THE HEIR OF Lancewood

CHAPTER XLII.

"It must be," he said to his wife, "because I find life so pleasant and so fair that I dread death, because life ends with it. I was so grieved for your poor friend whom we laid under-ground to-day."

It was one of the saddest in Vivien's life; he had been so true a friend, and he belonged to the sunny past as much as he was associated with her sin.

On the evening of the day after which she had heard the terrible story, she had shut herself into her own room that she might think, what was best for her to do. There was but one thing to be done—that she knew. Lancewood ought to be restored to the young Sir Oswald. Had Gerald lived a few minutes longer, she would have been compelled to promise that; but he had died while the words were on her lips. He had told her in the course of their last interview how it could be arranged—how the boy might be produced through the family solicitor, who would understand that he had been stolen years before. She saw that it was possible, without incriminating herself, to yield up Lancewood to him.

But after her years of possession, when she had given every energy of her heart and soul, all her talents, her patience, time and fortune to the restoration of the home of the Nesles—after years of labor and thought, and with the consciousness that Lancewood was now the finest estate in the county—it seemed to her impossible to yield it. To give it to a strolling player's child, to see it once more laid waste, made desolate, its revenues squandered on a horde of needy foreigners, its glories tarnished—she could not entertain the thought. Honor and honesty, justice and right, pleaded in vain—she could not yield up the place; and so, in willful defiance of right, knowing full well the extent of her crime, banishing the remembrance of the dying face and the pleading eyes, she resolved to continue the sin of her lifetime.

"If he had a different mother," she repeated, over and over again, "I would do it; but Lancewood shall not be the prey of a strolling player, no matter by what name she is known, and her associates."

At the same time she resolved upon doing what she could for the boy; he should have the best of education, the best of assistance. She trusted to her own ready inventiveness for keeping his existence a secret. If the worst came, she could say that he was a boy in whom Gerald Dorman had been warmly interested, and whom, for Gerald's sake, she was befriending. She could always take refuge in that equivocation, although she detested false words.

"It cannot be wrong," she said to herself, with an air of desperation; "the sin would rather lie in allowing Lancewood to be the prey of the spoilers."

The next morning, as she left her dressing-room, she saw her little Arthur waiting for her at the door.

"Mamma," he said, springing up to her, "I told Frank I should have the first kiss—and I have had it."

She took the child in her arms and looked at him long and steadily. They were grave thoughts that passed through her mind then. This sin of hers, this usurpation of another's rights, might extend to the innocent child in her arms. He was one day

Makes Hair Grow

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.

If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

It destroys the dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots. Large, generous bottle for 50 cents.

She looked at the boy's fair, sweet face, and her heart warmed to him with a great love.

"I wish," said Lady St. Just to herself, "that I understood more of these things. How could he suffer for it, when he would be innocent of the facts even?"

She looked at the boy's fair, sweet face, and her heart warmed to him with a great love.

"I would do nothing that should hurt him," she thought, "my beautiful boy."

Then she remembered how proud she had been of him, as one who would inherit the home she loved. Could she take it from this fair-faced boy, and give it to Valerie's son? A thousand times no! Her boy was a true Nesle; he had noble blood in his veins, a noble soul shone in his little face. Rob him for Valerie's son—the boy who in his youth had learned to deceive and to tyrannize? A thousand times no!

"I will keep Lancewood and risk it," she said to herself. "I will keep it for Arthur's sake."

The child clasped his little arms round his mother's neck.

"Mamma," he said, "you look so sad, so serious; have I been naughty?"

"No, my darling," she replied; and the boy hid his face on her neck, for he saw the beautiful dark eyes were filled with tears.

The child ran away to his play, and Lady St. Just went to her daily duties.

She never looked or listened to her own children without thinking of little Oswald, whom she remembered as a child. She had loved him after a fashion because he was her half-brother, and because she had tried so hard to educate him. She wondered what he had grown into—what he was like now—above all, if he had any remembrance of Lancewood. A longing came to her to see him, to know if he believed himself to be Henry Dorman, to know if he had any lingering memory of his former life.

This idea grew upon her until it became a perfect fever. She said to herself that if she once saw him she should be at rest—that if she could speak to him, know something of him, she would not be haunted as she was.

How could she see him—by going to the school where he was? She remembered the name—Dr. Lester's, Hammersmith. She looked in a directory and found the name—"Grove House Academy." She might go there some day when Lord St. Just was occupied. She need not take Joan with her, neither need she take the carriage; she could go in a cab, and return in the same way.

Would the boy recognize her? No, she was sure of that; Gerald never spoke falsely, and he had assured her that Oswald remembered nothing of his former life. She would go, and, if her name were asked for, she could say Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Anything. One thing was quite certain—she must see the boy.

"Vivien," said Lord St. Just, anxiously, "either you are not well or you are plotting some terrible conspiracy—which is it?"

The words were so near the truth that Lady St. Just trembled.

"Why do you say that, Adrian?" she asked.

"My darling, you do not know how you have changed. Hitherto you have been all smiles and sunshine, now you are always thinking so deeply. I never find you reading, writing, playing with the children; whenever I come in you are sitting or standing quite still thinking—always thinking so intently. Do you know that sometimes I enter a room and leave it without your having once seen or heard me? I often speak to you, ask you questions, and you look at me with such vague, dreamy eyes. What is it that occupies all your thoughts?" She tried to smile, to answer him lightly, but she could not. Her lips trembled, her face grew pale.

"You are not well," he said. "You have worked hard for me this year, Vivien. I owe a great part of my success to you—but now you must rest. We will leave London as soon as possible."

She clasped her arms round his neck and kissed his face.

"You are so kind to me, Adrian," she said. "I do not deserve your great love."

And Lord St. Just laughed at the words.

CHAPTER XLIII.

Her husband's words made a great impression on Lady St. Just. She knew they were true. She had room for no other thought in her mind but the thought of the child Oswald. She took note, and found that for hours together she did nothing but think and ponder. She could never have been a real criminal—she had to keep a conscience. She could take Lancewood from this boy because she did not think him worthy to hold it; but she could not forget the boy's existence. She must see him, care for him, advance his interests in life—do anything, in fact, except give him his inheritance.

"One thing is plain," she said to herself; "if I wish to keep my secret, I must not let it absorb me so entirely."

The very expression of her face seemed to have changed; it was full of dreamy, absorbed thought, the life and animation had almost left it.

"I shall be better when I have seen the boy," she thought. "I am haunted by a thousand fears and a thousand thoughts that will be laid as ghosts are laid when I have seen him."

That soon became her one great object, and the day came that brought her a fair chance of achieving it. Lord St. Just went with some friends to Gravesend; there was a government inquiry about some naval matters that required his attention. He would be absent the whole day, and on that day Lady St. Just resolved to go to Hammersmith.

As when she visited Gerald Dorman, she dressed herself as plainly as possible—a black silk dress that showed some signs of wear, a dark travelling cloak, a bonnet with a thick veil.

Thus attired, who would recognize the beautiful and magnificent Lady St. Just?

She contrived to leave the house without being seen, having sent Joan Hubley out previously. She walked some little distance and then took a cab.

"It is a long drive," was the man's comment when she gave the address.

"You shall be well paid for it," she replied, with sublime ignorance of a cabman's peculiarities.

