Sir James Whitney Slightly Improved—Toronto Boy Sandbagged—C. P. R. Withdraws Steamer Service

OUTLOOK BETTER FOR RECOVERY OF PREMIER

Sir James Whitney Spent Fairly Comfortable Day, Tho at Times Somewhat Delirious — Dr. Pyne, While Hopeful, Admits That Condition of Patient is Still Critical.

Hon. Dr. Pyne wired the World from New York last night: "Patient had restful day. Holding his own fairly well."
NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(Can. Press.)—Sir James P. Whitney spent a restful day at the Manhattan Hotel, where he has lain ill for the past three weeks. He slept a good portion of the time, and while he had apnoea, on the whole he had one of the best days he has spent since the heart trouble showed its effects.

This was the statement made late this evening by Dr. R. A. Pyne, the minister of education, who has been with the Ontario premier through his illness. The fact that both Dr. Pyne and Horace Wallis, the premier's secretary, went out during the evening, added to the effect of their words. "He was his old self for a time today," remarked Dr. Pyne in discussing his chief. "He has periods when he is somewhat delirious, but on the whole, throughout the day he rested comfortably. I have seen worse cases of cardiac trouble come out all right. The age of the premier, however, is what makes his condition more precarious."

Hopeful of Recovery.—When asked whether he could indicate any approximate time for the premier's return home, Dr. Pyne refused to make any definite statement. He added, however, that he would be disappointed if Sir James did not show some improvement within a few days, and he hoped to be able to accompany him home to Toronto. Besides the lapses into delirium the distinguished patient has periods of coma. Both Dr. Pyne and Dr. Herman Biggs, the specialist who has been called into the case agree that while the Ontario premier's condition is serious it is not at the present moment critical. During the day Dr. Herman Biggs,

Saskatchewan's New Loan

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(C.A.P.)—Arrangements are being made for the issue of $5,000,000 4½ per cent. five-year convertible debentures of the Province of Saskatchewan, at 96½, the proceeds to be devoted to repaying £2,000,000 of treasury bills. The yield on debentures, after allowing for redemption, will be 5¼ per cent.

STEAMER "POOL" WINS BATTLE WITH C. P. R.

Later Announces Withdrawal of Service to Trieste and Naples, Alleging Persecution by Austrian and Italian Governments at Instigation of Powerful Combination—Bitter Warfare Ended.

MONTREAL, Jan. 5.—(Can. Press.)—The Canadian Pacific steamship service between Canada and Trieste and Naples and other Mediterranean ports is at an end, according to a statement made by one of the officials of the company here today. The cutting off of the service is due to the alleged persecution the company claims to have endured both in Austria and Italy. The final action which caused the management of the C.P.R. to take this drastic step would appear to have been the holding up of the Ruthenia by the Italian Government at Naples for a couple of days on charges of having contravened the immigration regulations of the country. It will be recalled that the Tyrolia sailed from St. John's, Trieste via Naples as recently as last Saturday, but it was stated by the officials who gave out the information today that on her return to Canadian waters the Tyrolia will be sent to Liverpool. Similar action will also be taken with regard to the Ruthenia on her return from Trieste, where she is now berthed.

Withdrawn from "Pool."—The trouble between the North German lines belonging to the so-called "pool" and the C.P.R. began in January, 1913. At a conference held in Berlin on Jan. 29, 1913, the C.P.R. adhered to the "pool" case. Mr. Macgregor is Mrs. Sharp's lawyer.

BOY SANDBAGGED AND STABBED BY THUGS

Percy Steers Answered Call for Help on Duke Street—Attacked by Four Men Who Robbed Him and Left Him Unconscious.

Answering a call for help on a dark night, almost cost Percy Steers, 17, 174 Duke street, his life. Walking westward, he was startled by three cries for help in rapid succession coming from behind him. Turning, he saw three men seemingly engaged in beating up a fourth, but when he rushed to give assistance was immediately set upon by the four of them, and told that if he did not submit to robbery quietly he would be stabbed. Unafraid, the lad struggled to gain his freedom, but held by two powerful men, he had no chance. The other two men went thru his pockets and relieved him of $5. In the midst of the struggle one of the men attempting to drive a knife in him, stabbed him in the wrist, and another attempt resulted in a deep cut in the left arm, which is believed to have severed an artery. Before they left him one of the men struck him on the head with a sandbag and dropped him unconscious to the sidewalk, where he was found ten minutes later by a police constable. He was conveyed to the General Hospital in the police ambulance, where he gave the police a good description of his assailants. "If no internal injuries to the head result from the blow from the sandbag the lad will recover."

Steers is a Jamaican, but has been in Canada nearly a year. From papers found in his pocket it is thought he is secretary to Chief Coroner Johnson.

APPEARING FOR MRS. SHARP. Inadvertently the World, in its Sunday issue, reported that Mr. Alex. Macgregor was appearing for Jackson, alias Wright alias Horace, in the Harriet Sharp case. Mr. Macgregor is Mrs. Sharp's lawyer.

HYDRO BYLAWS WERE CARRIED IN MANY TOWNS

Sandwich the Only Town Heard From Where Majority Was Against the Bylaw. Figures received up to an early hour this morning show that the hydro-electric enabling and purchasing bylaws were carried in every city where a vote was taken. Complete returns are not yet to hand, but large majorities are reported from Elton, Strathroy, Kemptville, Tilbury, Chesley and Hanover. Sandwich is the only town where the hydro bylaw was defeated, the vote being 51 to 44. Bylaws of wide range and purpose were voted on in various municipalities thru Ontario yesterday, and in nearly every case the voters showed progressiveness and faith in their home towns or carrying the bylaws. Owen Sound defeated three bylaws, providing for a grant to the hospital, a grant to good roads, and a public utility commission. The Town of Preston, by a large majority, decided to grant a 25 years' franchise to the Galt, Hepler and Preston Street Railway, while the City of Guelph, by an overwhelming majority, voted money for extensions to the municipally owned street railway system. It was decided also in Guelph to publish the assessment roll each year, so that every man can see what his neighbor pays in taxes. Cornwall carried a bylaw to give a bonus of $5000 to the Glengary and storm' Railway. Fixed assessment bylaws were carried in three or four places, as shown in the tabulation.

LICENSES TO BE CUT IN OTTAWA

Nineteen Taverns and Ten Liquor Shops to Go — Fifty Licenses Remain. OTTAWA, Jan. 5.—(Can. Press.)—License reductionists won a notable victory in the capital today, when the ratepayers voted favorably on two plebiscites, one to reduce the tavern licenses by nineteen and the other to reduce the shop licenses by ten. The tavern reduction plebiscite carried by a majority of over 700, while the shop plebiscite went out by a majority of 44. The reduction will come into effect on May first next and will leave only fifty licenses, both tavern and shop, in Ottawa.

UPRISING IN ECUADOR WAS NIPPED IN BUD

Revolutionists Who Tried to Capture Guayaquil Barracks Were Routed. GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Jan. 5.—(Can. Press.)—A plot to attack the barracks at Guayaquil Sunday night was discovered by the government in time to prevent a serious situation. A group of revolutionists under Colonel Valle Franco was surprised while making preparations. The leader was killed and the members of the group were dispersed. Troops patrolled the city during the night in fear of disorders. Several government officials who were involved in the rebel campaign in Generalisimo have been brought here under arrest. They will be court-martialed. Coady is Back. City Treasurer Coady was in his office yesterday, the first time in many months. He will not undertake the full duties of his office until he has completely recovered his strength.

LOCAL OPTION MADE NO SWEEP BUT BYLAWS WERE SUSTAINED IN EVERY CONTEST FOR REPEAL

New Trustees for General Hospital. Some matters relating to the board of officials and government of the Toronto General Hospital were arranged before the provincial cabinet yesterday. The place of trustee vacated by the late Eugene O'Keefe was filled by the appointment of W. T. Kernahan of the city. A. B. Macklem, Cawthra Muckle and Sir William Mackenzie were appointed to the board on a three-year standing and J. C. Eaton and Mark Irish to a similar position, the duties of the latter to date from a year ahead. Results of the voting in local option contests yesterday show that two counties, Dufferin and Glengarry, will be completely "dry." In every municipality where votes were taken to repeal the local option bylaws now in force, the bylaws were sustained. The vote on license reduction in Ottawa, carried on by a large majority and the number of bars will be cut to 21. Returns were received in Toronto last night at the headquarters of the Dominion Alliance and the Personal Liberty League. Dominion Alliance offices in the Confederation Life Building were crowded by about 1000 men and women favoring local option. The meeting lacked enthusiasm owing to the fact that the places where local option carried were those where the number of licenses ranged from one to four, while none of the larger municipalities gave the necessary three-fifths majority. There was one case where the three-fifths clause worked in favor of the "dry." This was at Bobaycon, where the majority for repeal was 25, which was insufficient under the three-fifths clause to be effective. Final Summary. The summary as finally announced was 15 places carried for local option, 12 repealed, and 19 municipalities where the majority for repeal was less than the three-fifths, four places not heard from and five places where the local option bylaw was defeated on a straight majority. The net result of the plebiscite was a reduction of 17 licenses in the places added to the local option list. The "wet" considered the results of the voting anything but a cordial reception to the efforts of the "dry," who waged a terrific warfare in every municipality where a vote was taken. The results, they claim, were not so encouraging as had been hoped for by the proponents of the local option plebiscite. At the headquarters of the Personal Liberty League the members seemed to be gratified at the results. Opinions were expressed that a reactionary movement had set in.

