CHAPTER XXXII.

Mr. Boskett got up, and in the softest and blindest of voices asked: "Now, will you tell us—don't be afraid—you heard voices at various times that evening. Did you hear Miss Deane's voice after—mind, after—the deceased had entered the room?"

"No," said Jane. "There were only two voices after that of the deceased's and Lord Gaunt's."

"And you did not see Miss Deane leave the Mansions? She might have left a few minutes after the deceased had entered?"

"Yes, sir; I think she must, because I didn't see her go afterward, and, of course, I was waiting to be rung for to let the visitors out as usual."

"And Miss Deane asked for her brother and not for Lord Gaunt?"

"Oh, yes, sir; I'm sure the young lady doesn't know anything about it. He is the sweetest—"

The coroner stopped her again, and Mr. Boskett, with an encouraging smile and a glance at the jury, murmured audibly: "No one suspects her!" Then, aloud, he said: "Now, tell me, you found the inner door of the drawing-room locked?—On the bedroom side?"

"Yes, sir."

"And no one entered the drawing-room, so far as you know, after the deceased? You must have heard them—"

Sir James rose.

"Really, that is scarcely a fair question," he said.

"We want all the information we can get," remarked Mr. Boskett, blandly.

The coroner nodded, and Jane said: "No one had come in afterward."

"And now, did you notice anything peculiar in Lord Gaunt's manner when he passed you in the corridor on his way out?"

Jane hesitated.

"His lordship looked upset and—"

"Anything peculiar about his dress? Think?"

"He knows something," whispered Mr. Boskett to Sir James. Sir James did not move a muscle. Jane hesitated, and looked distressed.

"Come, speak out," said Mr. Boskett, gently and persuasively, and Jane, with a kind of sob, said: "There—there was blood on his wrist-band."

A thrill ran through the crowd. Mr. Boskett glanced at the jury in a casual kind of way.

"The porter was with you as Lord Gaunt passed?"

"Yes," said Jane. And she was allowed to stand down.

The porter was next called, and gave his evidence clearly. So far as he knew, no one had entered Lord Gaunt's flat after the deceased.

Yes, Lord Gaunt had looked haggard and upset; and he, the porter, had noticed the blood-stain on the wrist-band.

So also had Wilkins, the butler from Morlet's. He carried the grim story a point further by telling how he had sent the luggage to Southampton, but had heard Lord Gaunt, when leaving in the morning, direct the camban to drive to Charing Cross. Had remarked that Lord Gaunt did not wear his fur coat when he returned the preceding night, and had been informed by Lord Gaunt that he had left it at his club.

The crowd exchanged glances, and murmured significantly.

Then Mr. Morgan Thorpe was called. He was a piteous spectacle. The usually pleasant and youthful face was haggard and drawn; his eyelids were swollen, and his lips tremulous and pale. He had been drinking, but not enough to steady his shaking hands and voice. As he raised his eyes and glanced round the court with a shrinking look, Bobby could scarcely believe that it was the same man who only a few days ago had swaggered and ruffed it with such self-assurance. Every answer had to be dragged out of him. Yes, the deceased was his sister. She was married, secretly, to Lord Gaunt, who married her under the name of Barnard. Had not known Barnard's real name and title. His sister and her husband had separated soon after the marriage, and she had lived with him, the brother, since then. Her husband had disappeared, quite disappeared. She had not seen him, to his, Morgan Thorpe's knowledge, between the hour of their parting and the night of the murder—

Sir James looked up.

"Do not use the word 'murder,' Mr. Thorpe," he said, sharply. "The jury have not yet given their verdict."

Morgan Thorpe glared at him resentfully.

"It was murder, foul and cowardly murder—"

"Silence!" said the coroner, sternly. "Confine yourself to a statement of what you actually know."

Sir James rose.

"You say, Mr. Thorpe, that, so far as you are aware, your sister did not know the whereabouts of Lord Gaunt?"

"She did not, I swear it."

"You knew she was going to Prince's Mansions the night of the 6th?"

Thorpe hesitated. Could he venture to deny it? As he paused, Sir James carelessly picked up a blue paper from the table, and Morgan Thorpe's eyes dropped.

"I knew it."

Sir James handed him the bill.

"This was found in the pocket of the deceased. It is a bill, unsigned, for two hundred pounds. Can you explain it?"

Thorpe glanced at Bobby, and his face went white.

"My—my poor sister was in want of money. She—she thought Mr. Deane would lend it to her—"

His voice grew inaudible. Bobby hung his head as every eye in court was directed to him.

"May I take it that you sent her on this errand?" said Sir James.

Morgan Thorpe raised his head and stared at him insolently.

"You may take it as you please," he said, defiantly.

"That is sufficient," said Sir James, gravely.

Mr. Boskett rose.

"One moment, Mr. Thorpe. Were you aware of the real name and rank of the deceased's husband? Oh, don't hesitate, please!" he added, with the first note of sharpness in his voice; and Thorpe nodded.

"Yes? And you kept your knowledge from your sister?"

Thorpe looked round like a hunted animal seeking for some means of escape.

"I—I did. I thought it best."

Mr. Boskett turned his glittering eyes upon him.

"Did not Lord Gaunt undertake to pay you a sum of money to keep his identity secret? Answer, please."

The reply was scarcely audible.

"Good. Now, Mr. Thorpe, you remember a certain scandal in Paris in the summer of 18—? A scandal in which a lady was concerned. Was not that lady your sister?"