Her heart beat loud and fast as the cab stopped before a large square house standing back from the road and surrounded by trees. "Grove House Academy," she read on the large brass plate.

"You will wait for me," she said, as the man opened the door—"I may be some time."

The man seated himself on his box, took out his newspaper, and mentally congratulated himself on being "in for a good thing."

The door was opened by a footman, who said that Dr. Lester was not in, but that Mr. Hardman, the head-master, was.

"I want to see one of the young gentlemen, Mr. Henry Dorman. Is he here?"

"Yes, please step this way, and I will fetch him," was the reply.

She was shown into a small ante-room, with nothing very cheerful to recommend it—it contained a square table, a few horse-hair chairs, a pair of globes and a large map. All view from the window was cut off by a thick wire blind.

Lady St. Just sat down. Her heart was beating fast, her limbs trembled—she could not stand. She was to see him again, Valerie's son, the child she had deprived of his inheritance, the heir of Lancewood, the descendant of a French strolling player, the boy she had hushed in her arms, had tried to teach, and had given up in despair.

She threw back her heavy veil, and seemed to gasp for breath; her lips burned like fire; then she drew down her veil, and tried to calm her terrible agitation. She heard footsteps.

A tall, elderly gentleman entered the room, who introduced himself as Mr. Hardman, the head-master. He looked curiously at the beautiful face half hidden by the veil.

"You wish to see one of our boys, madam, Henry Dorman? He is an orphan, I believe. May I ask if you know any of his relatives?"

"I knew his mother," she replied. "I should like to see him, although he would not know me. I knew his mother when he was quite a little child."

"We are obliged to be cautious," said Mr. Hardman. "As a rule we require a note from the parents or relations before any one is allowed to see any of the boys. But in this case I can dispense with the formality."

He had recognized the musical, refined voice of a lady. "I will send young Dorman to you, madam," he said, as he quitted the room.

Ah, Heaven, if her heart would beat less wildly—if the clinging mist would but pass from before her eyes—if her trembling hands would but grow still!

When had she seen Oswald last? She remembered the day and the hour. He had said a lesson correctly to poor dead Gerald, and, as a reward, she gave him a ball he had been longing for.

"You are a good sister, Vivien," he had said, as he ran laughing from the room. A good sister! The words returned to her with a keen pang.

Before the door opened she heard a laughing voice say—

"Some one to see me, James? You must be mistaken. No one ever comes to see me."

"You will see for yourself, Master Dorman," was the answer; and then he stood before her.

Lessen Your Living Expenses!

"Be economical," is the cry in England, and this slogan has the same significance in Canada. We all must economize. There is more actual waste in our dress expenses than any other item. When a garment becomes soiled we throw it aside, when for a few cents it could be restored to original freshness and beauty by Dry Cleaning. A saving of at least 35 per cent. in the expense of dressing is possible by using the processes of Dry Cleaning and Dyeing.

Our agents will gladly give you full particulars.

Previous to 9 A.M.

OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Sept. 2.
The Governor, Newfoundland:
General Hamilton reports the capture in the Gallipoli Peninsula of an important position commanding the Anafarta Valley, and an appreciable gain of ground by the Anzacs (Australian and New Zealand Army Corps).
The Russian Government report desperate fighting between Vilna and the Niemen with some success. In Galicia also they captured a hundred officers and seven thousand men.
In the Cameroons further progress has been made and Gaschaka occupied.

BONAR LAW.

TURKS MASSACRE AMERICAN SUBJECTS.
LONDON, Sept. 2.
A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Athens says: Travellers arriving from Constantinople announce that on Friday last the Turks burned the town of Ismid and massacred a large number of American inhabitants.

RESIGNATION OF VON TIRPITZ REPORTED.

LONDON, Sept. 2.
An Amsterdam despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says that it is reported that Admiral Von Tirpitz, the German Minister of Marine, will resign, and be succeeded by Admiral Von Pohl, now chief of the Admiralty staff and commander of the German battle fleet.

LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, Sept. 2.
Except for the region of Riga, where the Russians are presenting a solid front to Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, the Austro-German offensive is again making headway, as they have been doing for the past four months, and the Russian troops have resumed the withdrawal movement.
The western forts of Grodno have been evacuated after two of them were destroyed by heavy guns and stormed by German infantry. It is considered extremely likely that the whole fortress already has been left to its fate, for it was no longer considered after the Germans had crossed the Grodno-Vilna railway, which they did at two points, and had penetrated the forest of Bielich.

be the next objective of the Austro-Germans on this front.
In the southeast, Vienna also reports a series of successes which have practically driven the Russians out of Galicia. They now only hold a narrow strip between the Sereth River and Bessarabia across the border of the latter province, and the Austrians state that the Russians might indicate a further retreat. Thus the hopes raised by the Allied countries by recent successes of the Russians at least making a stand, appear to have been dissipated.

Everywhere the Austro-Germans claim to be advancing, but they have not captured any great number of men or guns. The Russian guns have been kept well behind the infantry, and are quickly moved back when the rearwards are unable to longer hold off the invaders.
There is some talk of an advance on Kiev, but the distance to that city is considerable, and the country over which it would have to be made, is difficult for the movement of troops.
On the western front the Germans claim to have recovered trenches which they lost during the middle of August in the Vosges, while the French simply refer to heavy artillery engagements, which have been in progress for the last nine days, but with no suggestion what they fore-shadow.

Increased activity in the Dardanelles is shown in all official reports. Besides their success in capturing an important position near Euboea Bay, which dominates one of the Turkish lines of communication, the British have sunk four more Turkish transports, while the fire of ships across the Gallipoli Peninsula made the movement of troops more difficult.
According to the Turks, minesweepers have been busy at the entrance to the Straits, suggesting an attack is contemplated by the Allies from another direction.
A despatch from Rome says that the Austrians have evacuated Rovereto, which the Italian advances threatened to cut off.

HAGUE TO ADJUST CLAIMS.

BERLIN, Sept. 3.
Berlin, according to Count von Bernstorff's instructions, offers to submit claims for compensation arising out of the Lusitania and Arabic cases to the Hague for adjustment.

MORE PEACE TALK.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.
Cardinal Gibbons to-day presented President Wilson a message from the Benedictine regarding the peace of Europe. Later he saw Secretary Lansing on the same subject. After a conference at the White House, the cardinal announced that he had discussed the probabilities of peace with the President, and had conveyed a message from the Pope on the question of his intervention at this time. Cardinal Gibbons declared that the settlement of the submarine issues between the States and Germany had greatly aided the cause of peace, and had placed the States in a very advantageous position to be of service in bringing to an end the conflict abroad. He said he had informed the President that he believed this to be true. While the Cardinal would not go into the details regarding his message from the Pope, it was indicated that it was in the nature of a suggestion to neutral powers to join with the Vatican in making further efforts to restore peace. Cardinal Gibbons was with the President nearly half an hour, and after leaving the White House his face was wreathed with smiles as he greeted inquirers and without being questioned, said he had discussed peace with the President. "Our talk was highly satisfactory, and I am very much pleased with my reception from the President," said the Cardinal. "We went over the entire situation, but I cannot reveal the details of our conversation at this time. Probably more will be made public in the near future."