OTTAWA ELECTS McVEITY MAYOR

J. A. Ellis, M.L.A., Defeated on Issue of Referring Water Supply to the People. OTTAWA, Jan. 5.—(Can. Press.)—Taylor McVeity, former city solicitor, was elected mayor of the capital today by a majority of 370 over J. A. Ellis, M.L.A. for West Ottawa. In one of the most bitterly fought election campaigns in the history of the city, the issue hinged on whether the city should spend approximately $8,000,000 on a scheme to secure water from the Gatineau hills without referring the question to the people. Mr. McVeity came out strongly for a referendum to the ratepayers of the various wards, while Mr. Ellis would have gone on the expenditure on a sanction of the Ontario Legislature, of which he is a member. The following controllers were elected: Edward R. McNeill, John W. Nelson, J. W. Kent and Dr. Rufus Parent. The council for 1914 is composed of: Victoria Ward, E. Laroche and D. Rice; Daishouse Ward, T. T. Beattie and W. C. Howe; Wellington Ward, William Macdonald and Harold Fisher; Central Ward, Wm. Findlay and F. D. Hogg; Capital Ward, John Carmichael and W. S. Graham; St. George Ward, Walter Cunningham and Geo. O'Connor; Byward, A. W. Deskarbins and E. Labelle; Ottawa Ward, J. A. Finard and O. Racine; Rideau Ward, Harry Low and Thomas Brethour.

MRS. KONKOFE WHILE INSANE SLEW CHILD, THEN SUICIDED

Woman Gave Her Neighbor's Baby Carbolic Acid to Drink — Discovered. She Threw the Child's Body Away and Took a Fatal Dose of the Poison. Thought to have been suffering from a fit of homicidal mania, Mrs. Minnie Konkofe, 22, who with her husband and child occupied rooms at 55 Beverley street, slew the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Alec McFaul, the owners of the house, by giving it carbolic acid. Hurling the dying child down the stairway, the demented woman swallowed a quantity of the poison, from which she herself died in the General Hospital at 3:20 yesterday afternoon. The mother of the dead child lies prostrate with grief at her home on Beverley street, and has to have a physician in constant attendance upon her. Small Boy Saw Deed. The only person present at the time of the tragedy was seven-year-old Johnny White, a cousin of the dead child, and his story is accepted by the police as authentic. According to him the mother had left him in charge of the baby while she went to the bank. The Konkofe and McFaul families were very intimate, consequently he did not think it strange that Mrs. Konkofe should enter the room and pick up the sleeping child from its carriage. After fondling the infant for a while, according to the lad's story, she carried it into the bathroom, forbidding the boy to follow. She locked the door, and shortly afterwards the boy says he heard a gasp. Three Body Downstairs. Now thoroughly frightened, he called over the banisters: "Come quick! Mrs. Konkofe is killing your baby!" This crazed woman threw open the bathroom door and flung the child head-down down the stairs. It was picked up by other inmates of the house who rushed to the scene, but every effort at resuscitation on their part and on the part of a physician summoned proved futile. Meanwhile the woman had rushed to her own room and took her own life by drinking carbolic acid. Both the father and mother of the dead infant collapsed at the news of the death, and when confronted with the body, sobbed, "Oh, Johnny, why did you leave the baby? Why did you let her kill it?" Inquest Today. From police investigations it seems that the woman had been acting queerly for some time. Both she and her husband are Russian Jews and have been in Canada some time. Mr. Konkofe is a tailor. Both bodies were removed to the morgue, where an inquest will be opened at noon today by Coroner Cotton.

"Is th' to be any change of fillum, mister?"

FIRST NIGHTS AT THE TORONTO THEATRES

GRAND OPERA WON HEARTY APPLAUSE

Mme. Doree, at Shea's This Week, Sings Well-Known Selections.

REX COMEDY CIRCUS

Violinski, Who Plays the Violin and Piano at Once, is an Attraction.

Something entirely new to a Toronto vaudeville house is given at Shea's this week, when Mme. Doree presents her "Great Moments from Grand Opera." The setting which accompanies the singers embraces scenery and costumes such as are shown on a regular grand opera circuit. Mme. Doree, who is a charming speaker with a pleasant voice and graceful appearance, gives a short prefatory explanation of the numbers, which sets the scene to an appreciation. The selections are from Carmen, Il Trovatore, Rigoletto (including the wonderful quartet) and Cavalleria Rusticana. At the premier presentation every number was greeted with applause and recalls, which were responded to at the close by the company rendering the sextet from Lucia in magnificent style.

In her sketch, "Cherie," by Mr. Clayton White and company, Miss Mae Phillips makes a sprightly figure in the leading role. She also sings a quaint French song in which she is accompanied by the necessary spirit, Mr. White as Mr. Bruce Ascott is redolent with the spirit of the rascaille, and his numerous faux-pas against the proprieties of social life give many a laugh to the audience. The support is good.

The "Wise Troupe," four in number and billed as "opera and comedy," are well named, such wonderful feats of strength and agility do they display.

Violinski is truly an excellent musician and displays other astonishing feats of his extraordinary talents. He was rewarded with several insistent recalls.

In Rex's Comedy Circus there are several clever ponies, dogs, cats and a mule, whose dexterous attempts at resisting those who endeavor to mount afford no end of amusement.

Other features are Burley and Burley, the humorous, quaint comedians; the Hens Sisters, in a combination of melody and motion; Cicely Richards, the eccentric English chap, and the new picture, "The Kinetograph."

GAYETY SHOW IS BEST SEEN HERE IN YEARS

Princess Luba Meroff, a Fascinating Beauty—Burlesque at Its Extreme Best.

HARRY LEWIS' COMPANY AT THE STAR THEATRE

Many Comedians and a Handsome Chorus Provide Fine Burlesque Entertainment.

Harry Lewis' Burlesquers, this week's attraction at the Star Theatre, present a two-act musical burlesque entitled "A Trip to Paris." As a new year performance it is replete with all that could be desired in the way of mirth and singing. Such well-known burlesque stars as Rehn and Knight, Irish and German comedians—Marjorie Lake, the lady martinet; the Carlton Sisters, singers and dancers; Grace Wolfe and Ross Rehn, go a long way toward making the show successful. The chorus consists of a large number of pretty and well-clothed girls.

THE WOES OF MRS. NEWLYWED

"I can't whip this cream," said Mrs. Newlywed. "It is altogether too thin." "Yes you can," contradicted Mrs. Neighbor. MACLEAN—OTHELLO

Shakspere's Tragedy of Passion Wonderfully Rendered by Master Artists.

A GIRLISH DESEDEMONA

Cecilia Loftus Made the Bedroom Scene a Marvel of Achievement.

Great is the Othello production of William Faversham. Greater even in its possibilities than the Julius Caesar he attempted to evoke more than a century ago. For consistent brilliancy in interpretation the Othello given at the Royal Alexandra last evening has not been surpassed by any artist upon a local stage.

How is the real flesh and blood of English drama. The bard of Avon in this play as perhaps in no other explores the very wellspring of human emotion and stirs them to the depths. The lines in every part, whether declamatory or meditative, call for a ringing sincerity of expression. The Faversham company with great skill and devotion to their craft and made the production most beautiful and inspiring. The title of the play has often been questioned as to appropriateness, the bulk of the action being divided between the Moor and the villainous Iago. These two characters in the hands of R. D. MacLean and Faversham received a masterly interpretation.

Perhaps thru a well-established conception of the role in the public mind Faversham does not depart entirely from old ideas in depicting the conspirator. The sniveling of all the villains who ever lived is shown in the melodrama undoubtedly originated in Othello. It must be said, however, that the treachery which sounds thru all his lines is not altogether weakened by aggressive histrionism. Indeed personality submerged consistently to the distinction of the theme.

Whenever the Moor appears then comes the intense moment. Mr. MacLean gave a vivid picture of the massive shock-headed warrior, whose finer passions, conserved from the first bloom of youth thru a tempestuous career, flower in an intense devotion to Desdemona. The logical growth of jealousy in such a mind is worked out in gratifying manner. The slight gesture of the hand, the look, the developing into a gleam and then the glare of hatred. The passion-torn Othello of MacLean is a masterpiece of the forces of elemental savagery.

In striking contrast is the dapper, impetuous department of the conspirator, the character of one accentuates that of the other.

One of the more worthy supporters is Pedro de Cordoba in the role of Cassio. His reading of the open-minded youth, who ferrets the plotting and marries of carriage were unimpaired by jealousy. Cecilia Loftus presented a Desdemona charming in every sense. Her character was girlish and suppliant, and the emotional phases were characterized by a thorough understanding of the part. The climax of the plot in the bedroom scene stood forth from the whole in its vividness.

