A WARNING TO ALL.

Mrs. Elizabeth Berry Stopped Taking Dodd's Kidney Pills after only Trying one Box.

Not Being Cured Instantly, Was Disappointed—Three Years After Tried Dodd's Kidney Pills again Twelve Boxes Completely Cured Her.

BEAR RIVER, N. S., April 30.—A great number of worthy people, both in Nova Scotia and the other maritime provinces have in time past fallen into the error of thinking that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure their diseases—often of long years' standing—almost instantly. They follow the directions and take Dodd's Kidney Pills regularly for the first few days, and are then disappointed if their health is not restored.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the promptest and most speedy remedy for kidney diseases ever known on this earth, and they have almost performed miracles in matching people out of the very jaws of death, but they will not do impossibilities. No medicine ever invented will cure kidney disease like Dodd's Kidney Pills. But they want a fair chance. A doctor doesn't cure a patient of a fever in two or three visits. It takes time. So with Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The case of Mrs. Elizabeth Berry, of Bear River, published recently, is typical of hundreds of others throughout the country. Impatience to be cured, lack of perseverance in taking the medicine, foolish belief that it will cure chronic diseases in a few days—these causes are responsible for the only disappointment ever occasioned by Dodd's Kidney Pills. If they are given a fair, honest chance, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure kidney diseases every time. There is no question about it. They have done it a hundred thousand times before.

Newcastle Creek.

Winter has gone and spring has come and we had it with "glad tidings." Quite a number of the young and old of this place have been sick with la-grippe, but are recovering under the skilful treatment of Drs. Hay and Flowers.

The death occurred on March 28th of Mrs. Duncan Fawcett, who was a great sufferer for over a year, and died in her 81st year. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. W. E. McIntyre. She leaves a husband and four children to mourn her sad loss. They have the sympathy of the entire community.

A very successful Missionary Concert was held in the Baptist Church on March 25th. The programme was as follows: Opening chorus—From Greenland's icy mountains.

Scripture Reading—Mrs. A. L. Bailey. Prayer—Mr. John B. Hawr. Music—"Far, far away," choir. Treasurer's report—Miss Ellen G. Stuart. Secretary's report—Miss Pearl Robinson.

Solo, "The two lives," Hazel Smith. Recitation, "Little helpers," three little girls. Duets—"Seeking for me," two little boys. Missionary address—Miss Stuart. Quartet—Over the rolling sea. Recitation—Laura McMann. Recitation, "Two many of us," Carrie Chapman.

Trios—"He hideth my soul." Recitation, "The starless corner," Miss Maude McMann. Duets, "Oswald," two little boys. Recitation, "O why should the spirit of mortal be proud," Gordon Hawr. Duets, "O morning land," Pearl Robinson and Maude McMann. Recitation—Miss Z. P. Robinson. Closing chorus, "The wide, wide world," choir.

A collection was taken and quite a sum was added to the W. M. A. S. fund. Mr. Harry Porter paid a flying visit to this place Sunday the guest of Mrs. S. B. Stewart.

Mr. Burpee Chapman, son of Councilor James Chapman, has arrived home. A new schooner is already under construction under the able management of Llewellyn McMann.

A number of our young men left this morning to take charge of their vessels. Mr. Geo. Kerley gave a wood frolic and party to the young people of this place and an enjoyable evening was spent by all.

Worn-Out Nerves
Bring Headaches, Backaches, Pains in Limbs, Sleeplessness, Irritability, Nervous Prostration and Paralysis.

Woman's work is never done. From early morn till late at night many a woman toils on day after day, week after week, and year after year, with no rest, no recreation, and no even change of work, for it is the same monotonous round over and over again.

Little wonder that the nerves are shattered, the system run down, and the body racked by pains and aches. Little wonder that the head aches, the digestive functions are impaired, and the delicate organs become irregular. Little wonder that beauty fades, the skin becomes pale and sallow, and the body thin, weak and worn out.

SENT UP FOR TRIAL.

Mr. Oscar A. Little Charged with the Murder of Mr. Lawrence and Family.

LAKETOWN CORNER, Sundry Co., April 27.—The preliminary examination of James A. Little, who is charged with the murder of Edward Lawrence on the morning of Feb. 21st last, was begun here on Wednesday evening and is still in progress.

Duncan London was the first witness called. Mrs. Edward Lawrence was his sister. He was well acquainted with Lawrence and with his family and house. Since the fire he had made measurements of the foundation of the house and drawn a plan of it. (The diagram was produced and put in evidence.) The size of the main house was 18 by 25 feet, with an ell 15 by 18 feet, and a woodshed extending beyond that, while attached to the end of the woodshed was the log porch. The barn was about 75 feet distant. He arrived at the scene of the fire when the house was almost burned down. He knew but very little about the prisoner and had had no conversation with him.

Miss Evelyn London was the next witness. The late Mrs. Edward Lawrence was her sister and she had made her home with the Lawrence's for some time. The family consisted of Edward Lawrence, his wife, son Woody, aged 19 years, son George, aged 17 years, daughter Annie and Tressa, aged respectively 13 years and 11 years, and herself. The prisoner, Little, had lived there since about the first of September last. The fire occurred at half-past five o'clock on the morning of Feb. 21st. The night before the fire she went to bed shortly after ten o'clock. Mr. Lawrence went to bed at about 8:30. The log porch before his father. The little girls went to bed about half-past nine. When witness went to bed she left Mrs. Lawrence and Mr. Little up. Mrs. Lawrence was reading at the kitchen table. Little went to bed within three minutes after the witness and Mrs. Lawrence followed about fifteen minutes later. She occupied the same room as Lawrence and his wife. There are two bedrooms in the house. One of the fire was one large unfinished room. In the bedroom occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence and herself was a window, which was not closed on the outside and the sashes were kept in with laths nailed to the frame. The lower sash could be raised and lowered, and was so opened almost every day to air the chamber.

The witness occupied a single bed in one corner of this room. The other room had two beds, one occupied by Little and Woody Lawrence and the other by the other two boys. There was no window in this bedroom, but only an opening about three feet square in the partition between it and the other bedroom, and the foot of the bed occupied by Little was right beneath this opening. The partition was lathed and plastered on both sides. A door into each bedroom opened into the unfinished part, and the only stairs were at the front part of the house. The upper part of the ell was also unfinished, and was separated from the main house by a door, which would be about two feet from the head of the stairs. The front door was located right at the foot of the stairs. The pipe from the kitchen stove went through the ceiling and entered the chimney in the attic. There was a brick and mortar flue in the ceiling, through which the stove pipe went through. The attic was used as a general store room. At the time of the fire a line full of children's cotton clothes hung in the attic, within ten feet of the stove pipe. On the morning of the fire she heard Woody get up as usual and go down stairs. She then went to sleep again, and was awakened by a roaring which she supposed to be fire. She jumped out of bed and opened the bedroom door, and saw a solid mass of fire in the attic of the ell and it was running on the rafters of the main house. She looked toward Lawrence's bed and cried, "Ed, get up quick, the house is all fire." Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence were both in bed at the time. Mrs. Lawrence jumped over her husband and out of bed, and then saw Edward rising up in bed. She said "come on" and started downstairs. When she had nearly reached the kitchen door, Mrs. Lawrence passed her and grabbed two pairs of water. She ran up stairs with the pairs and witness went half way up stairs and saw her throw the water and pairs on to the attic fire. Witness said to Mrs. Lawrence "grab the children." She made no answer and started from where she threw the water in the direction of the back bedroom. The last witness saw of her she was within about three feet of the door. Witness waited on the stairs for about two minutes, she thinks, and hearing no one moving about she ran down stairs and opened front door and screamed. After screaming four times she heard a noise upstairs.

