suppose, for instance, that you have something to sell to a man who has a long head. You may know your goods thoroughly. You may have a complete grasp of your subject. But do you know how to handle the man? You have never met him before. You have no time to waste, and neither has he. Should you appeal to his sense of economy, or his greed; his generosity, his self-interest, or his imagination? Just how are you going to reach the point of contact by the quickest route?

With the long-headed man the answer is easy. You are going to reach your point of contact by establishing a friendship with him. With some types of men and women friendship counts for nothing in business. With the long-headed man it counts for a great deal, and you will make a big mistake if you do not cultivate it. For the rest, you can take it for granted that he is intellectual, and you will rely for your ease as to how best to capitalize his friendship by observing his other characteristics, whether he is dark or light, fat or square, a convex or a concave type, etc., as explained in previous articles.

LEARN A WORD EVERY DAY

TODAY'S word is PERSONAGE.

It's pronounced — pur-sun-aj, with accent on the first syllable.

It means—more than the mere word "person" implying a person of note, distinction, importance.

It comes from—English—"person," the origin of which is uncertain, though possibly from Latin, "persona," a mask.

It's used like this—"A number of influential personages are mentioned in connection with the charges of war grafting recently made in France."

The BOOKSHELF

BEST LAID SCHEMES. By Meredith Nicholson. Charles Scribner's Sons, Publishers, New York. $1.50.

NO person, not even a constitutional grouch with a mule-like propensity for kicking, could possibly complain of any lack of variety in Meredith Nicholson's new volume.

The six short stories it contains differ in length, type and atmosphere—even if most of them are more or less concerned with that admirable and generous, if somewhat adventurously-inclined banker, Webster G. Burgess, president of the White River National.

Mr. Burgess himself was not only a philanthropic gentleman with a very special weakness for ex-convicts, but likewise a model husband, ready, even anxious, to assist his wife in her polite social warfare, as, indeed, he should have been, after she had so far obliged him as to become accustomed to entertaining presumably reformed burglars.

This willingness to come to her aid in difficult moments he proved, conclusively and successfully, in the little matter of the luncheon tendered to the delegation from Illinois; though it must be admitted that the actual work was done by that ingenious and adaptable young man whom his fellow-workers at the bank had nicknamed "Wrong Number."

But it is with the ingenuity, not of a young man, nor even of Mr. Burgess himself, but of a very clever young woman that the opening story, "The Business of Susan," has to do.

Susan had been christened Susie Parker; she was 26, and a librarian. Wherefore it is not merely easy to see, but quite positively and aggressively obvious, why she realized that the awful fate of being known as Miss Susan threatened her—and not from afar off, either.

But Fate had a kindly interest in Susan, sometimes!—and it provided this particular bearer of the name with an opportunity which she not merely seized, but molded and developed with a really extraordinary skill, to the great displeasure of Mrs. Burgess, and the still greater displeasure of Mrs. Burgess's sister.

"The Third Man" takes up our friend Webster G. Burgess again, and relates how he helped to right a wrong. But the story lacks plausibility, and is the poorest in the poorest in the volume, which closes with the tale of "Wrong Number," already mentioned.

It is on the whole a fairly entertaining collection of short stories of various popular magazine types.

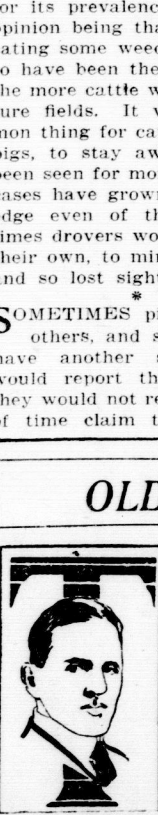

Once a farmer on the island, a friend of the writer, lost sight of five pigs, the fall weather came and went, and no tidings of the missing ones. He advertised, he inquired, he went to farmers around for some distance. By chance he happened to go to one of his nearest neighbors, and looking at his pigs, he finally said five that did not seem to be missing with the rest. He asked if those pigs were his, and was assured in the affirmative, but still continued his observations. At last he ventured to say that those pigs were the ones he was looking for, and the neighbor as strongly protesting that they were in their own yard. My friend proposed the following test: That the man at home should go towards the barn and call his hog, while my friend would go to the gate leading to the road and call his, which they did, and when McLeish called "Muc, Muc," the five bounded to the gate which he opened, and went home without any more ado, my friend satisfied with his stratagem, "Muc" being the Gaelic for "hog," and was his method of calling them at home.

ANGUS MACDONALD emigrated from Northwest Inverness Shire to Williams in the early forties, and settled on the north side of the Sauble near Mr. Daniel Waters, to whom reference has already been made. His son Gillespie, associating with the Waters boy, learned to talk English quite fluently. I may say that Mr. Waters came from Galenness Shire and did not talk Gaelic. Gillespie, much to the amusement of the boys of his own age, would mount a stump and repeat large portions of Rev. Lachlan McPherson's sermons. The elder Macdonald wrote in Gaelic glowing letters to the folks at home, among other things he told them that he sometimes had as many as 100 niggers working for him, and that Gillespie could drive the cattle home any night with a golden rod. Many, on the strength of his tales, were induced to come out and share in the "land flowing with milk and honey" for themselves. Allow me here to explain the term "nigger." A tree of ordinary dimensions is cut down and trimmed of the branches, then in order to be easily handled in burning would be cut in say 20-foot lengths, but instead of doing so with the axe or saw, a notch was made in the place required to be cut, and a fire kindled in each place and a few cross-sticks kept burning. In the process of time it would burn the log through. These cuts were termed "niggers," and a settler in clearing a few acres of land would find himself driving quite a number of niggers.

Gillespie, I hope, is still living on the 21st concession, where Mrs. McLachlan and myself were hospitably entertained a few years ago when in the old township.

DR. BISHOP'S ADVICE.

OLD-FASHIONED DOSING

HE old-fashioned mother who doses her child with bitter medicines for what she calls "worms" probably doesn't know that her patient can get real worms only by getting into the mouth and stomach particles of earth or dirt containing the tiny eggs of thread worms. If no such opportunity has been given, the little one is being treated for the wrong complaint.

In fact, few of the children whose mothers give them "worm medicine" have such an ailment. There are no symptoms of "worms." A coated tongue, white lines about the mouth, restlessness, heavy breath, picking at the nose, bright eyes, feverishness, nightmares and numerous other disturbances noted in children are not symptoms of worms. They are rather signs of acute intestinal indigestion, and a teaspoonful of soda in a little water will bring relief quicker than all the old-fashioned worm medicines.

The prevention of worms has nothing to do with the regulation of foods given the child. The only true prevention of worms is personal cleanliness.

Prince of Wales Permits Ontario Woman To "Snap" Him With Kodak

KINGSTON, Ont., May 17.—"You are from Kingston, aren't you?" With these words the Prince of Wales addressed Mrs. Margaret Ham, formerly of this city and Napanee, as she stood on April 31 inside the entrance to the Kanawha Hotel at Nikko to snap his royal highness.

Mrs. Ham, much surprised, admitted she was, and then the two entered into conversation, after which the prince posed for the picture, according to the Tokio Advertiser just to hand.

Mrs. Ham had tried on the previous day to get a snap of the prince, hoping it would turn out all right.
This gentleman was the prince's private secretary, Sir Godfrey Thomas, and he apparently told his royal highness of the lady and her wish.

general that the tax should not be put into force until July 31, and that in the meantime a stated case be submitted to the courts to find out whether the province had the power
to collect this tax.

