MR BORDEN NOT WELL

Premier Fainted While Attending Recent Dinner to Heads of Provinces.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Nov. 6. - A movement has been inaugurated to prevent the Hon. George E. Foster succeeding to the premiership of Canada. Hon. Mr. costs in the damage suit begun by Foster is the senior member of the Government and is recognized as the ablest of the ministers. His distined jealously in associates with more ambition and less capacity. Ever since the Borden Government was formed there has been ceaseless effort to put Hon. Mr. Foster to one side. His admission to the cabinet was opposed. He was denied the finance portfolio. He was sent to Australia when the naval debate was on, and will be out of Canada most of the coming session if his critics have their way.

Favor "Bob" Rogers. The majority group now favor Hon Robert Rogers as the next prime minister of Canada. Those behind the movement feel that the public is not quite ready to receive Hon. Mr. Rogers, but should prefer Hon. George E. Foster. Therefore When Premier Borden fainted at the official dinner to provincial premiers and showed how serious is the condition of his health, there was considerable consternation. Premier Borden was hurried away on his second search for health.

It is hoped that he may be able t go through the coming session and possibly may remain at his post until the general elections have been held. Should the Government be again returned the way will have been prepared for Hon. Mr. Rogers to take the premiership, again pushing Hon. Mr. Foster to one side. An effort will be made by Hon. Mr. White. Mr. Rogers and other ambitious ministers to induce Mr. Foster to accept the chairmission. His long experience and adhesion to the principles of protection manship of a permanent tariff comwould make him an acceptable chairman to the interest which support the present Government.

To Hold Local Option Campaigns In Three Hundred Municipalities

[Canadian Press.]
Chicago, Nov. 6.—As a result of the showing made at the elections Tuesday, when the votes of recently enfranchised women are said to have placed 18 out of 24 municipalities voting, in the "dry" column three hundred cities and villages of Illinois will hold local option areas next spring. This was the statement yesterday of F. Scott McBride state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League.

"Under normal conditions," said Mr. McBride, "as the vote of Tuesday shows, the women will be three to one on the side of the drys. Organized properly, the proportion should be four to one.

Chicago may be one of the cities to face the "wet" and "dry" issue in the spring, according to report, although it is the understanding that the Anti-Saloon League does not faver a vote in Chicago so soon. The Liberals are said to be considering the advisability of bringing suit to test the constitutionality of the sarrage law in order to prevent the women from voting at the proposed option elections in April.

URGE ADMIRALTY TO DROP COLONIAL CONTRIBUTIONS LIBERALS' STAND INDORSED

The Policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier Is Supported by Richard Jebb, and Admirals Freemantle and Henderson-Australia and New Zealand Take Same View.

Canadian Loyalty, After South African Experience, Is Never Doubted in England-Much Misconception Has Existed as to True Facts.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, Nov. 6.—A cable from London to the Daily Tele-

Hon. W. S. Fielding, ex-finance minister of Canada, writing today in the Morning Post on the letters of Richard Jebb, Admiral Sir J. C. Freemantle and Admiral W. H. Henderson, who urged the admiralty to drop the policy of colonial contributions, says:

'Canadian Liberals will rejoice to find their views practically indorsed by such high authorities. It was natural that at first the Englishman should hurrah for those who offered a gift will not be known until its report is of £7,000,000, and to assume that Canadians who questioned the they will suggest legislation of a most policy were lacking in patriotism and loyalty, but light is dawning.

PRINCIPLE SUPPORTED. "Recent discussion shows the principle of local control for which Canadian Liberals contended is supported by Australia, and now New Zealand is taking the same position. Canadian Liberals sincerely believe the contribution policy does not advance the have discussed the possibility of the cause of imperial unity, but rather checks sane imperialism. The change in the present system of get-admiralty and the Canadian Covernment can yet reconsider their admiralty and the Canadian Government can yet reconsider their action and return to the policy of the resolutions unanimously adopted in 1909."

Referring to a remark of Admiral Freemantle's about the neutrality of Canada in the time of war, Mr. Fielding says: MUCH MISCONCEPTION.

"There has been much misconception, to use no stronger word as to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's position on that point. Sir Wilfrid knows that no part of the Empire can be neutral when Great Britain is at war. But England has, under the constitution, no power to decide what Canada shall do. Only the Canadian Government and Parliament can decide when, in what manner, and at what cost Canada shall aid the mother country in such a crisis. The aid given by Canada to South Africa was all the more valuable because it was entirely voluntary."

CANADA IS LOYAL.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Canadian Liberals only ask that the rights which Canada enjoys shall remain unimpaired, but no one who knows of Canada's part in the South African war, no one who knows the loyal sentiments of the Canadian people, can doubt that if at any time Great Britain should become involved in a war with any of the great powers, Canada would spring to her aid and be ready to make any sacrifice of blood or treasure that might be necessary for the maintenance of the honor or interests of the

There was a strong streak of Scotch in Rossile. From the race of warlocks and dreamers on the edge of the infinite had she got her taste and talent for mysticism, her genuine clairvoyance—whatever that may be. From it had she taken her that may be. From it had she taken her love for mystery, her deep hidden leaning toward romance. From it, finally, had she taken a conscience which, like a tree wind-planted in the cleft of a rock, grew and matured to bear fruit in spite of an adverse environment. In these forties, conscience mastered her. She could no longer traffic with grief to the shame of her own heart. In her revelation to Martin McGee she had concealed one fact, as it was her habit to conceal the very springs and sources of her actions. It springs and sources of her actions. It was that she had left the business of professional mediumship, when a turn in professional mediumsnip, when a turn in her romantic life brought fortune, for conscience and conscience alone. The hidden excitement and romance of the profession, the contact with other and strange minds, the opportunity for busy-bodying, for guiding destinles—all these appealed. But she could no longer en-dure the treacheries and sacrileges of her own method.

