Trenching GALLIPOLI,

By JOHN GALLISHAW.

The personal narrative of a loyal Newfoundland soldier in the disastrous Dardanelles campaign. An adventure-story stranger than fiction; as well as a reliable account, by an unusually keen participant, of the gigantic failure at Gallipoli.

For obvious reasons not a great many details of the Dardanelles campaign were permitted to be published while it was running its dramatic and terribly costly course; nor since, either, for that matter. Mr. Gallishaw, a student at Harvard when the war began and now, wounded, again in this country, is at liberty to write about what happened. His book, moreover, gives an extraordinarily vivid impression of what trench-fighting and trench-living is like.

If you haven't heard or seen it, get it now.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER

A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Heroncourt stared at the young fellow reining up his horse none too skillfully; then he, too, uttered an exclamation of surprise.

Ricky slid off his horse, but stood the young man.

Ricky slid off his horse, but stood gaping at Heroncourt, and at last took his outstretched hand mechanically. "I can't believe my eyes, Lord Heroncourt," he said. "It can't really be you!"

"Lord Heroncourt!"

Lucy waited for no more, but, with throbbing heart and a thousand conflicting thoughts and emotions pressing upon her, ran away through the wood.

"Yes, it is I, right enough, Ricky," said Heroncourt, wringing Ricky's hand, and smiling as he had not smiled since the night at Milda Wolda. "But it is I who can scarcely believe my eyes. How is it you are here? How did you come?"

Ricky wiped his brow, for he was hot with his ride and the excitement of the meeting.

"Oh, I—I came over," he said, blushing as deeply as his tan would permit. "No room for an energetic young man in England. I wanted to see Australia. Besides—Isn't there a place called Milda Wolda near here?" he added shyly.

Heroncourt, of course, understood. The flush died from his face. The sight of Ricky had brought back with cruel vividness old times and past happiness. Ricky had come after Carrie, might find her and win her; but Milda was lost to Heroncourt forever.

"Yes," he said. "I know why you have come. But tell me more; tell me all about yourself."

"Oh, there isn't much to tell," said Ricky. "I got tired of office work, and old Spinner has got more of a boulder than ever; and he and I had a tiff. But I should have come out if we hadn't. I couldn't stick there any longer. But you are scarcely looking well, Heroncourt," he broke off; "you are looking thinner and— and out of sorts generally."

Heroncourt jerked his head in a casual way.

"Oh, I'm all right," he said. "I've had a touch of fever. What other news is there? I'll tell you mine presently. How are all our old friends in England, the Glassburys? We exiles always expect to hear home news first."

In truth, he shrank from speaking of Milda and Carrie. He had been trying to forget Milda; but now all the bitterness of despair was sweeping over him again.

"Oh, they're all right," said Ricky. "Lord Glassbury has got the Foreign Office. Lady Glassbury asked me to dinner just before I came away. We talked of you and Milda nearly all the time. Of course, she doesn't know where you are; nobody knows. I say, how amazed she'd be if she knew that you were here near Carrie—I mean, Milda! You've seen them, of course."

"I'll tell you all about them presently," said Heroncourt, wearily, and checking a sigh. "No, I've not seen them. I am here, helping to run this station. We are going to it now; it is not far. Get on your horse again; I'll walk beside you."

"Just hold him a minute, will you?" said Ricky; "he's a fidgety beast, and has nearly been the death of me; but I'm learning to ride; a fellow's got to ride out here, hasn't he?" he added, with a touch of pride which at another time would have amused Heroncourt. "And have you been here all the time?"

"Yes," said Heroncourt. "I'm afraid they think badly of me, for making a bolt of it; but it was the only way. You, who know the whole business, know that. You won't see us at our best," he went on hospitably. "We've had some trouble with the hands here, and they managed to burn us out; but you are more than welcome."

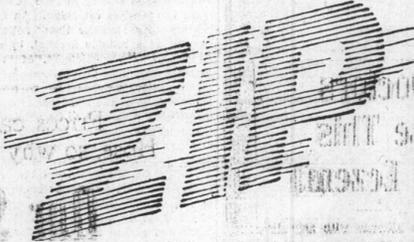

They went through the wood, Ricky giving the London news and Heroncourt listening, but rather listlessly. He had quite forgotten Lucy: significant fact! They reached the house. Heroncourt sent Ricky's horse round to the stable and took him into the living-room, to find, with a start, Lucy there and laying the cloth.

Heroncourt's impulse was to say, "This young lady is my future wife, Ricky." But Lucy's large eyes looked at him appealingly, as if reminding him of his promise, and he was forced to check the impulse. He was so absorbed in welcoming Ricky and making him comfortable, that he did not notice the curious expression on Lucy's face. It was like that of one who has been startled by some sudden information. Baxter came in a moment or two afterwards, and naturally started at sight of Ricky.

"Hallo, Baxter!" cried Ricky. "Why, this is as great a surprise as seeing Lord—"

Heroncourt laid his hand on Ricky's arm and stopped him.

"Hold on," he said. "I forgot to tell you that I bear a different name here. I am not Heroncourt, but Owen Tudor; you'll understand why." Ricky nodded; he was getting used to surprises. Baxter brought the dinner in and waited assiduously on Ricky whom he was evidently glad to see; and Ricky told him some of the English news. Lucy did not appear again. When the meal was cleared away Ricky, getting out his pipe, said:

"How far is it to Milda Wolda? I want to go on there at once; and I want to know what I am to do, say, about you when I see them."

"You won't see them at Milda Wolda," Ricky said Heroncourt. "You must brace yourself for disappointment. They have left Milda Wolda; they have gone to Melbourne."

Ricky's face fell and he let the match die out without lighting his pipe.

"To Melbourne!" he echoed, with the keenest disappointment. "How long ago? When I heard from Carrie last she said nothing about leaving."

Heroncourt was silent for a moment. He could not bring himself to speak of Milda's marriage; he knew that he should betray himself, felt that in this new flood of emotion set flowing by the sight of Ricky he should break down.

"They left suddenly," he said, at last. "They have gone to Melbourne; you can follow them there; it is not a long journey." He thought bitterly how willing he would be to traverse the earth if Milda were waiting for him at the other end. "You can start to-morrow; I'll fit you up, help you all I can."

