As her boy went out in the world alone,
Only a word from a mother brave,
But nobody knew the love it gave,
Nobody knew—but mother.

BX GEORGE W. SHIPMAN.

Month of fruits and falling leaves,
Under thy opalescent akies
The vagrant summer idly lies,
While coming autumn deftly weaves
Rare tints for tall ungarnished sheaves
Of goldenrod, kissing the eyes
Ot purple asters, as she dyes
The vine that swings beneath the eave

Only a sigh for a wayward son, Cnly a sigh for a hopeless one. And the lights burned dimly and shone with a blur;
Could a mother condemn? "Tis human to err
Only a sigh as she took his part,
But nobody knew what it cost her heart
Nobody knew—but mother.

Only a sob as the tomb doors close.
Only a sob but it upward rose.
And the lights in the window flickered and died;
And with them her hope, her joy, her pride.
Only a sob as she turned away;
But nobody knew as she knelt to pray,
Nobody knew—but mother.

The Week Before the Wedding. BY ROBERT C V MEVERS

Ellen turned up the wick of the lamp. "My!" she said, "this white stuff is hard She smiled happily, threading her needle and pulling her sewing up over her lap, been quieter this week than ever I saw you close to him, as he rested his elbow on the table, his head on his hand. "Dan," she continued, in a low winning voice, and smoothing his hair, "I know what ails you: you're thinking of another time-ten years wedding things ready. Ain't you, now? Don't be afraid to tell me—I'm not jealeus. You'd have been a poor sort of a man not to love your wife, especially your first wife."

Her eyes were brightly shining.
He stopped her caress and strode over to "Glad?" "It's scorching the mantel," he said.

and took up her work.

Meantime, he stood beside the fire, frown upon his face, and watched her. A pretty picture she made, with the lamplight falling on her soft cheek, this young creature whom he had befriended for five years, and whom he had befriended for five years, and whose cheeriness had won over his gloom. Yet he dare not look too much at her tonight knowing that the second residue that I had a beautiful voice that attracted Yet he dare not look too much at her tonight, knowing that what she sewed nearly maddened him. For the wedding was set for next week. And there must be no wedding. He had not told her so; for six nights he had tried to bring himself to the task,

She had relied on him for five years—ever since she had come to the mill, a mere slip of a girl, an orphan, friendless as the poor so often are, and with a frail chest. The great stern man had watched over her, shielded her from harm and tempting, until she trusted him entirely, and, with the trust, learned to love him. He it was who, when the doctor said she had better do something else than tend a loom, had suggested her keeping a few boarders gleaned from the women weavers; he it was who had done much for her, until she was no longer helpbrightening his life, and consciously endeav-oring to do more, when someone told her how, ten years ago, his wife had run off from him, and soon after died in a railway accident; he it was—

And yet, standing by the fire, watching her and her nimble fingers, he knew all that he had done, all that she had done, and it was borne in upon him that he must tell her that it must all be as though it had not been, and that she must stop sewing the "long white seam" of a gown she could never wear very night. Watching the making of the wedding-dress gave him the strength of desperation. He would tell her.

No; wait till she finished that seam mehow or other, it would seem cruel in him to stop it half-way. There, there: the seam was finished—she was dragging the skirt over her knee, to begin on a new breadth.

She looked up and laughed. "Have you found your tongue at last, Dan?" she said. "I was wondering how long you'd keep quiet. Is anything wrong at the mill?"
"Ellen," he answered, almost hoarsely,
"there is something I want to tell you—something I must tell you."
"The thing that must be told is usually the disagreeable thing. Don't tell it to-night—I want to be happy, to-night. Oh, yes, I know what it is, dear, it's about my not being careful enough of my lungs. Why, I'm stronger than I ever was." 'm stronger than I ever was."

"It's not about your lungs; it's about—"

"My eyes? Sewing here in the lamplight?

She turned her head toward the door.

"Is anybody out there?" she called. "I thought the door moved. Come in."

Sperry faced the door also. It alowly opened, and a woman entered, her white haggard face a marvel of suffering.