Here, now, when she had thought to put it all behind her, she was embarked on the most treacherous adventure of all. She was playing with human affection, not for the ultimate comfort and consolation of the dupe, but for an end which she of the dupe, but for an end which she dreaded to think on. She had fought that out, it is true, on the afternoon when she heard through the half-open door Constance's appeal to Betsy-Barbara. She faltered no more—except in her lonely communings with herself—but her very distaste for the work drove her to hasten it, as one drinks a noxious draught at a single mouthful. Under the pretense that her obsession was driving her, that she her obsession was driving her, that she had bottled it up too long that "it just had to come out of her," Rosaiie Le Grange multiplied the seances with Miss Estrilla to the point of danger and in-

On the second day after the session in which Miss Estrilla had tried the test of the fictitious revolver, she was back again. This time—having assurance that this was the true line of attack—she brought both Victoria and Miguel. Victoria, according to Doctor Carver, was the stronger; she spoke much, though vaguely. Miguel dropped only a few phrases, now Spanish, now English, During this session. Miss Estrilla never move ing this session, Miss Estrilla never moved nor spoke. But Rosalie, daring a look at her through her long lashes, perceived that her attitude was tense, rapt. In such long preliminary passages with a difficult sitter, Rosalie's experience had Canadian Woman's Experience:
Windsor, Ont.—"The birth of my first child left me a wreck with terrible weak spells, but I am glad with the first question. After that, the course is as easy as lying. The dupe course is as easy as lying. The dupe, once the defences are broken, is eager to believe. Where before the skeptical mind turned every new irregular fact to the dis-advantage of the medium, now the eager mind turns every fact to her advantage. "Every sheet's a ghost," Rosalie had remarked time and again. "Hardest thing ble Compound. I am lis to hold 'em back. There's nothing they can't swallow." In this, her third seance, Rosalle was proceeding as cautiously as an elephant on a bridge weiting for the It came at the fourth sitting.

By this time Rosalie had begun to re-1stens and floor of the gallery celve cable reports from Port of Spain. The detective, it appeared, was a police-man of singular fidelity or of singular acumen. Taking literally the order about "little details," he had filed one of the most curious dispatches in the annals of the New York police department. It concerning Miss Estrilla's relations with her father. Their rides together when she was a little girl, and the family was con-spicuous on the island, the circumstance of an accident to one of the horses, even names and small coin of domesti intercourse—all this he set forth fully Beyond doubt he had found the "ok family servant" mentioned in the teleram of instruction, and milked him dry, So at this fourth seance Rosalle brought not Miguel—that were too great a strain on her Spanish—but Victoria, ntroduced her, as usual, with vague sen-ences, growing always more definite, and crystallizing finally into the vital, starting fact. Rosalie was speaking freely now, her pose that of a dead trance. "Do you remember," she asked, "the time they carried you home, as though ou were dead, from the stable, and you revived and spoke to me when they brought you in the door? Do you remember—Margy, dear?" The telegram from Detective Hawley had informed Rosalie that the baptismal name of Miss Estrilla—or Miss Perez—was Margarita, and that her mother used the name in its English er mother used the name in its English form and her father in Spanish.

"Do you remember, Margy, dear?" repeated the voice of the "spirit" through the entranced lips of Rosalie Le Grange.

"Yes." said Miss Estrilla, so suddenly that it nearly shook Rosalie out of her trance. "I remember, mother, dear, What was his name—that horse?" was his name—that horse?"

"Still a little skeptical; but it's the last gasp. I'll fix her right-now. Lucky I've got it!" said the mind of Rosalie Le Grange working rapidly behind her mask.
"We had Billy, and—but it wasn't he—
It was that black horse Vixen which you rould yide against my wishes!" said the would ride against my wishes!" said the voice. Rosalie heard Miss Estrilla heave a long sigh; heard her settle herself against the pillows as though quite overorn with emotion.

But Rosalie did not proceed directly along the road of treacheries which she was travelling. Victoria went away with the capricious suddenness of all Rosalie's spirit friends. The voice of Laughing-Eyes, the child control, burst in. Upon Miss, Estrilla, Rosalie used Laughing-Eyes, sparingly. With an ignorant and over-impressionable sitter she was an invaluable feature, this Laughing-Eyes. To person of greater discernment, the child mpersonation was likely to be ridiculous. Rosalie usually employed her, therefore, only to fill in the chinks, to occupy the time while she was thinking. For Rosalie, after thirty years of experience, produced Laughing-Eyes with her left hand, so to speak. The child patter came by instinct; it required no effort of the conclous will; her mind was free to think Laughing-Eyes into her web.

