Select Poetry,

By the River.

Only the low wind wailing
Among the leafless trees;
Only the sunset paling;
Only the grey clouds sailing
Before the western breeze.

The girl beside the river,
With strained ear and tired eye,
Nor saw the crimson quiver,
Nor heard the willows shiver,
As the low wind swept by.

For sight and sense were roaming
Across the barren moor;
Oh, was he never coming,
Through the dull Autumn gloaming, As in the days of yore?

Oh, bright blue eyes that glistened,
Oh, happy blush that rose,
Oh, foolish heart that listened,
To the faithless heart that christened
His love the "wife he chose!"

How oft he turned on leaving For yet another kiss!
How he soothed the girlish grieving,
And swore that no deceiving
Should ever cloud their bliss!

He left when summer sunlight
Was full upon the stream,
He made his truth her one light,
And in the autumn dim light,
She faced her broken dream.

She knew her idol shaken,
She knew her trust was gone,
What hope dead faith can waken?
Betrayed, forgot, forsaken,
The woman stood—alone.

Hushed was the bitter weeping,
As o'er her closed the night;
When dawn on dark was creeping,
The morning breeze was sweeping,
Where broad, and pure, and white,

The lilies swayed to cover
The fair pale face beneath;
Where, pain and passion over,
Freed from a faithless lover,
Sorrow lay hushed in death.

The Beauty and Sublimity of Nature.

AN ORATION, BY E. W. H.

What soul is there so phlegmatic as not to awake in willing response, and to be led in sweet captivity, in the contemplation of the sublime and beautiful in Nature's fairy creation?
The very first discovery of beauty spreads delight through all the faculties of the mind!

Beauty is an all-pervading presence.
It unfolds in the numberless flowers of the spring. "It waves in the branches of the trees, and in every green blade of grass. It haunts the depths of the earth and sea, and gleams out in the hues of the shell and of the precious stone. And not only these minute objects, but the ocean, the mountains, the clouds, the heavens, the starry jewels of immensity, the orient and occident god of light—all overflow with beauty. The universe is its temple; a holy God is its author; and universal mankind its ardent admirer.

"Full many a glorious morning have I seen
Flatter the mountain-top with sorran eye,
Kissing with golden face the meadows green, Gilding pale streams with heavenly alchamy."

In the temple of Beauty, every grassy meadow is an open book; every painted flower has a lesson upon its leaves; every murmuring streamlet has a soft and silvery accent; every whispering wind has a tongue of thrilling eloquence. The opening of the dewy rose-bud; the chanting of the forest choir; the falling of the autumn leaf; the sparkling of the snowy crystals; the gushing of the falling star; the shining of the solar fire; a thousand forms above, beneath, behind, before, reveal to our enraptured gaze the sublime beauties of Nature's fairy land.

"The mountains and the hills break forth into singing, and all the trees of the field clap their hands for very joy."
Well might blind Milton lament his privation.

"Thus with the year—
Seasons return, but not to me returns Day, or the sweet approach of even or noon,
Or sight of vernal bloom, or summers rose,
Or flocks, or herds, or human face divine."

With what profound delight and all-absorbing attention we listen to Nature's most lofty and impassioned strains of harmony. Her music is like the holy verses of an angel choir, coming amidst the discordant sounds of earth to charm away her fears and to inspire with new-born hope, gently breathing on our souls Heaven's peace and benediction.

"It comes o'er my ear like the sweet sound
That breathes upon a bank of violets, Stealing and giving odor."

He who formed the ear to hear, has He not made us capable of understanding the music that surrounds us? He who made the eye to see, has He not also made the earth beautiful to behold? O, yes!

Fair Nature is lavish of her gifts,—
"Full many a gem of purest ray serene
The dark unfathomed caves of ocean bear;
Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desert air."

Above and beyond us tower the snow-capped mountains in majestic solitude—sublime monuments of beauty!
Around us stand erect the stately trees, save where yonder weeping willow bends its lowly head to drink of the refreshing stream—majestic ornaments of beauty! Beneath us are those vine-clad gardens laden with a thousand variegated blossoms—perfect form of beauty! See here, lying in scattered profusion at our feet, are these tiny leaves and tinted flowers peeping their rain-bow-colored heads from beneath the green carpet of the earth—minute perfections of beauty! See yonder cloud and mist wreath and vapor veil —glorious reflections of beauty! Here is a sparkling diamond, and there a massive rock, and yonder stretches the distant ocean with its pebbly shore and sandy beach—O, are not all unfathomable mines of beauty?

