HARTLAND'S GROWTH IS STEADY

Many New Buildings This Year and
Signs of Industrial Activity

Two years ago, after a long period of rather slow growth, Hartland experienced what seemed to be a building "boom" which has since settled into a period of steady growth. No village between Edmundston and St. John is growing so steadily and swiftly as Hartland, and all because people are discovering it is a nice place to live. Its people are a friendly class and its atmosphere and surroundings seem conducive to health, for a serious outbreak of disease has never been known here. There has not been a single case of typhoid originate here since the water system was completed 23 years ago. Perhaps no other town in Canada can show an equal record in this regard.

Among houses built this season are two on Hillcrest avenue—a very pretty concrete building by Harry Barter, and a very pretty two story cottage by Allen Barter. On the hill near the John Bradley property three new houses are under construction, one by Benj. Irving, which he has been occupying for some time, and others by Perley Clarke and Stanley McLellan.

On the Burtt property the new Anglican church makes a beautiful showing and nearby Roy Letson has a house up, while J. W. Montgomery is laying the foundation for the construction next year of a handsome bungalow.

On Main street, south end, N. E. Constantine has completed a neat two story cottage, William McPherson has built a handsome little bungalow, and the remodeling of the McMullin house has created a delightful old colonial villa.

In the village A. F. Campbell rebuilt after the fire that partially destroyed his home in March, and he now has a very attractive home in a fine setting, he having purchased and added to his grounds an adjoining lot. Across the street S. S. Miller has made extensive additions to his house, which will render it one of the handsomest in town when completed.

In the business section the J. Clark & Son building will add to the appearance of general prosperity, and alterations and additions to the woodworking property indicate that industrially Hartland is going ahead.

C. A. Craig has been appointed vendor of game licenses.

ANOTHER APPEAL

For Christmas Stockings for the Wounded Soldiers

The Red Cross Society of Hartland has again been asked to contribute Christmas stockings for the brave men who will have to spend Christmas in a military hospital. This year New Brunswick is asked to provide 3500 stockings—more than double the number required last year. We shall again provide red stockings, and anyone who will make and fill one or more, can obtain it from Miss Annie Davis.

It is especially asked that the stockings should not be too weighty nor contain too many or too valuable gifts, and the total cost of each stocking should not on any account exceed $2.

In order that every man should receive gifts approximately of the same value it is suggested that each stocking should contain one gift out of each of the following classes.

1. Pocket mirror cheap stylo, pocket pencil, pocket knife, pipe or match box.
 2. Writing pad and envelopes, fancy post cards.
 3. Candies (chocolates preferred), chewing gum, (candy must be put in a box, not in paper bags or parcels).
 4. Handkerchiefs, neckties, socks.
 5. Game, book, puzzle, mouth organ.
 6. Toilet requisites such as soap, toilet powder, tooth paste, tooth brush, pin cushion.
 7. Packages of raisins, dates or figs, nuts. (Please do not send any peanuts as they do not keep fresh).
- In packing a stocking, remember that it must travel many miles, and please see that its contents are such that they will not break or spoil in transit. Do not put in sticky candy or flimsy packets of insect powder, nor matches.

The stockings filled must be returned to the Armoury on Sept. 24 with a list of the dutiable articles, such as candy, soap, etc., as in sending over shipments we have to comply with the regulations in this respect, marking on the outside of each case, value of dutiable articles contained in it.

We would ask that these directions be carefully followed; that great care be taken in filling them, remembering that they are for our wounded men in hospital and that they represent our thought for their joy and comfort, and telling them they are not forgotten on the day which is so dear to us all.

On behalf of the Red Cross.

CARLETON CO. BOYS FOUGHT AUG. 15

Sig. H. A. Sipprell Writes The Observer About It

Perhaps you will be interested to know, as well as many readers of The Observer, how the khaki lads from your home town and near vicinity fared during the drive of Aug. 15. The fight was a hard one but again our splendid troops proved themselves equal to the task. Although the Hun counter-attacked repeatedly he was unable to regain any of the lost ground.