"Lady is gone!" said Laughing-Eyes.

"Pretty lady! Another spirit—oh—I see things! They shine—oh—go away back! No, he will not stay," and she paused here. And now Miss Estrilla spoke again, and n such a tone that Rosalle knew she "Can't you bring him back, Laughing-Eyes?" she said. "Oh, please bring him back. Tell him, oh, tell him that I am not angry!" A dry sob shook the stience

He is afraid. And he is weak in spirit!" babbled Laughing-Eyes. "Maybe covered when it is kept constantly at he will come again--maybe!" And Laughing-Eyes giggled and babbled of Miguel Mrs. Martin 13 Carroll street Toand Victoria and a dozen spirits imper-tinent to Miss Estrilla. Yet always in her babblings she seemed to hold the atmosphere of truth: she referred casually and in remote ways to a dozen facts about Miss Estrilla's family and her past. Presently her voice died away, and Rosalie lay silent and impassive, waiting for Miss

Estrilla to wake her. John Talke. In the following seance, held the next afternoon at the special and plaintive request of Miss Estrilia, Rosalie Le Grange reached at last the very kernel of the

ska. With arts all her own, Rosalie broke through the reserves of that distressed widow. From discussion of the murder, Widow. From that she lured Constance into deeper confidences, which involved the personal peculiarities of the late Captain Hanska, such as his way of speaking, the quality of his voice, and his methods with women. When Rosalie settled down to the fifth seance, she had in her mind a picture of John H. Hanska which was good everythe for any of her purposes good enough for any of her purposes. The preliminaries were over; Laughing-Eyes had gone her babbling way back to the land of spirits, and Doctor Carver held

"A spirit has been trying to communia spirit has been trying to communicate, but he is a new spirit and not yet strong. He says that the lady's sickness is not of the body. It is of the mind. He also is not happy yet. John was his name on the flesh-plane—it is hard—we over here must make an effort—it is a strain on us as on the medium—I get an 'H'." on us as on the medium—I get an 'H.' " In the ensuing silence Miss Estrilla gave one hard sob.

The silence lasted for half a minute. Rosalie strained and struggled as though a tumult were going on within. Then came a man's voice, higher and softer than that of Doctor Carver.

"I am John, Margaret. I cannot stay long. I am not strong—they tell us over here—that we must forgive—even as we are forgiven. But—I will come again—"

"Oh, John, I am trying to forgive—oh, do you understand—wait—" gasped Miss Estrilla.

But John spoke no more.

THE CITY'S NEEDS.

The experiment of the Industrial School has been a great success, surpassing even all expectations. Its magnitude necessitates now the erection of a special building to pursue and en-

There was not and cannot now be any doubt of the need of industrial education in a manufacturing community like this. The increased expenditure occasioned by this development is an absolute necessity if London is going to keep up with the march of Ontario. The Alexandra School, in which the industrial students have hitherto been housed, is not only inadequate in available space, but was not built with any view to this purpose. A building is therefore wanted that will meet the special requirements and be a credit

It is, of course, a little disquieting to citizens, except to the audacious company who claim that economy may be flung to the winds, that so many absolutely necessary expenses accumulate at such a time as this. Just when the city might be free to enjoy a speculation on a large scale, or set up a half-million city hall with gardens around it of Oriental splendor, at such a time come cranking in these sordid, little, humdrum, harmiess, necessary matters that work like moth and rust to our common treasure. It is a sober waking reflection to disturb fine dreams, that other schools besides the Technical have to be built to replace those which are hopelessly out of date. Storm sewers are wanted, so are good roads. The technical school is only a drop in the bucket of things needful. Are there not people who build garages and play the stock market, but cannot afford to repair their front windows? CARSON AND HIS IMITATORS.

The doctrine of sedition preached in Britain by Sir Edward Carson seems to be spreading. Larkin, the labor leader in Dublin, adopted it in support of the strike he organized. And now, Miss Pankhurst, who seems to be running the suffragette movement while her mother is collecting money in the States, announces that the Carson argument will be used in order to secure votes for women. In a speech at Hackney she said it would be necessary for them to have an army; that Sir Francis Vane, with some other British officers, were ready to take charge of the militant forces, and that recruits, both male and female, were wanted. At first sight, one might be inclined to smile at the proposed army of Amazons marching with banners and rifles and swords to overawe, if not to overthrow, the British Government But it may be no laughing matter. Women who are ready to destroy property, thrash cabinet ministers, and fight policemen, will not hesitate to adopt a more warlike program if they think it advisable. And if they are willing to be mobbed by unruly crowds, and to be starved in jail, they will not be afraid of any personal danger that might ensue from military con-