"Yes," said Morgan Thorpe, and Mr. Boskett turned to the jury.

"I regret to have to allude to this matter, but I desire to show the cause of Lord Gaunt's desertion of his wife."

"Not desertion!" said Sir James, quickly.

"Separation, if you like!" said Mr. Boskett. "In a word, Mr. Thorpe, did not Lord Gaunt separate from his wife because he discovered certain facts in connection with her life before her marriage?"

Morgan Thorpe moistened his lips.

"If any one has been saying—" he began; but the coroner interrupted him.

"Painful as this question must be to you, Mr. Thorpe, you must answer it."

"Well, yes—so he said," replied Thorpe.

"And these facts you concealed from him? Did you conceal from him this other fact, that you had suffered three months' imprisonment for fraud committed two years before you made his acquaintance?"

"Where did he get all this?" asked Sir James, testily, of Mr. Belford, while the court was waiting on Thorpe's reply.

"If I am to submit to having all my past life raked up for the amusement of a crowd—"

"Panted Morgan Thorpe, sternly; and Thorpe's livid lips formed the "Yes."

"Did you conceal the identity of her husband, and his whereabouts, from the deceased because you feared his violence if they should meet?" asked Mr. Boskett in gentle tones.

It was scarcely a permissible question, and Sir James was on his feet in a moment; but Thorpe had got his answer out before he could be stopped.

"Yes, I did!" he said, with a suppressed eagerness. "Gaunt was a violent man, one of the hottest-tempered men I have ever met. I wanted to protect my poor sister—"

The coroner stopped him; but it was too late. The jury had got the impression Mr. Boskett had desired to give them.

"I have finished with you," he said, with that air of satisfaction which a clever counsel can make so telling. One or two other witnesses were called, and the two doctors who had been summoned after the discovery of the body were recalled by Mr. Boskett.

"I wish to ask these gentlemen a question, sir," he said to the coroner. "The young lady, Miss Deane, who is now, I regret to say, lying unconscious and seriously ill, is unfortunately connected with this case by one of those accidents to which we are all liable. I do not think that the slightest suspicion had been directed toward her; but, nevertheless—perhaps I feel it my duty to protect her from any further suspicion—I desire to ask a question on her behalf. I ask you, sir—if in your opinion it would be possible for a young girl to have lifted and placed the body on the couch, as it was discovered?"

"No; certainly not," was the reply; and the second doctor repeated the answer.

Then the coroner wound up; and, as with the skill of experience he linked the evidence together, Bright and Bobby felt as if a chain were being wound round Gaunt.

The crowd listened with breathless attention to every word, and when he had finished, turned their eyes upon the jury with hungry impatience.

The jury did not leave the box, but gathered together and whispered for a few minutes, then pronounced the verdict.

They found Edward Barnard Gaunt, Earl of Gaunt, guilty of the wilful murder of his wife Laura.

Mr. Bright rose white and trembling. Bobby let his head fall in his hands. Some one touched him on the arm, and looking up, he saw Mershon beside him.

He was pale, save for a red spot on each cheek, and his small eyes shone vindictively.

"A clear case," he said, with a note of satisfaction in his thin voice. "He did it, right enough. And they'll have him presently. They've cabled to stop the ship at the Canaries."

Bobby shrank from him with a look of terror.

"I—I don't believe it," he said, his voice breaking. "Gaunt is as innocent as—I am!"

Mershon shrugged his shoulders.

"All right! Let him come home and prove it!" he said, sullenly.

He went over to Mr. Gilsby, who was talking to Mr. Boskett—Mr. Boskett cheerfully triumphant—and clutched him nervously by the arm.

Ancient Inventors. That ancient Greek and Roman engineers were ingenious as well as skilful is proved by works that are still extant, for instance when the Eupalines, island of Samos, water-works mentioned by Herodotus were constructed in the middle of the sixth century B.C., a tunnel about one mile long was driven through the Kastro mountain, certainly a respectable achievement when one considers the limited mechanical means at the disposal of the builders. From the books of the Alexandrian mathematician Heron, one sees that ancient engineers knew how to figure beforehand the direction of a tunnel. The fine medical instruments, of which many have been excavated, give evidence of high mechanical skill. Ancient instrument makers manufactured clepsydras (water clocks) that could be carried in pockets and devices used by Herophilus to measure the temperature of patients. The present day slot machine and taxi-meter are imitations of similar ancient inventions. Even to ballistic war machines ancient people applied ideas which play an important part in modern warfare—the "polybon" being in a certain meaning, the predecessor of our repeating arms, and the "monankon" of the mine thrower.

Getting Ready for Hockey.

Preparations are already being made for the coming hockey season and several clubs will be holding meetings next week, when officers will be elected and other business attended to. During the week Secretary Tobin of the Hockey League received the following letter (which will explain itself) from Mr. R. J. Fisher, who brought the Halifax team here last season:—

Dear Mr. Tobin:—As the hockey season is near at hand and as we are going to have a rink here this winter, I may as well drop you a few lines to find out if there is a chance of being honored with a trip to your city this year. It is needless to say that if you favor me (or my team) with the said trip, I will endeavour to get together an "All-Star Team" from the different teams performing here this winter and I will go so far as to promise you that they will not be the class I mean one or two) that were on the team last year. Of course you can understand my position last year; there were two of us after the trip, and one was afraid the other would get it. In that case there was not the interest taken there would have been, had one man had the whole thing in hand. By letting me know as soon as possible, I will be able to see the different men, and arrange for them to get off from their different positions. Trusting this finds you in the best of health I am, Yours sincerely,

Roller Rink Sports To-Night.