But the highest, most perfect, most attractive form of beauty in Nature, is the human frame,—this wonderful mechanism of a delicate construction—especially when it is made beautiful by religion, virtue, intelligence, culture, and education! What a piece of work is man! How noble his reason! How infinite his faculties! in form and moving, how express and admirable! in action, how like an angel! in apprehension how like a god, the beauty of the world, transcending the most perfect of all other forms of beauty.

When from out the darkness of chaos the Divine Creator spoke the fairy earth into being, he pronounced it to be "good"; but when man stood in the presence of his creator, reflecting in his person the divine glory and image, then God pronounced his creation to be "VERY good," and Nature confirms the testimony of revelation that man is born in the image of Deity.

I stood one morning in early summer in the fairy-like glen of Eccles-bourne, in the south of England. It is a most romantic spot, down which the merry streamlet leaps and frolics among the moss-grown boulders that lie scattered in its bed. The rocks on either side rise to a great height and are diversified and crowned with emerald foliage. The opening of the extremity of the glen reveals in hazy blue the distant ocean, and a narrow strip of sky overhead stretches away in the direction of the sea.

I thought, surely nothing can be more exquisitely beautiful than this!
But while I stood there, enchanted by the romantic scenery, and inhaling the exhilarating sweetness of the morning air, suddenly a thick cloud which had screened the sun passed gently away and the dazzling rays of sunlight came darting down into the shady glen, scattering its bright sunbeams in every direction, painting afresh the charming wild flowers whose pretty heads peeped from out the crevices of the rock, till the colors all glowed again with dazzling beauty. The streamlet sparkled and threw its silvery spray around the rocks like a thousand careless diamonds, and the purple and golden crags shone out like precious jewels from their setting of emerald foliage!

How often, as I lean upon some rustic, wooden bridge, and meditatively watch the murmuring streamlet flowing gently on and on, or as, perchance, with measured step and slow, I wend my footsteps through this classic town of Wolfville, fond memory will recall that fairy scene in all its intense and beautiful reality. It seemed to me that in less than the twinkling of an eye, the ever-varying rays of the sun transfigured that charming spot into something transcending the powers of human language to describe, and paralysing the most imaginative faculties of the human intellect to conceive.

Again I thought, ah! surely nothing on earth can surpass this for simple beauty of scenery; but whilst I mused there came a gentle voice whispering into the ear of my inner consciousness,—"The highest development of beauty in Nature is the human form!"
And what is it that makes the human form so transcendently beautiful? I eagerly asked. What is it that constitutes its peculiar charm? I anxiously interrogated; and there came back the reply, It is the "SOUL" in man; the immortal nature! the divine image! the spiritual life! the religious spirit! the breath of God! and it is this that makes a man a beautiful creature in contradistinction from all other forms of existence.

It flashes out from the eye; it sits gracefully upon the fairy brow; it lurks upon the rosy lips, and smiles upon the blushing cheek; it is seen in the light of genius; it is felt in the glow of sympathy; it is manifest in the life of purity; it is perceived in the action of a noble heart; it forms the white robes of the pure and holy in Paradise; it wreathes the brow of every son and daughter of Adam; it adorns every honest face; it shines in the life of virtue; it sparkles in the brow of wisdom; it flashes in the spirit of piety. The "SOUL" is a beauty that perishes not, though the human frame shall put off her rich garment of beauty. It is a flower that never shall fade; it is a light no cloud can shade; it is a blossom no chilling frost can blight; it is a bud of perpetual bloom; it is a beauty angels wear; it is the Tree of Perfect Beauty—the Tree of Life immortal.

When the footsteps came.

Step! step! step!
It was his footsteps—her lover's.
The echo might have been lost to you or me in the rumble of traffic, but to her—never. To you or me all footsteps might have sounded alike. To her there was as much difference as in the sound of human voices. And she waited and listened, and the footsteps came and went, and the months passed by.