After being relieved and returning to our billeting quarters it was very touching to note the interest manifested in behalf of pal looking up pal, or inquiring if he was safe. Many found his pal, while others never came back. The following who are well known to Hartland and vicinity did their bit in the recent fighting and came out free of battle scars: Frank Dickinson, W. B. Nixon, C. Thornton, K. Havens, Fred Wallace, Bart Wallace, H. Margison, Jas. Manzer, Jas. Pratt, Frank Goodwin and others that I have forgotten to mention.

Just recently Joe Wallace of another Battalion very unexpectedly dropped in upon us and we were all very glad to see him. Joe is a cheerful chap and always has a good word and pleasant smile for everybody. It does one good to meet such a splendid fellow.

I would like to impress upon the general public, and those who have sons and relatives serving on the Western Front, of the importance of remembering them often by letters and parcels from the home-folks and others who appreciate their services and suffering for them. Some get mail on nearly every boat, while others rarely are ever remembered by a letter or parcel.

Just recently I was touched by the remark of one of our fellows after the mail had been called and he had been omitted: "My folks don't know that I am over here in France." I felt sorry for the chap and were you to see a case of this kind and note the contrast with the other fellow who sits on his bunk reading his home letter you would say that ten minutes or possibly a half hour would be well spent in remembering a relative or friend who is serving for you as well as himself at the battle-front.

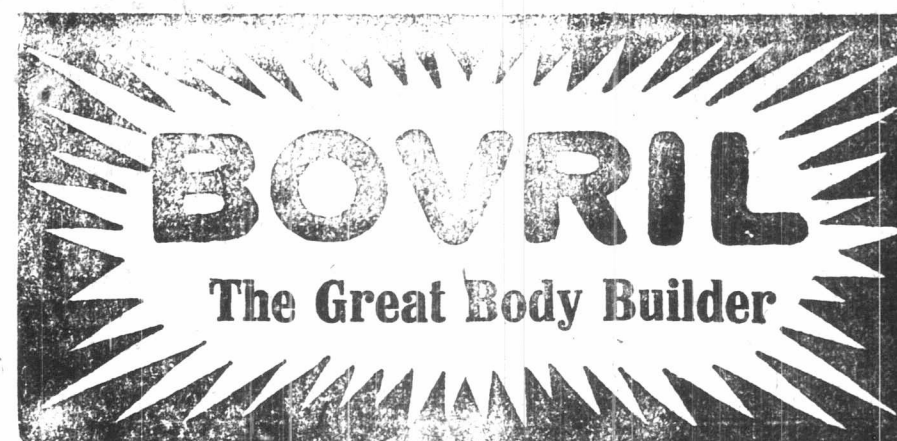

I admit that the soldier on Active Service is often delinquent about writing home; but he has good reasons when compared to yours. When he is in action there is too much excitement as a rule to settle down to writing. Then when he comes out of the line he has to clean up and he unintentionally neglects to write. I trust that this brief note will inspire many to remember the khaki lads who are serving "Somewhere in France" by remembering them by letters or parcels or both. They appreciate being remembered and it will add cheer to many an otherwise dreary hour in the trenches or out of them, and thus increase their fighting capacity.

Our Signalling Section had good success and rendered good service in the recent engagement and we came out with one casualty which is considered good.

Wishing you good success with The Observer

I am yours truly,
Sig. H. A. Sipprell, 26th Batt.

TOO MUCH ROWDYISM

Of late there has been conspicuous rowdyism on the streets at night that has passed the limit of toleration. There is evidence of drinking and consequent profanity, and some of the more serious molestations and insult to civil people on the streets. The condition should not be permitted. There is ample law for such offenders, but in the absence of the machinery of town incorporation and proper police patrol there is no one whose duty it is to round up the miscreants.

As the next best thing to do the citizens generally have taken a united stand and a notice published in The Observer today gives fair warning that the rough element, if further persisting in their annoying, senseless and lawless conduct will be brought to speedy justice.