The noise was in Mr. Lawrence's bedroom and sounded as if they were all also screaming and trying to get out. It also sounded like a scuffle. After she heard the noise she went to the kitchen and grabbed some coats which she took through the house to the front door and threw out. She then heard a noise in the front bedroom like something heavy falling on the floor. It made the windows and doors tremble. When she heard this noise she opened the parlor door and looked in. She observed here that the lower end of window had been broken out, and that the blind was torn. When she was screaming at the front door Woody came from the barn and she told him to get the ladder quick and put it to the upstairs window. She thought they could not come down the stairs as the place was the full of smoke. After throwing the clothes out of the front door, she threw two mats from the sitting room door out the door. She then ran around the front of the house where Woody was and found him putting the ladder to the window. She asked him if there were any of the folks out. He said Mr. Little was out. He (Woody) had got the ladder up on the window, she thinks the fire was then taken to the window and about half way it was called out, "Where are you?" two or three times. The smoke was coming out of that window then very black. Woody remained at the window about three minutes and then came down the ladder and said he could not get in the window on account of the heat. She then went up the ladder until she met the fire, which was very dense. She did not see any of the fire in the room, though she was right up to the window. She then descended the ladder and went around to the front door. Just as she got down the ladder Mr. Chipman Simons came and went up the ladder as far as the window and said "No one can get in there." It had then just broken day. After Mr. Simons came down she went around to the front door and remained there until about 8:30 minutes. She was then taken to Mr. Simons's in a sleigh. After she had gotten into the sleigh she saw Mr. Little coming from the box house towards the front door. After she had been at Simons's some time Little came over. She said to Little "Do you know where they are?" He said "I saw Mr. Lawrence standing by the window," and he also said "Lawrence took hold of the window and was very heavy. He tried to get up and knock the window out, but he couldn't." Little had then gone to the front door and saw Mr. Little coming from the box house towards the front door. After she had been at Simons's some time Little came over. She said to Little "Do you know where they are?" Poetry.

THE BETTER VIEW.

If we talk of the good that the world contains,
And try our best to add to it,
The evil will die of neglect by and by—
'Tis the very best way to undo it.

We preach too much and we dwell too long
On the sin, and sorrow and trouble;
We help them to live by the thoughts we give,
Their spite and might to redouble.

For the earth is fair and the people are kind,
If once you look for their kindness,
When the world seems sad and its denizens bad,
It is only your own soul's blindness.

And I say if you search for the good and pure,
And give no thought to the evil,
Our labors are worth far more to the earth
Than when we are chasing the devil.

IF I COULD CHOOSE.

I would not dare, though it were offered me,
To plan my lot for but a single day,
So sure am I that all my life would be Marked with a blot in token of my way.

But were it granted me this day to choose
One shining bead from the world's jewelled string,
Favor and fortune I would quickly refuse,
To grasp a richer and more costly thing.

With this brave talisman upon my breast,
I could be ruler of my rebel soul;
To town this gem is to command the rest;
It is the Kohinoor called Self-control.

It is the sesame to broad estates,
To peaceful slopes and mountains blue and fair;
Calm-bowed, Content beyond its borders wait,
And even Love sits in the sunshine there.

No sullen frowns upon the street,
No graced windows, no grim prison walls;
No clanking chains are bound on convict's feet,
And on the ear no angry discord falls.

My life's swift river widens to the sea,
The careless babble of the brook is past;
A few late roses blossom still for me,
But spring is gone and summer cannot last.

Had I begun with morning's rosy strength
To seek the flower that on life's summit grows,
I might have found my end of length,
And on the purple heights have gained repose.

But I have loitered, and the hour is late;
Worn are my feet and weary is my hand;
I can but push ajar the massive gate;
I can but look into the Beulah land.

But, friends, if my poor love could have its way,
And blossom into blessing on each soul,
This is the very prayer that I should pray:
"Grant to men's lives the power of self-control."

"WHAT YOU DID NOT SAY."

There is many a word that a man may use,
And the memory of it may make him weep,
Maybe some heart that is kind and true,
Like a red pomegranate, is rent in two,
When out of the soul the passions leap,
And, storming the portals of speech, they rush
Into cruel words that condemn and crush.

But the pang that you never may know
I pray
Is the woe of the word that you did not say.

The word that you ought to have said to him,
Who put up his pleading face to ask
For a father's smile; and whose eyes went dim
With tears at your answer, stern and grim:
"Child, let me alone till I end my task."

Now he vexes no more, yet you often go
To the grave of the lad you slighted so,
And call through the grass to the quiet clay,
And sob out the words that you did not say.

The word you ought to have said to her
Whom long ago you did lovingly woo
With gifts and graces; but tears now blur
The sight of the bloom of the lavender,
That brings old summers again, and you,
How she lists and longs for the tender tone
Of the days gone by! When you stand alone,
Your face in her lilies you then will lay,
And wail out the word that you did not say.

The words you ought to have said—the dear,
Old pair by the fireside need it so.
It is better to speak, more blessed to hear
Your words of praise, while both are near.
How free would your filial affections

slow,
If you know how we who without them
trod
All the way of life, are entreating God,
Who took them from us that sometime they,
In His Heaven may hear what we did not say.

A Pretty Good Sermon.

A story of a bright-eyed, barefooted,
shabby little fellow is told by Forward.
He was working his way through a crowded car offering his papers in every direction, in a way that showed him well used to the "business and of a temperament not easily daunted.

The rain started while he was making change, and the conductor, passing him, laughed.

"Caught this time, Joe!" he said.
"You'll have to run to Fourteenth street."

"Don't care," laughed Joe in return.
"I can sell all the way back again."

A white-haired old gentleman seemed interested in the boy and questioned him concerning his way of living and his earnings. There was a younger brother to be supported, it appeared, "Jimmy" was lame and "couldn't earn much himself."

"Ah, loss. That makes it hard; you could do better alone."

The shabby little fellow was erect in a moment, and the denial was prompt and indignant.

"No, I couldn't! Jim's somebody to go home to; he's lots of help. What would be the good of havin' luck if nobody was glad or of gettin' things if there was nobody to divide with!"

"Fourteenth street!" called the conductor, and as the newsboy plunged into the gathering dusk, the old gentleman remarked to nobody in particular,
"I've heard many a poorer sermon than that!"

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and lost dread disease Consumption, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge), a copy of the prescription which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh,
Bronchitis and all Throat and Lung Maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing, will please address.

Excitement Injurious to Children.

Though it is pleasant to see the flush of joyous exultation in the faces of young children, it should never be forgotten that strong excitements have a very unfavorable effect on their nerves.

A writer in the Chaparrin cites the following incident as proof of this statement:

"A child was carried into a large and brilliantly lighted room, filled with a gay company. He gazed around with an expression of admiration and delight, not unmixed with perplexity. The latter, however, soon vanished, and he laughed and shouted with glee. When he saw that he was noticed, he exerted himself still more, and became more excited than ever.

He was then carried into a room where there was music and dancing. This was entirely new to him, and he was agitated with a variety of emotions—fear, wonder, admiration, and joy, seemed to take possession of him by turns.

As the scene became familiar to him
he enjoyed it without any mixture of unpleasant feelings. But he seemed to get suddenly tired, and he was taken to his bedroom.

The effect of the excitement he had experienced was apparent. His face was flushed as in a fever, his nervous system was disturbed, and it was some time before he could get to sleep, although he was what we call "tired out." When he did sleep, his rest was disturbed, and he repeatedly made loud exclamations.

His young imagination had made a powerful effort to comprehend what his senses had discovered. It was alternately excited and depressed for several days, until the memory of the unusual sounds and sights had partially faded.

A young brain is not capable of receiving the vivid impressions that many lights, many people, and many fresh sounds are sure to convey.

Beware of using the personal pronoun
"I" too freely in your talk, when you are talking in a roomful of people. Eg-otists are often amusing and entertaining, but as often they are very much out of order.—April Ladies' Home Journal.