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

LONDON, Sept. 3.
Plans for correcting the abnormal exchange situation and putting on a stable basis the entire machinery of setting trade balances between America and Europe will be classified within the next few days on the arrival at New York of the French and British financial commissions, meanwhile it is known the commissions are in a position to correct some misapprehensions which are believed to exist in the States concerning the British, French and Russian dependence on America. One of the best informed authorities said to-day: "The idea seems to prevail in New York that we are on our knees begging America to come to our assistance. The situation is exactly the reverse. America wants to sell Europe its goods, and if the Americans hope to continue their sales they must find the means of giving the usual credit and stabilizing exchange." Concerning government purchases, not the slightest question has been raised regarding unbounded resources of the government, permitting it to make payments as fast as required. This it is pointed out, is likely to be accomplished by the readiness of the British authorities to pay in American gold eagles, if any question exists regarding the rate of exchange in New York to-morrow, as expected, but will do so on Tuesday next, the day her consort should arrive here, coming via Halifax.

torily accomplished, so as to preserve normal and healthy financial conditions.

EXCHANGE ADJUSTING ITSELF.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.
Recovery of foreign money values in this market was as spectacular and swift to-day as was its recent decline. Sterling gained eight and one-fourth cents from last night's quotation, touching $4.52 1/2 at the close. France gained 14 cents on the day's transactions, going $5.95. Lire showed an improvement of nine cents. To-day's sudden rally clarified the situation for the time being, and led to the belief that rates are nearly approaching normal, which would soon be established, as the arrival of British and French delegates here within the next few days is anticipated. This it was thought here, a wholesome effect, and the market should lead further gains to-morrow.

BRITISH STEAMER SUNK.

LONDON, Sept. 2.
The British steamer Sakona, 1,189 tons, owned in Leith, has been sunk. Three members of the crew are missing.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, Sept. 2.
The French War Office this afternoon gave out the following: Fighting with hand grenades occurred in the course of the night in the vicinity of Seiwick. There were several artillery engagements in the sector of Neuville near Roye. In the Vosges fighting with bombs occurred at Schratsz Mannel.

TURKISH TRANSPORTS SUNK.

PARIS, Sept. 2.
An announcement was made here to-day officially as follows: In the Dardanelles during the last week of August, it has been calm throughout on the southern front. In the northern zone the British troops delivered successful attacks which put them in possession of a hillock to the west of Buavick Anafarta, which had been contested keenly. To the transport sank on the 20th August by one of our aviators in the anchorage at Achaahliman. It is necessary to send four transports torpedoed by British submarines, two of them at the same point and two others between Gallipoli and Hagaz. The guns of the battleships have hit several vessels anchored in the Straits.

RESIGNS VICE-PRESIDENCY.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 2.
Li Yun Hong has resigned the Vice-Presidency of the Chinese Republic. The interpretation placed upon this act is that it is preparatory to the establishing of a Monarchy.

Stephano's Repairs Finished

It was expected that the repairs to the Red Cross liner Stephano, which was into dry dock at New York, would occupy a longer time than it has. The ship is now off the stocks and loading freight for here, the work having been done with all possible despatch. She is supposed to leave New York at 2 o'clock this afternoon direct for St. John's, omitting to call at Halifax, her regular visiting port. She will be due to reach here on Tuesday next, bringing an unusually large general cargo. In order that both ships may keep on schedule for the remainder of the season on the Red Cross route, the Florizel will not leave New York to-morrow, as expected, but will do so on Tuesday next, the day her consort should arrive here, coming via Halifax.

Amusements.

A FINE JAPANESE PHOTO PLAY AT THE CRESCENT.

The Crescent Picture Palace to-day shows a fine Japanese photo play: "The Love of Oro Saw," this is a beautiful scenic picture and contains an interesting love story. "The Unknown Country" is a great Lubin mystery drama. "All for Business" is a gripping domestic drama, a fine Biograph production. "Cappia Turns the Tables," is a comedy drama acted by the Selig Company. Two great comedies are: "Love's Acid Test" and "Which Ham is Schmappop?" The usual extra pictures will be shown at the big matinee on Saturday. Mr. Harvey Collins sings two numbers: "I love the Way," and "Somebody Knows." This is a great show don't fail to see it.

BRITISH THEATRE.

The most up-to-the-minute programme has been arranged at the above house—since its inception—commencing to-day. Five extraordinary pictures will be shown, apart from which Madame Olive Timmons will sing two delightful songs and will be accompanied by that "Prince of accompanists," Mr. A. H. Allen. This is an entertainment which nobody can afford to miss.
"THE LEECH" IS A GREAT MELODRAMA.
The Nickel Theatre has another most attractive programme for this evening which includes a powerful two-act melo-drama entitled "The Leech." This is a splendid story and the brilliant actress Alice Joyce who appears in the leading character, gives a very clever impersonation. "The Hazards of Helen" will be continued. To-day's chapter is a most thrilling one. Helen swims across a swollen river, rushes over a burning bridge and saves two trains. There are three other pictures of the highest quality. The bumper matinee for children takes place to-morrow afternoon when extra pictures will be shown.

OUR LADS NOW IN EGYPT.

You must see your sons and brothers at Rossleys East End Theatre on Monday. Several regiments will be seen all to fight for King and Country, and among them the Nfld. boys, and you will see them marching and looking as good as the best of them; very clear and distinct. Take this chance of seeing them, you don't know when you may see them again. The splendid programme at Rossleys to-night will be sure to please. There are good pictures, sketches, songs. On Saturday the children's matinee "Punch and Judy" in a new act, "Who Killed Cock Robin," and Don the wonderful performance, but could not resist a Chaplin will go through some of his tricks. Look out for the high class artists coming, the famous Ian MacKenzie and his lady artists.

How to Protect the Skin

To keep the skin delicate and transparent, as to the natural colouring, protect it by using Nyal's Face Cream.
Before going out wash with Face Cream Soap, then rub the Cream well into the pores, and you can spend a day out of doors without the slightest injury to the skin.
For a few days, with every 25c. crock of Nyal's Face Cream sold, we will give a trial size cake of Nyal's Face Cream Soap.

Our Volunteers.

The total number of volunteers, enrolled to date is 2226, the following having enlisted with the Reserve Force yesterday:
Geo. Morris, Lower Island Cove.
John Turrett, St. George's.
Edward J. Jesso, Wood's Island.
Jno. Ash, Hart's Hr.
Rustus Short, Hart's Hr.
Isaac Mitchellmore, Green Island Cove.
Albert V. Coles, Safe Cove.
Yesterday was spent principally at Swedish exercises indoors. In the afternoon one section went for a route march and a number of the recruits had rifle practice at the Highlanders' Armoury.

Oetogenarian Dead.

The death occurred a week ago at Carbonar of Mrs. Ellen Cawl, a well known and esteemed resident of that town. Deceased was the widow of the late Richard Cawl, and was well known for her kindness. She had reached the advanced age of 82. She is survived by one son, William, who is at present captain of a steamer running in the Panama Canal, and three daughters, Mrs. William Morrissey, Mrs. A. Alexander, of New York and Mrs. Joseph Donnelly, of Carbonar.

SHALE DISCOVERY.—A discovery of oil shale of good quality has been made at Flat Bay, according to the Western Star.

The Nfld. Regiment.

