W.F. COOKSHUTT SOUNDS VIGOROUS NOTE ON PRESENT ELECTORAL ISSUES

Addressed Mass Meeting of Unionists in Victoria Hall Last Evening—His Candidature Endorsed by Officiated Women's Association of City

A clear cut, ringing pronouncement upon the issues of the war and of the present election, was that delivered in Victoria Hall last night by Mr. W. F. Cookshutt, before a large and enthusiastic audience in which men and women were almost equally represented.

This is the first unionist meeting in the city's history, observed Mr. W. S. Brewster, chairman. In times like this, politics should be forgotten and all should unite to support the Union Government.

The issue in Canada was clearly defined to-day: union government, led by Sir Robert Borden, and the Opposition, led by Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Mr. Cookshutt was the first to come forward and take a stand on the food question in parliament.

Mrs. S. W. Secord President of the Equal Franchise Club, declared that the best women of Canada were recognized by the Government in the War Time Election Act.

No one wants to win the war more than a mother with four daughters, such as I, declared Mrs. Secord.

Time was required to perfect a union of the two parties; Canadians, the speaker feared, were not very good mixers.

Give us time, and we are all right, she declared. But we haven't time now; all we can do is to put aside our personal feelings and reach out with our broadest sympathies.

Mr. Cookshutt had given unstintingly of his means, and his efforts and of his family, and the speaker appealed to all for a sinking of individual wants and the placing of country before party.

Canada was to-day on the eve of her first war-time election, a very undesirable thing, which of necessity entailed a slackening in our war efforts.

Mr. Cookshutt considered it creditable that there had been no political turmoil in Canada during the

TWO CANDIDATES DISPOSED OF

The Expositor last evening contained the announcement that John Harold will be recognized as the Union Government candidate in the North Riding.

Another canard was circulated in Paris last night to the effect that Harry Cookshutt was about to withdraw.

There is absolutely not one word of truth in the assertion. It is a falsehood manufactured out of whole cloth.

Mr. Cookshutt has been canvassing in the constituency for the past three days and has met with a splendid reception on all hands and by all classes.

He is in the field to stay and to run.

Mr. Cookshutt delivered an eloquent appeal for liberal subscriptions to the Victory Loan, and passed on to the general of the War-time Elections Act.

Mr. Cookshutt declared that to him the greatest disappointment of the war had been the attitude of Quebec. The French Canadians of that province, he declared, were not making desirable soldiers.

PREMIER KERENSKY A FUGITIVE; HAS ENDED CAPTURE AT HANDS OF BOLSHEVIKI

—forever, the speaker hoped. The United States had commenced where Canada left off, by enforcing straight away a conscription measure which raised ten million men.

The issue to-day was whether the Military Service Act was to be enforced or not; whether to leave our men overseas in the present present plight, or to send aid to them, and the speaker shuddered at the thought of the result were the union government defeated.

Without taking a pessimistic view of the situation, Mr. Cookshutt considered the outlook grave to-day. The eastern battle lines had been demobilized, Venice, one of the world's fairest cities, was attacked by the advance of the Russian army.

And in the face of all this, declared the speaker, "we still wobble and disagree here among ourselves. Are we going to let the past be forgotten in the failure of the present and future?"

Downfall of Russ Premier Appears Inevitable; His Supporters Cross to Enemy—Heavy Fighting in Petrograd

Petrograd, Nov. 17.—Deserted by most of his officers and virtually ordered to surrender to the Bolsheviks, Premier Kerensky evaded the guards sent for him and has disappeared. General Dulchonia has resumed temporarily the post of commander in chief of the Kerensky forces recently defeated at Tarok-Selo.

General Krasnoff, former commander under Kerensky, and who was arrested with other members of the premier's staff, has been released on the ground that he was only obeying the orders of his superiors.

General Krasnoff's report concerning the disappearance of Kerensky, confirms that he fled under disguise. Premier Kerensky, when told that his officers were against him and that his men were on the point of deserting, agreed to come to Petrograd, but while a guard was being arranged, he dropped out of sight.

At 3 o'clock on the afternoon of November 16 (old style) November 14 (new style), I called at the quarters of the commander-in-chief, General Krasnoff. He appeared nervous and excited.

As Mr. Cookshutt finished speaking, Mr. A. G. Brown inquired why aliens released from internment camps had been used to replace men on the Welland Canal.

"It has never been done, to my knowledge," replied Mr. Cookshutt. "If it is so, it should be reported to the authorities."

"It's a fact," declared Mr. Brown. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem and cheers for Mr. Cookshutt and Mr. Brewster.

By Courier Leased Wire London, Nov. 17.—British light forces to-day engaged German light cruisers off Heligoland, the British Admiralty announced to-day. The German warships retired and the British forces are now chasing them.

A WARNING. Contrary to the by-law governing the disposal of garbage, ashes and other household refuse, many citizens with the approach of winter, are commencing to leave their refuse out for the collectors only once in every two or three weeks, thus disorganizing the collecting system and making those citizens who leave their garbage out regularly every week, suffer as a consequence. Sanitary Inspector William Glover states that this custom is becoming altogether too prevalent and emphasizing the urgency of the citizens leaving their refuse and refuse in a convenient place for the collector, each week, to avoid confusion and loss of time.

NOT A PARTICLE OF DANDRUFF OR A FALLING HAIR

Save your hair! Double its beauty in just a few moments. "Danderine" makes your hair thick, glossy, wavy and beautiful.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair, no difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—you hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance! an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

that Canada's total output is only about 3-1-2 millions. Mr. Stoo spoke on the present speculative element in hog raising, but explained that the food controller was taking steps to regulate the price of feed and to prevent abrupt drops and rises in the price which often required a man to hold stock after it was finished, or sell at a loss, which would eat up profits.

Hog Raising Patriotic He believed that hog raising would continue to be profitable for years, but even at a loss, in view of conditions in Europe, he considered it the patriotic duty of every Canadian farmer to increase pork production to the highest possible point during the coming year. No other source of meat supply would produce in so short a time.

Among those present at the conference, he noticed besides the delegates, Jno. S. McGuire, of Houghton, George Erwin and Samuel Graves, of Townsend, L. C. McConnell, of Windham, John T. Simmons, of Middleton, Austin Dedrich and Walter Foster, of S. Walsingham, and Jos. Gilchrist, of Woodhouse.

The Common People Must Not Steal. John Smith and Hubert Karns, who on Thursday pleaded guilty before Justice East, of the charge of stealing and destroying two colonies of bees from a neighbor, were brought before Judge Boles yesterday for sentence. Karns, an easily returned to his wife and two children on a suspended sentence, with a recommendation that he re-imburse his neighbor for the loss. Smith got two months, as at the same presence, got six months for desertion from the 133rd Battalion.

Both men doubtless learned that to escape prosecution for theft, one should perform a master stroke on a grander scale.

A Couple More Soldiers The list below, like all previous ones, shows men of all grades of physical fitness. Even the medical men who are unfit for any military service, are called to report. Just why this is done, with help scarce, is not clear to them. Others get this grading after reporting, as they have deferred going before the medical board, expecting to be exempted on other grounds than physical unfitness. The exemptions allowed to all others are not permanent. Most of them read, "ill men of your grade are called," or something to that effect, or "so long as you continue to be engaged as a farmer."

Yesterday's results follow: Tribunal 210 131—Smith, John, farmer; allowed. 132—Morton, Erick, farmer; adjourned till 23rd. 133—Scott, Ira A., farmer; allowed. 134—Robins, Earl, R. MAYOR BOWLBY

Continued from Page Ten Bowlby and myself drop out in favor of a younger man," he asked. Objecting to the criticisms of voluntarism, Mr. Robertson recalled what had already been accomplished overseas by our troops.

John Muir, asked what had been done by the government to encourage recruiting. The voluntary system had been fostered only by the common people who stamped the country. But in Quebec, the Conservatives and Liberals had not stood on the same platform. The men had been encouraged to stay at home.

Never had Sir Wilfrid Laurier uttered a disloyal word, and further he would never be associated with a traitor. He thought that Carvell, MacLean and other Liberals who had entered the Union Government, had done so because they were deceived. Hugh Guthrie of Guelph, was an exception, he was a Tory before the Union Government.

Mr. Muir emphatically declared that the Premier was crooked, and he could prove it. "Union government was announced on Oct. 12, and on the following day the Premier had communicated with Harry Cockshut in North Brant and had asked the latter to become a Union candidate. Wasn't that conclusive proof that Borden was crooked? Why sure."

In his own inimitable way, Mr. Muir, in a fatherly and advisory manner, entertained his hearers by anecdotes of Borden's perjury. During the course of his wanderings, he gave an intimate resume of political treachery, and related a supposed dream he had had of how the Premier and Sir Robert Rodgers had formulated the conscription issue. He folded his hands and with a benevolent and horrified manner, deplored that his fellow Liberals could be so easily hoodwinked.

Mr. Muir, in a fatherly and advisory manner, entertained his hearers by anecdotes of Borden's perjury. During the course of his wanderings, he gave an intimate resume of political treachery, and related a supposed dream he had had of how the Premier and Sir Robert Rodgers had formulated the conscription issue. He folded his hands and with a benevolent and horrified manner, deplored that his fellow Liberals could be so easily hoodwinked.

THE SITUATION

There is cause for congratulation that the Italian line still holds notwithstanding battles of intense severity on the Venetian plains. At one point it is said that the Italians have flooded the land. Berlin claims that the town of Cismone, on the Northern front has been taken and this is believed to be correct as the Italians have fallen back at this point to take up stronger positions. Pope Benedict has asked the Teutons to follow international law in respecting the lives and property of civilians and in the protection of women and children, the clergy, hospitals, churches, Bishops' palaces and presbyteries.

The pursuit of the Turks in Palestine still continues. The British are now only a short distance from the important seaport of Jaffa and it is announced that prisoners taken since October 31st, now total nine thousand.

Nothing definite has yet been evolved out of the chaotic conditions of Russia. Unconfirmed reports say that the forces of Kerensky have been defeated outside Petrograd and are falling back on Moscow. The centre of the latter city is said to be in the control of Kerensky followers and the outskirts in the hands of the Bolsheviks.

Canada's Victory Loan is growing apace. One third of $150,000,000 has already been secured and that mark is evidently going to be doubled and perhaps trebled. Roosevelt is to speak in Toronto on November 26th, in aid of the fund.

MAYOR BOWLBY NOMINATED

The Laurier Liberals have had their way in this Riding and Mayor Bowlby has received a nomination. He will carry their standard, but not that of Liberals generally in this constituency, for man after man of them will distinctly refuse to support any such candidate upon any such platform.