He pointed out that if the associations went ahead and collected the tax, and it later turned out that the act is unconstitutional, there would be no way of paying the money
back to the rightful owners.

The attorney-general replied that he was absolutely convinced that the bill was founded on strong legal grounds, and there was no need of delay.

The government speakers made it clear that the object was to have it in force when Woodbine
opens on Saturday.

Charges Faith Broken.
Although Hon. G. S. Henry, who
first raised the point, went no further than to say the government's action "has, to say the least, the appearance of sharp practice," Mr.
Dewar declared: "It is the grossest breach of faith which any government has ever been guilty of."

New Vote Demanded.
A demand was made for a new
vote in view of the alleged misunderstanding, but Hon. Mr. Parliament ruled that the bill had actually received third reading, and that he found nothing in the rules to say that unanimous consent was necessary.

At the afternoon session the tax
on race-track winnings was attacked
on what he termed "sound, legal and constitutional grounds," by H. H.
Dewar. He contended that the findings of the courts indicated that the province had no power to pass this legislation, as race-track gambling
or betting was within the jurisdiction of the federal government. He prophesied that the federal authorities would step in and prevent provincial officers closing up a race track if the jockey club refused to collect this tax.

More Delay Urged.
Major J. C. Tolmie, Windsor,
Charles McCrea, Sudbury, and M. M.
MacBride, Brant, South, all advised delay until the constitutionality of the bill could more thoroughly be considered, while Sa. McClarke, Northumberland West, endorsed the tax, and thought it should go further.

The committee divided on the amendment moved by Mr. Dewar to strike out the clause providing for this tax, defeating the amendment.
Mr. Dewar urged upon the attorney-general that the tax should not be put into force until July 31, and that in the meantime a stated case be submitted to the courts to find out

whether the province had the power
to collect this tax.

He pointed out that if the associations went ahead and collected the
tax, and it later turned out that the act is unconstitutional, there would be no way of paying the money
back to the rightful owners.

The attorney-general replied that he was absolutely convinced that the bill was founded on strong legal grounds, and there was no need of
delay.

The government speakers
made it clear that the object was to have it in force when Woodbine
opens on Saturday.

Charges Faith Broken.
Although Hon. G. S. Henry, who
first raised the point, went no further than to say the government's action "has, to say the least, the appearance of sharp practice," Mr.
Dewar declared: "It is the grossest
breach of faith which any government has ever been guilty of."

New Vote Demanded.
A demand was made for a new
vote in view of the alleged misunderstanding, but Hon. Mr. Parliament ruled that the bill had actually received third reading, and that he found nothing in the rules to say
that unanimous consent was necessary.

At the afternoon session the tax
on race-track winnings was attacked
on what he termed "sound, legal and
constitutional grounds," by H. H.
Dewar. He contended that the findings of the courts indicated that the province had no power to pass this legislation, as race-track gambling
or betting was within the jurisdiction of the federal government. He prophesied that the federal authorities would step in and prevent provincial officers closing up a race
track if the jockey club refused to collect this tax.

DECLARES MORE WOMEN NEEDED AS LAWMAKERS

Lady Astor Addresses Members of Ontario Legislature.

LAUDS GREAT BRITAIN

Premier Drury Extends Welcome To Distinguished Woman.

TORONTO, May 17.—The galleries were crowded and most of the members in their seats when Lady Astor addressed the Ontario Legislature this afternoon, and as the first woman to be elected to the British House of Commons she urged that women were needed in the parliaments of the world.

Dressed in white and a green hat overspread by a plume of the same color, she apologized for appearing before the Legislature in that costume. She always wore plain black and white, "I always take great care never to shock them or lead them on by my costume," she said, referring to her fellow-Commoners.

Next to the state of Virginia and Plymouth, the English constituency for which she is a member, Canada is nearest to her heart, she said.
"When Virginians go straight, when they run true to form, they can be helpful citizens of any country."

That England should have elected to her Parliament a woman born in Virginia, brings home to America, she continued, how tolerant England is, and how big England is. Some persons view England's tolerance as a mark of weakness. It is a mistake to think England is weak.

An Unreconstructed Rebel.
"I am very keen of an Anglo-Saxon traditions," she said. "The world today needs more of Anglo-Saxon traditions. The countries of Europe should pattern after the United States following the Civil War. She termed herself 'an unreconstructed rebel,' but the South realized it must co-operate with the North, and had the North been too vindictive there would not have been any United States of America today.
The countries of Europe should appreciate that fact."

"The prime minister of Britain is doing his best," she went on, "but I wish America was with them, America ought to be with them,
and America knows she ought to be with them."

She said she would never forget the fairness and justice with which she had been treated by the other members of the British House. She referred to the ancient prejudices they had to overcome, and she pointed out England's greatness was never greater than when a woman was ruler. She insisted that nearly everything worth while had come from Plymouth. The Scotch and Irish would not agree with that, but it was true.

She regretted that there were no women in Ontario's Parliament. The men need not be afraid to admit them. They have a faculty of knowing how far to go, and their presence would be an assistance to clean, honest governments and add to the dignity of all houses.

Women have a way of facing things directly. We will never be as good as you in some things, but we will fairly leave you behind in others. She referred particularly to the desire of women to look after the welfare of all children.

Welcomed by Premier.
Lady Astor spoke of the four and a half years she was among Canadian soldiers in the hospitals overseas, "where everyone wanted to help everyone else," she said, "for I do represent those men who were in my hospital, have a great responsibility. Fifty thousand Canadians gave up their lives, and that places a heavy responsibility on every legislator in Canada. We must carry on where they left off."

In welcoming Lady Astor, the premier remarked that this was comparatively a small parliament, but it was capable of stirring up as much trouble as any other parliament.
There were many women in Ontario situations if elected to the Legislature, and he thought the outlook was bright for women becoming members in the future.

Lady Astor is believed to be the first woman who ever addressed the Ontario Legislature.

VESUVIUS AGAIN
SHOWS ACTIVITY

NAPLES, May 17.—The volcano, Vesuvius, is in eruption with renewed violence, emitting large quantities of lava and clouds of dense vapor.

Professor Malladra, head of the Royal Observatory of Vesuvius, declares the present eruption will not endanger the surrounding territory.

Many Former Irish Constables To Settle Upon Ontario Farms

TORONTO, May 17.—Many of the men of the Irish constabulary, perhaps the finest body of police in the world, will settle on the farms of Ontario. Through the initiative of Hon. Manning Doherty, minister of agriculture, arrangements have been made with the British government so that the first contingent of 100 at least will come in a short time now.

"The British government has agreed to pay these men a lump sum of $2,500 in lieu of a large yearly pension," Mr. Doherty said today.

"In addition each constable will receive $100 a year for life. Out of the $2,500 lump sum the passage money, about $150, will be taken, and the remainder will be deposited with the department of agriculture."

WILL EXPLAIN AIM OF WORLD UNION

Sir George Foster To Speak
On League of Nations At Stratford.

Special to London Advertiser.

STRATFORD, May 17.—Sir George Foster will be here tomorrow night to give a lecture in the city hall on
"The League of Nations."

R. H. Myers, secretary of the public utilities commission, was married this afternoon to Mary Anett Hern.

Every indication points at present to the conclusion that Stratford is not to have an early addition to the public library as was anticipated by the board and citizens generally.

Some time ago a request was made by the local board to the Carnegie corporation asking for an increased grant for this purpose. The reply, which was read at the board meeting, stated that a further grant was impracticable "at present." This is considered a refusal.