No. 31 Newfoundland Contingent, Badajos Barracks, Wellington Lines, Aldershot, August 15, 1915.

Sir,—
I have the honour to inform Your Excellency that Lord Kitchener, at an inspection of the 22nd Division, to which the Regiment is at present attached, on the 12th inst, publicly informed the Regiment that he was sending it to the Dardanelles. The Field Marshal inspected the Regiment very fully and made favorable comments upon it.
Under War Office Regulations the Battalion is allowed to take eight officers supernumerary to the Establishment to the front.
I have etc.
The Regiment is, R. de H. BURTON, Lieut.-Colonel.

His Excellency,
Sir Walter E. Davidson, K.C.M.G., Governor & Commander-in-Chief Newfoundland.

No. 42 Newfoundland Contingent, Badajos Barracks, Wellington Lines, Aldershot, August 17, 1915.

Sir,—
I have the honour to report that Captain Bernard, Lieut. J. Rendell and Knight, and one hundred other ranks, formed the Guard of Honour at the funeral of the Royal Highness the King, this morning. His Majesty inspected the Guard of Honour and sent message of congratulation to me on the fine appearance of the men and, amongst other things, said that he highly appreciated the good work of Newfoundland. His Majesty also saw the Guard pass him in four.
The Regiment is, at the moment of writing, completing mobilization. Two officers, forty men and eighty mules leave for the port of embarkation this evening.
I have etc.
The Regiment is, R. de H. BURTON, Lieut.-Colonel.

His Excellency,
Sir Walter E. Davidson, K.C.M.G., Governor & Commander-in-Chief Newfoundland.

Extract from Letter of Major W. H. Frazer.

14th August, 1915.
"I was delighted with the men—their appearance and physique is splendid. There is no regiment here that can compare with them except the Scots Guards, they have become very soldierly and have shown one's strong arm. I saw them march in at noon after being out marching and manoeuvring since 6.30 and they came along in a manner which was most impressive. I am giving you a general impression as I know you will be interested. The officers have improved in dress and bearing and seem to be acquiring the Army style in their corporate life. All together they are a regiment anyone should be proud to command."

Lord Kitchener, as you know, inspected them on Thursday, the 12th. I have told them they would sail for the Dardanelles shortly—wherever they go and given a chance they will make a name for themselves. I rejoice in the fact that Warwick today, by the way, whilst home, was offered the command of one of the 22nd Division's 19th B.R.R. This I accepted subject to the War Office wiring and receiving General Fashawe's sanction to the arrangement. The Battalion is about 700 strong and recruits coming in fast, but it would mean four months hard training before I could advise you of this. I will advise you formally."

Acid Removed.

Mr. James Pratt, who had been attending to the disposal of a quantity of sulphuric acid landed from the De-sola and stored near Donovan's, returned to the city last night, having completed the work. The acid has been leaking from the packages for some time past, causing a very disagreeable odor and it was decided to dispose of what remained in the most practical way. Mr. Pratt, who was awarded the contract, has dug a deep trench and buried the noxious stuff far below the surface.

Here and There.

LOCAL FISHERY.—Some of the hook and line fishers fished a fair share of codfish on the local grounds yesterday and this morning, though there is still an entire absence of squid baiting. Several of the fishermen say that cod is as plentiful as at any time this season but squid bait is needed to catch them. Never before have squid been so late in striking in.

NORWEGIAN LOADS PIT PROPS.—The s.s. Korstford is expected to finish landing her salt cargo to-morrow evening and sails from here on Tuesday next for Belle Vert's wharf, she will load pit props for a port in the Old Country. Pilot James Brown goes along in the ship as coast pilot.

The Dardanelles.

With the Newfoundland Regiment in Egypt, stated the Dardanelles when they have completed their training at the camp of the Pyramids and are acclimatized, the Dardanelles will become more and more the cynosure of all eyes in Newfoundland. The forcing of the Dardanelles is a mighty task and mighty efforts are being made to accomplish it. The Dardanelles is a crooked strait, some 25 miles long, varying in width from 1½ to 4 miles. It is narrowest where it is most crooked. Here the straits are heavily fortified and the passage impossible to ordinary ships of war, as the Navy has learned to its cost. The land operations are being conducted on the Peninsula of Gallipoli on the west of the Dardanelles. The main objective of these activities is to dominate the fortresses of the Narrows from the two main heights. The country is an exceedingly difficult one for military operations as it is full of heights and valleys. The first large operations were conducted from the tip of the Peninsula near the entrance of the Dardanelles and a line has been established across the peninsula just across by Kithia with the objective of reducing the heights of Acha Baba. The difficulties here are almost insuperable as Acha Baba is a second Gibraltar, and the great task is yet unaccomplished. About the same time a footing was obtained at Gaba Tepe, 12 miles further up the outside of the Peninsula. Other landings and advances have been made further up the coast at Anzac Cove and at Little Anafarta Bay, and it is in this direction the greater advance has been made. Our soldiers have occupied the heights to the east of the Salt Lake and now dominate the valley of Byvuk Anafarta. On the other side of this valley is the plateau of Sari Bahr. The Australians are attacking these heights from Anzac Beach and Gaba Tepe. The possession of these heights is as important as those of Acha Baba, for their possession would enable the Allies to control two valleys which cross the only important land road along which supplies reach the fortresses on the west of the Narrows and the southern part of the Peninsula. The cutting of this road of communication will have an important bearing in the reduction of these strongholds. It will be observed also that the Russians have been very active in destroying the shipping of the Turks in the Black Sea, and that the British and French by submarines and aeroplanes have been directing special attention to Turkish transport ships. Those activities and the successes in the Anzac and Anafarta regions, together with the renewal of mine sweeping from the mouth of the Dardanelles point to some mighty concerted action in the near future.

Convalescent.

Mr. John Jackson is in receipt of a letter dated August 17th, from his son, Lieut. Jackson, who was wounded at Ypres, which states that he is now convalescing, having been out of the hospital ward for several days. The letter was written from the Duchess of Westminster's Hospital, Le Vinquet, France, where three other officers of Lieut. Jackson's regiment are being treated for wounds exactly similar to his, and received a few days after the engagement at which he was injured. His brother officers are doing well and are on the road to recovery.

395th Day of the War TO-DAY'S Messages.

10.30 A.M.

ESCAPED GERMAN OFFICERS SENTENCED.

LONDON, To-day.
Three German officers, who escaped from a prison camp near Denbigh Wales, subsequently recaptured, were sentenced by a military court to-day to serve 34 days each in prison. This is the first instance which jail terms have been given to prisoners of war.

RESUME NEGOTIATIONS.

LONDON, To-day.
A correspondent of Reuters' Telegram Company at Sofia, Bulgaria, telegraphs as follows: On August 31 the Turko-Bulgarian negotiations for the rectification of the frontier with a view to Bulgaria's acquiring the Turkish section of the Dedaghat railway, which recently were temporarily suspended by the return of the Bulgarian delegates from Constantinople were resumed. Official circles, however, appear to entertain little hope of a satisfactory issue.

12.15 P.M.

A TURKISH FORCE SURROUNDED.

PARIS, To-day.
An important part of the Turkish forces on the Gallipoli Peninsula has been surrounded by the Allies and its surrender is imminent says a Athens despatch to Fournier Agency.