And they are right. That is, if Carson is right in Ulster, Larkin and Pankhurst are only following his advice and carrying out his ideas. Nor is there any reason why the argument of the bullet should be confined to Ulster, or Dublin, or London. If dissatisfaction with an act of Parliament justifies rebellion in Ireland, it should justify it elsewhere. The majority of the leaders of the Anglican Church are strongly, and no doubt conscientiously, opposed to Welsh disestablishment. They would be justified in organizing a crusade, and beginning what some at least would think a holy war in defence of their rights. And why should not the great landlords enroll an army of their tenants, and be prepared to defend their estates from what they, doubtless honestly, think to anything like it. Please explain, be confiscation? It is true, this plan of righting real or imaginary wrongs would degrade England to the level of Mexico, and cause the destruction of far more property and a greater number of lives than Were sacrificed in all the revolutions Mexico has ever experienced. But it would be right, if nounced intention of abandoning the of Carsonism, does not give that Lellicose individual and his colleagues a taste of the same harsh treatment that is applied to labor unions and suffragettes. It must be remembered, however, that while these latter try to carry their threats into effect, the Ulster leaders only talk of what they will do if they do not get their own way. And as long as people only confine themselves to bluster, the English people will be indifferent to the most violent outbursts. The British lion is a peaceful animal, and will submit to all sorts of abuse, and will suffer any amount of pin-pricks with nothing more than a yawn. He treats foreign foes and domestic agitators alike in this respect, until, as the old song suggests, "grown more bold, his sloth to behold, they venture to tread on his tail." Then there is trouble. Possibly that may be the experience of Sir Edward Carson. But in the meantime his sedition is responsible for a great

The correspondent condemns the Dreadnought type from a technical point of view, and calls for a committee of naval design to plan more suitable warships. Like Lord Charles Beresford and a school of naval experts, he advocates smaller ships and fast cruisers for the protection of

The Laurier Government was wise in proposing to create a Canadian and destroyers. There is no dispute as to the usefulness of these types. Britain is building them in increasing numbers, and New Zealand is starting with them. Two or three years hence there may be a revolution in naval conceptions which will give Dreadnoughts a secondary place. If not, Canada could build or buy them, but in the meantime we would have provided a formidable flotilla of commerce protectors. In fact, Canadian cruisers and destroyers would now be dren will be able to take me to a play ready for launching if the Conservative leaders in Canada had not broken their pledges to please the National-

"The London Advertiser says Dreadnought-building plant in Canada, failing in orders for great fighting ships, would be 'the nucleus of a great steel ship-building industry in Canada.' It follows that if these steel plants were already here, that we do not a $75,000,000 Dreadnoughtbuilding plant to form a 'nucleus for something else."-London Free

Just so; but what's the point? A steel plant can make steel for ships, out it is not a shipbuilding plant. And a Dreadnought plant, where the steel, guns and other material could be assembled, would not cost $75,000,000, or

"The Captain Who Elects to Go ONTABIO IS THE Down With His Ship Is Not a Hero, But a Coward."

BY HERBERT QUICK.

Author of "On Board the Good Ship Earth," Etc., and Editor of Farm and There is an unwritten law that a captain who loses his ship shall never have another. This "law" is merely unwritten bosh of the CRUELEST sort.

It is a good thing that an exception to this rule is to be made in the case of Captain Inch, of the Volturno. He was not to blame for the loss of the Volturno, and if he did his full duty well and efficiently in the crisis of her sinking, he is entitled to a command.

There is another bit of fiendish, unwritten insanity in the "law" that a CAPTAIN MUST SINK WITH HIS SHIP. A number of such instances are remembered. A vessel for some reason sinks. Her captain does all he can to save her passengers. He gets passengers and crew into the boats, launches the boats, bids everybody good-bye, and again takes his supply. place on the deck. If the ship actually sinks under his feet, if I understand this idiotic "law," he may swim, grasp a spar Wages are higher here, but they go or hencoop, and save himself—but his foot the workers there at present better must press the last plank of the vessel as it goes under water.

There is about as much sense to this as favors home rule for Ireland, but says to the Japanese custom of committing suicide because the em- that the Protestant districts of Ulster peror dies. To be sure, if the captain is never to have a command again, and is to be blamed forever for the work of the elements, he may choose to go down with his ship rather than LIVE IN POVERTY crists. All the workers are combining, like a disbarred lawyer, stripped of his profession; but this is not and there will be a titanic struggle bethe real reason. The real reason for these self-immolations is the problem is also a terrible one.

Mr. Thomas is prominent in UNWRITTEN BOSH which leads some landsmen I know to speak in terms of high approbation of a captain who stands on the bridge and sinks with his vessel while everybody else gets off in the HOCKEY PLAYERS ARE boats.

The place of the captain is on his ship as long as there is anyone on board who can be saved. It is on board the ship as long as there is a crew to command or any HOPE OF SAVING HER.

And when the passengers and crew are in the boats, it is the captain's place to be with them if he can leave his ship. He, better than anyone else, is able to look after the welfare of the castaways and plan their escape. And a captain who has engineered matters in one wreck so as to save a part or all of his passengers and crew IS A BETTER CAPTAIN for that very experience. I would rather consign myself to a ship commanded by Captain Inch winter, Bobby Genge, the well-known hockey player, formerly of Fort William, than to sail with a captain to whom wrecks, conflagrations and the use of lifeboats are matters of theory only.

Looked at from the viewpoint of common sense, the captain who goes down with his ship merely because it is his ship is not a hero at all, but a coward.

Brother Recalled.