Do the men who are supporting Bowlby realize just what their course means?

Do they realize that if Laurier wins Quebec wins?

Do they realize that Laurier, if successful, is pledged to immediately suspend the Military Service Act and thus to leave the brave boys at the front without the aid immediately needed?

Do they realize that a referendum would involve months of precious delay with an insufficiency of men to complete the work of the heroic wounded and killed?

Do they realize that Bourassa is enacting a pledge from each Laurier candidate in Quebec that they abandon any further help in the war?

Do they realize that all this, if endorsed, will mean that Canada will be the first British nation to skulk from the battlefield?

Do they realize that Canadian honor and the cause of Empire and of human liberty are at stake?

Do they realize these things? Apparently not.

But the great bulk of the people do not realize that Mr. W. F. Cocksbutt secures a most emphatic majority on December 17th next.

VICTORIA HALL MEETING.

The meeting in Victoria Hall last evening was characterized by a thorough "win-the-war" tone.

Mr. W. F. Cocksbutt was in excellent form and he very properly described the continuance of Canadian effort in the war as the one great issue of the approaching election. He approached the subject on broad, patriotic lines and his remarks were free from controversial or personal allusions and in keeping with the tragic solemnity of these times.

Quite one of the features of the evening was the speech of Mrs. Secord, who announced amid loud applause, that at a meeting that afternoon of representatives of various women's associations, including Soldiers' Kith and Kin, Mr. Cocksbutt had been unanimously endorsed as candidate. The resolution was appropriately moved by Mrs. W. C. Livingstone, who has had four sons at the front, one having met a hero's death, and accompanied by Mrs. Ballache, whose brave husband, Major Ballache, also gave his life for the cause.

As Mr. Cocksbutt has three sons in khaki, two of them from the inception, his always alert concern in the war has an intensified personal touch. The women have done themselves infinite credit in deciding to endorse the grand cause which he represents and their help will, indeed, be most valuable and far-reaching.

SEE IT SOON. Slightly used upright piano at a reduction at H. J. Smith and Co., See it soon.

Mr. Cocksbutt was born in Brantford on Oct. 17th, 1855, a son of Mr. Ignatius Cocksbutt, a far-seeing man of very exceptional business ability, whose deeds of benevolence are well known and who did more to help in the industrial and mercantile foundation of this city than any other individual. He came to Canada in 1826 and both he and his wife were of English birth.

William was educated in Brantford and Gait, in the latter place by the celebrated Dr. Tassie, under whose tuition so many men of after prominence passed, and he was in business in a mercantile and manufacturing way from early life. In the last named respect he was for some years President of the Cocksbutt Plow Company during its formative period. He is a director of the Brantford Roofing and other companies and has an interest in many local industries whose establishment and upbuilding has meant so much to the community.

Mr. Cocksbutt although frequently asked to do never ran for any municipal office but he has all his life been a leading figure on behalf of measures making for the welfare of this community, and Canada and the Empire at large. As President of the Board of Trade he showed a most progressive spirit and one of his suggestions at that time was the erection of the Bell Memorial. He was throughout President of the Association formed in that regard and the recent notable completion of that tribute with the Governor General and Dr. Bell the inventor and other notables in attendance was particularly an achievement of his own both in the inception and final outcome. As the result Brantford's claim to the title of "Telephone City" is for all time confirmed and assured while the city has an added historical attraction to the many others already possessed by it. Mr. Cocksbutt is also a valued member of the Toronto Board of Trade and he has been elected on the executive of that body for many years. Time and time again also he has been a delegate to the chambers of the Empire and has attended gatherings of that body in Montreal, London, England, Sydney, Australia and other places. As all of them he has been a prominent figure in the enunciation of imperial views, and the Australian papers with one accord declared that he had made the most impressive speech heard at the Sydney assemblage. Like tributes have also been accorded him in other places for his abilities as an orator are generally recognized as exceptional. Still further he has travelled extensively throughout the Empire lecturing on "Empire unity and preferential Trade" and in all cases his utterances have been given great publicity and praise. He is a prominent member of the church of England, a member of the General Synod and also of the Huron Synod at both of which he is a familiar figure. He is also one of the five men who first constituted the Hydro-Electric Commission, the board formed in 1903, consisting of E. W. B. Snider, St. Jacobs, Ont., chairman, P. W. Ellis, Toronto, vice-chairman, Hon. Adam Beck, W. F. Cocksbutt, M.P., and Prof. R. A. Fessenden, Washington, D. C. This committee did all of the original investigating work over a period of nearly two years and submitted a valuable report which formed the basis of the present great system on behalf of the people. His benefactions have been many and continuous and among other things he is chairman of the Laycock Orphanage.

He first became a candidate for Parliamentary honors some thirty years ago against Hon. Mr. Paterson, and made his initial entrance into the Commons in 1904 when he defeated Mr. C. B. Heyd, then member for this constituency. He was defeated in 1908, but re-elected in 1911. During the time of the Laurier regime he was, at the special request of Sir Robert Borden, the Opposition critic of the Customs Department and he filled that duty with marked ability, besides winning an established position as one of the foremost debaters in the House. Although a Conservative politically, Mr. Cocksbutt has never hesitated to criticize his own side when he deemed the occasion to warrant such a course. An illustration of this fact took place in 1915 when during the Parliamentary session of that year he called upon the Borden Administration to take action with regard to food speculation and the control of prices and supplies. He said during that address:— "It may be said that I represent a few manufacturers. I repudiate that before it is said:—I am here by the votes of the workmen of the City of Brantford. I am here to represent the interests of those men and not the miller, or the speculator, or the man who endeavors to corner the food of the people."

The warning which was thus sounded over two years ago was not heeded. On May 3rd of this year, Mr. Cocksbutt, speaking from his place in the House, again took up the matter, and advocated a dictatorial control of food prices. In this regard a despatch from Ottawa said: "Mr. W. F. Cocksbutt, Conservative member for Brantford, broke away from the Government with a proposal for price control, far more radical than any member on the Liberal side ventured to make."

The Courier published his speech in full at the time, and it was in all respects a most notable deliverance. It is never an easy thing for a man to pass criticism upon his own side but the member for Brantford did not hesitate and as the outcome he had the satisfaction of knowing that he had largely helped in the appointment of Hon. Mr. Hanna as Food Controller, Mr. McGrath as Fuel Controller and the selection of Mr. O'Connor to enquire into the profits of the producers.

From the inception of the war, Mr. Cocksbutt has devoted his heart and soul on behalf of the great cause. He is one-third poorer by reason of his war contributions, and has not taken one cent in what are known as "war profits." He has made recruiting speeches in various centres and was the prime factor in the formation of the 125th Brant Battalion, of which he is Honorary Colonel. A deputation from the Brant Recruiting League waited upon him in October of 1915 with the request that he use his influence in that regard, and he acted to such good effect that on Oct. 30 he received the following wire from Sir Sam Hughes, then Minister of Militia:— "Start recruiting a Brant County Battalion to-day if you like—Hughes."

This was done with the result of which all are aware. On top of all this, Mr. Cocksbutt has three sons in khaki, two of them ever since hostilities started, so that it can hardly be seen that his personal interest has served to add still further to the concern which he has always manifested in the welfare of the brave lads volunteering their services on behalf of Canada, the Empire and human liberty.

A man of the highest purpose and proved integrity, with the proudest kind of record both in his private and public life, he is indeed a member of whom any constituency might well feel proud, and this Riding will honor itself as well as him, by again seeing that he goes back to Ottawa as the result of the contest which will take place next month.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

A vote for Bowlby will be a vote for Bourassa.

The women are going to help in the cause of Mr. W. F. Cocksbutt and they will take no light share in his great victory.

Laurier stands for the immediate stopping of sending necessary men to the front under the Military Service Act. Will you by your vote endorse any such poltroon course as that?

The Laurier Liberals have put a man in the field, but that will not pledge the support of hundreds of other Liberals who are for country and Empire above everything.

We sent our brave boys to the front with cheers. Are we going to say that they shall be abandoned there?

Without any question the two Brants will be found in support of Union Government and what that means in this grave and vital crisis.

The people of the north and south ridings are not going to barter themselves for Quebec.

Odd Ends of News. The enumerators are pretty well through calling at homes for the names of the Hanley-Fisher evangelistic party, who will be on the pending elections. All women next of kin to soldiers, who have served or are serving overseas, should avoid future inconvenience by getting in the enumerator for the Ward. The visiting in Wards 3 and 5 has been completed.

Pte. Frank Noon returned from Europe some two or three days since and is stopping with his mother at 91 Talbot street, and he enlisted at Winnipeg with the first contingent and did his bit. On one occasion a shell which penetrated the ground under him, tossed him forty yards through the air. He was among 38,000 men who went up at the front, of whom only 5,000 returned.

Mrs. Leisk, of 35 King street, has not yet had advice in the matter of a rumor that her husband, Pte. Fred Leisk is homebound, though letters received from his chum to that effect have been received.

Leisk enlisted at Toronto, in No. 4 Canadian ammunition sub-park, and was 18 months in France.

Pte. Bert Russell has been reported a casualty—gunshot in thigh. He is the third of three brothers wounded, the first his father and brother-in-law, all left one home on King street, when the 133rd went out. Once before he was completely buried by a shell, and his marvellous escape from suffocation was due to T. H. Bier will (D.V.) speak.

FAMILY RELIGION! WASHANLEY'S TOPIC Crowd of Three Thousand People Heard Evangelist Last Night

The citizens of Brantford are growingly convinced that they have in Dr. Hanley and his entire party, a sane, trustworthy, devout and efficient company of religious workers.

Prof. Fisher, popularly called "Fred," was on the rostrum exactly on the dot, with a full choir of several hundred voices, among whom were many of the city's leading soloists.

The half-hour's song service then began with H. G. Stafford's triumphant melody, "It is Well With My Soul." Soon Prof. Fisher was singing as a solo, in question form, asking "is it well with your soul?"

Then he turned to the leader of the choir, Rev. Mr. Langton, of Paris, prayed for our loved ones, and our city, and that we might witness a genuine revival of true religion.

There were two jobs the most thankless on earth; one was singing in a choir, and being a preacher. The other was being a soloist.

FIRST MOTOR-IZED BATTERY

Oklahoma Captain in Charge of the Most Modern Crew of Fighters.

Doubtless there will be many completely motorized batteries before the present war is ended, but the honor of being first goes to Battery "C," 5th F. A., commanded by Capt. W. H. Capron, and formed at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

A battery consists of four guns with their limbers and six caissons with their limbers, six ammunition trucks, a store truck and a machine shop or repair truck.