Step! step! step!
It was his footsteps—her husband's.
The echo became a part of her daily existence. To listen for it became one of the objects of her life. When that echo caught her ear a smile flitted across her face, her eyes grew brighter, and a wifely kiss was on her lips. And she waited and listened, and the footsteps came and went, and the years passed away.

Step! Step!
But the footsteps had ceased, and the echoes had died away forever.
They bore him away to sleep with the numberless dead, and she was a widow from whom the sunshine had gone forever. She wept and grieved and—listened.

Step! step! step!
How her heart throbbed for an instant! So much like his, and yet she knew that he slept beneath the willow.
Not once, but a dozen times a day she felt her heart stop its beating as the echo of a footstep caught her ear.
And she waited and listened, and the echoes came and went, and she whispered to herself:

"Some day I shall again hear his footfalls and know that he has come."
The years went by, and a grey-haired woman looked out upon the setting sun and knew that it was her last night on earth. Friends wept at her bedside—she had no tears. They spoke to her in tearful tones—she made no answer.
She seemed waiting and listening, and of a sudden, as the first shadows of twilight began stealing into the room, she whispered:

"Hark! I hear it!"
Step! step! step!
"It is his footstep—I feel the echo in my heart! He has come back to me—my husband!"

All listened as they kept their eyes fixed upon the dying woman's face.
Step! Step! The echo brought the old wifely smile to her face. Step! step! Her face grew radiant at the thought of the meeting. Step! step! step! The echo gave her strength to rise up and stretch forth her arms as if to clasp some one, and she sank slowly back they heard her whisper:
"I knew his footsteps—he has come at last!"
But it was that he might guide her safely through the valley of the shadow.

"MISSING."

"Throb! throb! throb!"
As regular as the beat of the heart—more regular than the human pulse. It is the revolution of the steamer's screw—something heard from end to end and side to side of the great ship.
From dawn to dark—from dark to dawn—never missing a beat. Let the great ship's heart miss that beat—let the jar cease for a moment in mid-ocean, and the chill of fear will strike every passenger's heart. They know that only a single plank separates them from the relentless waters—that a rod—a pina bolt—a crank—may snap at any moment and render the huge ship as helpless as a log.

There is treachery in the waters when they lap and gurgle and run softly up on the sands, and break so still that a sleeping infant would be soothed to deeper slumber. There is fire aboard. Under the boilers down in the dark hold—in the cook's galley—in a half a dozen other places lurks a fiend who may spring up at any moment and clasp the huge ship in his fiery arms.

The sky is without a cloud, but an hour hence may bring a hurricane which will vex ocean and land until every living thing cries out in supplication. Puff!
Puff! Puff! It is the exhaust of steam.
It is steam controlled by watchful eyes and experienced hands. Let it but secure the mastery for a moment and the heavens will be rent by an explosion.
Straight ahead in her path, but miles away, is a ghastly obstruction. It creeps —creeps—creeps—moved by some mysterious current. It is an iceberg of such dimensions that the great steamship is a button compared to the monster fly-wheel of a 200 horse-power engine. On the starboard bow is a bark under full sail—on the port bow a steamer coming head on.

Throb! throb! throb!
And the men and women and children go to their beds and sleep in peace and dream sweet dreams. Bye and bye a fog creeps up—coming without whisper or footfall—coming as a deadly scourge enters a city and silently marks its victims with the touch of death. The man on the bridge reaches for a better glass—seems a trifle uneasy. The lookouts rub their eyes and start up as if half suspecting they had slept for a moment, and a hand is raised to the fog-whistle.
"Boom! boom! boom!"
Here and there a nervous sleeper may

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 24, 1885.

MOUNT UNIACKE.

As noticed in last week's ACADIAN, Wolfville Division is getting up a Temperance Picnic in the above place about Wednesday, the 5th August. We had the pleasure of visiting these beautiful grounds on Saturday last. Probably no prettier spot can be found in Nova Scotia for a picnic. Leaving Mt. Uniacke Station, a walk of a few minutes brought us to the entrance to the grounds. Entering, we proceeded through a long carriage drive closed in on both sides by beautiful shade trees with here and there open spaces, suitable for tables or games. This drive terminates at the edge of Mt. Uniacke Lake, a large and very pretty sheet of water stretching out before us and affording every facility for boating &c. Along the sides nearest to us are the choicest spots to spread tables and enjoy the nice, cool breeze ever wafting over its rippling surface. Just in front stands the Uniacke summer residence, a large and pretty building surrounded by croquet and tennis lawns, flower gardens, and the thousand and one things which go to make such a place attractive. That the committee have acted wisely in choosing this ground we have no doubt, and we can assure all who favor the picnic with their presence that they will be more than pleased with the place. Let us therefore have a grand rally and let all temperance people lend their aid in making a picnic so successful as to prove conclusively that rum drinking is not necessary to enjoyment. We understand that all the temperance societies without regard to name or order between Kentville and Mt. Uniacke will be invited.