"I—I think I will," said poor Ricky. It was a hard game of hide-and-seek for him. To have come all that way to find that Carrie had, so to speak, crossed him in his journey! "Yes, I think I will. I—oh, I must see her."

Heroncourt nodded. No, there was no need for him to speak of the marriage; they would tell him when they saw him. Dartford came in and gave Ricky a welcome.

"I heard that a friend of yours had turned up, Tudor," he said. "I'm glad to see any friend of yours. Hope you will make yourself comfortable, Mr. Clark; wish you had found us as snug as we were a little while ago; but we'll do the best we can for you, show you the country, and so on."

"Thank you very much," said Ricky, faltering; "but I must start for Melbourne to-morrow."

Thought Upon

A friend of mine, writing from Canada, contrasts our apparent unanimity of public opinion in Newfoundland with the great racial and political upheaval which is about to take place in Canada on the enforcement of the Compulsory Military Service Act. Of course my friend thought the people are behind our so-called National Government. This has set me thinking. Are we not appearing in a false light to our Canadian cousins? Is not this apparent unanimity caused by the very lack of public opinion and indifference of our people to public matters? We have come to a very serious crisis in the history of our government. For the first time since we have been granted responsible government we have no opposition in our Legislature to the powers that be. The people are satisfied with this state of affairs, and we have no means of knowing they are not, this may result indefinitely and become a menace to the commonwealth. The present Coalition Government cannot be said to have any mandate from the people to rule. The Morris Party which received a majority of the seats in the election of 1913 did not receive a majority of the votes cast. Knowing that they had lost the confidence of the people they resigned office last July. The F. P. U. Party, nominally led by Dr. Lloyd, but really by Mr. Coakley as Dictator, then formed with Sir Edward Morris what they call the National Government. Neither of the factions can now claim justly that they have a mandate from the people to carry on the government. They have submitted no policy or manifesto to the people. When the two parties united, it was confidently expected that the object was to introduce a selection of men for the Regiment. Their failure to do so was very disappointing, especially to the people of the outposts.

Not only have they failed to carry out the wishes of the people in this respect, as expressed by the people in various ways, and chiefly through the Methodist Conference, but they have shown gross neglect to the returned soldiers. Many of our people have recently returned from Canada. They are loud in their praise of the treatment Canada has extended to her disabled soldiers. They bitterly contrast it with the treatment our own boys receive. The Government is leaving the private citizen to provide the returned soldier with employment. Canada has long ago introduced an order that

No room seems really complete unless special attention is given to the arrangement of fireplace and mantel, the latter particularly needing careful planning.

To-day this difficulty is easily overcome by using an Overmantel, which article of furniture is becoming more popular every year.

PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

TUESDAY NIGHT.
All the interest is being centred now in Tuesday night's game between the Wanderers and B. I. S. As the clubs stand now, the Lions and B. I. S. are tied, being one game ahead of the Cubs and Wanderers, who are holding the same percentage. The position therefore is that should the Wanderers win on Tuesday night, and the Cubs beats the Lions, all four clubs will have to play off for the pennant. Should both the B. I. S. and Lions be successful then the championship lies between them. Thus, the two games next week (which finish the schedule) should be full of thrills.

WAR SONG OF THE LIONS.
So we were nothing but tail-end jokes;
A bunch of bums who were mostly blukes;
We had no speed and we had no seam,
We had no part of a winning team;
We had no hitters to bat in run;
We had no pitchers to spike the guns;
A balmy lot, we were tipped to blot
A race that was otherwise fast and hot;
A sad, sad case—alack—alas!
We surely didn't have the class.
But how do we look for a bunch of tubs
Out there in the Standing of the Clubs?

BATTING AVERAGES.
We give herewith the batting average to date. It must be understood that only those players who have taken part in all the games for the season are eligible for the prizes. The reason for this is that a player who might play in only one game is liable to make, say, 3 hits out of four times at bat, thus giving him a percentage of .750. Now it is manifestly impossible to attain this right through a series, as the more games played the more liable are the percentages to drop. This week we are grouping the players' averages under their Club's averages so as to show up the Club's averages.

It is an ancient manager,
His team is in the rear;
He holds me with his skinny hand,
I cannot chose but hear.
Then he began, the manager
To spin a tale of woe;
He holds me with his glittering eye
And will not let me go.

The catcher has the charley horse,
Three pitchers have the grip;
The second baseman pulled up lame,
The shortstop has the pip.
The boys have lost their batting eyes,
The team is in a slump;
His stars are always being canned
For bawling out the ump.

He doesn't care to alibi
Or cover up mistakes;
But he's the one and only guy
That never gets the breaks.
"Lay off! Thou ancient manager!"
I cried, "and let me be";
Go tell thy tale to the marines
And do not pick on me!

"I've heard those yarns a hundred times
About your pesky crew;
So, take a tumble to yourself,
And dig up something new!"

Doctors Use This for Eczema
If you are afflicted with skin disease, the kind that seems to battle medical treatment, and leaves you wild with itch, do not fail to investigate a prescription that is now recommended by many of the best skin specialists, even in preference to their own prescriptions. This is the simple, soothing, liquid external remedy, D. D. D. Prescription. This liquid stops the itch instantly, and effects a cure that is permanent. In fact, it took thousands of cures, case after case, before the best doctors were convinced of the absolute merit of this remedy.

It is now thoroughly established among medical authorities that eczema is purely a skin disease, due to a germ, and curable only through the skin. It is not a blood disease at all. The effect of D. D. D. Prescription is to penetrate the pores, kill the disease germs and to soothe and heal the skin, restoring it to its healthy condition. D. D. D. has been found to be especially effective in all forms of Eczema, Bad Leg, Pimples, Dandruff, Ulcers and other skin diseases. Get a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription to-day. Sold Everywhere. Thoughts Upon the Times.

(By PATRIOT.)