AGREE TO REVISE TREATY OF BUCHAREST.

ROME, To-day.
The revision of the treaty of Bucharest has been agreed to explicitly by Serbia, Roumania and Greece, according to reports received here, but it is said these countries are not willing to satisfy entirely Bulgaria's claims to territorial compensation for participation in the war.

STEAMER SUNK.

LONDON, To-day.
The British steamer Roumane, 1,628 tons, has been sunk presumably by a submarine. The crew landed.

SUSPECT COMMITS SUICIDE.

PARIS, To-day.
One of the Government officials involved in army frauds, connected with the purchase of munitions, committed suicide yesterday to avoid arrest.

FIRE ON STEAMER.

LONDON, To-day.
A Rotterdam despatch says the Holland-American line steamer, Rotterdam, arrived there from New York with a fire in the after hold which contained cotton and other cargo. The fire is now apparently extinguished.

MURDERERS ELECTROCUTED.

OSSENING, To-day.
Five murderers were put to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison to-day inside of 65 minutes.

Young Woman Violently Insane!

At noon to-day the police were called to an East End residence and took into custody a young woman, who was violently insane. She had been engaged as a domestic and this morning jumped through a window, a distance of about 20 feet and sustained several cuts, though no bones were broken. She was taken to the Police Station for safe keeping where she will be examined by a doctor this afternoon.

ARRESTED AND RELEASED.

Last night Detective Tobin arrested a 15-year-old boy on suspicion of theft. Accused was before court to-day, charged with stealing $10 from Mr. P. J. Shea. There was no evidence to prove that the boy had taken the money and he was released.

MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

Bonaventure Back From Hudson Bay.

The s.s. Bonaventure, Capt. Couch, returned to this port at 4 o'clock this morning, after an absence of over two months, during which she was engaged by Revillon Freres. After leaving here the steamer proceeded to Montreal via Sydney and London, freight for the Hudson Bay Co.'s stations. The ship went as far north as Strutten Island at the bottom of James' Bay, landing a portion of her cargo at the various posts visited. The Bonaventure brought back a considerable quantity of furs which will be transhipped to the Revillon Freres. Capt. Couch reports that he never experienced such beautifully fine weather in the far north before.

Arson Enquiry Over.

The preliminary enquiry into the arson case in which Francis Pearcey, a 22 year old operator, is accused of having set fire to and destroying the railway station at Norris' Arm, finished to-day. The accused is committed for trial before the Supreme Court.

McMurdo's Store News

FRIDAY, Sept. 3rd, 1915.
D. D. D. had a great reputation for Eczema, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, and kindred troubles before it came here, and it seems likely to increase that reputation here, judging by the accounts we get of it. If you have an obstinate case of skin disease, D.D.D. is well worth trying. Price $1.30 a bottle.

As a tonic for growing children, in cases of chronic cough, and in convalescence, Morrola is a first class tonic, and supplies all the elements necessary to build up the system. Price $1.00 a bottle.

Shebeen Case.

A woman who conducts a shop in a central part of the city has been summoned to appear before court tomorrow, charged with selling hop beer overproof. Sergt. Noseworthy visited the place a few days ago, took samples of the beer and got an analysis taken, finding that the beer contained more alcohol than that allowed by law.

Obituary.

MR. NICHOLAS COLLIER.
We note with regret the passing of Mr. Nicholas Collier, which sad event occurred to-day at his late residence, "Victoria Cottage," Forest Road, after a very severe illness. He had not been ailing long, but the complaint from which he suffered—cancer—had gained such inroads that cure was impossible and the end came. Deceased, who was in his 65th year, was a well known and highly respected citizen, and won the esteem of all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. He was a carriage builder by trade at which he worked for over thirty years. For the past few years he was in charge of the city oil store. Deceased is survived by a widow, one son, Eric, who is at present out of the country, two brothers, Samuel, Frederick of this city, besides a large circle of friends and relatives, to all of whom the Telegram extends deepest sympathy.

BORN.

Yesterday morning, after a short illness, Johanna, widow of the late Patrick Redmond, funeral on Saturday, at 2.30 p.m., from her late residence, 27 Angel Place; friends will please attend without further notice.
This morning, after a severe illness, in his 65th year, Nicholas J. third son of the late Charles and Sarah Collier, leaving a wife, 1 son and 2 brothers; funeral on Sunday, at 3 p.m., from his late residence, Victoria Cottage, Forest Road. No flowers by request.

France's Lloyd George

BAKER'S BOY WHO ROSE TO BE MINISTER OF MUNITIONS.

What Mr. Lloyd George is to Great Britain M. Albert Thomas is to France.

Both are the men behind the men behind the guns. In other words, both have to see that our gallant soldiers have a plentiful supply of ammunition to hurl at the German hordes.

Like his British friend, M. Thomas is a man of the people. His father was a baker. Even as a schoolboy young Thomas showed marked talents, particularly in history and philosophy, which won for him many money prizes.

He devoted these to gratifying his ambition for travel. First he went through Siberia, then visited Germany where he took a course of lectures at Berlin University, and afterwards he went to Smyrna and Constantinople, adding largely to his knowledge of men and matters.

One of the War's Discoveries.

M. Thomas is one of the many great men the war has "discovered." When it broke out he was attached to the staff of a famous general. France recognized that somewhere there was a weak spot in her organization. To M. Thomas was entrusted the task of finding it. He was given an absolutely free hand. And in a short time he had, as the result of keen observation, organized the work of thousands of willing hands in making shot, shell, guns, and the like, just as our own Lloyd George is doing here.

Under his push and go the output in French factories went up tenfold. "There cannot be two kinds of treatment for Frenchmen to-day," he remarked recently, "they are all fighting." A delicate compliment, implying that the makers of shot and shell are doing as much, in another way, as the men in the trenches.

To look after one of his departments M. Thomas selected three officers just back from the firing line. They were the men who knew exactly what was wanted, and it is their duty to examine every new German-killing device and idea sent in and pick out the best for use.

From Cardboard Boxes to Shells.

Another big department M. Thomas has established goes through the offers of help received from manufacturers and turns them to be the best account. Over a thousand of these have already been sent in. Perhaps a former cardboard box making factory can be turned into a shell factory. If so, the French Government take possession of it. At the head of this important branch M. Thomas has placed a former workman who has risen from the ranks by sheer personal merits. He believes in the man who, like himself, has won through by his own ability.

A third important branch is controlled by a military officer, who tactfully settles any little dispute that may arise between masters and men. Keeping tally of the number of men employed, sends them to the factory where they will do the most good, and has complete control over the centres where shot, shell, and guns are turned out.

France's Lloyd George is loved by the French people. He has always led a busy life, and, among other things, he is a journalist, author, socialist, and a deputy, whilst at one time he was Mayor of Champagne.—Pearson's Weekly.

What Are You Doing for that Eczema?

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."
"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time." I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex at your druggist's."
Zylex, 50c. a box; Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.

A Curious Thing.

New York Sun:—James J. Hill, the railway builder of the Northwest, has been selected by a committee of five as Minnesota's greatest living citizen to accept honors bestowed by the Panama-Pacific Exposition as Mr. Hill belongs to the nation as one of its eminent men no less than to Minnesota. It is curious thing that our foremost railroad man was born in Canada and that Canada's great railroad men, Van Horne and Shaughnessy, saw the light in the United States.