PROROGATION

After many days the third session of the fifth Parliament of the Dominion of Canada has closed and we congratulate those patient M.P.'s, who have been obliged to sit and listen to the verbose speeches that have taken some 5,000 pages of Hansard to report. The Hon. Edward Blake, no doubt realising the hopelessness of his ambition to get a seat on the Govt. side of the house, felt it his bounden duty to obstruct and oppose everything coming from that side, and he has succeeded in making the Parliament just closed the most notorious since the Confederation of the Provinces. The Franchise Bill gave him good opportunity to show his obstruction tactics and the country will doubtless give him full credit for wasting some months in what every intelligent man in the Dominion must have known to be a hopeless move from the very first, and after tiring himself and his supporters out completely, the bill was allowed to pass with but little alteration.

After disposing of the Franchise Bill, the North West question gave him good opportunity of showing his great power in misleading those who never rely upon their own intelligence or seek for information elsewhere than from the leaders and press of their own political party. The late session of Parliament has been without doubt the longest session ever known in the history of Canada, and what has it accomplished? True it has passed the Franchise Bill, but of what great use is it to the country otherwise than creating a large number of unnecessary officials who will have to be paid out of the revenue of the country and absorb the means that should be taken for the construction of public works; but the Government must be sustained, Hon. Ministers must continue to receive the emoluments of office, and it matters but little if the interest of the country is served or not so long as the seats are secured to Hon. members, let it be by a Franchise bill or otherwise. King's County interests have been so well looked after in the past, that it no doubt will at the next general election send a representative that will support the present Govt. Only to think of it, the requirements of the County have been so fully provided for that it was difficult to find a place to appropriate a small sum during the session just closed. And as it would not be statesman-like for a member not to have an appropriation in the supplementary estimates, for his own county, some exertion must be used in order to find such place and the old wharf at Avonport was considered the most appropriate, and consequently received the grant which will no doubt give great satisfaction to the people of King's County.

CORRESPONDENCE.

STREETS.

To the Editors of the ACADIAN.
I have read with no little interest the letters in your last two issues on the condition of the streets, particularly near the Baptist church. It is a matter that affects not only comfort and sight, but also health, and I regret that "Observer" has gone out of his way to make an unkind personal allusion to a person entirely out of the question. Let any one take the matter into their own place and tell me if they would willingly stand horses all the year around directly under the windows of their parlors and bedrooms. Let them consider the delicacy of the perfume, these hot days, which is wafted into these rooms. Let them contemplate with complacency as they sit in their best room, the beauties of the barn-yard and compost-heap, and point out its loveliness to their visiting friends. That is what "Pedestrian" objects to, and how much more should those living in that vicinity object to it. As to the plows and other implements, we fail to see any harm in them so long as they are put up snugly, and there certainly cannot be used as a justification for the nuisance complained of by "Pedestrian." ONE WHO HAS BEEN THERE.

REPLY TO "NOTA BENE."

To the Editors of the ACADIAN.
MESSRS EDITORS.—It seems that your first "Nota Bene" was a scrap from a London paper handed to you for publication by a collector of scraps, who alleges that he attached too little importance to it to acknowledge, and would have us believe that he was entirely innocent of any intention of using it to "point a moral or adora a tale" for us Nova Scotians.