Mrs. Alvin Schultz died here this morning after a short illness. She had been in the hospital, but was able to be about home again when she was taken seriously ill. Born near Harriston, she lived some years in Listowel, coming here two years ago. Besides her husband, she is survived by her father, John Ogram, Listowel; three sisters, Emily Ogram, Listowel; Mrs. C. H. Cochrane, Harrison; Mrs. J. Dyer, Durham, and one brother, Harry Ogram, in England.

That the residents of the towns and cities through which the local motorists will pass on their "hike" to Goderich, on June 2, are pleased with the idea is evident from the replies being received by W. Deacon, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

On Tuesday afternoon Mr. Deacon was in telephone communication with officials of all the towns and villages along the route. They are most enthusiastic and promise to give every assistance to make the outing a success.

World News CUT SHORT

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 17.—The Unitarian Church at Dabnitza, the pastor of which granted the divorce to Senator Hollis, recently declared illegal by the Bulgarian government, has been closed by the police at the request of the ministers of foreign affairs and religion.

PADUA, Italy, May 17.—The celebration of the 700th anniversary of the founding of Padua University was begun yesterday, King Victor Emmanuel attending the opening function, together with cabinet ministers, members of parliament and scholars. Representatives of universities in many countries are here for the ceremonies.

SHEFFIELD, England, May 17.—
Unemployed workmen, led by extremists who are said to have been the past few weeks, staged a determined attack upon the Jessop Company's plant. Mounted police were stoned by the demonstrators, and were obliged to retreat. The mob smashed a number of office windows, after which the police, being reinforced, charged repeatedly, and finally dispersed the crowd.

BRUSSELS, May 17.—The court of appeals has denied a new trial to Armand Jeanes, a Belgian, who is under sentence of death for acting as a German spy during the war.
Jeanes will now be put to death.

While he was convicted of responsibility for the shooting of many Belgian patriots during the period of German occupation, the prosecutor acknowledged that Jeanes had nothing to do with the betrayal of Edith Cavell, the English nurse, who was shot by the Germans.

The execution of Jeanes will be the first in Belgium since peace was declared.

LONDON, May 17.—The committee of the stock exchange confirmed today the resolution adopted May 10 repealing certain temporary regulations and emergency rules which have governed the conduct of business since the reopening of the stock exchange after a temporary closing at the outbreak of the war.

Beginning May 22 business will be conducted as nearly as possible along pre-war lines, fortnightly accounts being resumed, subject to certain restrictions. Contingencies will not be permitted in securities under the headings of British funds and colonial and provincial government securities. In view of the state of foreign exchange, dealings for foreign clients resident abroad will be allowed only for cash.

MEXICO CITY, May 17.—Thirteen persons were killed and more than 70 injured yesterday when a train carrying a holiday crowd was catapulted into a deep canyon near Santa Fe, a small village adjacent to the capital, after colliding with another car at the top of a hill. Most of the victims were women and children.

The car, filled with pleasure-seekers on their way to Desierto de los Leones, a popular resort near the capital, crashed head-on into a city bus. The collision did little damage, but the car sped backward down the incline, the brakes failing to hold. It left the rails at a sharp curve, and was hurled into the gully.

BERLIN, May 17.—Communism in Russia has foundered on the rock of the farmers' bloc, in the opinion of the Allgemeine Zeitung, the organ of Hugo Stinnes, which discovers in the peasants' fanaticism for the possession of property one of the primary, if not decisive, reasons for the Soviets' failure.

"The nature of the victory achieved by the Russian peasant in his demand for agrarian reforms cannot be overestimated in connection with its reflex effect upon all lines of economic activity in Russia," says the newspaper. "One of the immediate results will be to accord to the capitalistic element the position and privileges to which it is entitled."

"Its influence will also definitely assert itself in a gradual transition in political affairs, in that it will infuse politics with the democratic element now lacking, for the moujik, whose strength will deliver the initial blow against the Communist system, but who up to the present has kept aloof from politics, has now become fully conscious of its might, and will demand a representation in political and governmental affairs which will be commensurate with his influence in numerical strength."

"This means the definite end of the present political system and the final curtain on the complete fiasco of the greatest attempt yet made to transfer Communism from the realm of theories to the mundane world."

"The man I've got in mind to direct you in your first picture, Mrs. Lee, is Barry. You couldn't do better, but his salary's enormous. I'll give him a ring and find out for you."

"There's no hurry, Mr. Summerlad. Remember, Mr. Lontaine hasn't taken the first step toward forming a company yet."

"Well, but I'd hate to have you lose a chance. Barry's a wonder. Even Griffith takes a back seat when Barry Nolan picks up the megaphone."

Lontaine interposed a question of technical nature, and as Summerlad answered him at length, Lucinda's attention wandered.

She inclined toward the style in which Summerlad maintained himself. The bungalow, secluded in wide and well-kept grounds, might have served as the warm-weather retreat of a grand duke.

By merely turning her head she could look out through an open casement to a lawn where moonlight like liquid silver slept between mysterious, dense masses of purple shadow. The breath of the night was bland and fragrant. In Chicago the thermometer had shivered in the neighborhood of zero; New York, according to telegraphic news, was digging out from under a snowfall second only to that of its legendary blizzard.

"I want to put," Lucinda confessed, finding Summerlad's eyes upon her. "I am enslaved by California."

"I must make the most of these moments, then. Presently we'll both be busy; you in special far too busy to give many evenings like this."

"I'm not at all afraid of being doomed to ennui through any lack of ingenuity on your part."

"If I'm not mistaken, that's a lie."

"It's as you care to take it."

When it was time to return to the Alexandria, Summerlad insisted on driving them home himself.

Lucinda fell asleep that night to dream of courting a will-o'-the-wisp through a land whose painted illusion faded as she fled.

At the end of the week no more than the bare grin of the desert savage and implacable.

The room the Lontaines occupied in the Alexandria adjoined Lucinda's, and while she was lazing over breakfast Fanny tapped on the communicating door and drifted in with an airy nonchalance oddly at war with a problematical shadow that lurked in her eyes.

"My amiable husband," she announced, "has charged me to arrange for an audience at your convenience."

"As soon as you like," Lucinda laughed.

"This morning Harry has waked up with his poor dear head more than usually added with gorgeous schemes, and says he wants to consult you. What he really wants is your unconditional approval of everything he has to propose. So do be wise as well as kind."

Considered in the light of this warning, all that Lontaine had to say before her seemed almost disappointingly conservative.

"I've been thinking it over all night," he assured Lucinda seriously as she and Fanny settled to give him attention, "and it seems to me I ought to let you know more specifically what you're letting yourself in for, before I ask you to hold yourself pledged."

"That sounds suspiciously like preparation for letting me down easily."

"Please don't think that. There was a glint of alarm in Lontaine's look. "Never more enthusiastic than I am of your eventual success. But it's going to mean hard work for both of us."

"I shan't mind hard work," Lucinda replied. "As for disappointments, I don't expect much, so I can't be very hard hit if everything doesn't turn out as happily as one might wish."

"If that spirit won't win for us, nothing will," Lontaine declared. "Now for a tentative program. . . . Our first step, naturally, will be to incorporate. And since it seems to be the fashion on this side, and our company yet."

"It's as you care to take it."

When it was time to return to the Alexandria, Summerlad insisted on driving them home himself.

Lucinda fell asleep that night to dream of courting a will-o'-the-wisp through a land whose painted illusion faded as she fled.

At the end of the week no more than the bare grin of the desert savage and implacable.

VIII.

The room the Lontaines occupied in the Alexandria adjoined Lucinda's, and while she was lazing over breakfast Fanny tapped on the communicating door and drifted in with an airy nonchalance oddly at war with a problematical shadow that lurked in her eyes.