A series of interesting races on roller skates will be held in the Prince's Rink this evening, beginning at 8 o'clock. A feature of this novel event will be an obstacle race in which 8 competitors will take part. A hockey match between two teams—Rangers and Caledonians—is expected to prove exciting. A quarter mile ladies' race for which there are some eight entries, promises to be the race of the evening, and the sporting community will have another chance to see our local runner John Bell featuring in a three mile exhibition race on foot at this meet. Our two well known wrestling gladiators Hammond and Marshall will give an exhibition of their mat work for fifteen minutes, while other events on the programme are quarter, half, one and three mile races. During the sports the C.C.C. full band will be in attendance. The judges for the evening will be Messrs. A. MacNamara, J. J. Vincombe, E. Churchill, E. J. Brophy, J. Tobin and N. J. Vincombe. After the completion of the program an informal dance will be held until 11.30, the C.C.C. band furnishing the music. (No charge will be made for the dancers). The competitors who have entered in the various races are asked to be on time as the first race starts promptly at 8 o'clock. The doors will be open at 7 o'clock, so that there may be no confusion in gaining admittance. The galleries are not reserved. The line-up for the hockey match follows:—

Llewellyn Club.

DR. JONES AND MR. C. E. HUNT DELIVER ADDRESSES ON IRISH QUESTION.

There was a very large gathering at the Canon Wood Hall last evening when the monthly meeting of the Llewellyn Club was held, the hall being filled. Mr. L. Colley occupied the chair, and in opening the meeting stated that the feature of the evening would be an address by Rev. Dr. Jones in reply to some of the arguments of Mr. Lindsay Crawford, but that before introducing Dr. Jones he would call on Mr. C. E. Hunt to give his views on the subject from the standpoint of an English colonial.

Mr. Hunt felt that in a self-governing colony like ours, where we were so remote from the seat of the trouble and where very few gave the questions involved any careful study, sentiment was certain to govern our views, and he was convinced that a continuation of the discussion for years would alter the views of exceedingly few people and was for that reason futile and far more likely to create ill-feeling than to help in even the smallest measure in coming to any settlement. He had, however, to admit that the matter was being discussed from different viewpoints and, that being so, a frank expression of views was certainly preferable to secrecy, which invariably bred suspicion and distrust.

He then dealt with the question from the standpoint of one who was English in sentiment and descent and under the following headings:— (1) that the people of Newfoundland, enjoying the fullest liberty under the British flag should respect it and the form of government that it represents; (2) that firm in the belief that our security rests upon the preservation of the Empire, of which England is the corner-stone, the security of England must be our first consideration; (3) that Ireland is entitled to a full measure of Home Rule within the Empire consistent with the security of England.

At the conclusion of Mr. Hunt's address the chairman introduced Rev. Dr. Jones, who in opening said that he thought Mr. Hunt had expressed the views of the great majority of those present. He intended to deal with some arguments that had been advanced by Mr. Lindsay Crawford in his recent address. He had not been present at the meeting, but gathered the views of the lecturer from the newspaper reports and from reliable parties who had attended the meeting. He had taken care to obtain a fair and accurate report as he had no desire to misquote him in any way. He understood that Mr. Crawford had devoted much time in answering a former address that he had given and he wished to reply to his arguments.

Mr. Crawford had said that he (Dr. Jones) had spent about a day in Belfast, but as a matter of fact he had spent about ten days and was present at a convention, at which many Irishmen were present, and he had the opportunity of meeting many leading men from different parts of the country and of learning their views. Furthermore, Mr. Crawford had quoted some views as being the personal views of Dr. Jones, when as he had expressly stated, they were the views of Ulster and had been given as such.

To the assertion of Mr. Crawford that the question was neither a racial nor a religious one, Dr. Jones replied that it was undoubtedly a religious question to Protestant people and to at least some Roman Catholics. Mr. Crawford himself admitted this at a later period in his address, when he stated that for the past one hundred years Ireland had been throwing off stage by stage all the badges of England and the Protestant ascendancy.

MILLIONS KILLED IN ACTION

Wonderful news! Millions and millions of germs killed in action and thousands and thousands of victims relieved of bronchitis, asthma, coughs, and colds. There is great rejoicing in the fact that science has at last invented the world's surest death trap for germs—Buckley's Bronchitis Mixture. With the first dose this remedy gets right down to business, and never ceases in its destructive work until every trace of the disease is completely removed and the victim restored to normal health. Letters from all parts of Canada praising this wonderful mixture are literally pouring into headquarters. Read this letter:—"Years of suffering from that terrible affliction, bronchial asthma, ordered by all medical men to change my business in Montreal and go south to a warmer climate, but I noticed your ad. in the 'Montreal Standard' for the above mixture and I said I would give one more trial to health before I leave my native town, and thank the good maker I did. My bronchitis was so clear, the hacking cough has disappeared, the wheezing cough has ceased as if by magic, and all discomforts have gone since taking your wonderful mixture."—Herbert Corri, 417 McKay Street, Montreal.