Nevertheless, he acknowledges that he "thought it was applicable in a certain degree to Nova Scotia, and winds up by stating that he can prove that it is so. Where, then, is the "trap" in which I am said to have been caught? If "trap" there was, it must have been a large one; probably a pound, with the gate open, into which one could easily walk and as easily escape, before the "wide-awake" keeper could close the gate and exact the fee in the shape of a public joke at the expense of "A Revisor." Neither can I see that the "cap," which my clever friend "Nota Bene" would so kindly bestow me, fits my head at all. It seems to me that it was clearly proven that the Revisors have done their duty according to law and the oath which they are required to take, and if "Nota Bene" was "wide-awake" he could easily find the List "posted up" where and when the law requires. I have nothing to do with his statement that "voters are not unfrequently manufactured." Allow me to state that that is not the question under discussion as I understood it, and in bringing that up, your correspondent is making use of the very same form of argument, "petitio principii," begging the question, of which he accuses me. If my memory serves me, the complaint in "Nota Bene" was that certain persons legally qualified to vote didn't know whether they had votes or not and couldn't find out from the List of Voters. To this I replied, defending the Revisors and showing that if anyone was left off the List, it was his own fault.

The only point "Nota Bene" has made in his half column of very pleasant witty writing is that touching Mr Best. I acknowledge my error, Messrs Editors, and apologise to Mr Best. I may say that I had no intention of insulting him or wounding his feelings. He is now nearly a centenarian and is deserving of honor and praise for his industry and independence in still striving to make a living for himself and wife. The assessors are justified, as I before stated, in exempting him from taxation, and if he has a vote election times, it isn't his fault. I observe that "Nota Bene" has been ringing the changes on Revisor and Revisor. I have spelled it Revisor, Messrs Editors, as it is so spelled in Instructions for Revisors, taken from Chap. 28, Law 1868, Stat. of N.S. "Nota Bene" writes in good style, and I have enjoyed his letter, although some of the wit is at my own expense. I hope we shall hear from him again, though I shall drop this subject here. A REVISOR.

NOTE.—The above was intended for last issue, but was received too late for publication.—ED.

What about early closing?

DON'T READ ANYTHING IN THIS COLUMN UNLESS YOU WISH A GOOD SEWING MACHINE.

CONVINCING EVIDENCE OF THE SUPERIORITY OF THE "DOMESTIC."

When agents "puff" their own goods, people pay but little heed; but when they speak well of goods they are not selling and do not intend to sell, then the people begin to listen. A sewing machine dealer may spend hundreds of dollars in trying to convince the people that the machine he is offering is the right one to buy, and it may be just what he claims for it, but yet other dealers may contradict his statements and the people be left in uncertainty. Some persons seem to think that all sewing machines are about alike and the one they can buy for the least money is the one they will have. Others believe there is a great difference but have no way of telling which is the best. Persons acquainted with the manufacture of sewing machines are well aware that there are really several grades, some being worth much more than others. As a general rule all sewing machines of the same model and made by the same company are about alike in quality, the difference in price between the different styles of any particular make being caused by the addition of drawers, cover, leaf, extra finish, and ornamentation to the plain table of the machine, while the real machine remains the same through all these styles.

SUPERIORITY OF THE "DOMESTIC."

One day last week a certain agent or traveller for a certain Canadian Co. called at one of our stores with a sample of the "New Williams," and several persons stepped into the store to see the new machine. The agent seemed well acquainted with American as well as Canadian sewing machines, and after working hard for over half an hour to show up all the "good points" about the "New Williams," honestly acknowledged before all present that the "Domestic" is the best sewing machine made in the United States. Now this is actually true as several of our citizens can testify, and this is the kind of evidence that tells. This gentleman, it must be remembered, was not selling the "Domestic" and not paid for "puffing" it; but when an agent of that make asked him why so many sewing machines are made to imitate the "Domestic," what else could he do but confess the truth, especially as the one he was introducing was an imitation of that machine? All sewing machine dealers and agents, who have any knowledge of sewing machines in general, admit to one another that the "Domestic" is the best machine; yet many prefer to handle some make that costs them less and pays a larger profit, and this is the true reason why the "Domestic" is so little known in many parts of our Province. It is generally understood among us that American machines of any kind are apt to be better than Canadian, and this is especially true of sewing machines. The best American sewing machines will no doubt wear much longer than the best Canadian because the wearing parts are made much harder. Try them both with a file and you will be convinced. The principal argument in favor of Canadian machines is that the "DUTY IS SAVED."