SQUID IN WHITE BAY.—A message from La Scaevada: "Weather fine, but no improvement in fishery; squid plentiful at Hr. Deep and Dugan's Cove; several bankers halted there this week." The foregoing was received by the Marine and Fisheries Department. La Scaevada is the only place on the coast that has reported squid plentiful so far this season.

How High Explosives Act.

Deadly Effect of Blast in the Trenches.

The special merit of high explosive shells lies in their concussive effect. The enormous blast of the gases, instantaneously resulting from the detonation of the charge of high explosive, will tear down wire entanglements and massive fortifications, independently of the work done by shell fragments. Further as Professor V. B. Lewis, one of the greatest authorities on high explosives, has pointed out, the blast has a deadly effect on the men in the vicinity. It is this blast which leaves men standing dead in the trenches or elsewhere, without any visible wound. There are cases on record where the concussion has caused a heart displacement of as much as two inches. Many of the deaths popularly supposed to be due to poisonous fumes evolved from bursting shells had a purely concussive origin.

The high-explosive shell, says Professor Lewis, is made of forged steel, with comparatively thin walls and a heavy bursting charge, but the large naval shells and those for the siege guns, which have to penetrate heavy armour, are made of ingots of chrome or chrome-nickel steel, forged, hardened, and the nose capped with soft steel, which prevents the shell from shattering on impact with the hardened steel armour. These shells also contain a heavy charge of high explosive, generally cast into the shell in a fused condition.

T.N.T., which enters largely into the manufacture of high explosive shells and hand-grenades, is perfectly harmless under ordinary conditions. Only when it is detonated has it the tremendous effect which carries devastation far and wide. When detonated, however, the explosion is of great violence, and give the characteristic black smoke which is the origin of the endearing titles by which the shells are known in France and Flanders—Black Marias, Jack Johnson, or coal-scuttles.

Head of Krupps

MONSTER MUNITION FACTORY.

Many a young German has sighed with envy as he thought of the luck of Baron Gustav Krupp von Bohlen and Halbach, President of the Council of the Trustees of Krupp's, the world's greatest armament works; for "Taffy" von Bohlen, as he is known to his intimates, is indeed a lucky man. A humble member of the diplomatic service, he became a millionaire several times over through his marriage in 1906 to Bertha Krupp, to whom was left in 1902 by her father, Friedrich Alfred Krupp, the great works at Essen, which as a company had been floated with a capital of £2,000,000, the shares being mainly held by members of the Krupp family.

By the irony of circumstances, the head of the firm which has supplied the world with death-dealing weapons was born at The Hague, where he have met so many times to discuss world-peace. Ultimately he entered the diplomatic service, and it was while he was Secretary to the Prussian Legation at the Vatican that he made the acquaintance of Fraulein Bertha Krupp, mistress of millions.

"Much-Courted Taffy."

Bertha Krupp had gone to the Italian capital for a holiday, and there she met the gay and much-courted "Taffy," who was a prominent figure in society at Rome. Apparently it was a case on both sides of love at first sight, and the marriage up to the present seems to have been a very happy one.

Curiously enough, the head of Krupp's is in no sense a fire-eater. Rather is he a man of peace and thinks more of tennis, golf, and his collection of Chinese porcelain, rugs, and curios than of machine-guns and 16-inch howitzers. At the same time, like all Germans, he has had a military training, and being much honored by the Kaiser has imbibed many of the German Emperor's characteristics.

At the centenary celebration in 1910, commemorating the foundation of the Krupp works in 1810 by the original Friedrich Krupp, the Kaiser conferred upon Baron von Bohlen the Order of the Red Eagle, and made him a baron in his own right, as a recognition of and reward for his splendid work among the employees of the innumerable Krupp enterprises.

Everyday Etiquette.

"When a man takes a girl to the theatre it is necessary for him to buy her a box of candy," inquired Tom. "No, it is not necessary. If he wishes to send or take her something, he might buy her a bouquet of her favorite flowers," advised his mother.

Are You Sure?

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Is that quotation just right?" I asked a woman who had been quoting me some lines of Shakespeare. I wanted to verify it before using it.

"Yes," she answered promptly. "Are you sure?" She looked a bit shaken.

"Well, no, I'm not sure," she admitted. I looked it up and found that she had no right to be sure.

How Few Things We Know. How few things the average person is sure of.

How many things we almost know! How few things we know!

I often have occasion to ask people, "Are you sure?" about some bit of information that they have given with an air of positiveness and assurance, and it is surprising how few people do not weaken before that question.

To be able to face that interrogation in regard to any information you have given, any statement you have made, is an ideal worth striving for.

But it is at least better to know enough to be afraid of the question than not to be honest enough to know when to be afraid.

From Assurance to Success. You probably remember the old proverb (I started to say Persian proverb and then asked myself if I were sure and decided I was not), he who knows not and knows that he that he knows not is a fool, shun him; he who knows not and knows that he knows that he knows not is simple, teach him; he who knows and knows not that he knows is asleep, wake him; he who knows and knows that he knows is wise, follow him."

You will notice that the lowest rung in that ladder is the man (or woman) who is sure without having any right to be, and the highest is the accurate man who is sure with good reason.

Accuracy is just about as rare as positiveness is common.

The Field is Crowded But Not The Hill. One often hears that a girl has little chance nowadays to make a good salary as a stenographer because the field is so crowded. The field where the positive and the inaccurate girls flock may be crowded but the hill to which the accurate painstaking climbs never is.

I heard one business man talking to another the other day about a letter which his stenographer had just handed to him. "There are three mistakes in the letter and one in the address. That's the sort of slovenly, inaccurate work I get right along," he terminating.

"Well," said the other, "why don't you fire her instead of fussing?"

"Yes," said the first man, "and get another just like her."

Of course one cannot, unless one is a genius, know many things accurately. But one can at least know accurately the few things that it is one's business to know.

He was as great a statesman as he was a general, and, although his constructive policy after his left no permanent trace on English History, which has developed on far other lines than he approved, yet his destructive work in safeguarding English liberties, both civil and religious, has been permanent. Under his rule England was prosperous at home and successful abroad. He was one of the greatest of Englishmen, long execrated as a regicide, now revered as a hero, saint and demigod, guilty of many mistakes, but animated by the highest ideals of religion and liberty.

"Musicians at the Music-Halls."

Editor Evening Telegram. Sir.—I am sending a portion of an article which under the above title appeared in the London "Times" on July 17, in the hope that you may be able to find room for it in your columns. It appears to me to be well worth thinking over.

I remain, sir, Your obedient servant, ALFRED H. ALLEN.

September 2nd, 1915.

There is another point which should set musical people thinking. The "halls" have a perfect teaching system. A singer is to produce a new song, one which is to make the town and, indeed, the whole country hum—if it can. To do this the audience must get the chorus by heart, and get it as the Americans say "right away."

Consequently the song has three or four verses with the same chorus to each. The singer sings the chorus with very distinct words and the band repeats the tune fortissimo. It is not expected that the audience will sing the chorus to the first two verses, but the fortissimo repetition drums the tune well into every head and gives the venturesome a chance to try their voices under cover.