Ellen sprang up and supported her to the fireplace and the chair there.

"Mrs. Morgan," she expostulated, "you ought not to come down the stairs alone; the first night you've been down, too. You really should not. You look as if it had

She held out an envelope. Ellen expected
Dan to take it and go with it to the postoffice. He did not offer to touch the letter.
Did he carry his illiberality so far as that?
Looking back a week, Ellen could recall how out-of-sorts he had been when the poor woman had come, and, without first consulting him, she had taken her in. Ellen had

"I know what you mean by your frowning," she whispered half resentfully: "you're angry because I did not refuse to pard her, till I'd asked all about her and told you. But I am not quite heartless And, while I am away at the post-office, don't let her see she is not welco is welcome, by me at least, and this is my looked down sternly at the woman. A faint color crept into her cheeks. "Dan," she said. He sank into a chair, his hands going up over his eyes. "Dan," said the woman, again: "I sent her out with the letter on purpose to get this opportunity. I see what's warring with you. I know you made up your mind, the thinking to do now. Upstairs, to-night, I felt wild, as if you'd do it to-night: and I came down to hinder you. Why don't you ask whom my letter was for? It was for the chorus-leader of an opera-troupe; I've told him I'll never sing again, never again." "No," he said, "you've come back to me

She returned to her chair, a little hurt, He shrank from her. "I must hurry," she said, "for she'll be back soon. I know you. I know what's in your mind to do; you want to tell Ellen who I am, and that the wedding can't go on It will kill her! Yes, it will kill her! WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 30TH, 1896. tinue the move that was begun some time ago to have our town incorporated? A spasmodic effort was made about a year ago and before anything definite was accomplished the mat-ter was allowed to drop. Nearly every citizen in the town is in favor of this step, and it only requires a little push on the par of some of our people to bring the question up properly before the ratepayers and have a vote taken. It is unreasonable that we while Con at Visit to Relatives to the whole county and provide for the general wants, but can hardly be supposed to asfaguard all the small matters of detail connected with a town like this, which do not require attention in other parts where there is less concentration of capital and labor. We have got along fairly well so far but that is no reason why we should not take steps to further and protect our interests and common welfare. Some the gold on the control of should continue longer under the control of want to be able to turn round and say and say with exultation, "I told you so," hence they oppose its inception very vigorously. But this is not the proper spirit for wideenterprise which is so commendable to the citizens of other towns that it is almost uni

About ten thousand dollars in cash prizes is being dis-tributed in the different departments, and we are pleased to see that a fair share is coming to Nova Scotia. Mr. Byron A. Chesley, of Clarence, seems to be the pioneer exhibitor from Annapolis county, and we notice that he has captured no less than fourteen first prizes on apples—five seconds and one third; two first and one third on peare; two first on plums; one first on peaches; and one first on quinces. This certainly is a record that Mr. Chesley and Annapolis county may both feel gratified with and should stimulate other farmers to go and do likewise. The judge of the fruit is D. H. enterprise which is so commendable to the citizens of other towns that it is almost universally adopted. But the tendency of such opposition is to make the town where these citizens dwell the last or one of the last to adopt progressive measures. If all our people were afraid of taxation we never could enjoy the inestimable boons of our water and electric light systems, but would remain a town of yesterday. Although the cry of expense is seemingly the only objection to incorporation, it by no means follows that because some people say it means higher taxation that that will be the inevitable result; but on the contrary the history of incorporation in the town of Annapolis is that there is no increase in the taxes, but a large increase in the satisfaction over the way the town business is handled. of the "dark ages" lurking round our streets at night, sometimes civil, sometimes making it unpleasant, often impossible for females to pass. Such things should not be, and it is well worth while becoming incorporated to protect ourselves against these lawless fellows who have no respect for anyone whomsoever. If it will cost a little more to protect ourselves against this depravity let us cheerfully pay the bills and remove this reproach from our town.