"I don't know what Smith does with his money."
"No."
"No, I don't. Yesterday, he was short, and he's short again to-day."
"Did he want to borrow from you?"
"No, hang it. I wanted to borrow from him."

LITTLE MEN AND WOMEN— BABYLAND.

With the 1900 volume, enters upon its twenty-fourth year. The best authors and artists continue the contributions to the delight of the little people for whose instruction, amusement and entertainment their best endeavors are put forth. Some of the good things in the new volumes are:

TWO NEW SERIAL STORIES: "A Little Prince and Princess of Egypt";
"A Long-Time-Ago Story," by Oliver Harper.

"The Adventures of Spotty," by Kate
Upson Clark.

NOTABLE ARTICLES: "Playthings
That Are Alive" (in six parts), by Judith Solis Cohen.

"Some Famous Animals," by Cora Haviland Carver.

SHORT STORIES. More than the usual number of short stories written by men and women who "know how,"
and there are very many pictures to illustrate these.

THE BABYLANDERS are entertained every month with dainty verse and pretty pictures by Margaret Johnson.
CRADLE SONGS OF MANY NA-TIONS tell, in twelve parts, how the wise ladies of other lands are sung to sleep every night.

And there are various simple occupations which suggest to the mother ways and means to keep active little fingers busy.

A Frontier Missionary's Experiences
Sowing the seeds of Christianity in the far West some years ago was a mission attended with more or less danger, great hardships and much self-denial. Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady, who was a missionary on the frontier, and who has since won much fame as an author, has written a series of articles for The Ladies' Home Journal graphically narrating his experiences—often thrilling in the extreme, again pathetic, and not infrequently humorous. These he has related in his interesting way, which will make them exceedingly attractive, and which will show better than anything else which has ever been written that Americans are instinctively a religious people, ready to suffer any sacrifice for the advancement of Christianity. The first article of the series will appear in the April Journal.

Social Mistakes.
Perhaps the greatest of all social mistakes is to be continually talking about oneself. There is no word in all the vocabulary of conversation so tedious to others as that personal pronoun "I." Though one of the smallest words in use, there is none that takes up more room in the everybody world. "I" is a bore. It is better not to mention his name often than can be avoided. Another social folly is "gush." There is an insouciance ring about it. True, there are people who gush from sheer good nature in wishing to give pleasure, yet they should remember that even amiable exaggeration is like a coarse sugar plum, agreeable at first, but leaving a doubtful taste in the mouth afterward.

JINGLES AND JESTS.
The Imaginary World.
Some folks there be who say it's wrong to sleep instead of work.
They bid me toil with might and main and never, never slack.
But when asleep I'm dreaming; when awake, I see what's true.
If I should get insomnia, I don't know what I'd do!

The Post Again.
Still farther wandered the post affid and paused not until he came upon the figure of another farmer.
"The man with the hoe in south!" sighed the post confidently.
"Why don't you call a spade a spade?" cried the farmer, with much heat and quite unreasonably.
For, although the truth of the matter was that the farmer was digging for fish bait, of course it was not to be expected that the post would take cognizance of this.—Detroit Journal.

The Silent Hero.
We have heard in song and story of the man behind the gun.
And we all concede the glory of his feat.
It's a very noble calling.
To arise with gun in hand,
While the men the leaves are falling.
For the honor of the land,
But remember, there's the glory.
When the battle has been won,
To be praised in song and story,
As "the man behind the gun."

There's another sort of hero.
And of him the poet's pen
Never writes; he's but a bore.
In the books of "Robbie Men."
Not for gallant deeds is war meant.
Yet with temper in command,
He must suffer mental torment.
Not so much as raise his hand,
Though his enemies should blind him,
He must let it go at that.
He's the hero you'll find down,
He's "the man behind the hat."
—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Savage Bachelor.
"If you had been at the Browns' golden wedding celebration last night," said the sweet young thing, "you would have altered your views on matrimony."
"I wouldn't either," said the savage bachelor. "If matrimony were not a fake, there would not be such a powwow raised over a couple that have managed to endure each other for a few years, and don't you forget it!"—Indianapolis Press.

What's the matter?
I read about the heavy gun.
The heavy and the light—
The kind that weighs a score of tons
And scales the light's height.
And yet, it seems so strange to me,
The matter of heavy gun,
Of light and light, of French and White,
But caught about the middle!

How does he stand the battle crash?
He pants and sweats like a man.
No both his hands together flash
"Give me a drink of water!"
Of course I like to hear the news
Of woe and of joy,
But, how do you stand the war,
About the army smile?
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bather.
Yeast—See this suit I've got on?
Crisscrossed—Of course I see it! What of it?
"Well, my tailor wouldn't let me pay a cent for it."
"What?"
"Why, I refused to take it without pay, but he insisted that I should take it as a gift."
"Well, well, that's rather unusual to have a tailor give a suit of clothes on you!"—Yonkers Statesman.

He Was a Bear.
"Please play for me your favorite now!"
He pleadingly brought his fiddle.
"Of course," said she, "I'll play you now.
A nocturne by a great composer."
He smiled, and then as readily
A sharp little glance he threw her.
He interposed in tone of plea,
"A nocturne is a great composition."

Love's train of thought, just then and there,
Was wrecked by a misplaced switch.

Drowned in Dyspeptic Despair.

Are Thousands of Suffering Canadians Like the stab of a knife it catches you in the side, or sends agonizing pangs through the pit of your stomach after eating. It worries and wears you till your nerves give out, and, like a drowning man, you feel you are sinking day by day and help can not reach you. In this you are mistaken. No matter how deep you have sunk, PETTY'S will reach you. As the fabled Mermaid is said to seek and soothe the drowned, so will the real PETTY'S seek your trouble and soothe your pain. Indigestion, biliousness, headache, and that dependent feeling that makes so many lives miserable, depart when PETTY'S are called in. No other medicine is compounded with such care, no other is so pure, so effective as DR. PETTY'S PILLS.

D. L. Price Reg. R. B. Co. (Cont.) the well-known chemical analyst and scientist, writes as follows: "I have analyzed DR. PETTY'S PILLS, and find that they contain THE ESSENTIAL ACTIVE PRINCIPLES which they are compounded, ensuring the best results from the smallest possible dose."

USE
EDDY'S BRUSHES,
THE BEST IN THE MARKET.

Often in the morning there comes a feeling of weariness, indescribable; not exactly ill, nor fit to work, but too near well to remain idle. A Ripans Tabule taken at night, before retiring, or just after dinner, has been known to drive away that weariness for months.

There are various kinds of tea, which, though not fraudulent manufatures, are not made of the real leaf.

CRIME AND ITS PUNISHMENT.

A series of rather radical and remarkable resolutions framed by Judge Simon E. Baldwin, a member of the Connecticut Supreme Bench and Professor of Constitutional Law in Yale College, was recently adopted by the Connecticut State Congressional Association, composed of leading clergymen, senators, college professors and business men. The resolutions deal with crime, and its punishment which is deemed quite inadequate and unimpressive. In large American cities, and even in St. John, it is known that many petty crimes are committed in the fall for the purpose of securing free lodgings and board during the winter; it is known, too, that many petty criminals, when on a term in jail is nothing more than a pleasant vacation, are averse to physical pain and therefore the whipping post is suggested as a means of reformation. The following are the resolutions referred to:

Resolved, That the law should provide for moderate whipping, administered in private, as a mode of punishment to which juvenile offenders may be sentenced for petty offences, in lieu of imprisonment.

Resolved, That whipping is also an appropriate mode of punishment for the ruffian class.

Resolved, That fines can in many cases be better worked out by outside labor under a close supervision than by labor in jail.

Resolved, That the efficiency of our police and justice courts could be increased by the employment of probation officers from whom the court might ask information and who would keep watch on any who might be released under a provisional suspension of sentence.