The vehicles used are the six trucks, the Holt 45 h.p. Caterpillar tractor and a Dodge Brothers Touring Car.

The entire brigade as proposed by the War Department will be composed of three regiments having a maximum strength of 3685 officers and men.

The adoption of universal motorized equipment is the acknowledged desire of military authorities. The fixed railroad track offers to the enemy an opportunity of delaying operations since it is only necessary to drop a few bombs to put transportation facilities out of commission.

A careful record was kept of the performance of motor vehicles in the service of the government on the Mexican border, and much valuable information was gained.

The work of motorizing field artillery is being pushed ahead in an aggressive manner by the ordnance department at Washington, says the "Timken Magazine."

The knowledge of the best trained regular army officers is being combined with that of automotive engineers generally recognized standard.

WHICH? "This bulk tea is the best I could buy at the price, Mrs. Brown, but I believe you will like Red Rose better. "We use Red Rose at home and like the rich flavor. My wife says it goes further."

Hundreds of grocers are making statements somewhat like this. They have sold Red Rose Tea for many years and have found the quality so good that they use it in their homes.

Most grocers naturally like to make an extra profit on their bulk tea, but they cannot help recommending Red Rose Tea because they know it's worth the price. They know it goes further because it consists chiefly of the teas from Assam in Northern India, the strongest, richest teas grown anywhere in the world.

Red Rose tastes better and goes further. Kept Good by the Sealed Package. T. H. Estabrooks Co., Limited. St. John, Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton.

MAYOR BOWLBY IS LIBERAL CHOICE

Nominated Last Night As Laurier Candidate for the Riding

On a straight Laurier platform, John Wedgewood Bowlby received the nomination for the Brantford riding in the coming Federal elections, at a mass meeting which simultaneously endorsed the Laurier platform, in the Liberal Club rooms last evening. Although prominent members of the Liberal Association of this riding have rallied to the support of the Union win-the-war Government, the Laurier followers are endeavoring to heal the split in the ranks that occurred earlier in the week, and present a united front to support Mayor Bowlby in the coming election.

Six candidates in all were nominated, but all, with the exception of A. O. Secord withdrew, and when a standing vote was taken, the meeting declared unanimously in favor of Brantford's Chief Magistrate, John Wedgewood Bowlby. Others suggested as bearers of the banner of the "new Liberal democracy," that was greatly discussed last night, were C. W. Gurney, George Cook of Oakland, Earl Biggar of Mount Pleasant and John Robertson of Brantford.

Unqualified endorsement of the Laurier platform was given by the meeting almost immediately upon opening, when the following resolution was passed with practically no discussion preceding the vote.

"That this meeting of Liberals of the riding of Brantford do hereby endorse the general policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as contained in his manifesto interpreting the clause regarding the Military Service Act as enunciated by Mr. George Gihbons, the Liberal candidate in London, who is Sir Wilfrid's representative in Western Ontario, as follows: 'I will support the enforcement of the present Military Service Act to the extent of 100,000 men fairly and justly from every province in Canada, with the declaration that all future conscription acts must secure a distinct mandate from the people by way of a referendum before they are put into force.'

Dr. W. D. Wiley, President of the Brantford Liberal Association, acted as chairman, and briefly explained the nature of the meeting. He reported what had been accomplished at the conference between the committee representing the mass meeting of the evening before, and the Liberal executive that had been held yesterday at noon. He announced that the Liberal executive had endorsed Sir Wilfrid Laurier's platform "in toto."

The resolution endorsing Sir Wilfrid's policy was read and put to the vote. It carried unanimously. Mr. Gurney proceeded to explain the resolution after it had passed, and strongly supported the Laurier programme. The Military Service Act had passed Commons and was now law. It would be difficult to repeal it, especially as a new act would have to be put through the Commons, Senate and signed by the Governor General. The latter two stages of passing the necessary new bill would be almost impossible. The speaker produced figures that 94 per cent of exemption claims in Montreal had been allowed and asked what the meeting thought of these figures.

The speaker thought that Liberal democracy was threatened and while there was no more loyal section of the people than the Liberals of Ontario, there was no body of men more resolutely being trampled on. Charges had been made that the Liberals were unloyal, but he inquired if the "flag waving fusion Borden government" displayed more patriotism in conducting "the C.N.R. strike," the actions of Flavelle, the War-time Elections Act, and the work of the "whitewashed Bub Rogers."

SPORTSMEN SUPPORT NEW LOAN.
Tom Watson of Toronto is one of the biggest leaders and authorities on Association Football in Canada. He is seen signing up for his share of Victory Bonds.

thought that this could be averted by electing Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The history of Liberalism had even been one of set leaders introducing reforms, and retiring, being supplanted by others. The members of the new democracy would, by their common sense and brain, solve the problems confronting the nation.

Mr. Biggar objected strenuously to the claims that had been made that Liberals were disloyal. They were quite as willing to serve their country as any class and would even support the Military Service Act were it properly administered. The question was asked if the interpretation given to the M.S.A. in the resolution was that of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. A candidate reading an extract from the opening campaign address of George Gihbons, the Ontario lieutenant of Sir Wilfrid, that satisfied the questioner.

Mr. Robertson. A Liberal of the old school who had followed Liberal premiers since early in his manhood referred to a crisis that had confronted the Liberals in the Old Country. A candidate had been nominated in Wales on the Gladstone platform and he advised a similar programme here. He related how he had been instrumental in connecting Lloyd George to Liberalism when the British premier was a young man. He declared the manner in which the battle of Liberalism had been fought by old men already "played out." He advised that younger men be chosen for the arduous tasks of fighting the battle of Liberalism.

He criticized the restriction that had been made on free speech and when those opposed to election deplored the bitterness that would ensue it was the first opportunity that had been given the common people to freely discuss the situation of to-day. Laurier was the only man who could evolve a united Canada. What could the country do without Laurier? Nothing, he said, not war, war and there was only one man at present under whom we could have a united Canada, and that man was Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The discussion was then closed and a vote taken on the resolution which carried unanimously. F. Spoot, of the London Advertiser from his experience among the homes of Western Ontario could truthfully say that the fight was going toward Laurier.

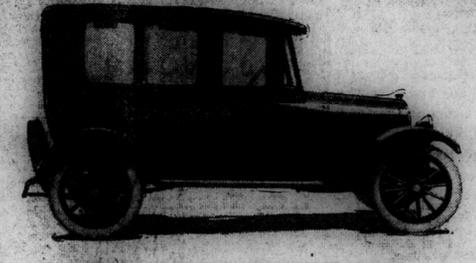

"Is it like the Expositor? not fit for a Brit to read?" demanded a speaker from the hall. This pertinent query went unanswered.

The meeting was then declared open to receive nominations and six names were brought before the meeting. The nominations were: Mayor Bowlby—by J. E. Plawes; George Cook—by John Muir; A. O. Secord—by P. Grimes; C. W. Gurney—by Frank Watson; Earl Biggar—by Wm. Kilgour; John Robertson—by J. E. Grant-ham.

Mayor Bowlby was apparently the popular candidate judging from the applause that greeted his appearance. Chairman Dr. Wiley allowed Mr. Bowlby to peruse the resolution passed. The latter after glancing at the paper turned to the crowd and said: "Gentlemen, I am glad to see such a number of old war horses of the Liberal party. The resolution reaffirms my position. I am standing for constitutional government and no further conscription after the first 100,000 without a referendum of the people. Mayor Bowlby read an editorial from the current issue of the Expositor and severely criticized the opinion thus expressed. He could not concur with the opinions of the writer without proving untrue to all the tradition of Liberalism. He declared that the Union government was not truly a union because the Liberals were not given

If you see any of our friends, who have left us, tell them to come back or soon they will have no place to go." He declared that the greatest political avalanches of the history of Canada would sweep over the land.

C. W. Gurney was glad to witness the turn that affairs had taken in South Brant. He was glad that the Liberals had broken away from the old machine. There was no such thing as "independence" in politics to-day. A man must either be a follower of Borden or Laurier. They could not be hoodwinked by this Union government. He indulged in a cordial eulogy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and thought that he would redeem Canada to Liberalism.

"We have a man eighty years young to-day, and I take great pleasure in standing behind his Worship, Mayor Bowlby," he concluded.

Mr. Cook Returns. The real inside story of politics in Canada was revealed by Mr. Cook. Mr. Cook stated that a deep-dyed, villainous plot had been laid by the Borden government, by sowing sedition in Quebec.

Earl Biggar announced that he would withdraw his name. He appealed to all who would support democracy and free speech, to unite, there was all to gain and nothing to lose.

Mr. Robertson was of the opinion that it was about time that the people of the city returned a farmer, and that others like his old friend Mr. Bowlby, shouldn't risk their valuable lives in a winter campaign.

HOW MUCH MONEY DOES BRANTFORD LOSE ANNUALLY?

If the Appropriate Losses of a Village are $46,817, Our Annual Loss Must Be Enormous

It is difficult to gauge the amount of money that is flowing into the coffers of the big mail order houses from the smaller cities and small towns and villages. The mail order houses are not giving out any information along this line, but their steady and in many cases spectacular growth indicates that the amount is enormous.

Weekly papers in some of the smaller towns where the mail order evil is prevalent have been arriving at the amount, approximately, by finding out the sum that was sent out of the town in money orders. The figures have, in many cases, proved startling to the merchants. While realizing that they were losing considerable trade to the mail order houses, they never imagined that it reached the proportions that investigation of money orders, in many cases, has disclosed.

For instance, The Standard, of Havelock, Ont., a village of 1,500 population one hundred miles east of Toronto, found that in one year $54,119 had been sent out of town in money orders alone. The amount for orders paid in the same time was only $7,302, leaving the enormous difference of $46,817. Commenting on these figures, The Standard said:

"Is there not a moral in these striking figures for our citizens and our merchants?"

"How much better off Havelock would be if that $46,817 were spent here, and how much are our merchants to blame for not having more of it spent here?"

"Get together, good citizens, and co-operate more than you have been in the habit of doing. Let next year's figures show a tremendous decrease in the out-of-town figures, and let the merchants wake up to the value of better values and the absolute necessity of letting people know about them through their advertisements, instead of whining about poor times and complaining of people buying out of town."

"Also, and this is the most important, let the merchants praise what they preach. The Standard preaches week by week, to 'Buy at home,' and lots of our merchants applaud our sentiments and then turn around and buy their other needs, not in their own business—where? The very place those they complain about—out of town."