Now look here, Canadian sewing machines cost the dealer about as much as American after the duty is paid and the retail prices of many of them are much higher than even those of the "Domestic," which is acknowledged the best in the United States. How is this? The retail price of the "New Williams" is about $10 above that of the "Domestic." Do you suppose it is better? Why, according to the agent's own statement it cannot be so good. True, it is an imitation of the "Domestic" and does look something like it, but did you ever see pine made to look like rosewood and brass to resemble gold? A close comparison will convince you that the "Domestic" is better, the workmanship far superior, and that it runs much easier. Further examination would show many more points of superiority which the Domestic has, and must have or how can it be the best machine &c. What! are you going to pass by "the best" and take an imitation of it at a higher price? The "Domestic" sewing machine has been manufactured for over twenty years and

HAS MORE IMITATORS than any other in the U.S. Hundreds of thousands of them are now in use and not a fault found yet. Every genuine "Domestic" has the word "Domestic" cast in the legs and stenciled on the cover. Don't go to agents of other machines to ask about the "Domestic." A. C. Redden, Wolfville, is the agent. He will be pleased to give you all the needed information and show you all about the machines. Retail prices of the "Domestic," $50, $55, $60, and $65; full set of best attachment free. These are U.S. prices, and how anybody can pay the duty and freight on them and then sell them here at such prices seems strange, but yet it is true. The profits must certainly be very small and not sufficient to pay for carting them all over the country on trial, so don't wait for the agent. How does he know you want a machine? Notify him by mail; it will cost you only three cents. He will certainly answer and be pleased to do so.

FINE WORDS.

To the Editors of the ACADIAN.

Some people, like "A Pedestrian," and "One Interested," are very virtuous and very valiant. They condemn abuses and nuisances, "at the corners of the streets," and in the columns of the ACADIAN—which is all very well, as far as it goes. But one cannot help asking, why they do not go for them? They have a good cause; they have the law on their side; they have plenty of witnesses; there are magistrates within reach; a conviction could easily be obtained and the offence would be punished. Why then do these valiant citizens not proceed and have the village reformed? And what has become of the "bicycle" warrior? Echo answers, Why and What. W. AND W.

EUREKA!

Found! a Plum Tree that will not Black Knot!

The Masters Plum Tree has stood the test 40 years in Kentville-King's County, Nova Scotia. Chas. A. Masters, of Kentville, found this tree growing on lands now owned by Judge G. A. Blanchard forty years ago, and removed the tree to his garden in the village, where it now stands a healthy bearing tree, and is now owned by me. There are scores of trees throughout the village in bearing from 4 to 20 years old which bear every year, and not a vestige of black knot appears on one of them. The tree is an annual bearer of rapid growth, growing tall not spreading. The Plum is quite large, purple color, and of excellent quality. It is the best preserving plum grown, and sells higher than any plum brought into the market. Last year, while the crop was immense, the plum readily brought $4.00 per bushel, $2.00 more than any other variety offered for sale. We have several hundred first class trees to offer for the Fall planting. That this is the best and most profitable Plum Tree to plant that is grown in the Dominion of Canada, and that it will not black knot we refer the planters of this delicious fruit to F. S. Masters, Barrister, of whom we purchased the original tree; also to Chas. A. Masters, G. A. Blanchard (Judge), J. R. Blanchard, H. B. Webster, M. D., J. E. Mullen, M. D., Otho Eaton, John Byrne, T. THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 24, 1885.

Local and Provincial.

Splendid hay weather.

Edward Paine, Esq., is having the roof of his house re-shingled.

Are you going to the Temperance picnic at Mount Uniacke next Wednesday week?

The strawberry season is about over; but blueberries and raspberries are coming in rapidly.

Rev. Dr. Welton is expected to preach in the Presbyterian church next Sabbath. All are invited.

The Halifax Battalion is expected home to-day. Great preparations have been made for their reception.

Just received at Rockwell's, a fine lot of Commercial and Fancy Stationery, which will be sold extremely low.

Mrs. A. Murphy, of the Village House, furnished 90 meals on Thursday, the day of the excursion from Halifax.

If you wish to color wool, cotton, silk or feathers, use the new Electric Dyes, Strongest and Best in the world. 10 cents at all dealers.

The cricket match between the officers of the Royal Irish Rifles and the Kentville Clubs has been postponed until August 6th.