"At the third verse the singer encourages the audience by herself singing through the band's fortissimo; but by this time they have fairly got the tune, and at the fourth verse the lights go out and the words are thrown by the lantern on a screen. Then, if they take to it, singer and band will go one repeating the chorus till the roof flies off. This is simply stage-managing the first principles of education. If the thing does not go at the end, it is the fault of the words or music; the words have no "clip," or the tune is too wandering, or elaborate.

"Musicians often wonder why the public likes stupid tunes when there are so many better ones to be had; if they went into the music-halls they might find them more hypnotized into singing the most utterly banal jingles. But why not go, not only as audience but as performers? We are always hearing about the need for replanting our national folk-song. Here is a way to replant it. Take a dozen folk-songs, re-write the words, were necessary, score them boldly and rather badly for the orchestra, and give them to singers with voices and personality, some cheek, and no platform manners. Then take them round the "halls," using the perfect teaching apparatus provided, and the result ought to be worth all the publications and lectures of the Folk-song Society put together.

"At any rate it would be an experiment of fascinating interest, but its

The Smelt Fishery.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Editor.—In looking over the Reports of our various Fisheries, which reports should be fair, impartial and as correct as possible, so as to show all enquirers what a valuable asset our Fisheries are, I was really surprised to find no allusion at all to a fishery that is actually growing to quite an importance in this "Bay St. George" and prosecuted with great zeal by Messrs. M. C. Messervey, R. Berry at Sandy Point, and others at Port au Port. Quite a large quantity was expressed from September to March last to Sydney, Halifax, New York and realized fair prices. I allude to the Smelt Fishery.

The pioneer in this fishery is undoubtedly M. C. Messervey of Sandy Point, who, against great odds, has managed to build up quite a trade with these delicate fish, so highly esteemed in the U. S., particularly in New York, and who deserves very great credit for his perseverance in this business.

They are shipped in a frozen state, and great care is necessary in packing them, to ensure their arrival at Fulton Market, N.Y., in a sound condition, and it is at great expense also, as they must be expressed to avoid the terrible delays that arise in freightage.

I may here be permitted to remark that it would be a graceful act on the part of the Government to show their appreciation of the aforementioned gentlemen's endeavors, to admit for say three years (the nets, which are quite expensive, being of best linen thread, and only good for a season, and "shooks" for boxes required to pack in), free of duty. It would be only giving encouragement to and helping forward a good work and one beneficial at large.

These nets are not manufactured in Newfoundland, so must be imported later, giving some statistics re the same, and I hope that our Fishery Inspectors in future will be a little less careless of their duty, and report fully on all fisheries extant.

I am, sir, yours truly, PISCATOR.

Aerial Scouts.

Detectors Who Work in the Clouds.

There are many essential qualities which go to make a successful military aviator. In the first place he must possess a quick eye, his especial duty being to note the disposition of troops, the placing of artillery and any local movements of the opposing forces that may be in progress. Reconnoitering by aeroplane may be divided into two general sections, known respectively as tactical and strategical. Tactical reconnaissance concerns the corps of divisional command to which the warplane is attached, and the aviator does not necessarily venture beyond the lines of the enemy, as a rule limiting his flight to some distance from his outermost defences. He may be absent from his lines only a few minutes, but in those few minutes may gain knowledge which will help the divisional command to which he is attached.

Strategical reconnaissance, on the other hand, affects the whole plan of campaign, as Mr. Frederick A. Talbot points out in his "Aeroplanes and Dirigibles of War" (Heinemann). Aviators told off for this duty are attached to the staff of the commander-in-chief, and the work has to be carried out upon a comprehensive and elaborate scale, aviators often being called upon to venture well into the hostile territory to a point thirty or forty or more miles beyond the outposts.

In such work the aviator not only endeavours to find out the general disposition of troops, defences, the placing of artillery, points where reserves are being held, high roads, railways, base camps, and so forth, but he also endeavours to bring back as correct an idea as possible of what the enemy proposes to do, so that his commander-in-chief may adjust his movements accordingly.

Such an aviator, says Mr. Talbot, must possess the ability to read a map rapidly as he moves through the air and to note upon it all information which is likely to be of service to the General Staff. The ability to prepare military sketches rapidly and intelligently is a valuable attribute, and skill in aerial photography is a decidedly useful acquisition. He must also be a man of exceptional physique and powers of endurance, for frequently he is aloft for several hours when hail, rain, and blizzard may be experienced in turn. It has often happened that when one of these aviators has returned he has been so numbed and dazed as a result of the prolonged exposure that considerable time has elapsed before he has been sufficiently restored to set forth the result of his observations in a coherent, intelligible manner for the benefit of the General Staff.

How Sir Cecil Spring-Rice Won Success.

SALARY £10,000 A YEAR.

Undoubtedly the Ambassador who has the most difficult and delicate job in the world at the present time is Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, Britain's representative in the United States, and the recent attempt on his life, when six men tried to hold up his motor-car, shows the peril of his position at a time like this.

The country, however, has every confidence in Sir Cecil, for he served his diplomatic apprenticeship in nearly every country in the world; and although young, as Ambassadors go, he is only fifty-five, Sir Cecil has proved in every way a worthy successor to Lord Bryce, whom he succeeded three years ago.

Sir Cecil began life by entering the War Office first as a clerk. He soon, however, attracted the attention of Earl Granville, the then Foreign Secretary, and later used to write brief outlines of documents for Earl Rosebery, when the latter was Minister for Foreign Affairs.

His rise after this was very rapid. He went as Embassy Secretary to Brussels, Washington, Tokio, Berlin and Constantinople, and he did other valuable diplomatic work at Petrograd and Stockholm. Thus he gained a profound knowledge of the problems that trouble the peace of Europe, and of the crooked ways of foreign diplomats.

Factors to a degree, Sir Cecil has been described as "a still, strong man, who has yet to go far," and his diplomatic opponents admit that he is an adversary to be feared. His promotion from Minister in Sweden to Ambassador in the United States showed how highly his genius as a diplomat is appreciated, for while the pay at Stockholm is £2,500, that at Washington is £10,000. But, of course, the expense of the latter position is much greater.

Indeed, Sir Cecil could not maintain the dignity of his office without a private fortune. Almost without exception, English diplomats have always considered it a matter of personal honour and obligation to spend their full emolument for the purpose for which it is paid—to maintain the dignity of their office, and they almost invariably have to supplement their official revenues with drafts upon their private incomes.

It is an interesting fact that when Sir Cecil married the only daughter of Sir Frank Cavendish Lascelles, one of the most distinguished veterans of the English diplomatic service, in 1904, in Berlin, where Sir Frank was then Ambassador, the wedding was attended by the German Emperor and Empress and the Crown Prince. Lady Spring-Rice is an exceptionally clever woman, with the curious distinction of having invented the "fencing"

Fishery Report.

The latest fishery reports received by the Board of Trade are:—

Aug. 28. From A. J. Pearce, (Twillingate to Trump Island).—The catch to date is 2346 qts. and for last week 1240. Fifty traps and about 60 skiffs are fishing. Prospects were exceedingly good this week, some of the traps setting 20, 30 and 40 barrels each on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, but on the other days they did not do so well. The hook and line fishery has not improved and bait is very scarce only a little herring and mussels being obtainable.