Mr. Meredith, acting for the crown, recalled Sylvester Beemer, a brother of the deceased Fred. Beemer, in order to establish that in 1911 Fred. Beemer had planted no corn in any part of his 200 acres. This was to contradict a statement made by Mrs. Beemer, the accused, during her preliminary hearing that in 1911 she had purchased strychnine in Drumbo to kill crows, which had been bothering the corn. Sylvester Beemer was quite positive no corn was planted by Fred. Beemer during that year. High Constable Hobson gave testimony regarding the safe delivery of Beemer's stomach to He also told of a conthe coroner. versation which he had with the prisoner regarding Beemer's illness. Constable Hobson swore that during the conversation, Mrs. Beemer told him about the tablets that the doctor had left, and stated that she had been told to keep them away from the children, as they contained poison. Following Beemer's death, she burned what tablets were left.

Peps is the name bestowed upon a new scientific preparation put up into tabloid or pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds and lung and throat troubles.

Did it never occur to you as peculiar that when you have a cough or a cold, or any chest trouble, you should apply medicine -not to your lungs, but to your gtomach?

Look at it the other way round. Suppose you suffered from some stomach complaint-indigestion or ulceration. How strange you would think it if you were asked to take a medicine which had to be breathed in, and which went-not to your stomach, but to your lungs and breathing passages?

Peps-this newest remedy for coughs, colds, and lung troublesgo to the lungs and breathingtubes, direct. Peps are really pine fumes, and certain highly beneficial medicinal extracts specially prepared by a new scientific process and then condensed into tabloid form. It is like making a breathable gas solid!

You put a "Pep" on your tongue and let it dissolve. As it does so, the healing essences it contains turn into vapor, and you BREATHE them direct to your lungs and air passages!

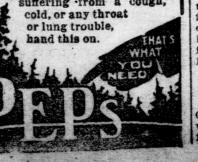

Just as the out-door treatment for consumption-the "breathing" treatment-is now admitted to be the only rational treatment, so the "Peps" treatment for colds and ung troubles is the only rational home treatment.

Peps cure catarrh, coughs, bronchitis, sore throat, tightness or aching across the chest, difficulty in breathing, night cough, hoarseness, asthma, laryngitis, smoker's throat, etc. Best for children, because free from opium, morphine, or any poison.

All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. a box or 3 for $1.25.

dence regarding the illness of the de-ceased. He said he had been told when summoned that Beemer had had a paralytic stroke. When he arrived he could find no paralysis, but Beemer told him he had eaten something in Galb a few days earlier, and he be-lieved that there was something still on his stomach. Mrs. Beemer said she had given her husband a dose of saits, and a dose of epsom to make him salts, and a dose of epsom to make him vomit before the doctor arrived. Witness gave Beemer an injection, ordered more salts, and left some tablets. None of these tablets, he declared, were

Dr. Woolner went into details, telling the court how he found Beemer on Saturday, the first day of his illness: how on Sunday, and how Monday. On Saturday and Sunday pains in the feet and legs were quite severe, and it was necessary to hold Beemer down.

Was Much Better. On Monday, the patient's condition was considerably improved; in fact, he was so well that he was able to get up and walk around the yard. He said he would not call again, but on Tuesday night he received a telephone call to come quickly as Beemer was worse. He went as soon as possible, but when he arrived Beemer was dead, the body being quite rigid and the muscles stiffened. Dr. Woolner read his post-mortem report, showing nothing found which would cause death. He did not examine the stomach.

The witness was asked regarding his opinion as to the cause of death, and he stated that from what he saw and heard, he had no doubt that strychnine poison was the cause of death. refused to grant a burial certificate because he did not believe death was natural

SOME NEW EVIDENCE. Woodstock, Nov. 6.-It was learned oday that important new evidence on ehalf of Mrs. Beemer, charged with the murder of her husband has been secured. A man has been summoned to swear that shortly before Beemer's death he had travelled with him from Toronto, and Beemer had remarked on his financial troubles, which were depressing him, and had said: "Life is a week. This past season he was given a tryout by Billy Crystal on his Appleton team, but "Lefty" didn't last there, ether. The next thing he tackled was an umpire's job, umpiring many of the games in the Reaches League in Toronto. "Lefty" is looking pretty good, and he expects to come back next spring and become a regular pitcher again

B. SMITH has a dry goods store in a certain Canadian city. He does a good business, but wants to do more. He believes that Advertising in his local newspaper is the way to get more business. So he advertises-every now and then. This is where our friend Smith is wrong-in advertising every now and then. He should advertise regularly—as frequently as his local newspaper is published. Smith says he wants to advertise regularly, but he can't always find the time to prepare advertisements, which is true, for he is his own buyer, salesmanager, director of store service, credit man and half-a-dozen other things.

What Smith should do is this: If he is located in one of the smaller cities, in which there are no advertising agencies giving a local copy service, and he has no one among his own staff qualified by instinct or experience to write the daily announcements, he should go to the publisher of the newspaper in which he means to advertise, requesting his help. In nine cases out of ten, the publisher, through his advertising manager, will be only too glad to give Smith the assistance desired.

If Smith is located in one of the larger cities he should secure the services of a recognized advertising agency which will take over the work of preparing his advertisements.