The figures in this particular case were astounding to the merchants, and The Courier has reason to believe that the figures of Brantford's annual losses would be equally astounding if the actual amount could be learned.

Commenting on the statement made above, The Retail Druggist says:

"Just imagine what the sum for the whole Dominion must be, when this large amount is going out of one village of 1,500 population."

"It certainly drives home the necessity for dealers putting forth their best efforts to stem the flow of money to the large centres, that should be spent in the local stores. One means towards this end is that suggested above—a strong, persistent effort to impress on local buyers the value and service that the local dealer can give them, and one of the best ways of doing this is through advertising space in the local papers, which will be found willing at all times to assist the merchants by appealing to its readers to spend their money in their home town."

"One thing stands out prominently, however, and that is the need of some effort to induce people in these towns to buy at home—no matter what the means employed may be."

WHAT THE CLERKS CAN DO

Clerks in the retail stores can do much—very much—to foster the Buy-in-Brantford campaign.

To many of them this may sound strange—may cause them to wonder—and yet the fact remains that almost equally with their employers they are in a position to make shopping in Brantford a real and lasting pleasure. And as a clerk you can do much to make every customer a repeater. But there are many small things which go to make up the ideal clerk—and until you can answer "yes" truthfully to your own self-examination on the following questions, you have not as yet attained to any degree of bigness as a clerk and your success in your sphere of usefulness will be of a very ordinary nature. Some of the questions would be as follows:

First—Have I a good general knowledge of the goods I am supposed to sell.

Second—Can I, if a customer is in doubt, so advise and recommend as to cause no feeling of criticism.

Third—Do I believe, as Montgomery Ward insisted, that the customer is never wrong.

Fourth—Can I be as pleasant and kind to the customer of apparent small means and necessarily small purchasing power, as to the rich customer with big purchasing power?

Fifth—Am I, at all times, pleasant and obliging?

Sixth—Do I realize that every customer is entitled to service, and that the customer is the party who confers the favor on the store—not the store to the customer?

Seventh—Am I willing, as a clerk, to accept my true position as a servant to the buying public?

Eighth—Do I give the best that is in me both to my employer and to his customers.

Until you can answer every one of these questions in the affirmative, you have not qualified for the position of clerk, and your entire services are of a negative quality in that they do harm rather than good.

Customers—many of them—are hard to satisfy, and in these days of service and efficiency the difficulty will not decrease. The store in which these features are most prominent will be the store to reap the harvest of big business.

"Headed The Wrong Way"

Every dollar spent outside of Brantford for goods which could be purchased in the city, is a dollar headed the wrong way. Let us steer our ship clear of dangerous channels of business. Let us keep our dollars in Brantford and we will know that we are fair to Brantford and ourselves. Think this Buy-at-Home proposition over. If we all buy in Brantford it means a larger, better and more prosperous Brantford—and more prosperous citizens. Buy in Brantford.

The Business Men Endorse Campaign

With only a few exceptions Brantford's business men endorse the Buy-at-Home Campaign. This means that each of these merchants, needing what another merchant sells, will make his or her purchase locally. This is as it should be. The pledge to buy at home is easily kept, and will, without doubt, be of much value to the city.

YOU WILL SERVE YOUR OWN INTERESTS BEST BY TRADING AT HOME

Here Are Some Reasons Why This Should Be So—Read Them and Say if They are Not Convincing

First—"Quality" should always be the chief consideration. For no matter how cheap an article may be, if "quality" is lacking it proves more expensive in the end. The home merchant, whose stocks are constantly on exhibit, must be certain that "quality" is omnipresent.

Second—Should the mail order customer read and study the advertisements of home merchants with the same degree of enthusiasm that is used in turning the catalogue pages, he would find therein better values and could buy any article with the knowledge that if it wasn't right the home merchant would make it right.

Third—The home merchant employs as buyers men and women who are thoroughly trained to judge style, quality and values.

Fourth—The immense fortunes amassed by mail order houses that are successful, indicate that either inferior quality is being sold at some price or that same quality is being sold at a higher price than is being asked by the home merchant.

Fifth—The home merchant buys from local mills materials that are needed to build his store, a local architect designs the building, home mechanics erect it, home salespeople fill the positions behind the counters, in the office, on the delivery wagons. Each dollar that he pays to these people is a spoke in the wheel of home commerce and that wheel is weakened just one spoke when a dollar is sent to a mail order house in a distant city. If every spoke in the wheel should be withdrawn, what would you do for a living?

Sixth—The home merchant pays taxes and license to help employ officers to shield you and yours from harm; firemen to protect your dwellings from flames; teachers to educate your children, and inspectors who guard your food and water supplies against contamination that your loved ones may not become easy prey to the ravages of disease. Could it continue to do this if you were to send all of your dollars to mail order houses rather than spend them with him?

Seventh—When conditions are bad and you haven't the "cash" to send to the mail order house or spend with the home merchant either, to whom do you apply for credit? The mail order house is forgotten. Then if the home merchant assists you when in need, isn't it to your gain and profit to spend your money with him and keep him prosperous, that he may be able to render like assistance in the future?

Eighth—When there are churches to be built, a charity enterprise to be fostered, an impoverished family to be succored, hungry, unemployed men, women and children to be fed—is it the dollars that are sent to mail order houses that respond to home appeals for help? Or is it the dollars that swing the pendulum of the clock from one home citizen to another.

$75,000,000 Turnover

The T. Eaton Co. had a business turnover in 1915 of 75 million dollars and under the new taxation law of companies by the Dominion Government contributed about 2 million dollars to the Federal Exchequer. The government takes 25 per cent. of all the profits over 10 per cent., so it will be seen the T. Eaton Co. made tremendous profits. The T. Eaton Co. sends many parcels by express and parcel post into different urban municipalities in competition with merchants who pay a business tax to the general expenses in country towns and villages, and if the T. Eaton Co. contributed a share of its abnormal profits to the places in which it did business taxation would be lighter in every urban centre in this Province.

BRANTFORD citizens are out striving to build:

A BUSINESS that will never know completion but that will advance continually to meet advancing conditions.

A BUSINESS to develop manufacturing, retail establishments, public buildings, churches, schools, colleges, places of amusement, parks, etc., to a notable degree.

A BUSINESS to create a personality that will be known for its strength and hospitality and friendliness.

A BUSINESS to strive always to secure the good will, praise, honor and satisfaction of every visitor that comes within its borders.

THIS SHOULD BE THE AIM to be impressed more and more indelibly as the days go by upon the character of the city itself. This will be impressed more and more effectively as the city grows greater in strength and understanding.

PATRIOTIC RALLY FOR VICTORY LOAN

Parade Will Precede Monday Night's Meeting at Tabernacle

Complete arrangements have been made for Monday night's patriotic rally, which is being gotten up by the Brantford Rotary club, who have charge of the publicity for the Victory War Loan. At the meeting, no attempt will be made to sell bonds, but advantage is merely being taken of the Victory War Loan Campaign to have a genuine "hurrah" rally of patriotic nature, something that we haven't had in Brantford for a long time. The committee in charge has been fortunate in securing as a chief speaker, Lt.-Col. J. G. Wright, commanding officer of the 169th battalion, who has just returned from the front. Lt.-Col. Wright has been with the Canadians in their big engagements, and he has a thrilling story to tell. He is an excellent speaker. In addition, short addresses will be given by other speakers, and an excellent musical program has been made, including Miss Hurley, Miss Marjorie Jones and Mr. Roy Griffin, Canada's silver voiced tenor, who has been singing at the Brant theatre this week. There will also be one moving picture film shown. Everything is absolutely free, and as it will give Brantfordites a chance to have a good cheer, there should be a large turnout. The meeting will be at the Tabernacle building on Brant Avenue, there being no revival services on Monday evenings.

Preceding the meeting, there will be a grand patriotic parade, which will start from the Grand Trunk station at 7.45, and will include the Buffin Rifles band, Great War Veterans, and A. R. club, Victory Loan committee and organization, British tank model, citizens in automobiles, etc. The route of the parade will be via Market St. to Dalhousie, around the market square, by Dalhousie and George, up Colborne to Brant Ave., and thence to the Tabernacle. This will be a real patriotic night. Let everybody turn out.

The Villains Are Revealed
The sight of the pearls makes Tuan and Sayers reveal their true selves. They want the jewels, and they do not want Bruce Chalmers and the girl to interfere. The result is that the little party is split in half, each group battling against the other.

Chalmers and Lella are besieged in their hut by Sayers and Tuan. But a terrific tornado puts the attackers to flight. That night, learning that his enemies have retired to their ship, Bruce swims to the brig and sinks the small boat, in an effort to keep the two men from returning to shore. But a diver's suit enables Sayers to raise the skiff the next day, and he goes once more ashore.

RHUMATISM CURED

In the days of our fathers and grandfathers, rheumatism was thought to be the unavoidable penalty of middle life and old age. Almost every elderly person had rheumatism, as well as many young people. Medical science did not understand the trouble—did not know that it was rooted in the blood. It was thought that rheumatism was the mere effect of exposure to cold and damp, and it was treated with liniments and hot applications, which sometimes gave temporary relief, but did not cure the trouble. In those days there were thousands of rheumatic cripples. Now medical science understands that rheumatism is a disease of the blood, and that with good rich, red blood, any man or woman of any age can defy rheumatism, can be cured by killing the poison in the blood which causes it. There are many elderly people who have never felt a twinge of rheumatism, and many who have conquered it by simply keeping their blood rich and pure. The blood making, blood-enriching qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is becoming every year more widely known, and it is the more general use of these pills that has robbed rheumatism of its terrors. At the first sign of poor blood which is shown by loss of appetite, palpitations, dull skin and dim eyes, protect yourself against the further ravages of disease by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have cured thousands of people—if you give them a fair trial they will not disappoint you.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE JEW AND THE TURK

(By H. B. C. Pollard)

The imitation by the Turks in Palestine of the methods of the Germans in Belgium, has raised a hornet's nest about the ears of the Central Powers. All Jewish elements throughout the world have been prompt in protest, the pressure has been exerted upon Vienna and Berlin with a view to the coercion of Stamboul. The Turkish attitude in connection with the charges has been purely that of established Young Turk policy as this was formulated, under German guidance, when Turkey entered the war. They have simply denied the charges and then ordered their official propagandists in Switzerland and elsewhere to deny that there has been either oppression or massacre; good in the alternative, to excuse "firm measures" on the curious ground that these measures were only taken because the very existence of the Turk was threatened, and, finally to point out that such happenings as occurred were no worse than Great Britain's treatment of the Greek people.