There is no reason whatever why you cannot be completely and speedily restored to health if you take this remedy. You are satisfied or the money is refunded, according to our guarantee. Don't delay. Buy a bottle now from your druggist or by mail from W. K. BUCKLEY, LIMITED, 142 MUTUAL ST., TORONTO. 13

In reply to Mr. Crawford's statement that statistics showed that Leinster was the wealthiest province in Ireland, the doctor read statistics to show that Ulster was the wealthiest province. Mr. Crawford had stated that Ireland could not be economically free as she was not politically free, but he showed that Ireland's imports at the time of the union were four million pounds and these had increased in 1916 to over a hundred million pounds, and in 1917 the Irish people had over one hundred million pounds on deposit in their banks. He argued that these figures refuted Mr. Crawford's statement.

He denied that England had shown any tyranny in Ireland as alleged by Mr. Crawford and that such statements were unfair.

He said that Mr. Crawford had quoted him as saying that the Irish were an inferior race. He had not done so, for in his opinion the Irish were a superior race in very many respects and Ireland had produced some of the finest statesmen, soldiers and men in every walk of life. He denied Mr. Crawford's statement that labor conditions in Ulster were appalling and read extracts to prove such was far from being the case. If as Mr. Crawford had stated, the right of a people to mould its own destiny and determine its own form of government was not debatable, Ulster certainly had such rights as well as the rest of Ireland.

He could not hold with Mr. Crawford that the present bloodshed in Ireland was merely incidental to revolution or accidental. He agreed with Mr. Crawford that there was no hatred in the hearts of many Irishmen towards England, but many leaders of the Sinn Fein movement had hatred towards her and openly expressed it. He denied that the old established church had gone in favour of Sinn Fein and maintained that it was the English church that had given England the Magna Charta.

Dealing with the local Self-Determination League, Dr. Jones stated that if they came out openly for Dominion Home Rule within the Empire they would win thousands of supporters from Protestants, but as long as the opinion existed that they wanted only to have Ireland a Republic outside the Empire, all who were Imperial in their sentiments would strongly and openly oppose it.

Dr. Jones in closing made a strong appeal for a United Empire and the abandoning of any movement that tended to bring in this colony discord and hatred.

At the conclusion of the speech of Dr. Jones, which was very warmly applauded, the chairman expressed the thanks of the meeting to the two speakers and the singing of the National Anthem brought a very interesting meeting to a close.

Vivid characters from out of the Romantic Past—fierce-eyed robbers—dashing courtiers and fair ladies—plotting, planning and scheming, flavored with the laughter and the heroism that went hand-in-hand with lace ruffles and flashing rapiers.

Gorgeously costumed; brilliantly lighted; wonderfully portrayed—the Romance of other days stalking proudly in luxurious settings.

Dear Sir,—As an outpost merchant or rather a peddler, I want to say in your popular paper that I am compelled to give up business after this year, owing to Coaker's Fish Regulations. I have always done business with St. John's merchants, whom I always found ever ready to assist the fishermen, but this year, owing to ruinous fish regulations those same men couldn't help me. Now after many years of hard work, I am obliged to give up a business in which I have spent the great part of my life. I have spent the best years of my shut out owing to regulations, resulting in thousands of dollars' loss to us. I have seen the Italian market lost to us, result, more thousands of dollars lost. I have invested all my earnings in the fishery business and lost it through Coaker's ruinous regulations. Oh, men, if you are indeed men, hurl this autocrat from power before he ruins everything that is near and dear to you.

Yours truly,

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ON WANTING THINGS EASY.

How we do resent anything that comes hard! And yet it is only the hard things of life that make us grow and develop and keep our souls alive. I can't remember who it was who said "Help us to pray not for easier lives but for greater strength," but whoever it was, he struck at one of the fundamental cravings of the human heart. The intensity with which we all want, or think we want, ease and cessation from effort is really astounding.

Instead of craving and working for the strength that shall make us adequate to every fate and every circumstance, we long and pray and work for pleasant and easy circumstances.

JUST AS WE ALL DO.

A friend of mine was complaining bitterly her life was over-shadowed by the illness of a near relative. "It doesn't seem as if I could stand any more sickness," she said, "I'm tired of it. I've had such a lot, you know." She has had a good deal, mostly her own. And during that illness she has received kindness and attention from everyone, especially the relative who is now ill. The opportunity to do for others as they have done for her will be a wonderful experience. But she doesn't want that opportunity. She wants things easy--just as we all do. We seem to be born with an idea that we have a sort of inalienable right to happiness and ease, and that anything which gets in the way of that ease and happiness deserves our resentment. That is part of youth's difficulty in adjusting itself to life--the discovery that happiness is not the first law of the universe.

And Then They Aren't Satisfied.

Some people never make that readjustment. They go on fighting against everything which gets in the way of their immediate happiness to the end. Sometimes they don't get what they want and live an embittered, soured existence. Again they do what they want, and find to their astonishment that as they grow older it doesn't keep on satisfying them. "The worldly hope men set their heart upon, Turns ashes--or it prospers, and anon Like snow upon the desert's dusty face, Lighting a little hour or two, is gone." Others gradually learn the lesson that circumstance can seldom be wholly controlled and that happiness must come through one's learning to control one's reactions to circumstances instead of the circumstances themselves. Therefore, they make up their minds to try to become adequate to whatever life shall bring. They may not entirely succeed but at least they are on the road to the only true happiness.

Can't We Copy the Oyster?