New Flour Mill at Rockland

The Observer man visited on Monday the new flour mill being erected by Belyea & Estabrooks at Rockland and was interested in finding what is said to be a mill without a peer in the province for up-to-date and completeness of equipment. The roller process will be used for the manufacture of buckwheat meal and this part of the mill will be ready for operation this week.

But the flour mill is the big end of the business and will have capacity for turning out 50 barrels a day. The process is identical with that of the largest mills in the west. The machinery is being installed by E. W. Maybee of Toronto.

Belyea & Estabrooks deserve great credit for establishing this industry which will certainly fill a long felt want. The investment in the property represents about $10,000.

C. of E. Picnic a Success

The Church of England picnic on Burt's flat last Thursday afternoon was a most enjoyable affair, and from a financial standpoint far exceeded the most sanguine expectations of those in charge. More than 400 paid the admission fee of 10 cents and most of those bought supper tickets. From all sources a total of $382.40 was raised and the net

Latest Potato Crop Report

Last year there was throughout Canada a heavy shortage in the potato crop. New Brunswick alone producing an average. This year conditions are reversed: New Brunswick has a poor crop and all the rest of the Dominion yields a surplus. Ontario, which has been our chief market, will not need to import potatoes. British Columbia and the prairie provinces are producing heavy surpluses; Quebec and Prince Edward Island each have two million surplus. From statistics gathered by those in the business it is shown that Canada this year has much more than ten million bushels of potatoes more than will be required for home consumption.

H. H. Hatfield visited Quebec this week and reports a bumper crop and heavy acreage there. Along the St. Lawrence rust has never been known and the plants are still green and vigorous.

To Fix Profits On Potatoes

H. H. Hatfield returned yesterday from Ottawa where he and other potato men, Charles Clark of Woodstock, F. G. Scott of Montreal, and Messrs. Mallinson and Nelles of Toronto, were in conference with the fruit and vegetable branch of the Food Conservation Committee. The Food Controllers announced their intention to set a fixed percentage of profits for all handling potatoes, and to prohibit storage for the purpose of forcing high prices. The details of the new rules will be made known at an early date, and the situation as it is in New Brunswick will be investigated by the Secretary of Agriculture Reek and G. C. Cunningham of Fredericton Experimental Farm in collaboration with a man sent from Ottawa.

While in Ottawa the potato men, accompanied by F. B. Carvell, M. P., interviewed the Minister of Trade and Commerce with a view to having duties readjusted and were promised consideration.

Children Had Eczema Doctors Failed to Cure

Two Letters Which Prove the Efficiency of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a Cure for Eczema.

Fortunate are the mothers who know the virtues of Dr. Chase's Ointment, for there is no treatment so suitable for use after the bath to relieve irritation and chafing and to thereby prevent eczema and similar skin diseases.

Mrs. W. L. Barnes, Timmins, Ont., writes: "I want to tell you about the case of my little boy, who had baby eczema when he was three months old. It started on the top of his head, on his forehead and around his ears. I tried Dr. Chase's Ointment on the recommendation of a friend, and in a month's time the child was entirely free of this disagreeable skin disease. He is now four years old and has never had any further trouble from ailments of this kind. I do have great faith in Dr. Chase's Ointment and believe that it cannot be beaten as a restorative for pale, nervous women."

Mrs. George McNair, River Charles, N.B., writes: "We use Dr. Chase's Ointment in our home, and would not wish for anything better for cuts, burns and bruises. A few years ago a friend of mine, whose baby was terribly afflicted with eczema had her child treated by their own family physician, but the little one got no better. They tried several remedies, but they all proved useless in this case. Upon the advice of a neighbor they got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and before the first box was used the child was completely cured. I can also recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to suffering friends who I know will be glad to learn of something to relieve their nervous trouble. You have my personal mission to use this letter for the benefit of others."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