The first of these two arguments are mutually destructive, and the second is in addition rather a confession of the straits in which the Turkish Empire now finds itself. The third—the idea of paralleling Turkish and British methods of dealing with perfectly dissimilar cases—is amusingly and naively Young Turkish.

The Turks have dealt in their own way with the Armenians and with the Syrians, and the world has shuddered with horror at the recitals of the fate which befell these unhappy people. From the reliable accounts that are to hand from Palestine and from facts gathered from the Turkish official proclamations, there is little doubt that the Turks fully intended to treat the Jews of Palestine in exactly the same manner.

In the old days of peace Turkish official massacres of subject races were usually arranged to look like mob risings generated by deep seated religious and racial differences. In war, however, this shallow excuse is abandoned, and the wretched subject race, be it Armenian, Syrian or Jew, is dealt with by the Turks under the pretext of military necessity.

The Jewish inhabitants of Gaza were forced to leave the town at an hour's notice. They were not permitted to take away their goods, or even sufficient food to carry them the journey to Jerusalem; and their houses, shops, and all their goods were turned over to be looted by the soldiery, even before the refugees had started on their terrible journey.

The Turk claims that his soldiery did not oppress the Jews and that there was no wholesale massacre, but it is impossible to sack a town (and Gaza was sacked as thoroughly as was ever a medieval city) without killing and crimes of violence; and if you take all the possessions a people have, it certainly cannot be claimed that you do not oppress them.

Definite and very terrible accounts have been received of what befell the women, for they, as was natural, secreted about their persons what jewelry they possessed.

So bad was the plight of the refugees that the inhabitants of Jerusalem begged to be allowed to suffer all the horrors that might befall in war rather than to be forced to "evacuate" under the "protection" of the Turkish and German forces. The desperation that presented this pitiful petition to the infamous Jemal Pasha was promptly deported and none of its members have been heard of since.

The Turks are extremely ingenious in the methods they devise to make some sort of a case out against the Jews which will serve as a pretext for the campaign of extermination. A typical example is their method of attacking the Jew in his most vulnerable point—his fondness for money. Turkish paper money has only an exchange value of about a third of actual currency but the Turks have ordered the paper and the coin to stand at the same value. If there still continues to be a difference in the rate of exchange—not local difference be it noted, but if the Turkish paper coin anywhere are not accepted at face value—this is charged as a crime against the Jews, who will be accused of hoarding money, and automatically become liable to deportation and the usual massacre or death by starvation en route.

The whole policy of the Young Turk party has been an infamous record of robbery and massacre. During their comparatively short period of power the Ottoman Empire has lost enormous stretches of territory and the only programme of development to which they have committed themselves seems to have been the idea of exterminating rather than assimilating all non Turkish races within their borders.

This programme was tragically effective in the case of the Armenian nation, and has been almost as successful against the Greeks and Syrians, and is now in progress against the Jews. The Arabs, by proclaiming their independence and becoming a Sultanate under the protection of the Allies, have alone been successful in resisting the Turanian policy.

The Greeks died at the hands of those Turks who now suggest that the British treatment of Greeks in Greece and Egypt was on a par with Turkish policy toward the Jews.

The one outstanding fact that is clear in the awful drama of the last days of the decadent Ottoman Empire is that German representations to the Young Turkish Government have little effect unless they come from the German military party who encourage and support such horrors as the Armenian extermination. The doctrine of the German staff explicitly expressed in their war book, and the national tastes and tendencies of the Turk, are at one when it comes to a question of slaughter of innocent people of a subject race. Belgium, Armenia, and Palestine are one in suffering; a point that may well commend itself to any Jew who still has sympathy or dealings with anybody or anything that is German.

BOYS OVERSEAS SHOULD BE ENVIED

A Boon to Train in Beautiful Old Land, Says Major Jordan

The following exceedingly interesting letter was written by Major Jordan, of the 125th Battalion, England, Oct. 1, 1917.

I have often thought that if the people of Brantford could see this lovely country—at its best—they would envy, rather than sympathize with, the boys in training here. We go for long route marches every week and it is usually arranged to avoid, as far as possible, covering the same area on successive marches. The other day we left camp at 8 a.m. The sun was shining through a misty haze. The trees and almost tropical vegetation were wet and glistening with heavy dew. It was a day for pleasure canoe trips, picnics, nutting expeditions and healthy lazy times were brought rather too vividly to memory.

As we turned down a lane hedged in by blackberry bushes, holly and wild roses, protected from the sun by large oak and elm trees planted in fascinating irregularity, we marvelled at the splendid roads, which appeared to be used so little, and were so far from any village or town. We passed quaint old timbered cottages with their great chimneys. Roses climbed up the sides and over the red tiled roofs and were intermingled with ivy, Virginia creeper and clematis. Every cottage, no matter how humble, had a flower bed nestled around it, and as we wound in and out, up and down we could not help saying, "I wish the people at home could see this lovely land."

Leaving this road we passed several thatched cottages and farther on found a sparkling stream bubbling along beside the road. It was clear and cool and found its way along with unrestricted irregularity, winding in and out until it passed under a bridge—as old as the stream it seemed—and lost itself in a tangle of shrubs and grasses. We crossed the bridge and marched on. There was not the usual amount of singing or talking. Everybody was too busy enjoying the changing scenes. Trees covered with ivy, oaks large and wide-spreading, meadows of wonderful green with patches of yellow buttercups scattered about, quaintest of cottages in nests of marvellous flowers and other things even more beautiful, kept us so interested that we hardly realized that the time to halt for rest and dinner had come.

In a few minutes army were piled and the men lined up for dinner. We were hungry after our walk of twelve miles and knew that there were six or seven miles yet to go in order to return to camp. Hot meals—prepared in our field kitchens—were quickly served, and in a half hour everyone was resting in anticipation of the afternoon march. After an hour or so the bugle call awakened us and the order to "fall in" was given. The commanding officer was able in an incredibly short time to give the command "Advance in column of route from the right." Everyone stepped out cheerfully with a whistle or a song, anticipating a further interesting tramp through Surrey lanes. We passed the old "Crown Inn." Over five hundred years ago it was a church and since then it has catered to the bodily needs of an endless and varied multitude of travellers.

When I think of scenes and incidents which that old place has witnessed, I find my brain in a jumble through which appear old-fashioned costumes, wigs and powder, knights of the road, coachmen and horses, in fact, so much, that cannot attempt to describe the feeling of being in touch with those "good old days." I wonder if the spirits of those people still gathered round on winter nights to enjoy a bit of gossip.

Passing through one of the large estates, where beech trees, with a spread of a hundred feet or more, shelter great herds of deer, we watch, hoping to see the sprightly things caught unawares, and fly lightly over the soft springy sod, to the protection of the woods beyond.

As the head of the column reaches the crest of the old wooden bridge over the stream, there sure enough, we see a hundred deer or more standing for a moment with heads erect and then they're off. The does with the fawns lead the way, while the bucks follow in rear to protect them. In a moment every thing is again as still as a picture and we march on. We see the old camp and are soon "home." What a place to call "home," but the country, after all, is home to nearly all of us in one generation or another, and so we "carry on" for the sake of that good old land.

OLD-TIME REMEDY MAKES PURE BLOOD

Hood's Sarsaparilla has been and still is the people's medicine because of its reliable character and its wonderful success in purifying, enriching and revitalizing the blood and relieving the common diseases and ailments—scrofula, catarrh, rheumatism, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, that tired feeling, general debility.

Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies and enriches the blood, and in so doing renders the human system the greatest service possible. This medicine has been tested for years. It is perfectly pure, clean and absolutely safe, as well as of peculiar and unequalled medicinal merit.

Get Hood's, and get it now from any drug store.

LA BELLE FRANCE

(By Lt. F. J. Sleath)

The soldier no longer speaks of "la belle France" for the France he sees is no longer beautiful. Districts remote from the battlefront retain all their ancient charm. But the soldier does not see these districts. That is why he no longer uses the term, or if he does so, only to express a memory, a haunting memory which tugs sadly at his heart-strings.

Virgil in one of the books of the Aeneid describes the country surrounding the entrance to Hades. Even a foreign tongue cannot hide from the unskilled reader the desolation of the picture which he paints. Perhaps a reincarnation of Virgil will use the old modes of expression to depict the country behind the lines in France. For to-day from Switzerland to the sea there stretches a broad belt of country, where no life is to be seen, where scarce a brick remains standing on another, where the blackened, useless fields stink with foulness and stagnation.

France has fought three bloody years of war. The flower of her manhood has been all that while at grips with death; through more than a thousand days. Yet her soldiers fight on with ever greater élan. For they remember the fairness of their country, and know how that fairness foundering the entrance to Hades. Even a foreign tongue cannot hide from the unskilled reader the desolation of the picture which he paints. Perhaps a reincarnation of Virgil will use the old modes of expression to depict the country behind the lines in France. For to-day from Switzerland to the sea there stretches a broad belt of country, where no life is to be seen, where scarce a brick remains standing on another, where the blackened, useless fields stink with foulness and stagnation.

The pilot is about to fly his machine to France. The aeroplane stands at one end of the spacious aerodrome enclosure, its front wings shaking gently in the morning breeze, its wires, new and rustproof, glistening in the sun. The huge engine, carefully "stream-lined" is humming rhythmically. Everything is in order. The critical eye cannot detect a flaw.

He climbs up to his seat and loads his gun. "All clear," he shouts. The machine darts forward over the smooth ground. With a sudden upward movement it glides into the air, and goes on climbing steadily until to the onlookers it has become a mere speck in the sky.

The pilot looks down on the earth beneath, on the network of roads, on the regular patchwork of fields and meadows with farms and villages appearing on them like so many pieces of a checker board. There is sorrow in these homes, the sorrow of war; but the beauty of the landscape is unmarred. Above is the peerless blue sky, beneath the rich gold and green of the earth, with a forward setting of shimmering silver from the channel and North Sea. Never did the light of the sun unfold a more pleasing picture.

"La belle Angletree," murmurs the pilot.

x x x

Behind him is the Channel, beneath him the land of France. The fields are still green and gold, the houses and villages still as trim and distinct; but the roads are whiter and more dusty, showing the passage of a greater traffic. Along these roads curving threads of khaki can be seen emerging from, or entering, the white tent masses or the darker hutment blurs, which denote the presence of depots and training camps. The country is swarming with troops; it is a nursery of war.

