How Mr. Hyman Did a Good Stroke for the City

"When the mill was burned down Mr. Hyman at once entered into correspondence with us. As you probably know, Mr. Hyman is a personal friend of mine, and his arguments carried great weight with me. He assured, as member for London and a cabinet minister, that we would soon be able to enjoy the benefits of interswitching-something which, in our business, where we have so much shipping, is a very important matter indeed. In every way possible he used his influence with us to locate in London again, and although for a while we were inclined to take the big mill to Toronto, we have at last decided to purchase the site and factory building of the London Machine Tool Company, and to keep our mill in Lon-

"Mr. Hyman deserves great credit for securing interswitching for the business men of London. For many years the lack of the interchange of cars has been a serious drawback to the business interests of the city, but now, thanks to Mr. Hyman, interswitching has been secured and the first result of it is that our mill has been secured to London."-Mr. Albert Dyment of the Dyment-Baker Lumber Company.

HOW MR. HYMAN BEFRIENDED THE EMPLOYES OF RAILWAYS

Every railway man should remember that Hon. Mr. Hyman has pledged himself to carry the Grand Trunk provident bill to the Privy Council at the expense of the Government so that an employe of the road, if he be injured, will be able to sue the company without fear that the company will set up the plea that the law is ultra vires.

The importance of this promise is shown by the fact that at the present time the Pere Marquette Railway is fighting the alien labor law of Canada, on the ground that the law is ultra vires, as the Canadian Parliament, they claim, had no power to pass it. This means that the case will in all probability have to be carried to the Privy Council now for a ruling. What workman, or what widow of a workman would be able to carry a suit for damage against the company to the Privy Council? Every railway man in London should vote for Hyman, the man who will see that the injured employe, or the widow of an employe, will be able to sue the company on fair grounds.

The story runs that Billy Gray's future is to be provided for, wir or lose. The Conservative party in London have Billy on their hands and arrangements are accordingly being made to give Billy a comfortable billet and save expenses. The position will be something that will not take Billy away from London, and it will be in the gift of

Some of Billy's friends say that his business would suffer if he were obliged to go to Ottawa for six months every year. They hint that Billy has no intention of injuring his business prospects by attending to the duties of a member of Parliament. Nor has he any idea of injuring his prospects by running as a Conservative candidate. As far as politics are concerned Billy is not in the game entirely for his health. He has to look out for a rainy day, and protect his old age against want as any other prudent man would do. There is no money in it for Billy to go to Ottawa, spend his fifteen hundred dollars sessional indemnity maintaining the dignity of London, and to let his business take chances while he is away from home. If Billy is prepared to sacrifice all for the good of his country, then the Conservative party in London will have to hold him up, and that they are not prepared to do out of their own pockets. Although Billy is not the candidate they would have chosen, they realize that he is the logical result of the accident which occurred last November. The story goes that Billy realizes it too, and he is playing it for all it is worth. The Conservative party has simply got to do something for

If Billy loses, the situation will be comparatively simple. All Billy will have to do then is to wait until the job falls vacant, and then enter into his reward without any fuss. In such a position politics will never bother Billy Gray again; he will never have to show how little he knows about public questions; and the Conservative party in London will have shifted its burden. Some of the best Consrvatives here are hoping that Billy will lose and then they can get rid of him. They are going to help to do it tomorrow.

If by some highly-improbable mischance Billy should win, the situation is not quite so clear. But here again the problem has been thought out. While the party can afford to pay for a member of Parliament they would like to have a better one for their money than Billy Gray.

In view of all the circumstances, they think it would be more beneficial and less expensive to the party to have Billy resign his seat in Parliament if he should happen to win, and let a better man take his place. Then he could take the Ontario Government job if it was ready for him. If it wasn't, he could hang on a little longer.

*London has had four elections in seven months. There is great satisfaction in knowing that Mr. Hyman's victory tomorrow will defeat the plans of the schemers, who, regarding Billy Gray as only one move in the game, would saddle this city with another bye-election in the near futura

Sir John Thompson's report, upon which the Premier had contention that the ordiferred on the Roman Catholic minornances of the Northwest Territories could restrict the provisions of the act of 1875, did not, Mr. Borden argued, touch the question of the character of the schools, but only the locality in which separate schools could be estab-lished. The ex-Minister of the Interfor had declared that section sixteen, No. 1, revised, crystallized and made absolutely certain clause eleven of the act of 1875, and the Minister of Justice had explained that what the act purely and simply to those provisions of the ordinances of 1901 which were of 1875 provided was to be learned by earlier school ordinances of the Northwest Territories, under which a complete dual system of schools was Roman Catholic schools under the direction of the Roman Catholic board. Mr. Borden quoted speeches by Liberal members to show that they believed the act of 1875 provided for such a system. Proceeding, Mr. Borden insisted that section sixteen, No. 2, does not in any way perpetuate any system of schools in the new Provinces to be established, but the people of those Provinces could proposed law make any change in their system they see fit, subject to the provision contained in that section that separate schools must these schools. Defeat of Conservative Candidates Baking Would Be in the Best Interests Powder. of the Conservative Party.