THE CLEVER BOY

Unduly Retarded by Masses in Elementary Schools

Professor J. MacLean of Manitoba University, says: An easygoing kind of education is bad for anyone, but it is doubly injurious to the lad who is going on to the secondary school, and then to the university. He is handicapped early in his career by an acquisition of bad intellectual habits, not to speak of the time wasted which he will have to make up in the secondary school and the university. A patriotic educationalist perhaps says: "Our system has been devised to meet the educational requirements of the masses, not to meet the wants of the exceptionally clever boy who is going on to the university." It may be, but he denies that the present system does as much as it might for the masses, and on the other hand affirms that a national system of education cannot afford to neglect the elementary stage the interests of the secondary school and the university. If it does, wealthy parents will send their children to private schools and from them will arise those class distinctions which it is one of the merits of our national school system that it discourages. If the present course of studies is all that a dull boy can take in 8 or 9 years, facilities should be provided to enable a clever boy to take it in 5 or 6 years. But the dull boy such a dullard? The elementary schools even on the present lines could be greatly improved, and the secondary school and the university each have an opportunity of realizing the educational aims which pertain to them."

Farmer as Organizer

GEORGE S. HENRY, M.P.P. always a farmer, represented his home constituency of East York in the Ontario Legislature. He has organized an old-fashioned dairying concern and has had other big business interests.

Britain's Priceless Charter
Britain has many possessions which "no money could buy." Perhaps the most priceless of them are the Great Charter—an old parchment enclosed within a glass case in the British Museum; and the stone under the Coronation chair in Westminster Abbey, on which centuries of kings have been crowned and which is said to have served as a pillow for Jacob, son of Isaac and Rebekah. Time was when the Great Charter was bought for fourpence by a London tailor, from whose hands it was rescued just as he was about to cut it up for measures. To-day all the gold of a Rockefeller could not purchase it.

Novel in Eleven Words
Tabloid claims to have written the "shortest complete novel on record." Here it is, in less than a score of words: "A man, a maid, a pout, some doubt, misunderstood; same man, same maid, a kiss, some bliss, Miss understood." Even the tabloid novel could be still further condensed, thus: "Man, maid, pout, doubt, misunderstood; man, maid, kiss, bliss, Miss understood"—a life romance in eleven words.

THE CLOCK OF DEATH

The clock at Hampton Court Palace derived its unpleasant title of "Clock of Death" by reason of a superstition that whenever anyone long resident in the Palace dies the clock immediately stops. It is on record that when Anne of Denmark, the Queen of James I. died, the old time-piece was striking four, and that it stopped almost before the last stroke sounded. Since that time it is said to have repeated this grisly proceeding each time a Royal personage within its jurisdiction died.

At any rate, the clock has an interesting history quite aside from this. It was the first astronomical time-piece made in England, being constructed in 1540 for Henry VIII. In 1866 it was brought out of a shed wherein it had lain neglected for nearly half a century, and by order of the then Secretary of the Office of Works it was re-erected in the courtyard opposite the entrance to the State apartments.

SIR WILLIAM PETERSON

Head of McGill University, Montreal, Was Great Classicist

Sir William Peterson took over the principalship of McGill University in 1895. His record in Old Country educational annals had been brilliant. Entering the University of Edinburgh, in 1872, his name headed the list of honors in classics in graduating; and as he was then only eighteen years old, he was too young to receive his degree. It was at first his intention to follow law, but being invited to teach classics at Edinburgh he accepted, later becoming at the age of twenty-five, head of the newly-founded College of Dundee. There he showed not only great executive ability, but built up a reputation as a scholar which caused him to be known as "one of the finest Latin men of his time." An able writer and speaker, Sir William's regime at McGill was marked by notable progress along general lines.

QUEEN'S IVORY CARDS

Royalties Receive Many Strange But Valuable Presents

The miniature cricket bat of pure gold presented by Etonians to Queen Mary is a reminder that the late Duke of Clarence, an enthusiastic cricketer in his day, was once given a cricket bat constructed of walnut and valued at nearly $250. Moreover, it is not many years ago that the Prince of Wales was made a present of a silver coat, weighing nearly 74 ounces, by the Dartmouth Corporation; and the Queen-mother of Spain much prizes a peculiar pack of cards—each card being inscribed with a name of a great prince or queen on his many campaigns.