A friend of mine, writing from Canada, contrasts our apparent unanimity of public opinion in Newfoundland, with the great racial and political upheaval which is about to take place in Canada on the enforcement of the Compulsory Military Service Act. Of course my friend thought the people are behind our so-called National Government. This has set me thinking. Are we not appearing in a false light to our Canadian cousins? Is not this apparent unanimity caused by the very lack of public opinion and the indifference of our people to public matters? We have come to a very serious crisis in the history of self-government. For the first time since we have been granted responsible government we have an opposition in our Legislature to the powers that be. If the people are satisfied with this state of affairs, and we have no means of knowing they are not, this may go on indefinitely and become a menace to the commonwealth. The present Coalition Government cannot be said to have any mandate from the people to rule. The Morris Party which received a majority of the seats in the election of 1915 did not receive a majority of the votes cast. Knowing that they had lost the confidence of the people they resigned office last July. The F. P. U. Party, nominally led by Dr. Lloyd, but really by Mr. Coaker as Dictator, then formed with Sir Edward Morris what they call the National Government. Neither of the factions can now claim justly that they have a mandate from the people to carry on the government. They have submitted no policy or manifesto to the people. When the two parties united, it was confidently expected that the object was to introduce a selective men for the Regiment. Their failure to do so was very disappointing, especially to the people of the outports. Not only have they failed to carry out the wishes of the people in this respect, as expressed by the people in various ways, and chiefly through the Methodist Conference, but they have shown gross neglect to the returned soldiers. Many of our people have recently returned from Canada. They are loud in their praise of the treatment Canada has extended to her disabled soldiers. They bitterly contrast it with the treatment our own boys receive. The Government is leaving the private citizen to provide the returned soldier with employment. Canada has long ago introduced an order that no person is to receive government employment who has not served in the army. In Newfoundland the heeler is given the vacancy in the public service while the soldier is left in the lurch. The lack of public opinion and the absence of a strong opposition to the Government may somewhat account for this. It does not speak well for our gratitude to the men who have gone down to the valley of the shadow of death, for our benefit. What is needed just now in order to arouse public opinion from its lethargy is an entirely new party composed of entirely new men. We have the leader in that incorruptible statesman, Right Hon. Sir Robert Bond. Every great crisis in the history of England produced great men. Is it too much for us to expect to find men in this critical hour who have patriotism enough to stand in the breach? Are there to be found among the fishermen, business men and others, thirty-five independent patriotic men who would, for the sake of their country, take up the burden of public affairs without expecting place or pay or grant? If so, their country needs them. Surely they should not be difficult to find. In selecting them the people should discount bluff and gall and graft, and encourage patriotism and the almost forgotten virtue of modesty. After the American Civil War had ended, the soldiers of the Republic organized themselves into a Union, known as "The Grand Army of the Republic." This organization had an important influence in public matters and not only secured to the soldier proper recognition for his services to the nation, but kept alive the fires of patriotism. Another thought which has occurred to me is the lack of patriotism among our public men. In this connection it may not be amiss to note how bitterly Sir Edward Morris and his associates attacked the members of the Legislative Council for expressing their opinions on the Business Profit Tax. It may not be amiss also to record the fact that Sir Edgar Bowring of the Legislative Council and Sir Edward Morris, both visited our troops in France last winter. The former paid his own expenses and distributed gifts to the men at his own expense. The latter also gave gifts to the men but was reimbursed £250 from the funds of the Colony for doing so on his return to Newfoundland. Further comment is unnecessary.

CHILD WELFARE.
 If we have been silent on this subject hitherto, it has not been for want of sympathy with the admirable movement inaugurated during the past week, but because other matters have engrossed our attention. We are quite willing to admit a lack of proportion in this: we have been concerned with politics and politicians to a degree far beyond what they are worth. A review of the two Parliamentary sessions just ended reveals to us no positive achievement, no single act of legislation, with the exception of the Pensions Act, which merely legalised the system already adopted, of more value than the paper it is printed on. One Public Health Act, going exhaustively into the abuses that abound everywhere in the country, introducing remedies, imposing penalties and providing for the thorough enforcement of every section, would have been of infinitely more benefit than the whole programme of our enlightened National Government. Fortunately, our politicians cannot block progress entirely and remedies and improvements can have an origin outside the Colonial Building. The Mayor is to be thanked and congratulated for setting on foot a movement of which the most pertinent observation we can make here is the necessity of keeping it on foot. St. John's has too often in the past been a rock on which more than one sower has sown good but unfruitful seeds.

The Mayor himself can do much to keep the movement going. It must have two distinct and separate sources, from without and from within. The former is a wide field for the energies of the Council of which he is the head. The admirably intelligent and scientific discussions which have been published in the last few days of the disgracefully high rate of infant mortality in this city have agreed in narrowing down the principal causes into a very small compass, though it needs not much intelligence or science to see what it is. Far the greater part of it is subsided in one word—dirt. St. John's is a dirty city, about as dirty as any city of its size in the world, certainly in the civilized world. It needs not to go into private homes or secluded slums to see it; a casual walk in any quarter will produce sufficient proof. Now it is hopeless to look for much voluntary improvement. When a man throws dirty water or refuse on a sidewalk in New York or Glasgow he is not met with expostulations and health pamphlets; he is haled before the nearest magistrate and fined. The same thing can be done here. We have not half enough of the simple and ordinary health laws and regulations that obtain in other communities; such as we have are not known because they are never enforced. When the hundred and one public nuisances that are of daily occurrence are followed by punishment of the offenders they will cease quickly. Much prominence has been given to the literally vital matter of milk supply. When the vendor of milk teeming with bacteria is punished, at first leniently and as a warning, and afterwards, if the warning is disregarded, to the tune of five hundred dollars, the milk supply will undergo a very thorough purification and scores of babies' lives be saved. It will be purified in no other way. If we have not laws providing for such a fine (though we think we have), it is time they were introduced. The Council can do a very great deal, through action and prevention, as custodians of the public health. They have, or should have, power to make bye-laws looking to that end and to see that they are observed.

The greater part of the remedy, which is to say the elimination of dirt and unclean conditions, must still come from within. We will allow for unavoidable causes, to be removed only in time and by industrious action, such as improper housing and deficient sanitation; but when full allowance is made, there remain

Incerrigible Youth

Sentenced to be Lashed.
 An incorrigible youth, who was twice convicted of theft already this year, was rounded up last night for stealing a silver watch, belonging to Mrs. Henry Collis, whose residence he entered one day last week. When arrested the tucker was found in his possession. He appeared before Judge Morris to-day and pleaded guilty. The last time he was before court, about two months ago, he was sentenced to be birched and in this case a similar sentence was imposed, the lad to be removed to the Penitentiary this afternoon and birched six times.