"My amiable husband," she announced, "has charged me to arrange for an audience at your convenience."

"As soon as you like," Lucinda laughed.

"This morning Harry has waked up with his poor dear head more than usually added with gorgeous schemes, and says he wants to consult you. What he really wants is your unconditional approval of everything he has to propose. So do be wise as well as kind."

Considered in the light of this warning, all that Lontaine had to say before her seemed almost disappointingly conservative.

"I've been thinking it over all night," he assured Lucinda seriously as she and Fanny settled to give him attention, "and it seems to me I ought to let you know more specifically what you're letting yourself in for, before I ask you to hold yourself pledged."

"That sounds suspiciously like preparation for letting me down easily."

"Please don't think that. There was a glint of alarm in Lontaine's look. "Never more enthusiastic than I am of your eventual success. But it's going to mean hard work for both of us."

"I shan't mind hard work," Lucinda replied. "As for disappointments, I don't expect much, so I can't be very hard hit if everything doesn't turn out as happily as one might wish."

"If that spirit won't win for us, nothing will," Lontaine declared. "Now for a tentative program. . . . Our first step, naturally, will be to incorporate. And since it seems to be the fashion on this side, and our

company yet."

Lontaine interposed a question of technical nature, and as Summerlad answered him at length, Lucinda's attention wandered.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN SALT PORK

ALTED and smoked meats and fish are always acceptable in the spring and summer months. Many housekeepers in the country are wholly dependent on cooked meats for use in hot weather.

Salt pork has solved the problem for more than one noonday dinner.

Crisp Salt Pork.
Cut the pork as in the preceding rule. Cover with boiling water and let stand five minutes. Drain and dip in flour. Put in a hot frying pan over a slow fire. Cook slowly to a golden brown on one side and the other. As the fat fries out in the spider pour it off. This makes the pork very crisp and sweet.

Salt Pork With Cream Gravy.
Eight slices salt pork, flour, pepper, 2 cups rich milk, 1 dessertspoon minced parsley.
Cut the slices of pork about one-fourth of an inch thick. If very salty pour boiling water over meat. Let stand five minutes and drain. Dip in flour and sprinkle with pepper. Fry in a hot frying pan over a slow fire. Cook slowly to a golden brown on one side and the other. As the fat fries out in the spider pour it off. This makes the pork very crisp and sweet.

Put the onion, peeled but unsliced, in the bottom of the baking dish. Add half the beans and half the carrots. Pour boiling water over salt pork. Scrape the rind and scorch in inch squares. Put pork on beans and carrots. Cover with remaining vegetables.

Add mustard, molasses and pepper to tomatoes. Pour over beans and add enough boiling water to cover the whole. Cover and bake three or four hours in a slow oven or fireless cooker. During the last hour of baking bring the pork to the top of the dish to brown. If the oven is hot when the dish is put in the beans will not lose their shape and become mushy. Reduce the heat as soon as the whole boils all over.

An extra sweeter, a heavy bathrobe or a flannel shirt at that moment is beyond price. Any one of all three.

It is true that if the camper is young and enthusiastic, these have probably been forced on him by stern maternal authority, but that will not detract from their welcome at one of life's darkest moments. The home office manages to function most efficiently upon occasion.

A PERFECT GENTLEMAN.
My conception of a perfect gentleman is not "merely" one who lifts his hat when passing a lady, or allows her to precede him on going into a building, although these everyday courtesies also go toward the making of a gentleman.

I think a gentleman is one who will not knowingly or deliberately wound another person's feelings by word or deed, who is as kind and polite at home as in public, who, when in public, gives a seat to elderly ladies as well as pretty girls, who, when conversing with others, does not interrupt or try to monopolize the conversation, who does not ridicule anyone who is not as well dressed as he.

This may be a wee bit exacting, but when discussing a "perfect" gentleman, exacting is necessary. C. M. R.

Radio Radiations

Amateurs are requested to make their queries as brief as possible to facilitate the publication and answering of the questions. Address your communications to the Radio Editor, The London Advertiser.

BY RADIO EDITOR.
MAKE a spider-web coil and simplify your radio receiving set. It's easy. If properly constructed it can be used instead of the crystal and secondary coils in the crystal receiver, or the variometers or variocoupler in the regenerative set.

Get a piece of heavy cardboard about 4-5 inches in diameter. Be sure that the sections are of an uneven number, spaced apart about 3-16 of an inch. The cardboard should be heavy enough not to bend.

Before winding, give the form a coat of shellac and bake in a warm oven—to take up shrinkage.

Wiring Simple.
The wire should be either No. 24 or 28 silk or cotton covered. Start winding at the center, about half an inch from the core. Bring the wire over one section and then under another. Then keep on going in and out.

Because of the difference in location and size of aerials it is impossible to tell the exact number of turns necessary for the individual set. It would be well to start off with 50 to 60 turns.

If this does not bring in any messages using a wave length longer than 200 meters, add a few more turns. If, on the other hand, you hear only long wave stations, take off a few.

The coils may be tapped about every 12 turns by simply making a small loop which will project from the coil itself until the winding is completed. Then these loops may be picked up and connected to the switch points by short pieces of flexible wire.

This tapping will cut down the receiving efficiency to some extent, but it gives finer variation on the different wave lengths.

For Larger Set.
In making the mountings for the spider web coils in the regenerative set, be sure to cut them all the same size. There will be three—one each for the primary, the secondary and the tickler.

Bore a small hole about the size of a lead pencil through the center of each. Mount on a thin shaft about nine inches long in such a way that the distances between the coils may be varied.

Since these coils are very inexpensive to construct, the real radio fan will find it of great interest to experiment with several sizes and forms of the spider-web arrangement.

RADIO PRIMER
VARIOCOUPLER—A coupler whose secondary is so constructed in relation to the primary as to rotate from a position parallel to the primary coil to one at right angles to it.

When the secondary coil is parallel to the primary, the variocoupler is said to be at its maximum magnitude of inductance. When the coils are at right angle to each other, no inductance is possible.

OFFICIALS OF AURA LEE AND MAITLAND CLUBS SUSPENDED

$2,000 TRANSACTION SUSPECTED BY A. A. U.

Rumors About Players of Aura Lee Club Investigated and They Are Given a Clean Sheet.

TORONTO, May 17.—The registration committee of the Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union tonight handed out an official statement announcing the suspension of officials of both the Aura Lee and the Maitland Athletic Clubs, as a result of an inquiry into a financial transaction involving $2,000. Rumors concerning certain players of the Aura Lee club were also investigated and found to be unfounded, and all the players are restored to good amateur standing.

The statement, in part, follows: "Investigation shows conclusively that some arrangement had been made between the Aura Lee and Maitland clubs. The statement, in part, follows: "It was proved that the Aura Lee club gave a check for $2,000 dated February 2, 1921, to the Maitland club. It was shown that the money was deposited in a trust on February 19, 1921, in a certain bank that in April of the same year (1921) the money was withdrawn and used. This without, apparently, the knowledge of the parties to the trust, and certainly without the knowledge or consent of the officers of the Maitland club."