—THE International Exhibition now being held in St. John is being remarkably well patronized and is meeting with that degree of success which such undertakings deserve. Exhibits are to be found there from nearly all the Canadian Provinces and seme of the United States, England and Germany. Nova Scotia comes in for a fair share of space and our county is well to the front in the line of fruit. —Solar S.—Solar Polita and Shaffin D.—While workmen were tearing down an old building on Water street yesterday, Mr. Charles Norman found an English sovereign bearing the date of 1853. —Schra. Emma Potter and Shaffner Bros. left Clementsport on Friday for Boston with wood and piling.

—Cards are out for the anniversary of the golden wedding of Sir Charles and Lady Tupper on October 8th.

—A meeting was held at the hotel Dufferin, St. John, last week, for the purpose of or-ganizing a maritime kennel club. —Mr. John Ruggles, of Lawrencetown, had his shoulder dislocated on Tuesday, 22nd inst., by falling from a log.

—Premier Flynn and his ministers opened he provincial campaign in the province of quebec, at Nicolet, on Sunday last. —The first snow of the season fell at Que-pec on Friday, 25th, and in some places near there ice formed a quarter of an inch thick. Bear River is to have a convention of Adventists, commencing Oct. 4th and lasting till the 11th. Several clergymen from Boston are to be present.

—A horse belonging to Mr. R. D. Stevens, of North Williamston, dropped dead in front of George Whitman's one day last week while hauling a load of apple barrels. EXCURSION TO BOSTON.—The Dominion Aslantic Railway are now issuing excursion tickets to Boston at one first-class fare— limit, twenty days from date of issue.

—A hunting party, consisting of E. R. Redding and Frank McClelland of Annapolis, and Jack DeVany of Bear River, were successful in killing two moose last week.

—The report of the secretary of the Baptist conference for Annapolis county shows that Clementsvale leads off again with largest number enrolled, there being 185. Clarence with the largest attendance, the most church members and the largest number who have connected themselves with the church, the number being 54.

RECEIVED A BRONZE MEDAL.—Mr. James S. Hawkesworth, our respected townsman, manager of the Yarmouth Creamery, has received a bronze medal and diploma for an exhibit of cheese at the World's Fair, held in Chicago in 1893. The cheese was made in the Mabou (C.B.) Creamery, of which Mr. Hawkesworth was manager that year. —Mesers. Godfrey Smith, miner; Walter H. Prest, miner; J. Kenneth Lawson, merchant; Dugald Stewart, physician; all of Bridgewater, Lunenburg, Co., and Alexander H. MacLean, barrister, of Lunenburg, are applying for incorporation as the Block House Gold Mining Co., Ltd., for the purpose of carrying on a general mining business.

—Mr. Colin Harris has leased the express business in connection with the Bear River hotel for a year. This is not a new departure for Mr. H. as a few years ago he was engaged in the livery and express business, and his courteous and obliging disposition won for him many friends. Mr. G. M. Harris, the late proprietor, goes to Boston.

—The directors of the Bridgetown Driving Park have decided to hold their fall meeting on Thursday, Oct. 15th, wish a farmer's race and a 2.45 trot and pace, for particulars and conditions of which see their adv. in this issue. In addition to these classes there will be one or two sweep stakes and some bloycle races, full particulars of which will appear later.

—Mesers. Curry Bros. & Bent have contracted with Editor Woodworth, of the Berwick Register, for the immediate construction of a new building, to be used as a struction of a new building, to be used as a printing office, in place of the one destroyed by fire a few days ago. The new structure will be 20x50 feet, two storeys, and conveniently arranged. The enterprise exhibited by Brother Woodworth since his loss by fire has been most commendable, and he is entitled to the hearty support of the residents of the county and the citizens of Berwick in particular.

—In the absence of Rev. F. P. Greatorex the Rev. J. A. Simmons, curate of St. Mark's Halifax, conducted the services in St. James church on Sunday last. During the offertory at the evening service, Mrs. Wm. Campbell, of Ottawa, rendered a solo entitled "O Rest in the Lord," from the oratorio, Elijah, in a pleasing and effective manner. Mr. Simmons, during his short visit in town as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Beckwith, has made many friends, all of whom will extend a cordial welcome should he again favor our town with a call.

town with a call.