When some foreign substance is intruded into an oyster's life he at once begins covering it over so that it cannot hurt him. We all know the beautiful things that result from that action. If one will overlay the intrusions of life with a self-protective layer of courage and optimism one cannot only save oneself from hurt, but can also produce something as beautiful as the pearl--a strong and beautiful character.

Original Human Beings in China.

The western part of Sze-chuan Province, China, might well be called the Museum of the Human Race, the as-yet-undiscovered happy hunting ground of the ethnologist and physiognomist. Here are to be found the surviving remains in the most heroic struggle for existence that humanity has ever waged and who, for lack of a better term, we call the "Tribemen." The Chinese call them "The Eighteen Nations," but it is believed that there are several times eighteen nations or tribes, each under its own king, council, or feudal lord, independent or semi-independent of each other and of the Chinese in whose borders they dwell. Among the tribesmen are found representatives of the black, yellow and white branches of the human family, and some of them, especially the dwarf peoples, are believed to be of very ancient origin.

Egypt's Waste Basket Found.

"We have found the national waste paper basket of ancient Egypt," was the expression used by a member of the French academy of historic inscriptions to describe a recent discovery of the French Egyptologist, Lecau. Beneath the ruins of a temple dedicated to Thoth in the holy city of Heliopolis, Professor Lecau found a subterranean necropolis containing tens of thousands of muffled bodies of the sacred ibis, each neatly packed in an earthenware jar. The packing was nothing but crumpled papyrus--ancient Egyptian manuscripts--which, say investigators, appear to consist of everything written from love letters to washing bills. There are literally hundreds of thousands to be deciphered, and it is estimated that the work of translation will take several years. When this is completed it is hoped that the whole life of the highly civilized Egyptians four thousand years before Christ will be revealed.

Postage Stamp 4,220 Years Old.

Philadelphia, Nov. 25.--What is believed to be the oldest portrait of a human being has been discovered in the University of Pennsylvania Museum's collection of clay tablets from Babylon, according to an announcement made by Dr. Leon Lograin, curator of the Babylonian section. The portrait is on a postage stamp, which also served as a seal for a registered package, dated about 2300 B.C. It is a picture of Ibi-Sin, the last King of Ur, known to Bible students as Ur of the Chaldees. The package or sack, bearing the seal, Dr. Lograin said, appears to have been sent by the high priest of the Temple of Ur, in which Abraham later worshipped, to a banker named Shulpeo and probably contained gold. "It is of unusual importance to archaeologists," he added, "because it probably gives a clue to the personal appearance of the Sumerians, who were not a Semitic race."

"The portrait is on a clay postage stamp and is the result of rolling an engraved cylinder over the soft clay. It is as clear and distinct and the features as well defined as the day it was made. The astonishing thing is that it shows the king-god as smooth shaven. There are two supposed portraits before the one just discovered, but in neither of them is there any apparent effort at realism."

Each has a long beard, and among the hundreds of representations of gods each has a beard. It seems likely that beards were considered solely as belonging to the gods and that kings wore false ones to make appearance more impressive.

"The portrait shows a man seated on a throne with an undoubted nose, well defined mouth and general characteristics so individual that it must have been taken from life. It is significant that the picture shows a lock of hair projecting in the forehead from beneath the turban hat and another from behind.

"Before the days of Ibi-Sin we never heard of a king giving any one a seal containing his portrait, but in this instance the seal not only distinctly says the king god hands the seal to the high priest of the Temple of Ur, but shows a picture of the event, which is amazing from an archeological point of view. Possibly the fact that Ibi-Sin was the last of his dynasty and may have seen the end coming was responsible for this remarkable gift."

NOT WANTED.

With my twelve kids and aunt and wife I'm sadly wearing out my life in search of rooms where we may dwell, most any shelter, poor or swell. I have the price, I am not broke, but landlords view me as a joke, and shoo me from them with a jeer, and cry, "No kids are wanted here!" They might accommodate my aunt, but take in kids--they simply can't! And I have called at staidy flats where there were plain and fancy cats; hand-fed Angoras slept and purred in luxury obscene, absurd when human offspring were denied a needed resting place inside. And in apartments goods or mean fat pampered bow-wows I have seen; they idly played their canine games, the pets of fat and pampered dames; but landlords who thought daschunds right, and sheltered tom-cats day and night, looked on my twelve assorted kids, and then turned down my highest bids. All kinds of live stock find repose in modern flats and joints like those; and even monkeys and their ilk recline on sofas decked in silk, and noisy parrots caw and whoop in many a rich exclusive coop; but when I go with my twelve kids resplendent in their Sunday lids, and my nice wife and queerly aunt, to find a dwelling place, I can't.

BLAIR'S

We have reduced prices of all Dry Goods down to a point where they are on a par with replacement values, or with what we figure will be next year's prices. In so doing we are not considering whether these prices show us a profit or a loss. We did not buy these goods at the top of the market, and in pricing we priced leaving a very small margin of profit. We thought we would go "easy", as we knew it was going to be a hard year with the prices of all kinds of "grub" so high, and the price of fish dropping. We are now selling.

Official Opening of Workmen's Houses.