AMATEUR WIZARDRY AT CHARITY CONCERT

The Tarantellos and Virginia Mayer Delighted Large Audience in Orange Hall.

A case of the amateur excelling the professional, might well describe the entertainment given at Orange Hall last night by the Tarantellos and Virginia Mayer. A large and appreciative audience was present and the program of the entertainment were to be given to charity.

GRAND OPERA MEMBERS FEATURE LOEW BILL

Martha Washington Sextet is Good—Hurst, Wats and Hurst in Dances.

It is hard to pick out the feature act at Loew's Yvonne Theatre this week. The bill is excellent thruout, and well worth seeing. Mein Lieber Schatz, a touching little German tale of New York department store life, is well acted and is replete with the latest slang.

The Martha Washington Sextet renders several very difficult grand opera numbers with a fine voice blending together beautifully. This act is exceptionally well staged.

Hurst, Wats and Hurst sing and dance well. Wats, the fat man of the trio, does most of the funny stunts.

HENRY THE FIFTH GORGEOUSLY STAGED

F. R. Benson, as Hal Grown Up, Popular With Big Audience.

HISTORICAL SERIES

Of Elizabethan Drama Reaches Climax in the Story of Agincourt.

"Henry V" was produced at the Princess Theatre last night by the Stratford-Upon-Avon players with all the gorgeous effects of a modern stage. The play, being almost the favorite in England among the Shakespearean dramas, which the name of F. R. Benson is identified. The great cycle of historical plays which covers the development of English dominion from the John of Gout in 1417, and the death of Henry VIII, being covered by Bacon's prose history, reaches a climax in the story of Henry Plantagenet and the miraculous victory of Agincourt. No Shakespeare play is so full of the patriotic spirit and the national ideals of the past as this. It is a masterpiece of the art of the dramatist. The same note struck by John of Gout in "Richard II" breaks out once more in the magnificent speech of Henry before the battle, when he celebrates St. Crispin's Day and assures his leaders that they shall never be forgotten—"I'll shaft our names, familiar in their mouths as household words, be in their flowing cups freshly remembered." In this consciousness of the national destiny the King loses and the hero falls to receive any touch of gloom.

"We few, we happy few, we band of brothers," shows the spirit of the English army that conquered on one of the greatest of England's battlefields. All this was expressed in the superb performance. The five acts were arranged and abbreviated into twelve scenes, giving the best of the play more than enough to send eager students to a perusal of the whole work.

The best scene—"God and His angels guard your sacred crown," shows the Archbishop of Canterbury sets out the solemnity of the French crown, and the French ambassador presents the Dauphin's mockery. In the second scene Nym, Bardolph and Pistol are introduced, excellently played by J. W. Mason, J. H. Mason, and Randle Ayrton. In the third scene the treachery of Cambridge, Northumberland and the Duke of Burgundy is shown. The play both clemency and sternness, putting on the manhood that the nation feared was lacking in Harry's youth.

The French court, as exhibited in the fourth scene, the senile king playing cards and drinking, while the Dauphin studies folly. The siege of Harfleur follows, with the most talked-of and at the same time the most successful attraction of the present day. It was the society of the New York for an entire year. It is out of the ordinary, and in many respects and purposes, it appears to be a play without acting of the ordinary sort, coupled with the explanation from the author, and the genuinely imported comedy, headed by Molly Pearson, in her original role of Bunsy.

"WHEN CLAUDIA SMILES." The seat sale opens tomorrow for next week's engagement of Blanche Ring at the Alexandra Theatre in her latest musical comedy success, "When Claudia Smiles." Miss Ring has been touring since the latter part of August in her new piece, and it has met with favor in every city where she has visited. After playing Toronto Miss Ring will go to New York for an early spring engagement.

"Broadway Jones" is the best American play that George M. Cohan has ever written. It is the attraction of the Princess Theatre and Saturday matinee at the Royal Alexandra. Cohan, himself, will appear here in the title role. Mr. Cohan's pen has traced the career of William O'Connell, a reporter, who is conceded to have supplied a particularly human note that finds a response in the popular imagination. The play is spontaneous, its humor genuine and its laugh-complexion a quality of the most popular in Mr. Benson's repertoire. Tonight "Romeo and Juliet" will be produced.

WAGNER, ELGAR, STRAUSS.

Two years ago, when Frank S. Welman included in his scheme of symphony concerts a special program devoted to the works of Wagner, many friends of the orchestra felt that our local conductor was attempting too much. The concert proved an immense success. This year Mr. Welman has gone one step further in program making, and as has been announced, is giving a program on Thursday evening of this week of works from Wagner, Elgar and Strauss. Of these composers, the Strauss, conducting "Death and Transfiguration," and Sir Edward Elgar's suite, "In the South," will be the latest additions to the repertoire of the Toronto Symphony. The orchestra has been considerably enlarged in the past, and the program of the evening will be now in progress at Massey Hall box office.

"OLD KENTUCKY" NEVER GROWS OLD

Popular Southern Play Still Draws Large Audience.

DELIGHTFUL ROMANCE

Band of Pickaninnies Feature of Play in Comedy Scenes.

One of the oldest offerings on the stage today is "In Old Kentucky," which is making its annual visit to the Grand this week, and that it is as popular as in years gone by, was evidenced by the large audience that witnessed the opening performance last night. Many seasons have come and gone since this play was given for the first time, but it continues to rank high in the list of dramatic entertainments of the day and its promise remains undimmed.

It is a simple story, first laid in the mountains of Kentucky, and later revealing scenes in the more aristocratic blue grass section of the state. "Madge Brantly" is one of the most attractive figures in modern stage fiction, and around her is woven a spirited and stirring drama of wholesome incidents and interesting episodes. There are thrills and big moments, laughs and much sparkling comedy in this popular offering. There is a picture of the kind that rings true and brings the best of the audience to the stage. There is a lovely young hero of the sort that could actually marry in real life.

Miss Maude Parker, a talented and charming young actress, presents the character of Madge Brantly. The play is a typical southerner. The principal characters are all in good hands, and interesting episodes. There are thrills and big moments, laughs and much sparkling comedy in this popular offering. There is a picture of the kind that rings true and brings the best of the audience to the stage. There is a lovely young hero of the sort that could actually marry in real life.

"BUNTY PULLS THE STRINGS."

The next attraction at the Grand will be the extremely quaint comedy, "Bunty Pulls the Strings," the first presentation anywhere of less than a dollar ticket. The fact that it played for over an entire year without cessation at the Comedy Theatre, New York, is positive proof that it is the most talked-of and at the same time the most successful attraction of the present day. It was the society fad of New York for an entire year. It is out of the ordinary, and in many respects and purposes, it appears to be a play without acting of the ordinary sort, coupled with the explanation from the author, and the genuinely imported comedy, headed by Molly Pearson, in her original role of Bunsy.

EFFICIENT HOUSEKEEPING BY HENRIETTA D. GRAUEL DOMESTIC SCIENCE LECTURER

WILL our "Efficient Housekeeper" please give a recipe, very soon, for grape fruit marmalade? Is the request in today's mail. This is grape fruit season, and so I hasten to tell you how to make this delightful, sweet, pungent preserve.

Trim off the outer rind in as thin strips as possible, so there will be no bitter white lining attached. Cut in little squares and cook until transparent in salted water, then drain into a colander. Scoop out all the pulp from the grape fruit and make a syrup of two parts granulated sugar and one part water. Boil this until it begins to thicken, then add the pulp and the cooked minced rind. Cook carefully without stirring until it is like jelly. Pour into marmalade crocks and leave uncovered over night, then secure with melted paraffine. Oranges or orange juice may be cooked with this and make a richer preserve.

Shaddock, pomelo and grape fruit all belong to the same family and come originally from China.

When fully ripened these fruits are sweet and pleasant and full of a rich juice that is invaluable for easing the thirst of fever patients. A splendid beverage is made from the juice, similar to lemonade and orange punch. It is said if these uses had not been so much appreciated by sailors the grape fruit would never have been imported. But sailors used often to refuse to embark without a supply being put aboard their ships with which to quench their thirst at sea.

Dr. Shaddock planted the first trees in the West Indies and afterwards a few in Florida, and they are named for this well-known missionary.

California is improving the character of the fruit each season, and the reputation the fruit enjoys of being a splendid digestive on account of its percentage of sub-acids and quinine makes it in great demand.

When selecting grape fruit choose those of good size and heavy weight. The riper they are the sweeter you will find them.

If you like them for breakfast prepare them the night before by cutting each one in half across the middle and removing the pulp. Put this in a bowl and cover with powdered sugar and a lid. Set in a cool place until morning.

Remove all the membrane and inner lining from the shell. When ready to serve you can return the sweetened pulp to this holder.

THE EXPLAINING HABIT.