Accept Two Aliens In District 2.

"Let me go to it, boys," said Martin J. Howlett, 38 Orange Street, the first draft soldier to be accepted in District 2 at the start of examinations to-day and incidentally an alien, who volunteered for service. Five men were accepted at District 2 up to noon to-day, and another of the five, Bernardo Panatelli, 1 Ford Street, is also an alien, who said he wished to fight for his country.
 The great majority of those who answered notifications to appear were aliens, and this is taken to mean that at the next call, a larger number will be summoned for separate days.
 Howlett, the first man accepted, has been in this country but four months, coming here from Newfoundland, where he was born. He is of Irish descent, and has a younger brother, 18 years old, with the Newfoundland forces "somewhere in France."
 The quota that must be secured from District 2 is 102 men, and it is expected that it will be necessary to go a long way down the list because of the number of aliens in the district—Boston paper.

Suspected Accomplice in P. O. Robbery

In Police Custody.
 Constable Shave reached the city last night from Fogo, bringing along a nineteen year old fisherman named Hart, of Change Islands, a suspected accomplice in a Post Office robbery. It appears that on the night of April 20th last, the Post Office at Change Islands was broken into and looted to the extent of $97.76. A couple of days later one Edwards was convicted and imprisoned for the offence. On his trial he made the statement that Hart was an accessory of his in the crime. The whereabouts of the latter were sought in Change Islands and Fogo, but without success, as Hart had gone to the Labrador in a schooner to prosecute the fishery. On his return a few days ago he was placed under arrest. He was arraigned before Judge Morris to-day and at the request of the prosecution, who are looking up evidence, was remanded for eight days.

LAST MENACE REMOVED.

LONDON, To-day. The taking of Hill 304 completes the operation begun on August 20. It is the last stronghold of the Germans marked down for capture. The value of the Hill lay in the menace which it offered to French positions on Le Mort Homme.

COMPARATIVE FIGURES OF PRISONERS.

LONDON, To-day. The number of prisoners captured by the Entente Allies since April 9th, when the 1917 campaign opened with the Battle of Arras, up to Aug. 22nd, is: German war prisoners captured by British, 46,155; German war prisoners captured by French, 43,723; chiefly Austrian war prisoners captured by Italians, 49,621; Austrians captured by Russians, 27,321; total, 147,760. The total number of German war prisoners captured by us since the beginning of the war is 101,218. The total number of British prisoners, including Indians, captured by the Germans is approximately 43,960, but exact information as to small captures made by the enemy in recent fighting cannot be given until MISARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIPHTHERIA.

PIERCE FIGHTING IN FLANDERS.

LONDON, To-day. The Germans in violent attacks with fresh effectiveness, along the Ypres-Menin Road have driven out the British advanced forces from positions captured in Wednesday's fighting, according to an official communication issued by the war office this evening. Pierce fighting continues in this region. The Germans lost heavily under the fire of the British guns. The communication says: This morning the enemy strongly counter attacked with fresh troops the positions gained by us on Wednesday in the neighborhood of the Ypres-Menin Road. He repeated his assaults. Pierce fighting has taken place in Inverness Copse and Glencoe Wood and is still continuing. Numerous concentrations in this area have been dealt with effectively by our artillery. The enemy's losses in the stubborn fighting which has taken place all day are heavy. We advanced our lines slightly during the night southeast of St. Julien and took several prisoners.

TRIBUTES TO CANADIAN TROOPS.

PARIS, To-day. The newspapers of the French capital all pay glowing tributes to the splendid work of the Canadian troops. Le Petit Parisien says: If it were known what human misery, abnegation and self-sacrifice were involved in those 1,300 metres of trenches recently captured by the Canadians in this corner of hell, in which every German soldier fought like a wild beast, the people would be enthralled and thrilled. An enemy officer remarked of the Canadians: Only once have I known a class of soldiers as brave and as thoroughly trained, namely, Von Kluck's men in 1914. A correspondent points out that it is noteworthy that all the prisoners, even officers, declare war is nearing its close, because Germany is at the end of her resources.

Made Over Gowns.

Some Tips For The Real Home Seamstress—How to Freshen Old Gowns.—Various Tricks That Clever Dress-makers Use to Renovate Old Clothes so They Look Positively Parisian—How to Clean Rimped Finery and Lace.

A pair of gloves have served only half their usefulness when you take them to the cobbler to be resoled for the first time. With the new soles and a little care they will serve as long a term of usefulness as that which they have already served.

So with a frock that hangs abandoned in the back of your clothes closet. The last time you put it on you were ashamed of its ragged condition. The sleeves were frayed at the wrists, and a button was missing at the front, and there was—yes, there actually was—a spot in the front panel. So you determined that the dress was done for.

But unless one is rolling in wealth she will find it to her advantage to get out that old frock and take an inventory of what remains in good condition. Would she give $5 for a dress that would wear as long as that dress has already worn—perhaps without all the first freshness, but attractive enough for wear at home, at least? Well, surely for that amount and a few hours of patience the dress can be restored marvelously.

Of course, the dress is a little gone at the bottom. Begin there by ripping out the hem, brushing it carefully and if the edge is badly frayed in places cutting the hem off entirely at the line of the turning up. Next sew this piece on again in a neat narrow seam, press the seam open and turn it up again. It will be only a trifle shorter than the dress was last year, just the distance of the seam in the hem.

If the sleeves were long and if they were tight that is probably the next place that needs attention. But don't let that discourage you, for the sleeves may be removed entirely and in their place sleeves of georgette crepe or chiffon to match the main tones of the frock may be put in. The sleeves should be cut to fit the armholes exactly, but it is very attractive to let them hang in straight fullness from a place a little above the elbow. These sleeves should be turned up in a narrow hem held in place by a line of French knots or leather stitching at the bottom. They should be long enough to extend well below the wrist. Now, from the old sleeves cut a neat strip about three-quarters of an inch wide and stitch this on both sides, arrange the fullness of the sleeves at the back of the wrist, fasten it securely and finish the wrist with the strip of the stitched material, leaving the ends of the sleeves to form a dainty ruffle about the hand.