Mr. E. W. Thomson, Canadian corespondent of the famous and impartial Boston Transcript, touches on the London and North Oxford bye-elections in a letter written for the information of New Englanders, Mr Thomson has lived many years continuously in the States, as well as Canada, and there are few writers for the press in either country who carry as much authority. Of the school controversy he says: The Canadian Parliament, when it assembled early in January, was thought likely to prorogue after Easter. Its debates are still drooling on, Forty-Four Places Named for at an expense of $28 per minute, because leading worthies of the Orange Order consider the country to be offended by Sir Wilfrid Laurier's proposal to confirm the territorial school system. That system is based on a most reasonable compromise between the secular and the denominational. It secures state inspection, the use of minister at Ottawa, or by a member of state-authorized textbooks, teaching the Opposition, who will have no voice by state-certificated teachers only, and liberty for Protestants and Catholics alike to maintain separate schools, in which religious instruction shall be permitted from 3:30 to 4 p.m. Obviously, no local creed minority will start a Tenders for an accident insurance policy, covering the lives of members of the City Fire Brigade, will be received by the undersigned up to 5 o'clock p.m. on Wednesday, June 28 next. curious stupidity, urged as a reason McIntosh, D. R. O.

for abolishing the separate schools Subdivision No. 2—At Mrs. Reeve's privilege. It may testify to the usefulness of the existing law. Where a creed minority has a legal right to creed minority has a legal right to establish a separate school there, the trustees, the chosen teachers, and the majority parents, are all alike under majority parents, are all alike under a sort of band to take care that the sort of the so a sort of bond to take care that the minority and their children shall be kindly treated. For if the local majority exhibit bigotry to the local minority, it may and probably will take its school rates away from the established school, set up one wherein its children shall be unmolested, and thus divide the educational fund, to the detriment of the original school. How admirably the system works to How admirably the system works to meliorate religious animosities was ilustrated to me some evenings ago by a very well known Canadian Protestant publisher. He had been bred in a school district where Catholics were much in the majority. They controlled the only public school. The Protestant minority received no reason or provocation to establish a separate school. Their children were treated by the Catholic teachers, trustees, children and people with a beautiful consider ation that had, curiously, always remained in his memory as a reason why he law should not recognize nor aid any separate school. He wished children of all creeds to be bred together Who does not? But that desideratum the creed minority to set up a separate school. It is not easy to see any reason why Sir Wilfrid's ministry should be rebuked by any rational constituency. The mere fact that his bills for the new provinces are attacked from one side by Orangemen and from the other by Ultramontane Catholics, indicates the good sense and road; Alex. Milne, D. R. the enemies of the Government to the North Oxford fall under the latter category, and are deliberately intended so to fall, does not everyday business, even the most deadmit of a moment's doubt. To the termined Conservative will acknowllasting shame of those over-eager politicians who engineered the movement, be it said, we have had presented to us in this campaign a spectacle which it is devoutly to be hoped will not be again witnessed in this country by any who read these words.

One readily sees how the present organized attempt to hoodwink and reason. cozen this constituency had its origin. The circumstances of the case were unique. The writs were out for the elections in London and North Oxford. The time was short-too short to admit of a complete investigation and exposure of any cry, no matter how baseless, that might seem calculated to catch the ear of the multitude. The clique of Toronto agitators who have been making most of the din over the Autonomy Bills, and who claim to be the voice of the country, thought they saw an opportunity, and they have dragged the great Conservative party at their heels. Their scheme was to make a desperate fight in both ridings; to make it appear that the act creating the new Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan was an insidious attempt on the part of the Roman Catholic Church to dominate the people of those provinces, and gain an undue advantage at the expense of the Protestant denominations in the matter of education; to appeal to the electors on the ground that their religious liberty was menaced, and in that way to aggrandize themselves and promote their evil design of dividing the country on religious lines.