In this way Smith can be sure of having his advertisements prepared regularly and intelligently, with no more trouble to him than the supplying of the information required by the writer of the advertisements.

So Smith can do more business, and more business means a larger income for himself, to say nothing of other gains that go hand in hand with the doing of bigger business.

This man Smith---do you know him? Are YOU Smith?

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furhished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumiden Building, Toronto.

Sylvia Pankhurst Escapes Police Not One of His Rich Pickings Is by a Clever Rus and Addresses Meeting.

London, Nov. 6 .- By a clever stratagem, which completely hoodwinked the large force of police sent to prevent her from speaking, Miss Sylvia Pankhurst was enabled to announce at the Bow Baths, in the east end of London, last night, the formation of a volunteer corps, organized under command of Captain Sir Francis Vane, a Boer war veteran, for the protection of militant suffragettes and labor unionists.

Miss Celie Emerson, of Jackson. Mich., presided over the meeting. Just meeting was called to order the statement was made that the residence of George Lansbury, Socialist member of Parliament, and a warm supporter of the militant suffragettes. was surrounded by police. The crowd rushed from the Baths and found a large number of foot and mounted police around Lansbury's house, with a taxicab in front of the entrance.

Noisy Crowds. Mr. Lansbury arrived on the scene and was uproariously greeted as he entered his home. The report was spread that the preparations portended the arrest of Sylvia Pankhurst.

The lights in the house were extinguished and suddenly a woman rushed from the doorway and sprang into the taxi, which, surrounded by mounted police, proceeded to Bethnal Green. Then Miss Daisy Lansbury, daughter of the ex-Socialist member, stepped out of the taxi much to the discomfiture of the police. Meanwhile Miss Pankhurst entered the Baths practically unobserved. only disorder was caused by an attack by the women on a few reporters whom they suspected of being detectives. Mr. Lansbury and Sir Francis Vane followed Miss Pankhurst to the platform. The Boer veteran explained that he proposed to establish a labor training corps. Waved Big Club.

Waving aloft a huge knotted club, Sir Francis said he was prepared to use that weapon wherever he saw women injured, and in labor disputes, or wherever the oppressed needed aid. Says He Was Seen Dragging Body to Furnace in Brick . Yards.

[Canadian Press.] Kiev, Russia, Nov. 6.-The name of Mendel Beiliss, Mendel Belliss, the man standing trial for the alleged murder of the Christian boy Andrew Yushinsky, in March, it was barely mentioned in the speech counsel for the prosecution today. T This was remarked by those present in court, as the same thing happened when counsel delivered his opening speech. Toward the end of his address to the ury, however, prosecuting counsel expressed his profound

Beiliss was guilty, and remarked that the accused had been seen dragging young Yushinsky toward the brick fur where Beiliss was employed, and "Mendel Beiliss possibly was an excellent father and a virtuous man, who lived modestly, and was certainly religious, but does this preclude the possibility of the perpetration by him of a crime which, from his standboint, was not a crime? He regards himself as an expiatory vic tim for his co-religionists."

Counsel for the prosecution then dwelt en the subject of the clay found on young Yushinsky's clothing, which, he said, resembled that of the soil near the stable where the prosecution believes the murder was committed and where Mrs Beills went to live after the arrest of her hus-band. The stable was whitewashed before the visit of Krassovsky, the detective, and was burned down

"Murphy go?" he said. "He won't go without a fight, and what's the use of fighting? We haven't got anything to fight about. The other fellows have all the jobs."

But everywhere was the rumor that Murphy must go, if not from one cause, then from another. The real change that politicians brought against him was one of generalship. Why did Murphy let the impeachment of Sulzer come just when it did? Was it not in the primer of politics that the revenge of Sulzer's supporters would be visited on the candidate of Tammany Hall, no matter what his personal capacity might be? Was not Murphy primarily to blame for letting Judge McCall stand before the people as a paschal offering for the acts of Factory Owners in Annexed District Want I5-Year Exemption.

Court action to settle the status of factories in the annexed district in respect to their exemption from taxation will likely be the next step in the assessment tangle that has grown out of the wording of the annexation agreement that added so materially to London's boundaries. There will be a special meeting of the court of revision Friday afternoon to take up the factory question, and it is understood that the court will confirm the assessments of Assessment Commissioner Grant and will allow the question to e taken before the judge. Owners of factory buildings, erected prior to the annexation agreement, have appealed against the assessment of these build gs. They claim ex-emption under the clause of the agreement that provided exemption from taxation for fifteen years of all fac-The interpretation given this dause by the assessment department is that it refers to factories erected after the agreement only. The contention of the owners is that all factory buildings in the annexed district are included in the exemption.

The question has been before the court for some time, and when assessment appeals in the new district were heard last Friday, the question was laid over for another meet-

It is expected that the assessment revisions for the year will be completed tomorrow.

TRIES TO PREVENT USE OF LANEWAY

Mr. Robert Hueston Asks That Mr. Whitehall Be Restrained.

One more case was entered for trial at the non-jury sittings of the supreme court, before the list closed on Wednesday afternoon.