Before putting the sleeves into the frock see that it is as clean as possible. The best way to do this is to immerse the entire frock in gasoline, rub well the spots between the hand and put it out to dry without wringing the gasoline out. Air it well before trying to wear the gown.

And now comes the final renovation which consists of cutting out the old collar and neck fixings, which are always sure to show the wear first and finishing the neck line in a deep V. Now, with the repair money still in hand buy a fichu.

Extremely effective are fichus of double frilling made especially for this purpose in georgette crepe, net or fine lawn.

For the same outfit, of course, a finer fichu could be made at home, or if you have more to spend a fichu of georgette crepe could be bought.

Very pretty deep fichus with ends at the front can be had for 50 cents or a dollar made of sheer lawn trimmed with lawn ruffles.

For the same outfit, of course, a finer fichu could be made at home, or if you have more to spend a fichu of georgette crepe could be bought.

So Picayune.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

There are some people in this world who seem to think that what anyone is in the beginning he should continue to be all his life, and to hold any improvement up against him as "putting on airs."

I am thinking especially of the case of a young woman who by dint of hard work and observation and a determined will to rise, has lifted herself to a position where she commands the society of people of breeding and standing.

She began as a girl in a factory. She started the work and managed to educate herself in stenography. From that she rose to an important secretarial position. She read, studied, associated with refined people, and naturally she has acquired a different manner and point of view.

Wants Us To Call Her 'Ann.'

You would think her people would rejoice in the improvement. But no. The other day her sister was speaking of her. "It makes me laugh," she said, "to see the way Annie puts on airs. Talks just so and goes about with all those high brow people, and wants to live the way they do. Doesn't even like her name any more, wants us to call her ANN. I can't bear to see people putting on airs that way. Why she was only a girl in a factory just a few years ago. I suppose she has forgotten all about that."

Why Shouldn't She Forget?

Poor Ann! Why shouldn't she forget? She had it enough. And she certainly has earned the right not to let it mean forget in the sense of growing narrow and unsympathetic and critical.

I know that people who have risen do sometimes criticize and look down upon their own. In that case you cannot blame those who are criticized for resenting that treatment and calling it putting on airs. That's just what it is, for any breeding that will act like that is not real breeding, but just put on.

She is Now a Social Leader.

Another case of which I often think is that of a fine looking, gracious mannered woman who is one of the social leaders in the delightful little town in which she lives. And yet I cannot tell you how many times I have heard new comers informed, "Yes," she puts on airs now but she was only a house-work girl when he married her."

Of course it's human nature to reverence oneself for other people's successes by such criticism. Death is not the only one who loves a shining mark. But it's so unworthy, so ugly, so picayune, that I should think people would hate to soil themselves by it.

Lachute, Que., Sept. 1908. Minard's Linctament Co., Limited.

Gentlemen, -- Ever since coming home from the Boer War I have been bothered with running fever sores on my legs. I tried many salves and liniments; also doctored continuously for the blood, but got no permanent relief, till last winter when my mother got me to try MINARD'S LINCTAMENT. The effect of which was almost magical. Two bottles completely cured me and I have worked every working day since.

THE MOSQUITO.

The mosquito is a small but high-powered insect with a roving disposition and a deft, two-edged stinger. It is one of the most unpleasant insects which grow in this country, owing to its clandestine methods of doing business, and can produce more pink blotches on the human cuticle than any epidemic of the scarlet fever.

The attribute of the mosquito which endears it to all mankind is its noiseless, long-stroke stinger, which is of the reversible type. The mosquito carries this weapon in its hip pocket, and sinks it into friend and foe with lightning-like rapidity. The average mosquito can discharge its stinger into the right ear of a heavy sleeper and get away before the latter realizes that he has been operated upon. This is the reason why so many mosquitoes are able to die at home among friends, leaving the record of a useful life and a long trail of ornamental bumps on the male ankle.

The brand found in the Panama Canal Zone a few years ago.

Some parts of the country carry a larger stock of night-blooming mosquitoes than others. The brand found in the Panama Canal Zone a few years ago probably has never been exceeded in bust measurement, general efficiency or enthusiastic devotion to the duty of the hour. This mosquito resembled an adult humming bird, and in the calm hours of the southern night could be heard distinctly at a distance of two miles, sharpening his stinger preparatory to perforating the American tourist. Many an American has gone to the Canal Zone with a sound, weather-beaten cuticle, only to return a few months later containing more artificial airholes than a shredded wheat biscuit.

The mosquito flourishes with more enthusiasm at a lawn social than any place else, and causes the guests to reach down over and over and paw wildly at their silk stockings. Bald-headed men distrust the mosquito, and seldom ventures out after night without a dome shield. There would be more deaths from mosquito bite if the mosquito did not feel obliged to sing a little song before descending upon its victim, thus enabling nervous people to crawl under the bed clothes and wonder if the mosquito followed them.

Hygiene and the bare hand have done a great deal to eliminate the mosquito, but the mosquito has about eliminated the practice of successful spooning at a moonlight picnic, so the score is even.

Your Boys and Girls.

Quite often the upholstery of a baby's carriage becomes faded, worn or soiled, but a new one can be made very easily. Cut a paper pattern the size and shape of back and sides of carriage and make a cover to fit out of white pique or a natural colored linen. Bind with a wash-braid and make buttonholes along the edges. On the upholstery of the carriage sew a pearl button and button the cover on.

Little children especially those nervous or highly strung are disposed to keep on crying when they get started. When you wish a child to stop sobbing get him to take a good drink of cold water. It almost always will stop the sobbing immediately.

Don't forget that children are more seriously affected by impure air than grown up people. Don't forget that lowered vitality makes children more liable to catch any infectious disease. Don't say don't to your little ones. Remember to tell them what they are to do, not what he is not to do.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. THE CLOW GAS STEAM RADIATOR WAY. may 23, 17

Milady's Boudoir

HOW GRACEFULLY TO GRAY HAIRS.

When the first gray hairs appear it is a shock to most women. They feel that youth has suddenly been left behind, and that they have passed into another world. The world of old age, and ugliness.