In furtherance of the scheme it became necessary to represent the North- ority. More than that, its situation west Territories, which as a matter of and its habit of thought kept it ever fact were quite undisturbed by the in close touch with such matters matter, as seething with indignation throughout Canada, and no Protestant at the Autonomy Bill. Accordingly, a perfervid young orator, who has long ago been discounted in his own territory as a mere purveyor of empty words, is imported from Calgary for the purpose of fulminating against the Laurier Administration, and declaiming to this intelligent and well-balanced community of ours the fateful tidings that the great Northwestern Territories are on the eve of revolution because of the proposed passage of the Autonomy Bill.

And now, to add to the sorry spectacle, the Premier of those Territories who, had he really any desire to test the feelings of the residents of Alberta on this question, might readily have done so at any time by opening any one of the seven constituencies of his territory, which are at present vacant but who has carefully refrained from so doing, is dragooned into appearing upon the platform, swallowing all his previously expressed opinions, and joining in the frenzied tirade against the Autonomy Bill.

Where the Witness Stands.

The Montreal Witness, one of the oldest, shrewdest and staunchest defenders of the Protestant faith in Christendom, approves of the educational clauses of the Autonomy Bill, sees no coercion in them, and thinks the bill should be adopted.

The opponents of the bill reply that the Witness is seeking to extend its circulation among the French Catholics. Think of it-the Montreal Witness! "Angels and ministers of grace defend us." Did bigotry and suspicion ever compass a greater flight of imagina-

Standing in Montreal, the gateway of the Province of Quebec, a city with a large Protestant and a larger Catholic population, in a province whose Legislature and whose city and county councils always held a majority of Catholics, the Witness has been for half a century the able, careful, watchful and trusted guardian and exponent of the rights of the Protestant minhas ever hesitated to take its opinion as being as able as honest and as well-informed, as could be had in the country or out of it. But now the opponents of the bill deny the Witness' honesty. This is about the limit.

The Whole Issue.

What is the school question between Hyman and Gray?

Is it between a policy of separate schools and a policy of non-separate schools? Certainly not.

Even Mr. Haultain admits and Mr. Bennett dares not deny that the existing system, including its permissive separate school under state control, is an excellent system. Then why do those who oppose denominational schools support a policy which would

KIND OF SCHOOLS

when he said on Tuesday night in that it was true the system The Northwest separate demanded. school is not a clerical school in any same as the Northwest public school, clearness, the real difference between Following the abolition by the North- section 16, No. 1, and the revised clause west Assembly of their dual board of The Prime Minister said in part: education and the bringing of the separate school under national control, the late Archbishop Tache wrote: "Until the date of the ordinance of 1892, we had never been denied the right to administer our schools, to regulate the programme of studies, to choose the text books, to control the religious instruction, and to authorize the use of the French language. These rights were exercised the Catholic section of the board of education, and strictly speaking they were sufficient to preserve to our school their distinctive character of Catholic schools. Now all this has disappeared. The board of education no longer exists, or its sections. All the schools, public and separate, Catholic and Protestant, are placed by the ordinance of 1892, under the direct control of a Protestant super intendent of education, and a council of public instructors composed of the members of the Government, in which the Catholics have not one single representative. The effect is to de-prive the Catholic separate schools of the character which differentiates them from the public or Protestant schools, and to leave them Catholic schools in name only. Our schools are no longer controlled by the minority, but by the majority, and if the separate schools exist in name they do not exist in fact."

Roman Catholics protested against national control of the separate school, and while Northwest Catholics are quite satisfied with the present system, Quebec Roman Catholics and the church itself still protest. The French Conservative press today assails Laurier for sacrificing the Catholic schools. L'Evenement, of Quebec, says: "No, no, it is not the free denominational schools that Laurier guarantees, it is the neutral schools which are slaves of the state. This is the truth, the cruel truth, the truth un-deniable and manifest. * * * When one has a majority of 70 he does his duty or he falls on the field of honor; he does not need to betray to remain in power.' Mr. Bergeron, also in the House finds no provision in the bills to restore the church school. He said:

"What is the difference between the public and separate schol in the Northwest? Where is the separate school? The separate school may be in a different building, but it is the very same school. It may be separligious school. Put this legislation (the Autonomy Bills) on the statute book, and you prevent forever the establishment of genuine separate schools in the Northwest."

Mr. Bergeron expressed the French section 2 of the Haultain Draft Bill, with the probability under it of successfully demanding the complete clerical separate schools. The Government's section 16 or the education clause was inserted instead, in accordance with the demand of Mr. Sifton and the Northwest Liberals, expressly to provide against the danger of restoration of the church school.