Most of us don't do enough explaining to our children. We make the excuse that they can't understand; and it is an excuse only, not a reason. Either we cannot or we will not take the trouble to make them understand. One wife writes me that she began explaining to her child when the baby was eight months old. He had a theory of his own, and she explained the theory of his voice made an impression, and he kept up the explaining habit, which was very wise.

As the boy grew up and his demands increased, he was very tractable. When anything was denied him he waited for the explanation, and if it was a good explanation, from his viewpoint, which was colored by a great confidence in the judgment of his father and mother, he accepted it without question.

When a boy is denied something upon which he has set his heart, something he believes he should have, he only asks for an explanation. It is so great but because boys always have had it and other boys still have it. It is hard for him not to believe that he is a victim of arbitrary power. He is likely to feel he is forbidden just because mother has a foolish fear and father is strong enough to enforce authority. The average boy can't see any justice for fairness in the decision. The oft-repeated negative, coupled with "It's for your own good," doesn't bring forth a pleasant response as a rule.

The youngster who has been taught to behave himself reasonably well is doubly fortunate if his mother still stands at the helm to guide the development of his mental habits. Childhood is a time when the child grows in the eager interest in the unknown that is a never-failing characteristic of the bright mind. The love of stories may be the foundation of a real literary taste and leads in a natural way to the study of reading, the acquisition of an extensive vocabulary, and the accumulation of a large fund of general information. The natural fondness for creating "making up" may aid in numberless ways the development of dexterity, and naturally and without friction the child may learn to write. The love of riddles and puzzles, so universal among children, might just as well lead them gradually into all kinds of mental arithmetic forever banishing the dread of mathematics. Most important of all, the habit of obedience lays the foundation for power of attention which soon becomes the habit of concentration, the absolute essential of good scholarship. All this and much more may be accomplished in the work and play of every-day home life, without friction and incomparably better than at school where individual needs, although recognized by all good teachers, cannot possibly be met. It is the colossal mistake of our educational method, absurd if it were not so serious, that we kill by starvation the natural gifts and strength of our babies, and later require them to spend years at arbitrary and artificial tasks in a vain effort to reacquire that we have so thoughtlessly neglected.

WOMEN PAST FORTY ADVISED TO TANGO

Dancing Gives a New Zest to Life, According to Blanche Ring.

LET EXTREMES ALONE

Aggravated Forms of New Dances Should Be Snubbed by Decent People.

Blanche Ring, who comes to the Alexandra Theatre next week in her musical comedy, "When Claudia Smiles," is a great advocate of tango dancing in its modified form.

"The trouble with most women is, that after they are 35 or 40 years old they get into a rut," she says. "Then they grow so fat and complacent that they become wedged into the rut so tightly that even a terrific can't extricate them."

"My advice to all women past 40 years is to learn to tango; learn all the dips and swings the stiffness out of your muscles. Get the spring into your shoulders and coax the grace and suppleness of youth back again. It can be done."

"Then join a dancing club. Middle-aged persons ought to dance at least three times a week. If dancing is done in the right spirit of wholesome amusement and frolicsome playfulness it clears up the mental atmosphere wonderfully and gives a new zest to life."

"As to the extreme new dances in their aggravated form, which declare that they should not be recognized in well-regulated dancing. They ought to be snubbed by decent people."

A DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN

Sleepy Time Tales. (By Virginia Vale.)

Once upon a time there was a great big doll. I am sure you've few little girls have seen as large a one as this was. It could easily stand and look out of the window it was so tall.

It had large blue eyes that could open and shut long curly hair, and could say "Papa" and "Mama." With it came a trunk full of everything a doll could want. There were pretty shoes, a comb and brush, and so many other things that I wouldn't have nearly time to tell all about them.

She had a carriage to ride in and was taken out in the park every day. You may be sure every one stopped to look and admire her, and the little girl was very proud of her doll. She was taken for a real little girl, and then her mistress had a great laugh, and the other girls did, but they didn't seem to laugh with them and didn't enjoy it as much as they did. Of course boys don't care for dolls, but even the boys looked at this doll with an old-fashioned interest.

It seemed too bad to keep such a beautiful doll just to look at and so it was given to a little niece of the girl who had it. She was just as proud and happy as it was possible to be and the doll was admired by all her friends. They think this doll is going to work and the girl who had it is going to how many more, as the children are so careful of her that she will be the joy and pride of lots of others.

TANGO IS AS MODEST AS SHRINKING VIOLET

London Theatre Audience Upholds Dance as Model of Propriety.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(Can. Press).—A special matinee performance given today at a London theatre for the edification of pious and church dignitaries who regarded the tango as a "disgraceful" and "indecent" dance, resulted in a practically clean bill of modesty for the much-discussed dance.

Duchesses, countesses and bishops in large numbers were invited, but only a few were present. The Duchess of Norfolk, who was among those invited, wrote that she regretted the invitation of this London when the performance was given.

The result of a vote taken among the audience was in favor of the tango, the modesty of the tango. One fair voice which had made this "Adieu" was "so modest it bored her to tears."

FRANZ SCHUBERT

The World's Greatest Song Writer.

Franz Schubert, composer of heart-breaking masterpieces, was born at Lichtenthal, near Vienna, Austria, January 31, 1797. The son of a schoolmaster, little Franz was an apt pupil. At the age of seven he attended the Imperial School of Music and sang in the choir of the Imperial Chapel. Three years later his voice failed, but his proficiency with the violin secured him employment. When only 17 years old he returned home to help his father, during which time he composed a famous mass, and more than 1000 other pieces, including melodies, including the renowned "Serenade." Disappointed ambition and failing health inspired that divine sadness which has made his "Adieu" a classic. Characterized by so many of his compositions. At the age of 31 he passed away, after composing a "Swan Song" and the closing hours of his pathetic career.

This beautiful swan song, "Adieu," is the last page in his "Heart Song"—the song book that it took four years to make, and being the choice of 20,000 music lovers all over the world. The distribution of this book by this paper to its readers is one of the most wonderful enterprises ever undertaken by a paper. Look for it coupon elsewhere in today's issue, and learn how to own a whole musical library for practically nothing.

High Headdress Makes Long Profile Modish

By Madge Marvel

THE modish high profile is long and thin. The new high crowns of the latest hats are responsible. They in turn were introduced to meet the demand of the new hair dressing, which is drawn up to the crown of the head over a queer cage-like frame. It is accompanied by a revival of the old "beau" catches of front of each ear. The liking for powdered hair which obtains in Paris has not reached here yet.

Perhaps the fact that Paris milliners are forsaking the straight for flowing will reconcile some of us to the new order that divests our bonnets of their being manipulated into all kinds of tall whirlicigs to maintain the correct height and supplant the straight.

One of the extreme uses to which fur is being put is as trimming for lingerie. Petticoats of net and crepe have been shown in one shop with an edging of fur. It does not seem that the sensible woman will regard it seriously. Speaking of lingerie, the newest satin knickerbockers are made without the tightly gathered knee. They are finished with a plain narrow hem and slightly rounded on the outside of the knee.

Some most sumptuous negligees are shown in white, pale blue and pink brocade velvet. They are severely plain, depending on the beauty of the material for their style. However, they do not fit the place for which they are intended.

It will replace the velvet gown this spring, according to excellent authority. It is worthy of attention to speak of the present absence of freak clothes which not long ago burst upon our vision at every step. There is a delightful practicality about the suits and the gowns one meets which shows that women are, after all, pretty sane in their ideas of dress. Even the slit skirt in its extreme form has died a natural death—or was it talked into oblivion? The roominess needed for walking and for dancing is gained by the cross drape of skirts, which is usually in front.

In the round of the shops and the dressmakers I find that the skirt of black satin, or crepe, or charmeuse and the bodice of white remains in good style, despite the skirt-and-shirt-waist look it has. It is a blessing for the woman who must have an evening dress and who has but a small income. There are very handsome ready-made skirts in these materials, well cut and beautifully draped, that will give as good effect as if made by a fashionable modiste, and the finding of a bit of white tulle and the lining of pink for a bodice is an easy matter.

An extremely smart woman came into a restaurant after the play wearing a costume of this nature, which is easily duplicated in ready to wear. The skirt was draped in a swirl about the feet. The bodice and tunic was of white tulle sewn with crystal and jet beads. A deep yellow velvet rose was stuck in the draped grille.

Stunning opera bags are shown in a shop which specializes in gift novelties. One of the most effective is of silver lace over rose pink silk. It is generous

You Must Train for the "Stayless" Form

BY ELEANOR AMES

IT seems the doctors are quite wrong up about the uncorseted figure. From their viewpoint it is all wrong. They are quite as bitter in their denunciation of it as they were of tight lacing in those days when we used to draw our bodies tight over our heads and breathe with our clothes on as an unknown quantity.

When we were busy trying to put one yard of waist into two-thirds as much corset we shut our ears to all the awful results those same "medics" pictured. They are still there, but now we have the head and squint them into shape.

The doctors are no nearer being pleased. They tell us that, if anything, the present style is just a little worse than the old. And they prognosticate all manner of physical ill for those who adopt the stay-less shape, the heel-less shoe and the Botticelli posture. Whereas we formerly compressed our bodily mechanism until it was literally squeezed out of shape, it seems we are now going to the other direful extremity and allowing all our relaxed muscles to get weakened. Each is equally bad in the medical eye.