They determine to hide these gray hairs, either by a dye or possibly they will invest in artificial hair to cover all the offending grays locks.

This works all very well for a time, but the aftermath is bound to come. It doesn't take a very close observer to notice that the edges of the ears are soiled by the dye from the hair, or that even the whiteness of the neck is streaked.

Many women resort to a bleach and soon the hair near the roots is several shades darker than the balance of the hair. This means constant touching up at the roots, which soon results in brittle dry, broken hair. Soon the hair looks dull and lifeless and the owner would gladly give half she is worth if her hair could be at once transformed to its original color and condition.

Better by far to bow gracefully to the inevitable than resort to methods which deceive no one by their artificial mockery.

Fads and Fashions.

Spangles are used on net. Figured muslins are new. Pockets are disappearing. Princess gowns are back again. Muslin frocks are trimmed with fur. New fall blouses have high collars. A liberal use of buttons are produced.

Serge frocks have sleeves of satin. Duvetyn hats are worn with summer frocks. Waists are mostly made up in suit colors. A black velvet hat, untrimmed, is very smart.

The Price of Potatoes.

(Montreal Herald.)
One of the western papers reports that while peeling potatoes, a woman cut into one that was hollow and inside it found a note from the farmer who had raised the potatoes. The note read:
I got sixty-nine cents a bushel for these potatoes. How much did you pay for them?
She wrote back:
I paid $4 per bushel.
The farmer sent her just one more letter. It said:
I got sixty-nine cents for those potatoes. It could not have cost more than thirty-one cents to carry them to you. Who got the other $3? I am going to try to find out.
That was the end of the correspondence, but not the end of the matter. The farmer set out to look for the other $3 and the woman set out on the same search. Like thousands of producers and consumers, they have not yet discovered where it disappeared. The Hon. Mr. Crothers or Mr. W. F. O'Connor, K.C., the high cost of living commissioner, may know, but neither of them have yet told the public.

WEEK END NOTES.

(I. C. M.)

Last Monday evening's meeting at the College Hall in the interest of children was a move both timely and humane, and the promoters of it are deserving of all the good things which have been said about them. They have much to feel proud of, and although the audience was not as representative of the male side as could have been desired, there was sufficient appreciation manifested to assure them that in their good work they have the sympathy of the people. But it is not with the promoters that we wish to deal in our notes, but rather with the object of their work—the welfare of children. It may be that we are slow in waking up to it, and that our eyes have been blinded to the necessity of such reform; but we cannot evade the matter much longer, and if fair play is to be accorded the innocents who suffer, then our duty is to act, and act at once.

The most enduring heritage of the household is the child, and whether there be few or many in the family circle they are each and all equally precious. Nothing else can fill the place of a child in the home; its presence and influence represent the tenderest associations of life, and its happiness is the parents' joy; but how often is this happiness dimmed and turned into sorrow because of the ill-health and frailty, and eventually the death of the child? Of late years the ratio has increased alarmingly, and because of this increase, the Mayor has deemed it well, yet necessary, to institute some movement against it.

The meeting, as our readers are already aware, was addressed by the leading dignitaries of both Church and State, and also by a representative of the medical profession, and by the expert lady nurse, who has come from New York to illustrate the reform. In all that these speakers said there was a unanimity of opinion upon the seriousness of the situation, and upon the need of action, and the possibility of prevention, and the hope of victory. No one speaker gave any disparaging or judgmental opinion from the attention and occasional applause of the audience; the convictions of the speakers were wholly endorsed by all present.

It could scarcely be otherwise; for the question was one of life and death. The children whom God has given us, and who have been entrusted into our care, and who are intended to remedy the danger, what we want is prevention, and this is what the meeting stood for.

Among the several elements mentioned by the speakers, and especially by His Worship the Mayor, those of housing and dieting, and milk were the most important. Within the radius of these three domestic conditions lies the source of our large infant mortality, and we realize change will have to be introduced in many places if the rate is to be lowered. Housing is indeed a problem—it seems the problem—for what great use can pure milk be, and what benefit can good food be if the patients have to live in houses that are unsanitary, damp and dilapidated. This means that as a basis the housing problem must be taken up, and that the danger must be attacked in its stronghold. Of this the promoters are conscious, and they hope, at no distant date to make a beginning, and to continue the good work, and remodel some parts of the city.

There was much said at the meeting that was good, and all that was said was to the point, and really belonged to the meeting; but there were two important features of the subject which we had hoped would have been mentioned by some of the speakers, but which escaped their notice, and yet these two features rank among the most serious of present-day evils. The first is the patent medicine industry, and the other is the drug syndicate. By the latter we need not say anything further than to add, that we have too much drug medication. Of the patent medicine traffic we must all acknowledge that Newfoundland is a rich pasture ground for it. Somehow our people grasp after these things, and look upon them as curables. Why, if the patent medicines as advertised would do one half what they claim to do, then all the pains and aches should long ere this have been banished from the suffering sons of Adam. That the patent medicines intended for external application do much good is an established fact; but the extremes to which internal remedies have gone is lamentable and pitiful. This may be seen in evidence in the city, as in the smaller places; and anyone who has visited the homes of these by-places, and listened to the domestic story of the household, cannot entertain any other opinion upon the undue use of patent medicines, than that the people spend their money for nought;—this is the least that can be said.

However, the meeting of which we write was a good one, and men and women too, who differ in ideas of Church and State were of one mind as to the importance of our child-life; and it is to be hoped that the movement so auspiciously launched will be well conducted, and that the liberality of the Mayor will be amply rewarded by the co-operation of the people and by the saving of the lives of the innocents.

The Supply of Ships.

Since the Shipping Board was re-organized very little news about its work has been given to the public. Much has been done, however, and the situation at present may be comforting to those who are thinking of submarine piracy and the approaching greater demand for ocean carriers. Our Government has placed contracts for about 600 new ships, having a capacity of more than 2,500,000 tons. A short time before his resignation General O'Brien said that contracts for 248 wooden ships and 77 ships of steel had been made. Here were 1,860,000 tons, and the cost was to be $275,000,000. He added that he was negotiating for 100 more wooden ships. A few days later, while he was still General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, contracts for 75 more wooden ships were awarded. On the 11th inst. the Shipping Board approved contracts for 50, and the number has since been increased to more than 100, so that the total is now at least 600.