The official opening of the thirty new houses, built by the Dominion Housing Association on Merryweather Road, to relieve the acute housing problem, took place at three o'clock yesterday afternoon before a large and representative gathering. A great many, however, must have been kept away by the very unpleasant weather, and on their account, the houses will be thrown open for inspection on Saturday afternoon. The ceremony, which was performed in one of the finished buildings, heated and lighted for the occasion, was presided over by Hon. J. D. Ryan, the President of the Dominion Building Association, Ltd. After Lady Harris had given the name of Harris Terrace to the Houses, which are additionally classed as Bowring Row, Anderson Row, Ryan Row, Gibbs Row and Parker Row, His Excellency the Governor delivered a gracious speech in which he lauded the undertaking of the Association, emphasized the value of good housing to the community, congratulated the directors on the splendid buildings they had provided, and expressed the pleasure it gave him to declare them open. Hon. John Anderson followed outlining the work that had been accomplished, and intimating among other things that the Association purposes completing one hundred houses, defraying the cost by issuing six per cent Housing Bonds. Mr. Anderson is the sponsor of this housing scheme, and it was a great satisfaction to him to find that its success was assured. Congratulatory addresses were made by His Lordship Bishop White, Sir Joseph Outerbridge and Hon. Dr. Campbell, all of whom spoke in eulogistic terms of the work of the Association and of the splendid class of houses that had been provided. A vote of thanks to His Excellency and Lady Harris for their attendance and gracious interest was proposed by Hon. M. P. Gibbs and seconded by Hon. S. Milley. Among the notes of regret received by the Hon. John Anderson, was the following from His Grace Archbishop Roche, which evidences his kindly interest:

The Palace,
St. John's, Nfld,
Dec. 1, 1920.

My dear Mr. Anderson:
I have your note of yesterday's date asking me to be present at the opening ceremony of the new houses on Thursday.

I regret very much that as I am just recovering from an attack of illness I shall be unable to have the pleasure of being present on this important occasion.

I wish to tender to the Directors associated with you as well as to yourself my very cordial congratulations on the completion of this work. As you are aware, for very many years past I have been deeply interested in the question of providing better housing accommodation for the labouring classes in St. John's, and it is to me a source of the highest gratification that such a substantial and promising beginning has been made. That so much has been done is due in no small degree to your persistent advocacy of the cause and persevering efforts in which you have been undeterred by hostile criticism and difficulties of every kind.

Wishing the Dominion Co-operative Building Association every success in its future efforts, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
(Sgd.) H. P. ROCHE,
Archbishop of St. John's.

Successful Sale of Work.

What was probably the most successful sale ever held by the L.C.A.S. came to an end last night. From early yesterday afternoon until 9.30 o'clock the sale was continued, the amount realized very nearly approaching that of the first day's sale. All the stalls were very well patronized, but special mention should be made of the work done by the ladies in charge of the candy stall, who having sold out all their stock on the first day, nevertheless, contrived to make a further supply in time for yesterday's sale. A new stall was added to the others yesterday, at which toilet articles were sold. It was presided over by Misses Alison Mews and Olive Bishop. Over 294 teas were served on Wednesday, but yesterday this was eclipsed and the ladies in charge of the tea tables were kept very busy for a couple of hours. At 8.30 a short concert was held, the programme being as follows:
Piano solo—Mr. Gordon Christian.
Song—Mr. A. Williams.
Song—Miss Marguerite Mitchell.
Song—Mr. Harold Foster.
Song—Mrs. Gordon Christian.
The concert was highly appreciated by the audience, every performer being encored.

The total amount realised is in the neighbourhood of $2500 and the energetic ladies of the Committee are to be congratulated on the ultra successful conclusion of their sale.

FEELS IT HER DUTY TO TELL THE FACTS.

Moncton Woman Says Tanlac Has Made Life Pleasure To Her And Will Always Bless Day She Got It.

"I was so sick and suffered so much I feel like I wouldn't be doing right if I did not let everybody know what Tanlac has done in my case," said Mrs. Margaret Buckle, 37 Fleet St., Moncton, New Brunswick, formerly of Yarmouth, Me.

"For some time I was in a run-down condition, nervous and weak, and had indigestion perfectly awful. I went down in weight in just a few months from one hundred and sixty-five pounds to one hundred and twenty-five. I could scarcely eat anything at all, and what I did eat seemed to do me little good. Lots of days I would have awful pains in my stomach that extended all through my chest, and was badly bloated with gas from food not digested. I got so nervous I couldn't get restful sleep, and many a night I never closed my eyes. The least little thing would set my nerves on edge, my energy was all gone, and I felt so tired all the time I never cared to leave the house. I took lots of medicine but just kept going from bad to worse. I became alarmed at my condition and wondered if it was the beginning of the end.

"Then my son-in-law advised me to take Tanlac, and before I had finished the first bottle I was feeling just fine. I have finished my fifth bottle, regained four or five pounds of my lost weight, and am still gaining. I relish everything I eat and feel stronger and better than I have in a long time. Tanlac has made life a pleasure to me and I will always bless the day I bought my first bottle of it."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, in Paradise by Mrs. Martin F. Byrne, in Upper Gullies by Heber Andrews, in Portland by H. C. Haines, in St. Joseph, Salmoner, by Mrs. J. Gushue, in Millerton by Exploits Valley Royal Stores, Ltd., in Flat Island by William Samson, in Jamestown by Christopher Haines, and in Lewisporte by Uriah Freake.—advtd.

Salvage Notes.