Resolved, That habitual and incorrigible wrongdoers, even in respect to petty offences, become thereby subject to the right of the state to restrain their liberty for the remainder of their lives and to take such measures as will effectually cut them off from further opportunity of doing mischief to the community as well as from perpetrating their kind in an unhappy offspring.

The fact that criminals rarely reform under the laws that are now in force, that some of them spend half of their lives in jail on sentences of from ten days to three months, leads one to think that the ideas of the Connecticut State Congressional Association are worthy of careful consideration.

ST. JOHN LETTER.

Little Journeys to the Homes of English Authors, by Elbert Hubbard, is one of the most interesting series of semi-biographical essays that the writer has encountered for many a day. Mr. Hubbard talks of his authors, their lives and their works in the discriminating, off-hand and philosophic way for which he is distinguished and enables his readers to converse intelligently concerning every character with which he deals. He enters into no dry details, but fills his essays with pictures that are so true to nature and so vivid that they can never escape from the memory of the reader. And this is not all. The Little Journeys are printed on heavy hand made English paper with antique black face type and hand made initial letters, each containing an authentic portrait of the subject in photogravure. The four of the monthly numbers for 1900 that are already issued treat of William Morris, Robert Browning, Alfred Tennyson and Robert Burns. The Little Journeys are published by The Roycrofters, at East Aurora, New York, whose books are the most beautiful that have ever been printed in America, at $3 a year.

Daniel Burke, aged 40 years, was found dead in a yard off Mill street, last Tuesday. He was a dissipated character and died from natural causes.

Sixteen McGill students are here bound for the Paris exposition. They will cross as cattlemen to save expenses.

The total of the shipments of grain from this port this season is 4,336,366 bushels, just 1,318,985 more than in the season of 1898-99.

Sir Thomas Hughes, ex-Mayor of Liverpool, England, was in the city last week.

Steamer Manhasset sailed from this port for Cape Town, Steamer Lake Huron for Liverpool, and steamer Lacorne for Bristol last Thursday morning.

In the case of Peter Mangin and Charles Moore, accidentally drowned in the harbor on the 22nd inst., the coroner's jury has returned a verdict of death from unsoundness.

In the season of 1898-99 there were shipped from this port 3,586 head of cattle, 1,624 sheep, and 302 horses. The exports of the season just close were 10,462 cattle, 2,915 sheep and 504 horses.

Their aid oatmeal are unchanged. Cornmeal has advanced to $2.30. The advance in provisions is well maintained and there is a heavy demand at advanced prices. New cheese is arriving in small quantities and sells at 13¢ cents. Some small lots of really choice N. O. molasses have arrived, which sells in tins at 39¢ cents. Much dissatisfaction is felt over the quality of local refined sugars which has forced the jobbers into foreign markets. Last week several hundred tons of granulated arrived direct from Holland, while almost every steamer is bringing American granulated into the market. Large quantities of yellow sugars are being imported from Great Britain. Eggs have been in limited supply for some days and arrivals are eagerly bought up at 12 cents. Small quantities of new butter are arriving which sells at 18 and 20 cents a pound. There is no demand for low grades. Geo. S. deForest & Sons have made some large shipments of Union Blend tea to Halifax this week.

The deaths in the city this week were nineteen, marriages seven, births twenty-two.

EDWARD EDWARDS.
St. John, April 28.

A Mat and Rug Maker Speaks of DIAMOND DYES.

She Would Not Use Any Other Make.

The best and most successful makers of homemade carpets, mats and floor rugs use the Diamond Dyes to color their rugs, yarns and warps.

Every home Dyer knows wells that the Diamond Dyes give the fastest and brightest colors, and are the simplest dyes to use.

Mrs. A. Y. Field, Bathurst St., Toronto, says:—"During the last ten years I have made many mats and rugs from wool and cotton rugs and coarse yarns. The dyeing of the rugs and yarns I have always done with Diamond Dyes as they give the richest and strongest colors. I am fully convinced that the Diamond Dyes are the safest and cheapest for all who make carpets, mats and rugs. I would not use any other kind of dyes."

Washington Letter.
(From our regular correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 24, 1900.—Was the attempt to wreck the Welland Canal the work of men affiliated with the Irish secret associations? This is the question asked and answered at least partially in the affirmative by the United States Consul Agent Brush, in a special telegraphic report to the State Department from Clifton, Ont. The report completely exonerates the Buffalo grain handlers of all complicity in the crime. It does not appear that the State Department can do anything at present, but if the Canadian authorities manage to secure the necessary evidence upon which to base a criminal prosecution of the perpetrators, the department will secure the extradition of the men in Canada for punishment, if they shall be found within the United States. Under the existing British extradition treaty, it is an extraditable offense to conspire in the United States to commit a crime against property in Canada.

Unless something unexpected happens, the Nicaraguan canal bill will be adopted by the House of Representatives within the next two weeks, without waiting for the action of the Senate on the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. The bill as adopted, however, will not be the measure that has been urged for some time past. The powerful committee on Rules of the House, which decides what legislation shall be considered and what allowed to go over, refused to permit the canal bill to be taken up without certain modifications which would bring it practically within the lines of the Hay-Pauncefote convention.

It is insisted on this at the direct request of President McKinley, who seriously objected to having his Secretary of State receive the slap in the face that the passage of the bill as it stood would have inflicted.

Accordingly, the Committee on Commerce, which has control of the bill, agreed to amend it as asked. The provision in the bill which directed the President to construct and defend the canal was modified so as to read "construct and protect," and the feature of the measure which directed the Secretary of War "to construct such fortifications for the defence of the canal as will be required for the safety and protection of the canal and harbors" is changed so as to direct the Secretary of War "to make such provisions for the defence of the canal as may be necessary for its safety and protection."

It must not be imagined, however, that the passage of the bill by the House means that it will also be passed by the Senate. There is a question of both domestic and foreign politics involved. The advocates of the shipping bill, which grants heavy subsidies of ships plying under the United States flag, insist that their bills must be passed by the Senate first, and refuse to allow action on the Nicaraguan bill until after this has been done. The Democratic Senators will surely strain every nerve to defeat the shipping bill and will thereby hold back the Nicaraguan bill from action.

The foreign question of course, involves Great Britain. The new treaty has been laid aside until next session and it is highly probable that even then it will not be ratified. To pass the bill while ignoring the treaty would probably be considered insulting to Great Britain and the Senate will therefore prefer to go slow about it.

Great interest is again being taken in the Boer war, though no one any longer doubts the result or looks for any intervention by other powers. "There is reason for believing that one of the things for which General Roberts has been waiting is assistance from the Basutos," says Mr. Henry Lane, of London, England, who is in this city. "If these terrible savage fighters should descend upon the Boer commandos it would probably quickly rid Roberts of them. The British have been restraining these savages for months. If they break loose England will unquestionably say that she did all she could to hold them. There are several reasons why England dreads to invoke this mighty power. One is that all white men are alike to the Basutos, and they will slay British as well as Boers if they can reach them. The Basutos murder their wounded and prisoners. After killing their wounded they drive the death assegai into the hearts and stomachs of the dead bodies. They shrivel, and the drying bodies are eaten by the ants. On the Basutos battlefield none of the swollen bodies which Webster Davis has been describing would be seen. The children are killed by the Basutos and the women would be subjected to the most horrible treatment before being killed. There will be a cry of horror arising from all civilized countries if these warriors begin their awful butcheries."

Commercial Agent Johnson writes from Stanbridge, March 17, 1900:

"The establishment of a $500,000 factory for the manufacture of best-foot sugar in Canada will, it is said, be shortly undertaken by American capitalists, who are working with Messrs. J. E. Ask with and James Fowler, of Ottawa, in the interest of the enterprise. The factory will be located in Ontario and will be capable of handling 500 tons of beets daily. The Canadian Government is to be asked to place a bounty on the production of best sugar in Canada, and this the promoters of the company claim, will facilitate the establishment in Canada of a great many other factories for making best sugar."