Mr. Oliver's statement on this point made in the Jubilee Rink was in effect exactly the same as Mr. Bergeron's statement above. The bills provide forever against the establishment of the genuine separate school in the new provinces, while on the other hand, Mr. Borden's amendment or the Haultain Draft Bill, or even the present Autonomy Bills-if the special education clause were omitted (because section 2 of the Government bills is the sam€ as section 2 of the Northwest Draft Bill)-would restore the church school The special education clause was the demand of those who champion the principle of state control of the education of every child, Sifton, Greenway, Oliver and the whole western Liberal contingent. They stood on the sound ground that the constitutional principle embodied in the B. N. A. Act as regards education, called for nothing more than the protection of the separate rights enjoyed by minorities at the moment of provincial establishment. These rights in the Northwest do not cover a school under church control, and to provide in the new provincial charters for clerical schools was therefore not required by the con stitution. Local laws, which had been operated during 14 years allowed a minority school under full state control with permission for thirty minutes' religious instruction. Sifton Greenway and Oliver insisted that these laws be specified in the bills, by a spe cial clause as containing the limit of the privilege which minorities may demand in the new provinces. Their wishes were met, and accordingly Al-clerical school-and this point is indisputable-then the bills certainly do not provide for a clerical school in the new provinces. Not only that, but the bills-according to both Mr. Bergeron, who wants the clerical school, and Mr. Oliver, who refused to have it -distinctly provide against Alberta and Saskatchewan ever having the clerical school. Laurier has not done what the constitutional principle embodied in the B. N A. Act required, and what question became a political issue, that the Northwest people as represented by the school was as near perfection as the champions of the national school On Thursday last in the Commons sense, but a national school just the Laurier himself stated with his usual

> "The difference is simply this, that in clause 16, No. 1, the law of 1875 was enacted, giving to the minority suppose the Roman Catholic minority-the control over secular education, as well as the control over religious education, whereas the ne clause enacts the existing law of the Territories, the ordinances of 1901, by which the state has absolute control over the secular part of education, and the people have control simply of the religious part of education from half-past 3 in the afternoon. This is the absolute difference which exists between the old clause and the new clause. I have for my part agreed to the new section 16 and in doing so I know that I have restricted my fellow-religionists in regard to some of the rights which they think they have at this moment I shall explain in due time why agreed to do so. But my duty a present is to state what the difference is, and there it is in a few words. If this law passes, as we think it ought, the Legislature will have full control over the secular part of education, and the people will have full control over the religious part. The Legislature does not attempt to control the religious part of education; but if the 1875 law had re mained in force the Legislature would have surrendered its contro over the secular part as well as over the religious part of education. Now, I think that I have made it very clear what is the difference between section 16 No. 1, and section 16, No.

The motives which have infludo not propose to do so today for this by and with the consent of the counreason—I look at the House before cil cr assembly as the case may be, estant or Roman Catholic separate me and I see it absolutely disorgan—shall pass all necessary ordinances school shall be liable only to assess. merely explain the difference be tween the two sections."

We said a few days ago that the difference in effect between the two clauses was so vital and so apparent reputation by seeking to deny the very palpable difference. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the last man to utter a harsh criticism, likewise told Mr. Borden in the House on Thursday that his contention was unworthy of him. His contention ate in that sense, but it is not a re- is in fact as foolish as it is mendacious. There is no clerical school ir the Territories today; the separate school there is a national school; and the Autonomy Bills are framed to protect the minority privileges that Catholic view. Quebec would prefer exist in that excellent school, neither more nor less. To the Northwest citizen it is the kind of school and the means for sustaining it which is the the matter. important, practical consideration, and he finds both the kind of school and the means provided by the financial clauses of the Autonomy Bills to sustain it highly satisfactory.