The new vessels will begin to be available five months hence. In the meantime our Government will be using the 101 seized German ships, half of which, the great Vaterland included, have already been repaired, and nearly 300 commandeered at the private shipyards will be coming into service. It is expected that all of these will be launched before the completion of those ordered by the Shipping Board. In addition, several hundred carriers may be taken from the coastwise trade and private transatlantic work. Power to do this has been granted, and it will be exercised to meet the war demand. So extensive are the plans for construction and commandeering that the Shipping Board probably will ask for $500,000,000 in addition to the $750,000,000 already appropriated.

Ships and more ships, will be needed, and they will be supplied. Germany, gloating over the foul work of her submarines, should consider the evidence that all the carriers required will be available. Our soldiers and food for them, railroad material for our lines in France, trucks, hospital supplies, food and ammunitions for our allies must be transported across the Atlantic. For all this freight there will be sufficient merchant tonnage from American shipyards or the coast and other fleets now under the American flag.—N. Y. Times

Exhaustion of German Reserves.

(From the New York Post.)

The exhaustion of German manpower has been frequently reported. A German collapse within the last two years that the latest emphatic declaration on the subject by a Swiss observer, quoted in the Times last week, will be received with proper caution. On the other hand, we must not underestimate the strain upon Germany's human resources. In the last bulletin of a Copenhagen Society for the study of the social consequences of the war, from which very careful statistical investigations have come before this, we find an estimate of the extent to which Germany has drawn upon her available man-power. At the outbreak of the war there were 13 1-2 million men in Germany between the ages of fifteen and forty-five. From the number of members of the trade unions who have been called to the colors it would appear that by the end of 1915 Germany had summoned 67 per cent. of all the men liable to military service. That was more than a year and a half ago. If we make allowance for men between the ages of seventeen and forty-five who are physically disqualified for army service, we see that at the end of 1915 Germany was fairly close to the limits of her military reserves. Principally she has kept going since that by drawing upon the 600,000 youths who attained military age every year. This is hardly equal to the joint yield from the corresponding classes in France and Great Britain, not to speak of the advent of the United States.

HOT WINDS.

A little while ago it looked as though we'd have a harvest great; the corn was standing green, uncooked, in shining fields, in many a state. The farmers, grieved by barren years, beheld the prospect with a sigh. "This year," they thought, "the golden ears will bring us in a goodly pile." And then, as from a dragon's mouth, there came a blazing, blighting breath, a fried wind sizzling from the south, and all the corn was done to death. Don't talk of grief until you have seen your harvest wither beneath the eye; till you've beheld the walls of green change in a day to dun and die. The long, hard hours, in sun and rain, the heat and burden of the day, the hope of a substantial gain, all nullified and thrown away. In this sad year of 'seventeen, with all the world in war employed, uncounted farmers thus have seen their harvests and their hopes destroyed. And yet the farmers, brave and strong, make little moan, and shed no tear; they say to burned up fields, "So long! We'll hope for better luck next year!"

FRENCH ATTACK.

PARIS, Aug. 24. The French made an attack this morning on the left bank of the Meuse between Avocourt Wood and Deadman Hill. The War Office announces the capture of Hill 304, Camard Wood, and the fortified works between Saucourt Wood and Bethincourt. The French gained more than their objectives, advancing to an average depth of two kilometres.

A French attack east of the road between Esnes and Bethincourt enabled them to enlarge their positions north of Deadman's Hill to the extent of a kilometre.

GERMAN TRENCHES CAPTURED.

LONDON, Aug. 24. To-day's early official: Fierce fighting continued in the night south of Lens, as a result of which we hold German trenches immediately north-west of the Green Crassier. The enemy losses in the close fighting have been very heavy.

ITALIAN OFFICIAL.

ROME, Aug. 24 (Official). The battle is continuing. We have broken up many counter attacks and captured large numbers of prisoners now totalling 500 officers and 20,000 men. We have also taken 60 guns, mostly of medium calibre, numerous trench mortars, machine guns, and a large quantity of material. Our aviators with untiring efforts are giving the enemy no truce. They have bombarded his massed troops, and carried destruction into his lines of communication by dropping bombs on the Trentino front where the enemy persists in fruitless attempts to create a diversion. We completely repulsed patrols in Cudicaria and storming parties in Lagarina Valley, and at Montecross. During the night of Tuesday in a lively encounter on the right bank of the Middle Vovusa River, one of our patrols almost destroyed an enemy party. A few survivors were taken prisoners.

PRISONERS CAPTURED SINCE APRIL.

LONDON, Aug. 24. The British, French, Italians and Russians have captured 167,780 war prisoners since April 9th when the 1917 campaign opened.

CONFIDENCE IN RUSSIA.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24. Another credit of $100,000,000 to Russia was made to-day by the United States Government, this bringing the total credits extended so far to the Russian Government to $257,000,000. Some of the money probably will be used to purchase railway supplies and equipment in this country.

ARTILLERY BATTLE.

Grand Headquarters, French Army, Aug. 24 (By Associated Press).—The French bag of prisoners as the result of the victory at Verdun, amounted to nearly 800, and a large number of cannon and machine guns were captured or destroyed. The battle, which is being continued, is confined to the artillery, with the French holding great superiority in the fire. The entire country rearward from the new French lines around Le Mort Homme and in fact along the whole line of offensive has the appearance of sand dunes being absolutely devoid of any vegetation. A few jagged poles standing out from the shallow marked earth represent all that is left of what were thick woods. Looking forward over the German lines beyond ordinary artillery range, however, everything appears green on the hill crests and in the valleys. Off toward the west Hill 304 stands out prominently, appearing nearer than it actually is. Through the ravine fronting Le Mort Homme, known as "Death Ravine," can be seen the great Hill of Montfaucon. Everywhere the surfaces of the hillside and valleys are scratched with trenches which make a gigantic checker board. The Germans bored into the twin summits of Le Mort Homme two tunnels which they named Crown Prince and Bismarck. The French bombardment smashed them, killing hundreds of occupants, but leaving many still alive to be captured later. In the first named tunnel six hundred prisoners were taken. In this vicinity it is thought most probable the Germans will make a strong effort to reply to the French attack, for the loss of these dominating positions means the limitation of the possibility of future German attacks on Verdun.