Consul-General Turner, of Ottawa, on March 28, 1900, writes: "Hon. Sidney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, gave notice yesterday in the House of Commons that the Department of agriculture was to amend the act relating to the San Jose scale and allow the importation of shrubs, etc., now prohibited, under certain conditions of fumigation, and that fumigating station would be established in several points in Canada."

E. G. Siggers, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C., U. S. A., reports the following patents granted by the U. S. Patent Office, April 17, 1900, to inventors residing in the Dominion of Canada. He will mail copy of specification and drawings of any patent for 10 cents. Postage stamps will not be accepted.

Local Happenings.

Items of Local Interest Carefully Prepared by the Gazette's "Man About Town."

DEATH OF AN INFANT.—The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hamilton, who now reside at Oranog, died on Saturday last.

By KENDRICK'S LINIMENT.

PREACHED IN JEMSEG.—Rev. John Hughes, of St. John, preached in Jemseg on Sunday last.

NEXT WEEK.—Look for the advt. of B. Myers in the next issue of the GAZETTE.

MOVING TO GAGETOWN.—Judge Ebbett will move his family to Gagetown this week. He will occupy the DeVeber Neales cottage.

ON HER SUMMER ROUTE.—The Steer. May Queen will go on her summer route to Salmon River on Wednesday, May 2. It is reported that the Grand Lake is nearly clear of ice.

FOR ACTUAL VALUE Union Blend Teas appear to have no equal.

METHODS CHURCH SUNDAY APPOINTMENTS.—Rev. I. N. Parker, pastor. Services will be held at Burton, Pico Grove, at 10.30 a. m.; Shirley at 2.30 p. m.; Oranog at 7 o'clock p. m.

DR. H. J. PUGLEY, V. S., the skillful young operator will make a tour through the Counties of Sunbury and Queens beginning May 7th. This young man is accredited as a castrator and will be pleased to accommodate the public in any line of the Veterinary Profession.

FOR PAINS and lameness use Kendrick's Liniment.

MOVED TO THE U. S.—The Rev. W. J. Blackney, who has been stationed at Jemseg during the past few years, left last week for Boston accompanied by his family.

WATER FALLING.—The water in the river has fallen four inches since Sunday and is still falling. The cold weather of the past few days has been the cause of the fall. It is expected if a warm rain should come that the water will rise again.

ARROW DAY.—In accordance with the provisions of Regulation 20 (2) of the School Law Manual, I hereby appoint Friday, May 18th, to be observed as Arrow Day. Teachers will please to observe the conditions referred to in the section above named, Sub-Section (b).

R. P. STREETS, Inspector of District No. 3. April 23, 1900.

BIG FIRE.—The greater part of the City of Hull, Quebec, and that part of the city of Ottawa near the river, were swept by fire last week. The damage is estimated at $15,000,000. Several persons were burned to death and thousands of people rendered homeless. About 1,500 buildings were destroyed. The great works of T. E. Eddy, of Hull, were destroyed.

PURCHASED A STEER.—The Steer "Fanny," recently purchased by Capt. J. Bridges, arrived here on Monday morning. Capt. Bridges will command her. She is a very fine steamer, and is a little larger than the Metello. The Metello is now at Indiantown undergoing repairs to her machinery.

MCMULLIN & JORDAN.—In today's issue of the GAZETTE will be found the advertisement of the firm of McMullin & Jordan, Hardware Merchants of Indiantown. Any person wishing to purchase hardware of any kind would do well to inspect their stock before purchasing elsewhere. They also carry agricultural implements, and shoe makers' supplies.

LOYALTY.—On Sabbath evening last the Rev. I. N. Parker preached a sermon on the duties and influence of women, and as he appropriately referred in the middle of his discourse to Her Majesty the Queen, the large congregation present arose and sang the National Anthem with great enthusiasm, commencing in the middle of the sentence, as he was saying "God bless our noble Queen."

A FINE STORE.—Mr. C. B. Pidgeon has moved into his new store at Indiantown, which has been built on the old site. The store is a very fine brick structure and is a credit to that place. Mr. Pidgeon spared no expense in making his store an up-to-date one. He has one of the best assorted stocks of boots, shoes, clothing, gent's furnishings, etc., to be found in the city. The store is neatly arranged, with ample accommodation for carrying an immense stock of boots and shoes, and hat fixings, that cannot be surpassed in the city of St. John, in fact, they are the finest in the city. Mr. Pidgeon also employs a number of hands in the tailoring department of his business. Mr. J. V. Forbes, who is well known on the St. John River, is employed in Mr. Pidgeon's store.

THE STEAMER.—The May Queen arrived here on Tuesday afternoon, 24th ult., being the same day that she made her first trip last year. She has been thoroughly repaired during the winter and has received a fine coat of paint and presents a very neat appearance. The officers are the same as last year, except the engineer. The Star Line steamers have been repaired and repainted during the winter and went on the regular route on Wednesday. The mail was transferred to the new route on the above day.

DROWNING ACCIDENT.—A sad drowning accident occurred at Nauviguank, Kings Co., Friday night, while two young men, by name of George Darling and Wilnot Scriber were out in a small canoe shooting muskrats. While firing the gun the canoe was upset and both were thrown into the water. After struggling a few minutes in the water, Darling sank, but Scriber clung to the boat, and was rescued by Robert Prince and John Porter. Scriber was nearly gone and had a narrow escape. Kind friends turned out and grappled for the body, which was found about one o'clock and taken to the home of his parents.

There Are Others, But only use Kendrick's Liniment. The greatest Modern household Remedy.

A PLEASANT EVENING.—A very pleasant time was spent at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cooper on Friday evening last, the occasion being a party given by their daughter, Miss Gertrude Cooper. About forty invited guests were present. All the various games were played, and a number of musical selections were well rendered, and formed a pleasing feature of the evening's entertainment. Ice cream and cake were passed round about 11 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Cooper and family did everything in their power to make their guests enjoy themselves and feel at home. The party dispersed about 12 o'clock, all expressing their delight with the evening's entertainment.

MAY DELINEATOR.—A new form of needlework, very beautiful in its results, is shown in the May Delineator. Instead of accomplishing embroidery by colored stitches of various lengths, as heretofore, very pretty results are obtained by sewing carefully to a proper back ground small strips of colored silk cut in the shape of leaves or petals or stalks. A most attractive feature of the article describing this piece of work, is that there is a full page printed in colors showing the effect of this dainty idea. Thackeray once wrote, "Reckon among the blessings which Heaven hath bestowed on thee, the love of faithful women. Purify thine own heart and try to make it worthy of theirs. All the prizes of life are nothing compared to that one. All the rewards of ambition, wealth, pleasure, only vanity and disappointment, grasped at greedily, fought over fiercely, and over and over again found worthless by the universe." Such were the ideals that had hearted but cheerful visaged Thackeray worshipped. His own experience with married life was unutterably sad; for though his wife was living, yet he suffered the pang of a widower for 23 years. His wife, after 23 years in the insane asylum, died only six years ago. The pathos of it is very tenderly told by Clara E. Laughlin in the May issue of the Delineator.

IN THE MONTH OF MAY

Paine's Celery Compound

Is The Great Banisher of Sickness and Disease.

IT HAS BECOME THE POPULAR REMEDY IN EVERY HOME.

In the month of May we find thousands of tired, rundown, weary and half-sick men and women who are not in a condition to cope with the work and duties of every day life.

Some suffer from sleeplessness, nervous ailments, neuralgia, rheumatism, dyspepsia, liver and kidney troubles; others, owing to an impure and poisoned condition of the blood are suffering from unsightly eruptions and skin diseases.

Paine's Celery Compound is the only true and trusted medicine for the present season. It purifies and enriches the blood, feeds and braces the nerves, builds up the weakened body, corrects digestion, gives mental vigor, bright eyes, clean skin and sweet sleep.

Physicians are daily prescribing Paine's Celery Compound in Canada and hundreds of druggists strongly recommend it to their customers.