But the present Queen of Spain has what is probably the most elaborate telephone receiver and transmitter in the world. It is made of solid silver, and was presented to her by the employees of the National Telephone Company. Most artistically designed, the leading feature is a small boy—supporting the Spanish arms—who is represented as in telephonic communication with a daintily modelled English girl, beside whom crouches the British lion.

SKULLS FOR HAMLET

Liverpool Theatre Had Gruesome Resources—Sited in Graveyard

In the old days, when Kelly's Liverpool theatre was known as the Coliseum, the audience had to pass through a graveyard which partly encircled the building, amongst the more superstitious frequenters the belief gained ground that the vicinity was haunted by some spirit "doomed for a certain term to walk the night." Let this be as it may, there is no doubt that the property man of the theatre was, prior to the removal of the remains for re-interment elsewhere, never at his wits end for a skull for Hamlet. When "Eugene Aram" was being played at one time it is reported that a real skeleton from the adjoining graveyard was, in fact, requisitioned to do duty for the bones of Aram's victim!

Clean Motor Leather

Go over the leather on the car occasionally with special leather dressing and the difference in the appearance of the upholstery will repay you a thousand times. It also keeps the leather soft and pliable, helps to resist rain, and prevents it from wearing out so rapidly.

Carelessness Comes First

Fire Commissioner Adamson, of New York city, in an annual report, says that carelessness holds first place as the cause of fires. Of a total of 11,455 fires in buildings, 5,966 were in homes and 2,495 in other buildings. The remedy for this is obvious—greater care in the home.

What is Crushed Coffee?

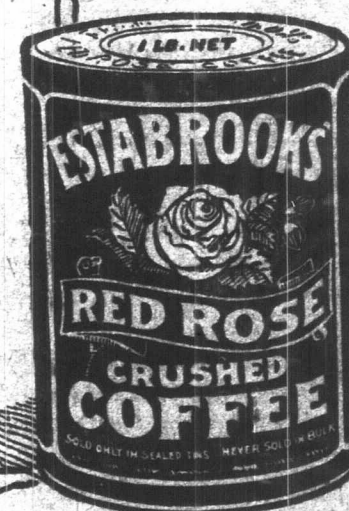

Briefly, Crushed Coffee is coffee that has had the beans crushed between steel rollers with just enough pressure exerted to break the beans into clean, even grains from which the bitter chaff and dust are easily separated by air suction—

Resulting in a coffee so pure that no egg is needed to settle it. Red Rose Coffee is as easy to make as Red Rose Tea, and its flavor, aroma and smoothness are a delight as compared with the ordinary ground coffees.

Sold only in double-sealed air-tight cans to keep it good.

The same price as it was three years ago.

Torturing, Itching Eczema

Mrs. J. B. North, Paspebiac, Bonaventure Co., Que., writes: "Thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment I have been completely cured of that horrible disease eczema. I was held as if in prison from going among other people, for I was ashamed of the raw, flaming sores. Doctors could do nothing for me and I was almost desperate with suffering when I began to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. In one month I was completely cured and think that was little short of a miracle."

Prospects Good For Hay Prices

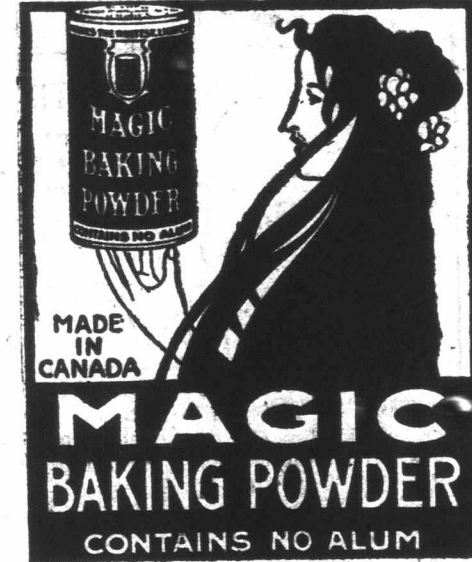

In view of the probable comparatively low prices for potatoes throughout the season. The Observer is glad to announce to the farmers of Carleton and Victoria the likelihood of good prices for hay, in spite of the immense crop. The Trade Bulletin of Montreal has the following:

"Those farmers who refused to cut their hay and left it standing in the field for manure, claiming that it would not pay, may find that they have made a mistake. It is true prices are low, but it should not be lost sight of that the farmers have about two tons of hay this year to about one ton last year. Now that the United States is taking quite a few cars of No. 2 hay, and the American Government is buying, there may be a chance of working off the surplus of our old hay. Shipments of new have also gone across the line. This export demand has caused a steadier feeling in the local market, with sales of good No. 2 pressed hay at $10.50 and $11. Sales of best quality of both old and new hay have been made for the export to the American market at equal to $11 here. A dealer stated that it was too soon and risky to ship new pressed hay as it was liable to sweat in transit. It was contended, however, that there is no fear of the hay that is being shipped sweating either on journey to destination or afterwards, as its condition is as dry and well cured as old hay. Of course, a good deal of new hay is stained from rain after being out; but no one would risk the shipment of this kind of hay.

Advices from New York report sales of Canadian good No. 2 hay at $20. This hay reached New York before the embargo. A car of choice No. 2, sold at $21. There are enquiries for Canadian hay from Philadelphia and as far west as Ohio. A considerable portion of the new crop consists of clover mixed, and the Americans are taking some of this, as it has good feeding quality."

SAND MARTINS BUILD QUEER, SAFE NESTS

World's Most Industrious Bird—Small Birds Meet Clever Opposition in These "Swallows"

A writer from Western Canada says: "The sand martin or bank swallow, as it is sometimes called, is possibly the most industrious of its feathered brethren, as it persistently rebuilds its nest in the face of the sternest opposition. It is not a large bird, being about five inches long and of a dull greyish brown color, with white on throat and breast; but is extremely graceful as it appears on a calm evening skimming in beautiful curves almost to the ground, then gracefully rising above one's head into the blue.
They usually build their nests beneath the beams in vacant huts, in places of old stables or in steep cut banks of the river, and are particularly partial to a district where limestone abounds. In these banks they have been known to excavate two or three feet, working with their bills and feet, making a hole just about big enough for a man's hand at the entrance and widening gradually at the inner part. These holes are usually about four feet from the crest of the bank and only a few inches apart. They are lined with dry rootlets, of grass or feathers. On these downy cushions are laid the five little white eggs with spots of reddish brown, where the mother bird may hatch her young.
Grows Are Examples

The moisture necessary for making the walls firm is readily carried in their beaks from the shore of the river, and while these banks are practically safe from intrusion by man, the birds learn to know the hatching season and are on the alert to devour the young swallows as they emerge from the nests. The small boy has been known to flat on a mother bird, and reaching over the edge, obtain the eggs, but it is a risky undertaking as the steep banks are of shifting sand. From the river bank below, the hill with its myriads of holes presents a honeycomb effect, and almost seems to move as the little heads peep up and out.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION

Canada's Backward Position Shown in a Government Report

In 1910 the Dominion Government appointed a Royal Commission to enquire into the needs and equipment of the Dominion respecting industrial training and technical education, and into the systems and methods of technical instruction obtaining in other countries. The following is from the report of the Commissioners, showing the need of industrial and technical education in Canada: "Until recently Canada was an interested and debating spectator of the movement for industrial efficiency. The training of young workers to deftness in manipulation and technique, and to an understanding of the principles and sciences which lie at the base of all trades and industries, was not provided for in the courses. When manufactured goods were wanted in increasing quantities and variety, and towns and cities were growing by leaps and bounds, it was discovered that there was no practical organization of means for preparing the hundreds of thousands of young people to become the best qualified artisans, farmers and housekeepers in the world. The country's growing wealth was ample for the day, but the educational work was becoming bookish in the extreme, and worse than that, was developing into school systems that had few points of contact with the relations to industrial, agricultural or housekeeping life."