Not far distant is war's finishing school. The pilot can see it even now. Each moment of his flight brings the view nearer. Gone is the green and the gold of the fields. The rich coloring has merged into the dull brown and grey of a skeleton, trampled land. Even the threads of khaki have disappeared. It is a stygian waste of broken homesteads and erupted subsoil; a country of the dead, whose only movement is the flash of heavy artillery, whose only sound is the roar of battle movement.

And "La Belle France" was once its name.

Thirty years of preparation for war by the Kaiser created that waste of land within the borders of France. The system of government, of which he is the head, enabled him to direct the energies of his people to whatever end he willed as it gave him the power to use the mighty engine of destruction which they had forged, whenever he thought the moment opportune. It is significant of the nature of the struggle that against him are arrayed all the great democracies of the world. While he retains his power, every country of the world is liable to have the battlefront desert planted within its borders, even as it is in France to-day. Until his armed absolutism is broken, until democracy has triumphed, war will go on.

TERRACE HILL

(From Our Own Correspondent).
Mr. Frank Piper, of Grandview, returned home from Red Deer, Alta., this week, after spending some time on his brother-in-law's farm. He reports wonderful crops of wheat.

Mr. W. T. Settle, of Walls avenue, has secured a position in Toronto and will remove there shortly. Extensive improvements on Dundas street have been carried out during the past fortnight. The hill has been cut down and graded, a cement sidewalk laid and electric lights erected. We hope all this means preparations for the street car line.

Mrs. Chapman, of Burlington, has been renewing acquaintances with her old friends in Grandview the past week. She has been the guest of Mrs. Geo. Mackay, St. George street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Alderson were in Hamilton over Sunday, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Scruton. Miss Evelyn Mackay, who has been in the hospital, suffering from typhoid fever, was able to return home this week.

Lloyd Fisher, who has been ill with pneumonia, is now recovering. We are glad to welcome home again one of our returned soldiers in the person of Sergeant Miller of Dundas street. Wounded at the front, the authorities sent him home to Canada to recuperate. He gave a very interesting address before the members of the Epworth League of St. Andrew Street Church a few evenings ago.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE STAGE AND SCREEN

"WHO IS NUMBER ONE?" week at the Grand starting with Monday's night performance, and will first serial ever produced by Paramount, has been booked by Manager Monte of the Brant Theatre, and the first episode of this serial, "Who is Number One?" was ten months in the making, and in every detail reaches the Paramount standard. It has been as carefully constructed as the finest feature picture and is overflowing with beautiful scenes as well as smashing action and baffling mystery.

"THE MAN FROM PAINTED POST" "The Man From Painted Post," coming to the Brant Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the show leader of the plains acted very respectfully, him, in a dignified distance. This feeling lasted just as long as it took the popular actor to get into his Western outfit, mount his horse and ride out on the prairie for a wild ride across the country.

"CUNNING AT THE GRAND" Cunning the Miracle Man, who with tons of scenery and electrical effects, will open his engagement at the Grand Opera House, Monday, November 19th, comes direct here with his wonderful new show from the larger cities of Canada, and his performance here will be presented at the Grand Opera House in Toronto, where Cunning will play a two weeks' engagement after leaving here. At each performance Cunning will present his famous Simla Seance, and will answer any question that is put to him with propriety.

"THE BIRD OF PARADISE" "The Bird of Paradise," Richard Walton Tuller's exotic drama will make its first appearance at the Grand Opera House Thursday, Nov. 22nd. This piece is referred to as "the play of a woman's soul," and has its setting in the Hawaiian Islands. Against this background of unique beauty is lived, rather than acted, a powerful story of two women and their influence upon the lives of the men who love them. One, with the piousness of the young Hawaiian, vows that she will wed her husband and keep him "by the charm of lips and arms." The other, the show leader, says: "I will keep and hold him by the power of the mind." The girls live and love and pay the price of life and love. Then each seeks the other and says: "I was wrong. My way has failed. Teach me your way, to win and keep a man's love."

Every woman knows, and every home woman will admit that this is the earthy things. She will learn if she sees "The Bird of Paradise." Miss Cleite Seuder, as Luana, Oliver Morosco's nineteen year old leading woman John Warner as Dr. Wilson, John Waller as the beachcomber, and Helen Carey, as Diana, the American girl, are the principal characters, assisted by a lengthy cast including a quartet of Hawaiian singers and players, whose music gives atmosphere to this compelling play.

"SUNSHINE ALLEY" A story of peculiar interest to animal lovers is the new Goldwyn's feature "Sunshine Alley," starring Mae Marsh, to be shown, at the Brant Theatre the last of next week.

Nell Harbost, so the story goes, is the granddaughter of an old man who keeps a bird and an antique shop in a poor quarter of a great city. Her greatest pride is in a beautiful bullfinch, and for that reason her grandfather refuses to sell the bird when a millionaire offers to make for it my Morris, a millionaire. Morris makes the offer largely because his automobile has injured the old man and he wants to make him some compensation.

When Nell learns this and realizes that they have not money enough to pay for doctor and medicines, she calls Ned Morris, the handsome young millionaire, and tells him he may have the bird at the price offered. The sale is made; but when the bird is brought to the Morris mansion it refuses to sing. Thereupon Nell goes to the mansion too, to restore its voice. She is welcomed by Ned, who has fallen in love with her.

In the meantime, Nell's brother, Carlo, persuaded by an evil companion that Morris has wronged his grandfather in not making real compensation, goes to the Morris home to rob it. He starts a burglar alarm while taking the jewels of Mrs. Morris, and Nell hides him. When he eventually escapes with the jewels, Nell follows to recover them only to be suspected of the crime.

Police come soon after to the little bird store in search of Nell and catch her with the jewels in her possession. She was just about to telephone the Morrises that the jewels were safe, but now it is too late. A thrilling finish is developed from this situation, and all ends happily, but not until a number of interesting adjustments have been made.

"MY IRISH CINDERELLA" "My Irish Cinderella" is the title of the new four act comedy drama which will be seen at the Grand Opera House Saturday, November 17th, matinee and night.

It is said to be entirely different from the Irish plays that have been seen in recent years. It tells the story of a little Irish girl, Peggy McNeil, and her adventures in this country and abroad. It has a good, clean interesting story and the characters are all human and real. It sparkles with true Celtic wit, and there is no caricature of the Irish race, as is so often seen in so-called Irish plays. At the opening of the play Peggy is found as a drudge in a parlorhouse. She has been given a story book of Cinderella, and while she is reading it a strange train of circumstances begin which finally lands Peggy in England, as the heiress of the Earl of Lonsdale. Adventures now happen to Peggy in rapid succession. She falls in love with a young American aviator, serving in the cause of the Allies. She finds that to be rich is not always to be happy. At one moment the audience laughs with her and the next minute it cries with her.

Miss Daisy Carleton, in her action of the title role, presents a character drawing which is perfect. The beauty of the rich Irish dialect is carefully brought out, and Miss Carleton is a charming and delightful little coleen. She is remarkably clever dancer, and during the action of the play has several song hits.

A splendid supporting company adds to the interest of the play and the beautiful scenic production is promised by the management.

THE TROUBLE BUSTER

Michela Libelt (Vivian Martin) and her father, Franz (James Neill) arrive in America from distant Roumania. Franz, however, unable to secure employment as a potter designer, is taken ill and soon dies, leaving Michela alone in the world. "Blackie" Moyle (Paul Willis) a young wife of a newsboy, befriends the lonely child and offers her the protection of his own piano box home after Michela has rushed in a panic from the house to escape the woman from an orphan's home. "Blackie" has made this home with his dog, Spunk, in an empty piano box in the rear of a deserted factory. Michela decides that her curls are a nuisance and with Blackie's assistance cuts them off, secures an old suit of boy's clothing, and changes her name to "Mike."

In their spare moments, when not selling papers, the two youngsters sit in the piano box and make statuettes out of some modelling clay given Blackie by an artist. Tip Morgan, a young crook, discovers that Mike is a girl, and lures her into a room where Blackie finds them. In the fight that follows, Blackie is struck on the head with a bottle and loses the sight of both eyes.

While he is in the hospital, Mike sees an advertisement of an art exhibit and believing that the twenty-five cents admission entitles her to exhibit her wares, takes two little statuettes that she and Blackie have made and places them on display.

A peculiar little character she has named "The Trouble Buster." An art dealer with a commercial eye sees in it the same possibilities of popular success as the "Billiken" or "Kewpie," and when Mike is asked as to the ownership, she gives the credit for the successful one to Blackie.

The latter is at once made a social pet and his fortune assured, for the little "Trouble Busters" prove extremely popular. He is taken to a famous hospital in France where his sight is restored.

In the meantime Mike is recognized by one of the orphan asylum patrons and flees in terror from the art exhibit. She resumes her girl's clothing and secures a position in a distant part of the country in a large country estate. There she is found again by the crook, Tip Morgan, who threatens to tell that she is the real designer of "The Trouble Buster" unless she gives him money. Mike has rescued the old piano box and now has it for a play-house in the garden of her new home. In the meantime Blackie has recovered and starts out to find Mike. He tells everyone that it was Mike who designed "The Trouble Buster." He finally locates her just as she is being again blackmailed by Tip. Blackie drives the crook away, and when Michela asks him what he came back for, he draws her close to him, answering, "For the love of Mike." At the Rex Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

These Men Are Asking Questions!

They go "over the top" with brave hearts to face a horde of science-trained beasts.

They are fighting for honor, for liberty, for home. They have no regrets, but they are asking questions. And the questions are directed at you, the safe, comfortable resident of Brantford.

What are you doing to back these men up? Are you making any sacrifice? Are you worthy to have men work, suffer and perhaps die for you?

You are not now asked to give. You are asked merely to SAVE and SAVE and SAVE, to lend the money that you save to the Government that these men may be reinforced and furnished with the necessary arms, equipment and food.

Every cent of the money obtained from Victory Bonds will be spent in Canada and will keep Canadian industries busy and prosperous.

You will get good interest on your money. You will be a richer and a better man or woman in the days to come.

But now you must save. You must do without things. You must spend less and save more, and you must buy Victory Bonds up to the limit of your resources.

Can you answer the questions the men at the front are asking?

"Shall We be More Tender With Our Dollars Than With the Lives of Our Sons?"

THIS WAR that infests the earth has called your husband or your son, your brother or your friend to go and fight the Hun. You were willing that he should go. You gallantly said good-bye to the being most precious to you, perhaps, in all the world.

Now your Country asks you to lend of your means.

"Shall we be more tender with our dollars than with the lives of our sons?" is the pertinent question someone has asked.

Can it be that you would give your men folk, and yet withhold your money?