Why is it, do you suppose, that such very interesting and worthwhile beings as women don't strike the happy medium often?

Why don't enough of us find the right stick to it till it becomes the fashion of the day? Why should we have to eventually follow the procession?

Of course, it stands to reason that if we persist in this sloppy looseness of stay, which throws our abdomens out and our weight back on the low heels, we have adopted, we shall get so miserably out of balance that we shall have to pay for it sooner or later.

Fancy allowing a horse or a dog or any other valuable or useful animal to fall into habits which would make him a deformity when judged by the accepted standards of his kind! Well, you see, there are societies that exist for the purpose of having animals well bred and well trained. They are called eugenicists. We have adopted, we shall get so miserably out of balance that we shall have to pay for it sooner or later.

Try the strength of your waist muscles by standing with one hand on the hip and raising a chair waist high with the other hand. Then holding it there away from the body from side to side. Reverse the chair at regular intervals till each side of the body has equal exercise.

The value of this exercise is largely in keeping the body stretched all the time. Incidentally, it will remove superfluous flesh.

has any license to fall into utter spinelessness in the young and slender girl and it is not attractive even in her case.

There are dozens of exercises that will help to strengthen the muscles and partly counteract the present relaxation. One of the best is the bending with tense knees and laying the palms of the hands on the floor in front of the feet, which I have already commended. Fifty times a day is not too much, and you can do it at any time.

To bring more unused muscles into play than you know you possessed, lie flat on the floor and raise the body to a sitting posture without using the hands or the leg muscles. Keep the hands flat by the sides and the legs straight. It sounds easy. When you do it you will see how flabby are the very muscles that are having a lot of work thrown on them by present fashions.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the novel, "Diana of the Green Van," awarded a $10,000 prize by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judged.

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service

The truth, plain and unvarnished, about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Following the engagement "Peter" begins to be disillusioned; the hurry of a fashionable wedding is distasteful to him, and he rebuffs mildly against the exactions of his bride.

The Reception VIII.

On my wedding ceremony I remember very little. I know that Jack Hunter, my best man, insisted that I was nervous when I knew I was not. I remember a disconcerting glare of organ music, a rustle and the smell of many flowers, but for me the sanctity of the wedding service was somewhat marred by the fashionable display, and I knew that most of the reverent crowd, who rose to its feet at the minister's holy words, were staring at Mary's gown.

I even distrusted the reverent look in Mary's lovely face—for I caught her glancing furtively at her train during the prayer. I still felt ridiculously unimportant, but I was intensely relieved that the searching battery of eyes did not linger unduly upon me.

But at last it was over and Mary and I were grouped in the Pentfield library along with mother and dad, Mr. and Mrs. Pentfield and the bridesmaids.

swallowing the congratulations of the wedding guests.

I glanced at Mary and saw her wince. "What's the trouble?" I whispered. "These satin pumps," she admitted, "hurt like fury."

"Mary," I pleaded, "let's break this fool line-up and mix informally with the guests. Every one of them has known us since we were babies. Why spring the high society act upon them now?"

Mary was plainly affronted. "Well," I suggested, with a sigh, "kick off the accursed things, then, dear. No one will know. Goodness knows, if we're doomed to be martyrs, we're at least entitled to a certain degree of comfort."

Mary agreed, slipping out of the satin pumps and disposing of the train about her feet in such a way that no one was likely to suspect.

And then the wedding tourists, personally conducted by the ushers, began to inspect us. I shook hands and murmured suave nothings. One or two dear young things kissed me with charming offensiveness. They all kissed Mary.

I had a sickening feeling of revolt as they ambled by, talking in sprightly halts and apparently regarding Mary's pretty flushed face as public property. The men for the most part gripped my hand with a heartiness that hurt. I mentally contrasted the mingling amenities of the women with the frank sincerity of the men.

Presently I saw Ann Coulter coming. "Well," I thought, with some relief, "one at least will pass on without any sentimental gush. Mary and Ann have been more or less hostile for years."

I was disillusioned.

Ann kissed Mary with considerably more ostentation than her predecessors, and Mary to my unbounded surprise kissed back.

"How perfectly sweet you look, my dear," cooed Ann.

Then her foot inadvertently struck the empty slipper beneath Mary's train, and in a trice she had deftly contrived to bring them into full view. I could swear it was not accidental.

Mary reddened furiously. Those nearest us smiled. Ann laughed softly with a relish in which I fancied I detected a flavor of spite.

"I know of nothing so painful," she exclaimed, warmly, "as a shoe that is too small. How sensible of you, dear, to slip out of them!" And she passed on.

Mary's face was brightly scarlet. "She's always been that way, Mary," I said. "Why did you kiss her so warmly?"

"I don't know," Mary answered, petulantly. "Lots of women kiss, Peter, who simply hate each other."

I was honestly shocked. Is that pretty display of affection we frequently see among women shallow and insincere? Do women actually kiss fervently and cross words in the same breath like Ann and Mary?

To me it is dreadful hypocrisy. A man bluntly refuses to take his enemy's hand; a woman kisses and scratches. I hate the habit of promiscuous kissing that gushing women have anyway. There's a hearty ruggedness in a handshake they'd do well to imitate.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Your Muscles Often Betray Your Motives

By Dr. Leonard Keene Hirschberg

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins)

(Copyright, 1913, by L. K. Hirschberg.)

IT has been said that an honest man accepts human acts at their face value, and only Providence can read motives. Cicero's orations put the matter thus: "In a promise, what you thought, and not what you said, is always to be considered." Life indeed would be a vegetative or even a mechanical thing without motives. Yet it is a matter of infinite difficulty, but fortunately of comparative indifference, to determine what a man's motive may have been for this or that particular act. Even though you know a man's habits, his wishes, the ends he seeks, you dare not read motives into his behavior.

When you interpret with a Puritanic or prudish understanding an action of another in terms of what you consider a broad moral code, ninety-nine times in the hundred you are reading motives into and ascribing evil to certain muscular manifestations which are alive to you and wholly absent behind the measure distance, estimate weight, resist the force of gravity and other pressures, but they push, feel, learn and can both attach and detach themselves from consciousness.

However noble and right your thinking may be, however firmly it be bound up in and associated with certain sorts of activities, you dare not in honesty, broadness, and justice lift it over and associate it with similar seeming actions of another.

A child learns to read the face as much by pride of its muscles as anything else. Laboratory experimenters and practical Edisonian inventors invent more by way of their muscles than any other parts of the human texture. Children walk, shoemakers mend, machinists mold, engineers acquire skill, everybody develops habits by the use of the muscles.

Man and especially the whole brute kingdom can better dispense with every other specialized sense or sense organ of their bodies than the muscles. The battle with the world and much of that which is learned—most which proves useful and practical—comes via the muscles.

Therefore, moralists must be fair and not judge motions until they receive the Promethean spark of Divinity which exposes a person's motives. Usually their interpretation of actions are as false as air.

As air as water, as wind, as sandy earth, as fox to lamb, as wolf to heifer's calf, Fido to the hind, or stepdame to her son.

Then you, a pillar of your church, came along and saw the delectable table (tea-table and the amiable smiles which passed between the couples. Would you see anything actually wrong upon the muscular manifestations, the actual behavior of any of them? No. Neither would they observe any active evil on the part of their neighbors.

Yet you and all of those present, except perhaps the policeman, the priest and the doctor, would read an immoral interpretation into the presence of the harmless act of lurching or sipping in a Bohemian dining room.

It is an unhappy, selfish and morbid weakness of human nature to try to fly in the face of divinity and presume to read something—always vile and evil—over and beyond what the muscles actually do.

The muscles, as I emphasized years ago, are ninety per cent. of the body. All of the olfactory senses of sight, hearing, heat, cold, smell and taste fall back into the limbo of secondary things in comparison with the muscles.

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

M. R. SNAIL got up early one morning because he was in a great hurry. By ten o'clock he had gone almost three inches. Every little while he would look to see how far he had traveled. He was going down by the river to see if he could find Mr. Turtle. When he had reached the top of the hill he met Mr. Potato Bug hurrying over the little clumps of dirt as fast as he could.

"Good morning, Mr. Potato Bug," said Mr. Snail. "I hope you are well this morning!"

"Indeed I am," replied Mr. Potato Bug, "and how are you, slow-poke that you are?"

"I am very well," said Mr. Snail, "but I am not a slow-poke. I got up early this morning and have come almost six inches."

"You are doing very well," said Mr. Potato Bug. "I have come almost a mile myself."

"It does not pay to go so fast in this world," answered Mr. Snail. "Why don't you take things easier?"

"I was hunting for a new potato patch," said Mr. Potato Bug. "I haven't had anything to eat since yesterday. Every time I get comfortably settled in one potato patch somebody comes along and puts poison on the leaves and I have to move."