—A very neat circular of the St. John Business college and shorthand institute, S. Kerr & Son, proprietors, has reached this office. The character of this important institution is so well and favorably known that no word of ours is necessary to introduce it to the public. The present standing of the college is higher than ever before; the constant aim of the proprietors appears to be, not to be satisfied with a mere maintenance of its present standing, but to be constantly taking higher ground in that direction. Graduates from the institution are found filling important and lucrative business positions in all quarters of the globe.

—That the past season has been one of the tions in all quarters of the globe.

—That the past season has been one of the most prolific ever experienced in this province is not solly evidenced by the tremendous yield of the garden, field and orchard, but also by the wonderful growth of many varieties of trees and vegetables. For an illustration our sanctum has been presented with a stalk of corn, containing well-developed ears, grown on the farm of Mr. Arthur Marshall, Clarence, which measures fifteen feet in length. Mr. Gillord Covert, of Paradise, brings to our notice the limb of a plum tree which has grown eight feet long since the spring season opened, while Mr. H. N. Gesner, of Belleisle, calls our attention to an applet tree, of the Gravenstein variety, which yielded the enormous quantity of twenty five bbls. of marketable Iruit.

—A spot famous beyond many a kingdom.

Some varieties of apples were exhibited from the other provinces which do not seem to have been exhibited from here, as our farmers were not among the prize-winners; but in the great majority of cases where prizes were awarded for fruit they were captured by Mr. Chesley or Messrs. F. A. Parker and A. L. Morse of Berwick. These three gentlemen with Mr. M. B. Harrison, of Maccan Station, Cumberland county, were the only parties from this province exhibiting fruit. Mr. Chesley also carried off several prizes for vegetables, etc.

Such an exhibit serves a double purpose. First its proves pretty conclusively that Annapolis county fruit is what we all think it is, viz., the best grown in the Dominion, and in the second place such an exhibition gives our enterprising farmers an opportunity to advertise the natural facilities and advantages of the valley as a fruit-growing section. We only wonder that Mr. Chesley is allowed to carry off so many prizes without any competition in the county. Our apple crop is seldom larger than it is this year, estimated now at 400,000 barrels, and —Rev. Mr. Gwilym, Episcopal, who for a time preached at Chatham and later at Campobello, has changed his religious views and is now pastor of the McDougall street Baptist church, New York. At the close of every Sunday evening service he distribute with his own hands from 200 to 300 loaves of the pread among the root, who assemble at the bread among the poor, who assemble at the church door for the purpose of receiving it. —The benefit of cold storage for the preservation of fruit is well illustrated by a half-barrel of russet apples which the sohr. Florence flues brought to-day from Granville Ferry, says the St. John Globe. The apples are last year's production, but they are sound and fresh as if they were picked this year. Mr. Herbert Weatherspoon, of Granville Ferry, had the apples stored since last year in a cold cellar. The apples will be placed on exhibition in one of the uptown grocery stores.

—The International steamers have commenced their winter time-table between St. John and Boston, now making only two trips a week from the former city—Monday and Thursday mornings at 8 o'clock.

—M. G. Marshall, D.D.S., whose dental rooms have been located in the Ruffee block for the past few years, has removed to his private residence, opposite the store of J.W. Beckwith, Esq., and one door south of Monton office.

—The Montton desires to express thanks to Mr. A. S. Banks, proprietor of the Banks or Red Gravenstein Nurseries, at Waterville, Kings county, for a basket of the celebrated apples bearing that name. Their uniformity in size, high coloring and delicious flavor surpass anything in the Gravenstein variety yet brought to our notice. After closing school on Friday he started for home on a "bike," and succeeded in making the distance—105 miles—by Saturday noon. Remaining over night he started back, and in spite of the muddy roads caused by the heavy rain on Saturday reaning, reached Freeport that night. At an earlier date this season he and his friend George Morse, of Melvern Square, rode from Taror to Wilmot—118 miles—in one day, without feeling the effects to any marked degree.