"The registration committee's decision on this matter is as follows: 'That certain of the sum of $2,000 without the knowledge or consent of the club proper. That the statement to the Ontario Hockey Association does not disclose said payment to that body. That said $2,000 check was paid out of hockey receipts before the season was closed. Why? That no attempt appears to have been made to see that the money was used in manner suggested as reason for payment of same. That the Aura Lee club should ask the money to be returned or handed to the Maitland club, to whom the check was payable. That the officers of Maitland Club, viz., C. A. Canine, C. Coady, L. Griggs, have not satisfied the registration committee as to an agreement and understanding made with Aura Lee Club. That until they are able to satisfy the committee as to this and other matters, they are under suspension and all clubs in affiliation with the A. A. U. will be notified to this effect. Are Suspended. That as the Aura Lee officials, senior hockey section, have not given satisfactory reasons for the payment of $2,000 to the Maitland club, the president of the Aura Lee club and the hockey executive of the senior team are suspended—President J. Edmund Jones, Cam. Fraser, James Green, hockey executive. All affiliated clubs are to be notified to this effect. With reference to the charges that the players of the senior team had an understanding as to being given souvenirs at the end of this season, it was found that the charges had not been proven, and that the players be restored to good standing. Regarding Stewart Hogarth, the committee are pleased to put on record for him emphatic denial of anonymous statements about his refusal to turn out to practice in preparation for the second Granite game. Concerning up the evidence and the verdict the committee believe the public should be acquainted with the following: 'That the Aura Lee club evaded the spirit of the rule of the Ontario Hockey Association restricting membership in their association to permanently established clubs by handing over control of the senior O. H. A. club to three individuals, apparently responsible to no person and having the power to issue checks and order with all other matters without consulting the club proper or getting approval. That a trustee over a drew $2,000 for his own use for a year, according to the evidence. 'We confidently expect and hope to further this inquiry by new evidence, but submit our findings as presented to us and our decisions based on these findings.'"

STEEL SHAFT CLUB DRIVES ARE SHORT

MacDonald and Gow Find Hickory Has Best Power.

CHICAGO, May 17.—The trial of the steel-shafted golf club by the Western Golf Association was finished yesterday at the Edgewater Golf Club.

The tests were made after the United States Golf Association had barred the clubs, in conformity with British practice, as being either a mechanical contrivance or for not conforming to the usual form of golf clubs.

Yesterday's experiments consisted in having Bob MacDonald and Allan Gow, Chicago, professionals, and Chick Evans, former amateur and open champion, drive six balls each with steel-shafted clubs and then six more each with wooden-shafted implements. It was a sequel to an attempt a month ago to compare the shafts, a blizzard making that trial unsatisfactory.

MacDonald and Gow both got better distances with wooden-shafted clubs, and Evans probably would have done the same if he had used his own clubs instead of borrowing some. MacDonald lived up to his reputation as one of the world's longest drivers by averaging 206 yards with steel shafts, against the wind, with almost no roll, on heavy turf, and 226 yards with hickory. He smote his last ball 234 yards into the stiff breeze. Evans did slightly better than MacDonald with steel, averaging 207 yards, but with strange wooden clubs he averaged only 204 yards.

Gow was not hitting the ball well, and his shots fell short of 200 yards. Balls also were hit off the toe and the heel of the club to see whether the steel shaft would hold a mis-hit ball straight. It seemed to do so to a slight extent, but they lost in distance. MacDonald and Evans also pitched several shots to a flag, and neither could find any difference between steel and wooden shafts in the mashie. Also, they seemed to get similar results with a mashie iron.

INDIAN BRAVES OPEN LACROSSE SEASON HERE

Longboat's Iroquois Team Appear Here in Full War Paint Saturday.

A challenge issued by Chief Longboat's Iroquois lacrosse team from the Grand Indian Reserve has been taken up by the London Club, and a battle will be staged at Tecumseh Park on Saturday afternoon at a 2 o'clock rain or shine.

The Iroquois will turn out in full war paint with their traditional headgear, leggings, moccasins, and tomahawks. The game of lacrosse is a very ancient and exciting game, and the Iroquois are naturally adept at handling the gutted stick, and an exciting game is anticipated. The open game of the Iroquois makes their style pretty to watch.

There will be four quarters played of fifteen minutes each, and between each quarter the players will give exhibitions of scalping, tomahawk dancing, and war dancing, green corn dances, etc., so that there will be action every moment of the two hours' entertainment.

The London boys are anxious to bring a victory to the game, and will wear their best uniforms for the season, and a good, fast, clean contest should be witnessed.

ARMY SHOW IS OPENED AGAIN

Royal Tournament of Fighting Forces Recalls Memorable Events.

LONDON, Thursday, May 18.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—Olympia was thronged today at the opening of the royal tournament. The existing conditions and uncertainty concerning the future of the services has not lessened the difficulties of the executive in getting together the program, but nevertheless the show contains all the features which have made it so popular for many years past, and the financial result will doubtless be of great benefit to the charities connected with the fighting forces.

Probably the ordinary private who spent weary months in France or Flanders would be hard put to it to find much in the tournament to remind him of his own days of service. The musical drive by the Royal Horse Artillery, for instance, is the prettiest thing imaginable, but they did not go in for such things on the western front. However, it is performed at Olympia for the benefit of the fighting forces, and it is to the great war, where it was almost continually in action from August, 1914, until the armistice.

One of the displays most acceptable to tournament audiences is that concerned with the military evolutions in times past. The Guards this year gave an exhibition of guard mounting in the 18th century. Of more modern military work, the Royal Engineers contribute a show of bridge building. There are combats with rapier and dagger, with broadsword and buckler and even with the old English quarterstaff.

ENTRIES ARE LESS, BUT SCHOOLS SENDING BEST

Competitors and Officials Will Be Tendered Banquet Following Track Meet Saturday in L. C. I.

The entries for the third annual track meet of the Western Ontario Secondary Schools' Association are now complete, and all indications point to the best meet in the history of the association. The entries are not quite so abundant as last year, but the best athletes in the various schools have been chosen to represent the various schools. It has now been recognized that only the "top-notchers" need come to the meet if a winning team is to be selected.

The scoring will follow the usual plan of five points for first, three for second, and one for third. In all the fourth man will be recorded, and in the event of a tie between two schools, half a point will be allowed for fourth place in any event. Such score will be allowed only in the event of a draw, however. It has been arranged to tender a banquet to the competitors, officials and representatives of the various schools in the London Collegiate Institute at 5:30 p.m., immediately after the close of the meet. The medals, shields and trophies will be presented then.

Below is the entry list for the senior events:

CHANG ASSUMES NAPOLEON ROLE

Sets Himself Up in Robes of Emperor in North China Provinces.

PEKIN, May 17.—The fate of Manchuria and outer and inner Mongolia for the moment transcends all other issues in China, because of General Chang Tso-Lin's defiance of the Peking government and his avowed intention of establishing an independent empire in those provinces. The presence of large bodies of General Wu Pei-Fu's troops in Tangshan, north of Tientsin, where they are threatening the forces of Chang Tso-Lin, entrenched in Luanchow, has virtually isolated Mukden, where it is declared Chang has assumed the role of an independent sovereign. General Wu has urged the Peking government to warn the foreign powers not to have relations with Chang, whom he desires to prevent from obtaining any foreign aid or negotiating any concessions in Manchuria, and it is understood that Foreign Minister Yen will inform the legations shortly that China will not recognize any agreement concluded without the consent of the Peking administration. Wang Chund-Hui, minister of justice and a delegate to the Washington conference, has been in conference in Pootungfu with Wu Pei-Fu regarding plans for reductions in the Chinese army. The minister told General Wu that China's prospects were blighted under her present burden of militarism, and added that the powers were sincere when they asserted in Washington that further foreign aid to China was unlikely until her vast armed force had been partly disbanded. General Wu fully agreed that China must confine the strength of her army to the needs of defense and expressed faith in President Hsu Shih-chang and his scheme to reduce the forces from 1,500,000 to 250,000.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