"That is too bad," replied Mr. Snail. "You called me a slow-poke, but I guess I am just about as happy as you are. You see I have my house on my back and I do not have to pay any rent. I go very slow, but at the same time I do not have to worry all the time about somebody who is trying to kill me. If you will hop over the other side of that fence I know you will find a potato patch which will give you something to do."

"All right," answered Mr. Potato Bug as he hop-skipped off.

Mr. Snail continued his journey until he reached the river and there he saw Mr. Turtle sunning himself on the bank with his eyes half closed. Mr. Snail did not want to wake him up and yet he would like to talk to him.

By-and-by Mr. Turtle opened his eyes and when he saw Mr. Snail he stretched himself and said:

"I am very glad to see you this morning."

"I am glad to see you," said Mr. Snail, "because you carry your house on your back like I do."

"Yes," said Mr. Turtle, "neither of us have to pay rent."

"That is true," said Mr. Snail, "we are not like Mr. Potato Bug who is forever moving."

TUESDAY MORNING, JAN. 6, 1914.

THE WOLF WHO WARNED THE SHEEP.

The small stockholder in the American railway companies has been uneasy for some time. Dividends have been passed and stock values have been steadily decreasing. Judging by New York stock quotations the market value of railway securities has shrunk by hundreds of millions of dollars within a comparatively short time.

The shareholder, by which we mean the small shareholder—the investor—the man who has bought the stock outright and is holding it for income purposes—has been demanding explanations. Naturally he went first to his president and board of directors and he soon learned that the controlling power behind these officials was some Napoleon of finance on Wall street.

The New Haven stockholder, for example, soon learned that President Melien was a firebrand and the directors dummies, and that the late J. P. Morgan controlled the company. That no doubt cheered the small stockholder, who regarded Mr. Morgan as the ablest financier on the continent.

Quite humbly he asked the great house of Morgan & Co. why it was his stock was falling and his dividends decreasing or disappearing altogether. And what did they tell him? They said in effect:

With wages rising and the price of all supplies increasing, railway rates are being constantly reduced by communistic legislatures, demagogic railway commissions and long-haired judges. We are being "regulated to death." We are not allowed to run our business in a business way, but are harassed and destroyed by congress and the interstate commerce commission, spurred on by railway battling newspapers, muck-raking magazines and popularity-seeking politicians.

This is the experience of the small shareholder of nearly every railway, and he is referred by the big financier in control to the safe and sane newspapers known in the trade as the "kept press." These papers assure him that the government is to blame and refer him to the financial papers which pose as the special guardians of the widowed, the fatherless and the small investor generally.

So the shareholder hugs the delusion that the Wall street men in charge of his road are doing their best to save him from ruin at the hands of the public. Then one fine day he wakes up to find the financiers have stepped from under, and are no longer stockholders or directors, and that he has upon his hands an almost worthless property, mortgaged for two or three times its value. He may still blame the government. But what will be found in nine cases out of ten to be the facts of the case? An honest auditor will say to him:

"Mr. Shareholder, I cannot find that the government has in any way confiscated your property. Your books show that the two-cent passenger fare enormously increased your earnings. The freight reductions ordered, from time to time could have worked you no injury because your gross earnings show an enormous increase from year to year. The government compelled you to take some precautions against accidents, but these precautions have proved an excellent investment.

It is true your net earnings have not increased proportionately, but that is mainly due to two causes. The men in control, thru subsidiary companies, have doubled your cost of operations by compelling the road to buy all its supplies from them at middle men at two prices. They have also creamed the profits thru other subsidiary companies, operating express, fast freight, refrigerator cars and other services.

But the shareholder will ask: "Why has the stock for which I paid 240 dropped to 80?"

For reply he will be told that when he bought into the road it was a model railway, with stock and bond issues aggregating, say $40,000 a mile, paying a two per cent. quarterly dividend without the slightest difficulty, and that today it has run down, from a physical standpoint, to mere scrap, and is loaded down with stock and bond issues aggregating perhaps $400,000 a mile. In short, it is a mere shell, mortgaged for twice its value.

If the stockholder wants to know how all this came about, the auditor can soon tell him.

The men in control said to your road a lot of worthless junk in the way of bond-stock, trolleys, worn-out vessels, blind branches and useless terminals. For these they paid themselves by mortgaging your property for hundreds of millions of dollars and then floating an enormous issue of watered stock. They made mammoth fortunes from their dealings with your company. They now have the money and you have the junk. You are also burdened with fixed charges so enormous that you can never carry on the enterprise efficiently. Your only hope is to appeal to the government.

The looting of railways has been a long time in vogue. Not in a day could nine billion dollars of securities have been unloaded upon the country. The method has been to get control and divert the assets of the company, including all the money that could be raised upon its credit, to the pockets of the financiers. Thirty years ago the late Stephenson Burke and his associates bought control of the Hocking Valley, made their millions and retired within a few months. For example, eight million dollars raised by the sale of bonds for betterments was turned over immediately to Burke and his associates in payment for a tract of land worth $50,000. This is a style of piracy which has been in vogue ever since. The people for whom we feel the deepest concern are the bona-fide investors, or small stock holders, of the American railways who have been reduced from comfort to penury. But the country at large has suffered. The melons, the rake-offs, the watered stock and the fraudulent bonds have been the counters for great national gambling operations. The horrible harvest of Wall street could never have been so great had not one railway system after another been seized by financial buccannery and their standard securities transformed into mere counters for the American Monte Carlo.

While this has been going on for thirty years or more the great American daily papers, the great American bankers, the great trust companies and banking houses of the western world have done nothing to protect the small shareholder or the public. They have been as indifferent to the sufferings around them as are the spectators at a bull fight. They were partners in the loot.

The shareholder in the American railways today is asking the government to permit higher rates, or better still to nationalize the railways. The Wall street financiers are withdrawing from the directorates. They have carried away all the assets that could be segregated, leaving the shareholders the rails and the sleepers loaded down with securities running into the billions for which the roads never received any value.

A wolf solemnly warning a flock of sheep to be on their guard against their shepherd is an edifying spectacle by comparison with the piratical financier in control of a railway warning his shareholders against the government of their country. Yet the good men high in esteem of their neighbors, the bankers and the philanthropists, have sagely shaken their heads and given the sheep to understand that the wolf was a good friend and knew what he was talking about, and the big newspapers have been watching the shepherd, but they have had nothing to say against the wolf. The man who finds a leg of mutton every now and then upon his doorstep is unable to recognize a wolf the moon and the stars shine their brightest. But then we know on the highest authority that wolves go about in sheep's clothing.

The great fact that is coming home to the holder of railway shares is that the big financiers looted the road, not the legislatures or the railway commissioners. But if he has taken him a long while to find it out.

CANADA AND NAVAL DEFENCE. What The World has always deprecated and deplored is the introduction of imperial defence into the area of Dominion party politics. It would rather accentuate than relieve the situation this occasioned were an attempt made to apportion the blame between the responsible controversialists. This, at least, should be admitted, that only in Canada, the premier overseas state of the empire, has it been possible to make this important imperial concern a factor in domestic party conflict. The inference is not pleasing, but it is not too late to regain the position which ought never to have been abandoned, and even to make of the lapse the opportunity to reveal to the world the inherent unity of the empire.

In his considered review of the navy question before the Canadian Club yesterday, Mr. Z. A. Lash lifted it out of the ruck of partisan recrimination. He regretted, as all who can raise their senses above that level must do, the action of the Dominion Senate in refusing immediate aid to the strengthening of imperial defence. The wisdom of that refusal was clearly shown by the publication with which it was hailed in Germany and offered as conclusive evidence that the British states could not be relied upon to remain united in protection of their common interests. Had immediate aid been granted, as proposed by Mr. Borden, the international situation would have immediately changed for the better.

Yet The World agrees with Mr. Lash that no temporary gift can be considered as a permanent solution of the problem which imperial sea defence involves. Nor, The World is convinced, will any arrangement based on a system of perpetual contribution. Canada must take her place alongside her sister states of Australia and New Zealand by the provision of her own naval force, complete in itself, or in its individual units, and equal in efficiency to the British navy itself. Ingenious minds can conjure up all kinds of hypothetical difficulties in regard to its control, or the division of control, which are neither more nor less convincing than the objections to the illogical and indeterminate structure of the empire itself. For the same sentiment and common loyalty which holds the empire together will secure that when the call comes the whole imperial forces, military and maritime, will act in perfect defence. If that loyalty fails so will imperial defence. Nor will acts of parliament prevent disruption.

THE BLUE RUIN MANIA. Not satisfied with the walling it received in the civic elections, The Telegram is now busy organizing an anti-purchase campaign in the board of trade. It is stated that "a strong line-up against Vice-President Gundy" is to be expected at the nominations on Friday next. The cause of this grating to the board is the refusal of the council to permit the circulation of the pamphlet intended, as The Telegram states, "to provide information which would guide members how they should vote on New Year's Day." As a matter of fact, there was no attempt to provide information in the pamphlet. It consisted of a series of paragraphs, in which, as The Telegram states, "the street railway purchase scheme was strongly condemned on thirty-four separate counts."