Use the "Peerless" Self-heater Smoothing Iron, and save a great deal of time and trouble. This Iron will not burn the most delicate article.

We understand that W. H. Buchanan, of the defunct Antagonist Aurora, is preparing for a monthly issue of a non-religious nature.

BAD BRIDGE.—The bridge at White Rock mills is in a very bad condition and needs a new covering. The bridge should also have a railing the full length to prevent accidents.

More than twenty years ago we had chills and fever, and the recollection of it makes us shiver even now. But this disease no longer terrifies us. Parsons' Purgative Pills are a sure preventive.

The new carding machine at White Rock mills is doing good work and is well patronized. Numbers of teams loaded with wool are seen daily going in that direction.

"French Lustre" Dressing for Ladies' and Children's Fine Shoes. Softens and preserves the leather, also restores its color and lustre. Put up expressly for C. H. Borden, sole agent for Wolfville.

The grounds at Black River falls is a beautiful place for picnics. Tables have been built at the foot of the falls, and everything is in readiness. This will probably be the favorite place for private picnics this season.

We beg to call our readers' attention to the high standing of the physicians who have used and who recommend EAGAR'S PHOSPHOLEINE in cases of Consumption, Scrophula Debility and all Wasting Diseases. Such testimony in its favor is sufficient to warrant a trial of it. For sale by CRICKET.—The Wolfville Cricket Club purpose having a scratch match to-morrow on the College Grounds, between eleven captained by D. R. Munro and F. L. Brown, respectively. A good game is anticipated.

We are also requested to say that a meeting of the Club will be held at the secretary's office to-morrow (Saturday) evening at 8:30 o'clock. All interested in Cricket are cordially invited to attend whether club members or not.

Nearly all the shops in Wolfville have been fitted out with new blinds this summer. We think this is a good move as it not only keeps them nice and cool, but also gives them a much better appearance on Sundays or holidays.

We would call attention to S. R. Sleep's adv. in another column of the "Peerless" Smoothing Iron. It is by far the best thing in smoothing irons we have ever seen and will, we think, find a ready sale. It does away with hot fires in ironing in the summer and can be used at very small expense and is always ready. We would advise our readers to call and see it, if they do not have a visit from the agent.

Local and Provincial.

Subscribe for the ACADIAN. Only 50 cents per year.

Capt. Jas. Eagles captured a large shark in his drift seine one night this week.

—Burpee Witter has just opened a large variety of Hoop Skirts, Bustles and Dress Improvers in all the newest styles.

By the appearance of our groceries, we would think that the small fruit crop was good this year.

Mr C. A. Patriquin has lately had a fine carriage built for him. He now has one of the "toniest" teams in the place.

The Celebrated Electric Dyes are the most lasting of all colors. Warranted strictly pure. 10 cents at Druggists and Grocers.

The salary list of the Halifax Battalion while on duty in the North West amounts to $8,277.78 per month of 31 days.

Ladies, if you value your shoes use only "French Lustre" Dressing as it will not injure them. C. H. Borden sole agent for Wolfville.

We notice in the supplementary estimates submitted to Parliament $1,000 for publication of Rev. S. T. Rand's Mic-mac Dictionary.

CROWN PICTURES.—Lately received at Rockwell & Co's, direct from the manufacturer's, a large lot of moulding expressly for framing the Crown Pictures. As this moulding has been purchased at bottom prices, we are now prepared to frame these pictures at lower prices than have ever been quoted before.

A SOUVENIR.—Mr. Joe Edwards, Conductor W.A.R., has been presented by a gentleman lately returned from the North West with a valuable relic. It is no less than the veritable shirt recently worn by the famous Indian Chief "Big Bear." It is made of buckskin, elegantly trimmed with silk. This North West relic can be seen at McMullen's barber shop.—Bridgetown Monitor.

Cramps and pains in the stomach or bowels, or in any part of the body, no matter how severe or what the cause, can be relieved by Johnson's Anodyne Liniment used internally and externally.

PERSONAL.—Mr and Mrs G. W. Cox, who have been spending a few weeks in Wolfville, left on Thursday for their home at Acadia Iron Mines.

Mr Frank DeWolf is spending his usual summer holidays in Wolfville.