And, remember, it is only a question of lending, not of losing—of merely investing any spare money you have—investing it in Canadian Government Bonds, which will yield you interest at the high rate of 5 1-2 per cent., and afford you the security of the taxing power of the whole Dominion.

Consider, too, how closely this great Victory Loan—Canada's Fourth War Loan—affects the welfare of the soldier who belongs to you. The Government requires the money to cloth, feed equip and maintain our Army overseas. That is one need to which the Loan will be applied.

Another need: Great Britain wants lumber, metals, food, munitions and other equipment of war. Canada wants Britain's

You, the Average Woman, can help your Country, help the Canadian soldiers in France, by buying a Bond of the Victory Loan. That money you have saved—that dividend which has just come in—that cheque you got on your birthday—that little "nest-egg" you have accumulated—why not invest it patriotically, profitably and securely.

THE FARM WOMAN

What Kind of Woman, Then, is This Worker in the Fields? She is of all Classes; She May be the Fore-Runner of a National Movement.

(By J. Hastings Turner) To us veterans of the war have become common places. Looking back to the ideas of three years ago is like turning up an old volume of "Punch" or diving into some of the first numbers of the "Spectator." For this generation was all born in 1914. From that date, at least, our manners and customs underwent so radical a change that it is really unprofitable to go further back to trace the genesis of present-day social phenomenon. As for our women, they it is true, were already showing signs before the war, of dissatisfaction with the limitations imposed on them as a legacy from times when women were regarded as pictures whose only business it was to provide their own background.

This attitude, the loss of which is doubtless still regretted by many romantics, with very limited conception of the meaning of Romance, could scarcely be expected to survive the wave of vigorous reaction which followed the systematized prudery of the Victorians. What was beginning to stir, before the war, as a gentle zephyr is now in full blast. It has not been necessary to fight for the fruition of that movement, owing to the entire revolution in public thought which has grown from August 4th, 1914. For now that is done without remark by women in the fields and on the farms which even four years ago would have brought a storm of letters from "Mother-of-Ten," "Pater-familias" and "Octogenarian."

What kind of woman then is this worker in the fields? She is of all classes. She is, of necessity, young—for the work is not for old bones or tired muscles. She is not afraid of a hard day, nor yet (mirabile dictu) of a dirty clay. This is indeed progress. Our women, more than any of us had been driven towards artificiality of all kinds. Absurd prejudice had decreased and should be only half educated and should be expected (save the mark) from the realities of life. But it is impossible to be artificial on the land. The life is a natural life—the fatigue is a healthy fatigue. Now can women who work day by day near this primitive natural life be kept in ignorance of life's realities?

From the work of fruit picking and hay making, of dairy work and poultry keeping, in which even four years ago women could take a part, they have passed now to all the multifarious activities of the farms. There is nothing which they have not attempted and little at which they have not succeeded. They have boldly set their hands to the hardest and dirtiest work, from ploughing and carting to the care of cattle and horses. We began by wondering if they could manage a hoe; we end by seeing them manage a three horse plough. These women have learnt what is meant by the call of the soil. Will they come back? If they came, will they be content? Will they be content to return to the cramped atmosphere of small streets to the little interests and little artifices of suburban life, they who have worked in the fields in all weathers?

Possibly one of the results of this war, with its universal juggling with the habits of the people, will be a growing distrust of the rich for the cities; a suspicion that it is possible perhaps to sharpen our wits at the expense of our sense of proportion. Perhaps the time has arrived to put the brake on what we thought was progress, and have a look round. At least it is not unreasonable to suppose that some of these women will be off with the old love and will not return from their farms. Some such permanent change is foreshadowed in the Government prospectus, which after the usual clauses about equipment and pay, finishes with an intimation that facilities will be granted to those who, after the war, would care to try a hand at running their own farms in the colonies. They would go out equipped less like a stranger to a strange land. Certain it is that, often from what one may call the byways of a great movement, big results have come. If the women pioneers of the land to-day are the beginning of a bigger realization of the importance of the countryside in the general scheme of things and the fallacy of the belief that all real force for progress lies in the cities, they will have helped a great movement. The results of this experiment on the farms will be well worth watching. A straw shows which way the wind blows—and every farmer carries a straw in his mouth.

NATIONAL SAFETY LEAGUE IN ENGLAND Patriots Band Together to Set U. S. Example for Food Economy

London, Nov. 17.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—England must husband her food supply if her people expect America to economize in food for their sakes, is the plea of a league of National Safety, which soon will be launched from the headquarters of the Director-General of National Economy. Members of the League will be advised that the people of the United States cannot be expected to save food for the benefit of England unless they are convinced that the British people are in earnest in adhering to a food ration. "Visitors returning to America from here should have no reason to report anything approaching scenes of luxury or extravagance," is the warning issued to members of the league.

The members are urged to observe the following rules: Fresh meat to be served only once a day. No second helpings. Roast meat to be avoided as much as possible; it is wasteful. Bread with the mid-day meal only if specially asked for. One slice less a day to be eaten. One "Potato day" a week, to be as nearly as possible a breadless day. No butter with bread and jam. Never more than one egg per head at any meal. No early morning cup of tea. The open sugar bowl at table to be abolished. The league will make a special appeal to those whose wages, or incomes have been increased by the war.

Patriotism and Profit

BY HON. W. S. FIELDING

Artemus Ward wrote of valuable service rendered by his uncle during the civil war. The old man had taken a contract for supplies to the army. "He served his suffering country—and he made a nice thing out of it." The capitalist would seem to suggest that his relative kept his eye chiefly on the making of the "nice thing." Patriotism and profit are not necessarily conflicting things. Excessive profits in war time are, of course, not to be approved. But a fair and reasonable profit is at all times legitimate. In the campaign for the Victory Loan, an opportunity is afforded to bring the elements of patriotism and profit into happy relation. Patriotism will be exhibited in a subscription to the loan. The subscriber for a bond can have the comforting thought that he is rendering valuable help to the Empire's cause by contributing his means to replenish the war chest. He can combine patriotism with profit, for he will receive a liberal rate of interest—practically 5 1/2 per cent. There is no other investment of high class that affords greater return to the lender. For the man of moderate means desiring to invest his savings "safely" is the proper rule. He cannot afford to speculate. He cannot afford to take the risk that is inevitably involved in some really good investments that produce a large return. A liberal interest yield is desirable. An absolute life safe security is of paramount importance. Both these qualities are found in the new Victory Loan. The Dominion bonds are a security of the highest class. The rate of interest which they yield is remarkably generous. There should be a hearty response from ocean to ocean to the present appeal for money. The bonds are issued in small denominations in order that the mass of the people may be able to participate in the lending scheme. Let all who can do so respond to the call by buying one or more of the new bonds.

DOESN'T COST MUCH TO TRY IT ANYWAY

Tells how to take soreness from a corn and lift it right out. Hospital records show that every time you cut a corn you invite lockjaw or blood poison, which is needless, says a Cincinnati authority, who tells you that a quarter ounce of a drug called Freezone can be obtained at little cost from the drug store, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus. You simply apply a few drops of this on a tender, aching corn and the soreness is instantly relieved. Shortly the entire corn can be lifted out, root and all, without pain. This drug is sticky, but dries at once and is claimed to just shrivel up any corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. If your wife wears high heels she will be glad to know of this.

CHAPTER XIII.

Fourteen days later found Ralph in the metropolis of the Pacific. During the interim he had made the fifteen hundred miles swing around the country as laid out by David Cranston, except that instead of leaving the transcontinental train at Yewcroft and heading north for Port Edward, he had come through to the coast. Here he meant to indulge himself in buying the gift for Nahnya.

He had likewise supplies to lay in for the journey back to her. All the days and nights of the way out he had little to do but plan the details of the return trip. By this time all the meager details of the published maps of that country were transferred to his brain.

Ralph's first act in town was to visit the government assay office. His dust amounted to close on two thousand dollars. Thereafter in all his peregrinations through the streets a pair of sharp eyes followed his every movement.

When Ralph made purchases in a store the eyes affected to be examining goods at a near-by counter; when he ate a meal in a restaurant the eyes watched him over the top of a menu card from the table behind; when he returned to the railway station and bought a ticket for Yewcroft and a berth on next day's train the eyes next in line bought the same kind of ticket and booked a berth in the same car.

Not until they had satisfied themselves that Ralph was safe in his hotel room for the night did the eyes relax their watch on him.

They looked for a taxicab. These eyes were what is known as mouse-color, which is not the color of any breed of mouse, but a kind of yellowish gray. They were fixed in the head of a little, nervous man with a sickly complexion of a lighter yellowish gray, and mouse colored hair that stuck out in different directions, and a mustache to match with drooping ends ragged from being shaved.

He had himself carried in the taxicab to an imposing residence in the west end of town.

The name that he sent in was JOHN STACK.

After a certain wait the owner of the residence received him in his library. This was a captain of industry, rosy with fat living and nonchalant with money.

"Well, Stack, what do you want at this time of night?" he said with good-natured insolence.

Stack's obsequiousness supplied the complement to his insolence. His smile was painfully ingratiating. "I flushed a good lead to-day," he said, with a queer imitation of the other's offhand air.

"Heard that before," said the financier, attending to his nails.

"But I never started anything like this."

"What is it?"

"I've been watching the assay office," Stack said eagerly. "It was my own idea. We all know there's plenty of gold waiting to be found up North. Well, I haven't got the money to spend staking prospectors, and in bribing and wheedling the miners. So I watch the assay office. Everything that comes out is bound to go there."

"Well, what then?" asked the financier.

"No one knows the game better than me!" Stack continued, with a little red spot in either sickly cheek. "I'm acquainted with all the known mines and diggings. I know all the old-timers in the field, and all the agents here in town."

"To-day a new man came in with a sweet little bag of dust."

"A youngster of twenty-five with the tan of high latitudes still on his skin. He was green, didn't know where to go with his dust. It was in a moose-skin bag, Indian made—nearly two thousand. He hasn't a friend here. I haven't let him out of my sight!"

"Suppose he has something good up there. How do you expect to get in on it? What do you want me to do?"

"Stake me to five hundred so I can follow him back to his claim," said Stack breathlessly.

"To his relief the other man did not flout him. "How do you know he's going back?" he asked.

"He bought a folding canvas boat," said Stack eagerly, a rifle, a revolver, and a shelter-lent. He took ticket and berth to Yewcroft on to-morrow's train."

"H-m! What did he do with the two thousand?"

"Spent the whole of it on a necklace, an emerald pendant, the finest stone in town."

"A woman in the case, eh? Ain't you afraid to risk your skin among these rough guys?"