New York, May 18.—Wall Street, 10:30 a.m.—Another active day in copper and steel shares was foreshadowed at the opening of today's stock market, gains ranging from large fractions to 1½ points were made by a number of metal shares, inspiration copper, excepted. Among the steels, Midvale, yesterday's spectacular feature, opened with a transfer of 4,000 shares at a quotation unchanged from yesterday's final price, but the stock soon declined 1 point. Crucible, Republic and American rose 1 to 2 points. In the iron and steel shares, Lackawanna and Iron Products gained substantial fractions. Standard Oil, Royal Dutch, Industrial Alcohol, Sears, Roebuck and Sumatra Tobacco also displayed firmness. A number of isolated points of weakness cropped out in Midvale and Republic Steels, Virginia-Carolina and American Agricultural Chemical preferred. Retail Stores, New York Air Brake and Maxwell Motor A losing 1 to 2 points. These reverses had no effect on the general buying movement, but many selected shares continued to work upward. Davidson Chemical, American Lumber, Atlantic Gulf, Liggett & Myers, Certainted Products, Mallinson, Spicer and the leathers scored gains of 1 to 2 points. Chicago, May 18.—With cold and wet weather prevailing, regarded as likely to improve the condition of the winter crop and the spring crop as well, the wheat market averaged a little lower during the early trading today. Declines were checked, however, by relative firmness as compared with the receipts today totaled 170 carloads. Deliveries on May contracts amounted to 161,000 bushels. The opening, which varied from 1c lower to 1c advance, was followed by a slight upturn and then by a moderate general decline. Rains caused delay to planting of corn tended to steady the market for corn and oats. After opening unchanged to 1c higher, the corn market hardened a trifle more and then underwent a slight sag. Oats started 1/2c off to a like advance, then kept close to the initial range.

ON FRAUD CHARGESYRIANS REVOLT
AGAINST FRENCHTWISTER INJURES
TWENTY IN TEXAS

Robstown, Texas, May 18.—Twenty persons were injured, two probably fatally, and property loss of approximately $500,000 was suffered, when a tornado struck Aquadale, sixteen miles west of here, and swept southeastward to Bishop, fifteen miles south of Robstown, yesterday. The twister cut a path two to five miles wide and sixteen miles long.

KIDNEYS GAVE HIM SO MUCH TROUBLE HE DID NOT SLEEP MUCH

Kidneys Were Weak; Had Severe Pains in Back; Stomach Was Deranged; Bilious and Constipated.

A Representative from the ANDES Laboratory is Located at Strong's Drug Store to Meet the Public and Explain the Merits of ANDES.

Those that have given Andes a fair trial are always loud in their praise for this herbal medicine. Thousands in Tennessee use no other medicine for kidney, liver, stomach and bladder disorders. Many in Nashville and vicinity are now using Andes with good results and they come forward and give their statements with the hope that other sufferers may profit by their experience from taking Andes.

One of the recent endorsements came from R. C. Quisenberry in a letter to the Andes Laboratory. Mr. Quisenberry lives near Grayson, and is mighty glad of the day he decided to begin the use of Andes. He says:

"My back ached so I felt like there was a knife sticking in me and my kidneys acted so frequently I was up and down all night, getting very little sleep, and when morning came I was so tired I did not feel like moving."

"For almost nineteen months I have been dragging around half sick and generally miserable with little ambition for anything. My stomach was uncomfortable from the gas and my bowels were all clogged up, giving me that full, heavy, stupid feeling. I had very little appetite and did not care whether I came to the table or not.

"My improvement since I began taking Andes has been remarkable. The very first bottle did me good. Immediately after enjoying a good supper I want to go to bed, because I now sleep so sound it takes my wife some time to get me up. I now jump out of bed, eat a good, big breakfast. Have no more trouble with my kidneys, back, bowels act regular, and all this came from the use of only six bottles of Andes."

The Andes representative is meeting hundreds at Strong's Drug Store, 184 Dundas street. He is here to explain the merits of Andes to the London public. See him today. Andes sells at $1.00 per bottle or 6 for $5.00.—Adv.

MISSIONS SOCIETY

REPORTS DEFICIT

Presbyterian Women Raise General Fund of $418,161 During Year.

Special to London Advertiser.

GALT, May 17.—At the opening of this morning's session of the Presbyterian W. M. S. convention in Knox Church, Mrs. J. Erle Jones of Toronto, treasurer, submitted the financial statement, showing subscriptions to the general fund totaling $418,161. Owing to the deficit of the past two years, it has been decided to leave the Helen McDonald fund in abeyance until the deficit is met.

Mrs. J. W. Bundy of Toronto, gave a general financial survey, and following this, there was a discussion on supplies, publications and library conducted by Mrs. D. B. Hanna, Miss Parsons, Miss Fraser and Miss Pringle.

Secretary Called Home.

The meeting received with much regret the news of the sudden departure for her home in Toronto on account of illness in the family of Miss Bessie MacMurchy, the recording secretary.

This afternoon session was devoted to a discussion of young women's auxiliaries and the Canadian Girls in Training. Mrs. Smith of Alliston, giving a most interesting address on the latter subject. "A Mother's View of the C. G. I. T."

Tonight a big public missionary meeting was held with a large attendance of members of the various Presbyterian churches in the city.

The meeting proper was preceded by an organ recital by J. Lenicoff. The addresses of the evening were delivered by Rev. Colin Young, D.D., of "The New Canadians," and Rev. D. F. Smith of India, on "India Today."

PIMPLES ON FACE

DIDN'T LIKE TO GO OUT

Those nasty little pimples that break out on the face and other parts of the body are simply indications that the blood is out of order and requires purifying.

There is only one way to get rid of this obnoxious skin trouble, and that is by giving the blood a thorough cleansing which can best be done by that old reliable blood medicine and when the blood is purified the pimples will vanish and you will have a clear, healthy complexion.

Miss Mary E. Flanagan, R. R. No. 3, Stella, Ont., writes: "I suffered for about two years with pimples and blotches breaking out on my face. The doctor said it was caused by bad blood. My face was so bad I didn't like to go out among a crowd of people. One day I was talking to a friend, and she advised me to get a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and try it. I just took three bottles and there was not a blotch or pimple of any kind left. Some of my friends asked me what I had used and I said: 'Burdock Blood Bitters' chased them."

B. E. B. has been on the market for the past 45 years, so you are not experimenting with some new and untried remedy.

and lighted paper from which her clothing took fire, and was soon a mass of flames. Her screams were heard by Mrs. J. Revitzer, who was visiting next door, and her quick presence of mind in rolling the child on the grass extinguished the flames, but not before Mrs. Revitzer had her hands burned.

The child's clothes were practically burned off her body, and in addition to the burns on her body, her hair was burned. It will be a few days before the doctors will be able to give a decision as to the child's fate.

Mr. Bottomley, in a long statement after conclusion of the hearing of his case in police court last month, declared the charges against him were utterly false and that he would have no difficulty in proving that never a penny of the Victory Bond Club's funds came into his hands unless he was entitled to it or unless it was required and used for the club's purpose.

Winnipeg, May 18.—Winnipeg is now beginning to feel the full force of the Assiniboine flood waters which have inundated tracts of land between Headingly and Brandon. The Red River continues to rise between here and Morris.

With the water at confluence going up a foot day, Winnipeg is facing a grave flood situation so far as low-lying sections are concerned. Businessmen in downtown parts of the city have already acted on City Engineer Brerston's previous warnings, and in many cases basements have been cleared of stocks.