Robert Hueston, liveryman, of this city, seeks unstated damages from Mr. Frank Whitehall, a market gardener, he is the owner of certain lands adjoining those of the defendant, who operates a number of greenhouses. His land is between the road and that owned by Mr. Whitehall, and he complains that the defendant uses a lane through his property to draw heavy loads of coal to his greenhouse, with the result that the road is greatly damaged. He seeks damages for trespass, and also an injunction preventing the repetition of the act complained of. Mr. Whitehall, in defence, states that he never at any time used the laneway for anything but legitimate purposes. Messrs. Meredith & Meredith are acting for the plaintiff, and M. T. H. Luscombe for the defend-

The report has been in the course of preparation for several months. The separation is scheduled to go into effect, according to the votes of the people, the last of the present month. Mr. Beattie Will Not Run .- Ex-Mayor J. H. A. Beattie, in a statement made this morning, says that he has no intention of offering himself as a candidate for the board of control. Mr. Beattie's name was mentioned among those who were talked of as possible candidates. It was stated around the city hall Wednesday that he might run. However his statement to The Advertiser absolutely precludes this possibility, as he says, "I have not the slightest intention of offering myself as a candidate for that office. Horse Falls Upon Him .- Mr. Jack Labatt, of the Labatt Brewing Company, suffered a fractured leg Wednesday evening when the horse which he was riding on one of the Hunt Club runs, stumbled and fell, pinning him underneath its side. The accident happened about a mile west of St. Johns. Major Snell, a military surgeon, was with the party and rendered first aid. Smith, Son & Clarke's private ambulance was summoned and Mr. Labatt was removed to Victoria Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Drake. Begin To Give an Adequate Supply.

ABATTOIRS ONLY HOPE

Farmers Must Be Shown How To Produce at a Reasonable Price.

Washington Nov. 6.-A bulletin just issued by the Department of Agriculture contains the most thorough anto their meat supply that ever has been prepared.

The department's experts can see no possibility of relief through ship-Argentina or any other country. Prices, in their opinion, are bound to continue upward unless improved producers of the United States. Various Methods. Among the proposals for relieving the situation for far the most interesting is the establishment of public abattoirs and the sale of meats through public markets as in many European countries. Through these public slaughter houses many of the middlemen, it is asserted, would be eliminated, local markets would be created for the small farmers, and the so-called beef trusts would receive a blow. Other remedies lie in more economic methods of stock raising on the farms, and the improvement of waste lands for pasture pur-

Summary of Situation. James M. Pickens of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry summarizes the situation in the De partment's bulletin as follows:

"The high cost of meat is a serious reality, and it is now obvious that the rise in prices in recent years is the natural result of an actual shortage in production. These conditions are flected in the per capita consumption of meat in the United States, which s estimated to have fallen off ten pounds in four years, or from pounds in 1909 to 152 pounds in the fiscal year 1913.

"It is evident that the country is facing an era of short production of meat, and that some constructive load lots. means must be adopted if the American appetite for this class of food is to be supplied.

Decline in Beef. "The decline in beef production especially marked. This is shown in three different ways-by the number of cattle on hand, the number received at market centres, and the number slaughtered. A decrease in market receipts, and in the slaughter. with a corresponding increase in the number remaining in the country, would not be alarming, but when with diminishing slaughter, we are depleting our stock of cattle there can be no doubt of the gravity of the situation. "In the last six years the number of beef cattle in the country has apparently fallen off over 30 per cent., while the population has, of course. increased. According to estimates of the bureau of statistics of the Department of Agriculture the heef cattle in the country in January 1, 1907, numbered 51,566,000, and at the beginning of the present year the number was only 36.920.000. Meanwhile the numher of dairy cows has remained practically s' onary. Decrease of Receipts.

"Applying the rate of Federally inspected slaughter to total slaughter, according to the census figures for 1909, this means a falling off of 1,419,-000 cattle, or approximately 780,000,-000 pounds of beef in the entire slaughter of the country from 1910

Small Production.

"With our diminished production in the face of the heavy demand and high prices of the home market we no longer have a surplus for export, and it is no wonder that our export trade in meat

"Our once great trade with England in cattle and fresh beef has vanished that manuscript? shipped to foreign markets are prepared hog products, such as bacon, hams and lard. From 1904 to 1906 the compliment. our exports of live cattle approximated 600,000 head annually. For the last fiscal year they numbered only 24,-714, about one-tenth of which went to Great Britain. "While future imports may afford some measure of relief, too much reliance should not be placed on this source of supply. A study of the statistical situation in other countries does not disclose where we are likely to obtain any large quantity of beef for an extended period.

Situation in Canada. "Besides Canada and Mexico the sources of imports are practicaly Argentina, and Australia. New Zealand exports large quantities of mutton, but very little beef. Canada and Mexico do not at present give promise of substantial assistance,

"The number of beef cattle in Canada is only about one-tenth of that in the United States, and shows a steady decrease amounting to over 11 per cent, in the last five years, Recently thousands of cattle have been Imports Into States Will Not brought from Canada mainly because of poor pasturage and partial failure of the hay erop there. Effect on Canada.