Try the effects of a couple of bottles of Paine's Celery Compound. If you would build up physically and mentally for the coming summer, Paine's Celery Compound is the world's leading and curing medicine; "it makes sick people well."

WAR NEWS

TORONTO, April 27.—(Special)—The Telegram's cable from London says Colonel W. D. Otter, commanding the First Royal Canadian Regiment, was slightly wounded in the action which General Hamilton's division fought at Israel's Point, Wednesday.

All despatches in the London papers credit the Canadians with doing particularly well in the action at Israel's Point on Wednesday.

WATERLOO, Wednesday night, April 26.—The Boers, having become emboldened, shelled the village and the British trenches, and it became necessary to give them a lesson and to ascertain their strength.

Monday night, Col. Paget placed several guns on the river bank under cover of darkness, within 1,000 yards of the Boer trenches across the river. The horses and carriages were withdrawn beyond range, and at daybreak the British opened a heavy bombardment with shrapnel and highballs.

The Boers were taken completely by surprise, but they replied with fire guns, including a 40-pounder. A heavy rifle fire was opened at the same time. The duel continued many hours, the Boers finally evacuating the position with it believed, considerable loss.

There were no casualties on the British side. During the evening the guns were safely withdrawn. The morning today showed that the Boer lager had been removed far back to the eastward.

LONDON, April 26, midnight.—The war office publishes the following despatch from Lord Roberts, dated Bloemfontein, April 26:

"Gen. Ian Hamilton yesterday drove the enemy off a strong position at Israel's Point by well conceived turning movement, which was admirably carried out by Gen. Ridley, commander of the Second Mounted Infantry Brigade, and Gen. Smith-Dorrien, commanding the 18th Brigade. These troops are today advancing toward Thaba N'chu.

"Our losses were slight, only one yet reported—Major Marshall, Grahamstown Mounted Rifles, severe wound in the shoulder."

LONDON, April 25.—The war office has issued the following from Lord Roberts, dated Bloemfontein, April 25, 3.25 p. m.:

"The enemy retired from in front of Wepener, last night and this morning fled northward along the Ladybrand Road."

"Their number was between 4,000 and 5,000."

LONDON, April 25, 11.05 p. m.—It is officially announced that Wepener has been relieved.

CARE TOWN, Thursday, April 26.—The relief of Col. Dalgety was accomplished by Gen. Brabant.

LONDON, April 26—5 a. m.—It is now apparent that the chances of Lord Roberts catching the retreating Boers in a net are very slender. The Boers have everywhere retired at the very first pressure of the British advance, and the hope that General Randle would be able to induce them to remain at Dewar's Dorp until they had been forced to fight or to surrender has been disappointed.

No attempt was made to pursue the command retreating from Wepener. Everything now depends upon the progress of General French's cavalry brigades, but they are entering a very difficult, hilly and practically unknown country.

The cavalry have already had a long march over heavy and sandy roads; and nothing is known regarding the condition of the horses. In any case it is now a race between the federals and the forces of General French and General Hamilton.

The slowness of the recent movements of the British infantry and previous experience of the ability of the Boers to move rapidly with guns and baggage over their own country, leads to a belief that Lord Roberts' enveloping operations will fail and will have to be repeated further north.

At the most he will perhaps capture some Boer guns and baggage and harry the retreating burghers.

Considerable results have been attained in the relief of Wepener and in clearing the southern corner of the Free State of Boers; but the Boer army, whatever its strength, has still to be dealt with.

Besides the casualties among the men, the Boer bombardment of Colonel Dalgety's position wrought great havoc among the cattle and horses.

The Garrison could have held out for another fortnight, but it is in no condition to render much assistance in pursuing the Boers.

There is little news from other quarters. The inhabitants of Mafeking are now on a daily ration of two pints of soup and two quarts of "skilly."

CHAPTER I.

"What are you saying, Miss Heath? Pray give us all the benefit of your remarks."

The speaker, a young man of some five-and-twenty summers, was lazily reclining on the grass-carpeted ground, his back resting against a stone, fallen at some distant period from the ruined tower that furnished the shade in which the whole party were grouped.

It was a picnic-party. The meal being finished, the partakers thereof had left the turf enclosure which had served as a dining-room, to settle down in this shady corner, here to wait until the heat should diminish, for the sun was shining with almost tropical intensity.

"Certainly, Mr. Emerson," said the young lady addressed, who made an agreeable picture, in her pink cotton dress, shown up by the dark background of ivy. "I merely said that I know why Nellie Heriot is not here. Her nerves have not recovered since the fright she had the day before yesterday."

"Indeed!" drawled a young Hercules, whose eyes had been glued to the fair speaker for some time. "How interesting! What was it?"

"A ghost!" asked the youngest girl present.

"Or a spirit-message through the dining-room table!" asked Emerson, solemnly.

"Neither," said Phyllis Heath. "She met with a tramp when out walking, and he terrified her into giving him everything of any value she had about her—watch, rings, purse, and a little locket she wore round her neck. Silly girl, to go for a long walk alone. I never do!"

"I should think not!" said Hercules, otherwise Carter Abbott.

"But I wonder," remarked a quiet girl in brown, "that she did not scream for help or run away. Phyllis says she was so frightened that she handed over everything like a lamb."

"How dreadful!" said another. "It makes one feel quite nervous."

"Miss Heriot must be rather foolish, I think," stily said Prudence Heath, elder sister to Phyllis.

"What should you have done in her place, Miss Heath, if I may venture to ask?" And the dark eyes of Kane Emerson danced mischievously under the hat he had pulled low, to ward off a passing sunbeam which had squeezed its way through a clink in the old gray pile.

"I never walk alone," Prudence curtly replied.

"I should have fainted, I'm sure," Kane said, looking at Phyllis.

"Don't doubt it, my dear," he said, drily, "especially if you saw help coming."

Lottie laughed.

"How disagreeable and sarcastic brothers are! You are very silent, Joan! What are you thinking? What would you have done?"

She turned as she spoke to a tall, fair graceful girl, seated upon a projecting cornice of stone. Her large hat lay on her knee, that she might more conveniently lean her head against the hard old wall.

Many eyes followed Lottie's in the pause that followed her question, but the ones that contained the most interest were those of Kane Emerson and of Fred Lenthall, his friend, a thoughtful-looking man of apparently thirty.

"I would not have given up a thing," said Joan, with a half-smiling smile. "I should have knocked the fellow down."

A burst of laughter followed, but Emerson said, under his breath:

"By George! I believe she certainly would!"

"That comes of going in for gymnastics," said Phyllis Heath, looking pensively at her own little delicate wrist. "I am afraid that if I hit a man I shouldn't hurt him."

Joan's red lips took a more disdainful curve, but Carter Abbott, who had been gradually edging himself nearer to the object of his intense admiration, contrived to whisper:

"Wouldn't you, though! You've hit me and it hurts awfully."

Phyllis ignored him, and continued to Joan:

"What a pity you're not a man, dear. I'm quite afraid of you, I declare, you are so fearfully strong and masculine."

"The little humbug!" said Emerson aside to his friend, and added aloud:

"If that is true, Miss Kennet, you will not mind climbing with me to the top of one of the towers. The view is worth the trouble. Are you too much afraid of the heat?"

"Oh, no. I am quite willing," said Joan, rising, in perfect unconsciousness of the cloud that instantly darkened the brow of Fred Lenthall. "Come, Lottie, and she passed her arm through that of Kane's sister, "I know you are not more afraid of freckles than I am."

The cloud passed from the face of Lenthall, to rest for a second on that of Emerson, who, however, was equal to the occasion.

"Fred," he said, instantly, "you must come and help Lottie up the difficult steps."

The four were soon slowly mounting the dark, worn stone stairs. They paused to take breath at the first remains of a landing, and looked out from a deep embrasure at the blue lily-covered, old moat.