IN THE EAST.

LONDON, Aug. 24. The Times military correspondent reviewing the Allied offensive says: The united operations of General Gough and General Antoine in Flanders have compelled the Germans to withdraw twenty-two divisions for repairs. As a German division is rarely withdrawn unless it has suffered 4,000 casualties and as the divisions as yet not withdrawn also have lost severely, we say with confidence that the German losses have been extremely heavy, much heavier than ours. Our losses since the end of April have been much less than were estimated beforehand. The correspondent says there are signs that affairs in the eastern theatres may become interesting before long. The Russian Caucasus Army has not given signs of life this summer, consequently our campaigns in Syria and Mesopotamia have been injuriously affected. The Turks are concentrating at certain places from which they may advance upon General Allenby or Maude. They will be warmly received, while our Arab Allies who are extending their operations to Naam will be useful auxiliaries. Little operations by General Maude on the Delta in Mesopotamia remind us that the campaigning season in these regions is at hand. Rumors of German divisions being on their way to Asia Minor have not been confirmed.

HAVE CONFIDENCE IN KORNILOFF.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 24. The Council of Cossacks in assembly have full confidence in Lieut. General Korniloff, Commander in Chief of the Russian armies, and Premier Kerensky. The question arose following a demand published in the Izvestia, the organ of the Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates, that Korniloff will be dismissed because of the strict regime instituted in the army. The Council adopted a resolution approving the General's course as the only rational one and denying the right of the Workmen and Soldiers to interfere. He was ennobled as the "only General able to restore order and lead the country out of a critical situation."

SCENE IN THE REICHSTAG.

LONDON, Aug. 24. Despatches from Amsterdam represent the scene in the Reichstag Main Committee on Wednesday over Chancellor Michaelis' attitude on the peace resolution as a storm which would have resulted in ousting him from office in a democratic country. According to these accounts Dr. Michaelis was challenged to explain his real attitude toward the peace resolution because when he said July 19 he supported it, he added, "as I understand it." This apparent qualification, said Michaelis' challengers, had been seized by annexationists who claimed that the Chancellor was really on their side. Dr. Michaelis in reply made a laborious explanation in which approving the general spirit of the resolution, he said differences of opinion were general regarding the details and he had in fact noted such differences among the majority of the parties. This provoked an outburst on the part of the representatives of the majority parties in the name of which Herr Friederich Ebbert, Socialist leader, made a declaration practically charging the Chancellor with falsehood. Herr Captain Oke Wounded Again.

Mr. John E. Oke received the following message from the War Office in London, yesterday: "Regret Captain H. R. Oke, 11th Royal Scots, wounded and gassed, Aug. 20th. Further news when received.—Secretary War." This was the first intimation Mr. Oke received that his son had been promoted from Lieut. a promotion no doubt awarded for special gallantry on the field. This makes the second time that Captain Oke has been gassed. We trust that his injuries are not serious. It may not be generally known that Captain Oke was mentioned in Sir Douglas Haig's despatches on April 9th last. Doubtless the services which called for mention were the direct cause of the promotion.

Patriotic Football.

C.E.I. Defeat Star in Lively Game. A large gathering of spectators were treated to a hot dish by the Stars and C.E.I. last evening. The latter won by one goal to nil and the Stars would have suffered a greater defeat, but for the brilliant work of the goal keeper. The veteran E. Power was a decided acquisition in the forward line. During the first period there was no scoring done, though the C.E.I. lost many opportunities. In the next period the C.E.I. showed up better, the individual effort of Jerrrett being admirable. He made three successive dashes and scored once, missing on the other two occasions by small margins. Mr. W. J. Higgins referred and the players were: STARS—Goal, Walsh; backs, Bell, Kavanagh; halves, W. Hart, Duggan, Williams; forwards, Power, B. Hart, Sullivan, Evans McGrath. C.E.I.—Goal, Lush; backs, Reid, Churchill; halves, Hallett, Drover, Wilson; forwards, Miller, Harris, Jerrrett, Rogers, Ewing. The proceeds of the games are not that would be owing to the fact that there are too many "dead heads." The "has been" of 1901 who gave such a splendid exhibition on Thursday evening last will meet again, it is likely, before the season closes.

At the conclusion Rev. St. John gave his blessing to his parents and relatives. Tomorrow he will celebrate his first mass at the Cathedral. He will undergo doctrinal training at New York before taking up parochial duties.

The Elusive Tuna.

A. B. Harding, our well known sportsman, has introduced a new sport here in the form of pursuing the elusive tuna. Yesterday he was fortunate enough to beat the celebrated J. K. L. Ross by catching one which measured 10 ft. 4 inches in length, 6 ft. 2 inches in girth, and weighed about 1,000 lbs. We believe, this is the record. Why not amongst our other inducements to tourists to visit our Island, this sport be widely advertised as the fish around here, at this season of the year, are numerous and much easier of catching than around the coast of Cape Breton, where quite a few sportsmen resort for that particular kind of fishing.—Western Star, Aug. 22.

TORIC LENSES
ARE MORE BECOMING THAN FLAT LENSES. The edges of Toric Lenses do not show as prominently as those of flat lenses. They fit in close to your eyes. You will find Torics much more becoming and useful. They give you a wider, clearer field vision. You should know about Toric Lenses. Let us explain them.

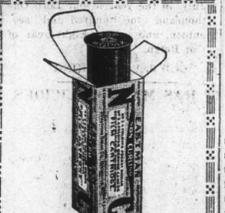

R. H. TRAPNELL,
Eyesight Specialist,
St. John's.

Ebbert said the majorities completely agreed about the significance of the resolution which was unmistakable and they insisted that the Government prosecute a definite peace policy. After luncheon interval the Chancellor accepted the spirit of the peace resolution but the members were greatly dissatisfied. The majority parties met immediately after the adjournment of the Main Committee, and later visited the Chancellor. The Tageblatt says the affair is not merely of passing importance, nor can it be glossed over by a few smooth phrases. The paper contends it is clear that Michaelis has not sufficient authority to control the situation, chiefly because he was chosen without popular representatives having been consulted.