Mr E. G. Woodworth, who has been in the hardware business in St. John for some time, arrived in Wolfville on Monday evening and will, we believe, stop a few weeks.

Mr Aaron Young is stopping in Wolfville on a visit.

To the Editors of the ACADIAN.

MESSENGERS EDITORS.—We would like to ask a few questions through the columns of your much valued paper in regard to impounding cattle. Now, Messrs Editors, we believe in doing what the law requires and expect others to do the same. There is a pound situated in a certain locality where there has been some disturbance as regards impounding cattle. We know of some being driven from the commons and put in pound while other cattle, on the roads, are left to run and do what damage they will. One reason for it, we suppose, is that some of these cattle belong to the persons having charge of the pound. Is the pound built only for the cows of the poor man and widow?

start up at the sound, but only to sleep again. All is well.
Through the darkness—through the blacker mantle of the fog—throbbing, breathing, living—the great iron monster pushes her way, and every few seconds the ominous sound of the whistle booms out to be caught up by the wreaths and smothered in the folds which are pressing down as if to smother their victim.
Throb! throb! Boom! boom! But all is well!

Overdue by five days, but no cause for anxiety. Ten days but she may have broken a shaft. Twenty days—she must be lost, but there are hopes that some of the people got safely away in boats. Six months—a year—two—three—five. Never a word nor a line—not so much as a bit of drift-wood. It is simply: "Missing."

THE COUNTRY EDITOR.

The country editor has a hard road to travel. He is the reporter, book-keeper, mechanical superintendent, business manager, collector, mailing machine and soliciting agent of the establishment. His work is hard, his receipts are small and his creditors numerous. In a small town an editor has to steer his course so as to avoid giving offense to different circles of society, the religious denominations, the business community and the rural population. If an influential old farmer wants a three column notice of his new barn, it must appear, or the editor may lose a hundred subscribers. Patch-work quilts, big bees and phenomenal eggs also can or for space in the columns of the country paper. In the course of time the rural scold becomes either mouse or mouse, but in either frame of mind he continues to meet friends who demand free advertising or enemies who work against him.

The country editor is always getting ready to abandon journalism for something else, but he rarely carries out his threat. He generally dies in harness. In some wild communities editors occasionally meet with rough treatment. Sometimes they are driven out of the country and, when other methods of getting rid of them fail, they are sent to the legislature. The city editor gets a good deal of fun out of the country editor's work, but the man who bears the burden regards it as a serious business. And in the best sense it is serious. The little local weeklies scattered all over the country are in their way potential factors of civilization. They develop their localities, bring their resources before the public, and in a manner educate their readers. They are always on the side of the churches, the schools, progress and reform. Men who live and die working for such objects are public benefactors, and deserve a substantial reward.—Atlanta Constitution.

It is refreshing to occasionally review the work of the country editor. If the patrons of a paper knew how some of their toiling editors were obliged to "rub" for a living, they would not delay paying their bills when due. As a rule, no family can afford to do without the paper which dispenses home news once a week. To support such an enterprise should not only be a duty but a pleasure.—Cambridge (Mass.) Tribune.

MORE EFFECTIVE THAN PROHIBITION.

In ancient Mexico the people knew nothing of prohibition and local option methods; but they had a summary way of punishing drunkenness. If an officer or man of distinction got drunk he was hung, and his body was then dragged along a public highway and thrown into the river. If the drunkard belonged to the lower classes he was sold into slavery for the first offence, and for the second he was hung. It was the theory of the Mexican law that the offender who was the highest in rank merited the most vigorous punishment. Under such a code of laws drunkenness was of rare occurrence among the ancient Mexicans. All that, however was in the state of barbarism. In these civilized days the modern Mexican gets as drunk as a "billed owl," and nothing is thought of it.—Atlanta Constitution.

LABOR AND INTELLECT.

We are always in these days trying to separate the two; we want one man to always be working, and we call one a gentleman and the other an operative; whereas the workman ought often to be thinking and the thinker often to be working, and both should be gentlemen in the best sense. As it is we make both ungentle, the one envying, the other despising his brother, and the mass of society is made of morbid thinkers and miserable workers.—John Ruskin.

Do not under any consideration, place a person who has had anything against his character in a place of trust. This may seem rash, but what a man has done once he may do again.