"This movement may continue for a time, but it will naturally have the effect of further reducing Canada's stock of cattle. The unsettled conditions in Mexico make it unlikely that any considerable number of cattle canbe expected from that country for at least a few years.

supplying most of the British imports, and have been called on to make up the loss in supply formerly up the loss in supply formerly furnished by the United States.

The number of cattle in that country showed a decrease at the last census, 1911, as compared with the preceding one, 1908.

English Markets.

"We shall therefore have to bid will tend to keep up prices. It must be remembered too that this foreign beef is not up to the standard of quality of our corn-fed beef.

"In view of the present meat situation at home and abroad it is unlikely to fear from foreign beef."

Co-operation Recommended. The Department in its bulletin holds that the chief hope for a solution of the problem lies in the small farmer mission circles that little Alberta trade again turning to the raising of stock as he did before the packing house with artificial refrigeration put an end to local butchering. But before the farmer will undertake to raise more at Ahoghill Loyal Orange Lodge Wedstock he must be assured of a local nesday evening, when market.

The Department recommends local co-operation among farmers in different communities, so that they may raise the same kind of animals and ship them to a central market in car-

Public Abattoirs. Here is what the Department bulle in has to say about the sale of meats under public supervision:

"An important reason why farmers produce less meat than formerly is to be found in the system of distribution from producer to consumer that has grown up in this country. In most of the countries of Europe public abattoirs have been constructed to which farmers may consign their fat stock, the meat from which is then sold to the consumer without passing through the hands of an interminable line of middlemen, each of whom takes his toll.

"In this country the farmer receives only a small fraction of the price paid by the consumer. Enormous packing establishments have monopolized the business, and there is little or no competition in buying the farmer's stock The enormous fortunes that have grown up in this business in recent years show that the farmer has been getting his full share of the profits. For Larger Retail Units.

"Again the retail meat business at present conducted in cities renders enormous profits necessary. Numerous small groceries, each with its independent delivery system, clerks and fixtures, serve a few patrons scattered over considerably overlapping areas. Better organization of the retail business whereby it shall be conducted in larger units with well systematized of 'em does me justice!

methods of delivery is seriously needed. "Such organizations could greatly lessen the retail price of meats, and at the same time permit the farmer to receive better prices. This would en-ourage greater production. "Private organizations for the systematizing of the retailing of meats without public supervision will not meet the situation. Such organizations already have grown up in the retail milk business, but instead of cheapening the products to consumers or increasing the price to producers, they have converted the saving thus effected into exhorbitant profits. Public abattoirs with public sale of the meats of animals slaughtered at them have become a crying need in this country.

Farmers Hold Key. "The farms of this country almost unlimited possibilities for live stock production. If the farmers can be shown how to produce live stock at a reasonable profit, and how to get a ready market for it when it is produced, they will furnish all the meat that is needed.

The bulletin says that the only meat producing animals that have been distinctly profitable to the farmer in the last decade are swine, but these have not increased in number because of the ravages of hog cholera.

Sheep have been slowly decreasing in number, and there is no probability of any considerable future increase. The department's experts find also that there is no prospect of increase in the country how they can co-operate to solve the meat problem, and what they should do. In the West.

Chicago, Oct. 24.-An 80-cent freight rate from Alberta points to Chicago is likely to prevent many western Canadian cattle from reaching Chicago. From similar points in the United States the rate is only 60 cents.

Canadian roads are naturally anxious to prevent diversion of live stock traffic to American lines, and there is a general disposition to throw every possible obstacle in the path of international cattle traffic. Already Canadian papers are sounding an alarm that there is danger of draining the Dominion of young cattle and females, and such an heroic remedy

Canadian breeders never dreamed of such prices as American speculators have been bidding since free trade became effective, and the fact that many against England and other purchasers of these speculators refuse to disclose of foreign beef, and this competition prices realized on this side of the line suggest that they have not been throwing their money away in Canada, otherwise there would be no objection to publicity. Where Alberta cattle breeders are able to trail their shipments across that our cattle raisers will have much the line into Montana and take advantage of American rates, sending stock to Chicago may be possible, but the rapacity of Canadian roads is responsible for a conviction in comis to be expected.

To Remove First Sign of Old Age

"The infallible first sign of age is the sagging cheek muscles," says Mme. Lina Cavalieri, whose fame as a beauty culturist is scarcely outshone by that gained before the footlights. "These are more difficult and serious to treat than wrinkles," she continues. "The sagging muscles indicate that they have grown too weak to remain in place; they must be assisted, strengthened."

The best way to strengthen and harden them is by using a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. This creates freer circulation to the affected parts, sides causing muscle and skin to contract. Saxolite, procurable at every drug store, has long been known to complexion specialists to possess remarkable proper-ties, valuable in treating not only flabby tissue, but all wrinkles and furrows.

The Fox-Farming Industry. — Today's issue of Bradstreet's has the following to say regarding the development of fox-farming in Canada: Fox farming is a new departure in Canadian industry which has rapidly expanded. It is carried on for the most part in Prince Edward Island, as conlitions there are especially suited to the rather difficult and costly enterox-breeding companies had been list-

This week one company there paid $75,000 for four pairs of foxes for breeding purposes. The possibilities of the industry as a money maker, and the handsome dividend already paid by some of the companies, is sufficient warrant for such initial expenditure.