After the catsarrophe, all the pictures on the walls of the parliament house had been jerked to one side and rents were visible in the ceiling, while the Cathedral had suffered even more. None of the buse of the town were damaged severely. It was the districts near Heola that suffered most. The centre of the earthquake seems to have been in the velicanic range out of which this mountain rises.

The extent of the damage done is not yet fully known. At least fifty farms and homesteads have fallen down, several churches have been damaged, one mas severely wounded, thirty sheep and five cows killed. The inabitants saved their lives by jumping half of one farm were buried under the ruins, but one of them got away and brought help from the neighbors, who dug them out still alive.

Lieut. Peary and Party Arrive at Sydney

The steamship Hope, with Lieut. Peary and party arrived at Sydney, C. B., on Saturday last. A correspondent of the Halifax Chronicle, who had an interview did not find any of the party very communicative as to why they did not bring the much talked of meteorite with them. One explanation of the failure is that the gear of the Hope was not powerful enough to raise the great mass. The trip was singularly free from accidents, and no one was sick except slight seasickness at first. On the voyage the propellor was somewhat damaged by ice. Three of the blades had pieces broken off, but the speed of the ship at no time when necessary was less than six knots.

propellor was somewhat damaged by ice. Three of the blades had pieces broken off, but the speed of the ship at no time when necessary was less than six knots.

Going north the Hope called at Godshaven and Umanak on Aug. 6th. Prof. Burton, of Mass. Institute of Technology, and party landed. Here Mr. Porter, their artist, made sketches of the ice formation and studies of the natives. The following day, Aug. 7th, the Cornell party landed at the peninsula of Nugsusk, where they remained while the ship went further north with Lieut Peary. The Cornell party under Prof. Tarr during their months stay at Nugsuak made a careful study of the large double glacier which they discovered and which they called the Cornell glacier, made a valuable botanical collection, spent some time in the study of invertebrate zoology and made a careful examination of crystaline rocks under the supervision of Prof. Gill.

As is well known Greenland is covered with ice except the peninsulas around the edge of the coast. The Cornell party went inland over the ice caps six or seven miles, and while there discovered a mountain which came up through the great field of ice. They called this discovery "Mount Schurman," in honor of the president of Cornell university, who is well known in Halifax.

During the stay at Nugsuak the party lived in tents and had plenty of shooting. Mr. Putnam, with the Benton party of the U. S. coast survey department, made a series of pendulum and magnetic observations for the purpose of measuring the force of gravity which, as is well known, increases from the equator to the poles on account of the flattening of the earth at the poles. The climate was good, especially up the fjords, the peculiar part of it being that at Umanak the nearer one got to the great inland ice-fields the higher became the temperature and clearer the atmosphere.

On the deck of the Hope, securely tied in a large cage, were two immense polar bears, captured at Mugford, near the Cape Labrady. The security of the party and the decided the controla Below decks were ten Esquimaux dogs. All around were hung birds, skins, whalebone, kayaks and other mementoes of the trip. Capt. Bartlett was spoken of as having given every satisfaction. The captain's son, George Bartlett, was one of the party.

A recent investigation made in Philadelphia, says the Medical News of that city, developed the fact that in some of the worst "sweat shops," garments were often of the best quality, and not, as is usually supposed, only cheap goods. Soils are either fertile or barren (infertile). The fertile soil may be best described by negative properties, or the absence of any of those elements which go to make a barren soil. The more closely a soil approaches a happy mixture of the four elements, sand, clay, lime and vegetable matter, the more nearly will it approach a perfect soil, both physically and chemically. The nearer it approaches to the composition of one single element to the exclusion of others, the nearer will it approach to barrenness or infertility.

It would be useless to describe the thousand and one grades of composition which lie between these extremes, and equally useless to try to classify them —The main principle to be observed in feeding the milch cow, is to feed moderately. No matter what you feed, do it in reasonable quantities, and no sudden or radical change should be made, but in changing feeds do so gradually and with moderation. A sudden change from dry food to succulent pasturage often causes serious disturbances of the digestive organs, and therefrom results a serious loss to the owner of the cow.