WEDDING RING FINGER

There is a very ancient belief that a blood vessel extends from the base of the fourth finger of the left hand to the heart, whence, as is alleged, the choice of that finger for the wedding ring. In literature allusion to it is made as the "vena amoris," or love's vein. Unlike most notions of the kind, this idea is entirely correct, for a vein does arise directly at the root of the ring finger, and running over the back of the hand, finds its way through the "royal" vein, the "axillary," the "subclavian" and the "innominate" to the heart. This vessel is very conspicuous, standing out clearly when the hand hangs limply downward.

The reason for putting the ring on the fourth finger, however, is probably quite different. Its use for the purpose goes back to prehistoric times, and its selection is likely to have been due to the fact that it is the least free in its movements of all fingers. Accordingly, a ring encircling it will interfere less with the use of the hand than if placed on any other digit. It happens that the extensor tendon of the fourth finger is attached to those of the third and fifth fingers by cross-bands which restrict the movements of the ring finger considerably. Anybody may test this for himself by holding the third and fifth fingers forcibly bent and trying at the same time to extend the ring finger.

BOURASSA: INTENSE ORATOR AND THINKER

Unpopular Opponent of Imperialism is Very Energetic and Wordy and Well read

An Ontario writer has the following appreciation: "Bourassa lives and thinks and acts with great intensity. He expresses himself with unconfined generosity. He has so much more to express than most of those he meets that he scarcely gives them a chance to get in a dozen words in eulogy. A friend tells of a dinner with a baker's dozen present at which Bourassa talked and talked and talked. An Ontario professor managed to say nine different things: 'But, Mr. Bourassa,' and that was all he could contribute to a marvellous evening.

Bourassa shouldn't talk as much as he did on that occasion. He at least has something to say, and he says it amazingly well in French or in English. He seems to enjoy unpopularity, which is not what most people expect in an orator. With the gift of tongues there must go a certain indifference to popular favor, otherwise it would be only the gift of the gab. Bourassa is a true orator. Upon him there presses a certain destined compulsion, which explains alike his refusal, at a very early age, of a place in the cabinet, and his periodical disappearances from Le Devoir for communion with the Unreportable.

Unpopularity is a relative term. Bourassa seems to revel in a minority bath, near which there is always a congregation. There have gathered round Bourassa a faithful band to whom he is the Master. The orator pours his gifts upon those who come to listen. He is not governed by those who remain afar to scoff at what they cannot hear.

His Style of Eloquence
If you have ever seen Bourassa in action, in English or in French, you will know that the golden gift is his. On the preservation of the French culture in Canada he speaks with glowing uncton to his own people. His voice is not unctious, but the impetuosity, clarity, and glow of the eloquence that comes from him makes the audience his willing captives. When he sits down and the final applause comes, he smiles uncontrollably all over his face.

His Dangerous Equipment
The dangerous thing about Bourassa is his equipment. He has spent more energy on the historical and constitutional developments of Canadian politics than any of his contemporaries. Bourassa is very much alive to the dominance of India in the Imperial scheme. He does not conceive it to be the mission of the Canadian citizen to bother about the convergence and divergence of English, German and Russian interests in the Persian Gulf. He knows how to handle the British Columbia has vexed the India office. He has no love for the Jingoism of Piccadilly. Bourassa likes to make your flesh creep—in which he acts sometimes like a genius and sometimes like a child.

WEATHER VANE LEGEND

The City of London has some peculiar weather vanes on the spires of some of its churches. The most curious of all are the grasshopper vane on the Royal Exchange and the dragon on the lofty steeple of Bow Church in Cheapside. The golden grasshopper was the crest of Sir Thomas Gresham, the great merchant of Queen Elizabeth's reign. He it was who built the first Royal Exchange, and so it was quite appropriate that the tower of the present buildings should still display his device. A legend proposed disaster to the City of London when the grasshopper of the Royal Exchange and the dragon of Bow Church should meet. This seemed to be so unlikely ever to happen that it was regarded as an exceptionally quaint kind of joke—as much as it would be if we were to imagine the Monument in the City side by side with the Albert Memorial in Kensington Gardens. But the meeting took place about 1850 when the dragon and the grasshopper were taken down at the same time, to be replaced and repositioned side by side in the same yard, but nothing happened.