Here is the first of these "counts," to which The Telegram thinks the Board of Trade of Toronto should have affixed its authority, and for refusing to endorse which The Telegram denounces Messrs. Atkinson, George, Blain, Turnbull, Gundy, D. O. Wood and McKay: "That a period of retrenchment has arrived, which means a slowing up of business, and which should necessitate the strictest economy in civic affairs, and new obligations should be undertaken with the utmost caution."

The general tone of the pamphlet follows this lead, the impression made on the average reader being that the city is on the verge of bankruptcy, and it is insinuated that Mr. John MacKay, in basing his recommendation for purchase "upon a continuation of normal industrial conditions," had no expectation of such continuation, but, like The Telegram, expected blue ruin for the city, the railway, the board of trade, and everyone concerned.

We cannot help feeling surprised that Messrs. Peles, Howland, J. W. Woods, G. T. Somers and John F. Ellis should be so eager to inform the world of commerce "that a period of retrenchment has arrived, which means a slowing up of business," or that they should be so willing to co-operate with The Telegram in circulating this blue ruin view of the financial situation. We do not think it likely that the board of trade generally, even if it were opposed to the purchase of the street railway on terms which have not yet been fully disclosed, would base its opposition on a hypothetical "slowing-up of business." We consider Messrs. Atkinson, George, Blain, Turnbull, Gundy, D. O. Wood and McKay probably represented the general view of the board in declining to permit the sanction of the board to lend weight to such a forecast.

We have several times had occasion to refer to the erratic courses of our esteemed evening contemporary. When it is seized with an idea, all the symptoms of alienation rapidly exhibit themselves, and the feeling of The Telegram towards the purchase of the street railway is of the nature of mania, which, if directed against an individual, would be homicidal. The patient in such cases never understands his own malady, but observers have no difficulty in recognizing the affection. Everything is tainted with the same dread. Every act reflects the same suspicion. Every glance is tinged with the same distrust. No longer are there any honest men. All society is united in a huge conspiracy. The whole world is false and treacherous. Hallucinations and delusions pursue the afflicted one. The Telegram proved last night that Mayor Hocken was defeated at the recent election by a majority of 32,000. The case is an interesting one, and we offer our sympathy, tho it is never accepted under such circumstances. But we feel that the board of trade is unlikely to take advice from such a source.

START THE PARCEL POST. The World does not like the statement in The Globe of yesterday that "it is probable that the service [parcel post] will be inaugurated within a few weeks."

We take this more or less as a suggestion that further delay might be justified. The World believes that the service ought to be put into effect at the earliest moment; and that improvements will come later on, as was the case in the United States. The reports we hear are to the effect that the Hon. Mr. Pelletier, the post-master-general, is driving a somewhat hard bargain with the railroad companies. We hope he is, and yet we hope he will treat them fairly, and we also hope he will have the service forthwith.

There were men who professed to be friends of parcel post, who spoke in the house last summer to the effect that it might be necessary to further delay the bill, but this was quickly objected to, and the result was a law establishing it. But that is now over six months ago, and what the public look for now is its realization.

NORTHERN ONTARIO WARMER THAN WEST. Sir William Mackenzie Thinks Settlement Will Be Fast and Sound. SALE RUMOR A JOKE. Traffic on North Shore Section Will Make the Line Self-Supporting.

The definite announcement has been made by Sir William Mackenzie, president of the Canadian Northern Railway, that Sept. 1 will see the completion of the C.N.R. Transcontinental from Quebec thru to the Pacific Coast and that the early fall would see the operation of a passenger service that would require an equipment for the operation of 15 trains each way every day.

The report that the C.N.R. was negotiating for the sale of its system he described as a joke. He added that the Canadian Northern had a larger number of shareholders than any other railway in Canada; that the government held some $7,000,000 of its bonds thus making all the people of Canada shareholders in the road.

Good Land Farther West. Referring to the land in the northern part of Ontario thrown open for settlement as a result of the connection between east and west, brought about by the completion of the Sudbury-Port Arthur line, he said it was equally good from an agricultural point of view with that of older Ontario, and with a climate somewhat milder than that of Manitoba. He predicted that the revenue from that portion of the transcontinental alone would be sufficient to make it self-sustaining, within a very short time after its inauguration.

He declared that Port Arthur would be the chief port at the head of the lakes for the C.N.R. for all time to come.

AND HE DID

AT OSGOODE HALL

5th January, 1914.

Master's Chambers. Before J. A. C. Cameron, Master.

Wood v. Worth—H. E. Rose, K.C., Plaintiff for W. E. Segsworth, W. Mills, for R. F. Segsworth, A. Aylesworth for other defendants. Motion by plaintiff for order that the $200 paid into court do stand as security for costs of all defendants. Order increasing security to $600. Costs of motion in cause.

Canadian Westinghouse v. Water Commissioners of London—E. C. Cattanach, for defendant, moved for particulars of claim. P. Aylesworth for plaintiff. Motion dismissed. Costs in the cause.

Toronto Development Co. v. Kennedy—W. H. Clippsham, for plaintiff, moved for order striking out defence as embarrassing. Defendant asked enlargement. Enlarged for two weeks. Securities Limited v. Lutz—D. J. Coffey, for plaintiff, obtained order amending writ of summons by claiming damages in the alternative in addition to specific performance. Costs in cause.

Edgely v. Bond—R. P. Saunders, for plaintiff, moved for order for inspection of premises. J. T. White for defendant. Adjudged before trial. McVeily v. Journal Printing Co.—J. T. White, for plaintiff, moved to strike out paragraph four of statement of defence. H. F. Parkinson for defendant. In same terms as in Taylor v. Ottawa Citizen. Costs in cause.

Judges' Chambers. Before Lennox, J.

In the matter of the assessment of the judicial income of their honours Judges McWatt and Taylor, county judges of Lambton County—D. L. McCarthy, K.C., for the judges, J. Cowan, K.C., for the assessors. Judgment: The most recent Canadian case is Abbott v. City of St. John, holding that a civil or other officer of the Government of Canada may be lawfully taxed in respect of his income as such by the municipality in which he resides. If I am at liberty to do so I am disposed to follow this judgment, for with the greatest respect for the eminent judges who have expressed opinions to the contrary, as the question of the legality of assessments of this kind may reach the supreme court from any province in the Dominion, I have nothing to do with where the case is carried.

What I have to do is to do as I am declared by the highest of our courts in conformity with the principle of section 22 of the Judicature Act. Anything else would be a scandal. I find that the official incomes of Judge McWatt and Judge Taylor are subject to taxation. I make no order as to costs.

Single Court. Before Britton, J. Dimitroff v. Mitosheff—R. R. Waddell, for plaintiff, obtained an injunction restraining defendant from selling, assigning, transferring, or in any way dealing with the lease which defendants hold from Samuel Schwartz of 429, 461 and 463 East King street, or the goods and chattels therein, or from subletting any or all of said premises until Jan. 8 (inst.), with liberty to use further material on return.

Before Falconbridge, C.J. White v. Hobb—L. F. Hellmuth, K. C., for plaintiffs; T. N. Phelan for defendant. Action to recover price of a new White traction engine. Judgment: I find that the engine did not work properly and do good work—particularly in this regard that it consumed about 35 per cent. more fuel and water than defendant's old Waterbury engine. Also as compared with the latter, it required an enormous amount of steam pressure to do the work. It seems hard that the defendant should have to pay for the engine under these circumstances. But the contract he has made and the certificate he signed bind. The result will be judgment for plaintiff with costs. Thirty days' stay.

Before Lennox, J. McCallum v. Proctor; Armstrong v. Proctor—R. McKay, K.C., and R. T. Harding (Stratford), for plaintiffs; R. S. Robertson and J. J. Coughlin (Stratford) for defendant. Actions tried together, are for damages for false and fraudulent representations knowingly made by defendant, to induce plaintiffs to each take one-sixth interest in 7808 acres of land in Saskatchewan, and to say A. McPherson therefor at the rate of $10.25 an acre. Judgment: I find that the statements made are not material as to which the defendant could be merely mistaken. The statements were false and fraudulent to the knowledge of the defendant. They were important, they were made to induce, and did induce, the plaintiffs to contract, and the defendant knew at the time that they had this effect. It is claimed that the plaintiffs should recover back the amounts they have paid, with interest. I do not think so. They are getting the lands, they have to take them. They might have attacked McPherson and rescinded the contract. Then they would get their money back. I think the difference between actual value and what they have to pay is the measure of their loss occasioned by the defendant. Before discovery of the fraud the syndicate divided the lands. This does not affect the question. There will be judgment for each plaintiff for $5700 with costs. Stay for thirty days.

CRAWFORD WINS CHECKER TITLE

Alton Expert Defeats Moore of Parry Sound for Canadian Championship.

HAMILTON, Jan. 5.—(Special).—In-termediate resigned at tonight's session of the Dominion Checker tourney, being held in this city. The occasion was the final heat for the Canadian championship.

The final started with two draws on the Bristol Lassie games, played on book lines. The next opening was the Kelso-Lassie. Moore got a strong lead with black, but later his advantage disappeared and Crawford won on a neat sacrifice.