Aug. 28th. From J. F. Devereaux, (Cape Race to St. Shott's).—Forty dories and skiffs and one boat are fishing. Prospects are poor for the Fall fishery. There is a good sign of cod on the grounds and dories get from 1/4 to 1 qt. daily when bait can be had, but there is only a little herring and no squid available. The total catch is 10950 qts., but nothing was done the last week.

Aug. 28th. From W. R. Andrews, (Great Jarvis Head to Pass Island).—Prospects are fair but bait is scarce in this vicinity. There is plenty of squid however, at Hermitage. The catch is 3100 qts. and for last week 190. About 180 dories and skiffs are fishing.

Aug. 28th. From T. Hogan, (Carbonar to Western Bay).—Six traps and 50 punts are fishing and the catch to date is 2875 qts. with 15 for last week. Prospects are poor and there is no bait of any kind.

From Labrador.

Holton.—Strong S. W. wind, cloudy with rain.

Makovic.—Fresh S. W. wind; no fishing.

Smoky.—No fishing; weather cloudy with strong S. W. wind.

Grady.—Strong S. W. wind; no fishing.

A Visit to Our Boys at Aldershot.

Everything has passed in a kaleidoscopic swiftness since we left dear old St. John's on Saturday, 24th July, in the good ship Pomeranian. The voyage was most quiet and uneventful till within two days of the land, when one could notice an almost imperceptible flutter among the officers and crew, and of course common sense told us we were in the "war zone" and that a "submarine" may appear at any time. On Friday, the 30th, the voyage was taken; the lifeboats were loosened, new cordings attached, and they were lowered later on a line with the deck, so that in case of any emergency they could be lowered with comparative ease. Next day we were told off to the boat each passenger was to take. When the dread gun should shriek and the phantom of the periscope appear to the vision of the day! We arranged all our belongings, said farewell to our various bits of finery, and felt quite content to face London in our shabby travelling garb! We arrived unscathed, however; but it was not till we had passed the "isle of Grain" in the Clyde that we felt safe! And it was a relief, although it was here the captain heard that the Hibbernia of the Leyland Line had been torpedoed off the Mersey about an hour before! I did not advise any person with nervous tendencies to cross the Atlantic while such terrors prevail; the uncertainties of the voyage are quite sufficient without such possible "horrors!" For the stoutest heart quailed when we saw the blankets, bread and whiskey being put in the lifeboats and felt we might be consigned to the bottom of the sea in a matter of days. Furthermore, there was a large sign-board placed on deck on which all eyes were riveted and on which the following was inscribed in glaring red letters on a white ground: "When 4 blasts of the whistle have sounded, stand by the boats!" Nobody understood that night, but judging from the cheerful voices and "sounds of fev'ry" even the Germans would be convinced, if they were terrorising the hearts of the children of the great, free, the United Empire, on which the sun never sets. Glorious looked the incomparable Clyde as we passed up the friendly shores that peaceful Sunday evening. Here and there a trawler appeared as if to reassure us that all was well. Away in the distance the Irish mail boat flung her sapphire wreaths behind her—a reminder of the memories of the impetuous gallantry of Erin's sons on the sodden fields of this atrocious war. In passing Saltcoats, we thought of one who had been so lately laid away, covered with years and honours, and it seemed but yesterday since he had stood on the deck of another ship and looked lovingly towards his "native hearth and home."

Arriving in Glasgow, we soon learned that our soldier lads at Stob's

Italian Submarine Rises After 70 Hours Spent on Bottom.

Milan, via Chiasso, Aug. 24.—Without food, without light, their supply of oxygen rapidly diminishing, their commander and two of their comrades dead, the crew of an Italian submarine laboured for seventy hours on the bed of the Adriatic to repair the machinery of their craft, set the engines in motion and in the end reached their base.

This is the tale of heroism that has sent a wave of enthusiasm over the country.

A week ago an official statement from Vienna said an Austrian submarine had torpedoed and sunk the Neride, one of Italy's newer submarines. The Neride failed to return to her base and the ministry of marine was inclined to accept the Austrian statement as true and to place the craft and her crew on the navy's casualty list.

In the meantime one of the romances of the war, to which the submarine has contributed so much, was being enacted fathoms deep on the bottom of the sea.

The Neride was attacked by an Austrian craft, as Vienna told. The Neride's commander, however, had distinguished the wake of the torpedo speeding toward him and swung the diver lever hard. The Neride responded to the action of her rudders so quickly that the torpedo passed just above her, but the strain on her mechanism was so great that when she was brought again to the horizontal it was found her motors were out of commission.

Feverishly the crew sought to repair the damage. The failure of the motors threw the weight of the current used by the electric bulbs on to the storage batteries and these soon became exhausted. The men redoubled their efforts in the dark. With the exhaustion of the reserve store of electricity the ventilating apparatus failed. Thirty men were trapped, but despite their apparently hopeless situation their courage never faltered and their efforts to repair their craft's driving machinery never failed.

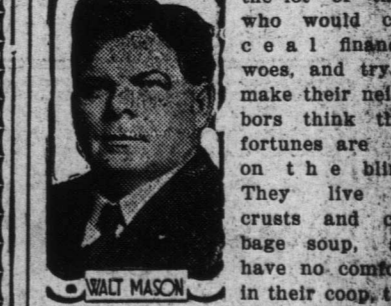

Hour after hour, in the stifling, brain-bursting interior of the submarine, without sleep, without rest, they worked under the inspiration of their commander's faith. Then the thickening fumes took their toll of him and a subordinate directed the work. The men lost trace of time. Once they obtained a few revolutions of the screw and a faint, husky cheer used up more of the precious oxygen. But their exhilaration was brief for the motors stopped again and the work had all to be done over.

Two more men collapsed and were barely kept alive when the chief engineer, exploring with blind fingers, found the seat of trouble and at length repaired it. The motors started once more. Slowly the shell began to rise from the bottom. The periscope reached the surface and found a clear sea. Out from the water came the hull, and the hatch of the conning tower was opened for the first breath of fresh air in three long days. It was too late for the three men in collapse below. They died without regaining consciousness. Two more men died on their way to port.

Obtaining his bearings, the navigator steered his course for the base on the Adriatic coast, and yesterday, the Neride, running awash, appeared among her flotilla, a ghost from the sea. The news was flashed to Rome and to the naval ships afloat.

"The Neride, sunk, is risen again."

SHABBY GENTLE.

How poignant is the lot of those who would possess a financial woe, and try to make their neighbors think their fortunes are not on the blink! They live on crusts and cabbage soup, and have no comforts in their coop, they have to save and skimp and pinch, still slipping backward inch by inch; in want's hard lessons they are schooled—and think they have the neighbors fooled! Their front is brave, but all in vain; in vain the pinching, and the pain that's sharper than a serpent's tooth—the neighbors always know the truth. The neighbors say, "They are so poor the morrow's grub is never sure, and yet you'd think them millionaires, the way they put on foolish airs. They are so proud that they would die before they'd take an offered pie, or we would send them things to eat—they'd throw such handouts in the street." How happy are the abject drones, who huddle round their empty stoves, and make no secret of their grief. But loudly clamor for relief, compared with haughty folks like these, who try to gild their miseries!