S.S. Watchful made a hurried call here on her way to Port Union with the P.F.U. delegates. It was too bad, however, that the union meeting here previous to the arrival of the boat, did not function, as there were not enough members present to form a quorum, thus no delegates have gone from Salvage. Boss Coaker is able to do as he pleases, undoubtedly. To such a chief it meant nothing to take the s.s. Watchful off her weekly route simply for his own convenience, and the interests of a private trading concern.

The arrival of the schooners from St. John's has brought many and varied accounts of the meetings in the city lately. From what we can gather much more of Mr. Coaker's doings would have come out in the first meeting had the men lived up to what they said entering the hall. (Such, of course, is nearly always true of any meeting). Among other things, apropos of this, we are tempted to ask (Socrates like) if Mr. Coaker (M. of M.F., et al) ever gave schooner owners bonuses for shipping their fish to him, such bonuses going into the hands of the owner or skipper only?

The schooner Norah S., Job Stead, master, arrived from St. John's on Tuesday morning.

The schooner captured by Wm. Salvage, Nov. 25, 1920.

Brown, B. Oldford and A. Hunter, respectively, arrived from the city a couple of days ago.

Mr. W. Brown's schooner had her foremast carried away on her voyage from St. John's, and had to run from within a few miles of Catalina, to Harbor Grace.

Thanksgiving services were held here last Sunday. Unfortunately, many of the men were away. The offerings, however, were proportionately the same as last year.

The schooner, owned and mastered by Geo. Parsons, Alexander Barr, was in here Wednesday on her way from St. John's.

Mr. E. Brown arrived from the city yesterday.

In connection with the appointment of commission, one cannot help feeling sceptical of the benefits to accrue from the men appointed. Political jockeying is foremost in its zenith in Newfoundland history, but it is extremely doubtful if the vagaries of Coaker are yet at an end. The convention doings will assuredly give him inspiration, and we trust the delegates may in their wisdom and generosity, donate William another thousand a year to spend on a new "Mutty".

Gifts Which Suggest the Spirit of Hospitality

AGAINST a background of fine damask, under the glow of softly shaded lights, rich silverware gives added charm to entertainment. Holmes & Edwards silverware is silver of the most enduring sort. The beauty and dignity of its lines, in either Jamestown or De Sancy, are the last word in good taste. Either pattern is one of which you will never tire.

HOLMES & EDWARDS—as your jeweler will explain—is protected at the wear points. IN SILVER-IN-LAID blocks of solid silver are fused into the back of the handles and bowls, guaranteeing the hardness of silver wherever friction comes. IN SUPER-PLATE these points of wear are protected by an extra deposit of pure silver.

Man the Burden-Bearer.

Not a wheeled vehicle is seen in all West China except the wheelbarrow. Thousands of tons of commerce pass over these highways annually, all on the backs of men; and as we approach the centres of population we find the sewage and the water of the city are on their backs also says a lately returned traveller. The "Back of Man" is the unwritten epic of this land; for, Atlas-like, it bears the world upon it. The coal and other minerals from the mountains; the cities, with their walls and towers and all they contain; the wood on the hills and the grain of the plain--all, together with the pigs on the way to market and the men who can afford it--all have ridden or ride upon the back of man. The reason is not far to seek. It is purely economic. Man is the most efficient machine and the cheapest animal, and so it comes to pass that he is the universal animal, the omnibus of commerce and the pack mule of the race. It is cheaper to wear men down than keep roads up. When he falls, few care and still fewer pity, for others are eager to fill his place. Should we offer to take the burden from his shoulder, he would regard it as taking the rice from his bowl.

Queen Who Is An Admiral.

Dowager Queen Olga, mother of ex-King Constantine of Greece, was until lately Commander of the Second Squadron of the Russian Fleet and the only woman Admiral in the world. The Dowager Queen who speaks six languages is 60 years old, and an ex-Russian Princess. She has had a reputation for benevolence since she founded, shortly after her marriage, the Evangelismos, a seaman's home on the Aegean, and a woman's hospital. It is a fact that before her arrival in Greece there was not a trained nurse in the country. However, Queen Olga made such progress in the matter that in 1900 she was able to dismiss the English mastron and three English nurses at the military hospital in Athens--summarily.

King of the Hobos.

Jeff Davis, "King of the Hobos," who claims to have covered more than 710,000 miles of U.S. territory, has announced his intention of retiring. He also claims to be the father of the national employment agency idea, and receives $25 a week as president of the Hobo's Association.

Kearney's

Of course you all want "him" to prance down Xmas morning, his face a big sun of happiness, beaming to say, "How on earth did you know that this was just what I wanted?"

Many Xmas gifts for "him" don't just plan out that way.

Because--

People will wait until fifty-nine minutes to ten Xmas Eve to burst in on an overwhelmed, busy clerk to purchase that important gift that should have a week's careful consideration 'way back in November.

And when gifts are bought that way I'll stake a whole sledful of joy they do disappoint. If that "him" is a person of any consequence at all, he deserves to have more than one minute of your time devoted to the purchase of something he has to wear for at least a day. And if real thought and time is given to the purchase, he WILL wear it until next Xmas comes 'round.

Advice: BUY NOW, and Buy Men's Wear, for this is an Economy Xmas, and little articles to wear never disappoint.

Yours for the Right Gift at the Right Time,

CHERY JOE.

Next Sunday's Service at Gower Street.

The Committee of management of Gower Street Sunday School have decided on holding their regular anniversary service on Sunday, December 5th.