"Now, Mr. Lenthall," said Lottie, "let us be in front this time. I know we can get up more quickly than they do."

He was compelled to follow. Joan was about to do the same, when Emerson stopped her.

"Wait a minute, please, Miss Kennet, and let us rest on this window-sill," he said, suiting the action to the word. "I twisted my ankle slightly coming up. It will be all right directly."

"How unfortunate!" said Joan, sitting down as far from him as the width of the niche would allow.

"Quite the contrary. Any pain would be welcome, if it kept you always by my side."

"Compliments are wasted on me, Mr. Emerson."

"That was no compliment, but the plain truth."

"You are so much given to small fictions," Joan said, with a quiet smile, "that I never know when you are speaking truth. I am compelled to take refuge in believing nothing you say."

Emerson looked vexed and mortified. "That is rather harsh. I don't think I quite deserve it."

Joan arose.

"I will go on to the top," she said, "and you can join us on the way down."

"Don't go yet," he entreated, following her to the rude staircase. "Do listen to me for five minutes."

"I have heard enough fiction for one day. I have a great dislike to being taken in, Mr. Emerson."

"What do you mean?—Oh! my ankle. Well, I will own that was a little bit of invention to keep you—"

She was already up some steps, so he had to give up the idea of saying more. He stood for a moment, frowning and silent, then bounded up in pursuit.

Some few days after this Joan Kennet was walking homeward in the cool evening after an afternoon spent with a friend.

The lower edge of the sun was just touching the purple horizon, and the portions of the landscape that lay highest were suffused with ruddy orange light.

The lane was a lonely one, but Joan was not nervous. She lingered to let her eyes dwell on the soft alternation of the gold and purple tints, nor did she hurry when she heard behind her the heavy tread of a man.

A shuffling, shuffling tread it was, its sound accompanied by a horse cough. It came nearer and nearer, and then she was aware of a thick and husky voice addressing her in a whining monotone:

"Poor man—can't get any work—got any coppers to spare, kind lady? Wife and eight little children—"

Joan's hand at once sought her pocket. But before she could produce anything therefrom, her watch-chain was clutched; it snapped at her hasty movement to escape, but the man, a tramp by his appearance, made another snatch.

Joan was hardly conscious of what she did. She only remembered afterwards that a hand was for a moment on her wrist; that she exerted all her strength in a fierce thrust; saw her adversary lose his footing and stumble back into a ditch by the roadside; and that she fled with all the speed of which she was capable.

Her assailant was gathering himself up from amongst the nettles, when he found himself grasped by the throat, and Fred Lenthall, breathless with running, panted:

"You cowardly ruffian—how dare you!"

A brief scuffle ensued. Then the tramp was thrown heavily to the ground.

uncovered head and tattered coat, told her the truth. Her face changed, and she walked on without a word.

"Miss Kennet," he said, again, "I hope you were not really alarmed?"

No reply.

"You are offended, I see," said Emerson, keeping by her side. "But Joan humbly apologizes. It was what you said at the castle the other day that put the idea into my head."

Still there was no response.

"I wish I hadn't done it," he said, gloomily. "I am always putting my foot in it with you. Do speak, unless you want me to blow out my brains. No, don't go in yet—not till you have forgiven me."

He laid his hand on the gate, and held it shut, waiting for a reply. But Joan merely looked him coldly over, with an inward inclination to laugh at his odd appearance.

"How could I tell you would take it so seriously?" and Kane opened the gate, finding she was still dumb.

Joan passed through, then half turned.

"I think," she said, with energy, "there are few things more contemptible than a practical joke."

"What an idiot I am!" thought the young man, as she disappeared.

He stood leaning on the gate-post for awhile, absorbed in thought.

The moon was rising as he walked back. He scarcely raised his eyes from the ground, but kicked the stones along as he went, as though they had had a share in his discomfiture.

"Hi!"

He looked up. The call came from Lenthall, who, with his eyes between his lips, was sitting on the stile.

"Wall!"

He waited until Fred Lenthall came to his side.

"Emerson," said the latter, looking him over. "if it pleases you to make yourself look like a stupid, pray do so. But, if you frighten Miss Kennet again like this, you shall answer for it to me."

"Indeed," said Kane, coolly. "How long has it taken you to compose that speech?"

"Wherever you acquired a taste," Lenthall went on, ignoring the last remark, "for this vulgar masquerading—"

"Fred, you're an idiot," interrupted his friend. "Don't grand-language me. If you want to punch my head, do it like a man. I'm ready."

He threw off his rough "saber-dine," and made a faint effort of pulling up his shirt-sleeves, but Lenthall did not move.

"You evidently want to be laid up with rheumatism," he said. "The air is full of moisture."

Kane picked up the coarse garment and proceeded to put it on once more.

"You're a nice friend," he said, as they walked on together. "As soon as I am in trouble, you jump on me."

"In trouble?" Lenthall repeated.

"Yes. I've morally offended Miss Kennet. Fred, old man, I'm awfully fond of that girl, and she doesn't care one straw for me."

"I wonder at that," said Fred, drily.

"Well, I don't know, but I don't think it's my fault. I don't think that sort of thing comes from anything you do or say. By Jove, isn't she strong, too. Still, I shouldn't have gone down so easily if I hadn't been just on the edge of the ditch. Oh, here's my hat—rest-through, of course. Capital disguise, wasn't it?"

He picked up the soaked head-gear from the road, and became silent. He was out of humor with himself, while Lenthall would say nothing that would bring back his lost self-respect. The latter was inwardly elated that his friend should have made so false a step with regard to Joan Kennet.

CHAPTER II.

A little group was collected on the smooth lawn at Heathfield, as the Heath family called their pretty, gabled, red-brick house. The occasion was that of a garden party, at which were present nearly all who had been at the picnic at the ruined castle.

The centre of this little group, toward which even the tennis and croquet players cast now and then an inquisitive glance, was the fair Phyllis, in a complete new costume of pink, with hat, gloves and sunshade to match. Her interested listeners were Joan Kennet and her mother, Carter Abbott, Lenthall, and one or two others.

"I suppose," Phyllis was saying, "that he must have been riding carelessly. I was just peeping out of my window, and there he came; looking just a wee bit melancholy, I thought, but perhaps that was only my fancy; I know I am foolishly sentimental."

She gave a quick glance at her large admirer, who tried hard to think of some complimentary remark. However, he had no sooner constructed one beginning: "Well, I sh—"

when Lenthall nipped it in the bud, by saying:

"Pray go on, Miss Heath."

Phyllis complied.

He was just about opposite our house, when his horse stumbled, and then scrambled and seemed to try to save itself, but could not. Down it went on its knees, and Mr. Emerson was thrown completely over its head. I screamed."

She dropped her sunshade on the grass and clasped her pink gloves at the recollection.

Her hearers looked so pale, especially Lenthall and Joan, that she felt encouraged to proceed.

"He came down on his head, with oh! such a horrid thud! And then somehow he and the horse seemed to be all mixed up, and it spralled about trying to get up, and at last did get on to its feet and galloped away. I just saw from the window that there was blood on his face, and that he did not move."

"And what did you do then?" Abbott asked breathlessly.

"Oh, I don't like to tell you," and Phyllis, hung her little head, and looked at the ground. "I am such a little goose. I know. I fainted."

(To Be Continued.)

It is told of a retired farmer that after returning from a Continental tour, on which he had long set his heart, he was narrating one evening to his friend the doctor, how he had visited "the majestic Lake of Geneva and trodden the banks of blue Lemnan."

"Excuse me," interrupted the doctor.

"Lake Geneva and Lake Lemnan are synonymous."

"That, my dear sir," replied the farmer, "I know very well; but are you aware that Lake Lemnan is the more synonymous of the two?"

"Hit do 'pear lak Providence is on my side," said the colored brother. "You know I 'low' my left arm in de sawmill last year?"

"Yes."