Haultain dares not hold his seven He knows that both people and Legislature would approve the bills. He comes instead to London, not in behalf | passed. of the Northwest, but by direction of and in behalf of Mr. Borden, to make a pretense of voicing indignation which he knows does not exist, and to read to London people a Medicine Hat telegram which Medicine Hat's mayor Haultain surely might be better emstrongly favor the bills. Not a Northwest city has uttered a protest against shows the lack of arguments against gary, Prince Albert, Moosejaw and Medicine Hat have each refused to complain against the bills. They want a state school which the bills leave freedom for, and they do not want the clerical school which the bills provide against. London can well afford to permit Northwest people to have what they have asked for, and are obtaining. They say that they desire their present system guaranteed-it is not a separate or dual school system, but a single, national system with a separate school permitted-to leave them free from future agitations for change. Canada as a whole bitterly knows the damage which such agitations bring. The present question and he present Parliamentary session need only be pointed to. the House of Commons as to his views respecting the fwo clauses, but he certainly had not made the statement which I challenged, and which as a matter of fact was entirely incorrect,

To make the matter clear I now present side by side the two sections. Let your readers decide for themselves whether Mr. Borden was correct when he said the two clauses 16 were word for word the same. Separate School Clause, Dominion, Separate School Clause, Northwest

Act, 1875; Section 11, Chapter 49. Ordinances, Section 41, Chapter 29, 1901 "When and so soon as any system | "The minority of the ratepayers in of taxation shall be adopted in any any district, whether Protestant or district or portion of the Northwest Roman Catholic, may establish a sepenced us in agreeing to the change district or portion of the Northwest Roman Catholic, may establish a sep-I shall explain at the proper time. ized. There are few men from the in respect to education; but it shall ment of such rates as they impose upon themselves in respect thereof." As they are most interested in this jority of the ratepayers of any district question, I want to discuss it in their or portion of the Northwest Territories, At the present moment, I or any lesser portion or subdivision plain the difference bemay be known, may establish such schools therein as they may think fit, and make the necessary assessment and collection of rates therefor; and further, that the minority of the ratethat Mr. Borden was doing no credit payers therein, whether Protestant or o his public position, nor to his legal Roman Catholic, may establish separate schools therein, and that, in such latter case, the ratepayers establishing such Protestant or Roman Catholic separate schools shall be liable only to assessments of such rates as they may impose upon themselves in respect. In a matter of this kind words are important. Having said that the two sections are the same, "word for word," Mr. Borden is hardly free to set up an argument as to the extent of a difference, where he alleged there was none at all. But if Mr. Borden can see no difference between the separate school clause of 1875 and the separate school clause of the present Northwest ordinances, I think the public will have no difficulty in seeing that there is a very wide difference. The Northwest ordinances do not contain the clause of 1875, but only a part of it, and that the part which is omitted is of the utmost importance was the opinion of no less an authority than the late Sir John Thompson, who, as Minister of Justice, had to consider

The separate school section of the ordinances was enacted in 1887 and was allowed by the Dominion Government to go into operation. It was reenacted in 1888, in which year it came before Sir John Thompson, then Minister of Justice. Sir John made a report, the substance of which was that the effect of the omission of the first part of the clause was to diminish privileges allowed by the act of 1875; that the ordinance was bye-elections nor meet his Legislature. therefore unconstitutional, and that he would advise its disallowance if he could do so effectively, but as it was only a re-enactment of a previous ordinance which has escaped notice, the time for effective disallowance had

The words of the act of 1875 were carried into clause 16 of the ORIGINAL AUTONOMY BILL, as stated by Mr. Borden, but they were not carried into the AMENDED CLAUSE 16, nor were they carried into the ordinance as stated by Mr. Borden. That which was omitted-so long as the validity of the ordinance was not challenged-undoubtedly modified the provisions of the act of 1875. The schools which were first established in the characterizes as a tissue of lies. Mr. Northwest Territories under the act of 1875, proved to be objectionable to the people of the Territories. The Territorial Legislature, by its later ployed than by trying to defame Medi- ordinances, changed the character of the schools and established the present cine Hat Liberals, whom he well knows system, with its clearly defined limitation of religious exercises. The first system was objectionable to the people of the Northwest, and undoubtedly would be objectionable if applied to them today. The latter system is not the bills. The resort to false telegrams objectionable, but has proved eminently satisfactory to the people, and is so declared by Mr. Haultain. It is the privilege allowed by the present system, the measures. Edmonton, Regina, Cal- and that only, that is confirmed in the bill now before Parliament.

"I go farther, and I say that when that draft bill was prepared, Mr. Haultain, nor any of his colleagues, nor any of the members of the Legislature, nor any of the people of the Territories, who were taking an interest in the matter, ever had any intention of asking for greater freedom in this matter of education than they had been enjoying for the last fourteen years. Dr. Goggin, as I have said, was superintendent of education. He was practically the deputy of Mr. Haultain in the department of education when the draft bill was framed. Russians at Manila Admit That Togo's Attack Was a Surprise.