The Committee have extended to Rev. Elijah C. French the invitation to preach the anniversary sermons at both morning and evening services. Mr. French's well-known reputation as a Sunday School enthusiast leaves no doubt but that all those who will be fortunate to hear him, will be well repaid.

The afternoon mass gathering of the Sunday School will be held in the auditorium of the church. The Hon. R. K. Bishop has kindly consented to act as Chairman. Mr. Bishop has for some years relinquished active connection with the Sunday School, but is still interested in the work carried on in this department of the church. The Sunday School Scholars and Teachers are looking forward to Mr. Bishop's address with considerable interest.

Rev. Mr. French will also deliver an address on Sunday School work at this service while it is also hoped to have present on that occasion the venerable Dr. Cowperthwaite, as Gower St. Sunday School wishes to take this opportunity of extending to this venerable gentleman their hearty congratulations on having passed another milestone, during the present week. In addition to the regular anniversary sermon in the evening, the subject of which will be announced later the Choir has consented to assist the Sunday School with special music, and Mr. Lloyd Woods will render a solo.

During morning and evening services, scholars and teachers will occupy the galleries, while the parents and friends will be given seats in the auditorium of the church. At the afternoon service the position will be reversed, scholars occupying the main auditorium, while the galleries will be thrown open to visitors and friends.

It is also understood that Rev. Forbes has expressed a wish to relieve Mr. French of his preaching appointment at Blackhead, and will be leaving town on Saturday to take up this work. The friends at Blackhead will appreciate having the Pastor from old Gower Street preach to them on the coming Sunday.

As the North Sees It.

(Twillingate Sun.)

It should be remembered that "Mutt" was a dog, not an "underdog." These last get much less consideration from the acting Premier nowadays.

Conditions in White Bay are said to be very serious, and the Government is attempting to arrange for the cutting of pulp wood for exportation to U.S.A.

It is to be hoped that friend George Farby, who left by Clyde, will not fail to visit the $800 tomb of "Mutt." Some folks here are waiting first hand evidence of that erection.

It is admitted now in official Government circles that some form of increased taxation must be imposed this winter, as the revenue is entirely inadequate to cover the spendthrift policy of the Squires-Coaker Government. Direct taxation in some form is hinted at.

The public news says that Labrador fish is being sold for $8. In St. John's now, "this price having been forced by Mr. Coaker." Somehow we have a hunch that the price was "forced" by the fishermen themselves in their meeting of Thursday week.

In spite of Mr. Coaker's S.O.S. for delegates from every Council, it does not appear to have had the effect he had hoped. It is really a pity, though, that some strong spokesmen could not have attended and told the President a thing or two about the Fish Regulations and the Sugar Scandal.

When the coal fighters on the s.s. Logan, at Clarendville, struck for an increase of pay over 30 cents, the Chairman of the Railway Commis-alon, W. F. Coaker (one time champion, self-styled, of the underdogs, but now the friend of Reids and the "Graballs") ordered a squad of police to the scene. Did anyone say "Cornwall?"

Prof. Hutton's Prince and Pedlar.

GOLDEN SPECTACLE OF AMATEUR GENIUS.

Again Prof. Hutton shows his marvelous spirit of adaptability in this his newest expression of the romance of other days, taken from the unprofessional but well-tried talent of the Academy of Our Lady of Mercy.

Here's an opera, not attaining by any means the heights of operatic genius, but by its clever plot reminiscent of those younger days when boyhood's blood tingled with wild tales of bold, silk-clad robbers, handsome cavaliers and fair ladies—with the dash, devilry and daring that belongs by right to this half-remembered age, will bring back boyhood's days with a gulp.

No pleasanter relief could be found from the heavy, melodramatic, coddling material served up to-day than this lulling musical drama with its laughter and its tears.

Costumed with gorgeous detail; enacted with the spirit and vivacity of youth; breathing the atmosphere and romance of an heroic age. The Prince and Pedlar comes to this prosaic, uneventful town as a welcomed reprieve to take us out of our routine lives. December 7th, 8th and 9th at Casino. Tickets at Royal Station Company, Water St. Distinguished Patronage His Excellency the Governor and His Grace the Archbishop.

"I don't understand why I should be so tired in the mornings."

"ARE you often that way?"
"Why, for months I have felt wretched every morning. And it is not because I do not go to bed early enough."

"How do you sleep?"
"Not very well. Lots of nights I lie awake for hours, restless and fidgety, thinking about everything, but not resting or sleeping."

"Have you consulted a doctor?"
"Yes. The doctor says I am anaemic; the blood is thin and watery, and the nervous system run down for want of proper nutrition."

"Are you taking any medicine?"
"No, not now; he gave me some tablets to make me sleep, but I had to keep on taking them, and I could not see that they were of any lasting benefit. I don't like drugging myself that way."

"Why don't you try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food?"

"I don't know just why, unless it is because I thought it was only for the nerves, whereas what I need is something to enrich the blood."

"Well, that is exactly what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does. It is only by enriching the blood that you can restore exhausted nerves."

"Perhaps I should try it."

"I certainly would if I were you, for I know it is wonderful the way it helps some people who are anaemic and generally run down in health."

"I have no appetite, you know, and what I do eat does not seem to go to the improvement of the blood. When one gets in that condition it is most discouraging. This is why I have such blue days sometimes, and I do hope the Nerve Food will help me."

"I am sure you will not be disappointed, and if I were you I would not lose a day before getting started with this treatment."