"Well, I got $50 damage fer dat, en fo' I'd half spent de money 'long come de railroad en cut off William's leg, en I got so much money for dat I ain't done countin' it yet! If Providence des stan's by me, en dey keep on a-hackin' at us, we'll soon be livin' in a painted house wid two brick chimneys!"

AN EXTRAORDINARILY LIBERAL PROPOSITION.

FOR LESS THAN THE 2 PAPERS AND A 300 PAGE BOOK PRICE OF ONE PAPER

FIRST and properly, in making a choice of reading for the home you select your own home paper. However good may be the reading of other papers, there is none that comes home so closely to you as your local weekly. It is to further increase this interest by adding to our lists that the following liberal proposition is made to subscribers. We have been careful to form combinations only where we knew we were touching safe ground and could thoroughly recommend the publications offered. Read carefully every word of this offer for it means a saving of money to you.

The Montreal Daily Herald

A GREAT METROPOLITAN DAILY

WE are pleased to announce that we have been able to make most extraordinarily liberal arrangements with the publishers of one of the greatest of Canadian dailies—the Montreal Daily Herald.

The Herald has achieved a well-deserved reputation for most enterprising newspapers in the Dominion, and in thousands of home circles is welcomed on account of the great interest it manifests in subjects of special interest to the family. It is admittedly the favorite daily of the women of Canada. To the farmer and business man, it appeals through its accurate market reports and business columns. To the young men, through the attention it bestows on clean, manly sports. To the lover of fiction, through the excellent stories appearing regularly in its columns. To the politician, through the calm and moderate tone of its editorial expressions.

The only reason which prompted the publishers of The Herald to make us the offer, which enables us to club the two papers at the extraordinarily low price given below is their desire to immediately introduce the Daily Herald in large numbers in this neighborhood. The offer they now make will hold good for a limited time only.

It should be mentioned that subscribers to The Herald during the next few months will enjoy to the full the opportunity which this paper is offering to all readers to secure valuable books at merely nominal figures.

The Dominion Cook Book

The Dominion Cook Book

A Copy for Every Subscriber.

IN the best sense of the term this is an Ideal Cook Book—ideal in being a practical book—a book which the housewife will want to keep constantly by her side and can depend on, because of the simplicity and reliability of every recipe. Starting with a chapter on soups, naturally the first course, throughout its three hundred pages and over there are to be found more than 1,000 recipes, winding up with an excellent chapter on sick room cookery. Following the cookery section there is a department entitled "The Doctor," in which are recipes selected from eminent authorities, and which will be found invaluable where the doctor is not readily available. The recipes are numbered throughout the book, and each is prefaced with a list of the ingredients called for by the recipe, rendering it unnecessary for the housewife to read through the entire recipe and make calculation of what is wanted. Size of page is 5 inches by 8 inches, bound in handsome cloth covers. It would be a mistake to confuse this book with any paper-bound cook book that would go to pieces in no time.

Advice to Literary Aspirants.

In submitting manuscript for publication in a magazine, the placing of the author's full name and address at the head of the first sheet and the enclosing of return postage, are universally accepted by editors as sufficiently indicating the fact that the article is to be paid for if it is to be published, or to be returned to the author if it is not acceptable.

The foolish practice of tossing a helpless baby in the air, while it screams with fright and delight, is a most dangerous one.

A physician with a large practice tells the story of a preciously bright child which showed evident delight when tossed in this way by a doting grandfather who was accustomed to play with it every evening, says the Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Cost of a Boy.

I read the other day that it cost five thousand dollars to bring up a city boy and educate him and dress well. I said to myself: "That is because everything in the city has to be bought and living is high."

When you count what a boy eats and what he wears, and the school books he has to have, and the doctor's bills that have to be paid when he gets the measles or the scarlet fever, he will cost his folks at home at least one hundred dollars a year.

Mother soaked my food, made my clothes and washed them, washed and ironed for me when I was a little fellow and whenever I was sick, and she never charged anything for that.

Successful Country Homes.

Every one is interested in a pretty home, and The Ladies' Home Journal is going to picture a number of the best houses—artistically and architecturally—in this country.

It is not well to become so deeply engrossed in the petty cares of housekeeping that we allow our lives to narrow into chains of grooves, nor to bind ourselves to chains of habit that in time we find so hard to break.

Brain worry wears much faster than work, and too much mental work is harmful. The brain wears rapidly, and requires abundant time for rest and repair in sleep.

The quiet honeymoon is to be commended, even though it may result in partial disillusion. It is better to face prosaic facts at the outset, and shape one's course accordingly.

"My husband courted me for five years," once remarked a middle-aged woman, "and we thought we were alike in all our tastes—perfectly in accord in all our sympathies. It took only five days of the honeymoon to find out that we were unlike in everything, and did not care for the same things at all. So we had to begin over again, and became acquainted with each other as we really were. It was trying at first, but we had the mental pliability of youth, and soon learned to make the best of things. Now we are as happy as most people, and have never regretted that our eyes were opened to the truth in time"—New York Telegram.

A $6.00 BOOK FOR ONLY $2.90

Magner's Standard Horse and Stock Book. A complete practical reference for horsemen. This book contains many valuable recipes, including the best of the world. It also contains many illustrations and is most valuable to all who are interested in the horse and stock business.

When making a cake the paper which lines the tin should be removed as soon as the cake is taken out of the oven. When mashing potatoes use hot milk, and if you have been used to using cold you will be surprised at the difference in their lightness.

When in need of a poultice to keep heat but not to "draw" very much, as in neuralgia, use cinnamon instead of mustard. Make and use the same as for the mustard.

A quick way to stop the toothache, if the tooth is a "hollow" one, is to moisten a small bit of cotton in warm water, then dip in soda and place it in the cavity of the tooth.

Nothing will help a sore throat caused by a cold, sooner than a cloth wrung out of cold water and wrapped around the neck or around the throat. Always wrap a thick piece of flannel around the other cloth.

To clean a greasy range rub it while still hot with a piece of rag dipped in turpentine. This removes all grease; and if a drop or two of turpentine is also mixed with the blacking the stove will polish with very little trouble.

When giving cod-liver or castor oil or like substances to either children or adults, let them take a few drops of vinegar in the mouth first; also first dip in vinegar the spoon that you use.

MONCTON 1899 Woolen Mills 1899

I have much pleasure in announcing to my customers and the general public that I will make my annual call with a full line of goods from the above mills which will consist of YARNS, SHIRTINGS, FLANNELS, BLANKETING, RUGGING, HOME-Spun, TWEEDS, OVERCOAT-INGS, AND DRESS GOODS.

These goods need no introduction to you as for the past ten years I have called upon you. You have seen that great im- provements have been made each year in the style, coloring and finish and this year is no exception. I am confident that I can offer you goods not excelled by any mill in the maritime provinces, and as this will be the last season I will call on you in this century I trust you will con- tinue to give me the patronage you have so generously bestowed in the past and as- sist me to make my sales the largest of any year I have had the pleasure of deal- ing with you. Yours very truly, A. D. McLEAN, CAMBRIDGE, April 11, 1899.

A Rare Chance for Business. Owing to ill health I have decided to sell my interest in the Mill at Gagetown Wharf. The building was intended for a grist mill but the upper story, The Rotary and Belts are the best. A 48 inch insert in tooth Saw. Only a few feet from the Public Wharf. There is also in position for work a Maple Leaf Grinder which has only been used a few weeks. For further particulars inquire or write to R. DEB. SCOTT, Gagetown, N. B. St. John, N. B., N. End., Oct. 17th, 1899.

I have opened a branch Dry Store on Bridge Street near Star Line Wharf. Full assortment patent medicines and everything new. Do not forget. I have been pleased with your patronage for thirty (30) years and still desire to wait on and serve you. Yours Obediently, E. J. MAHONEY, P. S. Other store Main Street, corner Adelaide. E. J. M.