GUARDING THE HOARD

Extraordinary Precautions Taken at Bank of England

The Bank of England is quite the best guarded institution in the world. No burglar or bank thief has ever succeeded in getting in part with a penny. The great outer doors are so finely balanced that a clerk can, by pressing a knob under his desk, instantly shut them in the face of anyone making a dash for the secret. They cannot be opened except by special machinery. In recesses near the doors are hidden four guardians, who, without being seen themselves, watch all visitors through mirrors.

Special and costly precautions are taken to guard the bullion department, where the gold is stored. It has been stated that the whole department is submerged every night in several feet of water by machinery. The same machinery would be also set in action automatically, if at any time during the day the place were tampered with.

Rustless Steel For Cycles

The discovery of rustless steel may yet come to have an important bearing on the making of bicycles. It is, of course, the ideal aim to obtain a machine which shall be impervious to weather conditions, and although we have gone some distance towards that end with 'all black' models, no one would describe the practice as entirely satisfactory. The rustless steel bicyclist, however, is still a long way off, for it seems that at present rustless steel can only be imparted to steel of high carbon.

NO ONE UNDER 18 MAY DRIVE AUTO

Provincial Department Calling On All Concerned to Note This

Fredericton, N. B., Sept. 13.—The motor vehicles branch of the provincial department of Public Works has issued a circular letter to all chiefs of police and others concerned in the enforcement of the law calling attention to the fact that the section of the motor vehicles act prohibiting any person under the age of eighteen from driving a motor vehicle is not being observed.

It is mentioned that a most regrettable accident at Sussex recently resulted in the loss of the life of a valued citizen, the motor car causing the accident being driven by a boy aged 15. The life lost was that of C. W. MacDougall, provincial dairy superintendent. The circular further states that many persons have an erroneous impression that a person under the age of eighteen may drive if accompanied by a licensed chauffeur. The law states without qualification that no person under that age may drive a car.

Strict enforcement of this provision is requested.

Nothing Can Compare With It

Fred Adams, New Ross, N. S., writes: "I have tried many medicines for coughs and colds but never found anything to compare with Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We have had the greatest satisfaction with this medicine for it never fails to relieve a cough and loosen it up."

James E. Jewett

On Thursday evening, Sept. 6, James E. Jewett, one of Florenceville's life-long residents, passed away at his home in that place. Deceased had been ill of heart trouble since last spring. He was born in 1845 and was married in 1866 to Miss Harriet M. Cox who died in 1897. Five sons and three daughters survive. They are Dr. W. F. Jewett of Minneapolis, Minn., W. A. Jewett of Auburn, Me., J. A. Jewett of Vancouver, B. C., Harry P. Jewett of Woodstock, and Ed. D. Jewett at home, Mrs. H. D. Hunter, Vancouver, Mrs. H. D. Hart, Monticello, and Mrs. C. E. Hayward at home; also one brother, William, of Florenceville, and one sister, Miss Adeline, of Florenceville.

Mr. Jewett was a member of the Methodist church. He was a man of quiet and unassuming disposition and in his daily life exemplified the principles of the gospel.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. F. A. Wightman assisted by Rev. M. H. Manuel. The body was laid to rest in the Florenceville Methodist cemetery.

YES! MAGICALLY! CORN LIFT OUT WITH FINGERS

You simply say to the drug store man, "Give me a quarter of an ounce of freeze." This will cost very little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn from one's feet.

A few drops of this new ether compound applied directly upon a tender, aching corn should relieve the soreness instantly, and soon the entire corn, root and all, dries up and can be lifted out with the fingers.

This new way to rid one's feet of corns was introduced by a Cincinnati man, who says that, while freeze is sticky, it dries in a moment, and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin.

Don't let father die of infection or lockjaw from whitening at his corns, but clip this out and make him try it.