SARNIA HAD EASY TIME WITH WATFORD

WATFORD, Jan. 5.—Sarnia and Watford intermediate O.H.A. teams met for the first time this season tonight. Sarnia had the best of the scoring all the way thru. The game was clean and well handled by Referee Rogers. Half time score 8 to 5 in favor of Sarnia. Final, 5 to 9 for Sarnia.

T. R. & A.A. play Midland here tonight, and the northerners are expected to make it very interesting, even if it comes down to five a side.

Ontarios and Torontos meet on Wednesday night in their first clash of the season, and it promises to be a hummer from start to finish.

The West Toronto Victorias have chartered a special train for their O.H.A. game at Markham on Thursday night. The train leaves the West Toronto Grand Trunk station at 6 p.m.

GALT JUNIORS VICTORS

GALT, Jan. 5.—Galt defeated New Hamburg in the first Junior O.H.A. game here this season by the score of 15 to 4. Half-time score, 9 to 1. MAGNATES MEET PLAYERS TODAY

Public and Press to Be Admitted to Baseball Conclave at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 5.—After taking up the requests of the Baseball Players' Fraternity one by one and discussing them thoroughly, the National Baseball Commission and the committee from the National Association of Minor Leagues adjourned tonight, ready to present a solid front when the committee of players present their case tomorrow.

Probably the most important announcement was that the meeting tomorrow would be an open one, both public and press being admitted. This was not decided upon until just previous to the adjournment of the joint meeting of the commission and the committee from the minors, but in the minds of many it augurs well for the players.

It was announced previous to the joint meeting that the only request which the minor leagues objected to was the one that asks that ten days' notice be given players after their release.

There are several, however, that the majors do not take kindly to, but just what these are the major league officials refused to divulge.

Secretary Bruce reported that the total money handled by the commission from all sources, including the world's and different city sources, amounted to $855,468. Three thousand seven hundred and twenty-five decisions and statements were handled during the last year, while 125 bulletins were promulgated, 1113 letters and telegrams sent out.

HOCKEY RESULTS

PADDLERS LUCKY TOWARD BRAMPTON

Newcomers Were Raw, But Had Best of Play Thruout - Two Goal Victory.

Brampton are making their first appearance in junior O.H.A. hockey this season and they promise to cut some dash. They stacked up against the Toronto Canoe Club outfit last night at the arena, and the bested 5 to 3, they were the better team. The Brampton boys are aiming in need of a conclusion of the body checking game and the canoe team to play further back, the Brampton squad will defeat a lot of good junior teams.

The forward line is willing, able to shoot from almost any angle and pretty stick handlers, but not able to check in the right fashion. They were all over in the game and should have tallied a dozen goals, T.C.C. had a barrel of luck. Brampton only suffered three penalties thru the entire game, while the Red King Paddlers had a man on the fence a couple of goals by throwing his stick at a Brampton player on two occasions when he was right thru and had only the goalkeeper to beat. The last offence netted him five minutes with the penalty time.

Toronto Canoe Club could never get going right and were away off the mark in the first half. They were checked much harder than their opponents and this is what gave them the game. Brampton were inside, not once, but in times in the second half, but the luck was against them and Turner showed aside shot after shot. A lot of their effectiveness by using rough tactics and hand-out cross checks that looked like they were being used. Applegath was the chief offender in this line. He got away with a lot of fouls.

Torontos got a lucky goal in the first half, when the puck hit a Brampton defence man on the ear at the side and bounded into the net. It gave T.C.C. a new lease of life. Brampton had T.C.C. on the run in the first five minutes, when they netted the puck twice. The record in like format and the Paddlers' defence was up in the clouds. The lack of team play and inability to use their bodies best Brampton tallies here.

It was always an earnest battle, and T.C.C. was bottled up most of the way. Robertson was not up to his last season's form, while DeGruy was going by spots. Warwick seemed to tire in the fast going. Webster played a nice game and Perry lost a lot of good energy by running on his skates. Applegath spoiled his night's work by using a nasty cross check. Turner in goal was fair.

The Brampton defence was very crude and opened up every time the T.C.C. forwards came down the ice. This was responsible for their defeat. Russell is about the tallest boy in the kid brackets and has the making of a good player. He must learn to body his man. Duggan was very raw. The forward line is good and played a grand game in the second half.

Brookbank tallied the first goal by following in a pass and hitting it in. It forced the puck into the net. He was alone a few minutes later for goal number two, and they had T.C.C. on the run. The Brampton boys were not as shary as they might have been about following in their shots, but they kept Turner busy at that. Applegath got Toronto's first counter, when he bounced the puck off Duggan's ear, and followed with another goal right from the face-off by taking the shortest route to the net.

The Brampton defence applied up to give him way. The half ended a tie, two all. The play was all Brampton's in the second half, out the Paddlers got three goals to the visitors' one. It was the toughest kind of luck that beat the newcomers. They were in on top of the T.C.C. net nearly all the time and after time after time, only to have them turned aside. Warwick netted the first one of the half for T.C.C. when the Brampton defence did their usual stunt of opening up. It took the Water Dogs ten minutes to notch the next one, and in ten minutes the Brampton kids had a half hundred tries at the Toronto net, but were not lucky enough to slip one in. Parks finally got one when he went thru alone from the face off and by his slick handling fooled the whole Paddler outfit.

Perry put in the last count of the game by the usual stunt. The Brampton defence again. With coaching and the learning of a few tricks of the game, the Brampton boys will be hard to beat. They should defeat T.C.C. in Brampton. The team: Gruchy and Robertson; rover, Applegath; centre, Webster; right wing, Perry; left wing, Warwick. Brampton (2)—Goal, McClure; defence, Duggan and Russell; rover, Brookbank; centre, Parks; right wing, Ingoideby; left wing, Anderson. Referee—Jack Carmichael. The summary: First Half: 1. Brampton.....Brookbank.....1.00 2. Brampton.....Anderson.....4.00 3. T.C.C.....Applegath.....4.00 4. T.C.C.....Applegath.....3.00 Second Half: 5. T.C.C.....Warwick.....3.00 6. PRESTON JUNIORS SWAMPED. GUELPH, Jan. 5.—By a score of six goals to 2, the Guelph Victorias, juniors, fairly swamped the junior stick wielders from Preston tonight. They outplayed the victors in every department. The special showing of "Red" Foster and "Red" Barber were features for Guelph, although the whole team surpassed themselves by clever offensive and defensive work. There was no fault of the Preston goalkeeper, Barber, that his team was so badly beaten. He saved many times as many as got thru him and played a very clever game in front of the nets.

ARGENTINE CORN HELPED BY RAIN

Outlook for Big Surplus Causes Decline-Other Grains Off.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.-Heavy rains in Argentina making more certain a big export surplus there, broke down the market for corn again today.

Decided contrast with the fact that shipping sales of corn from here were light, the free movement of low grade corn to Chicago from the interior seemed to be unimpeded.

Free Movement of Corn. In decided contrast with the fact that shipping sales of corn from here were light, the free movement of low grade corn to Chicago from the interior seemed to be unimpeded.

There were eight loads of hay only on the market, and the farmers were busy with municipal elections.

A homeless man wrote "Home, Sweet Home!" Perhaps no other could ever have expressed the intense longing-the yearning-the keen pangs of a heart starving for home-for hearthstone and loved ones.

Certainly no words and no music could convey with more feeling that greatest of passions of the human heart-the desire for a home of its own. But one other desire on earth surpasses it-and that comes-mercifully-only to old age-when it longs for its home "not built with hands, eternal in the heavens."

This world-wide melody occurs in Bishop's opera of "Clara, the Maid of Milan," brought out at Covent Garden in 1823. In the published music it is called a "Sicilian Air"-but it is probably Bishop's own. It was the favorite encore of Jenny Lind-and thousands wept when they heard her sing it.

The Toronto World offers in its great distribution of "HEART SONGS"

400 World-Wide melodies, that have never been surpassed in the history of heart music.

MONTREAL CATTLE IN LIGHT DEMAND

Offerings Were Fairly Heavy, But Buyers Cautious-Prices Were Shaded.

MONTREAL, Jan. 5.-At the Montreal Stock Yards west and east the offerings today amounted to 500 cattle, 400 sheep and lambs, 1700 hogs, and 100 calves.

There was no improvement in the trade in cattle today owing to the fact that packers and butchers generally have carried over fair stocks from the holiday trade; consequently the demand was very limited and the market dull.

The trade in small calves was also quiet, but the tone of the market was firm on account of the limited supply offered.

Choice yearling steers sold at $12 to $12.50; yearling, $10 to $11; good, $8 to $10; medium, $7.50 to $8.50; common, $6 to $7; eastern rough quality, $4.50 to $5.75.

Sheep, ewes, $5.50 to $6; bucks and rams, $4.50 to $4.75; lambs sold at $4.50 to $4.75, and one or two choice lots light weights, sold at $9.12 to $9.25.

Calves, $8 to $10.