It was estimated last night that the Assiniboine at the Main street bridge from 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon till 10 last night had risen at the rate of an inch an hour, compared with half an inch an hour the previous day. At Headingly, the river is dangerously near the overflow point.

Farther west the Assiniboine has gone down somewhat according to reports received last night from Poplar Point, Portage La Prairie, Redburn and Brandon. At Winnipeg, however, the Assiniboine is likely to continue to rise rapidly until Sunday or Monday. Whether the peak in the rise of the Red River below the junction of the two rivers will be reached at that time cannot be stated.

RESCUES DISABLED POWER SCHOONER

Seattle, Wash., May 18.—Word was received here this morning that the power schooner Ozmo, which struck the rocks off Cape Blanco, Oregon, yesterday, had been rescued by the tug Daisy, which was towing the disabled vessel to the mouth of the Columbia River. The Ozmo's crew was reported aboard the Daisy.

When the 450 men leaving advantage of the arrangement have been absorbed into employment channels in the western provinces, which they are assured will be at once, further parties will be arranged.

YOUTHS HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Face Charge At Brantford of Attempting To Slay J. Williams.

Special to London Advertiser.

BRANTFORD, May 17.—The police courtroom looked as though it was an arsenal this morning, when the firearms of the four youths charged with attempted murder appeared in the docket along with Harry Dent, the alleged murderer of Peter Egopian on April 25. Four revolvers, many rounds of ammunition and much other evidence was produced at the hearing, and the four lads admitted carrying dangerous weapons, but denied charges of attempted murder and of being vagrants.

One of the quietest asked that the cases be adjourned for a week so that they might have time to consult with their barrister, Mr. W. S. Brewster, K.C. Their names are as follows: Frank Hicks, James Cunningham, Earl Smith and Sidney Rowley, all, it is stated, of Montreal.

Young Hicks, against whom information was first read, declared they had no intimation of any other charge having been made against them than one of vagrancy. No evidence was taken this morning. The county police are ready to go on with the case any time. Mrs. Mary Williams, Burford Township woman, and her son, Charles Williams, were both in court, and will likely appear as witnesses when the quartet answers a charge of attempted murder on J. Williams of Burford.

ESCAPED CONVICTS
SENT TO KINGSTON

Special to London Advertiser.
GUELPH, May 17.—Two years in the Kingston Penitentiary was the penalty handed out by Magistrate Watt at this morning's police court to Harry Beals of Brantford, Lewis Young of Simcoe and Harvey Revers of Port Dover, three inmates of the Ontario Reformatory, who made a bold dash for liberty from the institution last night.

The three men were employed in the quarry along with 80 others, and they made their getaway as the gang was being marched into supper. They were re-captured three-quarters of an hour later in what is known as Carter's Bush, about two miles away. Two of the men were in a tree, and the other hiding under an old log when captured.

QUEBEC MINISTER
LOSES TAX APPEAL

OTTAWA, May 17.—(By Canadian Press.)—The Supreme Court of Canada today decided that the salary of a provincial minister is liable to assessment for Dominion income tax. The case came up in an appeal from Hon. J. E. Caron, minister of colonization for the Province of Quebec, against a ruling of the exchequer court, which also held that such salary was liable to income tax. The supreme court dismissed Mr. Caron's appeal with costs.

EXPECTS GRADUAL REVIVAL IN PAPER

MONTREAL, May 17.—While the newspaper industry may be said to be in a better position than it was a year ago, or even six months ago, it is certain that there is no real ground for the over-optimistic statements and rose-colored forecasts that are being spread abroad, presumably for their effect upon stock market speculation, said George M. McKee, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, when asked as to the truth of the report that the paper industry is rapidly approaching a high level of prosperity it enjoyed in 1920.

NERVOUS BREAKDOWN
COULDN'T SLEEP NIGHTS

To those on the verge of a nervous breakdown the following symptoms present themselves: nervous headaches, a feeling of depression, fitful, disturbed, restless and unrefreshing sleep, often troubled with frightful dreams, avoidance of crowded places, dread of being alone, horror of society, etc. When the nerves become affected in this way the heart generally becomes affected, too, and on the first signs of any weakness of the heart or nerves, flagging energy or physical breakdown do not wait until your case becomes hopeless, but get a remedy that will at once quieten the nerves, strengthen the heart and build up the entire system. This you will find in

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.
Mrs. M. Damgard, Young's Cove road, N. B., writes: "I was bothered very much with my heart and nerves; had nervous headaches and dizziness, could not sleep at nights, and my appetite was all gone. I was on a nervous breakdown when a neighbor told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. This I did, and before I had the second box used I was better and would advise anyone who has nerve trouble to take them." Price, 50c a box, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto.

CRERAR URGES
CLOSING PART OF NATIONAL LINES

Leader of Progressives Urges Revaluation of Entire System.

MITCHELL RENEWS STAND

Quebec Member Condemns
Principle of Public Ownership.

OTTAWA, May 17.—(By Canadian Press.)—Discussion of railway estimates in the House of Commons today brought from Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the National Progressives, an important declaration of his policy on the national roads. He advocated the closing up of part of the Transcontinental lines running across the wilderness between Eastern and Western Canada. He urged a revaluation of the entire system on a replacement basis and its unification. He favored the suggested regional districts.

He took the ground that, in encouraging immigration, the government should take steps to see that the new settlers were placed along the National lines. It was, too, he argued, a sound principle that the fiscal policy of the country should be drafted so to stimulate production from the farm, the forest and the mine, and railway traffic thereby be encouraged.

"In the National Railways," Mr. Crerar declared, "the people of Canada have a splendid asset. If they turned over to private ownership at any price which private ownership would pay, the country would forever lose their potential value, but would not escape the liabilities involved."

Mr. Crerar's speech came at the close of an afternoon's discussion on the railroad estimates, a discussion which will be continued tomorrow. Earlier Hon. Walter Mitchell (Liberal, St. Antoine) formerly one of Sir Lomer Gouin's lieutenants in the provincial government of Quebec, had defended private ownership of railways. Mr. Mitchell went further, he expressed opposition to the principle of public ownership and operation of all public utilities.

"I have come to the conclusion on general principle," Mr. Mitchell asserted, "that the public pay more under public ownership than they benefit from lower charges."

Meighen Takes Issue.
Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the opposition, charged in reply that Mr. Mitchell had no case. As the National lines had not been constructed as commercial properties, no private company could make them pay.

The first item was that of $42,800,000 to meet expenditures made or indebtedness incurred (where amount available from net operating earnings is insufficient) by or on behalf of the Canadian National Railway Company, the Canadian Northern Railway Company, or any company comprised in the Canadian Northern System on any of the following accounts: (a) operating deficits; (b) acquisition of property, materials and supplies; (c) interest and sinking funds on notes, securities or obligations; (d) principle and interest of maturing or matured loans or securities; (e) construction and betterment; (f) co-ordination or consolidation of railway lines and facilities.

Hon. W. C. Kennedy, minister of railways and canals, stated that the amount was required for this year as far as March 31, 1922. It had been approved by the directors and then submitted to the departments of railways and canals. He was assured that the money asked for was necessary. While there were no provisions made for the building of extensions, the government had not lost sight of the fact that these were necessary in some parts of the West and they would be proceeded with as soon as possible.