"He's a nice, decent young fellow," said Stack. "I'll make up to him. We'll be good friends before we get to Fort Edward."

"What did you come to me for?" demanded the man of money with a steely look.

The little man cringed and fawned. "You and me has turned more than one trick together," he said in a scared and silky voice. "I been useful to you in the past. Now I got a chance to help myself. I thought maybe—"

Ralph that any one in town had any interest in his affairs.

It is doubtful if, during the whole of the two days he spent there, he ever looked behind him. Not until he took his place in the stage at Yewcroft and stood up his fellow-passengers did he observe the small, mouse-colored man with the insinuating smile.

Ralph was not particularly impressed in his favor, but he had to have some one to talk to on the four-days' trip to Lecky's Creek. Of the other passengers—a promoter and his flamboyant lady, another splendidly attired lady travelling alone, a boastful tenderfoot, and an alcoholic miner—none was at all to his taste.

At the first stopping-house the two gravitated naturally together.

Stack made it easy to make friends. Ralph, overjoyed to be clear of the city and to have his face at last turned north, where his heart was, was suffering for the lack of some one to unburden himself to. When the stage went on Stack secured the place next to him.

"Fine country!" he said.

"It opened the flood-gates."

"Fine!" cried Ralph. "It's God's own country! And the farther you get from the cities the finer it becomes! The air is purer and the people are honest! Up in the woods a man faces facts. How any young fellow with blood in his veins can be content to mess around in cities beats me!"

Stack encouraged him to talk himself out. Ralph's enthusiasm was more general. Stack, reflecting that he had plenty of time, made no attempt to draw him. During the first day he avoided all reference to what he wanted to know.

On the second day Ralph began to squirm and flidget on his seat. "Lord, what a tedious trip!" he complained. "You sit here till you lose the use of your limbs! Give me a canoe!"

"You've made this trip before," said Stack carelessly.

"I came in for the first at the beginning of May," Ralph said.

Stack thought: "Two thousand dollars in two months! What a strike!" Aloud he said: "I suppose you're going to Fort Edward like the rest of us."

"That's my headquarters," said Ralph.

Stack talked wisely about the real estate business in Fort Edward in which he designed to interest himself.

"Better leave it alone," said Ralph indifferently. "It's rotten!"

Stack insisted on the advantages of the city that was to be.

Ralph listened with growing impatience. "What do you want to make another city for?" he demanded. "Aren't there enough cities fouling the streams?"

Stack shrugged deprecatingly and murmured something about "progress."

"Progress be hanged!" said Ralph rudely. "We're progressing in the wrong direction!"

"I should like to see a bit of the real thing myself," said Stack, by and by, "but I don't suppose an inexperienced man like me could get about. If I could get a good guide?"

Ralph did not rise to the cast. "Plenty of guides," he said carelessly.

"What is the best way to go beyond Fort Edward?" said Stack.

"There are three main routes," said Ralph; "up the Boardman to the Stukely valley; straight north over the hills to the Campbell Lake country; or east up the Campbell River."

"What's the lake country like?" asked Stack.

"Only know it by hearsay," said Ralph. "Principally rum."

"One hears in town about the diggings in the Stukely valley. I suppose it's pretty well worked out by now."

"I don't know," said Ralph carelessly.

"How does a man get up the Campbell River?" asked Stack.

In spite of himself a thrilled tone crept into Ralph's voice.

"There's a little steamboat runs up to Gisborne portage now and then," he said. "And beyond that if any one is willing to pay."

Slight as the change was, in Ralph's voice it did not escape Stack's attentive ear. "Gisborne portage?" he said carelessly. "What is it a portage to?"

"Over to Hat Lake," said Ralph with shining eyes.

"A-ha!" thought Stack. "I'm getting warm!" He immediately changed the subject, and avoided it during the rest of the day.

On the next day he led the subject by imperceptible degrees around to the subject of maps of the country. Ralph, who had procured every map he could lay his hands on, had plenty to say on this.

HUNS HAD IT SOFT

New York, Nov. 16.—Police inspectors in making their new census of alien enemies along New York's water front have discovered, it was learned to-day, that a much larger number of aliens than general supposed are holding responsible positions in the barred zone. One official is quoted as saying that "a startling state of affairs" has been revealed. Numerous flagrant violations of barred zone regulations have been discovered. It was said, Police Commissioner Woods was expected to act upon the reports of his inspectors during the day.

The following letter was written by Pte. John Matthews to his mother. John was well-known and his many friends will be glad to hear from him:
France, Oct. 21, 1917.
Dear Mother, I will try and in these few lines write you a few things as it has been such a long time since I wrote to you last. I trust I can write you often, but this, but since I wrote you the last letter we have been so busy. I had paper and envelopes when I was up in the lines I could have written you there, and then posted it when I got out again. Since I wrote you last I have been doing my little bit up in the lines again. All the time it was very quiet, although Fritz threw some shells and so did we. But we were none the worse for that. I had the best of health, and all the time I felt as if I could eat a Fritz for a breakfast. There are many things that displease a fellow and provoke a fellow, but it's not always up in the lines. The trenches are not so muddy for the tramping they get, and for this time of year. For me I would almost just leave for my father's home, but I had to get the same. As soon as I got out of the lines and settled down to billets I started to clean up equipments and brass, and that is what I've been doing up till today, and this is the first chance I've had to write. To get equipments adjusted properly and cleaned up to perfection is no pinch. One of the generals is just coming and has a look at the boys. If you watch the news in the papers you will keep in touch with the Canucks all right. Well, I am again back into nature's owl, where everything isn't quite so warlike. As it is autumn and we have already had a few frosts which has made this part of France another color. Everything is as scenic as ever. As the spring turned into summer and summer into autumn it has made its changes of interest. When I first came here it was snow and rain and disagreeable sloppy, muddy, etc. Then spring came along with its grand sunshine and turned everything green, and made living a little more pleasant. Then summer came along with its vegetables and grains and fruits just growing nicely. Then autumn comes along, turning the leaves to many different colors. Harvest is in, and fruits to eat and things are still lovely. Perhaps when I am in France for a year or more I'll be talking like the rest of the boys, who are fed up on being over here so long, and want to get home. Well, so do I, too. But I count this yet one of the greatest privileges of my life. I can hardly say I like it, because no one likes it, but as war is war, and we have to put up with it till war is no more, and the best we can do is to cheer up, as anything else will not make things better. This last time up in the line we had fine weather,

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

November 15, Echo Place Women's Institute held its monthly meeting. After the usual opening by president Mrs. J. J. Burke, Miss Marjorie Davidson presided at the piano while the Institute Ode was sung. Mrs. Billinger read the Institute motto in a very impressive manner. Miss Oldham very feelingly sang "When the Boys come Home." Capt. Cornelius secretary of War Veterans Association in our city gave a very interesting address. The sight of the industrious Echo ladies knitting recalled to his mind the industry and patriotism of the ladies of the old lands, where he told us the ladies knit while the ministers in the pulpit lay down the law.
He described the unprotected state of the men in trench warfare where no roof protects them from the rain which seemed to be busy most of the time. He pointed out the need for socks when the boys were four days and nights without their shoes off standing in mud and water yet in spite of all the rain and hail of bullets and fear of death the men do not grumble, no one is down hearted, nor one imagines his is a hard lot, they know they are all alike, and they joke and sing and laugh and are an example to the civilians who grumble over nothing.
Captain Cornelius tells us that when a hospital train comes in at Charing Cross station a great crowd meet it, and though the auto ambulances make a procession two miles long so deep is the love and so great the respect paid to our wounded boys that every man stands with head uncovered all the last man is passed. Each van may contain four or six boys and the ladies toss flowers into the vans as they move slowly along. The Captain cannot speak highly enough of the Red Cross nurses, who are indefatigable in their efforts to help the wounded. He says it is marvellous how adept a soldier becomes in rendering first aid to a wounded comrade. He says no one knows who has not been wounded and nerves unstrung, the soothing effects of a cigarette, and anyone one saying they are unnecessary is simply ignorant of conditions at the front.
A large corrugated iron building behind the trenches is used on Sunday for church services, week days for concerts and the talent found there among the mud covered soldiers is amazing. He says it is an inspiration to hear thirty thousand men sing "God Save the King" and "Past their choice of hymns being "Fight the Good Fight," "Jesus Lover of My Soul."
The Captain tells us that in Edinburgh every day is a fog day, and every day yields six thousand dollars and more to the cause.
One little band of school children raised six thousand dollars and thus were able to keep twelve beds in Red Cross hospitals in France.
In Canada the people are buying automobiles in England they are providing beds for their soldiers.
He says, men enlist because their mothers have taught them to love honor more than life and country more than ease. Captain spoke briefly of the aims of the Soldiers home, its chief aim being to provide comfort for the homeless boys who return from the penitents and the sick Brantford people have so generously contributed that the home here is pronounced the best equipped in Canada. At the close of the Captain's talk the school children who were asked by the president to enjoy the talk from one who had been there and judging by the attention given enjoyed it, joined with the ladies in a hearty vote of thanks to the Captain for his splendid address.
The programme closed with a pleasing piano solo by Miss Marjory Handson.
It was decided at the business meeting to keep the Red Cross box open till January. At the December meeting Dec. 20th the delegates' report will be heard.

but it had been very rainy, it rained right up till we got to the trenches then it quit, and we had fine weather till we got out. Then it rained again and rained hard, too. Well, mother, I am still enjoying good health and God's blessing every day. I count it a great blessing to have had such favor when we were up in the line. I still continue in prayer and can rejoice in God's services. As to-day is Sunday we had a splendid battalion service. The chaplain gave us a good message. I trust all at home are well. I got Lily's letters, one saying a parcel was coming, the other with Joe's picture in it. He's the same Joe, isn't he? I wish he was here. He'd make a Hun's hair stand, wouldn't he? I hope that parcel has good luck; when it comes I will let you know. I have had no Stars lately.

He says, men enlist because their mothers have taught them to love honor more than life and country more than ease. Captain spoke briefly of the aims of the Soldiers home, its chief aim being to provide comfort for the homeless boys who return from the penitents and the sick Brantford people have so generously contributed that the home here is pronounced the best equipped in Canada. At the close of the Captain's talk the school children who were asked by the president to enjoy the talk from one who had been there and judging by the attention given enjoyed it, joined with the ladies in a hearty vote of thanks to the Captain for his splendid address.
The programme closed with a pleasing piano solo by Miss Marjory Handson.
It was decided at the business meeting to keep the Red Cross box open till January. At the December meeting Dec. 20th the delegates' report will be heard.