Manila, June 10.-From the stories told by the Russians who escaped from the sea fight in the Korean Straits it appears that the Japanese completely surprised the Russian fleet. The Russians were steaming peacefully along, teries not manned. The attack came with a suddenness that made the unpreparness of the Russians a glaring mistake that never could be corrected. Two lines of torpedo boats suddenly appeared and encircled the Russian leet. The rapid-fire batteries were turned loose, but with apparently little effect on the Japanese boats. Over the approaching torpedo boats came a hail of ten and thirteen-inch shells from the Japanese war vessels in the at full speed, one division going in a westerly and another in an easterly direction. INLAND WHITE BEAR

A New Species of Bruin Said to Exist in Our Western Forests.

Butte, June 9.-British Columbia has come to the front with a new brand of bear, according to Henry N. Wellington, a Pittsburg man, who passed through Butte en route to the coast, where he is going to spend several months. Mr. Wellington is somewhat of an amateur zoologist and takes a deep interest in matters that occupy the time of the professors of that

"What zoologists term the inland white bear is found in British Columbia," said Mr. Wellington, although the animals was found in a fur ship-ment from Western Canada and this has again aroused the interests of zothe inland white bear before, but none tion of whom have ever seen a live speci-tains, and by many is considered a dwarfed cousin of the grizzly. The thickness of the woolly white fur is one of the marked characteristics which would indicate that the beast had been clothed by nature to live in a cold climate "What has interested me in the animal especially is the fact that so far as is known the only mounted specimen in the world is in the Carnegie Museum, in Pittsburg. It is labeled 'Albino Black Bear,' and not even those in charge of the museum were aware that it was of a new species. I have seen this specimen many times, and I am free to confess that I did not realize that it represented a species of which we had yet to learn.

"The specimen in Pittsburg was secured by Frederick S Webster an expert taxidermist and private collector. He accepted a position in the museum from the Japanese war vessels in the distance. The torpedo boats advanced chased by the institution and in that way the inland white bear came into the possession of the Pittsburg Musbattleships prepared to repel the at-tack. The cruisers manned their port from Western Canada, and the finding of the latest one has led zoologists spite of such difficulties both teams went in to win, and as they were well matched a close and exciting contest took place. Both teams were in good condition, and both know the game, and with normal conditions the spectators would have witnessed an excellent exhibition of football.

There were times when the teams seemed equal; there was a time when London appeared to have the better of it, and there was a time when Clinton seemed to be the stronger. For a part of the first half, when the visitors were playing down-hill, they had a little the better of the game, but when these conditions were reversed.

Six Untruths About Labor Council In One Issue of Gray's Organ

In one article the Free Press on Thursday told six untruths and nearly broke its own record.

This article purported to be a report of the meeting of the Trades and Labor Council, at which William Gray was denounced as an enemy of labor. We print these misstatements categorically:

MISSTATEMENT 1-That President Meaden resigned because he was opposed to the Council taking action against Mr. Gray. Mr. Meaden favored the resolution which condemned the Conservative candidate as the enemy of organized labor.

MISSTATEMENT 2-That the resolution carried by but a small majority. As a matter of fact, 19 out of the 31 members present voted for it. MISSTATEMENT 3-That the meeting was packed with employes of

The Advertiser. There were but two employes of The Advertiser at the meeting. One was the delegate from the Typographical Union, and the other the delegate from the Pressmen's Union, of MISSTATEMENT 4—That Mr. Lou Paladino was present and attempted to pass in three certificates for men whom he wanted to vote for the resolution. Mr.

Paladino was not at the meeting, is not a member of the Trades and Labor Council, and did not present any certificates at the meeting.

MISSTATEMENT 5-That the meeting had been worked up by Mr. Ralph Smith, M. P., and Editor Marks, of the Industrial Banner. Both Mr. Smith and Mr. Marks give this story the lie. MISSTATEMENT 6-That London Typographical Union is against the passing of the resolution against Mr. Gray. In a letter to both papers today, President Ryan and the executive declare in emphatic language that the Typographical Union will take no action.

WIRELESS ON TRAINS

Successful Test Made On the Chicago and Alton System.

Chicago, June 9.—As a further protection to their train service the Chicago and Alton Railway announced today that the company had made all arrangements for the establishment of a wireless telegraph system on all trains running between Chicago and St. Louis, and that eventually the scheme would be extended to the en-the system.

That the wireless telegraph can be used on fast moving trains with entire satisfaction was demonstrated today by the Alton road when measures were sent from Chicago to the officers of the road traveling on a type of the same time.