Mr. Meighen inquired why there was expenditure on co-ordination. That ought to save money. Mr. Kennedy explained that the expenditure was for the purpose of making connections between different lines, consolidating yards and making other changes that were necessary in order to work the different lines as one system. Hon. Walter Mitchell (Liberal, St. Antoine) made a statement in justification of his stand on the railway question during the elections. "My position has not changed," he said. "I am still of the same opinion that I was before and during the election. I was against the public ownership and operation of railways. I have no quarrel with those who are opposed to me, but I ask that they give me the same consideration that I gave them."

"Let us discuss this question without bitterness. It should not be considered a political issue, it is too serious. It should be looked upon as a national issue. For, if I am right, I feel it is a danger to the credit of our country. I say that in consideration of the vast area that we have in this country, of its strong population, of its development, of its enormous debt, and of the fact that we are taxed pretty well to the limit, I do not believe our country can stand a deficit of seventy-two millions a year even if it is only that—and I will show that it is not only that, but a far greater sum."

Would Save Millions.
Mr. Mitchell said if a thorough investigation had been held in the past it would have saved millions of dollars to the country. If it was not followed now, it would be followed ultimately. If a statement of facts could not be presented to the people after a fair trial of public ownership it would be said that the trial was not to be depended upon. If a fair trial was desired, a statement of the method of administration of the lines from one end to the other should be prepared. Asked by W. C. Good, Progressive, Brant, if he was opposed to the principle of public ownership of any public utility, Mr. Mitchell replied:

Finds Family of Eight
In Need of Food.

Special to London Advertiser.
BLENHHEIM, May 17.—Chief Constable Geo. Peters of the county and Mr. Applegath, Children's Shelter officer, were out in Harwich Township on two investigations yesterday. One case was that of a family at Shrewsbury, a colored settlement, where they found a family of eight children under 16 years of age in destitute circumstances and the premises in a deplorable condition. Both the father and the mother were apparently in good condition, but provisions were scant and no plans made for future supplies. It is said the father held "the world owes us a living." The constable laid a charge with J. C. Whittington, J.P., against the father that he was not providing the necessities of life for the children, thus endangering their health. He will come up at a later date.

"That is what I said, and I am still of that opinion. I have had some little experience in examining into the operation of public utilities."

Pressed by W. D. Euler, Liberal, North Waterloo, for specific cases of failure of public ownership and operation of utilities, Mr. Mitchell said his investigations were made as minister of municipal affairs in the province of Quebec, and concerned principally electrical power plants, operation of street railways, and waterworks throughout the province.

Another point was the fact that the year 1921 had benefited from local improvements paid for before the year began. An amount should have been charged for them in 1921. He then referred to an order-in-council passed by the late government around the date of dissolution, which urged the anticipation of rolling stock needs in order to offset unemployment.

Mr. Mitchell said he had spent all his life fighting monopoly of railways, but he was also opposed to a monopoly by anyone. He favored a reduction of freight rates, but it should not be carried so far as to reduce them below the cost of operation. He declared that a case had been made out for a thorough inquiry into the accounts of the National Railways.

Mr. Meighen asked what line of policy Mr. Mitchell would favor, provided the inquiry he proposed showed that the accounts of the railways were correct.

Could Not Afford Deficit.
Mr. Mitchell replied that the country could not afford to carry a deficit of $2,000,000, and if no remedy were found some means would have to be taken to get rid of the railways and the deficit.

Mr. Meighen said that he did not yet know what Mr. Mitchell proposed, and Mr. Mitchell, in a second reply, stated that unless a remedy could be found there would be nothing to do but turn the railways back to private ownership.

Mr. Crerar asked if Mr. Mitchell supported the policy of the minister of railways.

"Absolutely," replied Mr. Mitchell. "I intend to co-operate in every way to give government ownership a fair trial."

"What is the difference between the policy of the present government and that of the late government?" asked Mr. Meighen.

"I hope," answered Mr. Mitchell, "that the new government will endeavor to avoid interference with the management." Mr. Meighen said that Mr. Mitchell's only complaint was that the late government, by conference with the railways, had taken steps to relieve unemployment. The mountain had been delivered, and the house could describe what had come. Really Mr. Mitchell had no case at all. The railway deficit was due to the fact that the railways had been constructed, not as a commercial proposition, but for political, immigration and other purposes.

No company could make the railways pay. What reason was there for saying that the accounting of the government railways was wrong? Besides the regular railway accountants, the books were audited by the firm of Marwick & Mitchell on behalf of the government.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Mitchell had taken advantage of public feeling stirred up by the newspapers. Besides the regular railway accountants, the books were audited by the firm of Marwick & Mitchell on behalf of the government.

Asks Opponents' Plans.
Mr. Crerar realized the effect the railway deficits might have on the national credit, but did not agree that the railway deficits would cause the credit to vanish. It had not affected the interest rate on loans, as attested by the recent issue in New York.

Those who criticized public ownership of the railways declared that public ownership could not succeed, but they offered no alternative plans. It was a fair question to ask: "What were the plans of the opponents?" Canada had not taken up public ownership through conviction. Practically all the mileage in the National system today was there because it had acquired the old Grand Trunk Railway. The Grand Trunk had desired to evade its responsibilities in regard to the Grand Trunk Pacific. It was faced with bankruptcy, and if the government had not acquired it it would have been knocked down under the hammer to the highest bidder. Supposing it had been bought by the Canadian Pacific Railway and that railway had refused to agree to traffic arrangements with the National Transcontinental.

REGARDS DEFEAT
AS INSIGNIFICANT

GENOA, May 17.—Mr. Lloyd George has attached no importance to the government's defeat in the House of Commons, it was learned today. His view was that the small majority of three on the technical question of education, with no political bearing, could not affect the position of the cabinet.

FARMERS SEEK

BRAZIL MARKET
Ask Government To Finance
Trial Shipment of Purebred Stock.

London Township Delegation
Presents Plan To Hon. W.
R. Motherwell.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, Ottawa, May 17.—Some action will probably be taken by the government to assist the farmers of Ontario in the creation of a market for livestock in Brazil.

A deputation consisting of A. Hodgins, M.P. for East Middlesex, and J. H. Patrick of London Township, waited upon Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, today and asked for a grant to enable the farmers of Western Ontario to ship a carload of purebred stock to that country.

It was explained to the minister that a good market undoubtedly waited Canadian purebred stock in Brazil, as that country was taking steps to encourage stock-raising in competition with Argentina. The one need of the country was purebred stock for breeding purposes, and in this need the deputation saw an opportunity of a market.

It is proposed that one carload of stock be shipped at once by way of an experiment. The animals will be purchased in the vicinity of London, it is believed, where some of the best purebred herds of the country are to be found.

The minister was asked to make an appropriation covering the cost of the shipment.

Hon. Mr. Motherwell was impressed with the proposal, and gave the deputation an encouraging reply.

DETROIT, May 17.—For the sake of his pal's wife, Raymond Littlefield, 19, Wednesday offered to serve the 5 to 15-year sentence of Herman Martenette, 20, of 2040 Twenty-Third street.

Martenette was sentenced Wednesday by Judge John Faust in recorder's court, for assault with intent to rob.

Martenette, Littlefield, Arthur Hawley, 18, of 2036 Virginia Park, and Raymond Nolan, 22, of 1920

Twenty-Third street, were found guilty by a jury Tuesday of forcing Lee Eagle, jitney driver, to drive them into Ohio and robbing him of $10, and kidnapping John Clay in a similar manner in Lima, Ohio, and forcing him to travel with them to South Rockwood, Mich.

Littlefield was remanded for sentence until May 20. The other three were each sentenced to from 5 to 15 years with the recommendation that they serve seven. Martenette was sentenced to Marquette Prison, Nolan to the Detroit House of Correction, and Hawley to Jackson Prison.
